THE PREFACE TO THE READER.

THE design of this Preface is not to acquaint the World with the worth of this Great Person, his Works already extant sufficiently praise him; but to give the Reader our just apprehensions of his Eminent fitness for so great an Undertaking, and of his happy performance of it.

Besides his eminent Endowments, as to natural and acquired Abilities, He had the happiness of an early and more than ordinary Conversion, in which God favoured him with a marvellous light, especially in the Mysteries of Corrupt Nature and of the Gospel, which afterward shined through most of his Works, and especially through this Comment.

This Light was attended so far, as we can judge with an inward sense of Spiritual things, with a gustus Spiritualis judicii; which after long Experience, grew up into Senses exerciſed to diſcern Good and Evil, and into an abounding in all Knowledge and Senſe. And indeed, that Perſon is the beſt Interpreter, who (beſides other Helps) hath a Comment in his own heart; and he beſt Interprets Paul's Epiſtles, who is himſelf the Epiſtle of Chriſt written by the Spirit of God. He beſt underſtands Paul's Epiſtles, who had Paul's Senſe, Temptations, and Experience.

He religiouſly obſerved the Light he arrived to, and greatly abhorred to hold any Truth in unrighteouſneſs; but lived over the Truths he knew, even to the hazard of what was moſt dear to him. And according to Chriſt's own Aphoriſms, the trueſt way of underſtanding his Doctrine is to do it: as on the other ſide, there is no great diſtance between ſhipwreck of Faith and a good Conſcience.

He had a Genius to dive into the bottom of Points, which he intended to Treat of; to ſtudy them down, as he uſed to expreſs it, not contenting himſelf with ſuperficial Knowledge without wading into the depths of things. His way was to conſult the weightieſt, if not all the Authors that had written upon the Subject he was upon, greatly valuing the Light which every man afforded, according to the manifold Grace of God, and the various Diſpenſations of his Spirit; yet confined himſelf to no man's Sentiments, but made an advance from his own Light and Experience to the Notions of Others.

As he conſulted with Books, ſo he had the advantage of intimate Converſe with the greateſt Chriſtians of his Age, thoſe living and walking Bibles. And thus from reading the living Word in himſelf and Others, he roſe up to a great improvement in the Truths of God, and was able to ſpeak more particularly and experimentally in Caſes of Conſcience and Practical Points, which did not a little qualifie him for this Work.

He was a Perſon much addicted to Retirements and deep Contemplation, by which means he had the advantage of looking round the Points and Scriptures he was upon, and filling his head and heart with Spiritual Notions, as the Sand of the Sea.

He

He had the happineſs of high and intimate Communion with God, being a man mighty with him in Prayer, to whom he had a frequent recourſe in difficult Points and Caſes; and ſuch Men wade farther into the deep things of God, who have ſuch a Leader.

He delighted much in ſearching into Points, and Scriptures which were more abſtruſe and neglected by others, and removed from vulgar Inquiry: and was very ſucceſsful in opening ſuch difficult Texts, in diſcovering the depths of Satan, in anatomizing the Old Man in himſelf and others.

He had been much exerciſed in the Controverſies that had been agitated in the Age he lived in, having a piercing Underſtanding, able to find out where the pinch and ſtreſs of Controverſies lay, when he ſtated them in his own heart from Scripture and Experience, and had a peculiar faculty to bring them down to ordinary Capacities in Scripture Language, without hard and pedantic Terms.

He had a deep inſight into the Grace of God, and the Covenant of Grace. A Darkneſs, in which was anciently, and ſtill is the cauſe of great Errours in the Church; the Ignorance of the Greek Fathers, of the Grace of God, gave great occaſion to the Pelagian Errours, as Janſenius obſerves.

He had (before his undertaking this Province) gone over in the courſe of his Miniſtry the grand Points of Religion, and concocted them in his own head and heart. And this he had done in frequent and intelligent Auditories, which greatly draws out the Gifts of Men, and fits them for ſuch a work as this.

He had this farther advantage, That God had exerciſed him not only with Inward conflicts, but with Sufferings for the Truths he owned, leaving not only Preferments, but (which was more precious to him) the Exerciſe of his Miniſtry in his Native Country: Only he had this benefit by his receſs to review and ſtudy over again his Notions and Principles. And we never find God wanting in the diſcoveries of his Secrets to ſuch Friends in their Retirements.

After

After his Return, he was made choice of to Interpret this Epistle, to which Work he was eminently suited upon all accounts, having a Light into the deep and profound Mysteries contained in it, beyond the elevation of those Times.

As to his Comment, it sufficiently commends it self, and therefore needs not our Encomium. We shall only give you some Remarks on it, which occurr'd in the perusal of his Papers.

According to our Observation, No man, who hath been exercised in the same Province, doth more happily pitch upon the true, genuine, and full scope of the Text. He is frequently guided to a Scope unobserved by Others, as to the latitude of it, and was much delighted to Interpret Scripture into the most vast and comprehensive sense, which the Spirit of God aimed at, adoring still the Fulness of the Scripture, being curious and critical in observing the various References and Aspects one place had upon others.

We find him dextrous at the opening of dark Scriptures, having a peculiar Faculty in comparing Spiritual things with Spiritual, one obscure place with another more clear and perspicuous; fetching Light, as men do in Opticks, by various positions of Glasses into a dark place; bringing Light to Gospel Truths from dark Types and Prophecies, and reflecting back Light again upon those dark shadows from Gospel Truths. That what places singly send out but some small Rays, being happily gather'd by him into a Constellation, give now a glorious light.

He passeth by no difficulty of the Text, till he assoils it and makes the place plain. He values the least Iota, and makes it appear, what great and momentous things depend upon little Words in the Scripture, which others too carelesly pass by.

His Observations are clear, genuine, and natural, and many times not of Vulgar and Common observation, which he usually confirms by one or more pertinent apposite Scriptures, which he Interprets as he goes along, to the great benefit and delight of the Reader; still founding what he treats

treats of upon Scripture, which is a way moſt ſatisfactory and bleſſed of God, and abides more on Mens hearts.

He brings down the higheſt controverted Point, and the moſt ſublime Myſteries of the Goſpel, in a plain and familiar way to diſcerning Chriſtians, without affectation of hard and Scholaſtick Terms. Having ſtated thoſe great Controverſies in his own heart, he makes them eaſie to the Senſe and Experience of others.

He makes uſe of variety of Learning, though in a concealed way; ſtudying to bring his Learning to Scripture, and not Scripture to his Learning.

His Language is natural, and expreſſive of his Conceptions, being adapted to convey Truths into the Minds of men with clearneſs and delight.

He ſpeaks the Intimacies of things from a inward ſenſe and feeling of them in his own heart, to the particular Caſes and Experience of others.

He hath a Vein of ſtrong Spiritual Reaſon running through all theſe Diſcourſes, carrying its own Light and Evidence with it.

He diſcovers a deep inſight into the Myſteries of the Goſpel, and a great light in the diſcovery of them; ſuch as is great in this Age, but was much greater about Forty years ago, when he preached theſe Lectures. He breaketh open the Mines of the glorious Grace of God, and the unſearchable Riches of Chriſt; and the farther you ſearch into them the greater Treaſures you will find: Plenius reſponſura fodienti, as one ſaith in a like caſe. No man's heart was more taken with the Eternal deſigns of God's Grace, than his; and no man makes clearer Schemes of it to others. None more clearly reſolves the Plot of Man's Salvation into pure Grace, than he.

His Diſcourſes all along are very Evangelical, carrying the Soul to an higher Holineſs; and from a higher Spring and Arguments, than what are to be found in Philoſophers, from the great Pullies and Motives of the Goſpel; which are higher and nobler Springs than what Adam himſelf had in Innocency.

In the Whole, he ſhews himſelf a Man of God throughly furniſhed to every good work, ſkilled in the whole compaſs of true Divinity, ſpeaking fully, clearly, and particularly to the Points he undertakes to handle.

He hath frequently things out of the Road and Vulgar reach, and beyond the elevation of Common Writers, and unobſerved by Others; and yet well founded upon Scripture. There are diverſities of Gifts, diſpenſed by the ſame Spirit to divers Perſons, for the edification of the Church.

And if at any time he ſteps out of the Road, he doth it with a due regard to the Analogy of Faith, and a juſt veneration for the Reformed Religion; wondring greatly at the daring Attempts of ſome Men of this Age, unskilful in the Word of Righteouſneſs, upon the great and momentous Points of our Religion, which are the Glory of our Reformation; but theſe Points will prove Gold, Silver, Precious Stones, when their Wood, Hay and Stubble will be burnt up. Theſe will have a verdure and greenneſs on them, whilſt the Inventions of others will be blaſted and wither. Theſe will be firm, whilſt others wanting ſomewhat within: 'Twill be with them, as 'twas with the Jewiſh and Heatheniſh Worſhip, when a Fate was upon them, all the efforts and endeavours of men could not make them ſtand.

Upon the account of what of this excellent Author hath been already, and will hereafter be Publiſhed (by the good Providence of God,) we think he may be looked upon as a Perſon raiſed up by God for ſome eminent Service in that Age he lived in; as Auguſtine, and Others, were in their Times. And therefore we are not a little aſtoniſhed at the Unworthineſs of ſome Perſons in this Age, who have made uſe of all their Arts and Intereſt, to ſuppreſs the Light of this, and other great Luminaries of the Church; who have done what in them lay to eclipſe Stars, and of the firſt Magnitude, and for little Nicities and Nothings, which the beſt and pureſt Times of the Church were unacquainted with. But 'tis hard to diſpute men out of Corrupt Intereſts, theſe Controverſies will have an eaſier deciſion at the Great Day.

We

We have added in the Cloſe ſome weighty Diſcourſes upon ſome other Texts in the Epheſians, and Coloſſians, (a Parallel Epiſtle to this of the Epheſians,) and upon ſome Texts in the Hebrews, and other Scriptures; either becauſe of their congenialneſs to this Comment, or the ſuitableneſs to the Times we live in: And, becauſe his Comment did not riſe up to that bulk in the firſt Projection, mentioned in the Propoſals.

That theſe Diſcourſes are his own, we need ſay no more, than that they bear his own Signature; he having drawn to the life the Picture of his own Heart by his own Hand.

AN EXPOSITION

Of the First and Second Chapters of the

EPISTLE

EPHESIANS.

A Premiſe concerning this Epiſtle.

SOmething of Cuſtom uſes to be premiſed by Interpreters, concerning the Epiſtles, or Books they Interpret, touching the Argument, Diviſion of the whole, and Occaſion of the Writing, and about the Perſons written to.

I ſhall only ſpeak of two of theſe, as moſt neceſſary.

1. The Excellency of this Epiſtle.
2. The occaſion of Paul's writing of it.

In the handling of which two, I ſhall yet wrap up all thoſe other mentioned briefly.

1. For the Excellency thereof. It hath been eſteemed among the choiceſt, and is accordingly placed in the midſt of his Epiſtles; as the moſt ſparkling Gem uſeth to be in a Carkenet of many Jewels: or, as Hierom's Compariſon of it is, Quomodo Cor Animalis in medio eſt; as the Heart in the midſt of the Body, ſo he liken'd it, for the Difficulties he obſerveth in it: But I rather, becauſe, as the Heart is the prime Seat, and Fountain of Spirits, and the fulleſt thereof; ſo this Epiſtle contains more of the Spirits, the Quinteſſence of the Myſteries of Chriſt, than any other; and is made up of the moſt quickning Cordials to the Inward Man. I ſhall ſay only, that I find our Apoſtle himſelf boaſting, as it were of none of his other Writings, but of this; and let his own Judgment caſt it, by what himſelf eſteemed his Maſter-piece. Thus expreſly in the third Chapter of this Epiſtle, at the third Verſe, he mentioning the Grace of God vouchſafed him, in that rich Treaſury of Knowledg diſpenſed to him, as a Steward for others, (as that Word ſignifies) and that tranſcendent way he came by it, more extraordinary than other Apoſtles, (who yet were in part taught it by Chriſt on Earth) Have you not heard (ſays he by the common Report went of it) how that by Revelation (namely Immediate) he made known to me the Myſtery? And thus far indeed, I find him elſewhere ſpeaking, as well; as here Gal. 1.12. But then in the following Words, he goes on yet further, and makes this very Epiſtle the higheſt Inſtance of this his Knowledge and Revelation; As I wrote afore, a little afore (namely in the two firſt Chapters hereof, eſpecially this firſt) whereby in the reading you may underſtand my Knowledge in the Myſtery of Chriſt; that is, your ſelves, not by hear-ſay only, προέγραψα ἐν ὀλίγῳ. In Præfat.

as afore, but by and upon your own Knowledg. There is not the like Speech utter'd by himſelf of any of his Epiſtles; he makes this very Epiſtle at once the moſt full Evidence and Demonſtration of that Tranſcendent way of his receiving the Goſpel by immediate Revelation. And ſo ſublime was the Matter contained in it, as it argued this Original, and that it could come no other way but by immediate Revelation, as afore he had affirmed of it, and likewiſe withal refers unto it; as the higheſt Specimen of the Depth, and Profoundneſs of his Knowledg, and as his choiceſt Exerciſe to ſhew his Chriſtian Learning by; ſo that, as elſewhere, he profeſſed to theſe ſame Epheſians, that he had (when preſent with them) declared all the Counſel of God to them, Acts 26. 27. So now abſent, to have ſingled out to utter in this Epiſtle the utmoſt Depths of that Counſel.

But what the Reaſon ſhould be, why Paul was thus more profoundly enlarged to them, than others of the Gentiles, to whom he alſo wrote, is worth our Enquiry, and Obſervance. Some attribute the difference unto Paul's (the Author's) own Spirit, and the Condition he was then in. It ſmells ſay they of the Priſon, Paul was a Priſoner, as Chap. 4. 1. and ſo more enlarged, when moſt ſtraitned, as in Sufferings our Spirits uſe to be. But I rather aſcribe it to ſome difference in theſe Epheſians written to. Philoſtratus gives Teſtimony of this City of Epheſus, that it excelled all other Cities in Wiſdom, and Learning, and over-abounded in thouſands of learned Men; and this their exquiſiteneſs in Human Learning, and ſearch after Knowledg, was that which made them ſo addicted to curious Arts (as the Holy-Ghoſt ſpeaking of theſe very Epheſians, calleth them, Act. 19. 19.) which were partly Human, but Vain, partly Magical and Deviliſh; as the Syriac renders the Words; whence alſo Epheſinæ Literæ, the Letters of Epheſus grew into a Proverb. And Chryſoſtom ſays, that even unto his Time, it abounded with Philoſophers, above any other City, and that the chiefeſt Philoſophers and Wiſemen of Aſia, had had their original, and dwelling therein, and alledgeth (in his Preface of this Epiſtle) That, as the Reaſon, why Paul ſhould write this Epiſtle with more ſtudy, and exactneſs; and why he utter'd more profoundneſs of Knowledge to them, than unto others. But ſure this his Reaſon falls ſhort of that, which may Theologically be ſuppoſed the true Ground of his Sublimeneſs therein, and it will be uſeful to improve it higher. To me it ſeems, that that ſupereminent Self-denial, which appeared in many of theſe converted Epheſians, even in point of Knowledge, in their renouncing all that excellency of Learning, which was then the Glory of that City, in the Eyes of all the Nations; the great Diana of their Brains, and Hearts, (as the Goddeſs was of their blind Devotions) as a Teſtimony whereof, they ſacrificed the very Books themſelves unto the Fire; as the Holy-Ghoſt hath given Teſtimony to their Self-Denial in this particular. Acts 19. 19. This might be the Reaſon, why God honoured them with an Epiſtle ſo ſublime, by way of Recompence. And it affords us this Obſervation grounded upon like Inſtances.

Abundat bonarum Artium ſtudiis, Philoſophis, oratoribuſque redundat, ut vere dici poſſit eam civitatem non equeſtrum robore, ſed clarorum hominum millibus cæteras ſuperare, in eaque plurimum vigere ſapientiam. Lib. 8. de Vit. i Apol. cap. 3.

Obſ. What ever Excellency any one hath been eminent in, or priz'd moſt, afore Converſion; but now doth undervalue, and (as Chriſt's Word is) hates, and forſakes for Chriſt's ſake, in that very thing Chriſt as apparently maketh recompence an hundred fold. Theſe Epheſians forſook the moſt exquiſite Wiſdom earthly, yea, the deepeſt that Hell afforded; Depths of Satan, as John ſpeaks in another Caſe; and God therefore honours them, with this Divine Epiſtle, made as publick as their Self-denial, to all the World, in which God from Heaven enlarged this Apoſtle's Heart, to make a profeſſed Diſcovery of the ſublimeſt, and deepeſt Myſteries that Heaven affordeth, that were to be communicated to any of the Sons of Men, and that were lawful to be uttered, (as himſelf ſpeaks, 2 Cor. 12.) by him that was in Heaven. They burn their very Books, valued at many thouſands, (for their Price is on Purpoſe valued, Acts 19. 19.) and therefore our Apoſtle's Heart is enlarged towards them, to bring forth the bottom of that Treaſure of Knowledg hid in Chriſt, the unſearchable Riches of Chriſt, as ver. 8. of the third Chapter. He calls them thus alſo himſelf (the Author of it) having reckoned his Learning, when a Phariſee (wherein he profited above many of his Equals) at ſo high a rate, as the Account of the World, then went; but now when converted, he accounting all but as Dung and Dogs Meat, for the excellency of the Knowledg of Chriſt, Phil. 3. 8. was therefore accordingly enlarged, and filled with an Excellency in this Knowledg above his Fellow-Apoſtles; tho he complains of himſelf, as born out of Time, and as one put to this School long after them. Thus Moſes alſo undervaluing the Egyptian Learning (wherein he excelled, Acts 7.22. as well as the Pleaſures of that Court, having an Eye to the recompence of Reward to come; was accordingly in a Proportion recompenſed even in this Life, as with being exalted to be a King over the People of God (a greater Dignity than Egypt afforded) Deut. 33. for his leaving the Egyptian Court; ſo with being made the Prophet of the Old Teſtament for his renouncing of their Learning; to whom God revealed himſelf, and his Law, as never to any other Prophet, Numb. 12.6. He was the Giver of that Law, which by the confeſſion of all the Heathens excelled theirs; and therein made ſuch an eminent Type of Chriſt his Prophetical Office, as no Prophet was afore or after him, Deut. 18.15.

Fellow

And ſo much for the Excellency of this Epiſtle. Yet let me add this, That of all Epiſtles, that to the Coloſſians comes neareſt to it, in the Matter and Argument thereof; and in many things, the one is a Comment upon the other; only in the Doctrine of God, Free Grace, and Everlaſting Love (which is that Myſtery of the Myſtery of Chriſt.) This far excells it.

2. In the ſecond Place, for the Occaſion of this Epiſtle, Interpreters are much put to it to find what it ſhould have been, nor need we trouble our Thoughts much, if we find not any; for perhaps the Apoſtle took one, (as a good Heart is apt when there is no ſet Occaſion given) for to do Good; which ſeems all the Occaſion of that other Apoſtle's writing his, 2 Pet. 1.13. I think it meet, as long as I am in this Tabernacle, to ſtir you up, &c. But for any ſpecial one of this, the beſt and moſt probable, which I by conjecture can find, is that which the Apoſtle by the Spirit of Prophecy foreſaw, Act. 20. where calling all the Elders of Epheſus together (even the Elders of this Church, which here he writeth unto, as you may ſee ver. 17.) he tells them ver. 29. I know this that after my departure ſhall grievous Wolves enter in among you; alſo of your own ſelves ſhall Men ariſe, ſpeaking perverſe things, to draw away Diſciples after them. He forewarns both, that ſome of their own Elders ſhould riſe up (for oftentimes ſo it falleth out in Churches) and alſo that others from other Churches and places ſhould enter in among them (Wolves he calls them) teaching perverſe things. And I know this, ſays he; he knew it by the ſame Spirit of Prophecy and Revelation, that ver. 25. he ſays, he knew he ſhould ſee their Face no more. And altho he perhaps knew not the particular Errors which they ſhould teach; yet in General, you ſee he knew that groſs Errors, overthrowing the Foundation of the Goſpel, ſhould ariſe amongſt them, and be taught. Now therefore to prevent their being carried away with any of thoſe Errors, whatever they might prove to be, he writeth this Epiſtle in a poſitive way, to eſtabliſh them afore-hand in the greateſt Truths of the Goſpel. And what is the great and main Argument of this Epiſtle, eſpecially in the firſt part of it? It is to lay open the Doctrine of Free Grace, and of God's Eternal Love in, and Redemption by Chriſt, and the Bleſſings iſſuing therefrom; and the dependance that our Salvation hath on both. The Apoſtle not knowing what particular Errours ſhould ariſe, he yet chooſeth to teach ſuch Doctrines, as might be the moſt univerſal Preventives to all whatever, that were of any dangerous Conſequence; and for this Purpoſe of all other Doctrines, he pitcheth upon this of Free Grace. The Obſervation then is this.

Obſ. That if Chriſtians Judgments be well and throughly grounded in the Doctrine of God's Free Grace, and Eternal Love, and Redemption through Jeſus Chriſt alone, and in the moſt Spiritual Inward Operations of God's Spirit, which he ennumerates to have been experimentally communicated; That will fence them againſt all Errors, you may then even venture them from taking in any Falſhood of any great Moment. Their Souls being well ſhod with the preparation of the Goſpel of Peace, (to uſe the Apoſtle's Similitude, as it is in the 6th of this Epiſtle, ver. 15.) Then, as they are Tentation-Proof in reſpect of Sin, or practical Doubtings, (which is the Apoſtle's Scope there) ſo in like manner, when their Judgments are thus ſhod with the Doctrine of Grace, they are Errour-Proof alſo, (I ſpeak in reſpect of taking in any dangerous Hereſy) and this fully agrees with what the Apoſtle directs, Heb. 13. 9. Be not (ſaith he) carried away with divers and ſtrange Doctrines. He calls them divers or various

Doctrines,

Doctrines: for tho there is but one Truth, yet Errours about Truth are divers; and he calls them Strange, that are brought in differing from the Faith the Apoſtles taught, and was once given. And he inſtanceth in one, namely, the putting an Holineſs, in an elective outward abſtinence from ſome Meats rather than others (ſo in the next Words.) But what any one thing was there that would of all other fix, and ballance their Minds againſt this, and all other ſuch empty Doctrines, and waverings towards ſuch Superſtitions? He adds, for it is a good thing that the Heart be ſtabliſhed with Grace. Both inherent Grace in the Soul it ſelf, (for the New Creature taſtes and diſcerns Truth as the Palate doth Meat.) As alſo with the Doctrines of Free Grace, without us in God's Heart toward us, as it is declared, and taught in the Scriptures, and in this Chapter, and in the ſecond of this Epiſtle; and let their Hearts be ſtabliſhed, and ballaſted, and made ſteady with theſe, and they will not eaſily be toſſed to and fro, and carried away with every Wind of Doctrine, by the ſlight of Men, &c. as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, Chap. 4. 14. of this Epiſtle. And the latter Sence of Grace, in that Heb. 13. I underſtand to be principally meant: for the Doctrine of God's Grace revealed to us in the Goſpel, is eminently ſtyled the Grace of God bringing Salvation; Titus 2.11. but yet withal, take in thoſe Bleſſings, and bleſſed Operations wrought within us, which our Apoſtle here enumerates, in Chap. 1. and goes on to do it in chap. 2. to ver. 11 of that Chapter; the working of which in theſe Epheſians he all along aſcribes unto the Grace; the exceeding Riches of Grace, Mercy, and Love in God, founded in Election, and Redemption; and theſe, together with his Doctrine of Grace, will keep you ſtedfaſt and immoveable.

I ſhould now add, as the cuſtom of Expoſitors likewiſe is, ſome more general Analyſis, or Diviſion of the whole Epiſtle; but let that ſuffice, which in going over the Particulars, will ariſe naturally to every Man's Obſervation: That the half of it, to the end of the third Chapter, is Doctrinal, laying down the Myſteries of Salvation, and Man's Miſery; the other half to the end, is wholly Practical, exhorting to ſeveral Duties in all ſorts of Relations. I haſten to the Expoſition it ſelf.

AN EXPOSITION OF THE FIRST CHAPTER OF THE EPISTLE TO THE EPHESIANS.

SERMON I.

VERSE 1, 2.

Paul an Apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, by the Will of God, to the Saints which are at Epheſus, and faithful in Chriſt Jeſus.

Grace be to you, and Peace from God our Father, and from our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

ALthough the matter of the two firſt Verſes is found almoſt in every Epiſtle, and is accordingly Expounded by every Interpreter; yet that there may not be an uncomely vacuity at the very firſt entrance, I ſhall add ſome Animadverſions upon the words of them.

Paul an Apoſtle] The reaſon why in his Epiſtles he uſually prefixes both his Name and Office, is, Firſt, To aſcertain them he wrote to, that the Epiſtles were his own, or Genuine Epiſtles; as you may perceive his intent to be by that cloſure of his ſecond Epiſtle to the Theſſalonians, 2 Theſ. 3. 17. The ſalutation of me Paul with my own hand, which is the ſign or token in every Epiſtle: ſo I write, &c. ſo then this Inſcription is both a ſalutation and a bleſſing of theſe Epheſians, of which afterwards.

Secondly, He adds his ſacred Office, And an Apoſtle]——Apoſtleſhip was an Office extraordinary in the Church of God, appointed for a time for the firſt rearing and governing the Church of the New Teſtament, and to deliver that Faith which was but once to be given to the Saints, (as Jude ſpeaks) and the

Serm. I.

Apoſtles are therefore entitled the foundation the Church is built on, *Epheſ.*2.20. which Office accordingly had many extraordinary Priviledges annexed to it, ſuited (as all the Callings by God, and his Inſtitutions, are) to attain that end, which was ſo extraordinary: As namely unlimitedneſs of Commiſſion to teach all Nations, Matth. 28. 19. They likewiſe had an Infallibility and unerringneſs, whether in their Preaching (a), or in Writing (b), which was abſolutely neceſſary for them to have, ſeeing they were to lay the Foundation to all Ages, 1 Cor. 3. 10. Although in their perſonal walkings they might err, as Peter did, Gal. 2. 11. And further, they had Authority and Juriſdiction committed to them, as Elders in any Church, where Providence ſhould caſt them, 2 Cor. 11. 28. together with Authority and Power therein, 2 Cor. 4. 21. and 2 Cor. 10. 8. And

(a) 2 Cor. 1. 18.

(b) Verſ. 13. (for which compare both theſe Verſes together.)

Thirdly, This our Apoſtle had this ſpecial Grace and Honour from God vouchſafed him above moſt of the Apoſtles, to be particularly moved and inſpired by the Holy Ghoſt, the Conſcience of his own duty concurring, to edifie not only the preſent Churches then extant, but to write Epiſtles to leave them to the Ages to come, which every Apoſtle did not; and there were none that did write any part of Scripture, but as, and when they were moved by the Holy Ghoſt, as Peter tells us, 2 Pet. 1. 21. As no Propheſie came in the Old Time, i. e. under the Old Teſtament, by the will of man: but holy men ſpake, and ſo by like reaſon wrote as they were moved by the Holy Ghoſt; and thus 'tis under the New as well as under the Old. But God was pleaſed to uſe this man to labour more than they all. We owe the third part of the New Teſtament to him: Inſomuch, as he wrote Epiſtles to ſome by ſpecial and perſonal Inſpiration, whom he never ſaw in the fleſh, as the Coloſſians.

And this practice of affixing his Name and Office to his Epiſtles, as well as the Epiſtles themſelves, is greatly to be heeded by us that do come in after Ages. Excepting that to the Hebrews for a ſpecial Reaſon, not ſetting down his Office of Apoſtle, which in two or three Epiſtles, where it is leſs needed, is omitted alſo. It is to be heeded, I ſay, by us in after Ages, for it has this inſtruction in it, (which was his ſcope of doing it) that as the matter of them did bind and oblige thoſe whom he wrote to, ſo all Saints in after Ages to come, for they do Inherit theſe and other Apoſtles Writings, to own them, and embrace them, and to obſerve what is written in them, as of a Divine Authority, the Word of God, as well as of man, and as intended to all Saints and Faithful in Chriſt Jeſus, as well as thoſe at Epheſus. As thoſe Inſtances declare, that the Epiſtle that was writ to the Church of Coloſſus, Paul commands to be read to the Church of Laodicea. The Inſcription likewiſe to the Church at Corinth commands the ſame; To the Church of Corinth, with all that call on the Name of the Lord, both theirs and ours, 1 Cor. 1. 1.

Know therefore, that when you read any Epiſtle, the whole weight of their Apoſtolical Spirit and Authority in them is to fall upon all our Conſciences and Spirits, as it did on theirs, unto theſe purpoſes, both to aſſure our hearts of the unerring truth of every tittle of them, and their word in their writings to be as true as God is true, 2 Cor. 1. 13, 18. As alſo to receive all their Injunctions, and commands therein, as coming with the ſame Apoſtolical Authority, that it did to thoſe to whom they were by name written; and as immediately warranting us in all thoſe practices, which their living commands did put them upon. In a word, to ſpeak in the words of the Apoſtle to the Theſſalonians, To receive them all as the Word of God, even as if we had heard them out of Paul's own mouth, * which work as effectually in you that believe, as it did in them. So that as in theſe their writings we enjoy theſe Apoſtles Miniſtry, and ſhall to the end of the World, Matth. 28. ult. and are therefore ſaid to believe through their word, Joh. 17.20. In like manner their ordinary Directions to Believers to any duty belonging to them, to become Churches, or joyn themſelves to Churches; or elſe to Churches how to demean themſelves, left us in their Epiſtles, or the Acts of the Apoſtles recorded, have the ſame Authority to bind us, as they did them, and he gives the ſame warrants and commands to us, which their Perſons, by living voice, did to thoſe Saints in their Times; which their very Commiſſion, Matth. 28. 19. holds forth to us, Go and teach them to obſerve ſerve all that I have commanded, ſaies Chriſt, and Lo, I am with you to the end of the World. Serm. I.

1 Theſſ. 2. 13. * As there he urged, that they had heard.

And in this reſpect theſe few words (Paul an Apoſtle) which we find prefixed, are of great uſe to us; and let this Name, and Title, and Commands of his, which are from Chriſt, be for ever precious throughout all Generations.

There are three things in theſe two firſt Verſes:

1. The Author of this Epiſtle, Paul.
2. The Perſons to whom it was written, Saints at Epheſus, &c.
3. The Salutation, and bleſſing therein uttered, ordinary in all his Epiſtles, Grace and Peace, &c.

1. The AUTHOR.

PAUL.] I will not ſpeak much of his perſonal ſupereminent worth. In his own opinion he was the leaſt of Saints on Earth; in mine, the higheſt Saint in Heaven, and next the man Chriſt Jeſus. To whoſe labours (more abundant than of all the other Apoſtles, 1 Cor. 15. 10.) the one half of the now Chriſtian, then Roman World doth owe, and the Catholick Church in all Ages, the third part of that unvaluable Treaſure of the New Teſtament; taking together all either written by him, as the Epiſtles, or written of him, as the greateſt part of the Acts.

Only this name of his here [Paul] and the change thereof from that of Saul, is a difficulty among Interpreters, which I ſhall not here meddle with further than thus, that this change might be from his former Jewiſh name Saul into a Roman name Paul, it being evident, that ſeveral Nations did uſe to alter mens names according to their own Tongue, and very often the firſt Letter of a mans name is changed in the ſame Language, whom Iſaac calls Merodach, him the Writer of the Book of the Kings calls Berodach. So the eldeſt Son of Simon, whom Moſes calls Jemuel, Gen. 46. 10. and Exod. 6. 15. the ſame man doth Moſes call Nemuel in Numb. 26. 12. And the Author of the Book of the Chronicles, 1 Chron. 4. 14. and the name Paul was a name uſual among the Romans, given to a Roman Deputy, Acts 13. 7. and thus the name Saul might have been fitted unto the Roman Mode, S being turned into P, and that which ſtrengthens this conjecture, is, that we read of this change of his name firſt, when we read of his Converſe with that Roman Deputy, Acts 13. but chiefly when he was a-new ſeparated to the Work of Preaching to the Gentiles, by the command of the Holy Ghoſt, Acts 13. 4. It may be added, that this new name hath been the rather given him by the Romans, and the more readily accepted by him, as fitly glancing at the littleneſs of his ſtature (which the more illuſtrated the glory of God's Grace in the gifts of his mind) of which Antiquity gives Teſtimony from Tradition, and Antient Images of him four hundred years after in Chryſoſtomes time, Niceph. lib. 2. cap. 37. And Chryſoſtome in his Homily De princip. Apoſtol. calls him ὁ τριπηχὺς ἄνθρωπος, A man of three Cubits, whereas the ordinary proportion of men is four: which may moſt probably be thought to be that baſeneſs and weakneſs of preſence, which himſelf acknowledgeth in himſelf, 2 Cor. 10. 1, 10. It is certain that the name Paulus was firſt given to the Family of the Æmylians in Rome for the littleneſs of their ſtature. And this change himſelf might well permit and take on him. A new Gentile name inſtead of his Jewiſh, as an Indication of his new Office. The Apoſtle of the Gentiles, Rom. 11. 15. It being withal ſo fitly ſuited to expreſs the Character of his Spirit, and his moſt eminent Grace, littleneſs in his own eyes, which accordingly you find him ſtill inculcating, as if it were his Motto, both interpreting his name and expreſſing his Spirit, Leſs than the leaſt of Saints, Eph. 3. 8. Leaſt of Apoſtles, 1 Cor. 15. 9. perhaps in ſome alluſion to his name Paul; but this is only a conjecture on which I inſiſt not.

Paul an Apoſtle.] It was made a wonder in the Old Teſtament, Is Saul among the Prophets? And it is as great a wonder of the New, that Paul the Perſecuter ſhould be among the Apoſtles, and ſo it was when Paul Converted began firſt to Preach that Chriſt was the Son of God, and was firſt heard at Damaſcus by the people. What the effect whereof was, the words of the Hearers do ſhew. Acts 9. 21,22. But all that heard him, were amazed, and ſaid, Is not this he that deſtroyed them which called on this name in Jeruſalem, and came hither for that intent, that he might bring them bound unto the Chief Prieſts? But Saul increaſed the more in ſtrength, and confounded the Jews, which dwelt at Damaſcus, proving that this is very Chriſt. Whoſe Office in the Church was the firſt, 1 Cor. 12. 28. God hath ſet in the Church [firſt] Apoſtles; and therefore the higheſt under the Goſpel next Chriſt, even as the High-Prieſthood was the Higheſt of the rank of Prieſts under the Law. Hence both theſe coupled together, and in way of honour given unto Chriſt himſelf (God's firſt and great Apoſtle ſent out by him, Joh. 20. 21.) The High Prieſt and Apoſtle of our profeſſion, Jeſus, &c. Heb. 3. 1.

Obſerv. No ſins before (and I may add to it, nor yet after Converſion) can hinder God's Free Grace from uſing men in the higheſt Employments in the Church, but magnifies it the more. David, after his Adultery, was a Pen-man of Scripture, Pſalm 51. Solomon after his fall, of Eccleſiaſtes; Peter after his Converſion, denied Chriſt with Oaths and Curſes, is a chief Apoſtle, and converts three thouſand fifty daies after, with the ſame Mouth he had denied Chriſt; and Paul after he had been a Blaſphemer, was made an Apoſtle.

Of Jeſus Chriſt.] This addition ſhews the Author of this Office, whoſe deſignment it was, Jeſus Chriſt. 1. Chriſt as the Author and Founder of his Apoſtleſhip, ſo he was of all the other Apoſtles, Joh. 20. 21. As the Father ſends me, I ſend you. Apoſtle ſignifies one ſent: Chriſt was God the Father's Apoſtle, Heb. 3. 1. and appointed by Him, verſ. 2. and Eph. 4. 11. It is attributed to Chriſt, that he aſcending, Gave ſome to be Apoſtles, &c. It is the Prerogative of a King (yea every Maſter of a Family) to appoint what Offices and Officers ſhall be of his Houſhold. And 2. It imports alſo the Dignity of this Office above Human Offices; the ſtyle of it runs, An Apoſtle of Chriſt. As the Offices that belong to the King's Perſon in Court have a peculiar denomination, expreſſing a relation to his Perſon, which other Offices in the Kingdom have not: As, the King's Chamberlain, the King's Steward, &c. And as others in the Kingdom, are all Subjects of the King as their Prince, but Courtiers in Offices are peculiarly Servants of the King as a Maſter; ſo they write themſelves Servants to the King: and Paul, Jeſus Chriſt my Lord, Phil. 3. As they in Court, the King my Maſter: ſo though all Chriſtians are Subjects and Members of Chriſt; yet, Apoſtles and Miniſters are in a more peculiar reſpect Servants of Chriſt, as James and Jude ſtyle themſelves in the firſt Verſe of their Epiſtles.

But although he ſtyles himſelf Chriſt's Apoſtle, yet he leaves not out his Commiſſion alſo from, and the Influence of God alſo into it, By the Will of God, that is both of the God-head, and of all three Perſons. For to Apoſtleſhip, and all Offices in the Church, they all concur, as well as to our Salvation.

To Apoſtleſhip, ſo Gal. 1. 1. Paul an Apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, and God the Father; there you ſee are two Perſons——. And then the Spirit, the third Perſon, ſaid, Separate me Paul and Barnabas, Acts 13. 2. And ſo they concur to all other Officers more inferiour, 1 Cor. 12. 4, 5, 6. There are diverſities of Gifts, but the ſame Spirit. (The Gifts which Officers are endued with, are aſcribed to the Holy Ghoſt.) There are differences of Adminiſtrations, and the ſame Lord, viz. Chriſt, who, as a Lord, appoints the ſeveral Offices wherein Gifts are exerciſed: and there are diverſities of operations, but it is the ſame God, (viz. the Father) who worketh all in all. The bleſſing upon Gifts, and the ſucceſs of all Adminiſtrations or Offices Miniſterial are from the Father. Thus By the Will of God; all three Perſons are at the Ordination of every true Miniſter, and lay on their Hands of Bleſſing each of them, and ſet their hands to every Miniſters Commiſſion.

More Particularly.

By the Will of God.) This firſt imports that ſpecial Decree of God, in ſeparating him to this Office, which Gal. 1. 15. and Rom. 1. 1. he with an Emphaſis expreſſeth, ſet apart to it; ἀφορίζειν is to ſelect choice things: Therefore choice ſenſentences are called Aphoriſms. And in this Reſpect our Apoſtle is called a choſen Veſſel to bear his name, that is, a choice Veſſel for the purpoſe, Acts 9. 15. And thus the Election of the Twelve at firſt, is as expreſly aſcribed to Chriſt's Will as here this is. So Mar. 3. 13. He called to him whom he would, and he ordained Twelve; and this out of meer Grace and the good pleaſure of his Will, ſo in the ſame Gal. 1. 15. It pleaſed him, &c. And that is one reaſon, why he mentions it here, even to mind his own heart of the Original of this his great Dignity, wholly to have been the Will and Grace of God, and nothing in himſelf, calling it therefore elſewhere, Grace and Apoſtleſhip, Rom. 1. 5. that is, the Grace of Apoſtleſhip; yea, he reckoning this as great a mercy wellnigh as his Salvation, for ſo that great and ſolemn Thanſgiving of his, 1 Tim. 1. from the 11. to the 18. (where he relates his Converſion) doth imply, it being chiefly for putting him into the Miniſtry, verſ. 12.

Of God.] This imports, Secondly, The immediateneſs of his Call, in diſtinction from other Officers and Apoſtles. And likewiſe for their Direction, whither to go, and what to do; they were ſubordinate to none other: And this latter was peculiar to this Office. Evangeliſts, though extraordinary Miniſters, yet were ſent out by the Apoſtles, as Titus 2 Cor. 12. 18. and ſo Timothy, but Apoſtles, they immediately by God; thus Gal. 1. 1. (which place Interprets this) Paul an Apoſtle, ſaies he, not of men, neither by man, but by Jeſus Chriſt and God the Father, who raiſed him from the Dead. To Interpret the words; Firſt, Paul an Apoſtle, not of men] that is, my Office is not a human Office, which men have inſtituted, and invented, It is, ſaith he, of Divine Inſtitution. And this is common to all Miniſterial Offices in Churches. And this he ſpake in diſtinction from Offices in Common-wealths. In a Common-wealth the Offices thereof are (as the Apoſtle calls them by way of diſtinction from thoſe in the Church) ἀνθρωπινὰι κτίσεις Human Creations (we Tranſlate it, Human Ordinances) whereas all Church Offices are Divine, and not of men in Paul's ſenſe: But yet becauſe this firſt requiſite [not of men] was common to all Offices of the Church as well as Apoſtleſhip; therefore, Secondly, he adds by way of further diſtinction from them alſo, Neither by man. The ordinary Offices in the Church, although they are not of men, i. e. there ought to be an inſtitution for every one of the Offices themſelves; yet, the man, the perſon, is uſually put into the Office by men, though guided in it by the Holy Ghoſt, Acts 20. By men, that is the particular deſignation of the perſon, that is by men, (though according to ſuch rules in the Word as are to guide their choice) (and that is the difference of thoſe two phraſes of men, and by men,) But (ſaith he) this my Office of Apoſtleſhip is neither of men, nor by men, but as the Text here ſaith, by the Will of God, that is, by God's immediate deſignation of my perſon to it, ſo it alſo there to the Galatians follows, but by Jeſus Chriſt and God the Father. And which was yet further, a more peculiar prerogative above other Apoſtles, this our Apoſtle was called into it by Jeſus Chriſt, as Riſen from the Dead, and aſcended into Heaven; other Apoſtles were called by Chriſt living here in the Fleſh, but I was born out of time, ſaith he, and ſo had like to have miſſed of being capable of this Office, (whereof one requiſite was to have ſeen Chriſt) but to make up that requiſite alſo, Chriſt deferred the calling of me unto it, until himſelf came again; Chriſt roſe again and converted me himſelf from Heaven, when laſt of all he was ſeen of me, 1 Cor. 15. And this difference of himſelf from other Apoſtles, he ſeems to inſinuate, verſ. 12. of that Gal. 1. That he neither received the Goſpel from men, as Evangeliſts did, 2 Tim. 1. 13, 14. and as ordinary Teachers do, 2 Tim. 2. 2. nor was taught it namely by Chriſt in the Fleſh in the way of outward teaching, as the other Apoſtles were by Chriſt himſelf: but meerly, and wholly by inward and immediate Revelation, and this made him (as was obſerved) ſo much excel all the other Apoſtles, his gifts were anſwerable to his Call, which was ſo extraordinary.

If it be objected, That he was ordained an Apoſtle by laying on of hands of Ananias, Acts 9. Again by the Teachers of Antioch, Acts 13. The anſwer is, Firſt, That he was ordained an Apoſtle before at his Converſion by Chriſt himſelf, Acts 26. 16, 17, 18. But riſe ſtand upon thy feet, for I have appeared unto thee for this purpoſe, to make thee a Miniſter and a Witneſs both of theſe things which which thou haſt ſeen, and of thoſe things in the which I will appear unto thee, delivering thee from the people, and from the Gentiles, unto whom now I ſend thee. To open their eyes and turn them from darkneſs to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, &c. Secondly, That Ananias laying on of hands was to Miniſter the Holy Ghoſt, and fill him with it, Acts 9. Thirdly, That which was done at Antioch by man, was for a bleſſing on the work and exerciſe of his Apoſtleſhip, and of the Office of Apoſtleſhip it ſelf, which was to ſpend his labour and endeavour upon the Gentiles, among whom they ſent him. Fourthly, That, even that was firſt appointed and declared by the Holy Ghoſt, Separate me Paul and Barnabas to the work I have called them, The Holy Ghoſt (who is God) did immediately ſay this e're they layed their hands on him with Faſting and Prayer.

No Apoſtles now in the Church.

I hear there are Apoſtles abroad, at leaſt thoſe that ſay there are to be Apoſtles ſtill in the Church, and to the end of the World; and thoſe that affirm it, are not of the Romiſh Party only (who make the Popedom a perpetual Apoſtleſhip in the Church) but of thoſe who would be in all other things moſt contrary unto the Pope. To refute whom, this here is ſufficient that the Apoſtles Call is to be (by the (immediate) Will of God) as hath been opened in Acts 1. you read that when Judas was dead, all the Eleven Apoſtles could not have choſen another Apoſtle; yea, they would never have thought of adding another, had not God by a Prophecy ſaid, let another take his Biſhoprick (and he quoteth a Pſalm to warrant it, Pſal. 69.) that is, his Office of Apoſtleſhip; and he there mentions a qualification that was to be in him that ſhould be choſen to that Office, which I am ſure hath not been found in any man theſe fifteen hundred years, and he puts a neceſſity upon it, that he that was to be choſen ſhould be ſo qualified, a [Ni] a [muſt] upon it, verſ. 21, 2. of thoſe men that have accompanied with us all the time that the Lord Jeſus went in and out among us, beginning from the Baptiſm of John unto the ſame day that he was taken up, [muſt] one (if any) be ordained to be a witneſs with us of his Reſurrection: And though they named two, for God to pick one to ſhew that God's immediate Call was requiſite to Authorize an Apoſtle (that it might not be by man but God) they by Prayer caſt Lots, and it fell upon Matthias; and it is God alone, who by an immediate hand, doth diſpoſe the Lot, as Solomon tells us: For Apoſtles were to be by the Will of God immediately. But this is not a new Impoſture, this very Church of Epheſus he writes to, had thoſe that came among them with this claim; for Rev. 2. 2. it is made one of their chiefeſt commendations, That they had tried them that ſaid, they were Apoſtles and were not, and had found them Liars. If therefore any be ſo impudent and preſumptuous againſt Chriſt and his Church, as to arrogate the Dignity and write themſelves ſo, they may be tried, you ſee, and that by the marks of an Apoſtle, as our true Apoſtle ſpeaks, 2 Cor. 12. 12. Let us examine theſe men, Have you the ſigns of an Apoſtle? Have you ſeen Chriſt in the Fleſh? That is one ſign of an Apoſtle, 1 Cor. 9. 1. Yea, where are the Miracles, Wonders, and mighty Deeds that confirm your Preaching, which are made ſigns to prove your Apoſtleſhip, as 2 Cor. 12. 12? I would fain ſee the man that dares ſay he is an Apoſtle, he will be found a Liar, as thoſe at our Epheſus were.

The ſecond Head, The perſons to whom he writes:

To the Saints which are at Epheſus, and to the faithful in Chriſt Jeſus.

Here is a double appellation, Saints, and Faithful, or Believers, as I ſhall ſhew by and by: Theſe two are ſeldom both thus joined together in the Inſcriptions of his Epiſtles, (though ſingly elſewhere; ſometimes he ſtiling them whom he writes to Saints, ſometimes Believers) only in that parallel, Ep. Col. 1. 2. you have it in like manner joined, To the Saints and faithful Brethren in Chriſt. The ſcope in which words is to ſhew two diſtinct qualifications in thoſe Brethren at Coloſs, that they were both Saints, and alſo Believers and Faithful. Now in this here he placeth his words a little otherwiſe, To the Saints which are at Epheſus, and the faithful in Chriſt, inſomuch as I a little conſidered, whether his ſcope were not to inſcribe this Epiſtle not to the Saints at Epheſus only, but to others, even all the faithful in Chriſt elſewhere in the World; as if the particle [καὶ] or [and] ſhould import all other believing perſons beſides theſe Epheſians to have been written written to, and ſo for him to intend this as an Epiſtle general, as he inſcribed that to the Corinths to be, which he inſcribes not only to the Corinthians, but adds, With all that in every place call on the name of Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. But he not prefixing the Article, and alſo the comparing this with that to the Coloſſians, doth carry it rather that he ſhould mean only another Epithet, or qualification, he dignifies the ſame Epheſians with, ſuperadded to that of Saints, and ſo his intent to be (as in that to the Coloſſians) To the Saints and Faithful that are at Epheſus; though, as I ſaid, to be received and made uſe of by all Saints to the end of the World. Serm. I.

Saints] thus he ordinarily ſtiles thoſe in the Churches he writes to: as the Romans, Chap. 1. 7. thoſe at Jeruſalem, Rom. 15. 2, 5. the Corinthians, both 1 Cor. 1. 2. and alſo 2 Cor. 1. 1. A Title not to be appropriated to the Chriſtians of thoſe firſt times, but common to all that are ſaved in all after times alſo, as Eph. 4. 12. the very naming which, daſheth Morality and Formal Profeſſion out of Countenance, as light doth a Glow-worm, as importing a more Divine workmanſhip created, and ſome ſingular thing (as Chriſt's Word is) even holineſs in truth, as Paul dignifies it in this Epiſtle, and is the uſual appellation of the new Teſtament; and we ſhould keep up the name that the reality of true Religion be not lowned (as it is) by avoiding this Title, which in theſe times is out of uſe; but 'tis becauſe true holineſs is out of faſhion. They are not only called Saints which are in Heaven, but that are on Earth, Pſal. 16. 1. ſo theſe, whileſt living in Epheſus.

At Epheſus] Of all the Cities of the Gentiles, the moſt generally diſſolute and proluſe, who baniſhed Hermodorus, a man of ſingular modeſty and temperance, meerly for his vertue; making this Law when they did it, Let no man be frugal and temperate among us: Let no one man excel another in vertue; or if he do, let him be gone from among us. Yet out of theſe, doth God make Saints: ſo free is Grace, not Calling according to Works.

Epheſii Hermodorum ſingularis modeſtiæ virum cum diſſeciſſent, Nemo, dixerunt, apud nos, frugi ſit, nemo unus excellat, vel ſi excelluerit, abeat. Quo nomine dignos fuiſſe qui ſtrangularentur Cives ſuos Epheſinos pronunciavit Heraclitus in 5 Tuſculum Cicero: (Ælius Rodig. Antiq. l. 4. c. 25. ex Strab. l. 14.

Again, At Epheſus, although he ſaies not, To the Church of Epheſus, Saints: as elſewhere, To the Church of Corinth, Saints, 1 Cor. 1. 2. yet he intends it; for the Saints at Epheſus were now a ſettled Church when this was written. At firſt indeed at Epheſus there were but a few, about twelve, called Diſciples, that knew nothing of the way of the Worſhip of the New Teſtament, nor ſo much as of the Holy Ghoſt, Acts 19. 1. whom our Apoſtle laies hands upon, and gathers into a body a Church, for ſo Chap. 20. 17. they are called, and after that it was that this Epiſtle was written to them, who therefore, Chap. 2. of this Epiſt. 22. are ſaid to be built together for an habitation of God through the Spirit a little Temple (beſides that general univerſal Temple, whereof he ſaies (verſ. 20, 21.) that they were a part in another conſideration) as the word [Alſo] in the 22 Verſe implies, in his writing to the Churches he takes notice of no other but Saints, for of ſuch living Stones only ſhould this Temple conſiſt; ſo the Corinthians, 1 Cor. 1. 2. To the Church that is at Corinth, Saints. Yea, 1 Cor. 14. 33. To all the Churches of the Saints. That was the Primitive language, for that was the conſtitution of Churches then. He ſaies not to all the Saints in Churches, but Churches of the Saints, as we ſay Colledges of Schollars, Houſe of Peers. The Primitive conſtitution acknowledged no other Members, and he ſpeaks not of the Univerſal Catholick Church, but particular Churches. They generally, when they had a ſufficient number of Converts in a place, put them into a Church ſtate, for he ſaies Churches, and yet ſpeaks Catholickly or Univerſally of them; All the Churches, for of ſuch did all then by the Apoſtles directions conſiſt, from which rule the ſe times, how have they ſwerv'd, not only in practice, but in Judgement? But let us take heed, leſt whilſt we make the Church more Catholick, and take in all that will profeſs Chriſt, we leave out Holy which is a neceſſary Attribute to Church. Bellarmin hath even in this point a Speech which made me wonder to hear from him, 'The Church (ſaies he) 'in her intention gathers only true Believers, and if ſhe knew who were wicked Eccleſia ex intentione fidelis tantum colligit, & ſi noſſet impios & incredulos, eos aut nunquam admitteret, aut caſu admiſſos excluderet. Bell. l. 9. de Ecc. Mil. c. 12.

Serm. I.

'wicked and Unbelievers, either she would never admit them, or being by chance 'admitted, would exclude them. Now surely there are many rules in the Word, whereby it is meet for us to judge who are Saints (as Phil. 1.7.) and also whereby the most of the Christian World may be discerned to lie in wickedness, though professing to know God, their works are so abominable, and themselves to every good work reprobate; by which rules those who are betrusted to receive men to Ordinances in Churches, are to be guided and so to separate between the precious and unclean, as the Priests of old were enabled and commanded by Ceremonial differences, which God then made to Typifie the like discrimination of persons either by visible manifest sins are found that men are in; or visible profession of Graces, so far as it is meet to judge of other men by: some mens sins are open afore-hand and afar off, as to Timothy; so that the common light of true Christianity is easily able to difference them from Saints; We know we are of God, and that the whole World lieth in wickedness, as John speaks. And we need not travel to Rome or Turkey to find the World. And though de facto other than such be received into Churches, yet the Churches are true Churches considered as to their Administration; for to be a Church and fixed seat of Worship, is an Ordinance of Divine Institution.

And faithful] the word πιστος Translated faithful, is both of a passive and active signification; it signifies one that is really and truly faithful in what he professeth, or undertaketh. So, according to the language of the Old Testament, Godly men are called, as Prov. 20.6. Many will boast of their own goodness, but who can find a faithful man? Thus likewise in the New, The things that thou hast heard of me, commit to faithful men, 2 Tim. 2.2. with many other the like places.

Secondly, It signifies Believing, or one that is a Believer, Joh. 20.27. Be not faithless but believing; in the Original it is the same word that is here; yea, in the Phrase of the New Testament it is an ordinary Title given Believers to express their very believing, and having Faith in them, see Acts 10.45. 1 Tim. 4.12. there is nothing against it to take in both these here, so as the Apostles meaning should be To them at Ephesus that are Believers, and also constant and faithful, or true Believers, which the Apostle elsewhere calls Faith unfeigned, and Heb. 10. A true Heart.

Observ: What God has joined, as here Paul saith, let no man put asunder, Saints and Believers, neither really in our own Hearts and Lives, nor in our judgments, either of our selves or others. Do not think this enough, that they are true Believers, that is, that they make a profession of the Doctrine of Faith; but see that further they hold forth a work of Faith wrought by that Doctrine, and not only so, but do approve themselves faithful (as here) in that Profession (as Lydia said, If ye have judged me faithful) and that they add evidences of Saintship, they must be Saints too, saith he, were Saints and Faithful. It is not a Profession of Faith joined with Morality, and no grand scandal: but a Profession of such a strictness as will rise to Holiness, that you are to judge men Saints by; neither ought any other than such to be Members of Churches, which are the Body of Christ; this word Saint and Faithful added to that, dashes a formal, an outward, and a meer Orthodox Profession. These very words we love not; to say men are Believers or Christians, they can bear it; but to add, and require being Saints, and true Believers, or faithful in believing these kind of denominations men think sound too high to be applied to the ordinary common sort of Professors, whom yet they own. But much more, if you would judge of your selves, do not look upon legal holiness in your selves, as a sign or mark of a good estate, be sure you have a work of Faith too (from whence that Holiness flows) distinctly working toward the Lord Jesus Christ, and your Hearts drawn out to him, as much and more than ever, after Holiness, 2 Thes. 13. God, saith he, hath chosen us to Salvation through Sanctification of the Spirit and belief of the Truth; there's Faith and Sanctification joined both together, and both made necessary to Salvation; it is in effect one with what he saies here, Saints and Faithful in Christ.

Serm. I.

In Jesus Christ, Because these words follow next after Faithful, or Believers, therefore some would have Christ, as he is the Object of Faith, or of our Believing, to be here intended, and so in Christ to be all one with what elsewhere is expressed by believing [in Christ Jesus;] but the scope of these words here rather is, to note out in whom the persons of these Saints or Believers are said to be, as members in the head, or which is yet nearer, that they considered as Saints and Believers, that even as such, they are what they are in him; and the reason why these words [in Christ Jesus] import rather being in Christ as Believers, than their believing in Christ, as the object of their Faith, is, from the like Inscription from that parallel Epistle to the Colossians, (which is so like, that in many things it will conduce to explain this Epistle, as one Evangelist doth another.) Now there, and there only, Cap. 1. vers. 1. we find these two, Saints and Faithful, joined together even as here, and [in Christ] comes in too, but so as Brethren comes between: the words there being placed thus, To the Saints and Faithful Brethren in Christ; now [in Christ] coming in after [Brethren] cannot import the object of Faith, but the subject rather, in whom those as Brethren were, and as Saints and Faithful; so elsewhere, 1 Thes. 1. 1. To the Church in God, and in the Lord Jesus Christ, that is, both their Persons, and also as they were a Church, they are in God and in Christ, so as these words here [in Christ Jesus] refer both to their being Saints, and to their being Believers in him. And so, as I take it, it is not so much meant, that these Ephesians their Persons were in Christ (though that be true and is after affirmed in every verse, yet that is not all,) but that considered as Saints and Believers, and what they were as Saints, they were it all in Christ.

Observ. All Holiness in Christ.

My Brethren, all our Grace must be Grace in Christ; Saints and Faithful in Christ. The Apostle speaking in a way of difference and distinction from the formal Jews, their legal Godliness, (which many Christians take up and rest in) useth this phrase, They that will live Godly in Christ Jesus (saith he, 2 Tim. 3. 12.) implying that there is a holiness in Christ Jesus differing from all other. An holiness, whereof the spring and rise is in him; all your holiness, it must be wrought in Christ, we are created in Christ Jesus to good works, so the Apostle saith, Eph. 2. 10. All your holiness must be acted in Christ, and by motives from Christ, and by strength fetched from Christ; so in that 2 Tim. 2. 1. Be strong in the Grace, what! the grace that is dwelling in your selves? No, which is in Christ Jesus, so it follows; here lies your strength. And then, all your holiness and faith, and every good thing in you must be accepted in Christ too, and you must go out of your selves to God, to have your Persons and Graces accepted in him, as the Apostle, 1 Pet. 2. 5. he calleth them Spiritual Sacrifices acceptable to God by Jesus Christ.

Observ.

It is the nature of true Faith to make men Faithful unto God, as well as believing and depending upon God. The word Faithful (as you have heard) being ordinarily used for both in the New Testament, as here in this place. Look what Faith eyes in God, and expects to receive from him, that in a suitableness it frames the heart in a way of conformity unto, such is the Ingenuity, the Honesty (as the Scripture calls it) of genuine Faith. As, if it looketh for the Righteousness of Christ for Justification; it bows the Heart to imitate that Righteousness for Sanctification, and to hate all that sin it seeks the pardon of, as truly as it seeks for the pardon of it: it knows not upon what other terms to desire it; so in the instance in hand, Faith eyeing God's Faithfulness, and depending thereon for Salvation, causeth the heart (in ingenuity) to be as Faithful to God. Again, in all that he requires and commands; It could not look up steadily to God for his performance, without framing the heart to this resolution.

Vers. 2. Grace be to you, and Peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

Here is the third general Head of these two first Verses, the Salutation he gives them, or the Blessing, as some would have it.

Serm. I.

1. The main General Scope.

I take these words to be both a Salutation Christian, and also a Blessing Apostolical and Ministerial, and both Translated or continued (though with an hightning addition) from the like Salutation of the Jews, and the blessings of the Priests in the Old Testament.

These words, 1. A Salutation.

1. A Salutation, so himself expresly terms it, ἀσπασμὸς, The Salutation of me Paul, the Grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, 2 Thes. 3. 16. and 1 Cor. 16. 21, 23. Now Salutations both among Jews and Gentiles were well-wishes, by desiring some good thing, either when they met or parted; or in Letters or Epistles, at the beginning or end, or both; in which they still wish'd the best things they knew of. The Heathens they wish'd Health, Joy, &c. The Jews and Eastern Nations (whose Language the Apostles more follow) all Prosperity, and that under the name of Peace, thereby understanding a perfection or integrity of Good. This Language the Gentiles used. Thus that Egyptian to Joseph's Brethren, Gen. 43. 23. Peace be to you; so likewise the Assyrians; for Nebuchadnezzar, writing to all Nations, Dan. 4. 1. begins thus, Peace be multiplied unto you. Also the Persians, for Artaxerxes the King of Persia, in his Letter, thus salutes them he writes to, Ezra 4. 17. Peace, and at such a time (both which are instances also for their kind of salutes in Letters and Epistles to have been then in use, as we see here;) So the Jews used to enquire of one another's welfare, when they met, under the name of Peace, and also wish'd all outward Prosperity under that name at their meetings, and also partings, which they thus expressed, Go in Peace, 2 Sam. 15. 9. Not to name many places for either, I will instance in one that hath both together at once in it, 1 Sam. 25. 5. when David intended to send to Nabal a kind Message, he bids the man that went, Greet him in my name (saies he;) the Original hath it, Ask him in my name of Peace; like unto what we use to ask when we meet, How do you do? Are you well? And then vers. 6. further bids him wish Peace to him (as the manner then was) thus shalt thou say to him that liveth in prosperity, Peace be to thee and thy House, and peace be to all that thou hast, where by peace is meant all good and prosperity, and in that Notion is peace often elsewhere taken. And this same kind of Salutation was in use in Christ's time, and prescribed by him to be used by his Disciples, Luke 10. 5. salute them and say, Peace be unto this House.

The manner of the Eastern Nations salutes

See Judges 6. 23. Gen. 27. 14. 2 Sam. 18. 19. 2 King. 9. 17, 18.

Joh. 5. 24. Jer. 29. 7. Isa. 54. 12, 13, 14.

Isa. 66. 12.

Now this Duty of common Friendship, which Nature taught the Gentiles, and Brotherhood which Religion taught the Jews, Christianity, and the Gospel teacheth us now. And this is one reason why these Salutations are so frequently and solemnly used by the Apostles in their Epistles, and herein Christ himself instructed them when he sent them out, Luke 10. 5. and by his own example also, as I shall shew by and by, using the same phrases and form of Speech, yet so (asunder the same expression of words) they intended to wish higher and greater good things, than the Jews or Gentiles ordinarily either meant or understood, even as the Gospel it self hath a clearer revelation of better good things, as our Apostle to the Hebrews speaks. Thus whereas the Grecians usually saluted with χαῖρε, which the Latins express by Salutem, Health and Salvation, which is all one with our English of old, sending greeting, or all Hail or Joy; that very same word the Angel himself useth to Mary in his saluting her, Luke 1. 29. when he brought her the first news of the Messiah; Hail, Mary, &c. And the very same do the Apostles in the Church of Jerusalem in their Letters, Acts 15. 23. which we Translate, Greeting; the same also, Jam. 1. 1. yea, Christ himself to the Disciples after his Resurrection, Matth. 28. 9. All Hail, saies he. In all which phrases the Syriack, according to the phrase of the East, still renders those words, Peace be to you. Now by this Heathenish Salutation, thus turned Christian, they all did mean and intend a Spiritual and Heavenly joy, even joy in the Holy Ghost and eternal Salvation; whereas the Gentiles meant only, what was carnal and outward; so in like manner whereas the Eastern Nations, both Jew and Gentile wished peace, the Gospel retains the same; thus Christ himself at another time after his Resurrection, saies to his Disciples, Joh. 20. 26.

Christ's Salutation conformed thereto.

20.26. Peace be to you, yet thereby meaning not a Jewiſh outward peace, but that Heavenly peace which he doth, with an Emphaſis, and by way of diſtinction call [his peace] my peace I leave with you, Joh. 14. 27. (which place, becauſe it opens and confirms this very Notion I have been upon, I will a little open and explain.) Chriſt was then taking his farewel of them, having in that Sermon firſt plainly told them he was to go away, and among other things, whereby he expreſſeth his love and friendſhip to them, he, at his parting, condeſcends to frame his Speech conformable to this very cuſtom of men in the World (which we have been ſpeaking of) in their Farewels, thereby to take their Hearts the more in a way of kindneſs, which was wont among men; his words are theſe, Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you; not as the World giveth, give I unto you. The meaning of which words is, that whereas it is the cuſtom of the World when they part with Friends, and take their leaves, to wiſh them Peace (which they call giving Peace (as we in Engliſh call it giving Joy, and ſending Greeting) or ſending away in peace; as Abimelech ſaid to Iſaac, Gen. 26. 29.) I do the like (ſaies he) Peace I leave (that word imports Farewel) with you. And accordingly as the manner of men in hearty Farewels is, to double their wiſh, and ſay it twice, as Farewel, farewel, and the like; ſo there he doubles this, Peace I leave, and peace I give. Yet withal, induſtriouſly inſtructing them, both that it was another manner of peace than the men of the World in their Farewels uſed to wiſh; My peace I give unto you, (my peace) that is, a peace with God, Rom. 5.1. purchaſed by my blood, A peace which paſſeth underſtanding; and further withal intimating the difference between this laſt ſolemn Farewel of his, and thoſe which the World uſeth to make, Not as the world giveth, give I unto you, that is, they uſe in their Farewels to wiſh or give Peace but out of Complement; or if they be hearty, they can't give what they wiſh, ſuch wiſhes are but words in them, and have no force to convey a bleſſing; only they wiſh their good will, and at beſt it is but an outward peace they mean; but I am moſt hearty real in mine, and I am able to give what I wiſh; for it is My peace, a peace of my own purchaſing, and in my power to make good, and I will give it indeed. Serm. 1. Phil. 4. 7.

Now all this tends but to open the Salutation of the Apoſtle here, herein he followed Chriſt: for although he wiſheth theſe Epheſians (as the Jews and Gentiles uſed to do) Peace, yet I may ſay of it as Chriſt did of his, not as the World, or in their ſence doth he wiſh it, for it is both a further peace than they intended in their Salutes, even the ſame that Chriſt wiſhed, [his peace,] therefore here [from Jeſus Chriſt] is added by our Apoſtle; and he gives it them alſo not as the World by a bare well-wiſhing, but with an Apoſtolical and Miniſterial bleſſing. And whereas the Salutation of the Jews was but Peace be to you, the Apoſtle (as became the Goſpel and Preachers of it) adds Grace thereto, Grace be to you; yea, Grace as the firſt and principal and moſt comprehenſive of all good elſe. And withal (as became the Goſpel alſo) he makes a diſtinct mention of thoſe perſons of the Trinity, that were the fountain of that Grace and Peace, God the Father and the Son.

Thus Religion doth not aboliſh but Spiritualize and improve Civility and Humanity, as it alſo turns all outward good things (which the Jews ordinarily intended, when they wiſh'd Peace, and which were but the ſhadow of good things to come, Heb. 10. 1.) into ſpiritual and heavenly; and the Goſpel further adds Grace thereunto, and diſcovers it as the fountain of all, it ſelf being called the Grace of God, Tit. 2. 12. (as the Patent for a Pardon, is called a mans Pardon) as containing and revealing it, The Law came by Moſes, but Grace and Truth by Jeſus Chriſt: Grace and Peace be to you, &c. This for the firſt, as they are a Salutation. Obſerv. Joh. 1

Secondly, Theſe words, ſay ſome, are not a bare ſalutation, but in an Apoſtles Mouth and Pen, an Apoſtolical bleſſing; and ſo, an Inſtitution, an Ordinance to convey a bleſſing, ſuch as that of the Prieſts, Numb. 6. The Apoſtles were the Patriarchs of the Church of the New Teſtament, as the Sons of Jacob of that of the Old, the Foundation, as they are called, Eph. 2. 20. And as there were thirteen Tribes, reckoning the two ſons of Joſeph: ſo thirteen Apoſtles, taking in this of ours, and theſe therefore as Patriarchs and Spiritual Fathers, 1 Cor. 4. 5. bleſſed their Children, as here, with Grace and Peace; ſo our Apoſtle bleſt Timothy under this very relation, 1 Tim. 1. 2. To Timothy my own Son in the Faith, Grace and Peace, &c. the like he doth to Titus, and ſo to theſe Epheſians and others he wrote to. And that which more confirms the taking it for a bleſſing, is the conformity which the matter of the bleſſing hath with that bleſſing the Prieſts (the Miniſters of the Old Teſtament, as we are of the New) were to pronounce upon the people as an Ordinance of God, Numb. 6. 23, 24, 25. for if you more exactly view and compare the matter of their bleſſing there, and of this here, it comes all to one, and is the ſame for ſubſtance; which I the rather obſerve, that you may ſee how the words of bleſſing under the Goſpel were derived from the Jews, as the words of ſalutation were (as was afore obſerved.) The Bleſſing then ran thus, verſ. 25. Jehovah make his face ſhine on thee, and be Gracious to thee (his Face imports his grace or favour, as Pſal. 80. 19. Cauſe thy face to ſhine, and we ſhall be ſaved; and ſo the words following Interpret it, and be gracious to thee) here you ſee is Grace; then verſ. 26. The Lord lift up his countenance and give thee Peace, namely, as the fruit of that his favour, and as the concluſion of all bleſſings, as it is often made (ſo Pſal. 29. 11. The Lord will bleſs his people with peace; and likewiſe Pſal. 125. 5. Peace be upon Iſrael) which he pronounceth at laſt as the ſum and ſubſtance of all Bleſſings, there is Peace alſo. But yet whether it be a New Teſtament Inſtitution for Miniſters to pronounce ſuch words as a bleſſing, or a farewel ſalutation only, is a Queſtion made by ſome, becauſe in the New Teſtament there is no mention of any ſuch Ordinance under the term of bleſſing; there is of praying for them, Jam. 5. 14. There is of bleſſing the Elements in the Sacraments; ſo 1 Cor. 10. 16. but no where of bleſsing (ſay they) the Churches publickly; and further, ſay they, the Prieſts in that were Types of Chriſt (as in Sacrificing alſo they were) who was ſent to bleſs his people, Acts 3. 26.

Serm. I.

But the miſtake I conceive lies in this, that that eminent way of bleſsing us, which is peculiar unto Chriſt Jeſus, was typified out on purpoſe by a far greater Prieſthood than that of Aaron's ſons, even by Melchiſedech's Prieſthood, who therefore as a more tranſcendent Type of Chriſt, bleſſed Abraham the Father of the Faithful, and ſo all faithful in him, Heb. 7. 6, 7. and in that Bleſsing perſonated a greater Perſon than Abraham, verſ. 7. even Chriſt——But otherwiſe to bleſs is a moral Inſtitution, and not meerly Typical, for one man bleſſeth another, and that as Brethren, Pſal 129. 8. they that go by the Reapers of Corn, ſay, The bleſſing of the Lord be upon you: we bleſs you in the name of the Lord. And as thus one man may bleſs another; ſo thoſe who have any ſpecial relations unto others, may according to the compaſs or extent of that relation, bleſs thoſe they have relation to, and that with a ſpecial bleſsing ſuiting that their relation. Thus Parents bleſs their Children with a ſpecial bleſsing; thus King's, Subjects; ſo David, 2 Sam. 6. 18. and Solomon, 1 King. 8. 55. And ſo in like manner the Prieſts the people, in reſpect of their Miniſterial relation unto them; And therefore there is not the like reaſon for their bleſsing the people, and of their ſacrificing for the people, which Kings were not to do; Sacrifice was wholly a Ceremonial action, but Bleſsing a Moral Inſtitution. And beſides the Prieſts as they are Types of Chriſt; ſo of the Miniſters of the Goſpel alſo, as in the Prophecy of the times of the Goſpel, Iſa. 66. 21. and therefore in what was Moral in their Office (as in teaching, &c. ſo in bleſsing) what they did may ſafely be taken as Types of thoſe Miniſterial actions which we are to perform: And that which confirms me in it is, that the Apoſtles bleſsing (as we have ſeen) for the matter of it, is the ſame that that of the Prieſts was, Numb. 6. and ſo the action of bleſsing, of the ſame Morality with the matter it ſelf. And I ſee no reaſon but that if they bleſs the Elements in our Sacraments, as the Prieſts did their Ordinances then, but that they ſhould bleſs the people alſo, and that as Miniſters, they being in Chriſt's ſtead in and unto both, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, 2 Cor. 5. 20. And ſurely (as was ſaid) every relation of receiving or doing good to others, is made by God a ground of conveying a bleſsing by the well-wiſhes of thoſe in that relation. Thus if a Poor man receives relief from a Rich man, ſo he is endowed with power or rather priviledge from God to bleſs him that is the inſtrument of good to him, and by his hearty bleſsing him effectually to return that good which he received, and is an Inſtrument of God ſo far to convey that bleſſing, of that promiſe made to thoſe that conſider the poor, Job 19. 13. The bleſſing of him (ſaies Job, having relieved them, verſ. 12.) that was ready to periſh, came upon me: ſo in like manner thoſe whom God hath made Ordinances of ſome ſpecial good to others, God alſo accompanies their Prayer and well-wiſhing with power to convey that good in a more ſpecial manner than others, that yet do in a common relation of Brethren wiſh it: Thus Parents being inſtruments of conveying life in this World and the good bleſſings of life to their Children, and if Godly, have the Promiſes of the Covenant of Grace to them, thence they are eſpecially honoured, that by bleſſing their Children they ſhould bring down thoſe good things which they are in other reſpects really appointed the inſtruments of; and when through their Childrens obedience they are comforted (the promiſe of long life, &c. being made to ſuch Children) and they thereupon bleſſing them (as the Patriarchs did) God regards that bleſſing of theirs ſo far as to fulfil thoſe promiſes thereupon: ſo it is in Kings alſo bleſſing their people, being ſet up for their good, Rom. 13, &c. And anſwerably Miniſters being ſet up as Stewards of the good bleſſings of the Goſpel, To bring the glad tidings of Peace, &c. hence their well-wiſhings of Grace and Peace, and of all thoſe bleſſings of the Goſpel, which in their Preaching they bring, they are a ſpecial means ſanctified by God to bring down thoſe bleſſings upon thoſe that obey their Miniſtry; and therefore as when they come to a people, they are ſaid to come in the fulneſs of the bleſſing of the Goſpel, as Rom. 15. 30. ſo when they depart, their farewels, and ſalutes, and well-wiſhes made up of thoſe deſires of the bleſſings of the Goſpel which they Preach, have a ſpecial efficacy in their Mouthes above any other, as their Miniſtry alſo hath, and their Prayers are ſaid to have, Jam. 5. and therefore God bad them as to Preach Peace, ſo to wiſh Peace, Luke 10. even that Peace which they Preached. But however in that (as was ſhewn) Grace and Peace, &c. are as well a ſalutation Chriſtian, there is in that reſpect warrant enough for Miniſters to diſmiſs their Congregations with them, or the like to them. And it is certain that ſo far as any ſuch kind of well-wiſhes are warranted of God to be uſed, (as it is acknowledged of all hands they are, either by way of Farewel, or inſtitution) that there will an anſwerable bleſſing from God accompany them; for elſe holy things, and ſo God's name ſhould be uſed in vain. Serm. I.

Thus much as concerning the more general ſcope of this and the like Apoſtolical ſalutations and bleſſings uſed ſometimes at the beginning, ſometimes at the end of their Epiſtles, ſometimes in both. What difference there is in this from thoſe in other Epiſtles (for they uſed a variety of words) I will not now take notice of, my work being to Interpret this only.

The Parts thereof are theſe,

1. The good things wiſh'd, Grace and Peace.
2. The Author's of both theſe, God the Father, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.
3. The Perſons to whom, to you, whom he had afore ſtiled Saints and Faithful.

The Particular Expoſition of the Words.

Grace and Peace. For the underſtanding of theſe two, I ſhall ſhew the difference between them. The difference between Grace and Peace.

[Grace] is the free favour of God, and that importing here, not the Attribute as it is in God (for that is incommunicable unto us, and ſo cannot be wiſh'd us) as thoſe gracious acts of his favour and love towards us immanent in God, but ſet upon poor Creatures, whom he hath choſen in Chriſt, even thoughts of Grace and Peace towards us, as Jer. 10. 11. which are the cauſe, the Fountain of all the good things beſtowed, which good things are therefore diſtinguiſhed from this Grace as it is in God towards us; thus Rom. 5. 15. [The Grace of God, and the Gift by Grace] are made two diſtinct things; Grace is there mentioned

Serm. I.

tioned as the Cauſe of beſtowing the good things beſtowed, or rather called gifts by Grace. And thus Grace and the free favour of God are held forth in this very Chapter, as the ſpring of all good to us, for he reſolveth all the bleſſings beſtowed on us into the Riches of his Grace as the efficient cauſe, verſ. 7. and to the glory of his Grace as the final, verſ. 6. and ſo likewiſe Chap. 2. verſ. 7, 8. yea, and in the Text here he ſaies, Grace be to you ſingly, and apart, that only firſt; (and not Grace and Peace to you, as uſually elſewhere) and when he after adds [and Peace] he ſeems to ſpeak of it but as a thing caſt in by Grace, as all other things are ſaid to be to the Kingdom of God ſought firſt.

Peace then is the Fruit and effect thence flowing, and one of the effects or gifts of Grace, and that Synecdochically mentioned for all the reſt. Peace with God is the firſt benefit beſtow'd, that follows upon Faith; ſo Rom. 5. 1. (the ſcope of that Chapter being to enumerate the fruits of Faith, he mentions that firſt,) Being juſtified by Faith we have peace with God; and as it is put to expreſs the firſt, ſo the laſt bleſſing beſtowed alſo, The end of that man is Peace, ſaith the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 37. 37. ſo the joyes of Heaven are termed, Iſa. 57. 2. The Righteous when he dies, is ſaid to enter into Peace, and it is called Peace in Heaven, Luke 19. 38. and accordingly peace is reckoned as the reward given the righteous at latter day, Rom. 2. 10. Glory (ſaith he) and Peace be to him, &c. and therefore it muſt needs comprehend all other bleſſings coming between, and ſo even all from the firſt to the laſt, it is a perfection of good, as in the acceptation of the Jews, and the perfection of all ſpiritual good in the ſenſe of the Apoſtles, Rom. 14. 7. The whole Kingdom of God conſiſts in Righteouſneſs [and Peace and Joy] thus not Juſtification only is called Peace but Sanctification alſo, 1 Theſ. 5. 23. The very God of Peace Sanctifie you; yea, and the growth and perfection of that is ſaid there to be from God, as he is a God of Peace; ſo it follows [Sanctifie you wholly] the word ὁλοτελεῖς is totally and finally, it ſignifies both. Thus likewiſe, Joy in the Holy Ghoſt, and Communion with God is called Peace, Peace which paſſeth all underſtanding, Phil. 4. 7. To conclude then, as Grace and Peace are the ſum of the Goſpel, ſo of this Evangelical bleſſing here; and ſo expreſs even the fulneſs of the bleſſing of the Goſpel, as the expreſſion is, Rom. 15. 9. And more particularly and reſtrainedly, our Reconciliation with God conſiſts of two parts, peace and good-will; as with men alſo all Reconciliation doth. Thus if you would make an enemy to be friends with one, you muſt firſt make peace for him; and when you have done, becauſe a man may ſtill ſay, I will be at peace with him, but I can never love him again as I have done, therefore to have him made a Friend, a Favourite again, and ſo reconciled perfectly, you muſt obtain grace and favour and good will for him too. Thus it is between God and us, Col. 1. 20. Chriſt having made peace through the blood of his Croſs, he reconciled all things to himſelf; when he had once made peace, then he reconciled them, made them friends, which is clear out of Free Grace. You have both in the Song of the Angels (for they began to Preach the Goſpel) ſay they, Luke 2. 13. Peace on Earth, good will towards men; here is grace and peace, i. e. good-will, that is, he will not only pardon you, and be at peace with you, but he will love you, and be a friend very gracious to you. Theſe two are all one with what here are termed Grace and Peace.

Now for the Second thing, the Author of both theſe,

From God the Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.] You ſhall obſerve how in that bleſſing of the Old Teſtament, Numb. 6. Jehovah is mentioned three times, Jehovah bleſs thee, &c. Jehovah be gracious, and Jehovah give thee peace, &c. whereby the three Perſons, and their bleſſing of us are intended, though not explicitly mentioned; but here (as became the Goſpel) they are diſtinctly named, From God the Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

Why God is called the Father, and Chriſt the Lord, I ſhall ſhew in opening the next Verſe. Only this here, That God beſtows not this Grace as he is a Creator, or Author of nature in common to men as his Creatures, but as he is become a Father in Chriſt, and ſo beſtows it in a peculiar love, out of which he will give all good things, How much more ſhall not your Father which is in Heaven, give good things? Matth. 7. 12. Serm. I.

And although Peace, as well as Grace, are both of them from God the Father, and both alſo from the Son (for God is the God of Peace, Heb. 13. 20. as well as God of Grace, 1 Pet. 5. 10. And likewiſe Jeſus Chriſt he is the Prince of Peace (and ſo Peace is his gift) ſo Grace alſo, and therefore the Grace of our Lord Jeſus, is wiſh'd in the end of all Epiſtles, of whom we are graciouſly accepted (ſaies verſ. 6. of this Chapter.) Yet, [Grace from the Father] it is more uſually and eſpecially attributed to him, for it is his free grace that choſe us (verſ. 4, 5, 6. of this Chapter compared) that alſo juſtifies us, Rom. 3. 24, &c. And as he is the Fountain of the Deity, ſo is his free grace the ſpring of peace, and alſo of all thoſe works of the other two Perſons for us. Grace from the Father.

[Peace from Jeſus Chriſt] and this is from him in a more peculiar manner, for the chaſtiſement of our Peace was upon him, Iſa. 5. 3. and he is ſaid to have made peace by the blood of his Croſs, Col. 1. 20. and thereupon God out of his free Grace owns us, accepts, juſtifies us. Peace more eſpecially from Chriſt.

And although the Particle from Jeſus Chriſt be not in the Original, yet other Epiſtles warrant the putting it in, ſo 2 Joh. 2. hath it expreſly from the Father, and from Jeſus Chriſt, and the Grammatical conſtruction in thoſe parallel Salutations, Gal. 1, and 2 Tim. 1. 2. do all evince it againſt the Cavils of ſome Hereticks.

Now laſtly, Both Grace and Peace may be ſaid to be from the Father, and the Lord Chriſt in a double ſenſe: Firſt, Efficiently, that is, in reſpect of real influence into theſe things themſelves, as the Authors and cauſes of both. Thus God the Father is the Author of Grace in his Decreeing firſt to ſet his love upon us: and Chriſt our Lord in purchaſing all that good which was out of this love Decreed. And Secondly, Objectively, that is, this Grace and Love in God the Father, and this peace and ſatisfaction that is in Jeſus Chriſt, as they come to be more and more apprehended by us, they thereby come to be more and more communicated unto us, and multiplied in us and upon us. This that Benediction, 1 Pet. 1. 2. evidently holds forth, Grace and Peace (the ſame things there wiſh'd) be multiplied unto you, Through the knowledge of God, and of Jeſus Chriſt; mark how he ſaies, through the knowledge, &c. the meaning is, that as thoſe two perſons are the cauſe of theſe things towards us, ſo through our apprehenſion of them, and of what they have done therein for us, and wrought in us, theſe are increaſed towards us, and multiplied upon us. From both in a double ſenſe.

But then you will ſay, Where is the Holy Spirit? Here is only God the Father, and Jeſus Chriſt mentioned as thoſe that he wiſhed Grace and Peace unto from the Holy Ghoſt; What ſhould be the reaſon of that? Why the holy Ghoſt is not mentioned.

For Anſwer Firſt, It is not that the Holy Ghoſt is not the Author of both theſe as well as the Father and the Son, nor that he is not intended here in this bleſſing; No, the works of the Trinity are undivided; if therefore from the Father and Son, then alſo from the Holy Ghoſt; and to this purpoſe it is obſervable, that by that forementioned form of bleſſing preſcribed the Prieſts in the Old Law, the word Jehovah (as we obſerved) is repeated Thrice, to note it was pronounced in the name of all three Perſons. And beſides once in the New Teſtament it ſelf, you have Grace and Peace in one Benediction wiſh'd from all three Perſons, and therein the Spirit mentioned as well as God the Father, and God the Son, and it is in the laſt of all Apoſtolical Benedictions in the laſt Book of all [the Revelations] Chap. 1. Firſt, From God the Father; and ſo in verſ. 4. Grace and Peace from him, that is, and was, and is to come. Then Secondly, From the Holy Ghoſt: ſo it follows [and from the ſeven Spirits] (the Holy Ghoſt being ſet forth by the fulneſs of thoſe gifts, (even a number of perfection) which he works in us, for though there be diverſity of gifts, yet one and the ſame Spirit, 1 Cor. 14. 4.) And then Thirdly, From Chriſt, and from Jeſus Chriſt, &c. verſ. 5. Anſw. 1.

Yet

Serm. I. Answ. 2. Yet Secondly, So as ordinarily in all other Epistles in their blessings prefixed, the mention of the Spirit is omitted, and the reason is, because it is both his Office and work to reveal and communicate this Grace from the Father, and peace from the Son; hence indeed and in truth blessing from the Holy Ghost comes to be wish'd, in the very praying for a communication of Grace and Peace from God the Father and Christ; for, as Rom. 5. 5. The love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost which is given us; he is that Person that leadeth us out of our selves unto the grace of God the Father, and the peace and satisfaction made by Jesus Christ. Those other two persons are in their several works rather the objects of our Faith and consolation, but the Holy Ghost he is the Author and efficient both of our Faith on them, and comfort enjoy'd in and from them. We look up to God the Father as the fountain of Grace; and we look up to Jesus Christ as the fountain of our Peace. But we are to look at the Holy Ghost as the Revealer of both these from both. You will understand the justness of this Reason, why he omitted the mention of him by this like Instance: when you make your Prayers, (and a blessing is a kind of Prayer) you use to pray to the Father, and likewise in the Name of Christ, but you do not at all, or seldom read in all the Scriptures of Prayers made to the Holy Ghost: And why? Because it is his Office to make the Prayers themselves, which you thus put up to the other two Persons, and therein lieth his honour. Thus here Grace from God the Father, and peace from Jesus Christ; but he that revealeth both these is the Spirit. I will shut up this with one Scripture, wherein this our Apostle making the same kind of Prayer, or blessing, confirmeth this Notion, mentioning all these three several parts, and Influences of the three Persons. In the same order and difference I have now given, and unto the same purpose, 2 Cor. 13. 14. The Grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghost be with you, &c. That which is attributed to the Holy Ghost, is (as was said) to communicate, and reveal all both that Grace and Love in God, and in Jesus Christ.

[To you] That is, every one of you in particular. I will not omit this mention of the Persons to whom these are wished, which was the third thing mentioned. He had enstiled them Saints and Faithful in the first verse; and yet after that, wisheth Grace and Peace to them.

Observ. The best Christians here need Peace, and to that end Christ's blood and satisfaction (which is alone the procurer of all our Peace) to wash their Souls daily with the Efficiency, and Spirits of that blood; and likewise for the acceptation even of their Holiness and Faithfulness they need Grace too, the free favour of God. Grace and Peace to you Saints, and Faithful Ephesians. They both need the things themselves to be daily continued unto them; and their Souls need to apprehend more of them, and about them, to have more enlarged Revelation of them made to their Faith. Hast thou Peace already with God through Faith? Yet still thou hast Guilt and Doubtings, thy Faith is mixt with Unbelief; therefore thou needest more of peace, Peace be to you. Again, hast thou Assurance of God's Love? Yet, Oh how little dost thou know of it! (as Job speaks.) This Grace and Love of God, and Christ passeth Knowledge, Ephes. 3. 19. As in like manner this peace is said to pass understanding, 2 Pet. 1, 2. Phil. 4. 7. And this is the Apostles meaning in his Benediction in both Epistles, Grace and Peace be multiplied (saies he) through the knowledge of God (the Father and his Love) and of Jesus our Lord (and his satisfaction for you.) Hence it is evident, that the communication of these to us, is through our knowledge and apprehension thereof encreased and multiplied; as also a further possession of them thereby.

Many are the Observations that Interpreters, upon several Epistles, do from hence raise, for which I refer the Reader to their Comments. I shall sum up that which I would commend to you in this one Meditation.

Seeing

Seeing the Grace and free favour of God caſt upon us, and peace with God, as a fruit of that favour, and of Chriſt's ſatisfaction, are the ſum of the Apoſtles their ordinary wiſhes and ſalutes (who to be ſure in ſuch a Breviary would wiſh the higheſt, who were willing to impart their own Souls to thoſe Saints they wrote to.) Let this be a Directory to us what to make the more ordinary, and continual ſcope of our deſires and proſecutions, even the obtaining peace with God, and Grace of God: Seek this peace, and enſue it: peace with God through Chriſt. And yet learn (from this Apoſtolical addition) to ſeek Grace alſo, and not to reſt in peace, but to ſeek God's favour. Good and Evangelical Spirits cannot content themſelves with Peace, they muſt have Grace too, God's Heart and Love to be ſet upon them, his good will; ſeek to be pardoned, but above all ſeek to be beloved.

SERMON II.

VERSE 3.

Bleſſed be the God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who hath bleſſed us with all Spiritual bleſſings in heavenly places [or in heavenly things] in Chriſt.

THe holy heart of this bleſſed Apoſtle was ſo full in his own perſon of being bleſſed by God, that he falls a bleſſing him as ſoon as he begins to ſpeak. 'Tis his firſt word he begins the body of this Epiſtle with, and continues the ſame courſe and way of bleſſing God through the firſt half of the Chapter; unto v. 15. And then he enters upon and opens another view of Giving thanks, and pouring out prayers for theſe Epheſians. (Although this of bleſſing God far excels both Thanksgiving and Prayer,) as I ſhall afterwards ſhew,) but ſtill under one or other of theſe ways of worſhipping God, either Prayer or Thanksgiving or Bleſſing, (which are the higheſt ſtrains of immediate Worſhip we can perform to God) or at leaſt with the Materials for theſe; he goes on to fill up the reſt of the firſt Chapter. Yea, and after that being finiſhed he ſtill continues matter of thanksgiving and bleſſing to the end of the ſecond Chapter throughout.

And here the Occaſion that inflam'd him to pour forth ſuch a Flood of Bleſſings, &c. comes duely to be noticed by us: And oh how abundantly did his heart uſe to overflow, if he fell but into this argument from that Occaſion, and entertained but the thoughts of it! You may for an inſtance thereof (though all his Epiſtles teſtify it,) but read over thoſe paſſages of his in his firſt Epiſtle to the Theſſalonians, which he begins even as he doth this Chapter, Epheſians 1. v. 4. Knowing their election of God. How? By the Fruits of it throughout his Miniſtry, as the inſtrument. For our Goſpel ſays he, came unto you, not in word only but in power; And how exemplarily they turned from Idols to wait for Chriſt from Heaven, through that his Miniſtry; which brought forth all theſe Fruits amongſt them; as it hath done over the World. And having thus begun and faln into this argument, as I ſaid, he proves ſo concern'd, as he knows not how to get out or to ſet bounds to his affections Read on ch. 2. 8. So being affectionately deſirous of you, we were willing to have imparted unto you, not the Goſpel of God only, but alſo our own Souls; and Chapter 3. The Joy hereof was ſo great, that it ſwallowed up the afflictions of all his ſufferings. Therefore, Brethren, we were comforted over you in all our afflictions and deſtreſs by your Faith; for now we live, if you ſtand faſt in the Lord: for what thanks can we render to God again for you, for all the joy wherewith we joy for your ſakes before our God? Thus he when he took pen to write this Epiſtle, or otherwiſe to dictate it; the firſt thing the Holy Ghoſt fill'd him with, was the conſideration of all theſe bleſſings vouchſafed theſe Epheſians, which he enumerates together with this Remembrance conjoyned therewith. Thus all theſe bleſſings and matters of thanksgiving were all and every one of them the Fruits of his own doings; that is, the very fruits of his own Miniſtry and preaching; which, beſides the Glory and Riches of Gods Grace towards thoſe perſons he writes to, did deeply affect him. Beſides this, the memory of what had paſſed, and he had cauſe to remember them by a good token; he knew what he had preacht, and remembred how they had been Wrought upon thereby. For he had afore this Epiſtle for three years ſpace laboured amongſt them Night and Day, publickly and privately from Houſe to Houſe in preaching and that with tears; as in his laſt farewel Sermon to the Elders ders of this very Church himſelf relateth, when he told them they ſhould ſee his face no more; and ſo that he ſhould never any more preach to them again, and how much his heart and theirs was affected with that ſpeech, the ſtory of it and that his Sermon doth ſufficiently inform you. Serm. II.

Now then a little obſerve his ſpeech in that farewel Sermon, in which he makes a ſum of his forepaſt Miniſtry in that City; though but in general ſpeeches, as How he had not ſhunned to declare all the Counſel of God to them; v. 27. and above all thereof to make a deſplay of the Grace of God in the Goſpel, wherewith he ſaith He had finiſhed the Miniſtry, whith I have received from our Lord Jeſus, to teſtify the Goſpel of the Grace of God. v. 24. And then let us but compare how the firſt part of this Epiſtle, which contains the Fruits I ſpeak of; and they do anſwer to theſe his declarations of the matter of his preaching, related in that Farewel Sermon. In the fifth verſe of this Chapter, he mentions Gods Having choſen them in Chriſt, and having predeſtinated them to the adoption of Children, to the praiſe of the Glory of his Grace. Whereby it ſufficiently appears that the Doctrines of Election and Predeſtination in all the points of them, he certainly had in his Miniſtry gone over, and were the points he had inſtructed them in, and had taught them fully; otherwiſe had he not declared all the Counſel of God, (whereof ſpecially the Doctrines of Election and Predeſtination do eminently in the New Teſtament bear that very name of the Counſel of the Almighty within himſelf,) and how could he have ſaid, that he had Elected and Predeſtinated them, had he kept back any thing that was profitable for them? Well he goes on Firſt, in which Glory and Riches of his Grace he hath abounded toward us, in all Wiſdom and Prudence having made known to us the myſtery of his will (In which words he tells us here again that this he had preached) according to his good pleaſure, which he hath purpoſed in himſelf, which in the eleventh verſe he Styles the Counſel of God his own will. And again verſe 11 out of which it was he had Predeſtinated us to obtain an Inheritance according to the purpoſe of him, who worketh (both this, as) all things elſe he worketh according to the counſel of his own will. So that the matter for which he here bleſſes God, wrought and accompliſht in and upon their hearts, will be found anſwering, as the Print does to the Seal, that is, of his Miniſtry. His Doctrine namely (as he recapitulates it in that Sermon Acts 20. And that as it had been the pith and principal ſum of all his former Sermons,) which had been to teſtify the Grace of God in the Goſpel, and to open all the Counſels of God in and about mans Salvation; in which he had concealed nothing that was profitable unto them, (as he profeſſeth) that might work repentance towards God, and faith towards our Lord Jeſus Chriſt ver. 20. 21. Now behold, what you read, you find here in this Epiſtle teſtified by the Holy Ghoſt, (who had been the Maſter Workman of all Grace in them, and towards them,) to have been left from his Preaching impreſſed upon their Souls, verified on their perſons; viſibly to be read by all men, written in their hearts and lives, and openly avowed profeſſions of themſelves. There is no man that ſhall compare one with the other, but muſt ſay that as face anſwers to face in water; ſo thoſe Contents ſpecified to have been the Subject of his Preaching in that Sermon in the Acts, to be anſwerable to theſe impreſſes here in their hearts. The effects recorded in this Epiſtle, and the ſucceſs of his Miniſtry anſwering to the other, as Prints do unto their Copy. As he had Preached Repentance toward God, and Faith toward our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, as he had declared in that Sermon of his there; ſo anſwerably here he ſays, that the Grace of God had abounded towards them in all Wiſdom and Prudence; the Genuine meaning of which words is, that God had wrought all that belongs unto true Faith, the trueſt Wiſdom and Repentance, the only Prudence accompanied with Holineſs, which are ſignified by theſe, as I ſhall ſhew, when I come to open thoſe words; and by what means God had wrought it, he tells you in the 9 th verſe, that follows in his own words you meet with. In that Sermon in the Acts, 20 verſe, whereby he had ſet out the matter of his Preaching, having made known, (ſays he,) to us the myſtery and ſecret of his will, the purpoſe and Counſel of his will verſe 11. As to the matters namely of their Salvation, and all to the praiſe and Glory of that Grace; which in his preaching be had ſo much celebrated, and no where hath ſet forth more, than in this Paragraph of his bleſſing God for them. In fine, as he elſewhere himſelf ſpake, ſo he had preached, and ſo they had believed; ſo as in effect Pauls bleſſing of God by his enumerating theſe particular bleſſings of God beſtowed upon them, proves to be indeed a preaching over to them the whole Goſpel of their Salvation anew, the whole Goſpel in a new mode, in a new dreſs of thanksgiving, viz. for bleſſings of Grace either ſhewed to them, and wrought in them, by the matter of his preaching. Inſtead of the Seeds, the Corn and Grain he had ſown, which were ſince grown up in their hearts; he returns the fruits of them, fruits of their own growth. And withal he doth in a covert manner mind them thereby, and brings freſh to their remembrance the principal materials, which God by his preaching, and which while he was Preaching them, God had wrought in them, and finally he provokes them upon the remembrance hereof, afreſh to bleſs God, by obſerving himſelf thus affectionately and paſſionately giving thanks, and praiſes, and bleſſing to God for them; that how much more ſhould and ought they to do it anew for themſelves? Than which courſe of proceeding herein held by him, there could not have been a greater Artifice invented, or uſed whereby to affect their own hearts. This for the Fitneſs and Juſtneſs of the occaſion of bleſſing God.

Nor let any man wonder that I make this kind of ennumeration of Goſpel bleſſings to be as the preaching of the Goſpel it ſelf. I am ready to Preach the Goſpel to you at Rome alſo, ſays Paul to the Romans, at the beginning of Chapter 1. And I am ſure (ſays he) that when I come unto you, I ſhall come in the fulneſs of the bleſſings of the Goſpel of Chriſt, ſo ſpeaks he at the end of that Epiſtle. The Goſpel is made up of bleſſings, is nothing but bleſſings, and the fulneſs of bleſſings.

Nor will it be out of our way or hinder us to ſtand and obſerve, (as touching the Form of his Bleſſing God,) the vaſt difference that at this very entrance appears to be between the Old Diſpenſation among the Jews, and the Diſpenſation under the New Teſtament. The form they uſed is, Bleſſed be the God of Iſrael. And Zachary uſed this at a time, when it was ſo near the expiring of the Old Teſtament, and the approach of the New, at a time when the Meſſiah himſelf was conceived, and come in the Womb, though not yet born, and John the Baptiſt, that was to be his immediate fore-runner, was already born. They all ſpeak in this ſort, till Chriſt were as the Sun at his height, as if they generally knew no higher Title to honour God by, than the God of the Jews, the Lord God of Iſrael.

Bleſſed be the Lord God of Iſrael, that was the wonted note of Old; they uſed in the beginning, otherwhile in the middle, or elſe concluſion of their Songs and Worſhip. So David in the Pſalms often, Zachary in his Song, Luke 1.68. The difference is that they ſpake it according to the Level of the Old Teſtament, Bleſſed be the God of Iſrael; but the Holy Apoſtles Paul and Peter, according to the Elevation of the New: the God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt; and this Style the two great Apoſtles begin with; our Apoſtle here in the beginning of thiis Epiſtle, and Peter in the beginning of his firſt Epiſtle, and he uſed it then when he did write unto Jews; for unto them are his Epiſtles written, which makes the alteration of the Style, the more obſervable, 1. Pet. 1.3. Bleſſed be the God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Yet the Mercies which he there bleſſes God for, are but one or two; who according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again to a lively hope, to an Inheritance, &c. It is a bleſſing God for the firſt bleſſing in Execution, Regeneration, and the laſt perform'd, namely, the Inheritance in Heaven, as it followeth there.

He begins his Doxology no higher then at that firſt ſpiritual mercy beſtowed in this life, which eſtates us into that inheritance; but our Apoſtle here prefixeth it before his Bleſſed be God, and unto all bleſſings univerſally, whereof in his ſubſequent diſcourſe he enumerates the particulars, and he takes the riſe of his flight higher, (according as he hath choſen us afore the World,) even at Election; that firſt, Original, and univerſally fundamental Grace, of all the other that follow; that vaſt Womb of Eternity, in which all bleſſings were conceived and ſhaped before the World was, and ſo from thence deſcends to Redemption Regeneration, Seal of the Spirit, Glory.

And

And here in this place ſince moſt Interpreters generally have obſerved a correſpondence held with that Jewiſh Doxology in the Old Teſtament; I ſhall more ſpecially add this one that appears to me to be the moſt direct and likelieſt correſpondent of the Old Teſtament, that ever the Apoſtle held intelligence with, in this of his of the New. And it was in a Prophecy of the Prophet David, Pſal. 72. Where propheſying of Chriſt, ver. 17. Men ſhall be bleſſed in him, (plainly meaning Chriſt,) and that all nations ſhall call him bleſſed. He breaks forth thereupon as here the Apoſtle doth. Bleſſed be the Lord God, the God of Iſrael, (that latter is Old Teſtament Language) who only doth wondrous things; and bleſſed be his glorious Name for ever, and let the whole Earth be filled with his Glory, Amen and Amen. Wherein you ſee that the Prophet bleſſeth God expreſly for the times of the Goſpel, wherein he ſhould bleſs us Gentiles, as well as Jews in Chriſt; in whom both to Abraham, and again to David himſelf God had promiſed to bleſs all the Nations of the World. Let the whole Earth be filled with his Glory; and this eſtate our Holy Apoſtles together having ſeen with their own eyes to have been in their days, (and eſpecially Paul the Apoſtle of the Gentiles, through his Miniſtry ſo Glorioufly accompliſhed in theſe Epheſians, and other Gentiles, as well as that other Apoſtle had on the Jews he wrote to.) The ſame Spirit of Faith (in him, and both crowned and confirmed with ſo viſible experience,) did burſt out as you ſee into the ſame bleſſing for ſubſtance, but more full and explicit; which had been but by way of prophetical foreſight uttered by David, thereby moſt paſſionately inciting theſe Epheſians, and with them all Chriſtians in all Nations (ſo lately converted to Chriſt) to joyn with him in this his manner of bleſſing God. The whole Earth being now filled with his Glory, and all Nations being now bleſſed by God, the God and Father of Chriſt, with all ſpiritual and heavenly bleſſings in him.

Serm. II.

2 Cor. 4. 13. We having the ſame ſpirit of Faith according as it is written, I believed, and therefore have I ſpoken; we alſo believe, and therefore ſpeak.

The words of this third Verſe divide themſelves into three parts.

I. A bleſſing God, as on our parts to be performed; bleſſed be God.

II. The ſtyle or titles under which Paul bleſſeth God, as the God and Father of Jeſus Chriſt.

III. The matter for which, or bleſſings beſtowed on us, for all ſpiritual bleſſings in heavenly things in Chriſt.

The diviſion of the words.

Bleſſed be God,]

I. What it is to bleſs God,

Bleſſing of God is, to wiſh well to, and ſpeak well of God, out of good will to God himſelf, and a ſenſe of his goodneſs unto our ſelves.

What it is to bleſs God.

I. To wiſh well to him, and ſpeak well of him,] there is benedicere alicui, which is, to invoke a bleſſing by prayer to another, as a Father bleſſeth his Child, one Saint another: Thus we are not capable of bleſſing God, nor God of being bleſſed by any. But there is benedicere aliquem, which is, to ſpeak well of another, and to wiſh well to, (as Pſal. 129. 8.) or to congratulate heartily the happineſs of another; and in this manner God gives us leave to bleſs him. Yea God loves your good word, that is, to be ſpoken of well by you, rejoyceth in your well wiſhes, and to hear from you expreſſions of rejoycings in his own independent bleſſedneſs. Though God hath an infinite Ocean of all bleſſedneſs, to which we can add nothing, who is therefore entitled by way of eminency, the bleſſed one, Mar. 14. 61. a title ſolely proper, and peculiar to him, yet he delights to hear the Amen of the Saints his creatures reſounding thereto; that is, Our ſo be it. Thus our Apoſtle having entitled him, Rom. 1. 25. The God bleſſed for ever, (as in himſelf he is, and ſuch in diſtinction from, and oppoſition to his whole Creation, (which is his ſcope there) yet he adds his own Amen, or ſo be it thereto. God bleſſed for ever, Amen. 'Tis ſtrange, that although ſo it is already, God is bleſſed in himſelf, and ſo it muſt be for ever more, that yet our ſo be it is put to it; we thereby uttering our good will, and it is well taken by him. It is not an Amen ſet to a bleſſing of Invocation, but it is an Amen of joyful Acclamation and Congratulation, as expreſſing our rejoycing and complacency in his happineſs, declaring that ſo we would have it.

Εὐλογεῖν τὸν Θεὸν, in accuſativo Luc. 1. 64. Jam. 3. 10.

Thus Chriſt who is God with the Father and ſo acknowledged in that 45. Pſal. (a Pſalm to his praiſe,) thy throne, O God, &c. verſ. 6.) yet there we find that he is bleſſed by the Church his Spouſe in theſe words, ver. 4. Proſper thou, Ride thou

Compare Heb. 1. 8.

in thy Majeſty, or Ride proſperouſly; which is a joyful Shout and Acclamation (as uſeth to be to Kings,) upon his paſſing by; the people exulting in that Glory and majeſtick State which they ſee him go forth in, wiſhing him proſperity in his Expedition and Undertakings, to make himſelf glorious, by doing Wondrous things. The Old Tranſlation expreſt the intent of it, rather than the Letter; Good luck have thou with thine Honour. The Church there, had withal in her eye, all thoſe gracious perfections his perſon was adorned with; which thus won her heart to him, and drew this from her: For ſo it follows, Ride and Proſper, becauſe of Truth, Righteouſneſs and Meekneſs. And thus for us to take a view of all the abſolute excellencies and perfections that are in God, to behold him Crowned with Glory and Happineſs that incircleth him round; a Crown of Glory made up of Juſtice, Truth, Holineſs, and other Attributes. To take a ſurvey of all his proceedings and diſpenſations, and goings forth of every kind; his everlaſting decrees of Juſtice and Mercy; all his ways and dealings in the variety of them, though never ſo croſs to our particular; and to rejoyce heartily in that Glory of his, which is the reſult of them all: And inwardly to ſay, Oh let him be thus glorious and bleſſed for ever, what ever ſhall become of me! To be glad of all, congratulate him and wiſh well to him in all, this is to bleſs him.

II. When done out of good will, as the principle of it (as indeed where ſuch acts as thoſe forementioned are, there muſt needs be good will, the ſpring of them.) And in this reſpect bleſſing God ſuperadds to confeſſing to his praiſe, yea or to give glory to him; it ſpeaks more then either. The Devils ſhall confeſs to his praiſe, Phil. 2. 10, 11. Every knee, and every tongue even of things under the Earth (in Hell,) ſhall confeſs Chriſt to the Glory of the Father; but theirs is but extorted, although acknowledged by them to be juſtly his due. Hence if we would ſpeak ſtrictly, bleſſing God is appropriated properly to the Saints, with a difference from prayſing God; Pſal. 145. 10, 11. All thy works ſhall praiſe thee, O Lord, and thy Saints ſhall bleſs thee. The Saints alone, they bleſs him, and why? becauſe they alone bear good will to him. And they bleſs the Lord with Pſal. 103. 1. their whole Souls, and all that is within them, and this God reſpects more then your giving him glory. 'Twas his very end in chuſing forth a ſelect company of Saints; that he himſelf firſt bleſſing them, they then might bleſs him again. He could have been glorified however in them, but he loves to be bleſt; he loves our good will in it, more then the thing.

III. I added, out of good will to God himſelf; that is, purely for what he is himſelf, and not only for what to our ſelves; in this manner our Apoſtle bleſſeth God here, even for this, that he is the God and Father of Chriſt. As loving God, that ever he begot ſuch a Son, he rejoyceth, that ſo great a Father, hath ſo great a Son; to the mutual honour of each. How often doth he in his Epiſtles come in with this, even in the midſt or concluſion of a diſcourſe, in which there was an occaſion to magnify him, [who is God bleſſed for ever] which is a Glorifying God as God, that is in himſelf and by himſelf, thus bleſſed for ever. Thus Rom. 1. 25. Rom. 9. 5. and elſewhere.

Yet, 4. Together herewith, Out of a ſenſe of his goodneſs alſo to us. So here, though he bleſſeth him firſt for being the God of Chriſt, yet he withal after bleſſeth him for having bleſt us with all bleſſings; and God gives us leave ſo to do. If you loved me purely, ſays Chriſt, Joh. 14. 28. you would rejoyce, becauſe I ſaid I go to my Father: you would rejoyce in my enjoyment of him, that is, in my bleſſedneſs in and through him, who is greater than I, (as it follows,) and ſo is the Fountain of that happineſs I have. He takes it unkindly at our hands, if we rejoyce not in his Perſonal bleſſedneſs primarily, and in the firſt place. And thus as we love him, becauſe he loves us firſt, ſo we bleſs him, becauſe he bleſſeth us firſt: and yet it muſt riſe higher in the end, (and in Heaven it will do ſo,) even purely to bleſs him for himſelf, or elſe we love him not, nor bleſs him, as the great God is to be loved and bleſſed by us. A Meditation or two.

1. Meditation.

1. 'Tis an infinite favour we are admitted to, and priviledge vouchſafed to creatures, and indeed the higheſt, not only to pray to God to obtain all bleſſings, and to give thanks to him when we have them; and further to glorify him for the glory that is in him; but beyond all this, to bleſs him for all the bleſſedneſs that is in him, and for him: to take in our Amen, our Euge to his own bleſſedneſs, as in like manner he doth our Faith, as a Seal to his truth and faithfulneſs. Oh, what is it! He was not content to be bleſſed alone, but he muſt bleſs us, and make us partakers thereof. But further as if not perfect without us, he bleſſeth himſelf in our returns and echoes of bleſſing to his bleſſedneſs, that ſo we in him, and he in us, might be bleſt together for evermore, Amen.

2. Meditation.

2. You have ſeen it a peculiar character of the Saints, thus out of good will to bleſs God, thy Saints they bleſs thee. 'Twas his end why he had Saints; ſaid he with himſelf, they will do that which none of my other works will do, they will bleſs me, for none elſe have good will to me, and whoever bleſſeth him, are firſt bleſt of him. Haſt thou, or doſt thou find in thy heart, thus to bleſs God, and findeſt all within thee riſing up in the doing of it? Bleſs God, O my Soul, and all that is within me: Go home, thou art a Saint I warrant thee. 'Twas Jobs Grace, the Lord hath taken, yet bleſſed be the name of the Lord. You will ſay, that was Old Teſtament Grace: yea, and 'tis New Teſtament Grace too; you ſee it in our Apoſtle the greateſt of Saints, ſo we may write him however he writes himſelf the Leaſt. His heart was full of this, and ſo it came out firſt; he could not hold at the firſt to utter it when he was to ſpeak to theſe he wrote to, he muſt needs begin to ſpeak by way of bleſſing God: yea, 'tis the higheſt and beſt Grace in Heaven it ſelf. The Angels, though not themſelves, but Men only, have benefit by Chriſts blood. He died for Men, not Angels; and therefore it is only the Chorus of Men that ſing, Rev. 5.9. Thou haſt redeemed us by thy blood out of all Nations: yet *v.*11. the Angels are brought in bleſſing Chriſt alſo; and that for this, that he was ſlain, v. 11, 12. And I beheld and heard the voice of many Angels round about the Throne, and the Beaſts and the Elders, and the number of them was ten thouſand times ten thouſand, and thouſands of thouſands; ſaying with a loud voice, Worthy is the Lamb, [that was ſlain,] to receive power and riches, and wiſdom and ſtrength, and honour and glory, and Bleſſing. Worthy is the Lamb that was ſlain (they mention nothing elſe of him,) and then Bleſſing comes in at laſt as the E la, the higheſt note that Heavenly Quire can reach to. The like at his birth, their Song was to bleſs him for Peace on Earth, good will to men, (they mention not themſelves,) but purely for good will to Men, becauſe it brought glory to God on high, (as there) they heartily rejoyced in that glory God ſhould have in his diſpenſations towards us. Pſal. 103. 1.

This for our Bleſſing of God on our parts, Bleſſed be God.

(II.)

II. The Perſon who, and the ſtyle under which our Apoſtle bleſſeth him:

The God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.]

It is not only, Bleſſed be God the Father, but the God and Father of Chriſt: nor only the God who is the Father of Chriſt, but ὁ Θεὸς καὶ πατὴρ, the God and Father of Chriſt. Otherwiſe Καὶ [And] were here redundant; but as conjoyned thus between thoſe two, ſhews that both theſe Titles do ſpeak each of them a ſeveral relation of God unto Chriſt; or what God is unto Chriſt, He is his God and his Father. The like manner of ſpeech we have (when elſewhere Chriſt is ſpoken of) two Titles of his in the ſame ſort locked together with that Καὶ. ὁ Θεὸς καὶ σωτὴρ, 2 Pet. 1.11. Ἐν δικαιοσύνῃ τοῦ Θεοῦ ἡμῶν, καὶ σωτῆρος ἡμῶν Ἰησοῦ Χριστοῦ, ſpeaking to them that believe in the Righteouſ-

Serm. II. Righteouſneſs of God, and our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt. The Holy Ghoſt intending both thoſe two Attributes of Chriſt. And *Tit.*2.13. Τῦ μεγάλυ Θεῦ, καὶ σωτῆρ ἡμῶν Ἰησῦ Χριςῦ, Looking for the bleſſed hope, and the glorious appearing [of the great God, and our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt.] He ſpeaks in both places of one and the ſame perſon, namely, Chriſt under two titles: and thus here he doth the like of God the Father, The God and Father of Chriſt. And this Parallel of ſpeech uſed of Chriſt in thoſe places, compared with what the Apoſtle uſeth here, thoſe places are ſtrong Proofs and Aſſertions Apoſtolical, that Chriſt is God as well as Saviour, the great God and Saviour; even as it is evident here in the like tenour of ſpeech, that the Perſon of God the Father is both the God, and the Father of Chriſt: for in the very ſame ſtrain and tenour of ſpeech it is, that both theſe are ſaid of Chriſt, wherein here both are ſpoken of God the Father in his relation unto Chriſt. This for the Phraſeology; now as to the Thing it ſelf.

Two things are here to be apart ſpoken to for the explanation hereof:

1. The matter it ſelf, How God the Father, is the God and the Father of Chriſt, and in what reſpects the one or the other, either of them.
2. The Reaſon why here he ſingleth out theſe relations of God to Chriſt, and under the reſpects and conſiderations thereof he bleſſeth God here.

The God and Father of Chriſt. 1. That the Father is both the God, and the Father of Chriſt.

I. The Matter it ſelf, The God and Father of Chriſt. 1. That the Father is both the God and Father of Chriſt, other Scriptures affirm, yea accord alſo in putting both relations thus together as well as here; yea, upon the Croſs he challengeth his intereſt in both, My God, my God, *Matt.*27.46. and Father into thy hands, *Luk.*23.46. and on the other ſide, when to enter into his glory, he mentions both, Joh. 20. 17. I aſcend unto my Father, and to my God. There are both, you ſee, found in one ſentence, only he puts Father firſt, afore being his God, ſo there; but here the God afore the Father of Jeſus Chriſt.

The difficulty about it, is, how theſe two Relations reſpectively are to be underſtood.

We all know and acknowledge Chriſts Perſon hath two Natures, He is God, he is Man; and we often find in one and the ſame ſentence ſeveral things attributed to the Perſon of Chriſt, whereof the one is ſpoken of him in reſpect of the Human Nature only, the other in relation to the Divine. I ſhall mention but one inſtance, becauſe ſomewhat a-kin to this here; *Heb.*7.3. his Perſon is deſcribed to be without Father, without Mother, and both are equally ſaid of this one and the ſame Perſon; yet the one in reſpect of one nature only, the other in relation to the other. It is evident the Man Jeſus had a Mother, and yet he is ſaid to be without Mother: therefore he muſt have another Nature, in reſpect of which he is ſaid to be without Mother, namely as God. It is evident that he called God his own Father, *Joh.*5. as alſo he uſeth to do upon every occaſion every where, and yet this Perſon as Man, is ſaid to be without Father. And that both theſe ſhould be thus attributed to, and ſaid of one and the ſame Perſon, all the Wits in the World cannot otherwiſe reconcile than by affirming or acknowledging two Natures to abide in this one Perſon; and withal what is proper to each, yet to be in common and alike attributed to the Perſon himſelf, reſpectively to thoſe two Natures. And therefore the Apoſtle elſewhere is fain to diſtinguiſh upon this matter with this or the like diſtinction, Who [according to the fleſh] or Human nature came of the Fathers by his Mother Mary; and who [according to the ſpirit] or Divine nature is the declared Son of God, and God bleſſed for ever. You have theſe diſtinctions in terminis thus applied, *Rom.*1. 3,4. and *Rom.*9.5. and it is the ſum of the ſcope of both places, as alſo of Acts 2.30. In like manner here bring but theſe, the ſame diſtinction tricked up and inſert them to each, and none will queſtion this Expoſition (that queſtion not the verity of one of thoſe his Natures,) that as Son of God, and ſo God equal with God, God is his Father: and that as Son of Man, ſo the ſame God that is his Father is his God alſo. Thus Biſhop Davenant expoundeth theſe words, God and Father of Chriſt.

En Deus, & Pater unius & ejuſdem Chriſti; Deus quidem ut Incarnati, Pater, ut Dei Verbi. Marlorat.

The God] 1. The Father is the God of Chriſt in relation to his being Man, and that in theſe reſpects more peculiar to him.

1. Becauſe

1. Becauſe he choſe him to that grace and union, 1 Pet. 1.21. Chriſt as Man was predeſtinated as well as we, and ſo hath God to be his God by predeſtination and ſo by free Grace, as well as he is our God in that reſpect. Serm. II.

2. Becauſe God the Father made a Covenant with him. Look, as becauſe of that Covenant with Abraham, &c. he is termed the God of Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob: ſo in reſpect of that Covenant made with Chriſt (which we have ſpecified *Iſ.*49.*ch.*throughout) where Chriſt doth call him My God,*v.*4. of which Covenant,as alſo God's being his God, David was his type, *Pſal.*89.26.

3. Becauſe God was his only refuge in all times of diſtreſs. Thus when hanging on the Croſs he cries out to him, My God, my God, *Matt.*27.46. compared with *Pſal.*22.ver. 1,2,3,4,5.

4. Becauſe God is the Author and immediately the Matter of Chriſts bleſſedneſs (as he is Man,) and therefore bleſſed be he as the God of Chriſt, who hath bleſſed our Lord Chriſt for ever and ever, as Pſal. 45. 2. whereupon in the 7th verſe it follows, God, thy God, hath anointed thee with the Oil of gladneſs above thy fellows. The Pſalmiſt ſatisfieth not himſelf to ſay, God hath anointed thee; but with an Emphaſis, God, thy God: and thy God he is in relation to this effect and fruit of it, anointing thee with gladneſs; which ver. 2. is ſynonymouſly expreſſed, God hath bleſſed thee for ever. And then anointed by God, as Man, he was when glorified, Acts 4. 27. And God thus bleſſed him by becoming himſelf his bleſſedneſs; which in the 16 Pſalm Chriſt exults in *ver.*2. My Soul, thou haſt ſaid unto the Lord, Thou art my Lord. And *ver.*5. it follows,The Lord is the portion of mine Inheritance: and *v.*6. I have (ſays he) a goodly heritage, that is, in having God to be my God and heritage to live upon for ever. For (as he further ſpeaks in v. 11.) *in thy preſence is fulneſs of joy, and at thy right hand are pleaſures for evermore.*The Pſalm is made in Chriſts name, as the Apoſtle Acts 2. and he ſpeaks it of his Human nature expreſly in the 9th verſe, My fleſh (ſays he) ſhall reſt in hope, namely this hope, by this my death, to be advanced to the right hand of God, (which alone that Man Chriſt Jeſus is, for as God he was alwaies at his Right hand) where thoſe pleaſures are: ſo then God is his happineſs. Hence therefore when Chriſt was riſen, and ſpeaks of aſcending, and was ſhortly to aſcend, then it was he calls God his God, *Joh.*20. I aſcend to my God, that is, to him in whom my happineſs, I now am going to enjoy, conſiſts. And therefore Joh. 14.28.he told his Diſciples, If ye loved me, you would rejoyce that I go to my Father: for I go to him, that is, able to make me happy, and is my immediate bleſſedneſs. For it follows, My Father is greater than I (namely, as I am a Man,) and ſo I am to be bleſſed in him, the leſs being bleſſed of the greater. The Human nature, though glorified, is not bleſſedneſs to itſelf (it is but finite in itſelf;) but God immediately is. Nor is that Human nature, though God dwells in it, the utmoſt bleſſedneſs of us; but God immediately alſo is: yet as to our right thereunto, it is becauſe he is our God and his God firſt. Thus his God, as Man.

But whether the Father is termed the God of Chriſt, as Chriſt is God, and ſo in relation to his Divine nature, I will not debate it. There are that read that paſſage of the 45 Pſalm thus, Oh God (as ſpeaking to Chriſt as God) thy God, ſo terming his Father, Deus de Deo, God of God, is old: and the Father is Deus Gignens, the Son Deus Genitus, and Deus Dei is near to theſe; the Father is the God of the Son, who is God. But I paſs it.

II. And the Father] This is out of queſtion ſpoken of Chriſt, and is true of him, both as God and alſo Man.

1. As God: ſo he is his Son, his own Son, *Rom.*8. 32. and reciprocally the Father, ἴδιος πατὴρ, his own Father, *Joh.*5.18. and therefore equal with God, as it is emphatically there ſaid (for the Jews objected againſt him, that πατέρα ἴδιον ἔλεγε τὸν Θεὸν, he ſaid God was his own Father,(ſo in the Greek) making himſelf equal with God.) All which do imply, that he was ſuch a Son as was begotten of the ſubſtance and eſſence of his Father, even as he that is ſaid to be a mans own natural Son, uſeth to be, and is thereby diſtinguiſh'd from their adopted Children; and in that reſpect alſo is Chriſt ſaid to be Gods only begotten Son; and ὁ υἱὸς Dei vivi, that Son of the living God, *Mat.*16.15. and ſo diſcriminated from all other. As from the Angels, To which of all the Angels did he ſay, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee? Heb. 1. and ſo from all Creatures. For whereas, Joh. 1.18. he is termed the only begotten Son, in diſtinction therefrom all Creatures, which are ſaid to be but made, ver. 1.3. and Believers to have received power from him to be Sons, v. 12. In fine, he is in ſuch a reſpect the Son of God, and begotten of God, as being Man he was the Son of David, becauſe out of his loyns. Thus Matt. 22.42. And that he was thus the Son of God, is the main and moſt fundamental point of the Goſpel, Rom. 1. 3, 4. compared; and therefore is ſtill brought in as the concluſion of all thoſe ſeveral diſcourſes of the laſt Evangeliſt his Goſpel, beginning at the firſt Chapter, verſes 18, and 49. ch. 3. 16. and ſo on to ch. 20. ult. where, in the concluſion of his Book, he profeſſeth this to have been the intended ſcope of the whole; Theſe things are written that ye might believe that Jeſus is the Chriſt the Son of God, and that believing (thus of him) ye might have life through his name; through that name of his that he is the Son of God, and thereby the fountain of life and Sonſhip to us; for upon this very rock or foundation, Chriſt told his Diſciples, he would build his Church.

2. As Man and Son of Man God was his Father, that forementioned profeſſion and anſwer in the name of all the reſt of his Diſciples was ſetly pitcht upon this in Chriſts queſtion as punctual thereunto; Whom do men ſay that I the Son of Man am? That was Chriſts queſtion: He anſwers thereupon, The Son of the living God. Therefore as Man he was the Son of the living God. The like ye have uttered by Chriſt himſelf, (for 'twas that point he died upon) Mar. 14. 61, 62. compared.

But then as to this laſt point the queſtion is, How it is to be underſtood that as Man he was the Son of God; whether only but as other men, or in any tranſcendent priviledge above us? Or thus, whether as Man he was but the adopted Son, as the Saints are; or whether not the natural Son of God? Which is ſolved by theſe conſiderations,

I. That the ſubject of this relation as Son to God, or the Terminus of it, is not either his nature Divine or Human, but his perſon; for Sonſhip is a perſonal property, not of the nature.

II. Hence Secondly, in the perſon of Chriſt there are not two Sons, or two Sonſhips or relations of Sonſhips unto God as a Father; but as God is but one, ſo the Perſon of the Son but one, and ſo but one Sonſhip in him.

III. Hence Thirdly, Chriſt as Man is but one and the ſame Son of God; that he is as he is God, that is, his ſtyle and honour is to be the natural Son of God, even as Man. The Sonſhip of the Man Chriſt Jeſus doth coaleſce into one Sonſhip with the Son of God, even as in like manner the Man is taken up into One perſon with the Son of God, Luke 1.35. That holy thing which ſhall be born of thee (ſpeaking of Chriſts conception to the Virgin Mary) ſhall be called the Son of God: for look as though he was Man, yet that Man was never a perſon of itſelf, but ſubſiſted from the firſt in the perſonality of the ſecond Perſon: ſo that Son of Man was never called or accounted a Son to God, of himſelf, as ſuch; but his Sonſhip was that of the Perſon, which he was taken up into. Only with this difference, That he is the Son of God as God, in that he was begotten of the Fathers ſubſtance, but ſo the Son of Man was not; but this Son of man becoming the Son of God, who was begotten of the ſubſtance of the Father by Perſonal union, he the Man by being made one perſon with him wears that dignity. The one is per eſſentiæ communicationem, the other per unionem cum perſonâ.

Two Nativities, not two Sonſhips.

IV. Hence Fourthly, he is not as Man the Son of God naturally or eſſentially, but he is the Son of God perſonally: if we take natural for eſſential, ſo he is not as man Gods natural Son; but take natural as in oppoſition to adoption, and ſo he is Gods natural Son: and not by Adoption, this being the title and honour he had from his conception and birth. And from his union with the perſon of the natural Son, as you heard from the Angel, That holy thing which ſhall be born of thee, ſhall be called the Son of God, (and God calls things as they are.) And more diſtinctly, Gal. 3.4. God ſent forth his Son made of a Woman, made under the Law, that we might receive the adoption of Sons, where evidently evidently his Sonſhip and ours are ſet in theſe terms of diſtinction, that ours is the Sonſhip of Adoption received from his, and that his is primitive, original, and natural; yea, and this is true of him as he is Man, for it is ſpoken of him that was made of a Woman, made under the Law. Serm. II.

II. The Reaſon why under theſe Relations of God and Father to Chriſt, he bleſſeth God.

The Second, reaſon why he ſingleth forth theſe relations of God, as the God and Father, unto Chriſt, and under them bleſſeth God. Although this will eaſily appear in many of the particulars that follow, yet one Reaſon may be, to unvail the Old Teſtament and decipher it into the New, and bring forth the Goſpel in its ſubſtantial and real intendments, both of the Promiſe of Bleſſing, as alſo of Gods relation to Us men: God his being their God, this of old was typically ſet forth under this tenure The God of Abraham, the God of Iſaac, the God of Jacob, *Exod.*3.6. And before them, The Lord God of Sem, *Gen.*9.26. and in the names of theſe Patriarchs the conveyance of the Bleſſing ran, and anſwerably their return of Praiſe and Bleſſing unto God again then was, Bleſſed be the Lord God of Sem, *Gen.*9.26. Thus before Abraham. After, when renewed in Jacobs name, Bleſſed be the Lord God of Iſrael, as you heard out of David; and this form the Jews (upon whoſe hearts, as now in their Synagogues, the Veil remains, in token thereof they wear it upon their heads,) in their worſhip keep to this day; but now that the ſubſtance is come, the ſhadows diſappear. Abraham, and Iſaac, and Iſrael are ſubduced. The days are come (as the Prophet in another caſe ſpeaks) that it ſhall no more be ſaid, The God of Abraham,&c. but the God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt: and as Iſaiah foretold of the Goſpel times, look as my Servants (or Children of God) ſhall be called by another name, (namely Chriſtians, as firſt at Antioch, and no longer Jews:) ſo alſo the terms of their Covenant is altered, and ſo their form of bleſſing God, as was alſo fore-ſignified there in the following words, He that bleſſeth himſelf in the Earth, ſhall bleſs himſelf in the God of truth, namely, when Chriſt, who is the truth and the life, ſhall come. Old Zachary, that lived in the expiration or extream verge of the Old Teſtament, when Chriſt was not yet conceived, he then uſeth that Old Teſtament form which he found ſanctified in the Scriptures of old. But had he ſtayed half a year longer, (for thereabouts was the diſtance between Chriſts and his Son John Baptiſts conception;) his Bleſſed be the God of Iſrael (which he uſeth in his Song,) had been out of date: and bleſt be the God and Father of Chriſt had come in its room, and been in force.

2 Cor.3. Jer.14.16. Iſai.65.16. Verſe 17.

Meditation.

Oh, let Us therefore that live under the knowledge of Chriſt in the Goſpel, Bleſs our God as the God and Father of Jeſus Chriſt, which is the higheſt note of celebrating his praiſe, which our hearts can reach to! For it is the moſt elevated ſtrain of the Goſpel language, and of the glory of God, which any man, or all men can riſe up unto. It is ſaid of Chriſt in the Pſalms, Pſ. 72. ult. All Nations ſhall call him bleſſed. In like manner it was ſpoken of and by her ſelf, that was the Mother of his Human nature only, All Generations ſhall call me bleſſed. Oh then, how ſhould We all bleſs that God that is the Father of him, who in his perſon alſo is God bleſſed together with his Father for ever! Many good Souls find this as an eternal evidence of their own future bleſſedneſs, that when wanting aſſurance of Gods love to themſelves, they can yet bleſs God for his being good to others in the ſame condition with themſelves out of their love to God, and to the good of others Souls. If thou findeſt ſuch elevations of ſpirit in thee, vent and ſpend them much more in bleſſing God, that he is the God and Father of Chriſt. This is high, and moſt divine.

§

Of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt,] He having thus ſetly diſplayed theſe relations of God to Chriſt, he interweaves withal [OUR] ſpecial relation to Chriſt; to wit, [His being our Lord,] his ſcope therein being to ſhew the foundation and deſcent of thoſe very ſame relations which God beareth to Chriſt; and of the ſame their coming down upon and unto us, namely of his being our God and our Father (which are the ground-work of the conveyance to us of all thoſe particular Bleſſings he doth after enumerate,) by and through Jeſus Chriſt his being our Lord or Husband.

And it is obſervable how the Apoſtle carries on his diſcourſe along. In the ſecond verſe he had called God our Father, and Jeſus Chriſt barely the Lord; but then in this verſe he ſtyleth this God the Father of Chriſt, and then ſubjoyns therewith, varying his ſtyle, this Jeſus our Lord. Thereby to ſhew the Genealogy or deſcent of our being Sons to God, and of Gods being our Father, to lie in this, that Chriſt is our Lord, and ſo God becomes our Father by being his Father. And then in the next verſe he anſwerably proceeds to ſhew, how all other bleſſings do flow from this relation, firſt of God to Chriſt, then this of Chriſt to us; which in the fifth verſe he doth more determinately diſcover to be his meaning, in ſaying, He hath predeſtinated us by Jeſus Chriſt to the adoption of Children: ſo that this mention of his being our Lord here, is not meerly, as elſewhere, an Appellative, or as the ordinary ſtyle that is given to the Perſon of Chriſt, as that whereby he is deſcribed, when he is ſpoken of or mentioned, when there is any occaſion to name him; (thus frequently his Diſciples, We have ſeen the Lord, ſay they all, *Joh.*20.25. It is the Lord, ſays he, when he ſpied him firſt, *Joh.*21.7. yea, and this appellation of [our Lord] is often uſed by the Apoſtles, but barely to decipher his Perſon, as in that ſpeech *Heb.*7.14. It is evident our Lord ſprang out of Judah. Theſe in part are no more than as when men ſpeak of the Perſon of their Prince, they ſay, The King, and our Lord the King, ſo deſigning his Perſon.) But here in ſaying in this coherence, and in ſaying, The Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, his intent is to draw the pedigree of our relation to God, as our Father alſo, even by deſcent from Chriſt; and this is the higheſt improvement, as to us, of this Attribute here [Chriſt our Lord.] This for the general ſcope of theſe words.

To make good which general ſcope, two things are now particularly to be explicated.

1. What ſpecial or peculiar relation there is of the Saints unto Chriſt, as to Their Lord.
2. That the relation of Chriſt to us as a Lord, is the foundation of Gods being our God and Father, as well as he is Chriſt's God and Father.

For the firſt, That our Jeſus is the Lord, and that One Lord, in diſtinction from God the Father; which title fully declareth his office of Mediatour, and is attributed to him by way of eminency above and from all other Lords: this I have elſewhere ſhewn upon 1 *Cor.*8.6. That which is more proper here is, That he is our Lord more peculiarly, and how we have theſe two apart attributed to Chriſt, both that he is The Lord, and Our Lord, as in a ſpecial relation and appropriation in the 4th verſe of the Epiſtle of Jude; where ſpeaking of the Hereſies of thoſe times, he ſays, that They denied that only Lord God, and our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. The queſtion here hath been made by ſome, as alſo about the like parallel places, 2 *Pet.*1.1. *Tit.*2.13. whether he here ſhould ſpeak of two Perſons diſtinct, viz. God and Chriſt, ſtyling the firſt, The Lord God, but Chriſt, in diſtinction from him, Our Lord; or whether that the Apoſtle ſhould intend Chriſt only and alone as one and the ſame ſubject of two Royal titles or Relations; the one more general, namely his being the only Lord God, and then the other of his more ſpecial relation unto us, our Lord. Indeed as the Engliſh tranſlation carries it, it leans more to that firſt interpretation, that he ſhould ſpeak of the Father in the one, whom he ſhould ſignalize, The only Lord God; the other of Chriſt. But the Greek evidently inclines much rather to the latter, that Chriſt alone ſhould be intended as the Subject of both theſe ſtyles.

Conſidering firſt, that though here be three Attributes, 1. the only Lord, 2. God, 3. and our Lord; that yet there is but one Article or note of deſignation affixed, or rather prefixed to all theſe at firſt, Τὸν μόνον, as meaning evidently but one Perſon pointed at in them all, as the Subject of them; which the Complutenſis Copy of the Greek renders more plain, That only God and Lord, the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

Τὸν μόνον Θεὸν, καὶ δεσπότην τὸν Κύριον.

Which

Which Secondly, the counterpart to this Apoſtles Epiſtle, namely the ſecond Epiſtle of Peter, helps to clear, where ſpeaking of the ſame Hereticks (whom both theſe Apoſtles aimed to ſpeak of, and do affirm theſe things of) there, in the latter he mentions Chriſt only as the Perſon ſpoken of in theſe words, denying the Lord that bought them; uſing there alſo the ſame word δεσπότην, which the other Epiſtle uſeth when he ſpeaks of the Lordſhip and Dominion of Chriſt, which is in common over wicked men, and but ſuch as over all things elſe, which Jude manifeſtly intended in calling him The Lord. And the contradictions of all Hereticks, that profeſſed Chriſtianity in thoſe times, were all and only bent againſt the Perſon of Chriſt, and alſo againſt his being God, and not againſt the Father, or his being only Lord God. Serm. II.

So then that place of Jude holds forth two things diſtinctly and apart concerning Chriſt, which ſerves to clear the point in hand; 1. What he is abſolutely and indeterminately in himſelf, and in his general relation to all things whatſoever, He is the only God and Lord of all; and (by the way) the word tranſlated Lord in the firſt part of his ſtyle, is a differing word from that which follows in the ſecond part. The firſt word is δεσπότην, Supream, Sovereign Diſpoſer and Governour, as by poſſeſſion, and natural and more general right; ſuch as a Lord hath of his Goods, his Chattels, Utenſils, as 2 Tim. 2. 21. But that other κύριον, the latter word which is joyned with that ſpecial relation of his to us, with that addition of [Our] Lord: ſo noting out in this manifeſt diſtinction that ſweet and ſpecial relation to his Spouſe and Children of the Sons of Men. So then the meaning is, that beſides that Jeſus Chriſt is the Sovereign Lord of all perſons and things, (as Acts 10. 36.) that he further hath a nearer and dearer relation [of our Lord,] ſo to Us, his Saints. See Lorinus, 2 Pet. 2. Nu. 10

So then, he is the Lord of Saints peculiarly, in the like ſenſe and reſpect, as he is called King of Saints peculiarly, Rev. 15. 3. in diſtinction from his being King of Nations, as Jer. 10. the Prophet had it.

Wicked men, as you have heard, are ſaid to deny the Lord that bought them: ſo then he is their Lord. And the Devils are ſaid to confeſs, that Jeſus is the Lord, Phil. 2. 11. but none of theſe do ſay, [our Lord.] The good Angels, they come nearer to him, and ſurely they might ſay it upon better terms; (he being their head, Coloſſ. 2. 10. and they our fellow Servants, Rev. 19. 10.) yet I find not that they ſpeak thus of him [Our Lord,] but as it were, or would ſeem in a reſpect, both to him and us, the Holy Ghoſt ſhould leave this to be alone ſaid by us, and ſpoken by us of Chriſt. There was a full occaſion once (if ever) for the good Angels themſelves to have aſſumed and uttered it, and ſaid Our Lord. 'Tis in Luke 2. 11. when they proclaimed him in the Cradle; but their words there run thus, To you (ſpeaking of us men) is born a Saviour, and ſo Chriſt the Lord: for though a Saviour only to us men, yet thoſe Angels might have ſaid, Our Lord, for that their part in him, forementioned. No, but when it did come in a compariſon and competition with us men, they forbear to do it, they only ſay Chriſt the Lord, not Chriſt our Lord; or any where elſe we read of. But Believers and Saints of the Sons of men you find often, upon all occaſions of mentioning him as The Lord, to aſſume the priviledge to call him with this ſweet additament, My Lord, or Our Lord. David in the Old Teſtament he began it, Jehovah ſaid to my Lord, Pſal. 110. And he was in ſpirit when he did it, (as Chriſt tells us,) poſſeſſed with an Evangelical Spirit more than ordinary. Elizabeth followed him in the firſt break of day of the New Teſtament, ſhe was in ſpirit too, Luke 1. 41. when ſhe ſaid it, Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Ghoſt, and ſaid verſe 43. Whence is this to me, that the Mother of my Lord is come? Thomas, at laſt (for 'twas after the Reſurrection,) with raviſhment cries out, My Lord, and my God. And our Apoſtle goes on, when his heart was as full as it could hold of glorying and rejoycing in this his intereſt in Chriſt, Phil. 2. 8. Yea doubtleſs, I that have known him ſo long, I do count all things but loſs and dung, for the excellency of the knowledge [of Chriſt Jeſus my Lord.] The Emphaſis this comes in with, argues his heart raiſed up to an infinite valuation of him, and alſo of this his Spiritual relation unto him [My Lord.] Theſe Saints in their own Perſons, as particularly it fell out, firſt taſting the ſweetneſs of it; but then after it grew the common voice of all Believers ſpeaking in their own and other

Saints

Serm. II.

Saints names. So Paul was careful to obſerve to do, when he wrote to the Church of Corinth, aſcribing and enlarging that title of [Our Lord] unto all Saints, as well as to the Church of Corinth; as appears expreſly in his Inſcription to that firſt Epiſtle to that Church, 1 *Cor.*1.2. Unto the Church of God that is at Corinth, called to be Saints, with all that in every place call upon the name of Our Lord: and remarkably adds both theirs and ours, thus appropriating it to the Saints of Mankind; as he does here [Our Lord].

I further only add, That when I thus term it a proper or more ſpecial relation with difference from other the Sons of men, or the Angels; I exemplifie my meaning by the like language, which the great Officers and Favourites of Kings, uſe by way of diſtinction from other Subjects, and glory ſo to do. They rejoyce to ſtyle him, The King, my Maſter, my Lord. And I humbly ſubmit the notion of it, if it appear ſingular to others. But I ſhall further add two ſpecial appropriate Reaſons, why the Saints do the like of Chriſt.

1. His ſaving and redeeming them from ſin and wrath. He is their Saviour; not of the Angels: And To you, ſay they, a Saviour is born, Chriſt the Lord; and ſo your Lord more peculiarly, becauſe your Saviour, which I inſiſt not on.

2. Beſides this obliging intereſt of Redemption, proper to the Saints of the Sons of men, whereby he is our Lord, (though as a ſecond hand bargain he bought all the World, 2 *Pet.*2.1.) there is a further more endearing conſideration, whereby he is our Lord, even becauſe he is our Husband, Thy Maker is thy Husband, and ſo thy Lord; and he is ſuch a Husband as did ſerve a ſervitude for his Wife, yea and bought her thereby of a ſlave and captive by the way of redemption, as in verſ. 7*th* of this 1 of Epheſians; and again, 5 Eph. 23. Even as Chriſt is head of the Church, and Saviour of the body; and 25. He loved his Church, and gave himſelf for her: Theſe things cannot be ſpoken of Angels. A Queen, the wife or ſpouſe of a great King, when ſhe mentions her relation to him, and ſays [My Lord,] or calls him [her Lord,] ſhe ſpeaks it in that ſenſe, wherein none of her Maids of Honour, or Courtiers about her, dare, or muſt take on them to ſpeak it, though he be in other reſpects their Lord alſo. For he is her Lord as he is her Husband, and not only as King; and ſo ſhe imports, I am my Beloveds, and my Beloved is mine, whilſt ſhe only calls him My Lord. 1 Pet.3.6. Sarah, you know, call'd Abraham (as her husband,) Lord; which is applied to Chriſt and the Church, *Eph.*5.22,23. Wives, ſubmit your ſelves unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord: for the Husband is the head of the wife, even as Chriſt is the head of the Church, and he is the Saviour of the body. And in this conjugal reſpect it is that God the Father teacheth the Church to call Chriſt her Lord; Pſal. 45.11. He is thy Lord, worſhip thou him: ſo ſhall the King greatly delight in thy beauty. He ſpeaks it of his conjugal relation, as that paſſage, Delighting in her beauty, argues. Now as 'tis ſaid of Chriſts Sonſhip, To which of all the Angels did he ſay, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee, though they are Sons of God alſo, and he their Father? So ſay I of this Lordſhip, To which of all the Angels did he ever ſay, Chriſt is thy Lord, that is, thy Husband: he ſhall greatly delight in thy beauty; as an Husband in his Spouſe? Though they are the Virgins that do attend her: yet that relation is reſerved proper between Chriſt and us. So though he be an head to Angels, *Col.*2.10,11. yet in a proper and a peculiar manner an Head to his Church, the Saints: So in the 22*th* of this 1 Eph. The Father hath given him to be an Head over all to his Church, (even over all principalities and powers, verſe 21.) and therefore in ſuch a peculiar manner an Head to them, as he is not to all or any elſe. He being ſaid to be over all things elſe then, when withal his relation of headſhip to her is ſpoken of. And ſo it is in this.

For the ſecond, I muſt now ſhew you, that this peculiar relation of his being our Lord in this near and endearing ſenſe, is the foundation of God's being our God, and our Father; even becauſe he is the God and Father of Chriſt, who is this our Lord and Husband.

1. The ὅτι, That ſo it is, that the foundation of theſe Relations of God unto us, are laid in theſe ſame like relations of ours unto Chriſt, (beſides what by induction might be ſhewn, to hold of all other titles or priviledges communicated to us, how

(how they all hold of Christ,) that one place afore cited, where Christ at once calls him both his God and his Father, Joh. 20. 17. more fully and pertinently holds forth this to us; I ascend to my Father and your Father, to my God and your God. He speaks at once, as that God is our God, &c. so that our relation of his being our God, is founded upon Gods being the God of Christ. And our Father, because his first. He says not, as Austin observes, I ascend to our Father, or to our God, as casting his own proper relation into the same common rank with ours. No, but apart, first mine and then yours. Mine primatively, naturally, and originally; yours derivatively by participation, or as verse 5. here expresseth it; Sons of Adoption by Jesus Christ, or as Gal. 4. 4. he sent his Son (his own Son, as elsewhere;) that we might receive the Adoption of Sons. Serm. II.

2. But secondly, if you will see how this doth spring from that special relation of Christs being our Lord, that is, our Head, Husband, Redeemer, consult that Psal. 45. which is an Epithalamium, or marriage-Song of Christ, and his Church. God the Father, who gives all that good Counsel there to the Church, (for all that come to Christ, are taught of God, as Christ says,) in the 11 verse he teacheth her to call him her Lord, and in the 10 verse, to forsake her Fathers House, as Spouses married use to do, and to cleave unto their Husbands; and upon all this account, God himself there calls her his Daughter. Hearken, Oh Daughter, &c. That's his compellation (and parallel to this of a Wife to her Husband, my Lord here,) God the Father, in the beginning of his speech to her, speaking as a Father in Law useth to do, who is giving counsel to his Daughter new married unto his natural Son. So then from thence I infer, that thus it is; that we become Sons and Daughters to God, even by marriage with his natural Son, (who in that conjugal respect doth become our Lord) and thereby also receive the Adoption of Sons, and so God takes on him the relation of Father. Thus Rom. 8. 17. Heirs of God, joynt Heirs with Christ.

1. Meditation.

1. Let him then be Lord and King of Saints, and level him not with Saints, (as some most cursedly in this Age have done,) even then when we are enjoying the highest advancement even of God himself in Heaven; yet still Christ is our Lord, by means of whom God is our God. The Psalmist indeed says, that we are fellows in all with him: God thy God hath anointed thee above thy fellows, ver. 7. But if you would know of the Psalmist how far above his fellows? The Psalmist resolves you, He is thy Lord, worship thou him, ver. 11. So as though we are his fellows, yet he hath the deserved honour, this title, (and he alone,) of being your Lord, yea and of the man Gods fellow, given him by God himself in the Prophet. Would you be all Christs? Set your hearts at rest; There is but one Christ personally, as certainly as that God is but one. It is uttered as a fundamental Maxime of Christian profession, universally received. To us (Christians namely,) there is but one God and one Lord Jesus Christ, and because there is but one God, therefore God hath ordeined but this one Lord; because he therein bears the Image of Gods soveraignty and oneness, being the brightness of his Glory. Neither are we the Saints considered as sharing with him herein, but himself is that one Lord alone. For it follows, And we in him, we are all we are, in him; and therefore not only reckoned distinct and apart from him, (as he is that one Lord) but dependent on him, and not Lords or Christs with him, but infinitely distant from him. 'Tis true, we have all that Christ hath derivatively, but not in that kind he hath it. God he is our Father as well as his Father, &c. but as Augustin well observes, commenting upon this passage, he says not, I ascend to our Father, but my Father and your Father, therefore he is in another respect my Father, and in another respect your Father; my Father by nature, yours by grace.

Serm. II.

2. Meditation.

2. Let him be thy Lord, and worſhip thou him: Thou haſt now in this a greater tender made thee, then ever was made to Angels; part with all for him, forſake thy former Fathers Houſe, this World, given to thy Father Adam, and all things in it; for he is thy Lord, and thou ſhalt have by thy relation to him, another Father, whoſe Houſe hath many Manſions. Account all things Droſs and Dung that thou mayeſt win Chriſt, as Phil. 3. Thou canſt not win him elſe, he never becomes thy Lord, unleſs thou valueſt him at the ſame rate he did, thee and parteſt in thy affections with all for him: Give thy ſelf up to the Lord, as 2 Cor. 8. 5. caſt thy lot, thy intereſt together with his. Here thou ſhalt be ſure never to loſe thy love, as in cleaving to all elſe thou wilt. He is and muſt however be a Lord to thee, and thou muſt one day confeſs that Jeſus is the Lord, whether thou wilt or no; for all muſt appear afore his Judgment Seat. Oh, but if thy Judge be become thy Lord, and Husband, thou art out of danger. And then give thy ſelf up alſo to worſhip, and in all things to obey him, elſe he is not thy Lord, nor thou his lawful Spouſe. Eph. 5. 24. As the Church is ſubject to Chriſt, ſo let Wives be ſubject to their Husbands; why doth he ſpeak with ſuch an apparent difference? For what he ſpeaks of Wives is but as diſcourſing to them their Duty; Let Wives be ſubject, he doth not ſay, they cannot be ſaved elſe; but that other paſſage of the Church, is ſpoken of as a taken for granted qualification, or eſſential property in the Church, if ſhe be his lawful true Spouſe. As the Church is ſubject to Chriſt, ſays he, ſo that it be the duty of both alike, the Church ought to be ſubject to Chriſt, as well, as Wives to their Husbands. The reaſon and difference is perſpicuous, becauſe unleſs Souls be ſubject to Chriſt, they are not the Church. A mans Wife, is his Wife, tho ſhe be never ſo perverſe and diſobedient to him; but no Soul is one of his Church and Spouſe, nor own'd by Chriſt as ſuch, unleſs ſhe become ſubject to him, and ſubject too in every thing, as the compariſon there made, ſheweth. If thou ſayſt, thou wanteſt beauty, be not diſcourag'd, he will take thee with all thy deformities, and put beauty on thee; for ſo the Apoſtle there goes on, he waſheth and cleanſeth his Church, to preſent her to himſelf in the end glorious, and without ſpot or wrinckle.

And being once married to him, take this for ever along with thee, thou art married to an Husband riſen from the dead, Rom. 7. 4. SER-

SERMON III.

VERSE 3.

[Who hath bleſſed us with all bleſſings.]

I Come to the third general head the Text was divided into, the matter for which he bleſſeth God, namely, for his bleſſing us with all bleſſings, (who hath bleſſed us with all bleſſings.)

Who] (God,) as he alone is bleſſed, ſtyled therefore the bleſſed one, Marc. 14. ſo he alone bleſſeth, and is alone able to do it; and others when they bleſs, their bleſſings are but invocations upon him, that he would bleſs ſome other perſon in what they deſire for him; ſo all particular benedictions made by Parents or others, run in Scripture as Gen. 48. 15, 16. which that Saying once for all other ſhews, we bleſs you in the name of the Lord, Pſal. 129. 8. Yea, when man is made an inſtrument of conveighing good things unto us, yet he cannot make them bleſſings; for this they have recourſe to God. And in ſo doing all have thereby acknowledged him the fountain of all bleſſings and bleſſedneſs; and ſo even Baalam himſelf confeſſed to Balak, Numb. 22. 38. and Chap. 23. 8, 20. I wot that he whom thou bleſſeſt is bleſſed. Num. 22. 6. ὁ εὐλογητός.

Who,] I ſhewed afore in general, that the Apoſtle bleſſeth God under the conſideration of being the God and Father of Chriſt, becauſe thereby he becomes our God, and our Father alſo. I ſhall add now, how that under each of theſe conſiderations or relations it is that he bleſſeth us.

That which in general I ſhall premiſe, as common to the Explication of theſe two particulars laſt mentioned, is that notion commonly receiv'd among the Schoolmen, (which I gladly took up from them.) That one requiſite ingredient to move God to love, and to ſhew mercy unto us intelligent Creatures of the Sons of Men, is an apprehending our miſery, ut ſuam, as his own. And again, Deus non miſeretur niſi propter amorem, in quantum amat nos tanquam aliquid ſui. That God hath mercy on us,, by apprehending our miſery as his own, quod fit per unionem affectus, which is done, by an union of affection to us; love by and God is not executively merciful, but for his love, and is ſo far merciful to us, as he looks at us, ut aliquid ſuī, as we are ſomething of his own, or ſomething of himſelf. Aquinas ſecunda ſecundæ quæſt. 30. art. 2. in reſpon. ad art: prim.

This I greedily take hold of, to illuſtrate and carry on the ground and foundation of the ſpecial love he bears to his Elect, and as agreeing with what the Scriptures ſay; both that love is in God, (which no man can deny to be in the nature of God to love, for he loves himſelf, his Son, &c.) And that love is the ground of mercy, and by the ſame reaſon, ſpecial electing love the ground of mercy in God to ſinners. Thus Epheſ. 2. 4. But God who is rich in mercy, (having in the foregoing verſes, ſet forth our ſinfulneſs and miſery,) For the great love wherewith he loved us, &c. And Aquinas his tantum in quantum, is made the meaſure of the great and infinite difference of his love to creatures. There is a common love to men as creatures, ſo he loves every man and thing he hath made; but where he ſhew ſpecial mercies, as Pardon of ſin, and the like, there is an in quantum, by an how far he loves, as the foundation of that, a ſpecial love. But ſtill the queſtion will be, what ſhould be the ground of a ſpecial love in God to ſome, with ſuch an infinite difference of that love from what it is to others in common? Aquinas reſolves that, with this further foundation, to be aliquid ſui; to make thoſe he ſpecially loves ſome way his own, and then the conſequence of that to be, to look upon their miſery as his own; and with that the Scriptures alſo agree, Iſay 63. 9.

In all their afflictions he was afflicted, the like in Exodus, ——

Serm. III. But then another queſtion, (to drive the matter home to its head,) and that is; what is it in God, or in the Creature, makes them to be in ſo ſpecial manner his own, who or what hath put ſo great a difference? Nothing but Election, which follows in the next; According as he hath choſen us. There is Aquiaus his in quantum, ſo far as he loved us, ſo far he hath bleſt us, with ſpecial bleſſings ap propriate ſuitable thereunto. Now the fundamental therefore of all and of the difference is, he makes us firſt his Own by love, by that ſpecial love ſpecially his Own. And which is the Head I approach next to, he became our God firſt, and our Father, and choſe us ſo to be his as none elſe is. And then we were aliquid ſui, ſomething of himſelf and his own indeed, by ſpecial propriety; you have this in effect, in that 53. of Eſay. 8, 9. So he was their Saviour and ſo Redeemed them. But in Terminis, in more expreſs words, in the two particular relations ſpecified. He firſt made himſelf and became our God, and our Father, and then to be ſure we are his own.

I. God bleſſeth us, as having firſt become our God; 'tis true indeed, that God as God, is full of bleſſedneſs in himſelf, and that is it which provokes him to communicate bleſſings to his Creatures. God is good and doth good, ſays the Pſalmiſt, and ſo God is bleſſed, (an all-ſufficiency of all good,) and ſo beſtoweth bleſſings; but yet know, that thoſe he communicates himſelf in bleſſing unto, he firſt becomes their God. And then having taken that relation on him, he pours forth all his bleſſedneſs and bleſſings on them, ſo Pſalm. 67. 6. God even our own God ſhall bleſs us, and when he is once ſo become, and hath taken upon him to be our God, he cannot but bleſs us; there is therefore beſides that Emphaſis put upon it, a Duplicate made of it in the Pſalms, it is a ſecond time repeated, and ſaid, God ſhall bleſs us; he cannot but do it, having made himſelf our God, and our own God to that, God even our own God ſhall bleſs us, verſ. 7. Yea, and they all would not be bleſſings to us at all, unleſs God had firſt become our God, and bleſt us with giving himſelf to us. And whence came that, that he became our God, our own God? Why? by chooſing us to be his, which was done by Election entirely both at once together, which is the very import of that ſpeech, thine they were, ſays Chriſt; thoſe ſpeeches or clauſees, ſay Interpreters, do mutually ſpeak eachother; As to ſay, thine they were by Election, and thou gaveſt them me; or to ſay, by Election they became thine, thou Electedſt them. You have the like unto it in the ſame Iſay. 63. 8. For he (God namely) ſaid (as within himſelf of Old,) ſurely they are my People, and therefore alſo Children that will not lie, and ſo he was their Saviour. And that which anſwereth and agrees to this too, is that other ſpeech of Chriſts, Luke 18. 7. his own Elect; and then you have Election by which they are made his own, and all to meet in their being ſomething of his own indeed. This for the firſt, his becoming our God, firſt on purpoſe to bleſs us. If therefore we would have any, or all bleſſings from God, we muſt firſt ſeek of him to be our God; and then as the Pſalmiſt, their God even our God, will bleſs us, he will be ſure to do it, upon the ſame account and for the ſame end and purpoſe he became our Father.

II. God bleſſeth us under the relation of our Father, the firſt on Earth that ever took upon them to bleſs others, and brought up that cuſtom, (or as I may ſay faſhion) of bleſſing, were thoſe that bore the relation of Fathers; their hearts were filled with the greateſt love and good will to their own Children, a natural στοργη did bleſs them, that is, wiſh well to them, and their hearts being enlarged to wiſh them more good then they found themſelves able to beſtow; they had recourſe to God to bleſs them, and perform their deſires, as that which was not in their own power to do. So the Patriarchs, who bleſſed their Children and Poſterity, and were the firſt of men, that brought in this way of expreſſing their good will, which we call bleſſing, (as Moſes termeth Gods bleſſing, a manifeſtation of good will born to him, whom he bleſſes, Deut. 33. 16. in his bleſſing from God the ſeveral Tribes, and for the good will (ſays he,) of him that dwelt in the Buſh, (which was Chriſt appearing to Moſes, Exod. 3. 2. 5. Acts 7. 32, 33, 34.) let the bleſſing come upon the head of Joſeph, and upon the top top of the head of him, that was ſeparated from his Brethren (as Joſeph was,) and thus ſingularly he bleſſeth Joſeph, as ſeparate from and above all the other Tribes) and thus God bleſſeth us, out of infinite good will, and thus it is a natural, and a kindly Act to come from Fathers, and thus God bleſſeth us. It is the firſt fruit of good will, that is, of that natural love and care which Parents bear their Children, that is, it doth all; love in Fathers, is that principle that doth of it ſelf provoke them to wiſh the greateſt good to their Children, which if any good be in their own power to give, they give it from that principle; and when they have it not in their own power to beſtow, if they are Holy men, and have an intereſt in God the Fountain of all good, they uſe that intereſt and invocate God to beſtow it, which invocating of God for them we uſe to call bleſſing a Child, which is as much, as in them lies to do. Now as Chriſt ſays of giving good things unto their Children, (and Parents bleſſing is but a giving their Children good things by invocating of God to beſtow them, as it is called in Iſaac's bleſſing, Gen. 27. 37.) If you then being evil (ſays Chriſt) Mat. 11. that is, are full of ſelf-love, that of itſelf would tempt you to keep, and retain to your ſelves, and not willingly to give away any good thing) yet ye know how (ſays Chriſt,) that is you have the hearts, and the affections by a natural inſtinct to ſpy out the beſt things for your Children, which you judge to be ſuch. And if ye know how to give good things to your Children, how much more (ſays Chriſt,) ſhall your Father which is in Heaven, who to this very end was pleaſ'd to become a Father to you, and has all in Heaven to beſtow; Even that God who is ſtyled the bleſſed one in Scripture, who is an Ocean of all bleſſedneſs, which ſeeks an outlet for itſelf to communicate to Creatures, whom he hath loved and choſen; and hath been pleaſed to bear that relation towards us, to this great end he hath done all this to pour out his bleſſedneſs by, and through that relation towards us, upon us his adopted Sons; and who, by what he finds to be natural in himſelf towards his own natural Son, (whom he bleſſeth every day for ever, Pſal. 45. 2.) He for his ſake and relation to us is farther pleas'd to power forth alſo all bleſſings alſo upon us, having become in Chriſt a Father to us; and ſo to bear ſuch a good will to us in Chriſt, as members of him, and a Spouſe to him. Serm. III.

Hath bleſſed with all bleſſings.] You ſee here both the act of grace on Gods part, beſtowing good on us, is expreſſed by bleſſing, and the things beſtowed are called bleſſings. He gives one and the ſame denomination or name to either; which argues this expreſſion of bleſſing to be full and as adequate as could be choſen forth. I ſhall endeavour to explicate both the name and thing it ſelf; what it is to bleſs as on Gods part, and what is a bleſſing, and what it is that truly makes and conſtitutes good things to be bleſſings to us.

I. For the word bleſſing, or to bleſs. It is evident by that extenſive comprehenſiveneſs of ſpeech which the Apoſtle here uſeth, that the whole, the total, and all particular good things (which he after enumerates,) which God ever means to give, or the Goſpel promiſes, even (all of them,) they are to the utmoſt ſpoken of under and by this word of bleſſing. And it is worth our conſideration, that it is that original word, under which the promiſe of the Covenant of grace was at the firſt given to Abraham the Father of all the faithful; as which contained all particular good things, as his Loyns did that ſeed to whom that promiſe was made. And this I mention now at firſt as a fundamental conſideration, that will have a great and neceſſary influence into the explication of the particulars that follow in this verſe. The Apoſtle here framing theſe words with an eye of alluſion to and compariſon between thoſe promiſes given then, and theſe promiſes which the Goſpel here declares; therefore unto that promiſe given then we ſhall have recourſe again and again, to make our Apoſtle's meaning here the more manifeſt. That before me at the preſent is, that the ſum and ſubſtance of Goſpel promiſes began then to be ſet forth and expreſſed, under this bleſſed word of bleſſing. I will bleſs thee, ſaid God to Abraham, and in thee all the Families of the Earth ſhall be bleſſed. Gen. 12. 2, 3. And again becauſe it could not be better expreſſed by any other word, God doth but double the ſame, ſaying, In bleſſing I will bleſs thee. Gen. 22. 17. that is, I wil bleſs thee, and bleſs thee again; which is equivalent to the expreſſion here, with all bleſſings hath he bleſſed us. And what doth or can the great God ſay more? It is enough.

Now that in Gods intendment the whole total of the Goſpel was expreſt to Abraham, and wrapt up in that term of bleſſing, the avowed explications and interpretations made thereof by the Apoſtles do undeniably declare. Thus preſently after Chriſts aſcenſion, in one of the firſt made Sermons, Acts 3. ſpeaking to the Jews, ver. 25. Ye are the Children of the Covenant God made, ſaying to Abraham, in thy ſeed ſhall all the kindreds of the Earth be bleſſed; which he expounds unto them thus, that firſt God ſent his Son Jeſus to bleſs you, namely the Jews. And yet more expreſly, Gal. 3. 8. God Preached the Goſpel unto Abraham, ſaying, in thee ſhall all Nations be bleſſed. So that as Abrahams ſtyle was the bleſſed of the Lord, Gen. 14. 19. and alſo the Children of God are all ſaid to be bleſſed with faithful Abraham, in the following verſe. 9. and again, Heb. 6. 13, 14. For when God made promiſe to Abraham, becauſe he could ſwear by no greater, he ſwore by himſelf, ſaying, ſurely bleſſing I will bleſs thee, which ver. 17. is ſaid to contain the whole of his Counſel to the Heirs of promiſe, and that to ſhew the immutability of that his Counſel, he confirmed it by an Oath.

Hence therefore, although the Goſpel in moſt things ſpeaks greater things than the Old Teſtament, and in higher terms; yet hath it not altred, nor can it better this. Chriſt himſelf that began to preach this Goſpel in that his firſt large Sermon that is recorded; it is the firſt word he therein utters, Bleſſed are the poor in Spirit, &c. Mat. 5. 2, 3. and becauſe he could not add to this, he does but repeat it over and over, as the general that contained in it, the Kingdom of Heaven, ver. 3. comfort here ver. 4. inheriting the Earth, ver. 5. filling with all good, ver. 6. obtaining mercy, ver. 7. ſeeing God, ver. 8. adoption and being Gods Children, ver. 9. and if there be any other particular, all are ſummed up in this word, [bleſſed.] Each and every particle of our ſalvation or happineſs being bleſſings, as here: all the Goſpel can ſay, is but bleſſing; which is therefore called in the lump of it, the fulneſs of the bleſſing of the Goſpel, Rom. 15. 29. for it cannot ſpeak beyond what this word reacheth. All that Chriſt could do when he Aſcended, was but to bleſs; and after Chriſts Aſcenſion, the laſt book of the Goſpel, the Revelation, doth continually and throughout uſe the ſame ſtyle, and at latter day, when Heaven Doors are to be ſet open for the righteous to enter in, their everlaſting happineſs is uttered by it, Come ye bleſſed.

II. For the thing, or what import this word carries with it: As you heard what it was for us to bleſs God, ſo now I am to ſhew what it is for God to bleſs us. Gods bleſſing us, is his beſtowing or communicating all good together with himſelf, with all hearty good will out of love to our perſons.

Gen. 33. that which Jacob calls his preſent or gift, v. 10. he calls his bleſſing beſtowed, v. 11. Take I pray thee, my bleſſing which is brought thee. and 2 Cor. 9. 5, 6. their bountiful gift to the Churches he calls their bleſſing, in the margent you have the ſame, 2. Kings 5. 15. the like Levit. 25. 21.

I. It is a beſtowing or communicating of good,]the Jews defined it in general acceſſio boni, grounded upon Pſal. 115. where what in the 12, 13. verſes is expreſſed by bleſſing, in the 14. is adjiciat ſuper vos, God add to you, namely good, or well-being, unto your being, or what is already given you. And the Scripture often uſeth the word bleſſing for a gift or preſent beſtowed. And to be ſure what ever mans bleſſings are, all Gods bleſſings are the giving and accumulation of good to us, or doing us good. And though the word εὐλογία ſignifies but his good word to and concerning us; yet Gods word is his deed. And Dei benedicere eſt benefacere, for by a bare word of command he bleſſeth, Pſal. 13. ult. there he commands the bleſſing, that bleſſing of bleſſings, even life for evermore; like as 'tis ſaid, he commanded, and they were created, Pſal. 148. 5. So he commands and we are bleſſed. Alas! when we Creatures bleſs God, we expreſs but our well wiſhes or joyful acclamations to that bleſſedneſs is in himſelf already; but when God bleſſeth us, he altogether gives, he communicates.

II. It is the communication of all good, yea of himſelf. God gives and bleſſeth like himſelf when he bleſſeth, He bleſſeth indeed, as the phraſe is, 1. Chron. 4. 10. and will not bleſs under giving all. He bleſſeth altogether, as the phraſe is, Numb. 24. 10. therefore in the Text here with all bleſſings. He cannot bleſs leſs, for he is God and hath all to beſtow. Thou art God, ſays David, and do thou bleſs me. 1 Chron. 17. 26. He urgeth that, for he knew what it was for God to bleſs; and that he bleſſeth as the great God and like himſelf, both with all that God himſelf is, and all that God can effect and do for us, or as he hath created and made all things, he hath all things to beſtow; therefore to make up this total, I have put in both the communication of himſelf, and all good things with himſelf. Serm. III.

To this purpoſe I obſerve, that in the mention of the Evangelical bleſſings, (Abrahams bleſſing,)(as I may call it;) both Gods own all-ſufficiency in himſelf, and Gods power in his works and to effect all things, are ſtill mentioned; ſometimes the one, ſometimes the other, becauſe in bleſſing us he is conſidered as both; he both gives himſelf and all things elſe to us, and ſo we are bleſt indeed. Thus to Abraham whom God in bleſſing bleſt, I am El-ſhaddai, ſays he, God that am and have all ſufficiency, Gen. 17. 1. When Iſaac would bleſs Jacob (with this bleſſing of Abraham,) he thus ſpeaks, God all-ſufficient bleſs thee, Gen 28. 3. (the ſame word in both.) And though in the Tranſlation it is reſtrained to Almightineſs, yet it alſo imports Gods All-ſufficiency and abundance; and ſo this bleſſing intends a communication out of that riches and fulneſs of bleſſedneſs which God himſelf enjoyes. This for the firſt.

Secondly, in other places his Titles that import power and ſoveraignty in making and poſſeſſing all in Heaven and Earth, are prefixed to his bleſſing. Thus when Melchiſedec pronounces Abraham bleſſed, Gen. 14. 19. he calls him the bleſſed of God under this Title; the moſt high God, poßeſſor of Heaven and Earth, who had therefore all things in Heaven and Earth, to bleſs him withal: and the Jews uſed the ſame, Pſal. 115. 15. you are the bleßed of the Lord, who made Heaven and Earth, and ſo is able to do all things for you, by the ſame power whereby he made the World. The like Pſal. 134. theſe have been inferred out of Abrahams bleſſing.

Now that not only God doth bleſs with all other good things, but above all by communicating himſelf, and his own bleſſedneſs unto them, the Scriptures are elſewhere expreſs, when this bleſſing is ſpoken of, they ſhall not only not want any good, as the Pſalmiſt, Pſal. 34. 10. no good thing will he withhold; as Pſ. 84. but give both grace and glory; but himſelf will be a Sun unto them; as there, verſe 11. The Lord God is a Sun and ſhield. The Sun doth not only enrich the Earth with all good things which by its influence it produceth, (called the pretious Fruits brought forth by the Sun, Deut. 33. 14.) but glads and refreſhes all, with ſhedding immediately its own wings of light and warmth, which is ſo pleaſant to behold and enjoy; and thus doth God, and Chriſt the Sun of Righteouſneſs, and accordingly it follows there, Bleſt is the man that truſts in him; for in being our Sun himſelf becomes our bleſſedneſs. Thus his promiſe of bleſſing Abraham, God himſelf interprets, Gen. 15. 1. I am thy exceeding great and abundant reward, I that am El-ſhaddai, that have infinite paps of ſweetneſs for you to ſuck; Breaſts of conſolation, as the Prophet expreſſeth it; who am the God of all comforts, as 2 Cor. 1. 3. Lo, I hold them all forth naked to thee for thee to draw and fetch comfort from. Thou ſhalt have all my bleſſedneſs to make thee bleſſed, which the Apoſtle fitly renders, being filled, Eph. 3. with all the fullneſs of God; and indeed all things elſe without God or beſides God could never make us bleſſed. Pſal. 144. The Pſalmiſt after an enumeration of all ſorts of bleſſings, having pronounced them happy that are in ſuch a caſe or ſtate, by way of correction adds, as not having uttered wherein the top of bleſſedneſs lies; he adds, yea bleſſed is the People whoſe God is the Lord. Pſal. 144. 15. And hence the People of God, as ſenſible wherein their intereſt of happineſs lies, as they are termed, The bleſſed of the Lord, ſo they are ſaid to bleſs themſelves in the Lord; which is to rejoyce and make their boaſt in him alone, and how happy they are in him (as Chriſt in the 16 Pſal. doth,) The Lord is my portion, and my Lines are fallen in a good ground, I have a goodly heritage. And that promiſe of bleſſing to Abraham (to which I ſtill have recourſe) runs thus indifferently, either that in thy ſeed, that is, Chriſt, (Gal. 3. 16.) they ſhall be bleſſed; ſo Gen. 12. 3. and Chap. 28. 14. or as Gen. 22. 18. They ſhall bleſs themſelves, or benedictos ſe reputent, account themſelves bleſſed in him, ſo Junius upon that place, namely

Some derive his name El-ſhaddai, God all-ſufficient from שד Mamma quaſi πολύμαστος, having many paps or dugs to ſuck. Rivet. Gen. exerc. 87. ab initio. and as God takes the denomination of רחים that is moſt merciful from רחם the Womb, and ſo bowels; ſo this name of all-ſufficient from breſts or paps. A Lapide, on Gen. 17. 1. So at once noting out Gods fulneſs, and alſo his readineſs to communicate to us.

namely in Chriſt, who is God bleſſed for ever. Rom. 9. for elſe they could not bleſs themſelves in him. And thus Eſay makes it the top of Evangelical Perfection, which he prophecyed of, Eſay, 65. 16. yea and of the ſtate of the people of God in the New Heaven and New Earth, wherein Righteouſneſs dwels, of which ver. 17. 18. That he who ſhould bleſs himſelf in the Earth, ſhould bleſs himſelf in the God of truth, that is, God and Chriſt, that is alone the truth and the firm ſubſtance of all bleſſedneſs and happineſs, according to that alſo of the Pſalmiſt; whom have I in Heaven but thee, and in Earth in compariſon of thee? That as a wicked man is ſaid to bleſs himſelf in his life, Pſal. 47. 8. that is, to applaud his own ſouls happineſs, (Soul, take thine eaſe,) in having goods laid up for many years, for to make him (as he judgeth) happy; ſo the Saints bleſs themſelves in their God, their Glory, not in riches or wiſdom or ſtrength, but they glory in this, that they underſtand and know God. Jer. 9. 23, 24. and by knowing him are made happy in him. For that is eternal life, Joh. 17. and ſo by having God and Chriſt for their bleſſedneſs, they have all things with them and ſo are bleſſed with all bleſſings. I will be his God, that firſt; then follows, and he ſhall inherit all things.

Laſtly, God bleſſeth out of hearty good will and love to our Perſons;] and this is as the ſoul or form of bleſſing, whether ye will take it for the act of bleſſing in God, or the matter of bleſſing beſtowed upon us. It is the good will of God that cauſeth each of theſe to have the denomination and nature of a bleſſing.

I. It is the Spring and Fountain of that act of bleſſing, as that which conſtitutes it ſuch. To bleſs, is to wiſh, or wiſhing to beſtow all good out of good will; as when we bleſs God, it is the good will we expreſt therein, which makes it termed, bleſſing him, and ſo to differ from praiſe; (as was ſhewn,) ſo in Gods bleſſing us, (his bleſſing us, to be ſure at leaſt anſwereth to our bleſſing of him, and infinitely exceeds it.) In him it is a fatherly Act, and ſo proceeds from mere natural and pure good will and affection. The Lord firſt loves, then bleſſeth; Jehovah thy God will love thee, and ſo will bleſs thee, Deut. 7. 12, 13. ver. and ſo likewiſe in Pſal. 5. ult. Gods bleſſing us is exegetically expreſſed and explained to be a compaſſing a man round about with favour and good will, claſping and accepting him, as with everlaſting armes, Deut. 33. 27. Thou Jehova wilt bleſs the Righteous, thou wilt encompaſs him round with favour, or favourable acceptation, good will or gracious good liking and acceptance, joyned with a delight in their perſons, and rejoycing to do them good, as the ſame word, (Iſa. 42. 1. in whom my ſoul delights, ſpoken of Chriſt,) imports. And it is an encompaſſing round, becauſe that man hath nothing elſe from God, but love and favour coming in upon him on every ſide, and ſurrounding him, and hence it is that a man is bleſſed with all bleſſings. In theſe termes therefore doth Moſes pour forth his prayers of bleſſing on Joſephs head, who was ſeparated from his Brethren, as the choiſeſt of them all. The good will of him that dwelt in the buſh, let it come upon the head of Joſeph, and upon the crown of the head of him, that was ſeparated from his Brethren. He invocates the Original, the Fountain of all bleſſings; namely the good will of that God, who in the buſh had appeared and ſaid; I am the God of Abraham, &c. And ſurely if God communicates himſelf to whom he bleſſeth, his bleſſing of them muſt proceed from the deepeſt goodwill; and indeed is the reaſon why he giveth himſelf, as in marriage they beſtow themſelves, and all to whom they bear their ſpecial good will.

Deut. 33. 1, 16. compared.

Exod. 3. 2. 6.

And II. this good will of God accompanying each thing beſtowed, is that which maketh a bleſſing of it, and ſo to be more then meerly gifts beſtowed. The Hebrews termed their gifts, or preſents a bleſſing. Thus 1 Sam. 25. 27. Abigail to David, This bleſſing which thine Handmaid hath brought unto my Lord, alſo 2 Kings 5. 25. whereby they would have it underſtood by the receiver, that they proceeded from their free and moſt hearty good will; and that to be more then the gift. Thou haſt given long life to thy King, ſays David to God, and ſo bleſſeth him for that; but becauſe long life in itſelf, was as no bleſſing to him, without Gods favour, in another Pſalm he ſays, thy loving-kindneſs is better then life, life, and all the privileges of it, better then the things beſtowed. And therefore after that Jacob had wiſht his Joſeph all the precious things, (as he terms them; all the dainties Heaven or Earth afforded (both which he diſtinctly mentions;) read the 13, 14. verſ. afore,) then after all he prays, as without which theſe would not prove bleſſings. The good will of our God, ſays he, come upon him, &c. ſo invocating this Fountain of all; thus take any particular outward mercy, (which hath the name of a bleſſing,) and it is the bleſſing of God, that is, his favour accompanying it, that maketh it ſuch: 'Tis the bleſſing of God, as Solomon ſays, that maketh rich. Pro. 10.22. and ſo in all other, otherwiſe their bleſſings are turned into curſes, as Mat. 2. 2. Serm. III.

Out of good will, good will to our perſons themſelves, it is that he bleſſeth us, as in our bleſſing of God we heard, it imported pure good will to himſelf; ſo in his bleſſing us. In that ſhort and fervent Prayer of Jabez. Oh, that thou wouldeſt bleſs me indeed, 1 Chron. 4.10. this paſſage follows, that thou wouldeſt keep me from evil, that it may not grieve me! I obſerve from thence, that our God who undertakes to bleſs us, loves us ſo well, that he is ſo moved, (ſuch is his love to our perſons,) with the pleas of ſelf love in us, when concurring with his own glory. For this holy man, in ſeeking Gods bleſſing on him to be kept from evil, urgeth this to God; that it may not grieve me. Such free and pure good will doth God bear to us, that he loves, we ſhould love our ſelves, and is affected with what proceeds from love to our ſelves; for this requeſt God granted, ſo then 'tis genuine to the nature of a bleſſing, and indeed to bleſs another doth naturally and evidently of all acts elſe imply, a pure and candid aim in wiſhing and deſiring anothers good, out of a ſpecial love unto their perſons. Thus much for what this word to bleſs (as an act of Gods,) as alſo what a bleſſing as the thing beſtowed holds forth to us.

Us,] who in and of our ſelves are by nature Children of wrath, as in ch. 2.3. and Curſed Children, 2 Pet. 2. 14. to whom all the Curſes written and unwritten are due; are yet rendred bleſſed in Chriſt, and bleſſed not with one ſort or kind, but all bleſſings, termed therefore by way of diſtinction from other men (that remain under the Curſe,) The bleſſed of the Lord. So Abraham firſt, Gen., 14. 19. Melchiſedec gives it him as a moſt Royal Title, for himſelf and his Children to inherit, that it grew to be ordinarily their ſtyle and attribute by Heathens themſelves, who obſerved the bleſſing of Jehovah to environ them. Thus Abimelec treats Iſaac, Gen. 26.29. Thou bleſſed of the Lord; yea, this appellation Laban gives Abrahams Servant, Gen. 24. 31. and ſo it came to be given to all others of his ſeed; as Pſal. 115. 15. And as it is their name and denomination, ſo the end of their calling, even that which they are called unto, unto nothing elſe but bleſſing, 2 Pet. 3. 9. Ye are thereunto called, that you ſhould inherit a bleſſing; in relation to which it is Chriſts own compellation, when they are to poſſeſs it, Come, ye bleſſed, inherit the Kingdom. Mat. 25. 24. Yea, they are not bleſſed men only, but men of bleſſedneſs (as in the Hebrew 'tis,) made up of nothing elſe, ordained to nothing elſe, yea, to a ſurpluſage flowing over; ſuch as to be bleſſings to others with whom they live, and whom they have relation to, all they come near, ſays God to Abraham, Gen. 12.2. and uſhers it with a word of command; be thou, or thou ſhalt be, a bleſſing, and I will bleſs them that bleſs thee; which is repeated to Jacob by his Father Iſaac, and ſo is true of all the ſeed, Gen. 27. 29. and fulfilled in Joſeph, Gen. 39. 5. for whoſe ſake God bleſſed Potiphar and all his Houſe.

Meditation.

Oh, then let your hearts be full of nothing but of bleſſing, both bleſſing God and bleſſing others; and let no curſing or reviling be found in our mouths, which is the Apoſtles inference, 1 Pet. 3.9.

Us] whoſe perſons he loved with a ſpecial love, and out of that love hath choſen from the reſt of men, as it follows in the next verſe; thus Pſal. 33.12,13. Bleſſed are the People whom he hath choſen for his own inheritance: The Lord looketh from Heaven, he beholdeth all the Sons of Men; that is, whereas he hath all the Sons of men afore him, he loved and choſe theſe out to bleſs, and

Serm. III.

'tis said, He loved and blessetd them above all People, as Deut. 7. 13, 14. which discovered it self in the difference put between Jacob and Esau; Jacob have I loved, and out of love blessed him, peremptorily and unchangeably, for he added, Yea and he shall be blessed. Gen. 27. 33. which Old Isaac the Father spake as in the person of God; whereas Esau with much difficulty obtains a poor pittance of outward blessings for a season.

Us,] but these Meditations on this word, though quickning, yet that which is more conjunct with the Apostles intimate scope, and was the main provocation in his thoughts, with this vehemency of Spirit to pour forth this Offering of blessing to the Lord, was the fresh and recent experience of Gods gracious performance of that great promise made to the Patriarchs; of blessing in Christ both Jew and Gentile of all Nations with the fulness of the blessing of the Gospel, and that which induceth me to this, is; I consider, that he writing to the Ephesians, Gentile Converts, in whose hearts, as in other Nations, the Gospel had taken place; he so carrieth his following discourse, setly and intentionally, as still to involve both Jew and Gentile together, in the same spiritual priviledges, in making his applications, sometimes to the one, sometimes to the other, all along his discourse, in this and the following Chapters, which hath been the general observation of Interpreters, sometimes speaking of the Jew, which himself was; we who first trusted in Christ, ver. 11, 12. sometimes of the other, ye also, v. 13. and so Ch. 2. throughout; and accordingly in this general Introduction of blessing God, he wraps them both in one and the same Us; and we as in a community partake of all the same benefits in the 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9. verses. The access of which Gentiles unto the Church, and to be made partakers of the blessing of Abraham, according to the Promise and Prophecy, was but then effected in his days. Oh, blessed be God, (says he,) and the Father of Christ, that hath thus blessed us; and blessed are the ears and eyes of us that live in these days wherein we have and see these things fulfilled! The mystery opened and discovered, which in former Ages was not made known, that the Gentiles should be fellow Heirs and partakers of his promise in Christ, by the Gospel, as himself as referring to the things delivered here; and the rest of this Chapter speaks, Ch. 3. 3. compared with ver. 4, 5, 6. This was so vast a Prospect, as he falls down at the first and general view and consideration thereof; Blessed be God the Father that hath blessed Us, Us Jews, and with us, you Gentiles, with the blessings promised Abraham, and so much for the Persons blessed.

Eph. 3.

SER-

SERMON. IV.

VERSE 3.

[With ALL Bleſſings.]

IN that Old Diſpenſation, when Jacob bleſſed his 12 Sons, and in them their Poſterity, the 12 Tribes. In the concluſion of his bleſſing, it is ſaid, theſe are the 12 Tribes, and every man, according to his bleſſing, he bleſſed them. That is, Joſeph had ſome one eminent Earthly bleſſing beſtowed on his Tribe, Ruben another, and Napthali a third, and ſo the reſt; none there are ſaid to be bleſſed with all bleſſings: But when God comes to open his Treaſures of bleſſings in Chriſt, and to profeſs to bleſs indeed and altogether, he bleſſeth with all bleſſings. Every Child of his he bleſſeth, even with the fulneſs of the bleſſing of the Goſpel, (as Ro. 15. 29. 'tis called;) for when God gives us Chriſt, and bleſſeth us in him, How ſhall he not with him freely give us all things? Having given you my Son, nay then take all elſe, and take all freely; having given the greater ſo willingly, ſure you ſhall have all the reſt, which are the leſſer, more willingly.

'Tis obſervable, that when Eſau approached his Father, to ask the bleſſing like one that came to Glean after anothers Harveſt already reaped, (Jacob having been before him; (how hard, how difficult he found his Father to be, and upon what low terms is Eſau fain to beg ſomething, any thing of him. Haſt thou not reſerved a bleſſing for me? that is, haſt thou given all away? and ver. 38. Haſt thou but one bleſſing my Father, bleſs me, me alſo, Oh, my Father; and how doth Iſaac his Father ſpeak, as having nothing now left he could think of to beſtow; with theſe, and theſe things (ſays he,) have I bleſt him, and what ſhall I do now unto thee my Son? He caſts about with himſelf, to think what ſhould be left ungiven away. This had not been, if Jacob had not gone away with all. Now as our Apoſtle ſays, in the Epiſtle to the Galatians, of Iſmael and Iſaac, theſe things are an Allegory: So expreſly the ſame Apoſtle affirmeth theſe alſo to have been, Heb. 12. 17. The Father is God, (whom in this Diſpenſation Iſaac the Father repreſented;) the Elect, (the Us, here,) are Jacob or Iſrael, as frequently they are called; whom God indues with all bleſſings in Solido, at once, makes over all to them alone, as their Inheritance; ſo as for the reſt there is not any thing left, but things Earthly and Carnal, which is the ſuperfluity and redundancy of that fulneſs beſtowed on his own, and which they may well ſpare. Haſt thou not reſerved one Bleſſing? No, not one. God hath bleſt us with all. Oh, infinite Goodneſs and ſpecial Grace!

With All,] even each Saint with all; if with any one bleſſing, then with all, they hang together and go in a cluſter; Whom he hath Predeſtinated, them he hath called; whom he hath juſtified, them he hath glorified, and not one is wanting; if thou haſt one grace, thou haſt all, and all gracious priviledges together therewith; Even all the things that belong to life and Godlineſs, all the promiſes of this life, and that to come.

Meditation.

Oh, Chriſtian, ſee and rejoyce in thy lot and portion; God himſelf hath but all things, and ſo haſt thou.

Serm. II.

—— Sit miser, qui Miser esse potest.

Let him be miserable that can be, for I cannot, may a believer say to all others in the World. For can that man be ever miserable, that is blest with all blessings; whereof, even to be thus blessed for ever, must needs be one, or he hath not all; and to whom all things are returned into blessings. Even the evils that befal thee, if men curse and revile thee, God will bless; as David spake, when Shimei curst him; and if men envy thee for good, this shall turn to thy Salvation, as Phil. 1. 19. if the Devils spight thee, God will bless thee; there is no witchcraft against Israel. He turned Baalam's society and dealing with the Devil to curse into a blessing; it is an observation which Nehem. Chap. 13. 2. makes upon that passage of Moses story. Balac hired Balaam against them, that he should curse them, Howbeit our God turned the Curse into a Blessing. God who was able and did make that strange change in our Persons, of cursed Children to be Men of blessedness; blessed with all blessings, can much more (as he doth) change and turn all things that befal us, (though curses in themselves,) into blessings unto us. That man cannot be miserable, whom all passages what ever do call, yea make blessed; and who himself is called to nothing else but blessing, and Oh, if God thus turneth all things into Heavenly blessings unto us, how engaged are we to be Heavenly in all things towards him?

Spiritual Blessings,] this openeth the mystery of what was even now spoken of; for why should such a limitation and confinement or eminent designation rather be here specified: Hath not godliness all other Temporal Earthly blessings entailed upon it?

This is spoken in difference from the literal Dispensation of the Old Covenant, (which notion doth still and will all along accompany us,) which ran in the letter, most in promises of blessings Earthly and outward.

The Apostle Paul, in the third of the Galatians, treating of the blessings of Abraham, (or promis'd to Abraham, and in him to all Nations, ver. 8. and now come upon them, ver. 14.) he doth clearly in the 14*th.* verse; explain and declare it to be a spiritual blessing, or the promise of the Spirit. That the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Jesus Christ, That we might receive the promises of the Spirit through Faith. The latter words, that we might receive the promise of the Spirit, is a manifest Exegesis or explanation of those former words, That the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles. Thereby explaining what manner or kind of blessing that was, which was intended to Abraham, and comes upon the Gentiles throug Christ. It is the Spirit, which if taken of the Holy Ghost that is given us, the promise of the Spirit imports all Spiritual blessings, as in the Seed, the Root, the fountain of them. To say we have the Spirit given us, or promis'd to us, is all one as to say, that we have all Spiritual things conveyed. He is the immediate Author and Effecter in us of all Grace and Glory. And then what Christ in one Evangelist calleth giving of the Spirit to them that ask him; in another he termeth giving good things, that is, the things, which are truly good, which the Spirit brings with him, who is the Author of things Spiritual, the best of blessings. But Calvin and Pareus after him commenting on those words, Gal. 3. 14. are bold to interpret the promise of the Spirit, the promise of Spiritual things, he says not, say they, the Spirit of promise, but the promise of the Spirit, which I take (says he) for spiritual, more Hebraico. He speaking in opposition (says he,) to things outward, and those words through Faith, confirm it. That is, whereof Faith is sensible and apprehensive takes in, and receives, as it doth all Spiritual things, and is a principle suited to them, and so it is one and the same kind of blessing, which comes on the Gentiles, (who had not the Promise of Canaan,) and upon the Jews, which is his scope; that we Jews might receive, &c. as well as the Gentiles, and both the same, and also which Abraham himself received; who had not a foot of Land in Canaan, Act. 7. 5. and yet is said to have obtain'd possess'd the Promise, Heb. 6. 15. And so, after he had patiently endured the Promise, which obtaining the promise, or thing promised, is evidently there spoken of, as an actual enjoyment, or possession of it, after the making of it; as the word obtained implies, and after patient waiting, and it is the very promiſe of bleſſing, I will bleſs thee, ver. 15. the things, or bleſſings then promiſed to Abraham, conſiſted in things Spiritual, and ſo the Gentiles, as well as the Jews were capable of them, even all of one and the ſame bleſſing. Serm. IV.

Thus alſo, when Jacob was bleſſed by Iſaac, and with ſo vaſt and great a difference put both in Gods intention and Iſaac's apprehenſion between him and that of Eſau in his bleſſing of him, which Eſau was alſo ſenſible of; and yet if we read that whole legacy of bleſſings bequeathed to Jacob, we find none but outward and earthly in the letter ſpoken of. Gen 27.28,29. God give thee of the Dew of Heaven, and the fatneſs of the Earth, and plenty of Corn and Wine. Let People ſerve thee, and Nations bow down to thee; be Lord over thy Brethren, and let thy Mothers Sons bow down to thee. Curſed be every one that curſeth thee, and bleſſed be he, that bleſſeth thee. Yea, if we compare herewith the bleſſing afterwards eſtated upon Eſau. ver. 39,40. Behold, thy dwelling ſhall be the fatneſs of the Earth, and of the dew of Heaven from above. And by thy Sword ſhalt thou live, and ſhalt ſerve thy Brother; and it ſhall come to paſs, when thou ſhalt have the Dominion, that thou ſhalt break his Yoke from off thy neck. This is as to the point of Earthly bleſſings well nigh as full a portion as that of Jacobs was, ſo as if that the ſpiritual bleſſings promiſed in Chriſt the bleſſed Seed had not been typically and myſtically intended and ſignified by and under thoſe Earthly unto Jacob, it could not have been collected by the Apoſtle from the ſtory of it, that Jacob inherited the bleſſing, and that Eſau was rejected, for all ſuch earthly bleſſings he inherited as well as Jacob; nor had Iſaac reaſon ſo bitterly to lament that he had as it were nothing left of bleſſing to beſtow upon Eſau. What ſhall I do for thee, my Son? Nor could there be ſuppoſed any other ground, why, notwithſtanding the equality of theſe bleſſings for ought was viſible, the difference between them ſhould yet be held up at ſo high a diſproportion. This therefore evidently argues that there was another ſort of bleſſings which were latent and hid, even a ſubſtantial, Spiritual, inviſible kind of bleſſings for ever more, whereof theſe things were but the ſhadows, as that which put that diference, and ſo the Apoſtle expreſly interprets it in the forecited Heb. 12.17. I know that afterward, when he would have inherited the bleſſing, he was rejected or denyed, (mark it,) that which Jacob obtained is called the bleſſing, eminently ſuch, or it was the bleſſing indeed, which was in Jabez his eye under all thoſe Vailes; the bleſſing even life for evermore, as the Pſalmiſt ſpeaks by way of Expoſition, Pſ. 133.3. And indeed when Iſaac afterwards with ſuch vehemency doubts it, I have bleſſed him, yea, and he ſhall be bleſſed; this imports a bleſſing indeed to have been contained and involved in that bleſſing, and therein Iſaac alſo ſhewed that the ſame bleſſing that was promiſed to Abraham, (which was ſpiritual, as I have ſhewn,) was it that was made over by inheritance to Jacob. The words of Abrahams bleſſing have the ſame emphatical duplication that we find in Jacobs, in bleſſing, I will bleſs thee. Gen. 22. 17. Farther, the laſt words in that bleſſing of Jacobs, ver. 29. which are left out in Eſau's, manifeſtly refer to the bleſſing made to Abraham; Curſed be every one that curſeth thee, and bleſſed be he that bleſſeth thee; being part of the words that are uſed in Abraham's, Gen. 12. 2, 3. I will make thee a bleſſing, and I will bleſs thee, and thou ſhalt be a bleſſing, and I will bleſs them that bleſs thee, and curſe them that curſe thee.

1 Chron. 4.10.

Gen. 27.33.

And in this like ſtrain of outward bleſſings, Moſes afterwards goes on; thus ſpeaks the Old Covenant, Bleſſed art thou in thy Store, Bleſſed in thy Basket, in the Field, &c. and ſo on the contrary, the curſes, Deut. 28. throughout. Now then, our Apoſtle he comes, and (as became the Goſpel, which is the new Spiritual Covenant eſtabliſhed upon better promiſes, ſhadowed forth by theſe, he overlooks all theſe things; his eye being (as the Goſpel intention is,) not upon things that are ſeen, but at the things which are not ſeen; for the things which are ſeen are temporal, (as all theſe are,) but the things which are not ſeen are eternal, and therefore) inſtead of things temporal and earthly, he writes and ſets down ſpiritual and heavenly, inſtead of bleſſed art thou in the Fields, write down bleſſed art thou in the Aſſemblies of the Saints, under the enjoyment of Spiritual Ordinances, and Communion of Saints. There the Lord commands, and commanding communicates the bleſſing even life for ever more. Inſtead of bleſsed art thou in thy store, sets down, Blessed are the rich in good works; and others accursed that are rich, and not towards God, and James as our Saviour speaks; and thus the Gospel throughout carries it; and as if those kind of outward blessings had utterly now ceased, passeth them over, as not worth the naming or the intention of those that live under the bare and naked discovery of Spiritual and Heavenly, as the Apostle sets them forth in their native real glory; and thus Christ and his Apostles carry it all along in their publications of the Gospel, (even as in his celebration of praise here.) When the Apostle preacht the Gospel to the Jews, Act. 3. he pitcheth upon opening this very blessing of Abraham, read the words, ver. 25. and how doth he expound it? it follows, ver. 26. Unto you first God having raised up his Son Jesus, sent him to bless you, in turning every one of you from your iniquities. How low doth this fall in the expectations of a carnal Jew, whose eyes are vailed with the outward letter of Promises Earthly, to hear that Jesus the Messiah was sent to bless them in turning them from their iniquities? They look for a Kingdom in Glory and Pomp, to be brought with their Messiah: and for him to turn them from iniquities, is so poor and low and mean a thing with them; whereas indeed to be converted to God and turned from iniquity is a greater blessing (Spiritual) then if God should make every one of you Kings and Rulers of Worlds, and create variety and multiplicity of them for each of you, for this is a Spiritual and Heavenly blessing. Peter therefore mentions but this one for all the rest, to shew what a sort they are all of; as also because this is the first and foundation of all other, and all other the concomitants or consequents of this, even as in correspondency to this very speech of his, the same Apostle makes mention of Regeneration or being born again in his first Epistle to the converted Jews, cast out (for their cleaving to the Gospel,) of their own Land, given them to inherit, intitling it therefore to the strangers, namely Jews, (for the Gentile Christians there were Natives,) scattred throughout Asia; notwithstanding, (to comfort their hearts) Blessed be the God and Father of Christ that hath begotten you again, (or turned them from their iniquities,) to an inheritance immortal, reserved in the Heavens for you, better than Canaan; and this is the blessing of Abraham. Now as Christ, (in another case,) all the rest of Gospel blessings are like to this, Spiritual all. If you will have Davids description (says Paul) of the blessedness of his blessed man he so often speaks of, Rom. 4. even as David describeth the blessedness of the man, &c. ver. 6. Blessed is the man whose sin is pardoned. ver. 7. out of Psal. 32. Blessed is the man that is poor in Spirit, meek, pure in heart, Mat. 5. The blessedness you see, lies in and is made unto spiritual graces and dispositions of holiness. As also Blessed is he that walks holily, he is blessed in his deed, Jam. 1. 25. yea, blessed is he that indures temptation, ver. 12. And after this account and rule are we now blessed under and by the Gospel, the Gospel not deigning so much as to mention any one earthly, carnal blessing, (as here,) slips them over, and takes no notice of them, as not worthy to come into the Catalogue of those more choise and divine blessings it makes promise of: Yea, it professeth to all its followers, that in this life we are of all men most miserable, the off-scouring of the world; which carnal men observing, will be ready to say, as in another case our Apostle speaks, where is the blessedness you speak of? It lies in an higher sort of things you wot not of, and therefore with the same breath pronounceth us most blessed when most miserable. Blessed are you when men revile you, and persecute you, both say and do all manner of evil against you, (says our Saviour,) rejoyce and be exceeding glad, for as these are multiplied and enlarged, your treasures in those things, which are the real blessings, are encreased, as it follows, for great is your reward in Heaven. Greater, as the proportions of your persecutions are, which hath brought me to the next word.

[In Heavenly places or things.]

The phrase in the Original, it is barely, Ἐν ἐπουρανίοις, in the Heavenlies, without this addition of either places or things. And it is a speech proper to this Epistle, and no where else used, and four or five times used therein; and according as the context requires, we may add places or things, sometimes the one, sometimes the other;

other; and perhaps in this place, which is so general and comprehensive, we may take in both to fill up the Apostles meaning. Serm. IV.

I. In Heavenly places,] so twice in this and the ensuing Chapter, v. 20. speaking of Christ, God hath set him at his right hand in Heavenly, here [places] must be added; the correspondency with the words [set him] calls for it. So likewise Chapter 2. 6. he speaketh the same of us in a conformity to Christ our head, hath set us together in Heavenly, here places is to be added as suited to settings. The like he speaks of the Good Angels, the inhabitants of the Heavenly world, (to whom we being thus advanced,) we are made like unto, as Christ says, Chapter 3. 10. Principalities and Powers that are constituted and set in heavenly places.

II In Heavenly things,] thus Chapter 6. 12. for we wrestle not against Flesh and Blood, but against Principalities, against powers, against the Rulers of the darkness of this World, against Spiritual wickedness in high places. It is Translated high places in your Margent; according to the Greek, 'tis in Heavenlies, the same word that is here, and places is added, but not genuinely, but things rather should there be supplied; for this being spoken concerning our contention with the Devils, this passage in Heavenly, is not an additional to note out the places wherein the Devils are set, and have their station as of the good Angels, Chap. 3. 10. you hear it spoken. Their place is designed and set out, Chapter 2. vers. 2. to be but the Air or lower Heavens. But the word reacheth there higher, far higher then is the Air; it is not ἐν ἐπουρανίοις simply in Heavenly, but in above the Heavens. ἐν ὑπερουρανίοις where Christ also sits at the right hand of God, and we with him, as you heard, ἐν ὑπερουρανίοις, in supercelestial Thrones, in the highest heavens: and as it must not be thought that the Devils came up to the Heaven of Heavens at any time since they fell from thence, for no unclean thing enters thereinto; much less do they possess them, for their place or station, which Jude v. 6. says they kept not: So it is hard to think that the Apostle using this phrase but in this Epistle only, and every where else of Christ and us, and the good Angels as advanced to Heaven and the highest Heavens; that in this one place at last, it should be taken of that Air, the Habitation and Seat of Devils, and come in toobut as a meer additional barely to express the place where these are with whom we contend. That phrase therefore there used ἐν ὑπερουρανίοις refers to set out to us (the more to intend our Spirits in this conflict against them,) the infinite moment and weight of the things themselves, in or about which we are taken up or exercised in this our opposition against them; even things supercelestial, and that are all purely heavenly, is the matter of this strife, which they endeavour to spoil us of, and to cause us to lose, in; of no less value, (more pretious then Diamonds and Rubies,) are the things that lye at the stake of this vying between them and us, which they strive with us about to keep us or beat us off from them; and through their Envy endeavouring to cause us to lose the things we may or have gained herein; to which sense the particle [Ἐν] translated [In] fitly and properly serves, being often put for about or concerning, and denoting forth the direct matter about which we are conversant. Blessed, says Christ, is he that is not offended in me; that is, about or concerning me and my condition, as noting out the stone of stumbling, occasion and matter of the offence. This for the Phrase or Speech itself, whether of these or both are to be taken in here, will appear in opening the thing it self.

II. The thing it self,] and here more specially why in heavenly should be added to spiritual, when these Gospel blessings are spoken of. And so that all and every one of those blessings should be affirmed to be in Heavenlies, not some Spiritual, and some Heavenly, but all both Spiritual and also in Heavenlies. That it is not a synonymous addition as expressing the quality of these blessings, by two words that signify one and the same, is evident, because he doth not say spiritual (and, or) Heavenly, but Spiritual in Heavenly. His scope must therefore be to carry our thoughts further then barely to consider the Spirituality of those blessings (so to set a value on them,) but further that they are Heavenly also, and what

NEW JERSEY COLLEGE LIBRARY

Serm. IV. what Heavenly imports further then Spiritual, that comes also to be the question.

I. In a further and more plain distinction from the tenure of the blessings promised in that Old Dispensation which in the Letter, as they were in themselves outward and Fleshly; so in giving forth the promises of them it is still added, in the Land which the Lord thy God shall give thee; so before their coming into Canaan, or in the Land which the Lord hath given thee; after as a Land partly from its own fertility, as also by reason of its situation and neighbourhood flowing with all good blessings whatsoever, more than any other Land, which, God that views from Heaven all the corners and spots of Earth below, is therefore said to have spy'd out for them, flowing with Milk and Honey, which is the glory of all Lands, as God by the Prophet speaks, Ezek. 20. 6. Now the New Testament tells us, that by this in the promise was foresignified, and in the expectation of the Patriarchs (to whom the promise was made,) understood and apprehended another Country, Heb. 11. 16. they desired or expected a better Country, that is, a Heavenly; and such a City or Country, says Paul there, was the import of Gods styling himself in so vast a difference from other the Sons of men, the God of Abraham, &c. for God being so great a God, so full of blessedness in himself would never have appropriated or bestowed himself in so near a relation and style of being their God, their portion, and their inheritance, upon so low and mean conditions so far below himself, as to give them only Earthly things, and no other habitation, than that one poor corner of the Earth, Canaan, although never so abounding with all good things. God, says the Apostle, would have been ashamed to have been called their God upon such terms only; as if that were all the great all sufficient God that is possessor of Heaven and Earth, (as Melchisedec said to Abraham,) was able to give or had to bestow on them, of whom he gloried to be called their God, and owed them as his eminently beloved ones. God therefore had prepared for them another manner of City or Country than Jerusalem or Canaan, even an Heavenly, where his own Throne and Glory is; and hath therefore appointed to take them up to himself, and to pay forth and give to them all good blessings in pure Heavenlies; which the Psalmist clearly intimates, when he says, Psal. 115. 15, 16. Blessed are ye of the Lord who hath made Heaven and Earth: and accordingly hath given in common to all the Children of men the Earth, and the things therein, reserving Heaven, which is his own peculiar habitation, to bestow upon these his blessedness, as it there follows. The Heaven of Heavens are the Lords, but the Earth hath he given to the Children of men; and therefore the Jews Peter wrote to, are (as was observed) comforted with this by that Holy Apostle, that they were begotten to an inheritance reserved in the Heaven for them, (as in distinction from that given their Fathers in Canaan,) where the communication of God himself is so worthy, so suitable to and like himself, as the Apostle is bold to say of it: Wherefore God is not ashamed to be called their God, for he hath prepared for them a City, namely this Heavenly one, as he had termed it in the words just afore, and so there is an answerable communication of himself and all blessings given forth in Heavenlies. And unto this notion will fitly suit, that supplied addition, Places, in Heavenly places.

In Heavenly Places,] to make this intended opposition between these two, full and compleat, that look as Canaan of old was the designed seat, the place, the Country, where all those fleshly outward blessings were enjoyed, and many of them grew, and so the promise thereof is made the additional unto all those promised blessings (which is so frequently done throughout the Old Testament, as I need not quote any one testimony:) Now in like manner is Heaven the ἀφθιαμα, the City, where both all these Spiritual Blessings have their full maturity and perfection, and is the place appointed to enjoy them in; where there is room and variety enough for all Gods holy ones. Heavenly places in the plural.

John 14. 1. Places enough, many Mansions, &c. And in the mean time till ye arrive there, those Spiritual Blessings we here partake in the first fruits belong to and come forth out of that Country all of them, where our conversation is said to be, even in this life, so far as we are made Spiritual men; and in the type it self, when God did give forth the promise of blessing to Abraham, it is said, God called to Abraham from Heaven, Gen. 22. 15, 16, 17. whereas he conferred with Adam but on Earth, ſignifying that place from whence that bleſſing was to come, and in which to be enjoyed. (Even as in the like myſtical intendment, Heaven is ſaid to have opened, when that voice came to Chriſt at his Baptiſme, This is my well beloved Son in whom I am well pleaſed, Mat. 3.) as from whence that bleſſed ſeed (in whom all are bleſſed) was to come. Chriſt the Lord from Heaven, 1 Cor. 15. and ſo he to raiſe us to the ſame ſtate and place. Serm. IV.

Abraham

II. In Heavenlies,] was added to Spiritual, in a further diſtinction yet of the bleſſings wherewith in Chriſt we are bleſſed from thoſe wherewith in Adam in our firſt Creation we and all his poſterity were bleſſed of God; for bleſſed we are in him, as you read, Gen. 1. 27, 28. Adam being made as there verſ. 26. according to the Image of God; which was the foundation of that Charter of bleſſing him and his poſterity, he was in that reſpect a ſpiritual man (for ſuch is the Image of God, his graces were all Spiritual, and his life and communion with God was Spiritual, and ſo of him it might be ſaid, that he was bleſt with Spiritual bleſſings, as well as in thoſe Earthly, and ſo in reſpect thereof we in him, that were to come of him, being all to receive the ſame Spiritual Image from him; but yet ſtill he (and ſo we in him) but bleſt with all theſe as a man that was to live on Earth only, and to enjoy God, though in a ſpiritual way, yet but as fleſh and blood can in an Earthly condition be capable of, which whilſt remaining ſuch, cannot ſee or enjoy God, (as in Heaven he is to be ſeen or enjoyed) and live. For Adam when in his beſt condition was but fleſh and blood and an Earthly man, as he is termed in diſtinction from Chriſt, 1 Cor. 15. 47. and ſuch as that Earthly man was, and ſuch ſhould we that are of him that was of Earthly Generation have been, and neither he nor we advanced higher, ver. 48. but our Lord Chriſt being the Lord from Heaven, ver. 47. an Heavenly man, ver. 48. Therefore we being bleſt in and together with him, we are bleſt in Heavenly things, or with Heavenly bleſſings, and raiſed up to Heavenly places with him; for as is the Heavenly (man Chriſt,) ſuch are (and is the condition) of thoſe in him; even Heavenly as himſelf is. Heaven is his native Country, he is the Lord of it, and we being married to him, and he our Lord in that reſpect as was ſaid, the ſpouſe muſt be where the Husband is, and partake of the ſame good things which he is partaker of, and therefore he takes us, and carries us to his own home, to his Fathers houſe, which being Heaven, we thereby come to be bleſt in Chriſt with all Heavenly bleſſings, and not ſpiritual only, which Adam in his primitive condition was, and this notion will fitly bring in that other ſupplement which interpreters have added in Heavenly things, as that other took into itſelf in Heavenly places. All the graces we have are not only ſpiritual to fit us for communion with God as on Earth, but they are preparations, and making us more fit for the inheritance in light to ſee God face to face. And they all tend to lead us in the way to Heaven, and to bring us to Heaven at laſt; and have all the promiſes of things Heavenly, annexed to and entailed upon them. Follow me, and thou ſhalt have treaſure in Heaven, ſays Chriſt; and a more enduring ſubſtance in the Heavens, as Heb. 10. Paul ſpeaks, even all things whatever that are in Heaven, and are found growing there, are ours, and we have an intereſt in them, as they in Canaan had to all the Earthly things that Country afforded and abounded with; and for the enjoyment of thoſe things there in that world, our very bodies at the reſurrection will be made ſpiritual and heavenly (which Adam's was not,) ſo in that 1 Cor. 15. it is raiſed a ſpiritual body. There is a ſpiritual body (namely that received at the Reſurrection,) and there is a natural body, that which Adam was created in ver. 44. alledging for proof of it in the 45. v. And ſo it is written, the firſt Adam was made a living ſoul, an Earthly man, v. 47. but Chriſt and his Saints are made ſpiritual, heavenly, ſo v. 48. and he evidently there applies this, to the State of the body. And accordingly look as that natural body of Adam was framed with ſuch inlets and capacities of outward ſenſes as were ſuited to take in all the good things that God had made and provided in this world on purpoſe for him; meats for the belly, and the belly for meats, fitted each to other; ſo he having provided, and filled that other heavenly world, both with variety of heavenly places, and of heavenly things in thoſe habitations, (as, more noſtro, the 1 Cor. 6. 13.

Scriptures expreſs it,) which are called in the plural τὰ ἄνω, things above, in anſwerable oppoſition unto τὰ ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς things on Earth, Coloſs. 3.2. and αὐτὰ τὰ ἐπουράνια, the ſuperceleſtial things themſelves, Heb. 9. 23. which oppoſition ſhews that as on Earth there is a plurality and a variety of things; ſo in Heaven alſo there are, and to the end we may be capable of like comfort from theſe things heavenly (though far more tranſcendent as the things themſelves are in goodneſs to afford it to us,) our very bodies ſhall be fitted and ſuited thereunto, and made heavenly and ſpiritual with inlets and capacities heavenly and ſpiritual. Even our bodies ſhall be made capable of pleaſure in thoſe created excellencies there, in the framing or contriving of which, God hath ſhewed ſo much of his Art and skil, (as thoſe words Heb. 11. 10. import,) and particularly our bodies to receive a glory and happineſs in and from the preſence of that heavenly body of Chriſt, theſe being in an heavenly manner and way ſuited eachto other; which the following words of that 1 Cor. 6. 13, 14. clearly inſinuates, of which I have elſewhere ſpoken. And if our bodies, to how much more heavenly ſtate and glorious capacity ſhall the ſoul be raiſed to take in thoſe pleaſures which flow immediately from the face of God and the Godhead, whoſe fulneſs dwells in that human Nature the Body and Soul of Chriſt, in whoſe preſence are rivers of Pleaſure for evermore?

Upon 1 Cor. 15.45.

So then to conclude, All in heaven, both places and things, God hath bleſt us withal in the real donation of them hereafter to be enjoyed; and in the mean time furniſhed us with thoſe graces and diſpoſitions as in themſelves are heavenly, and of an higher ſtrain than Adam's (though his were ſpiritual,) which graces God hath endued with a right unto all thoſe things to be enjoyed in heaven, and entailed all upon them, and which will in the end bring us thither, and do render us meet for the enjoyment of them. There is a third Reaſon of this addition in Heavenly to Spiritual, which will come in more fitly in the Meditation that follows. And ſo much for the nature and condition of the Bleſſings themſelves.

Obſervation.

We may from hence at once learn to judge and diſcern, both what are the true and choiceſt and moſt deſirable bleſſings, and by what rule to judge of God's dealings with us in this World. As alſo of our hearts and ſpirits, whether Evangelized and made ſpiritual yea or no.

1. What are the choiceſt bleſſings: Take for this the true rate and eſtimate and price which the Goſpel ſets upon things; it mentions not, you ſee, riches, honours, beauty, pleaſures, it paſſeth theſe over in ſilence, which yet the Old Teſtament every where makes promiſe of. They were then Children, as Gal. 4. 1, 2, 3. and God pleaſed them with the promiſe of theſe toys and rattles, as taking with them. But in the Goſpel hath ſhewn, he hath provided ſome better things for us, things ſpiritual and heavenly; both gracious and heavenly diſpoſitions of ſpirit, that carry the Soul to ſeek the things that are above, where Chriſt is; And together therewith, thoſe things themſelves above that are the objects and inqueſt of them. You may judge of the ſuperexcelling value of theſe bleſſings, by what the Devils, that are ſpiritual wickedneſſes (and ſo full both of envy and malice to us,) do contend with us about. Now, what things are they which they oppoſe you in, and do make the Ball of their contention with us; but theſe things Spiritual and Heavenly? (As you heard) they maligne you not, nor will they hinder you from being rich, honourable, to increaſe in and attain to a fulneſs of things worldly, or outward; yea, all theſe ſometimes he is uſed, as an inſtrument by God, to help men unto as ſnares and baits to undo their Souls. But as the Devils themſelves are ſpiritual wickedneſſes, ſo their envy (which ſin is purely a ſpiritual wickedneſs,) and which always hath for its object what is the chiefeſt excellency or good belonging to another, whom one envies or hates, is at and againſt you for none other things but ſpiritual good things, which therefore are by this manifeſt acknowledgment of your greateſt Adverſaries, the beſt things. If he knew any that were better, he would be ſure to turn your oppoſite therein; and he knows the worth of them, by having fallen from them. Theſe are therefore the beſt, yea and the only true bleſſings indeed.

Fas eſt & ab Hoſte doceri.

Yea,

Yea farther, there are a ſort of things that are ſpiritual, which of themſelves taken or found apart ſevered from Graces, are not Spiritual Bleſſings, though called Spiritual Gifts; as faith of Miracles, gifts of Tongues, and divine knowledge in the knowledge of the Scriptures, (which yet are a fruit of Chriſt's aſcending.) Eph. 4. Theſe the Goſpel condeſcends to commend to the Corinthians, as the objects of our deſires. Deſire ſpiritual gifts, yea, covet earneſtly the beſt gifts, 1 Cor. 12. ult. and theſe (Chap. 14. 1.) as infinitely more deſireable then all other earthly excellencies whatever, as being of immediate uſe in edifying the Church of God: Yet if you will have the Apoſtle ſpeak his own heart, he undervalues all theſe but as toys, which when Children even under the Goſpel Men are taken with, but in themſelves are nothing in compariſon of the leaſt degree of true ſpiritual heavenly graces, as faith unfeigned and lively hope, which do intitle us to, and do accompany and carry us unto the very door of Heaven, and ſincere love which goes in with us, and abides with us for ever. Theſe other gifts though ſpiritual, yet they are not of themſelves ſpiritual bleſſings in heavenlies, if love and faith be wanting; for they intreſt not the perſon in whom they are, in heavenlies; but men may go to Hell with a rich portion had of them here. Here the Apoſtle himſelf ſpeaks forth his own ſenſe herein, 1 Cor. 13. v. 1, 2, 3. Though I ſpeak with the tongues of men and Angels, and have not Charity, I am become as ſounding braſs or a tinckling cymbal. And though I have the gift of Prophecy, and underſtand all myſteries and all knowledge, and though I have all faith, ſo that I could remove Mountains, and have no Charity, I am nothing. Theſe, when a Man is a Child in Chriſtianity, he may for a while value, (v. 11. When I was a Child, I ſpake as a Child, &c.) but after he is grown up, theſe other come in eſteem with him. To the like purpoſe we find him ſpeaking, Heb. 6. of all thoſe enlightnings and taſtings of the heavenly gifts, which men that fall away, do partake of, v. 4, 5. preferring infinitely the leaſt grain of true heavenly grace, ſuch as ſincere love to the Saints, unto the greateſt abundance of thoſe other, as better things, infinitely better, upon the ſame account that here in the text, that they accompany ſalvation, ſo v. 9. we are perſwaded better things of you, and things that accompany ſalvation, inſtancing v. 10. in that of love to the Saints: For God is not unrighteous, to forget your work and labour of love, which ye have ſhewed towards his name, in that ye have miniſtred to the Saints and do miniſter. Even thoſe elevations of the powers and principles in corrupt Nature, unto a taſting the heavenly gift, as alſo of the powers of the World to come, as the object of them; yet are they not in themſelves ſpiritual bleſſings in heavenlies, nor are they ordained as ſuch, to bring the perſons that have them thither, which true ſpiritual graces that are the image of God, and the new creature renewed in us, by our being begotten again, are ordained unto: To diſtinguiſh therefore, even theſe though ſpiritual gifts from theſe graces that are ſpiritual in heavenlies, and that appertain to and belong unto Salvation doth this addition (in heavenlies,) as pertinently and properly ſerve as either of the other two forementioned; and although they are from Heaven as in reſpect of the Giver, which is Chriſt as aſcended into Heaven, and the Holy Ghoſt who is from Heaven; yet are they not (ἐπουρανία) gifts ſuperceleſtial in themſelves or in the perſons, ſo as to raiſe their hearts up unto things above the Heavens; that is, make their hearts heavenly; nor will ever carry their perſons thither. They are ἐκ from Heayen, not ἐν ἐπουρανίοις, not ſeated in or conſtituted of Heavenlies; but they are in the Receivers of them (if his heart be not renewed,) but earthly, becauſe they are but the ſtirrings of ſelf-love in them, (which is a corrupt member upon earth, as well as any other luſt) by heavenly enlightnings; though elevating Self to objects heavenly, ſo far as there is any conſideration in them that ſuiteth Self, (as the greateſt notion of joy, happineſs, and bleſſedneſs doth;) yet not unto τὰ αὐτὰ ἐπουράνια, to the heavenly things themſelves in their ſpiritual Heb. 9. nature conſidered, as the Apoſtle diſtinguiſheth 1 Cor. 2. 13, 14. and ſo the products of them in the ſpirits and affections of them in the Receivers are heavenly no otherwiſe than the Vapours and Clouds, or Meteors, that are exhaled by the Sun-beams out of the earth and water, may be ſaid to be heavenly, becauſe the light and influence of heaven extracts and elevates them above that ſphere, which otherwiſe they would not riſe up unto. And ſo thoſe are but ex unâ parte, but of one part heavenly, and so imperfectly such meerly ex parte illuminantis & donantis, on the part of the Donor, because he is in Heaven that gives them, and from Heaven lets them down; as also, because they have a remoter tendency towards heaven and salvation. Thou art not far from the kingdom of Heaven, said Christ to one more than ordinarily enlightned among the Jews; but heavenly they are not ex parte recipientis, the hearts of the receivers of them remaining still corrupt (as whilst Self remains the predominant agent and Principle, a man must needs still remain, whatever his objects which Self pursues, be,) they are earthly, as the affections themselves are, that are stirred thereby in them, for if the root or soyl be earthly, though the rain that falls on it, and causeth it to sprout and bud, be from heaven; yet the fruit must needs still be esteemed such (which comparison the Apostle hath an allusion to in *Heb.*6.7,8. For the earth which drinketh in the rain that cometh oft upon it, and bringeth forth herbs meet for them by whom it is dressed, receiveth blessing from God: but that which beareth thorns and briars, is rejected, and is nigh unto cursing, whose end is to be burned. And perhaps to put this or the like distinction between these spiritual gifts, thus imperfectly heavenly, from those graces of true regeneration, might be one great part of the Apostles aim in that speech James 1.16,17,18. Do not erre, my beloved Brethren (he speaks to the whole bulk and herd of Professours and hearers of the word, in respect that many mistook imperfect workings on men, and actings by men, from hearing the Gospel for true heavenly grace, and so by false reasonings deceived themselves, as *ver.*22.) Do not erre, my beloved Brethren, says he, every good gift, and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness neither shadow of turning. Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth. So making the distinction between true Professors and false to consist in an innate difference in the gifts themselves; the one good and perfect, as Regeneration is, which he instanceth in, and which alone brings forth fruit to perfection, as Christ says in the Parable of the Sower, which is every way good and perfect, both ex parte dantis, from above, and ex parte recipientis, changing the heart into an heavenly nature, as the engrafted word, v.21. useth to do, so making the man holy and heavenly, as the Word and Spirit itself is: and that which confirms this, is, that James's scope is evidently to distinguish seemingly true Professours from true Professours indeed. If any seem to be religious, ver.26. Pure religion and undefiled before God, &c. v.27. Oh therefore, let us all be moved to seek earnestly after these good and perfect gifts of true holiness and regeneration, and things that accompany salvation; to be blest with these Spiritual blessings in Heavenlies, the possessours of which James twice in that Chapter termeth blessed, and them alone!

Παραλογιζόμενοι ἑαυτούς.

II. Learn hence likewise, how to judge rightly of God's dealings with thee in this World, and to put a right and true interpretation thereupon, and of his heart towards thee therein. God often drives a clean contrary design to our expectations, desires, yea our very prayers, which perhaps have been drawn out and laid forth much upon things outward and earthly, which we have judged meet for us; but God perhaps hath broken thee in these, deny'd thy Prayers, yea taken all away from thee, and done the clean contrary. But withal, consider, what he hath been a doing all that while upon thy Spirit in order to Spiritual things in Heavenlies. Hath God encreased thee in faith, patience, submission to his will, humbling thy self under his mighty hand, keeping thee from sin? Hath he enlarged thy Coast in joy in the Holy Ghost, communion with himself, and steady and close walking with him, and will not let thy heart go forth far after any thing vain and carnal, but he comes upon thee with some cross, hedgeth up thy way, narrows thee in such comforts that would draw forth and encrease thy lusts; but makes an open door, an enlarged abundant entrance into his own bosom, in accesses to him and converses with him: or if not therein, yet encreaseth thy secret store of gracious dispositions, and holy compliances of spirit towards himself, such as his dealings with thee call for? Thy heart is kept in awe to sin, fearful to omit holy duties, dependent on him in all, loving of him, eying of him, walking with him, and aiming at him in all thy ways. So as whatever he doth to thee, as in relation to this World, and to thy worldly ends and desires; yet in relation to that other World, and the things thereof, thou observest that he still is sure to carry on that design strongly and hotly, and pursues it hard, to make thee more spiritual, and to bring thee nearer to himself. Oh consider that even this it is to bless thee, to bless thee indeed, to bless thee according to the tenure and dispensation of blessing men under the Gospel, this is to bless thee in Christ, and with Christ, and the blessings of Christ, who was sent to bless us in things spiritual in Heavenlies; and in these is the special good will and love of God, as thy God and Father, and as the God and Father of Christ, laid forth and seen. Thus he blessed Job, when he took all outward things from him, Blessed be the name of the Lord, said he then, when all was gone. He could not have blessed God so heartily as he then did, if he had not found God blessing him most of all at that very time: yea, with these he blessed his Son Christ himself, of whom it is said, God blessed him for ever, and yet had not an hole to hide his head in: With those the Apostles, who had neither house nor home, suffered nakedness, hunger, and were at last appointed and set forth to death, as Paul expresseth it; whenas other Christians in those times, less beloved, and less blessed of him, as the Corinthians Babes in Christ, carnal, yet in a great measure were full, reigned, abounded in all earthly comforts. God allowed them these Rattles then being as Children: but take Paul's judgment, what though our outward man perish, that is, our bodies, and the outward state and condition of the whole man, as we are men of this world? What though we suffer loss in the things belonging thereto, so in lieu thereof our inward man be renewed daily, and the things belonging to this inward man are these Spiritual blessings in things heavenly. Yea, we may well suffer the spoiling of our goods, as the Hebrews did, if instead thereof an enduring substance in the Heaven be added unto; as if we obtain one degree of grace (the least,) there is for certain withal such an addition to an infinite disproportion in Heavenlies made. The Primitive Christians being possessed with such Principles as these, cared not what they were to this World. If thou beest a Servant, care not; yea, if thou wast of Servants a Slave (as some then that were called were, for Paul says, Whether bond or free in Christ, &c. 2 Coloss. there were therefore such in Christ then:) and the condition of Servants, especially Slaves in those times and places was hard, and outwardly most miserable, their Lords having power of life and death, and to use them as they listed;) yet how slightly doth the Apostle speak of that condition, and but in one short word? Care not, (says he;) he spends no more words about it, nor no higher, as a thing so much taken for granted not to be minded in comparison, upon this consideration which follows, *v.*22. For he that is called in the Lord is the Lord's free-man; that is, thy relation unto, and condition in, and priviledges by Christ are of such transcendent value in comparison of this other, as this should have no weight with thee to be regarded. Thou art blest in Christ with all blessings in another world, so that it is no matter what thy condition be in this World; only because outward things joyned with the favour of God, are in their kind blessings from God not to be contemned; yet so small as they come not into the Gospels Inventory, therefore he there adds, that if such an one could be free, he should use it rather: and so if riches, or honours, or power be cast upon thee, use them rather; yet still he speaks so slenderly of the difference between these, as if so little, and that which is, whether it be the good of the one, and evil that is in the other, so much swallowed up by that state and condition we have in Christ, as neither is much worth considering. Oh my Brethren, these men that talked and lived at this rate (as the Apostles and Christians then did,) how strangely and mightily must their minds be supposed to have been filled and possessed with the valuation and admiration of spiritual and heavenly blessings; yea, insomuch as when they saw any man suffer much, they esteemed it an happiness, an addition of blessedness to that man. Behold, we account them happy that endure or suffer, saith the Apostle James. He speaks it as the common thoughts and principle of the [Vs all,] that are, or then were Christians, and speaks it in opposition to the thoughts of the world; they account them happy that have riches, have beautiful wives, fair houses, &c. but behold, we account them happy that endure; Jam. 5. 11.

and if temptations of several kinds befel them, they aforehand were prepared and instructed to account it all joy: for their faith and experience prompted them, that now God was about to bless them with an increase in such Spiritual graces of faith and patience,&c. the least trial of which hereby, much more addition unto which, they accounted more precious than gold: and blessed is the man that endures temptation; and the more or greater these are, the more blessed he is. Thus God often makes but an advantage of a man's outward condition; sets up a man or woman that hath all affluences and accomplishments of riches, honours, abilities, pleasures, beauty, wit, &c. and bestows them on them but as it were only to afford but so many crosses and afflictions in the spoil of them; and to heighten these afflictions the more, when yet God's design in and by the loss or ruin of all these, is to make that man or woman great and rich, and glorious, in and unto this heavenly world, unto the higher and greater proportion, as he was in all these outward things in this world. Doth God greatly chastise and afflict thee, and withal teach thee out of his Law, further instructing thee in thy duty, and framing thy heart thereunto? Hear David, Psal.94.13. Blessed is the man whom thou chastnest, and teachest out of thy Law. Doth a great loss of a Child, a Wife, put thee upon making one more fervent prayer than otherwise thou shouldst have made? God hath really and more abundantly blessed thee thereby, than in the continuance of that outward enjoyment to thee. God often blesseth us when we are not aware of it. God lets thee fall into a sin perhaps, and that drives thee to the Throne of grace, with out-cries for help, as the Apostles word is, as a man undone utterly and for ever, if God pity thee not. This Prayer, though in it self a less good than thy sin was evil; yet unto thee is turned into a far greater blessing than thy sin hath evil in it (as to thee:) such is his goodness. Thy sin shall be pardoned, and though it be a loss in it self; yet to thee, having this so great a consequent and effect of it, thou comest off a gainer: And lo, God hath blest thee by occasion of it with a further increase in Heavenlies, which do abide for ever, and shall never be taken from thee.

Hebr.4.ult. προσκαιρον.

III. Hereby also we may judge of our own spirits, whether yea or no at all made spiritual and heavenly, or to what degree, and so whether in this state of Gospel blessedness, or the contrary. What blessings are they thy heart is drawn out to seek, when thy Soul is in neerest approaches unto God, and thou findest thou hast hold of him in wrestling with him, as Jacob had usually at such times? What are the choicest desires of a mans Soul he pours forth to him, and says, as Jacob there did, I will not let thee go, except thou bless me thus or thus? And what are the blessings thy heart then with highest contention affecteth? Sometimes perhaps that God would communicate himself to thee, which (as you heard) was the sum and substance of all blessings and blessedness. Oh bless me with thy self, thy self, Lord; and thy heart is so filled, and overpour'd and swallowed up with this, is so adæquately filled and environed about with this, that thou canst not find in thy heart wherewith at that time to ask any thing else; but the utmost sole intention of thy mind and Soul are held up, fixed and united unto this, and this alone. Another time, or presently thereupon, as violently carried forth to be blest in holiness and unblameableness in love towards this God. Oh that thou wouldest bless me indeed, and keep me from the evil! So we find Jabesh broke forth, 1 *Chron.*4.10. and his Prayer is recorded for the eminent zeal and holiness of heart in it; and it stands there alone, like to a small fertil spot of earth in the midst of a long tract of ground, that bears nothing but names and genealogies round about it. Oh keep me from the evil, says he, that evil of evils, Sin, (as Christ in the Lord's Prayer also expresseth it,) that it may not grieve me: for, Lord, to sin against thee would be to my spirit the greatest cross and affliction, though otherwise I abounded in all earthly blessings; and thou didst never so much enlarge my coast (as he had there also prayed,) and to be kept from it, is in my esteem and desire the greatest mercy I have to desire of thee, to bless me; bless me, Oh Lord, by turning me from mine iniquities, as Peter, by enabling me to keep thy commandments, which is the greatest blessedness, as *Revel.*22.14. Are these, and such as these the top desires of thy Soul? Thou art bleſſed in thy deeds, as James ſays. Go, and for thy comfort carry home with thee all the bleſſings which Heaven it ſelf affords thee therewith, and fall down on thy knees, and with the Apoſtle here bleſs thy God, who hath thus bleſſed thee with all (whilſt thou haſt thus a heart to profer any one that is truly Spiritual) bleſſings in heavenly things in Chriſt. Serm. IV.

In Chriſt.] We before obſerved that God bleſſes us, as having taken upon him to bear the relation of our God, and of a Father unto us.

2. Theſe two Relations of God unto us, are founded originally and firſtly upon his ſaid Relations unto Chriſt, viz. of being his God and his Father firſt, and that in a tranſcendent manner higher than unto us; but deſcending down, and imparted to us in a lower, though true real degree.

3. Chriſt his bearing the title of being Our Lord, being joyned to the laſt foregoing particular, do (both put together) become a joynt foundation, both of God the Father, his becoming our God and our Father alſo; and ſo upon thoſe double Relations of God the Father to us doth bring down a legally formal right, upon which the Father according to that legal right ſhould beſtow all ſorts of bleſſings upon us, which his grace makes him willing to beſtow. And this right is harmoniouſly and rationally grounded (though God the Father muſt be acknowledged original of all) on the ſuper-added conſtitution laſt mentioned, viz. That God the Father did alſo therewith make, and ordain his Son Chriſt to bear the relation [of our Lord;] which relation Jeſus Chriſt hath alſo taken upon him that he is indeed our Husband, a Lord and Husband of us the Elect, by the Father given unto Chriſt to that end, ſo to be conſtituted his Church univerſal, of men to be his lawful Spouſe. And this is ſuch a priviledge as the good Angels have not, although in reſpect of his Dominion and their Service to him Chriſt is ſaid to be their Lord alſo, yet this more near Conjugal relation and band of us to him, is not communicated unto Angels, but imported in theſe words [Our Lord,] which words have this further Emphaſis, That God hath made his Chriſt to be our Lord and Husband; that is, he hath made us Sons and Daughters in Law by Adoption to himſelf, (which is expreſt in the next verſe,) and Chriſt alſo doth thereupon bleſs us. So as in fine, we are both the legal Children of God the Father, and rightful Spouſe of Chriſt, which is a ſenſe and interpretation of the words [Our Lord,] which (as far as I yet know of) has not been given to any meer Creatures beſides our ſelves. And this is therefore a Conſideration of great weight and endearment both of God and Chriſt to us; beſides, that it is one of the Architectonical Pillars and Buttreſſes of this fabrick, and of all the particulars of this Model.

Serm. V.

SERMON V.

VERSES 4,5,&c.

According as he hath choſen us in him before the foundation of the World: that we ſhould be holy,&c.

IN the third Verſe the Apoſtle premiſeth a general Propoſition, which he afterward breaks into Particulars. His ſcope being to ſhew how all Bleſſings depend both upon God's election before all Worlds, and how likewiſe upon Jeſus Chriſt, [who hath bleſſed us with all ſpiritual bleſſings in heavenly things (or places) in Chriſt,] ſo ſaith the third Verſe. (If you obſerve it) in thoſe words there is the Act of bleſſing [Who hath bleſſed us;] and there are the Bleſſings themſelves wherewith we are bleſſed.

I ſhewed before, both out of the coherence of theſe words with thoſe that follow, *ver.*4. and other Scriptures, that the time when God beſtowed all theſe Bleſſings upon us in Chriſt, was when he choſe us, even before all Worlds. To which accords that in 2 *Tim.*1.9. He hath called us according to his own purpoſe and grace, which was given us in Jeſus Chriſt before the world began. That Grace there, is all one with theſe Bleſſings here, they being all wrapped up in that one expreſſion of Grace: And that which is called a Gift there, is called a Bleſſing us here. And if you look into *Gen.*27.37. you ſhall find, that [to Bleſs] is all one with [to Give] (though it be not actually given till afterwards:) For ſo we read, that when Iſaac ſpeaks to Eſau of his bleſſing of Jacob, he ſays, I have made him thy Lord, and all his Brethren have I [given] to him for Servants, (Jacob was but a poor man then, but Iſaac had bleſt him, and ſo had given him all theſe things;) and with Corn and Wine have I ſuſtained him, (or ſupported him,) as it is in the Margin.

Now, what is here in the third Verſe expreſſed in the general, the Apoſtle cometh to explain particularly in the Verſes following.

There are two things (as I ſaid before) in that third Verſe; there is the Act of Bleſſing, and there are the Bleſſings wherewith God hath bleſſed us. Anſwerably in this 4 and 5*th* Verſes the Apoſtle diſtinctly mentioneth, 1. The Act of Bleſſing to be in Electing and Predeſtinating of us, [according as he hath Elected us,] ſo *ver.*4. [and Predeſtinated us,] ſo *ver.*5. and Then he mentions two particular Bleſſings, with which in Election and Predeſtination he hath bleſſed us, Holineſs, ver. 4. and Adoption of Children, ver.5. and all this in Jeſus Chriſt. And ſo you have the coherence of theſe words.

According as he hath choſen us in him:] Thoſe words [He hath choſen us in him] have bred more controverſie than any ſo few words almoſt in the whole Bible, and do therefore require ſome time to open them.

Firſt, Some ſay, This [chooſing us in him] implies, that God chooſeth us, as foreſeeing us to believe in Chriſt, becauſe by Faith it is we are in Chriſt, and by Faith only: And therefore this Phraſe [chooſing us in him] (namely in Chriſt) noteth out the State of the Perſon of a Believer, that he is in Chriſt, or one with Chriſt by Faith. And ſo in God's choice we are conſidered as Believers, (according to this Opinion;) and this is one great place alledged for Election to be out of Faith foreſeen: For (ſay they) no man is in Chriſt till ſuch time as he believeth: and God chooſeth us in Chriſt; therefore he chooſeth only foreſeeing them to be Believers on Chriſt.

In

In a word or two to confute this Opinion, that this ſhould not be the meaning of the place: And to take only ſuch Arguments as the Text itſelf affords, (for that is proper to an Expoſition.) Serm. V.

Firſt therefore, If the meaning were, that God chooſeth men as Believers in Chriſt, or (which cometh all to one) chooſeth upon Faith foreſeen, he ſhould not chooſe Perſons but Graces; the principal object in God's Election ſhould be Propoſitions, not Perſons, whereas in this verſe, and all the three next verſes, the primary object is the Perſons of men, He hath choſen us in him, and ſo on *v.*5,6. God chooſeth not Propoſitions, as, he that believeth ſhall be ſaved. That propoſition indeed is the conſequent of Election, and ſo declared to us, becauſe it makes Election viſible to us. God declareth that and ſuch like Propoſitions to be true, but ſtill the object of his choice is the Perſon; for 'tis out of love, pure love. Nor did Chriſt die for Propoſitions, but for Perſons.

Secondly, Again, the Apoſtle had ſaid in the verſe before, v. 3. That God hath bleſſed us with all ſpiritual bleſſings in Chriſt; and then he ſubjoyns here, According as he hath choſen us in him: ſo making this of Election one inſtance of a Spiritual bleſſing in verſe 3. Now, I ask this Queſtion, Whether is a man bleſſed with faith in Chriſt, yea or no, as one of thoſe bleſſings wherewith we are ſaid to be bleſſed in him? If they ſay, Yes, then a man muſt be ſuppoſed to be in Chriſt before he hath faith, (in ſome ſenſe or other;) for Faith itſelf is one of the bleſſings comprehended in that [All] of bleſſings. And ſo, if all be given us in Chriſt, then Faith alſo, as we are conſidered already choſen in Chriſt; yea otherwiſe, at the times when we have the bleſſing of Faith given to us, we are conſidered out of Chriſt actually when it is firſt given us, if that is it which makes us to be firſt in Chriſt, according to the Apoſtles ſcope of it there? There muſt therefore be ſome ſenſe or other intended, whereby we are in Chriſt, before we have faith. That is the ſecond Argument.

And then Thirdly the Apoſtle ſaith, He choſe us in him [that we ſhould be holy and without blame before him in love, &c.] and the ſame Reaſon will carry it, That he as well intends that he choſe us to this end, that we ſhould believe on him. And the Reaſon lies in this, Look as he doth not chooſe becauſe we are holy in love, or that he foreſeeth we will be holy in love; but he chooſeth us that we ſhould be holy and without blame in love. In like manner it may be ſaid, He chooſeth unto Faith; for there is the ſame reaſon of the one that there is of the other. Beſides, that Faith may be conſidered as a part of Sanctification, 1 *Joh.*5.1. Whoſoever believeth that Jeſus is the Chriſt, is born of God, &c. In the 2 *Theſſ.*2.3. both Faith and Holineſs are put in the like relation, as to Election, and we are ſaid to be ordained to the one, as to the other; and therefore if we are choſen to be holy, (as here) as being a fruit of Election; then to believe alſo is a like fruit of Election; for obſerve but the words there, and compare them with theſe here. It is there ſaid, He hath appointed us unto ſalvation through ſanctification and belief of the Truth. Holineſs (you ſee) and Faith are put both together, as being Graces unto which we are alike ordained. And Acts 13.48. As many as were ordained to eternal life, believed. So that this is not the meaning of the words; and that is the firſt Interpretation.

The Popiſh Divines and Interpreters give another Expoſition, [He hath choſen us in Chriſt] That is (ſay they) for the Merits ſake of Chriſt, foreſeeing his Death and Paſſion. And yet the beſt of them that ſay it, put but a [forte] an [it may be] upon it, as I remember Suarez doth.

Now this cannot be the meaning neither. We read indeed, that we have Redemption through the Blood of Chriſt: ſo ver. 7. In whom we have Redemption through his blood, and the forgiveneſs of ſins. But we no where read, that we have Election through the Blood of Chriſt, no not in the whole Book of God. Why! what is the reaſon of it? Becauſe Election is the firſt foundation of our Salvation; it is the firſt Act of God's going forth in intentions to ſave us, and hath no cauſe but the Pleaſure of his will, ſo the Text ſaith, *ver.*5. and the praiſe of the glory of his grace, ſo ver. 6. Hence therefore, although the Merits of Chriſt are the cauſe of our Salvation, yet they are not the cauſe of our being ordained to ſalvation. They are the cauſe that purchaſeth all things decreed unto us; but they are not the cauſe that firſt moved God to decree theſe things unto us. For if they were, there ſhould be a derogation from God's free Grace in the firſt act of it, he ſhould not be Free in it: For Merit (you know) hath an obligation in it. Had God choſen us for Chriſt's Merits, his Election had not been of Free grace: But having choſen us, and that out of his Free grace, he ordained theſe Merits as the cauſe of our ſalvation; which being thus a Free gift of Grace themſelves, and the fruit of his Grace, and no ways the Cauſe or Motive thereof; therefore now Salvation (though merited) cometh to be altogether of Free grace, becauſe the foundation of it is ſuch. And ſo you have this ſecond Interpretation taken away.

There is a third Interpretation, which ſome of our Divines do give.

As 1, That we are ſaid to be elected in Chriſt, that is, (to be) in Chriſt in time to come. We are not elected (ſay they) as being in Chriſt when elected, or by election put into Chriſt; but elected to be in Chriſt in the fulneſs of time. And therefore,

2. They joyn this [Elected in Chriſt] with the words that follow, [that we ſhould be holy, and without blame before him in love.] So as the meaning of this Interpretation tends only to this, That Jeſus Chriſt is the great inſtrument to convey all the Bleſſings to us, which God hath decreed for us; That he is the great means indeed that God hath ordained, and the cauſe of all things that God hath appointed us unto. But he hath nothing to do with what concerneth the act of Election itſelf: This [in him] hath not relation ſo much to the act of God's chooſing, as either to the bleſſings to be conveyed by him, which God hath choſen us unto; or elſe to ſhew, that our future being in him is the Terminus of that act of Election. And ſo the whole that this place holds forth, is no more in effect but what that in 1 Theſſ. 5.9. ſays; where you read, that God hath appointed us to obtain ſalvation by our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Mark it, the Apoſtle there ſays not, that Jeſus Chriſt, as God-man, hath any influence into the Act of ordaining; but comes in only as a Means ſubſerving that act, to accompliſh and bring about thoſe ends which God in his Decrees did pitch upon. The Salvation God appointed us unto, he ordained us to obtain by Jeſus Chriſt: So then, [He hath elected us in Chriſt to be holy;] that is, ſay they, in the fulneſs of time to be in him, and to be made holy in him, and he is to be the cauſe of our holineſs. This is the other ſenſe of his chooſing us in Chriſt.

And to explain their meaning in the Decrees of Election, there are Two things to be conſidered.

1. The Act itſelf, which is immanent and remaineth in God himſelf, and floweth from himſelf from all eternity.
2. The Terminus, or the Things that are Decreed to be, or to be brought to paſs. Or (to expreſs it in the ſame terms, which I uſed and obſerved out of the third Verſe) there is the Act of bleſſing itſelf, and there are the bleſſings wherewith we are bleſt.

Now when it is here ſaid, that we are Elected in Chriſt, that ſame [in him] refers not (ſay they) to the Act it ſelf, as if [it] had any dependency on him; but only has relation to the things ordained by that Act. And ſo they ſay, That Chriſt is the foundation of Election in this ſenſe, that the Terminus Electionis, the things unto which we are elected, he is appointed in Election to be the cauſe of. (In a word) That God hath ordained that we ſhould have them all in Chriſt, but hath not in Chriſt ordained Us, and Them to Us.

So that now, this is the great and univerſally acknowledged glory given to Jeſus Chriſt on all hands, that though God wholly and entirely reſerveth to himſelf the glory of the act of chooſing us; yet all the things that he chooſeth us to, his Son (as God-man) is the cauſe of: He cometh in between Election and the Things, and we are ordained to have them all in him; even to obtain Faith, Grace, Heaven, and all in Chriſt, as the deſerver and purchaſer of them. And it is a great glory, that is given to our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, that God ſhould ſet him up as the great Engine to work all by. This (I ſay) is the third Interpretation.

But

Serm. V.

But though this be moſt true, and is one great part of the meaning of theſe words; yet this is not all, or the whole, as I ſhall prove by theſe three or four Reaſons; which when I have done, I will ſhew you what I apprehend is to make up the full and clear ſcope and meaning of them. (I ſhall only mention what Reaſons the Text affordeth.)

Firſt therefore, If you interpret the words [He hath choſen us in him,] that is, [to be] in him; you put in [to be,] which is not in the Text. Whereas this is the plain reading of the words [He hath choſen us in him;] and therefore if there be a ſenſe wherein it may be abſolutely ſaid (as referring to the Act of Election itſelf) that we were Choſen in him, without putting in any ſuch words, it would be much fairer.

Secondly, It is ſaid [He choſe us in him before the foundation of the World,] who therefore would not refer this [in him] unto [before the foundation of the World,] as well as that the Act of chooſing us to have been before the foundation of the World: and ſo God choſe us then in him? Whereas if that had been the meaning, he only choſe us to be in Chriſt in future times which were to come after the foundation of the World; the expreſſion [in him] ſhould have come in after thoſe words [the foundation of the world,] as well as the Thing itſelf doth. But, He choſe us in him before the foundation of the World; ſo as [in him] ſeemeth to refer as well to [before the foundation of the World,] as to God's chooſing us before the foundation of the World.

Thirdly, Whereas it is ſaid, That [in him] referreth to the words following, [That we ſhould be holy and without blame, &c.] we ſee here is a mighty Chaſm, a great Gulph between theſe two, [chooſing us in him] and [that we ſhould be holy:] for here is [before the foundation of the world] comes between. If indeed the Apoſtle had ſaid, [He hath choſen us before the foundation of the world, in him that we ſhould be holy, &c.] or [that we ſhould be holy in him,] there had then been ſome colour for it: But he ſaith plainly, [He hath choſen us in him before the foundation of the world,] [In him] cometh in before [the foundation of the world.] So that it ſeemeth this [in him] referreth to the Act of Chooſing.

And then again there is this Fourth great Reaſon for it: He had ſaid in the third Verſe, [He hath bleſſed us with all ſpiritual bleſſings in Chriſt,] and then in the fourth and fifth Verſes he inſtanceth in Election and Predeſtination. Sicut elegit, as if he had ſaid, For examples ſake, or for explanations ſake, to give you an inſtance, According as he hath elected us in him. Now mark it by this coherence, Either Election is taken for the Act of bleſſing us (as I ſaid before,) or for a Bleſſing wherewith God hath bleſſed us. And if either of both, it is enough for the thing in hand; it muſt be in Chriſt, and this before the foundation of the World: And ſo we were elected in Chriſt then, as well as juſtified in Chriſt in the fulneſs of time.

And then, Fifthly, I find that other Scriptures do back this Interpretation, That [in him] ſhould have relation not only to the things decreed us, as the cauſe of them; but have reference to the Act itſelf of chooſing. And this not only that Scripture I before mentioned, 2 Tim. 1. 9. [He hath given us grace in Chriſt before the world was;] but alſo that in the third of this Epiſtle, v. 11. [According to the eternal purpoſe, which he purpoſed in Chriſt.] Mark it, [In Chriſt] cometh in that place not only for the thing purpoſed, but in relation to the Purpoſe it ſelf; and this Purpoſe is eternal, [According to the eternal purpoſe which he purpoſed in Chriſt:] So that [Chooſing us in him,] the meaning is not only, To be in him in the fulneſs of time, or that he ſhould be the cauſe of all the Things unto which we are choſen, only; but the Choice itſelf, in ſome ſenſe or other, is in him, that is, the Act itſelf, [According to the eternal purpoſe which he purpoſed in Chriſt.]

Serm. IV.

And then, for thoſe places that are quoted to interpret it (which I before mentioned,) as that in 1 *Theſſ.*5.9. [He hath appointed us to obtain ſalvation by our Lord Jeſus Chriſt,] which (ſay they) is all one with this of the Apoſtle here, [He hath elected us in him,&c.] It is plainly not all one, and that for two Reaſons: For 1. In that place of the Theſſalonians there cometh in [To obtain ſalvation by our Lord Jeſus Chriſt;] but not ſo here. Had he ſaid ſo here, that [He hath choſen us to obtain Election, or to be holy in Chriſt,] then I confeſs it had been plain; but he only ſaith [He hath choſen us in him,] and then cometh in [that we ſhould be holy before him in love;] and thoſe words [before the foundation of the world] come between both.

And then Secondly, There is a great deal of difference between God's doing a thing in Chriſt and through Chriſt, ἐν Χριστῷ and διὰ τὸν Χριστὸν. It is Zanchies obſervation, That when God is ſaid to do a thing in Chriſt, it uſually notes out ſome one of thoſe immanent acts of Gods towards us, that paſt between him and Chriſt for us when they were alone, before we exiſted; and Jeſus Chriſt was a common Perſon repreſenting us all, and God gave all to Chriſt for us; as it is ſaid, [The Grace that was given us in Chriſt before the world was.] But the things that God doth through Chriſt, (which is the Phraſe in the Theſſalonians) are uſually ſome tranſient acts of Gods towards Us, or thoſe things which he actually performeth and applieth to us through Chriſt. So that God redeemeth through Chriſt, juſtifieth through Chriſt, and ſaveth through Chriſt; but he chooſeth in Chriſt. So that to Chooſe in him, is not all one with that which the Apoſtle ſaith, [He hath ordained us to obtain ſalvation through Chriſt.]

SECTION.

But now the Queſtion is, In what further ſenſe we are ſaid to be Choſen in him: ſo that the Act of Chooſing ſhould be referred to In him, and we to be in him at our election; and what ſubſerviency, Chriſt conſidered as God-Man, ſhould be of to the Act itſelf of electing Us.

I ſhall endeavour to Anſwer to, and to explain this Firſt, Negatively; Secondly, Affirmatively. I will ſhew you, 1. What influence or ſubſerviency he hath not; And, 2. I will ſhew you what he hath.

Firſt, I will ſhew you what he hath not. He was not the Cauſe of God's electing us; for the Apoſtle in the 9*th* verſe of this firſt Chapter, ſaith, That it was [according to the good pleaſure of his will, which he had purpoſed in himſelf.] What is the cauſe of all God's purpoſes towards us? Himſelf. There is no other Cauſe. And in the ſame verſe it is alſo added, [According to his good pleaſure,&c.] God, as he is the firſt Being, ſo He and his own Will are the firſt Movers of himſelf: So that this [He choſe us in Chriſt] imports not, that Jeſus Chriſt was the cauſe of our Predeſtination (taking him as God-Man, as here he is meant.) And I will give you this great Reaſon for it; For he could not be the cauſe of our Predeſtination, who himſelf was predeſtinated. In 1 Pet. 1.20. it is plainly ſaid of Chriſt, That he was pre-ordained before the world was founded. He himſelf was choſen as well as we, therefore he could not be the cauſe of our Election: And both he and we being Elected by one ſimple and entire act, the Predeſtination therefore of one could not be the cauſe of the Predeſtination of the other. And as Chriſt was not the cauſe of Election, for the ſubſtance of the Act: ſo, nor was he the cauſe of it for the Perſons elected. Jeſus Chriſt, as God-Man and Mediatour, did not chooſe ſo much as one Man: It was God that elected all thoſe that are elected. Thine they were (ſays Chriſt to his Father) and thou gaveſt them me. And it were a much more fond conceit to think that God choſe ſuch to be ſaved, as he foreſaw the Human Nature of Chriſt would love and chooſe. This were to make the Divine Will conformed to that of the Human Nature; whereas not my will, but thine be done, ſaid Chriſt unto God the Father.

This therefore is not the meaning, that Chriſt as God-Man is the cauſe of the Act of our Election as it was in God.

Secondly,

Secondly, Affirmatively, The meaning is this, That Jeſus Chriſt in election was the Head of the Elect. He was conſidered, and from the firſt ordained by God, as a Common Perſon, to repreſent Us. He undertook for us then, and ſo in him we were choſen, as in a Head. This is the ſenſe that Holy Baines giveth of it; To note out (ſaith he) the order of Election, namely, that Chriſt was choſen firſt as a Head, and we in him. Though both at the ſame time; yet for priority of Nature, He as a Common Perſon and a Head was firſt elected, and we in him. Serm. V.

For the clear underſtanding of this, I will firſt give you two Cautions to prevent a miſunderſtanding of it; And ſecondly explain, how it might be that Chriſt ſhould be conſidered as a Common Perſon in the Act of Election.

Firſt, For the Cautions:

I. Learn to diſtinguiſh between being elected with Chriſt, and being elected in Chriſt. To be elected with Chriſt, is to be elected at the ſame time he was, for matter of time; for all was from eternity: But to be elected in Chriſt is with this difference, That Chriſt at God's firſt Act of Election was conſidered as a Common Perſon, a Head and Root, and we all as in him. This is common both to Chriſt and to Us, that we were elected with Him, and he with Us, for matter of time. But this is proper to Chriſt, that we were elected in Him, he not in Us.

To explain this to you both out of Scripture, by his Type, Adam; and alſo by a Similitude, that may convey it to your underſtanding.

Firſt, by Scripture. So Geneſ. 1. 27. He created Man: in his own image created he him (that is, Adam) Male and Female created he them. God in creating Adam created all Mankind; as in bleſſing Adam he bleſſed all Mankind. Yea, the Creation of Adam was all the creation that the reſt of Mankind had: For though they exiſt by Generation, ſucceſſively; yet in him were they created, virtually, and then only. Thus in chooſing Chriſt, God lookt upon him as a Common Perſon, as a Second Adam, and choſe us in him. And therefore you ſhall find in the 1 Cor. 15. that God ſpeaks of Chriſt and of Adam, as if there had been but thoſe two men in the World: [The firſt Man] (ſays he) and [the ſecond Man.] Was there but a firſt Man, and a ſecond Man? Yes; but theſe two Men ſtood for all the reſt. Or (in a word) Jeſus Chriſt was not only a Common Perſon in his dying for us; but in his being choſen alſo, (as I ſhall ſhew by and by,) and ſo we were elected in him. This is the meaning of it. For the Similitude which I ſpake of, I ſhall take it from amongſt Men. Suppoſe that a Kingdom were now to be new ſet up, and a King to be choſen, and they meant ſo to chooſe him as they would chooſe his Poſterity, his eldeſt Sons that ſhould be after him, and that for ever. Now when they have made this Covenant with this firſt Man, the firſt King; We take you for our King, and your eldeſt Son, and the eldeſt Sons of all your Poſterity after you to the end of the world. In this caſe it may be ſaid, That at the ſame time they choſe his Sons with him; and not ſo only, but that they choſe his Sons in him alſo. Why! Becauſe he was the firſt, and they are conſidered as in his Loins. What ſaith Chriſt? Here am I, and the Children that thou haſt given me. And ſo God ſaid to him, Here thou art, and in thee all my Elect. I appoint thee as a Root to as many men as I chooſe together with thee; but I chooſe them in thee. When God firſt ſaid, Let there be a Tree; for order of time both Root and Branches came up together, the Branches were created with the Root, and the Root with the Branches; yet the Branches in the Root, and not the Root in the Branches. Boaſt not thy ſelf, as if that thou wert choſen alone, and he alone; and that then thou wert given to him to be in him for time to come. No, that place I may allude unto in Rom. 11. 8. Boaſt not thy ſelf; for thou beareſt not the Root, but the Root thee. Thou beareſt not Chriſt; he was not choſen in thee, but thou in him, and for him.

II. The ſecond Caution is, that you take heed how you underſtand it, as if that Chriſt alone were diſtinctly choſen; and that our perſons were not as diſtinctly choſen too. Yes, both Chriſt and we too were diſtinctly and particularly thought of and ſo individually elected. The meaning (I ſay) of this our being Elected in him, is not as if he only had been diſtinctly and by name choſen, and we all but confuſedly, and in groſs, and as in his election only. God did not chooſe in the general; as a Kingdom doth chooſe the Children of a King that come after him, and are involved in him, in a general notion only; ſo as their diſtinct choiſe is of the King himſelf alone. No, the Scripture ſaith, God knoweth who are his, he knoweth the very perſons fully and particularly; yea, and diſtinctly viewed them then when he elected them. And yet notwithſtanding he thus choſe us as diſtinct perſons from Chriſt; yet ſtill our election was in Chriſt. As ſuppoſe a Kingdom that chooſeth a King and his Children, ſhould know by way of Prophecy, what manner of Men all his Sons to come would be, and how many he ſhould have, and yet ſhould chooſe him and them; though (I ſay) they did diſtinctly know all their Perſons and Natures, yet ſtill they chooſe them in him as the Head of the family. Now Chriſt is the head of all the family of them that are named, both in Heaven and Earth.

The ſecond thing to be ſpoken to, is, How Jeſus Chriſt may be rightly conſidered to be a common perſon when he was choſen. Some Divines yield that he was choſen to be a common perſon when he ſhould take up Man's Nature; and that we were choſen then to be by him repreſented. They acknowledge that he was a common perſon in his Death, repreſenting us, and is now a common perſon in Heaven, and ſits there as in our ſtead, repreſenting us. But (ſay they) in the act of chooſing, how ſhould he be conſidered as a common perſon, in that he did not then exiſt as God-Man? He might indeed be ordained to be a common perſon, after he did Exiſt as God-Man, but how in election was he, or could he be ſuch, he being as then only the Son of God, and not Man?

To ſolve this difficulty, lay we out theſe few things together.

1. That the perſon of the Son of God, (who was ordained this common perſon) he was with God then; he was then exiſtent. So Pro. 8.30. Then (ſaies wiſdom, namely Chriſt,) I was by him, &c. And the Evangeliſt John ſaith, He was in the beginning with God; that is, from everlaſting (as I ſhall ſhew afterwards.)

2. This Son of God that then exiſted (conſider him as one that was to become Man,) was the object of election as well as the Man-hood, (which was choſen to become one with God.) That divine perſon was by an Act and Decree of God's will pitcht upon and ſingled out to aſſume our nature and to ſuſtain the perſon of an head before God in the mean while.

3. At or in the Act of Election, this Son of God (as he actually exiſted at the paſſing of that act of election upon himſelf) ſo he actually and ſolemnly undertook to be an head and common perſon repreſenting Us; and to that end to aſſume our Nature. And this is in order of Nature to be ſuppoſed before our Election though coexiſtent together from eternity.

4. Upon this he was in repute ſuch with God the Father. He was a common perſon in God's eſteem, and that juſtly. So Pro. 8. 23. I (namely Chriſt) was ſet up from everlaſting, e're ever the Earth was, &c. I was ſet up,) that is, in eſteem with God for ſuch. Now this cannot be underſtood of Chriſt as he was the ſecond perſon only. But God did ſet him up from the beginning, as bearing and ſteining the perſon of God-man, (to which manhood he was choſen and undertook to aſſume;) and as an head to his members, before God, who reputed him ſuch. And of him conſidered as ſuch, are thoſe words ſpoken; for ſo only he is called Wiſdom, as there he is. For Chriſt is not called the Wiſdom of God eſſentially taken; for that is one of his Attributes, and not a perſon. But he is called God's Wiſdom Manifeſtativè, that is, as ordained to manifeſt God's Wiſdom unto Us, he being to be God manifeſt in the Fleſh. And ſuch a perſon or relation as he then thus actually undertook, ſuch did God then, and from that time repute him to be and actually entitled him by, as between himſelf and his Son. Therefore in Joh. 17.5. (obſerve the phraſe there,) Glorify me (ſaies Chriſt to God,) with the glory which [I had with thee] before the World was. What glory was that? He doth not mean his glory as he was ſimply ſecond perſon; becauſe he had that glory now; and therefore needed not to begg it. Nay, he could not begg it;it was too much for him ſo to begg, for ſo he is equal with God. Therefore it muſt be the glory of the Mediator-ſhip. [which I had before the the World was,] that is, in thy repute; thou accountedſt me thus and thus glorious in reſpect of the glory ordeinad me by my undertaking to be Man and the Mediator of the Church. And this is plain, if you compare it with the 24*th v.* for there he ſpeaks of that glory which was given him; which can be no other then the glory of the Mediator-ſhip. So then, Jeſus Chriſt the ſecond perſon being exiſtent, and undertaking to be a common perſon and a Mediator for Men, God did reckon him as ſuch, he was in his account, at the chooſing of him, as a common perſon and Head, and as a Mediator too. And indeed, there was this great advantage of our Mediator his being God, that thereby he was not only preſent at, and privy to the making of all God's Decrees; but was alſo by, to undertake for all that concerned his part in it which God ſhould decree, and to enter upon the Title and Relation of our Head and Mediator then. And there is this Reaſon why Chriſt muſt needs have been an Head to his Members, before his aſſuming our Nature, or his Aſcending up to Heaven; (which I ſee not how it can be anſwered.) Becauſe otherwiſe Jeſus Chriſt had not been an head to the Fathers under the Old Teſtament; for he had not as then taken an human Nature. And yet was actually a common perſon for forgiving their Sins, by vertue of that attonement he had engaged to perform for them; which was ſuch in God's repute exiſting before him in Job's time. Deliver him, I have found a Ranſom, Job 33. And upon the account thereof God did as really and actually forgive the Sins of the Old Teſtament, as he did Rom. 3. 25. Now if he was a head then, and they actually Members of him; then he might be ſo, virtually, and repreſentatively, from everlaſting, through his undertaking of it; and this, in as juſt a ſenſe as he is ſaid to be the Lamb ſlain from the beginning of the World. Why may not the Promiſe of the ſecond perſon then paſſed unto God, give as full, yea a fuller ſubſiſtence of thoſe things which God decreed and which he undertook for, before God his Father; as God's promiſe which was written in the Old Teſtament, gave to the Fathers Faith then, in reſpect unto which Chriſt was as then already ſlain? God the Father, who was then preſent, had a certain aſſurance, that Chriſt his Son, that gave his promiſe for performance, would and ſhould perform it. And Chriſt as Son of God, who was God, having promis'd, I may ſay of both, that Chriſt's word then was as good as his bond, and the Father's aſſurance that he ſhould perform it, as good as if he had already ſeen it done: And his calling things that are not, as certain as if they were. And I may apply one and the ſame effect of the Apoſtle Paul equally to both, if of God the Father giving Chriſt his promiſe before the world began, it muſt be ſaid, God that cannot lie. And ſo it is, and was as firm and ſure as if done and fulfilled, and this becauſe he is God, as Tit. 1. 2. 'tis expreſly there ſaid; In hope of eternal life, which God, that cannot lie promis'd, before the World began. I may invert it and ſay for the ſame reaſon, that that promiſe which Chriſt made the Father to undertake the Mediator-ſhip in Man's Nature before the world was, and to do all he did in the fulneſs of time; that Chriſt's promiſe then muſt have been, and was reputed as ſure and ſtedfaſt by God the Father, as if it had been already done; And God the Father might as certainly build upon it to do any thing that was to be done, depending upon what Chriſt undertook to do then, as if Chriſt had already performed all that promiſe and undertaking, and this upon as equal reaſons, for Chriſt was God then, as well as the Father, and could no more lie than he; for they both aree quals, Joh. 10. and all the terms of both ſides are equal, before the world was, &c. both of them. I might likewiſe urge that which followeth in the 10. v. of this 1. Chap. to the Epheſians, there you have an ἀνακεφαλαίωσις, a gathering together again unto one head, both of Jew and Gentile. Why a gathering together again unto one head? (for ſo the word ſignifieth,) One Reaſon may be, becauſe in Election they were in Chriſt as a Head before. But I leave the diſcuſſing that till I come to the 10*th. v.*

Serm. V.

So that (to conclude this point) that we are ſaid to be Elected in Chriſt, the meaning of it is ſummed up in theſe particulars.

1. That

Serm. V.

1. That Jeſus Chriſt was the head of Election, and of the Elect of God; and ſo in order of Nature Elected firſt, though in order of time we were Elected with him. In the Womb of Election he the head came out firſt, and then we the Members. He is therefore ſaid in Predeſtination to be the firſt-born of all his Brethren. Rom. 8. 29. Who hath Predeſtinated us (ſaies the Apoſtle) to be conformable to the Image of his Son, that he might be the firſt-born among many Brethren. Nay, in Col. 1. 15. He is ſaid to be the firſt-born of every Creature. How is that ſpoken of him? I have ſhewed it elſewhere to be plainly meant of Chriſt as God-man. Otherwiſe he is not ſaid to be the firſt-born in reſpect of every Creature. God would never have condeſcended ſo low (ſpeaking of the Eternal Generation of his Son,) as to compare him therein with Creatures. But ſaith he, He is the firſt-born of every Creature, and the Head of the body, the Church; as it followeth, v. 18.

2. That God in that act of Election lookt not at us apart and ſingly as in our ſelves; ſo as by one act to chooſe us, and by an other act to give us to Chriſt. But (as we ſay of the Soul, Infundendo creatur, & creando infunditur; it is by one and the ſame act of God's both created and infuſed into the body, and ſo ſubſiſts not one moment apart:) So God in the act of chooſing us gave us to Chriſt, and in giving us to Chriſt he choſe us. And thus, he never conſidering us apart, but as Members of Chriſt and given to him, in the very act of chooſing; hence our very choice itſelf is ſaid to be in him. And ſo (on the other ſide) in the firſt view and purpoſe God took up concerning Chriſt, and in Electing him, he lookt not at him apart, as a ſingle perſon in himſelf; but as an head to us his body, choſen in him, and with him. So that the meaning is not, that Jeſus Chriſt the ſecond perſon in the Trinity, was choſen by one act to be Man, and then to be a common perſon by another: But at the very ſame inſtant that he was choſen the one, he was choſen the other; under that very conſideration, to be a common perſon, which he then actually undertook. It was in this, as in the creation of Adam his ſhadow; who, when he was firſt made, was not made as a ſingle Man, he was made a living Soul, 1 Cor. 15. 45. What is that? To be a publick perſon to convey life to others, as well as to have Life perſonally in himſelf. That is the meaning, as appears by the following words, the laſt Adam (that is, Chriſt) was made a quickning Spirit; that is, not to himſelf, but to others. So that the very firſt view that God in Election took of Chriſt, was not of him only as a ſingle perſon conſidered, but as a common perſon repreſenting others. In a word; as in the Womb, head and members are not conceived apart, but together as having relation each to other: So were we and Chriſt (as making up one myſtical body unto God) formed together in that eternal Womb of Election. So that God's choice did compleatly terminate itſelf on him and us, us with him, and yet us in him, he having the priority to be conſtituted a common perſon and root to us; for that is the relation wherein we ſtand unto him, and in that relation we were firſt choſen.

And then the third thing which this phraſe implieth, and which will make up the meaning of it, is this. That as God's decree gave us a ſubſiſting beyond things meerely poſſible to be, (that is, which God could make, but never decreed to make;) ſo we by reaſon of this Election of us with Chriſt, in this tranſaction, in this reſpect we came to have a further repreſentative being and exiſtence in Chriſt from everlaſting, by vertue of his being then conſidered as a common head. So that in this did Jeſus Chriſt ſubſerve God's decree. I will (ſaith Chriſt) repreſent them; they are all vertually in me, and do thou, O Father, reckon them as having a ſubſiſtence in me. Jeſus Chriſt (I ſay) did give thereby a ſuſiſtence to us, ſuch as Adam when he began to be, did give unto all Man-kind; they were all virtually in him. Now make but the ſuppoſition that Adam had exiſted from everlaſting, as Chriſt did (the perſon, I mean, who took this Title and Relation on him,) and then how this might be, is eaſily underſtood.

I will only add to this laſt thing mentioned the great ends and advantages that this ſubſerviency of Chriſt unto the act of Election was of, in his actual undertaking to be a Root of a new ordained being to us, at that inſtant.

1. By means of this our virtual or repreſentative ſubſiſting or being lookt at as in Chriſt, and as one with him, in and from God's firſt chooſing us; by means of this God could then from everlaſting make a Covenant of Grace, and alſo make that Covenant ſure unto us. A Covenant (we know) is an agreement between two parties upon Terms. Now we then not exiſting in our ſingle ſelves, though God might have took up a purpoſe to do this or that for us, and in us; yet it could not be called a Covenant, unleſs we were ſome way extant before him; and the Covenant of Grace ſhould otherwiſe not have been a Covenant until men did believe. To help this therefore, God choſe us in Chriſt, and he repreſented us, ſtanding before God in our ſtead, and offering to undertake to work in us all the Terms that God ſhould require on our part; as this here, To be holy before him in love, &c. And ſo a Covenant was as truly ſtruck between God and Us, through Chriſt's repreſenting us, as the Covenant of Works was between God and Us, as conſidered in Adam. And hence it is, That Chriſt (by the Prophet Iſaiah) is called Our Covenant. Serm. V.

2. Hence likewiſe Secondly it comes to paſs, that God might upon this Covenant then give and beſtow upon us all Spiritual bleſſings (as we were thus conſidered in Chriſt.) Had God choſen us in our ſelves only, and apart, then indeed he might have purpoſed them all unto us; but could not have been ſaid, as then, to have given them unto us, or to have bleſſed us with them as then. But whenas through Chriſt his actual undertaking this Relation as then unto us, that we came to be conſidered in him as a Common Perſon, God might in him bleſs us with all theſe Spiritual bleſſings, (in the ſenſe before given:) even as Adam was created a Common Perſon, and ſo we conſidered virtually and repreſentatively in him; God might, and did bleſs us with all Earthly bleſſings in him (as we before obſerved.) God did purpoſe them unto Adam and Us, afore, by a bare Decree; but could not have been ſaid to bleſs us with them, unleſs he who ſhould repreſent us was himſelf exiſtent; (and ſo we virtually and repreſentatively in him,) which was not until his creation: I ſpeak of Adam. But now the Son of God, then actually exiſting, did voluntarily and by God's appointment Perſonate us, that thereby all Bleſſings, and the Promiſes of them, might be virtually given us, by being then given to him for us; as that Phraſe 2 Tim. 2. 9 imports, [The grace that was given us in Chriſt Jeſus before the world began. Even as a Grandfather may give a Portion to his Sons Child yet unborn, by giving it to his Son whom he makes his Heir and Executor; he perſonally ſubſiſting before, and his Child in him.

3. The Third Advantage is, That hereby our Salvation had a ſure foundation given it in Election; not only in God's eternal love and purpoſe, (but the foundation of the Lord remains ſure, he knows who are his:) but further alſo, This his firſt choice of us was a founding us on Chriſt, and in and together with chooſing us, a ſetting us into him, ſo as then to be repreſented by him. So that now we are to run the ſame fortune (if I may ſo ſpeak) with Chriſt himſelf for ever: Our Perſons being made myſtically one with his, and he a Common Perſon to us in Election, as Adam was in his creation. Other men, (as likewiſe the Angels that fell) were ordained to be in themſelves, to ſtand or fall by themſelves; but we were by a choice act of God's, cull'd out of the lump, and choſen in Chriſt, and not in our ſelves apart. Hence they the other mentioned ſtood upon their own bottom, and in a ſingle and naked relation unto God: and ſo God dealing with them but as meer ſingle creatures, according to that Law that paſſeth between the Creator and the ſingle Creatures, they fell and periſhed. But we were conſidered in Chriſt from the firſt, and therefore though we fall, we ſhall riſe again in him and by him; for he is a Common Perſon for us, and to ſtand for us, and is for ever to look to us, to bring us to all that God ordained us unto; and ſo this Foundation remains ſure. We are choſen in Chriſt, and therefore are in as ſure a condition (as for final periſhing) as Chriſt himſelf.

4. There is a Fourth end or ſubſerviency of it, That God looking on us thus repreſented in Chriſt, and bearing that relation to him, and he to us; God and Chriſt together might from that time delight in us, as you have it Prov. 8. Chap. and have a complacency between themſelves before-hand in us. But of this when we come to the 6th Verſe.

There

Serm. V. There are Two other things that go to make up this Interpretation of theſe words [Choſen in him] yet fuller; which are added by Some. I ſhall but name them now.

1. That we were Choſen in Chriſt as the Pattern unto whom we ſhould be conformed. God ſet him up as the Pattern, and drew us (as ſo many little Pictures) by him and his Image. He hath predeſtinated us to be conformed to the Image of his Son, Rom. 8. 29. That's the firſt, In him, as the Pattern of us.

2. [In him] (ſay ſome,) This Phraſe noteth out habitudinem cauſæ finalis, ſaid Anſelme long ſince, that he was the End of all thoſe whom God choſe. And therefore whereas ſome Copies have it [ἐν αὐτῷ,] others have it barely [αὐτῷ], which accordingly may be read [To him]. I ſhall meet with theſe two in the next Verſe, therefore I will no longer inſiſt on them here.

I will now give you (for all this is but a Doctrinal diſcourſe to open the words) ſome uſeful Obſervations.

Obſerv. 1. 1. Learn to give Jeſus Chriſt his full honour, which God his Father hath given him. It is a mighty honour, that he is the cauſe of all the grace and glory that you have, and ſhall have. But that he ſhould be the Common Head ſet up in Election too before the world was, this honoureth him much more: this ſetteth another Crown upon his head, and it is pity he ſhould loſe any honour that may be given him. Saith he, John 17. 5. Glorifie thou me with thy own ſelf, with the glory which I had with thee before the world was; that is, that glory which then, conſidered as God-Man, I had in thy repute and eſtimation, and which thou thy ſelf gaveſt me between Me and Thee, and which thou reſpectedſt me for; accordingly, (even as bearing that perſon of Head and Mediatour, which ere it be long I ſhall viſibly wear in Heaven) give it me now in the ſight of Angels and Men.

Now, ſince God thus glorified Chriſt then, do you likewiſe glorifie him in your hearts with that glory which he had before the World was: part of which you have heard what it was, namely, that which is proper to the Text, (for it would take up many Sermons to lay it all open.) Men are afraid to derogate from God, whilſt they give to Chriſt. But if we make God the ſole cauſe of Predeſtination, there is no danger of giving this honour unto Chriſt in the act of chooſing us, that God (as the Text hath it) ſhould chooſe us in him; This is the Fathers honour, that his Will was the womb wherein lay both Chriſt and We too: But this is the Sons honour, that the Father ſet him up from everlaſting as a Common Perſon for Us to be choſen in him; He choſe us in him, and never once conſidered us out of him.

Obſerv. 2. 2. Obſervation, or rather Inſtruction. Let God the Father have the glory of the Act, in that he is the Fountain, the firſt Mover in, and the ſole Cauſe of it. His will and good pleaſure did caſt it (for the ſubſtance of it) and ſingled out our Perſons, and ordained Chriſt an Head, and Us in him. And remember, that as this Election is unto this great priviledge, To be in Chriſt, and one with him (of all the higheſt, and fundamental to all other:) ſo that it is Election, a Choice, wherein others were left. God paſſed by not only multitudes of Perſons, whom he could have made (but did not); but alſo a vaſt number of thoſe whom he did ordain to be. And were you ſo choſen in Chriſt, as that God never purpoſed you a being but as in Chriſt, and then gave you this ſubſiſtence in Chriſt, never caſting a thought upon you out of him: then reckon of no other being, but what you have in Chriſt. Reckon not of what you have in Honours, or what you are in Greatneſs or Parts; but reckon of what you were in him before this World was, and of all the Spiritual bleſſings wherewith he then bleſſed you; and likewiſe of what you are now in him, by an actual Union, as then by a virtual and repreſentative one. Of him (namely God) you [are] in Chriſt, ſaith the Apoſtle in the fore-named place, 1 Cor. 1. 30. Conſider but the reference of the words to what was ſaid before, and you will find that there is no Being true and real to be valued by us, but in Chriſt. Of him you [are;] That Phraſe hath an Emphaſis in it; it is Verbum ſubſtantivum, relating to other things that ſeem to have a being, but are not. So ver. 27. God hath choſen the weak things of the world, to confound the mighty; things which are not, to bring to nought the things which are. There are other things ſpoken of; that [are,] and [are mighty] and great things in the Worlds eye, as Honours, Wiſdom, Strength, &c. (*ver.*26.) but glory not of theſe (ſays the Apoſtle,) as having any being; [Of him you are in Chriſt,] that (according as it is written) he that glorieth ſhould glory in the Lord, ver.31. Here is your being, and all the being you have; and (ſays he) reckon of no being elſe; glory in nothing, but only in this, that you are in Chriſt: For God choſe you in him; the being you had was in him before the World was. Serm. V.

And ſo much for that, which indeed is the greateſt difficulty I am like to meet with in this Chapter, or in this Epiſtle.

Now in the Second place, as it is ſaid, God hath choſen us in Chriſt; ſo the time when is ſpecified next, [Before the foundation of the World.]

There are two ſenſes which Divines (with whom I have met) do give of theſe words. (And I love ſtill to give the largeſt ſenſe that will hold.)

Firſt, (ſay they) [before the foundation of the world] ſignifies as much as from eternity. Why? Becauſe before the World was, there was nothing but Eternity. If you look paſt the World, you put your head up into Eternity. And to make good this Interpretation they cite John 1.1. where, when the Evangeliſt would expreſs, that Chriſt was Eternal, he ſays, He was in the beginning. And if he were in the beginning, at that very inſtant when the World was made, certainly he was from everlaſting. Therefore (further to confirm this,) *Prov.*8.23. Wiſdom ſays, I was ſet up from everlaſting; from the beginning, ere ever the earth was: Theſe three Phraſes (you ſee) are equivalent, and all one.

The Second Interpretation that I have met withal (in the works of ſome who are yet alive, and which Mr. Baines likewiſe hath) is this, That thoſe words do note out the order of God's decree, namely, that God choſe us in Chriſt in his own purpoſe, before the foundation of the world was laid in his decree or purpoſe; ſpeaking herein of God after the manner of men. Not but that God thought of all at once; for all his works are known to him from the beginning: But becauſe he did ſubordinate one thing to another; and ſo, he did intend and make the World for his Elect; and in that ſenſe he choſe Chriſt before them, and them before the world. They were ſet up (as the Phraſe is) firſt and primarily, in his aim and intention, and the world ſubordinately unto them.

And there is a Reaſon or two for this Interpretation; for otherwiſe, where it is ſaid, 1 *Pet.*1.20. that God did pre-ordain Chriſt before the foundation of the world: If the meaning were only this, Before the world began to be, and not before the world was in God's Purpoſe too; then there were no ſpecial thing ſaid of God's ordaining Chriſt: for (in that ſenſe) he likewiſe ordained the world before the world was; that is, he pre-ordained it to be, ere it did actually exiſt. But (ſay they) this Phraſe importeth a ſpecial love from God unto Chriſt, in that he thought of him before he thought of the world, and ordained the world meerly for him.

The other Reaſon is, That otherwiſe it were incongruous to compare things in a like ſtate with things in a different ſtate. When therefore the Apoſtle ſpeaks of God's Decrees, and of our election in compariſon of the world, he means the world as it alſo was in God's Decrees. And perhaps it may be one reaſon why the word [Predeſtination] and [Fore-knowledge] are uſed in Scripture, only of God's Decrees about Man, and not about the World. I ſhall only add a Scripture for the confirmation of this, 1 Cor. 3.22. Whether Paul, or Apollo, or Cephas, or [the world]; all are yours, and you are Chriſts, and Chriſt is God's. Mark here the order of things; God ordained Chriſt for himſelf, Chriſt is God's. He ordained you for Chriſt, You are Chriſts: And he ordained the world for you, Apollo, Cephas, and the World, all are yours. So that the World was ordained both for you, and for Chriſt, and for God himſelf alſo.

I will give you an Obſervation or two upon this place, and ſo paſs on to the next.

Serm. V.

Firſt therefore, If it be taken thus, that God choſe you from eternity; you ſee then that God's love is everlaſting. Do you therefore value it by the eternity of it, as Chriſt doth John 17. 24. Thou (ſays he) lovedſt me before the foundation of the world. Chriſt (you ſee) makes a great matter of it, and why ſhould not we? If a man were in love with a Maid when ſhe was a Child, and his love towards her grew up togother with her, it endears his love the more unto her. It is true of Love, as it is of Wine, that the older it is, the better it is.

Obſerv. 1.

Obſerv. 2. Secondly, Let God's love have the ſame valuation with you, that the love of God himſelf had of you. You ſee (according to the Interpretation given) that he choſe you before he purpoſed to make the world; he preferred you to all the world. We ſpeak not (as I ſaid before) of the priority of time; for all things came up at once before God, but of what his aim and intention primarily pitcht upon. The World was but caſt in, as he ſaith, Mat. 6. 33. All other things ſhall be [ſuper-added.] Have you the ſame valuation of God, and of his love? Thus David had, Whom (ſays he) have I in Heaven, but thee? And there is none to me on earth in compariſon of thee. Value God and his love more than all the world, though there were millions of them. He valued you before the world, and therefore is beforehand with you in his love. He not only loved you from everlaſting (whereas your love is but of yeſterday;) but in the valuation of it, he loved you before all worlds, and preferred you to all worlds: though you loved the world firſt, before you loved him, 1 John 2.15. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him. Why is not the love of the Father in him? Becauſe the Father loved us before the world was. And were a Mans heart taken with the love of the Father, certainly he would prefer it before all the world; for the love of God the Father preferred him before all the world. Overlook we this world, no matter what becometh of it, or of us in it. We look not (ſays ths Apoſtle) at things Temporal: look we to the other world, unto which God hath choſen and predeſtinated us.

Obſerv. 3. A Third Obſervation or Inſtruction: See the Reaſon why all things in this world do further God's decree of Election. All things work together for good to them that love God. In God's purpoſe and intention you came firſt up before the world, as you may ſee in that Chriſtian Inventory, 1 Cor. 3.22. (the place before cited) All things are yours, Paul, Apollo, Cephas, the World, things preſent, things to come, Life, Death, and all are yours; and good reaſon why, God choſe you before them all, and ſo plotted the buſineſs, that all things in this world ſhould be ſo marſhalled as to further and ſubſerve the decree of Election. He appointed that thou ſhouldſt be poor, another rich; thou low, another honourable; one man to be deformed, another beautiful; one man to have theſe and theſe croſſes and afflictions in the world, and another few or none at all. And all this variety is to further their ſalvation in a ſeveral way; all is ſubordinated unto Election. God ordained our Being and condition of living in this world, in ſubordination to that other world. James ſaith, He choſe the Poor of this world; but how? not as firſt fore-ſeeing them poor, and ſo pitching on them for ſalvation; but having choſen their Perſons nakedly and ſimply conſidered, he ordained they ſhould for the moſt part be poor, ſo to glorifie his Grace the more, (which is the end of Election:) and ſo he ordained whoſe Children we ſhould be, which yet is the original of our Being; this was not plotted firſt, and then we choſen to ſalvation; but we were choſen to ſalvation, and then God allotted or deſtinated the ſeveral Times we ſhould live in, who ſhould be our Parents, and what our conditions; and all as means ſubordinate to Election, ſo to illuſtrate his Grace the more. And therefore care not what thy Parentage, or what thy condition is here: Thou wert by God conſidered as that which he meant to make thee, even a brave and glorious Creature, ere ever the conſideration of what thy condition here ſhould be, came in; this eſtate of thine here being but the way unto that thy Country and Inheritance.

Obſerv. 4. In the Fourth place; See here the reaſon why nothing in this world can ſeparate a man from the love of God. What ſays the Apoſtle, Rom. 8. 38? He makes a mighty challenge, he challengeth Angels and Men, Dominions and Principalities, &c. all things in this world, and in the world to come: and I am perſwaded ſwaded (ſays he) that nothing ſhall be able to ſeparate us from the love of God. Why? He loved us before all Worlds: That's a good reaſon. Should my Covenant (ſays God) of Night and Day be loſt; Let this World run into confuſion; let Heaven and Earth ceaſe to keep their Laws, yet my Covenant with you ſhall not ceaſe. Why! I choſe you before all Worlds: Here's the reaſon, Hills ſhall remove, and Mountains depart; but my kindneſs ſhall not depart, (Iſai. 54. 10.) neither ſhall the Covenant of my Peace be removed. Why! Becauſe my kindneſs was before the Mountains, and before the Hills were brought forth, (as Wiſdom ſpeaks, *Prov.*8.) Serm. V.

5. Fear not the ruin of Kingdoms, nor of the World, for your Being depends not on either of them; God choſe you before all Worlds. Let Kingdoms totter, and Mountains be thrown into the midſt of the Sea, We have a Kingdom that cannot be ſhaken, Heb. 12. ult. And thus much for the Time of our Election.

III. For the End unto which God choſe us; the Apoſtle ſaith it is, That we might be holy and unblameable before him in love.

By [Holineſs] here is meant, either that imperfect holineſs of Grace, which we have in this life; or of that perfect holineſs, which we are ordained to in the World to come. It is evidently meant of both.

Firſt, Of that Perfect Holineſs in the World to come; and this principally: For (ſaith the Apoſtle) he hath choſen us to be holy and [blameleſs]. The word ſignifieth ſuch an Innocence as no man can juſtly carp at; [ἄμωμος] ſuch as a captious Momus cannot take exceptions at; nay, ſuch as God himſelf (who is more curious than Man) ſhall find no fault with, or blame in: [before him.] Therefore it muſt needs be meant of Perfect Holineſs, which he hath ordained us unto in Heaven: and (as I take it) is the ſame with that in the fifth Chapter of this ſame Epiſtle, *ver.*27. Chriſt will ſanctifie and cleanſe his Church, (which is for the preſent but imperfectly holy,) that he may preſent it to himſelf glorious, without ſpot or wrinkle, or any ſuch thing; but that it may be holy, and without blemiſh. It is the very ſame thing that here we are ſaid to be ordained to in the end. And God will do this, to the end that he may look upon us with pleaſure. Our Imperfect holineſs is indeed, Holineſs before him in truth and ſincerity; but it is not Holineſs before him without blame: It is not ſuch as he can fully and perfectly delight in. So that this is the meaning of the place, That God hath ordained unto all thoſe whom he hath choſen a Perfect holineſs, and that they ſhould be blameleſs before him; which one day they ſhall certainly be. Paul in the *Phil.*3.12. wiſheth that he might apprehend that, for which alſo he was apprehended of Chriſt Jeſus. What is that? A perfection in Grace. God (ſays he) gave me to Chriſt, that I might be perfectly holy: For (ſays he, *ver.*14.) I preſs towards the mark of the high calling of God in Chriſt Jeſus; if by any means I may attain to the Reſurrection of the dead. He endeavoured to be as perfect as the Juſt ſhall be at the Reſurrection, (ſo *ver.*11.) for that is it for which God gave him unto Chriſt. Chriſt took us to beſtow this upon us; and God ordained us unto this. God is ſo perfect in himſelf, and in his contrivements, that he looketh and pitcheth upon the perfection of his Works at firſt. When we were choſen by him, we came not up ſinful before him, or imperfectly holy as we are here; but God looked at the utmoſt end, what he would make us at the laſt; and ſo preſented us unto Chriſt. Now Chriſt upon that preſentation was ſo taken with our beauty, that never ſince can he abſolutely delight in us, until he hath ſanctified us and cleanſed us, and made us perfect, having neither ſpot nor wrinkle, as at firſt we were preſented to him.

Secondly, As he hath ordained us to Perfect Holineſs in the world to come, to be blameleſs before him: ſo he hath ordained us to Holineſs in this life (or elſe we ſhall never come to Heaven.) 1 Theſſ. 2. 13. He hath choſen us unto ſalvation, through ſanctification of the Spirit. You muſt run through ſanctification of the Spirit, or you ſhall never come to Heaven: You muſt be pure in heart here, or elſe you ſhall never ſee God. This is the leaſt intended of the two.

Serm. V.

But you will ſay, How can our Holineſs here be called Unblameableneſs?

I Anſwer, Yes, in ſome ſenſe it may be ſo called; namely, that Evangelically it is ſuch; for you are perfectly holy in deſire. You pray that God's will may be done on Earth as it is in Heaven: It is the deſire of every good Soul to be unblameable. Again, You may be ſaid to be unblameable, becauſe if you ſin, you make it up again by repentance. So that you ſee, how by Holineſs and Unblameableneſs are meant, both Holineſs here and hereafter.

Accordingly [Before him] hath a double ſenſe.

1. If you underſtand the Holineſs mentioned of Imperfect holineſs here; the meaning is, that true holineſs is not before Men, it is before God, who approveth of ſincerity only: ſuch as your Father Abraham was to you an Example of, *Gen.*17.1. Walk before me, and be upright. That expreſſion there is all one with this Holineſs before God here. If the heart be upright or ſincere before God, that is all one as to be holy before him. In Coloſſ. 3. Servants are bidden to do their Maſters ſervice as before God, &c. But I cannot ſtand upon this now.

2. If that Holineſs be underſtood of the holineſs of Glory, (as principally, if not only, it is) then [before him] hath two meanings, and both good.

The one is this; God hath ordained us to be holy in his preſence for ever, and there for ever to enjoy him, and delight our ſelves in that enjoyment. In thy preſence (ſaith the Pſalmiſt) there is fulneſs of joy, &c.

Or, Secondly, the meaning is this, That as we might delight in God, and enjoy his Face and preſence, ſo he might delight in us, we being perfectly holy before him, or in his account. The end of his chooſing us was, that we might be in his preſence, and he delight himſelf in us, and glory in his Creatures as made thus holy and thus happy by him. Dulce eſt amare, & amari; It is a ſweet thing to love, and be beloved again. God, though he loved his Children, yet could not reſt in that love, nor heighten it to a delight in them, till he had made them blameleſs in love before him; till he had made them perfectly holy like himſelf.

And then Laſtly, [In love] is added, as meant of perfect holineſs in Heaven, where there is no Faith, nothing but Love. And if you take it of Imperfect holineſs here, ſo all the Principles of true holineſs are nothing but love; Faith worketh by love. So that the Words may well bear both theſe ſenſes.

I ſhall now give you ſome Obſervations out of the Words, as taken in either ſenſe.

Obſerv. 1. Firſt, If this Holineſs here be meant of Perfect holineſs (as certainly it is,) ſee then what Heaven is: It is Perfect Holineſs and Perfect Love to God. To be Holy before him in love; this is the foundation of the Glory in heaven. If I ſhould ſpend Millions of years in deſcribing Heaven unto you, I could ſay no more, but only open theſe three things couched in the Text, Perfect Holineſs in God's preſence, and enjoying and loving of him, even as we are beloved of him. This is Heaven, and this is that which God hath pitched upon to bring us to. This is the chief thing in Election, in which work of God's he looks to this Unblameableneſs in Holineſs and Love before him, as the end of it.

Obſerv. 2. 2. In the Second place; whereas the Apoſtle in the next Verſe ſaith, [He hath predeſtinated us to the adoption of Children:] and in this Verſe foregoing it he ſaith, [He hath choſen us to be holy before him in love] (ſo putting Holineſs before Adoption;) This is the reaſon of it, Adoption is a priviledge of Ours, and does indeed contain all the Priviledges we have (as I may ſo ſpeak) for our ſelves: but Holineſs is that which is for God; it is to pleaſe and glorifie him, and therefore it is juſtly here put before the other. From whence we may obſerve,

That it is God's firſt aim, that we ſhould be holy before him; Let it therefore be our great care too. That which was firſt in God's eye, let it be chiefly in ours. Though we be ordained to Adoption and Glory, yet we were firſt choſen to be Holy before him in love.

Art thou Imperfectly holy? Comfort thy ſelf with this, That though thou beeſt now full of blame, and Men may lay many things to thy charge; yet God hath choſen thee to be one day holy and without blame before him.

him. Yea, thou maiſt comfort thy ſelf againſt Imperfect holineſs in this, That when God choſe thee, that firſt view he took of thee, that firſt Idea wherein thou wert repreſented to him, was, as he meant to make thee, even perfectly holy; ſuch thou cameſt up before him in his firſt intention about thee, even clothed with all thoſe Jewels and embelliſhments which he meant one day to beſtow upon thee. What is the reaſon that God is willing to pardon us, and that he pleaſeth himſelf in us now? He knows that though we be ſinful now, yet it will not be long ere we ſhall be perfectly holy before him. Chriſt cleanſeth us, to preſent us to himſelf a glorious Church without ſpot or wrinkle. Serm. V.

And on the other ſide, if it be meant of Imperfect holineſs, as the Means to the End, there may theſe two Obſervations be raiſed from that:

1. Without Holineſs here, there is no happineſs to be expected hereafter. Obſerv. 1. Without God's Mercy we cannot be ſaved; and without Holineſs we are not under Mercy, 1 Pet. 1.2. He hath choſen us to obedience of the Truth. And without Purity or Holineſs no man ſhall ſee God.

2. The ground of all true Obedience is Love, [To be holy before him in love,] Faith works by Love. As no duty is pleaſing to God without Faith, ſo neither without Love. It was not the Reaſon why God choſe us, but the End unto which he choſe us; [He hath ordained us to be holy before him in love.] Obſerv. 2.

There remains one Obſervation more, that is general to both Interpretations; namely, That the foundation of God's Love is not lovelineſs in us. Though in our Love we cannot love a Creature (as, not a Child) until it is and hath a Being; and not then neither, unleſs we ſee ſomething lovely in it, which may draw out our affections towards it: yet God can reſolve to love ſuch Creatures, as he can make thus and thus lovely, and ſo ordain them to be holy before him, that he may delight in them. He can therefore take things Poſſible (in reſpect of Being,) that is, which he can, or hath in his power to make and create; and he can aforehand reſolve thus and thus to love them, (which we cannot do.) And the Reaſon of this is, For that his Love is only from his own Will, as our being his Creatures alſo is: and ſo, the firſt Objects of Election may be Res creabiles, non tantùm quæ Actu creatæ ſunt & exiſtunt; Things that are lookt upon by him but as yet to be created, not only thoſe that are ſuppoſed actually to exiſt. Obſerv. 3.

SERMON VI.

EPHES. 1. 5, 6.

5. Having predestinated us unto Adoption by Jesus Christ for himself, according to the good pleasure of his will.
6. To the praise of the glory of his Grace, wherein he hath made us accepted in the Beloved.

THE Coherence of these words with the former stands thus; they contain a Second Instance of that General of his premised ver. 3. wherein the Apostle had said, That God had blest us with all Spiritual blessings in heavenly things in Christ. Now as in that Verse he mentioneth both an Act of blessing us [He hath blessed us,] and in the general or total speaks of certain Blessings themselves wherewith God hath blessed us [with All spiritual blessing in heavenly things in Christ:) so in these following Verses he accordingly instanceth in Particulars; namely,

1. Election, ver.4.
2. Predestination, ver.5.

Both which are Acts of Blessing us.

His first Instance is in Election, [According as he hath chosen us in him before the foundation of the world.] Here is the Act of Blessing, that God Chose us in Christ, and so blest us; for Blessing was joyned with Choosing, as a concomitant of it: God then giving us all Spiritual blessings when he chose us, (as out of other Scriptures I have shewed.) So that the meaning is, that then, and in that act of choosing, God thus blest us; and that particular blessing bestowed by that act, is, that we were blessed with a perfect holiness, (as it there follows,) That we might be holy and without blame before him in love.

The Second Instance he giveth is Predestination (having predestinated us unto Adoption, &c.] Herein again Predestination is the Act of blessing, and that from eternity: and Adoption is the particular Blessing wherewith we were blessed. And this is the fruit of Predestination, as perfect holiness is of Election.

Now as an Introduction to the opening of these words, you will expect I should first distinguish between [Chosen] and [Predestinated,] or between God's Election and Predestination. To Choose, is to single and cull out from others, or out of a common lump: And to Predestinate, is (in English) to fore-ordain, or fore-appoint to some end. Now how do these differ, as they were then done by God?

1. It may be there was no difference intended; but the Apostle being to repeat the same thing, or one and the same act, his scope being apart to mention those particular Blessings by that one word, as they are bestowed upon us by that one and eternal act of God's Love, he takes occasion about them to use two several words or expressions thereof, especially considering that those eternal acts of Choosing, Predestinating, &c. were all but one entire act in God: even as his Essence is one. And yet the Holy Ghost is pleased to express it by Two Acts; whereof the one notes out one thing more eminently, and the other another thing, so to convey all of it the fuller unto our apprehensions, according to this latter conception.

2. Some

2. Some diſtinguiſh them thus, That Election or Choice imports more eminently an act of God's Will, (for Choice is an act of Will;) but that Predeſtination is an act of his Underſtanding, as working by Counſel. So ver. 11. this ſeems explained [Being predeſtinated according to the purpoſe of him, who worketh all things after the counſel of his Will.] But more expreſly in Acts 4.28. [Whatever thy Counſel did fore-determine to be done;] the word is the ſame that is here, [προώρισεν.] So then the difference here ſhould be, that Election imports ſimply his Decree to the End; but Predeſtination ſhould further note forth God's contrivement or preparation of Means to the obtaining of that End. Serm. VI.

3. But though other Scriptures may hold forth this Second difference; yet that it ſhould be here in theſe two Verſes intended, I ſee not: For Adoption here is ſet forth to be an End as well as Holineſs; nor are there any Means in this Verſe mentioned. And of the two, Holineſs is rather a Means, or a foundation laid to Adoption, then è contra; and therefore Rolloc rather calls Election (as here uſed) the Decree of the Means, and Predeſtination the Decree of the End. But yet that this Notion of his ſhould be the Apoſtles ſcope here, I cannot wholly aſſent to neither; for the Holineſs unto which we are here ſaid to be choſen, is perfect holineſs in Heaven, which is the End we are ordained unto, as well as Adoption. And indeed, both of them are Decreta Finis, Decrees about the End, (as I ſhall afterwards ſhew.)

Wherefore the beſt difference that I can find out, and that is proper to the ſcope of the Text is, That Election, although it be a Decree about the End, or at leaſt one main End concerning what God ultimately meaneth to do with us, as well as in Predeſtination; yet together therewith it does eminently note forth a ſingling or culling out ſome Perſons with a ſpecial and peculiar love from others of the ſame rank and condition: both out of things poſſible, which God had in his knowledge, which his Power could have made, but he never decreed a Being unto, (which are as infinite as his Knowledge and Power are,) (and even out of theſe there is an Election;) as alſo out of all Perſons, whom he did make and actually give an exiſtence unto, both Men and Angels, of whom ſome he laid aſide, as in the caſe of the Angels is undeniable. So that Election being a preferring of ſome before others, doth connotate the Terminus à quo, the term or maſs of Perſons from which; but Predeſtination more eminently notes out the Terminus ad quem, the ultimate ſtate unto which we are ordained.

The proper object which Election is carried unto, are the Perſons. 'Tis of Perſons as of Perſons. He hath choſen us to bring us to ſuch an ultimate End, ordained for us.

And Secondly, Becauſe by this Election or firſt culling out from others, we are not ordained to a ſole and ſeparate Being in our ſelves, (ſuch as other Perſons, whom he decreed not to ſave, are only to have, they all ſtand upon their own bottom;) but a being in Chriſt, as a Common Perſon and Root to ſpring in and out of, and that in him we were conſidered and choſen to be in the very firſt act of God's chooſing us, (as in God's heart we may be ſaid to have ſtood, although until converted we have not an actual being in Chriſt, according to the Rules of the Word, which God will judge us by; but are without God, and without Chriſt, as Chap. 2. ſhews;) and therefore unto [Choſen] is added [in him.] That being the firſt act that gives us a ſubſiſtence thus in God's mind, and that in Chriſt. Hence therefore Election, the firſt act, having thus ſingled us out from all things, and decreed us a Repreſentative being in Chriſt, as Members in an Head together with our being: Predeſtination then further imports a Second act of ordaining us to a glorious well-being in him, as the end God means to bring us to. It adds Adoption, and by Adoption is meant the right unto the glory of Heaven (as I ſhall by and by ſhew you,) and this is beſtowed upon us as a Priviledge or Dignity, (ἐξουσία,) as it is called John 1.12. over and above our firſt being in him; for in him we muſt firſt be, ere we can partake of any thing through him. Now Election was the firſt Act that did put us into him; and then Predeſtination was that, which conveyed unto us all thoſe Priviledges which we have through him, and Union with him, whereof Adoption and Holineſs are the higheſt and moſt eminent.

To illuſtrate this we muſt know, that things muſt be purpoſed to have a being, ere they can be ſuppoſed to have a well-being from Chriſt; according to that Maxim of him, that is of the Father (whoſe work all this is,) of him you are

Serm. VI.

(and have a new Being in Christ,) which Christ is then made to us Wisdom; and many other Priviledges we have by him before we can come to have a well-being. In like manner, we must first be supposed to have a Being in Christ, (Of him ye are in Christ Jesus, 1 Cor. 1. ult.) ere we can be supposed to partake of any thing from him, or of any extrinsecal or intrinsecal Priviledge that is his, or that cometh from him. You know, ere a man can have any priviledge in the visible world, he must be a man, and a man, that is, a Son of the first Adam. God indeed hath given the world to the Sons of men, but yet the Conveyance and the Charter by which they hold it, is their coming from Adam by multiplication (as it is Gen. 1, 26, 28.) so as before any Soul, (if you could suppose it extant before it comes into the body) can come to enjoy the right or priviledge of any thing in this world, it must be by being united to a body that cometh from Adam by propagation, and so it becomes one of Adam's posterity. So is it here; Before ever you can come to have a right of Inheritance in any thing of the other world, you must first be supposed to be in Christ. Now Election is that which first gives you a being in Christ, and then God by the act of Predestination did appoint you a well-being through him.

Again, Look as God in his Decrees about the Creation, did not consider the body of Adam singly or apart from his Soul, nor yet the Soul without his Body; (I speak of his first Creation and state thereby,) neither should either have so much as existed, but as the one in the other: So nor Christ and his Church in Election, which gave the first existence both to Christ as an Head, and to the Church as his Body, which each had in God's Decrees.

And Holiness (which is the fruit of Election here) is the Image of God, and a likeness unto him, which makes us capable of Communion with him; as likewise in one Man unto another, makes him sociable and fit to converse with another Man his Superiour: So holiness for Communion with the great God; and therefore the Apostle saies, without holiness no man shall see God, nor indeed can see him, as Christ Joh. 3. Look as some Colours are the ground-work to the laying on of other, and all Colours to Varnish, so is grace a ground-work unto glory and Communion with himself. Look as Reason is the foundation of Learning, no man being able to attain it, unless he hath Reason: So we cannot attain the glory of Heaven, (which is meant by Adoption,) till such time as we have holiness, and perfect holiness. Without holiness no Man shall see God. So that holiness is the Image of God, which makes us like unto him; and fit for Communion with him, and Heaven is but Communion with God.

But then, if you ask me what Adoption is, it is plainly this; it is a right to the Glory of Heaven, and that is superadded to Holiness. We groan within our selves (saies the Apostle,) Rom. 8. 23. waiting for the Adoption, to wit, the redemption of our Bodies; that is, till we shall be brought to Heaven, and to that full and consummate glory there, which not only the Soul (now made perfect) hath; but which the Soul and Body together shall have when that last part of our Redemption is finished, in the Resurrection of the Body. And therefore it is expressed by the Redemption of the Body, it being that glorious state that follows thereupon. And this we are by Predestination ordained to, as the end that God would bring us unto. And so, some conjoyn those two, Adoption and Glory, Rom. 9. 24. that is, Glorious Adoption, or Adoption to Glory. And if you look into 1 Joh. 3. 2. you shall then see another place, where being the Sons of God, or Adopted, is put for Heaven. Behold, (saies the Apostle,) what manner of love the Father hath shewed us, that we should be called the Sons of God! Beloved, we are now the Sons of God, but it doth not yet appear what we shall be; for we know, that when He shall appear, we shall be like unto Him, for we shall see him as he is; even the Lord Jesus Christ in Glory. So then, Adoption contains all the great Dignity of a Christian in this life, but ultimately, and more especially, (as here) that fulness of Glory whereby we shall be like to Christ in His Glory; according to that in Joh. 17. 22. The Glory thou hast given me, I have given them. In a word, Adoption and Holiness here are all one with what the Psalmist speaks, He will give Grace and Glory; and no good thing will He withhold from them, &c. Perfect Grace and Holiness, that's the fruit of Election; and Glory added to Grace, (that's the varnish of it,) is meant by Adoption.

There is Adoptio imperfecta or incompleta, namely in the jus and Title to it, that is now bestowed.

on. And ſo you have the firſt thing, the difference between perfect Holineſs and Adoption. Serm. VI.

But then the main Queſtion remaineth, why is Holineſs made the fruit of putting us into Chriſt, or choòſing us; and why is Adoption or Glory made the fruit of Predeſtinating us, (for ſo you ſee the words carry it?)

You ſhall ſee a clear Reaſon for this, Holineſs muſt needs be the fruit, or conſequent of our being choſen in Chriſt; for it is Eſſential to a Being in Chriſt. It were an abſurdity to ſay that God did ordain a Man to be in Chriſt, and not ordain him to be Holy. Becauſe if God ordains him to be in Chriſt, he ordains him to be a Member of Chriſt, and the ſpouſe of Chriſt. Now the Head and Members muſt be homogeneal, and Husband and Spouſe muſt be of the ſame kind and Image. When Adam was to have a Wife, ſhe muſt be of the ſame Species, ſhe muſt have the ſame Image upon her. None of the Beaſts was fit to be a Wife for Adam, God brought them all unto him; but among them all there was not found a meet help for him, Gen. 2. 20. becauſe they had not the ſame Image that he had. And whoever has his Being from Adam, muſt likewiſe have Reaſon from him, as a neceſſary concomitant of ſuch a being. So if God chooſeth a Man in Chriſt, he muſt neceſſarily be Holy. And this is the reaſon why Holineſs is annexed to our being choſen in him, the ordaining us to be holy, being a natural and abſolutely eſſential conſequent of our being Elected in him.

But then, why is Glory the fruit of Predeſtination?

Now I have given you the reaſon of the firſt, the ſecond will eaſily follow. God might have made us perfectly holy in Chriſt, and not have added Glory to it. Rom. 6. 22. You have your fruit unto Holineſs (ſays the Apoſtle.) If there had been Holineſs, there had been fruit enough; but here is more,) [and the end everlaſting Life.] So likewiſe, here is Glory added to Holineſs as a further fruit and priviledge. Therefore as God by Election putteth us into Chriſt, ſo he hath---- a further buſineſs about us; he Predeſtinated us to Glory and to the Adoption of Sons in him. It is a new Grace, and therefore it is expreſſed to be the fruit of a new and ſecond Act, even Predeſtination. Plus eſt nos eſſe Filios quam eſſe Sanctos, ('tis Zanchy's ſpeech.) It is a further thing to be Sons then to be Holy, to have Heaven, and be received to the Glory of God, than to be partaker of the Holineſs of God. Predeſtination therefore is here ſaid to come over us after election a ſecond time; God addeth thereby Glory to Grace (as the Pſalmiſt ſpeaks) as a freſh new and ſecond Gift; for Gifts both, and each are by the Pſalmiſt ſaid to be, He will give Grace and Glory. Grace or Holineſs by Election, Glory by Predeſtination.

And here, ere we go any further, let us pauſe a little, and view the harmony that is between theſe things here in the 4. 5. verſes, with what the Apoſtle had ſaid before and uſhered this in by; he began in the 3. v. Bleſſed be the God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. When I opened thoſe words, I gave this meaning of them, That God is firſt and originally the God and Father of Chriſt, and ſo becomes our God and our Father, according to that in Joh. 20. 17. I Aſcend to my God and your God, to my Father and your Father. When I ſhewed you how he is the God and the Father of Jeſus Chriſt himſelf, I gave this difference, That he was the God of Chriſt as man, becauſe he choſe the Humane Nature unto that Dignity, nay he choſe the ſecond Perſon to be the Mediator, 1 Pet. 1. 20. and ſo was the God of Chriſt by Election; but ſuppoſing that man to have been once choſen and united to the Son of God, and he becomes his Father by the relation of having begotten his Son; and that relation becomes natural between his Father and him. But he is not thus to us a Father by a natural relation, as to Chriſt but wholly by Adoption (whieh of Chriſt muſt not be ſaid, and ſo by Predeſtination only, Who hath Predeſtinated us to the Adoption of Sons with difference from Chriſt. Adoption in us depends wholly and meerly upon Predeſtination and no natural relation. Again, as he is our our God ſo conſidered he chooſeth us te be holy before him, according to that expreſs ſaying, Be ye holy, for I the Lord your God am holy. As he becometh our Father in Chriſt, he predeſtinateth us to Adoption of Sons. Here are two relations God beareth unto us in Chriſt he is our God, and he is our Father, ſo v 3. and here are two acts of God towards us from Everlaſting that proceed from theſe, namely Election ordaining us to be holy in conformity to him as our God; Lev. 19. 2.

and Predeſtination to the Adoption of Children, as he that thereby would and did become a Father to us.

I conclude this with what Zanchy obſerves with what follows after. The two (ſaith he) acts of God for us, in this ver. 4 and 5. agreeth with thoſe words which follow in the 6. ver. [To the praiſe of the Glory of his Grace.] That God ſhould chooſe us in Chriſt to be perfectly Holy, there was Grace; but that he ſhould add Glory and Heaven and Son-ſhip unto it too, this (ſays he) is to the Glory of his Grace; and ſo he makes an Auxeſis of it, a further hightening of his love. That he not only choſe us to be Holy, but alſo Predeſtinated us unto Adoption and Glory. To the ſhewing forth, not only of Grace, (as in Holineſs he did, that being the Image of his Grace;) but, the Glory of his Grace, (as in Adoption; that being the Image of his Glory.) I will not much urge this, as here intended; I mention it only becauſe he adds it, and certainly ſome ſuch aim there might be, in that Aſpect which theſe words have to the former. And ſo I paſs to ſome Obſervations.

Obſerv. 1. In the firſt place, from what hath been ſaid; take notice how abſolutely neceſſary Holineſs is unto Salvation, which will appear to you out of what I have ſaid, by theſe four things.

Firſt, Not only that in theſe thoughts which God had towards us, he did firſt pitch upon Holineſs, and then upon Adoption or Glory, and ſo he preferred Holineſs to Glory; and ſo ſhould we prefer it to all other priviledges which we have by Chriſt.

But Secondly, That holineſs is a neceſſary and eſſential Concomitant to being in Chriſt, and all other priviledges ſuperadded. There was no thought to be had of being in Chriſt, without being holy: Look how incongrous and abſurd it, were to make a Beaſt a Son and Member of Adam; ſo incongruous and abſurd were it, to make one that is unholy to be a Member of Chriſt. God never at firſt caſt a thought on us to be in Chriſt, but with an intention that we ſhould be holy. He hath choſen us in him, to be holy, ſaith ver. 4.

Yea, (in the Third place,) God is not your God, unleſs you be holy; Be ye holy, as the Lord your God is holy. God (as I told you) becomes your God, by Election, as he becomes your Father by Predeſtination. If therefore, God be your God, then be you holy as he is holy.

And Fourthly, Grace is the foundation of Glory, there is not a thought to be had of going to Heaven without it; you muſt firſt be holy, ere you can be ſo much as capable of that glory; for the height and top of it is communion with God, and God is holy.

So you ſee from what hath been ſaid of Predeſtination, He hath Predeſtinated us unto Adoption; that is, a Son-ſhip in Law in and through Chriſt his natural Son. —— Do but think with your ſelves (by way of inference,) you that are Believers indeed, what your priviledges by your being in Chriſt will riſe unto, by conſidering what is, and needs muſt be included in this little word Sonſhip and Adoption; no leſs then all priviledges in this World and the World to come, every one of them in the preſent right to them, [now] ſays the Apoſtle, (now at preſent) we are the Sons of God, but what we (by vertue of this our being Sons) ſhall be, none in the World, nor we our ſelves can know; none do or can come to know the conſequents hereof. As we ſay of a mighty rich man, he knows not the end of his wealth; ſo we may ſay of a Mans being an adopted Son of God, none knows what this will bring a Man to in the end. If a Son then an Heir, a Coheir with Chriſt, yea an Heir of God; to poſſeſs and enjoy God, as Chriſt doth, I ſay as Chriſt doth; for ſo it follows in that of John, When Chriſt ſhall appear, we ſhall be like unto him; juſt like in our proportion as he enjoys God ſo ſhall we. Yea and over and above, he ſhall have all things into boot, I will be his God, and he ſhall be my Son; and what further follows upon being a Son? He ſhall inherit all things: God himſelf hath but all things, and thou ſhalt have all things too; and this is to be Predeſtinated unto Adoption. —— Brethren, think of your priviledges.

I have expounded what it is to be choſen in him, and what to be Predeſtinated to Adoption.

The

Serm. VI.

The Diviſion of the Fifth Verſe.

The reſt that follows in the 5 & 6th. ver. is to ſet forth the cauſes of this our Predeſtination; I call them cauſes in a large ſenſe.

1. The inſtrumental cauſe [Chriſt] by (or through) Jeſus Chriſt, for in and through a relation unto him it is, that we are Sons and Heirs of Heaven, as in that Rom. 8. it is declared, Coheirs with Chriſt.

2. You have the Principal Efficient Cauſe, and in him the mover of God thereunto, viz. the good pleaſure of his will, according (ſaith he) to the good pleaſure of his will; all is reſolved into that as the ſupreme firſt mover of all, and you in your thoughts are to attribute all to that, when you think of your being made holy or happy.

3. The final Cauſe both for whom and for what.

1. For whom,] and the word εἰς ἑαυτὸν is ſuch as will ſerve either to ſignify [for himſelf]; and ſo referring unto God the Father; or [for him] that is, for Jeſus Chriſt the Son of God, who is alſo together with the Father, one end of this our Predeſtination unto Adoption; therefore that which our Tranſlators tranſlate [to himſelf,] as referring to the perſon of God the Father, I would likewiſe render [for him,] that is, for Jeſus Chriſt, reading the words thus; who hath Predeſtinated us to Adoption by Jeſus Chriſt, [for him] as the ſecond end, for whom.

2. For what,] To the praiſe of the Glory of his Grace; ſo ver. 6. that is, for the glory of his grace who did Predeſtinate, which is God the Father.

And ſo you have the reſt of theſe Verſes Analyſed to you.

There is nothing queſtionable herein but only that I ſhould tranſlate it Predeſtinated to Adoption [for him,] and ſo to carry it to Chriſt, that he was intended as one final cauſe of our Predeſtination to Adoption as well as the inſtrumental; that is, that it was intended by God that contrived all in it, ſo as that it ſhould be for him as well as by him.

I will give you the ſeveral Interpretations or Readings of the words.

For himſelf.

1. There are ſome would Interpret it by ἐν ἑαυτῷ to this ſenſe, that he hath Predeſtinated us [in himſelf,] to ſhew that it was God's ſole act imminent within himſelf, and in that reſpect to give him the glory of it as the Contriver, &c. Within himſelf —— But this will not hold; for firſt it is harſh (in the phraſeology of it,) to render εἰς ἑαυτὸν by ἐν ἑαυτῷ.

2. That God was the cauſe of Predeſtination, we ſee how that followeth after, for the Apoſtle attributeth it unto his Will in the next words, [According to the good-pleaſure of his Will.] And certainly, in ſo brief an enumeration of cauſes, he could not uſe a Repetition. And therefore

3. Others read it (as here our Tranſlators have alſo turn'd it,) [unto himſelf] to this ſenſe; [Having Predeſtinated us unto Adoption to himſelf,] that is, to be Children adopted to himſelf.

Holy Bayne, not being ſatisfied with this laſt Reading of it, gives two Reaſons againſt this Interpretation. Firſt, (ſaith he,) that God did Predeſtinate us to be Children to himſelf, is ſufficiently implied in the ſole word [Adoption,] for to whom ſhould we be Children but to him? Not to Chriſt. Again Secondly, The Apoſtle (ſaith he,) doth not ſay, that He hath choſen us to be Sons, (in the Concrete,) but He hath choſen us unto Adoption (in the abſtract,) ſo the words in the Original do run. Now, (ſays he,) to add [to himſelf] unto [Adoption] (in the Abſtract,) that is not proper. If indeed he had ſaid, He hath choſen us to be Sons to himſelf, that had been proper; but the words run in that Tenor: And therefore Mr Bayne, to avoid this, rather choſe that Interpretation (which yet, of all is the worſt,) He Predeſtinated us in himſelf.

Serm. VI.

That Translation and Interpretation therefore which remaineth, is this, That God hath Predestinated us either [for himself] as the end thereof, or [for him,] namely Christ, as the end of Predestinating us to this Adoption. And the words will fully bear the one as well as the other, for the Preposition [εἰς] doth oft times signify, [For] as it doth denote the End or final Cause; as in the very next verse, ver. 6. [εἰς ἔπαινον δόξης τῆς χάριτος αὐτοῦ,] [To or For] the Praise of the Glory of his Grace,] as noting out the final cause; it is the same preposition there that is here used, as likewise is that Rom. 11. 36. [All things are of him, and through him, and [for him] [εἰς αὐτὸν] they are the same words.

But then, if that Particle [εἰς] be admitted to signify [For] as importing a final cause, the question will be, whether it be for himself; that is, for God the Father, that he should make himself the End: or whether it be for Christ, whom the Apostle had mentioned in the words immediately foregoing.

I confess, that when I expounded that verse in my Lecture, and long after that, when I first perfected my Notes upon that verse; I observed it not, as to such a purpose and issue, as I shall now further drive at. But I understood it then, as only to intend, that we were Predestinated [to and for Christ,] and to the glory of Christ, and so I handled it at large. But seeing the Greek word may as indifferently (with a variation of the aspirate) be rendred [to himself,] and so refer unto God the Father; And finding that the Scriptures do frequently express God's Electing of us, by choosing us to himself and for himself; as I found when I lately handled the Doctrine of Election. And that there was so much and so great a matter comprehended and contained in that expression; I have been thereby moved to take that Interpretation in also, it being a Rule I have always measured the Interpretation of Scripture by, (as I have oft professed,) to take Scripture phrases and words in the most comprehensive sense; yea, and in two senses, or more, that will stand together with the Context and Analogy of Faith.

Upon Rom. 11. 4. 5. & 6. verses.

Junius in his Conference with Arminius, apprehended some great matter beyond what was ordinarily pitch'd on, to lie intended in that small Word. But he not explaining what, but groping at it, Dr. Twiss, (who wrote the Defence of that Conference,) yet finds fault with him for obscurity, as not knowing what to make of Junius his meaning.

Others, (to whose interpretation our Translators seem to incline,) do give this as the sole sense of these words; That God Predestinated us unto Adoption of Children to himself. So as the whole intendment should be taken up in this particular, That he hath chosen us to be Children to himself; the word [to himself] referring only unto our being Children to him; that is, [His Children.]

But, (says Holy Bayne, as I observed,) it is not in the Greek said, That he predestinated us to be [Sons] to himself, in the concrete; but that he chose us to Adoption in the abstract. Now, says he, To have added, To Adoption, in the abstract To himself, is not so proper. Of which I have spoke before.

So that I understand the word [to Himself] not primarily or alone to refer to signifie Adoption of Children to him; but to refer distinctly and as immediately unto his having predestinated us, and separated us to his own great and glorious self, and for and to his great and blessed Son. And that to have been another distinct and larger end of his predestinating us than Adoption, over and above, and beyond that. And though that be as a special End mentioned first; yet that is but a more particular and lower End in comparison of this other, of God's predestinating us to himself.

Let us take up his meaning thus, as if he had said, He hath predestinated us to Adoption, that is one end or benefit rather: But which is more and further than that, He hath predestinated us even [to himself] also, in the full extent of what that will bear and hold forth. And truly, that which would further perswade unto this is, not only that it enlargeth the scope of the Text to the utmost amplitude; but also, that [by Jesus Christ] comes in between [unto Adoption,] and [to himself.] Whereas, if he had only intended that we were chosen unto Adoption, that is, of Children to himself, he would have placed them immediately together, and said, He hath predestinated us unto Adoption to himself by Jesus Christ; but he puts [by Jesus Christ] between the one and the other.

I. For

I. For Himſelf: The End of Election.

I ſhall, for an enlargement and confirmation of this, run over ſome places in the Old and New Teſtament wherein the ſame expreſſion is ſingly and in this general ſenſe uſed, That God choſe us for himſelf, and not limitedly unto this one particular unto Adoption to himſelf.

1. In the Old Teſtament, Pſal 4.3. Know that the Lord hath ſet apart him that is godly for himſelf. What is it to ſet apart, but to chooſe and ſever from the reſt, even as here in the Text, to Reſerve, doth imply?

2. And Secondly, Who was it that he ſpeaks of? David himſelf; whom elſewhere God had choſen, *Pſal.*89.19,20.

3. And Thirdly, For what, or whom did God chooſe him? Not to Kingſhip only, but [for himſelf] ſays that Text. And therein conſiſts the height, the top-glory of our Election, as it was of his. The word [Set apart] in the Hebrew ſignifies Magnifying or Exalting; and Ainſworth puts both together, and tranſlates it thus, Hath marvellouſly or wonderfully ſeparated. Now this great and wonderful exaltation lies in his ſeparating, chooſing us for himſelf. To have ſet us apart for Kingdoms, for all the Glories found in Heaven and Earth, had not been ſo much as to ſeparate us for himſelf; and agreeing with this is that *Iſai.*43. 20,21. My People, My Choſen: ſo he had ſtyled them in *ver.*20. And it immediately follows, v. 21. This People have I formed for my ſelf, they ſhall ſhew forth my praiſe; which latter words are explicative of the former, [My Choſen.] There is a double formation, one in and by Regeneration, &c. as that Phraſe, Till Chriſt be formed in you, ſhews. But this is but an imperfect formation; as thoſe words alſo imply: Nor is it all the forming of Chriſt in us that is yet to be, for it is to be perfected in Glory. But there was a foregoing one in God's everlaſting Decree of chooſing us, My People, My Choſen; and that is the greateſt formation of all. God's eternal Choice was the womb wherein this birth was firſt conceived, and therein perfectly formed as to what we ſhould be for ever. David ſpeaking of his body, maketh a double formation of it, *Pſal.*139. Firſt, one in the womb, which God ſaw and had an eye upon, that it ſhould be done according to his mind and model; and of this he ſpeaks *ver.*15. My ſubſtance was not hid from thee when I was in ſecret, and curiouſly wrought in the loweſt parts of the earth. The other in God's Decree, *v.*16. In thy book all my members were written. In like manner there is a double Spiritual formation of the Elect, and of their Souls: One in Election, which was the whole of what they ſhould be to his praiſe; therein it was that we were bleſt with all Spiritual bleſſings at once, God caſt the Mould of all we ſhould be: All formations in this life are but imperfect draughts, wrought by piece-meal, according to that pattern they are all, to eternity, but ſeveral degrees of perfecting and filling up the Idea of that firſt draught in God's heart, of what he choſe us to be, which he purpoſed within himſelf, *Eph.*1.11. In that Mould were all the prints engraven, which we were, by being caſt in, to bear the Image of. And in this reſpect he is ſaid in Iſaiah to have formed them, They ſhall ſhew forth my praiſe; which is the ſame tenor of language with *Eph.*1.5,& 6. Having predeſtinated us to himſelf, to the praiſe of the glory of his Grace.

If you deſire yet a plainer Scripture, wherein this phraſe is in terminis, applied unto God's chooſing his People as the end thereof, take that in *Pſal.*135.4. For the Lord hath choſen Jacob for himſelf, and Iſrael for his peculiar treaſure.

This for the Old Teſtament.

In the New you have the ſame, beſides this in the Epiſtle to the Epheſians, *Rom.*11.4. I have reſerved to my ſelf ſeven thouſand men, who have not bowed the knee to the Image of Baal. Here is a preſident of Election alledged of ſeven thouſand Men in Elijah's times, which is thus expreſſed there by God, I have left or reſerved to my ſelf,&c. And this in the fifth Verſe he expreſly terms An election of Grace: Even ſo then, at this preſent time alſo there is a remnant according to the election of Grace. His [Even ſo then] interprets God's mind in that ſpeech of his to Elijah, 1 Kings 19.18. by way of parallel, and manifeſtly ly shews his saying [I have reserved to my self] to be all one and equivalent unto [I have an election of Grace of seven thousand, whom by virtue of that Election and Separation to my self, I have kept from Baal's Idolatry;] and thereby plainly infers, His ultimate end in choosing was an Election to himself. But this I have elsewhere more largely opened.

Again, When Christ himself from heaven was pleased to give Ananias an account of his so dearly beloved Paul, the truth of his Conversion, to the end to assure him of it, he brings forth his own and God's having elected him; from whence, as the original of all, he had now effectually called him, and meant, and had designed to employ him in his greatest Services. And how doth Christ express his Election there? He is a chosen Vessel [to me] saith Christ, Acts 9.15.

So then, whether it be,

God the Father Predestinating us to himself, Or his Predestinating by Jesus Christ to him, that is, to Christ, we have warrant to apply it unto either; and by applying it unto both, we make up the full comprehensive intent of the Apostle in that speech.

I shall therefore in the handling speak to it,

1. As in relation to God himself.
2. As to Jesus Christ.

I. For Himself; that is, God the Father.

What it carries with it as it relates to God the Father.

1. It notes out a special propriety; These I have chosen or reserved for my self, is as to say, These I have laid my hands upon to be Mine. In that of *Isai.*43.21. forecited, he had said just at the verse before, The beasts of the field shall honour me; that is, they in their kind. And in another place, *Psal.*50. he sets his mark upon them (as men do on their Cattle) they are his *v.*10. For every beast of the Forrest is mine, and the Cattle upon a thousand hills: I know all the fowls of the Mountains, and the wild beasts of the field are mine: and so shall honour him in their kind. I, but these are My People, My Chosen; I have formed them for my self, &c. and are therefore dignified by being styled The first-fruits of his Creatures, Jam.1.18. Consecrated to him out of the whole, *Jer.*2.3. Israel is holiness to the Lord, the first fruits of his increase. Observe,

First, That He, the Great God, though most blessed of himself without any of his Creatures, and needed not have made them; yet he says of the whole lump, Ye are mine: as if a rich man should say of his goods of his own getting, These are my increase. But,

Secondly, Of his Chosen people he says, These are the first fruits of my increase, and holiness to the Lord: Not only denoting their duty of devoting themselves, and all they are, unto his glory; but furthermore it denotes his consecrating them to himself, as *Numb.*18. in the Type explains it. Our Saviour Christ, in *John.*17.9. makes a great matter of this, of God's taking them to be his; I pray for them: I pray not for the world, but for them which thou hast given me, for they are thine. He had spoken before of a world of other men, whom he professeth not to pray for; but limits himself to that peculiar Company who were his by Election, the first fruits of the whole; Who, says he, were thine, and therefore also Mine. By so vast a difference made between them and the world, as that he should profess to lay out the strength of his Mediation for them, and not for the other; and that upon this ground and Motive, For they were Thine, Oh Father! He gives it as the Reason that moves him so to do; and that which Christ considers in our behalf, as that which had wrought so great and special an affection to us, how greatly ought it to affect us! Now how is it that they are made his, but by choice and election? For otherwise all the World is his. And you have this in Paul likewise, The Lord knows them that are his. Which special propriety set upon them, and owning of them as his, is equivalent as to say, They are God's Elect, Rom.8.33.

2. It is a Choosing us to be holy before him; a consecrating us unto his service and worship. And this is especially instanced in, and aimed at in *Rom.*11.4.

which I forecited; Theſe, ſays he, I have reſerved to my ſelf, whilſt he left the reſt unto the worſhipping of Baal; but theſe I have reſerved to cleave unto, and worſhip me in purity and in truth. And beſides what is here, Heaven is an everlaſting perpetual worſhip of God. Thus alſo in Paul's inſtance, Acts 9.15. there is his particular deſignment unto bearing Chriſt's Name and Sufferings for him; for which he is, in a ſpecial manner, ſet out as a choſen Veſſel; He is a Choſen veſſel unto Me, to bear my Name before the Gentiles, and Kings, and the Children of Iſrael.

3. It is to Chooſe them for his Glory; for his Glory, as manifeſted, is ſaid to be Himſelf; which therefore he ſays, He will not give to another: And here in the following Verſe it is added, Unto the praiſe of the Glory of his Grace. Of which I have ſpoken elſewhere, as it is conjoyned with his chooſing us for himſelf. But,

4. That which I moſt pitch upon as intended in this expreſſion, is his deſigning us to the neareſt Oneneſs and entire Communion with himſelf. A man chooſeth Goods, and Dwellings, and Servants for his uſe; and Kings uſe to make a collection of Rarities and precious things for their ſpecial delight, Eccl. 2.8. Yea, but to chuſe a Spouſe, a familiar intimate Friend (as Zabud is called Solomons Friend, 1 Kin. 4.5.) impors ſomething higher. And further, It is one thing for a King to chooſe to ſuch or ſuch an Office or Dignity; as to chooſe his Lord Chancellor, Treaſurer, Chief Juſtice, &c. that is a choice unto things, to places, and but to outward priviledges only; but 'tis another thing to chooſe his Wife to lie in his boſom, to be one fleſh with him, and another ſelf with himſelf; or an intimate Companion, to be as one Soul with him. This latter is to chooſe to and for himſelf, and for his own perſon, and unto the higheſt communion with himſelf, and a participation of himſelf; the other is but to outward honour, and for his buſineſs, his ſervice, and the like. It is in ſuch choices for himſelf, in which the grace and favour of a King in chooſing is moſt ſeen and ſhewn; That is a choice indeed!

This Head I have largely run out upon in that part of a diſcourſe about Election, That God hath made it his top and ultimate deſign in Election to ordain us unto a Super-creation union with himſelf, and an immediate communication of himſelf; unto which I refer the Reader for the reſt.

[II. For Him, that is, For Jeſus Chriſt.]

In the Interpretation before, I ſaid, the words εἰς αὐτὸν would bear either, For himſelf, as referring to the Father; or For him, referring to Jeſus Chriſt, laſt mentioned. And the Holy Ghoſt intended both theſe ſenſes; but yet, if we were to chooſe but one, this would make me think Chriſt rather to be here intended, than God the Father; becauſe the Father's being the end of Predeſtination unto Adoption, follows after, [To the praiſe of the glory of his Grace,] namely, of the Father, whoſe free Grace is thereby magnified; although it muſt be alſo acknowledged, that his ordaining us for Chriſt, is to the glory of his Grace alſo.

So then let us conſider, Whether it may not be intended of Chriſt, [εἰς Χριστὸν] [for Chriſt;] for which there are theſe Reaſons.

1. The words [αὐτὸν] and [αὑτὸν] are promiſcuouſly uſed, either for [Him] or [Himſelf.]

2. I find that many Copies do ſo read it, [εἰς αὐτὸν] [for him,] even for Chriſt: So the Vulgar Edition. And ſo ſome Interpreters of all ſorts do carry it; as Cornelius à Lapide, the Jeſuit; Vorſtius, Stapulenſis, Caſtilio, Lubin, and Others.

3. And to conclude all, There is this Reaſon for it, If Jeſus Chriſt were in Predeſtinating us aimed at by God, as an end thereof, (as I ſhall preſently make good unto you,) then certainly he may be ſuppoſed to come in here; and ſo he doth, where the Holy Ghoſt ſets himſelf to enumerate all the cauſes of Predeſtination, he mentioneth God the Father as the End of it; over and above or beſides, in thoſe words, [To the praiſe of the glory of his Grace.] And if Chriſt ſhould not come in here, he ſhould come in no where, as a final cauſe. He cometh in as a Common Perſon, that is, as our Head, in thoſe words [Having elected us in him;] alſo as a Means, in thoſe words [Having predeſtinated us unto Adoption by him;] but as an End, together with his Father, no where cometh in, unleſs here by tranſlating theſe words [εἰς αὐτὸν] [for him.]

Serm. VI.

I come now to ſome Obſervations; the firſt of which ſhall be a General one, (there being three following more particular, to make up this General one,) which is this.

Obſerv. 1. I. See here the fulneſs of Jeſus Chriſt; We are Elected in him (ſo ſays *v.*4.) as a Common Head: ſo we are Predeſtinated to Adoption [by] or [through him:] ſo ſaith the fifth Verſe; and we are predeſtinated likewiſe for him, (as it follows in the ſame Verſe.) He is made in God's aim the end for which he did predeſtinate us, as well as the glory of his own Grace. Take notice of Chriſts Fulneſs; theſe three things being attributed unto him, [in him,] [through him,] and [for him;] that's his honour: But the Father hath this peculiar honour above him, That all things are ſaid to be [of him,] ſo *Rom.*11.ult. [Of him] and through him, and to him are all things. Now in Chriſt, and through Chriſt, and for Chriſt are all things; but not of Chriſt. God the Father, as he is Fons Perſonarum, the Fountain of the other two Perſons: ſo he is the Fountain and firſt Mover of all the works of the other Perſons; their motion comes from him. You have the ſame thing expreſſed by way of difference between God the Father, and Chriſt. 1 *Cor.*8.6.There is but one God, the Father, [of whom] are all things, and we in him; and one Lord Jeſus Chriſt [by whom] are all things, and we by him. So alſo 2 *Cor.*5.18. All things are [of God] who hath reconciled us to himſelf [by Jeſus Chriſt]. I will only caſt in this further Obſervation, That as here in the matter of Election, about our ſalvation, the honour of theſe three are given Chriſt, [in him,] [through him,] and [for him:] So the ſame three are likewiſe attsibuted to him to expreſs his influence into the matter of Creation and common Providence towards all Creatures. In that 1 Coloſſ. (an Epiſtle of kin unto this,) *ver.*16. Ἐν αὐτῷ, δι αὐτοῦ, εἰς αὐτὸν πάντα· In him, for him, and through him all things are ſaid to be created: (Of which I have ſpoken elſewhere.

This General being premiſed, I come to the Particulars that here make up Chriſt's Fulneſs.

I have before explained to you, How we are Choſen in him; and ſhall now further open what theſe two hold forth of Glory unto Chriſt, that we are predeſtinated to Adoption [through him,] and [for him]

Theſe words [εἰς αὐτὸν] will firſt of all bear this ſenſe [ad illius exemplum] [after his example or pattern.] And if that Phraſe ſhould not bear ſo much, yet this will, being predeſtinated to Adoption [through him,] the meaning is, That Chriſt being the Natural Son, we are made Sons like him; even as in many other things, in that whieh he is in himſelf; we are made the like in him, and conformed therein to him. Is he Choſen! ſo are we; thus *ver.*4. Is he Beloved! ſo are we, *ver.*6. He firſt, and then we in a conformity to him; even as is he a Son, ſo are we in him, *ver.*5.

1. The firſt Particular then is, That Jeſus Chriſt was ſet up by God, as the Exemplary cauſe of us in our Predeſtination. The meaning whereof is this; I will (ſays God) make thoſe whom I chooſe in Chriſt, to be like unto him; he ſhall be their Pattern. He is my Natural Son, and I will make them my Sons through him.

To prove that this is intended in this our being predeſtinated to Adoption through him, I will only give that place in *Rom.*8.29. Whom he foreknew, he alſo predeſtinated to be conformed to the Image of his Son; That is, God did ſet up Chriſt as the Proto-type and principal Maſter-piece, and made us as little Copies and Models of him. That Chriſt came, and took frail fleſh in this world, and ſuffered unto death (as he did) therein we were his Patterns, he was conformed unto us in that. He had never come into this world, had we not firſt fallen into ſin, and brought a frailty upon our Nature. Heb. 2. 14. Foraſmuch as the Children are partakers of fleſh and blood; (that is, of the frailty of Man's Nature; [Fleſh and Blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God]) he himſelf likewiſe took part of the ſame. Here now our frailty is made the Pattern of his: So likewiſe *Rom.*8.3. He ſent his Son in the likeneſs of ſinful fleſh. Becauſe we ſinned, and ſo ſubjected our ſelves to frailty, therefore God made his Son like us. Mark the Phraſe there uſed, God ſent him [in the likeneſs of ſinful fleſh.] But though we were Patterns to Jeſus Chriſt himſelf in all matters of frailty frailty that befel him in his way to Heaven, (wherein yet in another ſenſe, he is a Pattern to us, in regard of the meaſure of Afflictions wherein he exceeded; and therefore we are ſaid to be conformed to him in ſufferings; yet I ſpeak in reſpect of what was the conſideration upon which God's ordaining of Chriſt unto affliction and frailties was firſt founded, and that was, becauſe we had ſinned and became frail; and ſo foraſmuch as we partook of fleſh and blood, he took part of the ſame.) But take Chriſt as now in his glory, and inveſted with all his Priviledges, as he is the Son of God, and as perfectly holy, &c. and thus he is our Pattern. We are now the Sons of God (ſaith the Apoſtle,) but it appears not what we ſhall be; but this we know, we ſhall be [like him] when he ſhall appear. I could amplifie this unto you in the firſt and ſecond Adam's conformity one to the other, from that place 1 Cor. 15.49. As we are conformed to the image of the firſt Adam; he was earthly, and we are earthly; ſo we are to be conformed to the image of the ſecond Adam; he is heavenly, and ſo are we to be. Serm. VI.

And as Chriſt was thus ſet up by God, as our Pattern and Exemplar in our Predeſtination: So

2. He was ſet up as the Means or Virtual Cauſe through whom, (that is, by vertue of whom) God would adopt us by Union with him. Jeſus Chriſt (you know) is himſelf God's Natural Son; but how ſhall we come to be Sons? Thus God putteth us into Chriſt, he chooſeth us to be in Chriſt, to be married to him, and he betrothed us to him from everlaſting; (for Jeſus Chriſt then betrothed himſelf unto us, when in Election he undertook for us with his Father,) and ſo we become Sons in Law unto God. So that Jeſus Chriſt is the Inſtrument or rather virtual cauſe by, or through whom God makes us ſons. Even as a Woman comes to be a Mans Daughter in Law, by Marrying his Son, or by his Sons, Betrothing himſelf to her. So are we Sons in Law unto God, (as the word [Adoption] plainly ſignifieth,) even by a poſitive Law; and this by Marriage with his Son, which makes the Relation nearer and ſtronger then thoſe kind of Adoptions among Men do, when Marriage with a Child is not added to it.

Now, How is this being Adopted through him to be underſtood? Of being made ſons through his Merits, or through the mere Relation to his Perſon?

I anſwer? Through the Relation to his perſon, and Chriſt his being a Son. I am (in this) of Learned Mr. Forb's his mind; That Adoption as Primitively it was in Predeſtination beſtowed upon us, was not founded upon Redemption, or Chriſt's Obedience; but on Chriſt's perſonally being God's natural Son. Our Juſtification indeed is built upon his Obedience and Sufferings, as verſe 7. hath it; in whom we have Redemption, even the forgiveneſs of Sins [through his Blood.] But our Adoption is through his being the natural Son of God, and we his Brethren in Relation to his Perſon. To explain this; God ordained us to communion and fellowſhip with Jeſus Chriſt in all things, ſo 1 Corinthians 1. 9. and ſo to partake of all his dignities, and whatever elſe in him we were capable of; as of all things in him, ſo likewiſe things even as they are in him, both in reſpect of order; that in that order they are in him; are they alſo intended unto us; and alſo in ſuch manner as that which is beſtowed on us doth anſwer to what is in him, and likewiſe in reſpect of cauſation; that any thing which we have anſwering unto what is in him, is ſtill founded upon that which is in Chriſt anſwering thereunto.

Now, as this Priviledge, to be the natural Son of God, was firſt in Chriſt himſelf, and was the foundation of Merit in him. So this grace to be God's Adopted Son, is firſt intended and founded upon his being God's natural Son; and then after that was intended, what is the fruit of Chriſt's Merit, namely Juſtification founded upon his obedience.

Only let me add this caution, That we having indeed loſt all our Priviledges, Chriſt was fain to purchaſe them anew. And ſo indeed 'tis true, that Adoption and all the reſt are the fruits of his Merits, as actually they come to be beſtowed. Therefore the Apoſtle Galat. 4. 5. ſaith, that He redeemed us, [that we might receive the Adoption of Sons,] mark the Phraſe; [that we might [receive] Adoption.] Our Sins and Bondage under the Law and Curſe of it were an Obſtacle and impediment why God could not actually beſtow Adoption. And ſo indeed it is true, that our receiving Adoption depends upon Redemption; yet ſtill intended it was, and founded upon our Relation to Chriſt's Perſon as he is God's Natural Son, and we married unto him. And ſo, when Sins are by his Merits done out of the way, then this comes to take place. And ſo juſtification is by Junius rightly called Via Adoptionis.

Now then, Election that gave us Relation to Chriſt, did put us into him, God choſe us in him. And then came Predeſtination, and gave us this Priviledge. Is Chriſt my Son (ſays God?) They ſhall be my Sons too; they ſhall be like him. Is he my Heir? They ſhall be Heirs, and Co-heirs with him. And this may help to ſolve that Queſtion among Divines, whether Adoption, or Juſtification be the firſt benefit. For (I anſwer) that in God's intention of beſtowing it from everlaſting in Predeſtination, Adoption is the firſt, as being founded upon our meer Relation to the Perſon of Chriſt; and this, without the conſideration of Merit. But for the actual beſtowing it upon us, Pardon of Sins goes firſt. We are Redeemed from under the Law, that we might receive the Adoption of Sons; and that God might own us as ſuch, ſo Joh. 1. 13. To as many as believed he gave this Priviledge, that they ſhould be the Sons of God.

Now, take notice of this difference, to ſee your priviledge yet further, as you are in Chriſt. Adam was Created Holy, perfectly Holy; and Luke 3. ult. we read that he was the Son of God, but no where, that he was the Son of God by Adoption through Chriſt. In the 38. of Job. the Angels are called Morning Stars and Sons of God; but no where are they called ſuch by Adoption through Chriſt. They were Sons indeed, per gratiam Creationis, becauſe God made them, and in his own likeneſs, and ſo, by Creation was their Father; but they are not Sons per gratiam Adoptionis, eſpecially not in Chriſto, vel per Chriſtum. (as Divines ſpeak,) they are not Sons by the grace of Adoption, nor Sons in Law of God by being married unto Chriſt. No, this is proper only to Believers. Now conſider the greatneſs of this Priviledge. What ſays David, Is it a ſmall thing to be Son in Law to a King? You may haply be a King's favorite or Creature (as the term is) he may make you great; but to make you his Son in Law by Marriage of his Daughter, this is a further and more Royal Priviledge. The Angels are God's favorites and Creature; he made them what they are: But we exceed them, we are his Sons, by being put into his Son Chriſt, and by a relation to his perſon. To which of all the Angels hath itat any times been ſaid, you are Adopted Sons through Chriſt? and which of them hath Chriſt called Brethren? I will not ſay it is the meaning of that place, Heb. 12. 22. (I will but ſuggeſt it,) You are come (ſays the Apoſtle,) to the Heavenly Jeruſalem, to an innumerable company of Angels, to the general Aſſembly and Church of the Firſt born that are written in Heaven. Why are we called God's Firſt-born, (for the Apoſtle ſeems to intend the Church of Elect men as diſtinct from the Angels, for he had mentioned them before,) but becauſe that as Jeſus Chriſt is called God's Firſt-born comparatively unto us, he being God's Natural Son; ſo it may be that we are called God's Firſt-born in compariſon of the Angels, in regard that we have a higher priviledge of Sonſhip then they have? For we are Sons through Chriſt. God hath predeſtinated us unto the Adoption of Sons through Chriſt.

And ſo I come to the third thing in the Text. That as we are predeſtinated unto Adoption through Chriſt, ſo alſo for Chriſt. So that Jeſus Chriſt is likewiſe the end which God ſet up in predeſtinating us to this Adoption and Glory, and to perfect holineſs. And this is the higheſt honour of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. It is a point of ſome difficulty; and therefore I ſhall ſomewhat the longer inſiſt upon it.

The meaning of it is this; God having a Natural Son, the ſecond perſon in the Trinity, whom he would make viſibly glorious in an Humane Nature, through an union of it with this Divine Nature, or ſecond perſon; which Humane Nature ſhould by that union become his Natural Son. Now upon the glorifying this ſecond perſon did God's Decree primarily pitch, and for his greater glory, ordained us to be Adopted Sons through him, and as Brethren unto him; for, ſhould he be alone? No, God will have his Natural Son to have fellows; and therefore he predeſtinateth others for him, to be his Companions; Thus Pſal. 45. 7. they are called; God (ſaith the Pſalmiſt unto Chriſt,) hath anointed thee above thy [fellows] or Peers. As Zach. 13. 6. The Man Chriſt Jeſus is called God's fellow. So in this Pſalm we are called Chriſt's fellows. And therefore God hath predeſtinated ſtinated us to Adoption of Sons, as through him, ſo for him, that he might have company in Heaven (to what end you ſhall ſee by and by.) He is God's Fellow; we are his Fellows. He is God's Natural Son; we are Sons by marriage with him. John 12. 24. Jeſus Chriſt compares himſelf to a Seed, which (ſaith he) if it dies not, it remains alone. His ſpeech implies, that he was loth, and had no mind to be in Heaven alone; No (ſays he) I will have Fellows there. Chriſt was to have company in Heaven with him: And you ſhall ſee how this tended to the glory of Chriſt; for he is made the end of this Decree of Us and Our Adoption. Serm. VI.

1. To greaten his glory and excellency the more, by compariſon with younger Brethren, that his glory might the more appear, (as by compariſon things do;) in that he is, as *Rom.*8.29. The firſt-born among many Brethren.

2. God did ordain other Sons beſides him, for Him as the End, that there might be thoſe about him, who might ſee his glory and magnifie him; as you have it *Joh.*17.24. God had given Jeſus Chriſt (by chooſing him to the Union with our Nature) an infinite glory. Now, ſays Chriſt there, Father, I will that they whom thou haſt given me be with me where I am, that they may behold my glory. And in 2 Theſſ. 1.10. it is ſaid, that Chriſt ſhall be glorified in his Saints, and made wonderful in them that believe. Thoſe that believe are for this end, that Chriſt may be made wonderful in them, and alſo to them. And at the 10*th* Verſe of that 17 of John, I am (ſays Chriſt) glorified in them.

3. God thus ordained us to Adoption, that Chriſt might be glorified by being the cauſe of all our glory by Adoption, and in that all we have we have it through him, as it is here. And reaſon good that he ſhould be the end of all, through whom we were to have all, and that we ſhould be for him. So Rom. 11.36. they are conjoyned, [Through] him and [for] him are all things; namely, through and for God (of whom the Apoſtle there ſpeaks.) And ſo it is ſaid of Chriſt, [δι' αὐτοῦ,] and [εἰς αὐτὸν,] as being therefore for him, becauſe through him. In Coloſſ. 1.16. you read, that God created all things in him and for him. I have ſhew'd in another place, that it is meant of Chriſt, as ſuppoſed to have an Human Nature. And it followeth at the 18*th* Verſe of that Chapter, That he is the Head of the Body, the Church, who is the beginning, the firſt-born from the dead: that in all things he might have the preeminence. God ſet him up to be the Head of the Body; and if he be the Head of his Members, he is then their End: This I gather out of 1 Cor. 11.3. compared with Verſe 9. The Head of every man is Chriſt; and the Head of the Woman is the Man; and the Head of Chriſt is God: part of the meaning whereof is, that God ordained Chriſt for himſelf, Man for Chriſt, and Woman for Man; which is manifeſt by comparing this with what is ſaid at the 9*th* Verſe, The Man was not created for the Woman, but the Woman for the Man: (He having ſaid before, that the Head of the Woman is the Man.) He ſpeaks this indeed of Chriſt's priority to Man in common by the Law of Creation; therefore he ſays, The Head of [every Man] is Chriſt, not Believers only; yet I may well draw the like Argument from that his common natural relation of Headſhip to every man, into this his ſpecial relation of being an Head to his Church: That if he be their Head, that then they were created for him; they were ordained for him, and not he for them. Adam (you know) was Chriſt's Type; now he was not made for Eve, but Eve for him. And look what Adam was in Creation, that was Chriſt in Election, when we were put into him. God firſt made Adam; and then ſeeing it was not fit for Adam to be alone, he brought Eve as a companion for him: So did God bring the Church unto Chriſt, as a meet companion for him; for it was not meet that he ſhould be alone: and ſo we were choſen for him. As therefore the Woman is called the glory of the Man in the ſame 1 Cor. 11. ſo are the Saints called the glory of Chriſt, 2 Cor. 8.23. and John 17.10. I am glorified in them (ſays Chriſt,) &c. So that in Election Chriſt held the Primacy, the Firſt-hood; as in Dignity, ſo in Order; in that we were ordained for him. And ſo it follows in the concluſion of all in that Coloſſ. 1.18. That in all things he might have the preeminence.

Serm. VI. Now to enlarge this a little; In the Decrees of Election the conſideration of Chriſt, as to aſſume Man's Nature, was not ſimply or only founded upon the ſuppoſition or the fore-ſight of the Fall, as if occaſioned only thereupon. For beſides what the former Explication of thoſe words, that we were [Choſen in him] does afford; this alſo, That we are predeſtinated for him as the End of all, gives a ſufficient ground againſt ſuch an affection. Now mark my expreſſion: I ſay, not only upon the conſideration and fore-ſight of the Fall; and that upon this ground, that all things were predeſtinated and created for him. Whereas to bring him into the world only upon occaſion of Man's ſin, and for the work of Redemption, were to ſubject Chriſt unto us, as he was to be Incarnate and Hypoſtatically united to an Human Nature; and to make us the end of that Union, and of his Perſonal dwelling in that Nature: Whereas he, as ſo conſidered, is the End of us, and of all things elſe. This were alſo to have the Perſon ordained for the benefits, (as Redemption, Heaven, &c.) which we were to have by him; which are all far inferiour to the gift of his Perſon unto us, and much more to the glory of his Perſon it ſelf. His Perſon is of infinite more worth than they all can be of.

Neither yet (on the other ſide) do I, or dare I affirm, that Chriſt ſhould have been Incarnate, and aſſumed our Nature, though man had never fallen; becauſe all things are ordained to fall out no otherwiſe than they do. God therefore never made ſuch a ſingle Decree alone, that Chriſt ſhould come into the world; but as always having the Fall in his eye, and his coming to redeem alſo. I account that Opinion as great a Chimera and fiction as many of thoſe School-Queſtions and Diſputes, What ſhould have fallen out if Adam had ſtood, &c. which are cut off with this, That God never ordained his ſtanding. This is all that I affirm in this Point, That God in ordaining Chriſt the Second Perſon to aſſume an Human Nature, had not Chriſt in his eye only or chiefly as a Redeemer; but withal lookt upon that infinite glory of the Second Perſon to be manifeſted in that Nature through this aſſumption. Both theſe ends moved him; and of the two, the glory of Chriſt's Perſon in and through that Union had the greateſt ſway, and that ſo, as even Redemption it ſelf was ſubordinated to, and ordained for the glory of his Perſon, as the end of all firſt and chiefly intended.

I ſhall open it unto you thus; When God went about to chooſe Chriſt and Men, he had all his Plot before him in his underſtanding, through the vaſt Omniſciency of that his Underſtanding, (by Divines called, his Simple Intelligence) which repreſented unto him, as this Plot which his Will pitcht upon, ſo infinite more frames of Worlds which he could have made: and all theſe he muſt be ſuppoſed to have had in his view at once, afore ever his Will concluded all that was ordained to come to paſs. Now he having Chriſt, and the work of Redemption, and Us, and all thus before him; the Queſtion is, Which of all other Projects he had moſt in his eye, and which his will chiefly and primarily pitcht upon to ordain it? I ſay, It was Chriſt and the glory of his Perſon. God's chief end was not to bring Chriſt into the World for us, but Us for Chriſt; He is worth all Creatures. And God contrived all things that do fall out, and even Redemption it ſelf, for the ſetting forth of Chriſt's glory, more than our ſalvation.

And the Reaſons for this are,

1. (Out of *ver.*6.) That Chriſt is God's Beloved, and beloved for himſelf; And Deus unumquodque amat prout illud amabile eſt: God loves every thing according to that degree of lovelineſs that is in it. Now Chriſt, or the Second Perſon dwelling in that Human Nature, is, per ſe amabilis, amiable for and of himſelf, and ſo is by God eligibilis per ſe, & propter ſe, of, and for himſelf, as being an abſolute good; which no other Creature is. Whereas the work of Redemption performed by Chriſt, was not per ſe amabile, not loved or pitcht upon for it ſelf. But that which gives the lovelineſs unto it, is a remedy for ſin, as *Rom.*6.10. and in that reſpect the goodneſs of it is not abſolute and intrinſecal, but accidental; but the goodneſs, the lovelineſs that is in Chriſt's Perſon, is abſolute, and in it ſelf ſuch. And therefore to have ordained it for this work only, had been to have lowned and debaſed it.

2. Out

2. (Out of v. 5.) The Grace of the Hypoſtatical Union infinitely tranſcends that of Adoption. The being God's Natural Son far ſurpaſſeth our being his Adopted Sons, and therefore was in order ordained firſt. And therefore it is that (as the Text alſo hath it) we are ſaid to be predeſtinated unto Adoption through him; that is, through him as God's Natural Son, and that, as ſuppoſed Man: For unto him as God-Man is it, that we have this or any other Relation. Serm. VI.

3. Yea, Thirdly, The work of Redemption it ſelf was ordained principally for Chriſt's glory, more than for our ſalvation. In Phil. 2. 9. the Apoſtle tells us, That Jeſus Chriſt took upon him the form of a Servant, and became obedient to the death, (there's the work of Redemption;) wherefore (ſaith he) God hath highly exalted him, and given him a Name above every Name, &c. The Plot of Redemption therefore was ſubjected to the glory of Chriſt, and not Chriſt to it.

4. Nay, Fourthly, I might ſhew, that then when God took into his counſel and fore-knowledge, all his works projected by him, and this of Chriſt's aſſuming our Nature as one among the reſt; it was Chriſt's due, that he ſhould be the end of all, and that all God's Decrees ſhould be ſo framed, as to make him the End of all, as well as God's own glory. So that in this there was that reſpect had unto Chriſt in thoſe Decrees of God, and He was ſo made the end of all therein, as no meer Creature (no not the moſt eminent) could have been. There is a tranſcendency on Chriſt's part in this, that holdeth good in no Creature. God might have made the Angels and the Elect, and not ordained the Angels to ſerve the Elect. That one Creature is any way made the end of another to ſerve it, was a matter of liberty unto God, and depended meerly upon his arbitrary inſtitution. But if God will ordain Chriſt and a World, Angels and Men elect, or whatever elſe together with him; it is due that God's Decrees about all theſe be ſo ſhaped and caſt, that all ſhould ſerve him; for they muſt all be his Inheritance, and ſo he muſt be ſet up as the End of them all. And this is ſuch reaſon as no man can deny. But I have ſpoken to this upon Coloſſ. 1. 16, 17. That which I ſhall further add to this point, and which is more proper to this place, is, whether Chriſt's glory was conſidered by God as a motive unto God in predeſtinating, as God's own Glory was. I know Orthodox Divines do grant, that Chriſt was ſet up as the end of all things Predeſtinated; who yet diſpute and doubt, whether Chriſt was ſo conſidered of God in the act of Predeſtinating, as to be the Motive to move God's Will to predeſtinate us, and ordain all things elſe with Chriſt. For (ſay they) nothing Out of God is, or can be any motive to him to Predeſtinate; for he purpoſeth all things in himſelf.

For the reſolution of this, I ſay,

1. That it is certain, that the only determining or firſt moving Cauſe that inclined God's Will to predeſtinate both Chriſt and all things elſe with him, was his own Will. He was ſo happy in himſelf, that he needed not that glory which is manifeſted in and by the Union of the Second Perſon with an Human Nature.

Yet Secondly, It is as certain, that ſo far as the manifeſtation of the glory of all or any of his Attributes, did, or might move him to predeſtinate us, or ordain any of thoſe works which he hath ordained; ſo far might the glory of the Second Perſon move him to manifeſt it in and by this Union, which was the higheſt way of glorifying him. In the ſixth Verſe you read (and ſo in the thirteenth,) that God predeſtinated us for the praiſe of the glory of his Grace: that is there made an end that moved him. Now, what is the glory of his Grace? It is but the glory of one of God's Attributes. Suppoſe then you put inſtead of it, [To the praiſe of the glory of his [Son.] Is not a Perſon of the Trinity as near to him as one of his Attributes? Is not his Son as much to him as his Grace? Certainly he is: And then he might as well aim at the higheſt glory of the Second Perſon (which ariſeth from this Perſonal Union) as at the glory of his Grace in predeſtinating us. Thus John 5. 23. God hath given all judgment to the Son, that all might honour the Son as they honour the Father. He therefore took his Son's glory into conſideration, as well as his own.

And whereas it is objected, that nothing Out of God can move God. It's true, he predeſtinates all things by his own Will and Eſſence, even as he underſtands ſtands all things by his Eſſence: ſo as that only was the cauſe that caſt that determination in his Will to the decreeing any thing at all; yet ſo, as notwithſtanding the praiſe of the glory of his Grace or Power,&c. muſt be ſaid to have moved him in the Act: and this, although this Praiſe of his Glory be a thing out of himſelf, as indeed it is; for it is that ſhine or reſult of his glory that ariſes out of all in the hearts of Angels and Men. But though this Praiſe be not Eſſentially God, yet it is God's; it is relatively his, and it is his peculiar. And ſo to ſay, that it moves him in Predeſtinating, is all one as to ſay, that Himſelf moves himſelf; for this Praiſe relates to himſelf, and ſo he is ſaid to make all things for himſelf, that is, for the praiſe of himſelf; which Praiſe yet is not himſelf Eſſentially, but his Relatively. Now, even ſo the glory of the Second Perſon, to be manifeſted in the Human Nature through that Hypoſtatical Union, is a thing out of God: It is not the Perſon of his Son, but it is relatively his Sons; and ſo moves him in the ſame order that the Praiſe of the glory of his Grace did. Only to prevent miſtakes, take in theſe four Cautions.

Firſt, That take the Human Nature which was aſſumed, and that as in God's ſimple Intelligence it came up before him, as all Ours did; and it was not any thing in that Human Nature that moved him to predeſtinate it, or any thing elſe for it. Nor was the glory of that Human Nature made the End in the Act of Predeſtinating; but it was the glory of the Second Perſon only, which God ſaw might be more fully manifeſted in this Perſonal Union than any other way: That was it that moved him, and that was made the end of all. For otherwiſe the aſſuming of an Human Nature was as meer an act of Grace, as to Predeſtinate any of us was: yea, Chriſt might have aſſumed, (take all things as they lay in a poſſibility before him) any Human Nature elſe unto that dignity, as well as that which he did aſſume.

The Second Caution is, That much leſs were Chriſt's Merits conſidered as any Motive unto God. They are but actions which are Means of Chriſt's glory, and ſo far leſs than the glory of his Perſon, and ſo are to him but as God's works are to himſelf. It was therefore the glory of his Perſon alone that can (in the buſineſs we now ſpeak of) be any way called a Motive.

And that Thirdly, Not unto the Act, but in the Act; for as for the Act it ſelf, God's Will caſt it beyond the force of the ſimple conſideration of any ſuch extrinſecal glory that could ariſe unto him or any of the Three Perſons. Nothing without himſelf raiſed up that Will in him: only, Inter prædeſtinandum, in the Act of Predeſtinating he ſet up this glory of the Three Perſons, as the End for which he contriv'd and ordained all things, which muſt needs be; for if the Terminus, or Purpoſe of his Will was works without himſelf, then the encouraging Motive to thoſe works is ſuitably ſhort of Glory, which ariſeth to him out of theſe.

And, Fourthly, That Chriſt and his Glory was ſet up as the End, is not to be underſtood, as if God by one ſingle Act or Decree did firſt predeſtinate Chriſt and his Glory, and then by a new and diſtinct Act choſe us for him. But that God having his whole Platform, both about Him and Us in one entire view before him, predeſtinated all by one entire Act; yet ſo as in predeſtinating us, he was moved by the Glory which Chriſt ſhould have in us, whom he predeſtinated together with us, as both his End in Predeſtinating us, and our End alſo; and accordingly did mould this whole contrivement ſo, as we and all things elſe might moſt advance the glory of Jeſus Chriſt, as was his due.

SERMON VII.

EPHES. 1. 5, 6.

5. ——According to the good pleaſure of his will.

6. To the praiſe of the glory of his Grace, wherein he hath made us accepted in the Beloved.

I Come to thoſe other two Cauſes mentioned in the Text; as,

1. The efficient and principal Cauſe that caſt it; and that is meerly the good pleaſure of his will.

And, 2. Here is another Motive, beſides the Glory of Chriſt beſore-mentioned; and that is, The praiſe of the glory of God's Grace. [According to the good pleaſure of his will, to the praiſe and the glory of his Grace.] The one is mentioned firſt, as that which did only caſt the Act, and move God to Predeſtinate: The other, as that which yet moved him in the Act it ſelf.

Now for the Explication of both theſe in general, you may thus conceive the difference between them. God, bleſſed for ever, deliberating (as it were) with himſelf, whether he ſhould make any Creature, or no; whether he ſhould decree any Children unto himſelf, or his Son to take Human Nature; that which caſt the matter was meerly the good pleaſure of his will. He might have been bleſſed for ever without this: he needed not have cared to make ſo much as one Creature, nor to ordain the Second Perſons aſſumption of an Human Nature to glorifie him: He needed not that external praiſe of the glory of his Grace, that ariſeth from us: He was glorious enough without all this. What caſt it then? Nothing but the good pleaſure of his will. Here is God's Prerogative and Bleſſedneſs.

And the Reaſon, why nothing but God's own Will could move him to it, is, becauſe all that the Creature can be to him, or do for him, falleth ſhort of him, and of the glory due unto him. Neh. 9. 3. Bleſs the Lord your God: bleſſed be his glorious Name, which is exalted above all bleſſing and praiſe. God is above all bleſſing and praiſe; for him therefore to aim at the praiſe of his Grace, this was not motive ſufficient to determine his Will ſimply to do it. It was his own Will that meerly caſt it; only it being determined to predeſtinate Creatures, it propounded to it ſelf the praiſe of the glory of God's Grace, Wiſdom, and other his Attributes; and ſo they move him in predeſtinating, though not to Predeſtinate.

More particularly, For the Firſt, The efficient determining cauſe of Predeſtination: (If you obſerve it,) it is not only put upon God's Will, but upon the good pleaſure of his will: ſo ſaith the Text. And this alſo is to be confined only to that part of his Decrees of Election, and predeſtinating Men unto ſalvation: So as between thoſe Decrees and all other there is this difference, That when other things, and making of other Creatures are ſpoken of, the Decrees about them are only put upon his Will; as Epheſ. 1. 11. He worketh all things according to the counſel of his own will, barely his own Will. But when he comes to predeſtinate, and to ſave poor Creatures by Chriſt, there comes in [the good pleaſure of his will] as the determining cauſe; He predeſtinated us [according to the good pleaſure of his will,] [κατὰ τὴν εὐδοκίαν τοῦ θελήματος αὐτοῦ;] that is, This is the ſtrength, the height of his whole will; this is the chief pleaſure of it, even to predeſtinate us for Chriſt. Piſcator upon Matt. 11. 26. (where the ſame ſame word is uſed that here we meet with ;) [Father] I thank thee that thou haſt hid theſe things from the wiſe and prudent ones, and revealed them to Babes; [even ſo Father it pleaſed thee,] [ὅτι οὕτως ἐγένετο εὐδοκία ἐμπροσθέν σου.] Therefore (ſays Piſcator) Reprobation is an act of God's good pleaſure of his Will, as well as Election is.

My Anſwer to this is,

Firſt, That when he there thanks his Father, and ſays, It was his good pleaſure, this hath not relation ſo much unto God's reprobating others, as to his revealing of thoſe things unto theſe Babes ; only this his good pleaſure towards them, is ſet off by his hiding it from others whom he reprobateth. The like manner of ſpeech we have in many other Scriptures, both in the Old Teſtament and the New ; as *Rom.*6.17. when Paul ſays, God be thanked ye were the Servants of ſin ; but now have obeyed,&c. His thanking God hath no reference at all to their having been the Servants of ſin, ſimply as ſuch conſidered ; but unto their having been now converted, and ſo obeyed; &c. only comparatively the Mercy of their converſion, is ſet forth by their having been the Servants of ſin. So here, Chriſt gives thanks only for the converting of theſe Babes, and not for the reprobating of any. Only he mentions their reprobation and rejection, as that which made this benefit the greater, and his good pleaſure in ſhewing his free Grace the more viſible and apparent.

But, Secondly, Whatever God willeth, may in a general ſenſe be called his good pleaſure ; for if it did not pleaſe him, he would not will it. But ſtill it is not ſaid there, (as here it is) that it was the good pleaſure [of his will.] The Phraſe there hath not that Adjectum, that addition to it, that here it hath. The meaning whereof is, That of all the things that God willeth, this alone (comparatively) is his good pleaſure : He is pleaſed with nothing that he willeth ſo as he is with this. It is true, he damneth Men ; but he doth it as a Judge that condemneth a Malefactor with a kind of regret and diſpleaſure. And this may be truly ſaid of it, that it is a mix'd action ; God hath ſomething in him that moves him to the contrary ; for he loveth his Creature, only other ends prevail. But when he cometh to ſave Men, here is the good pleaſure of his will ; his whole heart is poured forth in this, Jerem. 32. 41. I will aſſuredly eſtabliſh them with my whole heart, and with my whole ſoul. God, when he ſhews mercy, when he predeſtinates unto glory, he doth it with his whole heart ; there is nothing in him to contradict it ; here is no mixture in this, all that is in him, agreeth with it. It is therefore not only according to his good Will ; but it is the top and height of his Will, the moſt pleaſing thing unto him of all the things that he willeth : It is according to the good pleaſure of his Will.

Thus you have that which is the chief Cauſe, (which I call the determining Cauſe,) namely, the Will of God, the good pleaſure of his Will ; that was it that cauſed him to predeſtinate.

Now let us come to the other, the End that moved God, even the praiſe of the glory of his Grace. And here (for Explication) take notice of the difference between the Glory of his Grace, and the Praiſe of that Glory.

This Glory of his Grace here ſpoken of, is that glorious Attribute itſelf, which is God's Eſſence, which was in itſelf glorious, and had continued, ſo though no Creature had been predeſtinated : But the [Praiſe] of that Glory, is that holding forth of the glory of this Grace, that Men might praiſe it, and give glory to it. So then, conceive thus of it ; The Lord had Grace in him, glorious Grace ; that was his Eſſence. And that which moved him to predeſtinate us, was, that this Grace of his might be praiſed. This is the meaning of theſe words [to the praiſe of the glory of his Grace.] It is all one with what you have, Rom. 9. 22, 23. He was willing to make known the riches of his Glory on the veſſels of Mercy. God had riches of Glory in him : yea, but (ſaith he) I will make it known ; this was it that moved him : yet not ſo, but that he could have done otherwiſe, he needed not to have cared for it. But his Will determining to go forth of himſelf to glorifie himſelf, he will do it to purpoſe ; he will lay open all the riches that are in him to the praiſe of the glory of his Grace, (as here you have it.)

And

And the reaſon of this is, becauſe as Bonum eſt ſui diffuſivum, all Goodneſs is communicative of it ſelf, ſo Glory is manifeſtive of it ſelf, even as the Light is: and this moves him to manifeſt this his Glory. Serm. VII.

You muſt know that God hath a double Glory; An Eſſential Glory, namely, that of his Attributes, as of Wiſdom, All-ſufficiency, Grace, &c. And he hath a Manifeſtative Glory, whereby the glory of all theſe Attributes is manifeſted unto the world. And this may move him, in that, although it be not his Eſſence, yet it is His, Relatively, though not Eſſentially.

Now Obſerve further, That only the glory of God's Grace is mentioned by the Apoſtle, when he ſpeaks of that which moved him to predeſtinate. Why doth he not ſay, To the glory of his Holineſs, or To the glory of his Juſtice or Power? All theſe were, and are manifeſted in the things purpoſed in Election too; but he ſheweth his Holineſs elſewhere, and his Power and Juſtice elſewhere: He ſheweth his Holineſs in making the Law, his Power in making the World, his Juſtice in throwing men to Hell; but his Grace he ſhews no where ſo much as in the Predeſtination of his Children, and what he hath predeſtinated them to. He ſheweth all his Attributes therein, and Grace over and above all the reſt; therefore that is here ſingled out and alone mentioned, eſpecially becauſe the Act of Predeſtinating it ſelf, that is, ſimply and only from Free grace. And therefore you ſtill find, that wherever Election is ſpoken of, it is put upon his Grace; both in that he chooſeth freely, ſeeing nothing in the Creature to move him, and in that he therein puts a difference between his Elect and others. And therein lies the Formalis ratio of Grace. Rom. 11.5,6. There is a Remnant according to the election of Grace; ----And if by Grace, then it is no more of works. Other men God left, to deale with them according to their works; but in predeſtinating his Children, he dealeth with them according to his Free grace in Jeſus Chriſt.

To come now to ſome Obſervations.

I. You ſee that God is a glorious God, he hath glorious Grace, ſo ſaith this Text: He hath glorious Power, ſo Rom. 6. 9. He hath glorious Mercy, ſo Rom. 9. 23. All his Attributes are glorious. Shew me thy glory, ſaid Moſes, Exod. 34.6. Then the Lord paſſed by and proclaimed, The Lord, the Lord God, merciful and gracious, &c. This is God's chief Glory; his Eſſential Attributes are his Glory. Obſerv. 1.

II. You ſee that which moved God in doing all that he doth, is his Glory. He predeſtinated us for the glory of his Grace; and certainly if in this, then in all things elſe he aimeth at his Glory. If God ſhould not in all that he doth, aim more at his own Glory than at our Salvation, he were not a holy God: For what is Holineſs in God? It is that whereby he aimeth at himſelf; and he ſhould deſcend from his being holy, if he ſhould aim at our good more than at his own glory. This you have Iſai. 6. 3. One Angel cried unto another, Holy, holy, holy is the Lord God of Hoſts; the whole Earth is full of his glory. God was to ſhew himſelf to be a holy God; that is, he was to glorifie himſelf; that's the meaning of it. And therefore of all Sinners he hates a Proud Man, He reſiſts the Proud, becauſe he is a competitor with God himſelf for glory, and contends with him for that which is moſt dear unto him and his own Prerogative alone; which the great and glorious God of all things cannot endure. And therefore of all Sins God hateth Pride and vain-glory, for all glory is his due, and juſtly belongeth to him alone. Obſerv. 2.

III. You ſee that God was ſo perfect in himſelf that he needed not to have made any world, nor Predeſtinated any unto the Adoption of Sons; for it was meerly the Act of his own Will. Though his own glory moved him in the Act, yet it was his Will that caſt and determined the Act it ſelf. If God will manifeſt himſelf he will do it like God, he will make his own glory the end of all; and it becomes him ſo to do: He ſhould not be a holy God elſe. But yet the thing that caſt it was his Will; becauſe he could have done otherwiſe if it had pleaſed him. Rom. 11. 35. Who hath given to him, and it ſhall be recompenced to him again? All that the Creature doth is nothing to him. Paul challengeth all the Creatures; bring in your Bills (ſaith he,) and if you can ſay you have added any thing unto him, you ſhall have it recompenced unto you again. All the Righteouſneſs Obſerv. 3.

Serm. VI. that the Angels have in Heaven, and that the Saints have on Earth, what is it? It is nothing to him. Job. 35. 7, 8. If thou beeſt Righteous, what giveſt thou him? or what receiveth he of thine hand? Thy Righteouſneſs may profit a Man as thou art; but it can never profit God, he is bleſſed in himſelf. Nay I go further; our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt added nothing unto God by all that he did or ſuffered. 'Tis true, he ſets forth the glory of God, but he addeth nothing to God. Pſal. 16. 1. My Righteouſneſs reacheth not to thee. It is Chriſt that ſpeaks thoſe words, for that Pſalm is a Pſalm of his Reſurrection, and is quoted to that purpoſe by the Apoſtle, in Acts 2. 22,23. Now, ſays he, my goodneſs extends not to thee, O Father; it only reacheth to the Saints that are on Earth, to do them good, but as for thee, thou art above it. Therefore it muſt needs be God's own Will, and his meer Will that moved him to predeſtinate any. Fall we therefore down before this great God, in that he minded us to chooſe us, notwithſtanding he was compleatly happy in himſelf before the World was, and could have continued ſo ſtill; and all his works add nothing unto him, for if they did, he would have made them ſooner, he would certainly have created them from everlaſting. But he let almoſt an Eternity of time run out, ere he put forth his hand to make any of them, for indeed he had no need of them. The three Perſons delighted one in another from all Eternity, and needed no companions elſe ſave themſelves. God cared not for what the Creature could add unto him, nothing moved him to Elect us, but meerly the good pleaſure of his Will.

Obſerv. 4. IV. You ſee here that God Predeſtinated us; for the praiſe of the glory of his Grace. God's glory therefore is more intereſted in our Salvation then our own good is, for not our benefit comes in here in the mention of what moved God, but the praiſe of the glory of his grace only. You think it ſo difficult a thing to work God off to ſave you; why, he hath that in him which moveth him now, and did move him from everlaſting to do it? He hath the glory of his own grace to move him to it. This is to us the greateſt ground of ſecurity in the World, that God's glory is intreſſed with our good. Eph. 1, 12. That we ſhould be to the praiſe of his glory who firſt believed on Chriſt. Wilt thou come and believe! Thou canſt not do God a better turn, for this advanceth the praiſe of the glory of his grace; and God is for this reaſon more moved to ſave thee, then thy heart can be to be ſaved thy ſelf.

Obſerv. 5. V. I told you it was the higheſt pleaſure of his Will; nothing pleaſed him ſo as this. Obſerve then, that of all things elſe which God purpoſeth; this, even to ſhew grace to poor Sinners, pleaſeth him the moſt. He willeth many things, and he works all things by the counſel of his own Will; but this is according to the good pleaſure of his Will. There are many Scriptures to this purpoſe. In theſe things (ſpeaking of Acts of mercy,) I delight, Jer. 9. 24. Mercy is his delight, Mich. 7. Yea his delights are ſaid to have been in this before the World was, Pro. 8. 31. where beſides this there is nothing elſe mentioned.

Obſerv. 6. VI. Obſerve, that God hath ſet up his Son ([for him] ſaith the 5. verſe,) and his own free grace ([To the praiſe of the glory of his grace,] ſaith verſe 6.) theſe two are to ſhare the glory between them; even Jeſus Chriſt, and himſelf. If Chriſt had not been his Son, and equal with himſelf, he would never have done it. No Creature ſhall have a ſhare in this glory, but all things are ordained for, his Son and for the praiſe of the glory of his own free grace. And accordingly, he hath wrought faith in our hearts to give all the glory unto free grace and to his Son. If you had been ſaved by Love, that would have been diminiſhing from free grace, and from Chriſt; and ſo would Works and Duties. But Faith, that is a principle fully ſuited to God's own intent; which is, to ſet up his Son and free grace, and to magnifie theſe two. You ſhall find in Scripture, that God is ſaid to be all in all, and ſo is Chriſt ſaid to be all in all too; for theſe two ſhare all the glory between them, that ſo men may honour the Son, even as they honour the Father, (as I ſaid even now.) In the 1 Cor. 8. 6. the Apoſtle ſays, To us there is but one God the Father, of whom are all things, and we for him, (as you have it in your Margins,) and one Lord Jeſus Chriſt, by whom are all things, and we by him. Here (you ſee) they ſhare it between them, only with this difference; that all things are ſaid to be of God and by him too; but all things are not ſaid to be of Jeſus Chriſt, but only by him.

We have ſeen and explicated two of thoſe Bleſſings intended to us and beſtowed on us from everlaſting. Firſt, Election in Chriſt to be perfectly holy, as we ſhall be in Heaven; (for God lookt at his works, as he would make them to be at laſt.) And Secondly, Predeſtination to that Glory, that Adoption, or being a Son of God bringeth with it. Now follows a Third benefit [wherein (ſaith the Apoſtle,) he hath made us accepted in the beloved.] This I am now to ſpeak to, and ſo to proceed.

[ἐχαρίτωσεν] [He hath made us accepted,] I muſt open the force and ſignification of this word Firſt. It is as much as if he had ſaid he hath made us, Charos, dear to him, out of God's free grace he hath made us pleaſant unto him in the beloved; ſo ſaith Calvin. The Papiſts, they would have the word to ſignifie God's beſtowing inherent grace of holineſs upon us, and making us gracious or holy. And that which perverts them in this their Interpretation is, their aiming to magnifie the Virgin Mary; for the word here in the Original is uſed but once beſides in all the New Teſtament, and that is, Luke 1. 28. [Thou art highly favoured, &c.] (it was ſpoken by the Angel unto Mary.) So we tranſlate it, but they read it [Thou art full of grace.] They will needs carry this word to inherent grace in us, that ſo by this the fulneſs of grace in the Virgin Mary may be extolled; that ſhe being, and that God foreſeeing her ſo full of grace, had therefore choſen her to be the Mother of Chriſt. But the word is (in reſpect of us) a Paſſive word, and indeed a made word, uſurped by the Apoſtle himſelf for his purpoſe; and [there in Luke) ſignifieth this, that God made her acceptable to him, and caſt an infinite favour upon her. And this is proved by what is ſaid in the 30. verſe of the ſame Chapter, [Fear not, Mary, for thou haſt found favour with God;] it was not that ſhe had grace in her, but that God had caſt grace and favour upon her. So that the meaning of the word is, He hath rendred us acceptable or gracious; or (moſt fitly in one word,) he hath Ingratiated us. The meaning is, not that God fore-ſaw grace in us; but that he caſt his favour upon us, and ſettled his delight in us. He made us dear, precious, and delightful to himſelf. And this to be the meaning of the word, and not that (as the Papiſts would have it,) appears,

Firſt, Becauſe the Apoſtle had mentioned the bleſſing of inherent holineſs before, [to be holy before him in love,] and alſo mentions Converſion and Regeneration, the imperfect work of Faith and Holineſs in this life afterwards, in verſe 8.

And Secondly, It appeareth likewiſe by what followeth, [in his beloved;] that is, as he hath loved Jeſus Chriſt, and delighted in him: ſo in this his Beloved he loveth, pleaſeth himſelf in, and delighteth in us. This is the meaning of his [making us accepted in the beloved.]

In the Interpretation of theſe words I have not a little been troubled, unto what rank to refer this Bleſſing. Whether I ſhould refer it to a part of Juſtification, (which, we know, conſiſteth of theſe two Particulars, Forgiveneſs of ſins, and Acceptation of our Perſons,) and ſo this to be a part of our Juſtification in Chriſt beſtowed upon us in time here in this life, or whether I ſhould interpret it of an Action of God paſt towards us from everlaſting, (ſuch as are Election and Predeſtination,) and that Action as including alſo a Bleſſing principally intended to our perſons unto everlaſting, and after this life, ſuch as I have ſhewed you perfect holineſs and Adoption to be. I confeſs, in the end I enclined unto the latter; and found that Zanchy is with me in it. And I will give you theſe reaſons for it, why it is not meant ſo much of that acceptation of our perſons, which is a part of Juſtification, (though it may include that alſo,) and that acceptation of our perſons is the fruit of this,) but rather referreth to an eternal Act towards us, and an eternal Bleſſing even to eternity to be beſtowed on us. For firſt, it runneth in the ſame key with the other two, He hath bleſſed us, and He hath choſen us; ſo He hath accepted us; they are all ſpoken in the time paſt. Whereas when he cometh to Redemption or Juſtification, he changeth the Phraſe and Tenſe, In whom we [have] Redemption. Therefore I caſt this [having accepted us] into the former rank, with having choſen and bleſſed us from eternity; as noting out three prime inſtances of God's eternal love.

Serm. VII.

2. The order of the Apoſtle's ranking of it, and his bringing of it in, would argue that he did not intend to ſpeak of that acceptation of our perſons, which is a part of Juſtification.

For Firſt, it comes in before forgiveneſs of Sins; whereas that acceptation of our perſons unto juſtification of life follows upon forgiveneſs, and doth neceſſarily firſt ſuppoſe it.

And Secondly, it is not only mentioned before forgiveneſs, but Redemption comes in between it and forgiveneſs.

So that (I ſay) I rather account it to be one ſpecial act of God's love done towards us from everlaſting, (ſuch as Election and Predeſtination was.) And ſo it implieth both a third Act, and a third Bleſſing, of the ſame ſort with the two former.

It is not that acceptation of us which is the ſecond part of our juſtification, for that is expreſt by an accounting us Righteous in Chriſt as our Righteouſneſs; and ſome ſuch thing ſhould have been put in as the Ground of it, but this is an acceptation of our perſons in Chriſt as he is God's beloved, and ſimply refers thereto; and ſo unto Chriſt's perſon as God's beloved one.

But then the Queſtion will be, both what diſtinct act of God's this is, differing from Election and Predeſtination; and what differing bleſſing it is from perfect Holineſs and Adoption unto Glory?

In the firſt place, ſome ſay, that it imports that Love of God which was the foundation both of God's choice, and of his predeſtination; that he hath therefore choſen, and predeſtinated us, becauſe he hath accepted us, (that is, ſet his love upon us) in his beloved Son.

But that was ſuppoſed in God's chooſing us; for Dilectio præſupponitur Electioni, (as Aquinas well ſpeaks.) Yea, and this is alſo ſufficiently expreſſed in the words foregoing, [To the praiſe of the glory of his grace;] that is, of this his free love born to us.

Again, this acceptance of our perſons, is not (as here it ſucceeds,) that love or acceptation upon which he choſe us, but is a branch or fruit following of it, and diſtinct from the Act of his chooſing us; it hath not an Identity, or ſameneſs of Act with chooſing us itſelf. Though it is put forth in and together with chooſing us, yea, though it be ſaid to have been in the beloved [Chriſt,] yet that firſt love that caus'd him to chooſe us, and not others, was immediately carried unto us in the Act of chooſing us, as unto Chriſt himſelf, and mov'd him to chooſe our Individual perſons as immediately as he was mov'd to chooſe Chriſt himſelf, only he was pleas'd to chooſe us in Chriſt, as a foundation or ground, which he planted us into, when he choſe us; and by chooſing, or when he choſe us, he put us into Chriſt. But being thus choſen in Chriſt then, this fruit followed upon it, to accept us in Chriſt as his beloved for ever after.

I take it therefore not ſo much to be an Antecedent love to the Election of our perſons, as a conſequent love or complacency (as I may ſo call it,) or delighting in us, and accepting of us through his beloved, when he had choſen us in him, and ſet us into him; his delight even then was with the Sons of Men, Pro. 8. In his fore-thoughts about them.

And here I take not Antecedent and Conſequent Love in the Jeſuitical or Arminian ſenſe, whereby God ſhould be ſaid to love us with ſuch a Conſequent Love as ariſeth from a fore-ſight that we will believe, and ſo chooſeth us, and in that ſenſe ſhould be ſaid to chooſe us in Chriſt. There is a twofold Love, Amor Beneplaciti, and Amor complacentiæ, (an Old diſtinction.)

Firſt, a Love of good-will, whereby God doth bear a good-will to us, and ſo reſolveth to chooſe us, and give us to Chriſt. And this is ſpoken of in the former verſe, [He hath choſen us in him, according to the good pleaſure of his will]

And Secondly, there is a Love of Acceptation or Complacency; or of delight and reſting in what he hath done. God thereby delights himſelf in the Creature which he hath thus ſet up and choſen in Chriſt, and this, from everlaſting, (as I ſhall ſhew you by and by.) It is called in Zeph. 3. 17. a reſting in his Love, and ſuppoſeth Election firſt. When God hath choſen us, he takes delight in, and is infinitely well pleaſed, both with this deſign and contrivement he hath towards us, us, and with our perſons alſo, as conſidered in and through his beloved Son; even as a Father that means to beſtow his Son upon ſuch a Woman, firſt takes a liking to the Woman, (here is the Love of good will) which makes him chooſe her for his Daughter, and pitch upon her, rather then upon any other, to make her his Son's Wife. But yet when he hath betrothed her to his Son, then he loves her with an other and a further kind of Love; he accepts her, he delights in her, and hath a complacency in her, as conſidering her to be his Daughter as Wife unto this his Son. This I take to be the orderly joyning and meaning of theſe two words, [having predeſtinated us unto Adoption, and accepted us in his beloved,] the latter Act following upon the former. Ser. VII.

The next Queſtion is, how this Act of God towards us, may be ſaid to have been from Everlaſting; and how God may be ſaid to have delighted in us before we were?

1. For this, that God did put forth ſuch an Act from everlaſting, conſider that Scripture, Pro. 8. 30, 31. If you read the verſes before, Chriſt tells you there, what God and he did before the World was. I (ſays Wiſdom or Chriſt) was by him, I was brought up with him, and I was daily his delight; rejoycing always before him in the habitable part of his Earth, and my delights were with the Sons of Men. All this was from everlaſting, for read the 25, 26, 27. verſes, and he ſaith, It was before the Mountains were ſettled, or the Hills brought forth, &c. So that Chriſt did then look upon us as delightful unto him, and God did the ſame in his Son.

2. For the clearing of it, we muſt remember what was ſaid before; that when once God had firſt choſe us in Chriſt, look how far it may be ſaid we had a being in him. So far God might take, and did take a view of us, as repreſented exiſting in him; and ſo pleaſe himſelf with us, as ſo viewed and conſidered, and look upon us with a gracious eye; and alſo rejoyce and comfort himſelf in what he had done for us. And by this our repreſentative being as in Chriſt; I mean not that kind of being before God, which all other Creatures, he meant to produce, had in their ſeveral Idea's, or appearances in his thoughts. But we further had a repreſentative being in Chriſt, who actually ſtood before God, or by him, (as Solomon's word is,) this repreſentation becometh then real, when made in him and by him, by his undertaking to ſtand for us, and as in our ſtead, undertaking as our head to repreſent us; and this gave us a real being in Chriſt, and as far differing and excelling thoſe Idea's of other Creatures, as the Images or ſhadows of men pictured for the Ghoſts of men, when they are dead; do from thoſe drawn with the brighteſt orient colours in Oyl, which Painters make to ſet out men alive to the utmoſt life that may be. And by way of difference, we call the firſt but ſhadows; and ſuch were the Idea's of all other Creatures in the mind of God, in compariſon to what the Elect had in God's mind, being ſet in Chriſt, who gives a being of him, yea, and in Chriſt Jeſus. But ſtill I muſt remember you of theſe two things, I ſo often mentioned, that my meaning may be underſtood.

The Firſt, that this benefit of Acceptation of our perſons in the beloved, I refer to thoſe other Antelapſarian benefits, ſevered from thoſe of Redemption, as hath been all along inculcated; that is, as flowing to us from Chriſt, as our head of union with God; and to us as conſidered as purely Creatures and abſtractly before Sin befel us in that ſupernatural ſtate; which we were at the firſt ſight of us by him, ordained unto as Creatures, and our perſons alſo conſidered as one with Chriſt.

The Second, that it is that acceptance of us in Chriſt, which comes and flows meerly from the perſon of Chriſt as God-man.

From which you may Obſerve, That when the Apoſtle ſaith, God hath thus accepted us in the Beloved, he doth not ſay, that this acceptation of us is in the Blood of the Beloved, or the merits of the Beloved: It is not ſo founded, but it is founded upon our relation to his perſon. God had choſe us in him to have relation to his Perſon; and ſo, Jeſus Chriſt being beloved, God accepteth us in him, for this our relations ſake unto him as the principal beloved. As a Father when he hath betrothed his Son unto a Woman, he loves her for the relation ſhe hath to the perſon of his ſon; ſo doth our God. This acceptation of us, even of our perſons from everlaſting, it is founded upon Chriſt's being beloved. And therefore you ſhall find, that the Love wherewith God loved Chriſt, and the Love wherewith he loved us are, ſaid to be one and the ſame Love, John 17.23. That the World may know that thou haſt ſent me, and haſt loved them as thou haſt loved me. We were ſo repreſented by Chriſt, and conſidered in him, that we made up one Chriſt myſtical; as the Head and the Body make up but one man.

Again, This ſeems to be ſome ſpecial favour and peculiar grace unto the Sons of men Elect, and not to the Angels, as here it is ſpoken of. The Angels (we read) are elect, [the Elect Angels;] but we no where read of them, that they are elect in Chriſt. Likewiſe that they are the Sons of God, by creation namely; but not Adopted Sons through Chriſt, as we here are ſaid to be: And ſo they are highly favoured of God; but no where, that they are accepted in the Beloved, as here we are ſaid to be. It may be ſaid, they are highly favoured as Menial Servants to God, but not as Sons Adopted. Many Courtiers were in high favour with Saul; but David ſpeaks of his being Son to him as an higher matter by far. As in Nobility there are higher ranks than other; ſo among the Nobles in Heaven. The Angels, it may be ſaid, God hath loved them with a ſpecial love, and he hath loved Chriſt and both from eternity; but it is no where ſaid, that he hath loved the Angels as Chriſt ſaid there, Thou haſt loved them as thou haſt loved me. And how ſpecial a Priviledge this is, I ſhall expreſs to you by this Similitude. The Sun (you know) ſhines upon all the world; but if you take a Burning-glaſs and hold it in the point of union or concentration, between the ſhining Sun and ſomething that you would have inflamed; hereby the Sun-beams are contracted, and do fall upon that Object with a more intenſe heat and fervour, even to an inflammation of it: and this, by reaſon that the Beams were firſt contracted in the Center of the Glaſs, and then diffuſed and with more vehemency darted upon the Object under it. Thus God loveth all his Creatures; his Love is over all his works (ſo the Scripture expreſſeth it; (but he loves them not in his Beloved, he accepts them not in him. But now for the Sons of Men elect, that Son of God (who is his Beloved) contracts all the beams of God's love into himſelf; they fall all upon him firſt, and then they through him ſhine and diffuſe themſelves upon us all, with a ray infinitely more ſtrong and vigorous than they would have done, if we had been conſidered in our ſelves alone. And this is the advantage of being accepted in the Beloved. God loves us with the ſame love wherewith he loved his Son.

To come now unto ſome Obſervations from hence.

Obſerv. 1. I. Obſerve here, That Jeſus Chriſt is God's Beloved in an eminent manner. Look, as God put all Light into the Sun, and that diffuſeth and communicateth light unto all the Stars: ſo Jeſus Chriſt hath contracted all the Love of God to himſelf, and through him it is diffuſed upon us. He is υἱὸς τῆς ἀγάπης, the Son of his Love, (as he is called *Coloſſ.*1.13.) You read it tranſlated there [His dear Son;] but the Greek hath it [the Son of his Love.] Chriſt hath (as it were) engroſſed all God's Love unto him; This is my well-beloved Son, in whom I am well pleaſed. Yea, indeed and in truth God is not well pleaſed with any of the Creatures, but as they have relation to him, and are his Servants. Otherwiſe, he findeth folly in his Angels, Job 4.18. They would not have pleaſed him, had they not come under his Son, and had relation unto him ſome way or other, and ſubſerved for his glory. In loving his Son he loved them; but he loveth us as being planted into him. The Trinity could not pleaſe itſelf out of itſelf. He is the Beloved.

Obſerv. 2. II. Is Chriſt thus God's Beloved, with, and in whom he is ſo fully pleaſed; and is he not Thy Beloved, (as it is in the Canticles!) what is the matter? Is thy narrow Soul more curious about an object for its Love, than God himſelf is? O! let him be to each of us our Beloved! If he be God's Beloved, he may as well be thine. Is he able to ſatisfie God's vaſt thoughts; and is he not able to ſatisfie thee, poor Creature? God himſelf is ſatisfied and at reſt in him, (I was daily his delight, ſays Chriſt, *Prov.*8.) and wouldſt thou be happier than God is? Is he God's Beloved Son, in whom he is well pleaſed; and wilt thou be pleaſed in any thing elſe, ſave Chriſt?

3. Obſerve

III. Obſerve, that Chriſt is ſaid to be the Beloved ſimply in and for himſelf, and [in whom we have Redemption] comes afterward as a ſuper-added thing. So that, ſet aſide the work and benefit of Redemption, that is to be had in and by Chriſt; and there is a lovelineſs in his very Perſon beyond all, for which we ſhould deſire him. You that are Sinners do love him, becauſe he hath Redemption for you, and ſo you have need of him; (and you do well ſo to love him, for he deſerves it;) but yet, let me tell you, Eſt aliquid in Chriſto formoſius ſalvatore; There is ſomething in Chriſt more beautiful, more amiable and glorious than his being a Saviour. God cannot love him for any benefit of Redemption by him; and yet he is God's Beloved. He is primum amabile, loved for himſelf: and ſo let him be to thee. Serm. VI. Obſerv. 3.

This is the firſt ſort of Obſervations from hence.

A Second ſort is this;

1. If thou beeſt in Chriſt, fear not Sin; for God from everlaſting ſaw all thy Sins, and yet for all that he continued to accept thee in his Beloved. It altered his mind not a whit: He was ſo much pleaſed with his Beloved, that though in his own Præſcience he foreſaw what we would be, yet having choſen us in his Son, he accepteth us in him; and ſo, now that we actually exiſt and ſin againſt him, he notwithſtanding finds ſo much contentment at home in his Son (having him by him,) that he can patiently bear with us, and pleaſe himſelf in Chriſt. And ſo, though he ſee thee ſinful for the preſent, and foreſaw thee ſinful from everlaſting; yet he ſtill accepts thee in his Beloved. And the Reaſon is, becauſe Jeſus Chriſt is more beloved of him, than Sin is or can be hated by him. If ever Sin ſhould come to have more intereſt for hatred in the heart of God, than Chriſt hath for Love, thou mighſt well fear; but he hath accepted thee in his Beloved, therefore be not thou afraid. Obſerv. 1.

2. Hath God accepted thee, and rendred thee thus dear unto himſelf in his Beloved? No matter though the World hate thee; The World ſhall hate you, (ſays Chriſt, John 16.33.) in the world you ſhall have tribulation; but 'tis no matter, in me you ſhall have peace, &c. God accepts thee in Chriſt, he renders thee dear unto himſelf in his Beloved. Obſerv. 2.

3. Go therefore unto God, to be accepted only in and through his Beloved. Here is the greateſt and ſtrongeſt Argument for it that can be. It is ſaid before, in ver. 4. that God choſe us unto perfect Holineſs, and ordained us to perfect Glory, and to be Sons to him, ver. 5. and both theſe, as we ſhall one day be in Heaven: and yet after both theſe, the acceptation of our Perſons in the Beloved comes in as a Third and diſtinct benefit; ſo that all this would not have pleaſed him ſo much, as one look upon us in his Beloved. It is not perfect Holineſs, nor that compleat Glory which we ſhall have in Heaven, that makes us accepted with God comparatively to this, to be conſidered and accepted in the Beloved. And wilt thou now go and bring thy imperfect Graces and menſtrous Duties? Art thou in Glory yet? Art thou perfectly holy? If thou wert, yet conſider here is a Third benefit beſides all theſe, He hath accepted us in his Beloved; which let thy Soul look out for, notwithſtanding all thy Grace and Holineſs. Obſerv. 3.

And ſo I have gone over the Three firſt Bleſſings, which are Eternal ones, and abſolutely pitched upon our Perſons in the relation we have to the Perſon of Chriſt. God choſe us to be in him, and becauſe he is holy, we muſt be holy: Holineſs therefore is eſſential to our Being in Chriſt. God Predeſtinated us in Chriſt, therefore we muſt be Sons, as he is; and ſo we are predeſtinated to Adoption in him his Natural Son. And then, God hath accepted us in his Beloved; and therefore as he loveth him, ſo he loveth us. All theſe Three Bleſſings are not founded ſo much upon the Merits of Chriſt, as upon the Relation we have unto his Perſon. And they are the Bleſſings which were firſt and abſolutely intended to our Perſons, ſimply in the Relation which by Election we had given us to the Perſon of Chriſt.

And ſo much for the ſixth Verſe.

Come

Serm. VII. Come we now to the Mercies which we have in relation to Chriſt's Merits, couched in theſe three following Verſes:

Ver.

7. In whom we have Redemption through his blood, the forgiveneſs of ſins, according to the riches of his Grace,
8. Wherein he hath abounded toward us in all Wiſdom and Prudence;
9. Having made known unto us the myſtery of his Will, according to his good pleaſure, which he had purpoſed in himſelf.

The Apoſtle here changeth the Key of his Language; He hath choſen, he hath bleſſed, he hath accepted: This was his language before; but here he beginneth to alter it: Here he varies the Tenſe, and ſays, In whom we have Redemption, &c. Becauſe he comes now to a new ſort of Bleſſings, therefore he ſpeaks in a new key. And ſo Interpreters almoſt generally obſerve.

Now for the general Analyſis, both of all theſe words from *ver.*4. and likewiſe of theſe Bleſſings.

There are two ſorts of Diviſions, which theſe words and the former may be caſt into:

The Firſt is a Tricotomy, or dividing of them into three Parts.

You know there are Three Perſons in the Trinity, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghoſt. And theſe Three Perſons have three ſeveral Works;

1. The Father's work was to Chooſe, to Predeſtinate, and to Accept in his Beloved. His work therefore is in the 4, 5, and 6*th* Verſes.

2. The work of the Son is Redemption, &c. In whom we have redemption through his blood, ver. 7. &c. It is not meant of Redemption Paſſive, or which we receive as the fruit of his having redeemed us; but of that Redemption Active, which was in him, and wrought by himſelf. And therefore it is not ſaid [by whom,] but [in whom] we have redemption through his blood.

3. And then the Holy Ghoſt's work, is the application of all theſe unto us; when the Spirit doth in and by converſion bring home all theſe to our hearts. And this you have in the 8 and 9*th* Verſes, Wherein he hath abounded towards us in all wiſdom and prudence: having made known unto us the myſtery of his Will, &c. This is one Diviſion whereinto you may caſt theſe Verſes, and the Bleſſings mentioned in them.

But there is a Second, and that is a Dicotomy or Diviſion of them into two Parts.

There is one ſort of Bleſſings from the 4*th* Verſe to the 7*th*, and another ſort of Bleſſings from the 7*th* Verſe to the 10*th*. And ſo, as there are Three Perſons, and their works deſcribed to be Three: ſo there are alſo two Triplicities of Bleſſings, (as I may ſo call them.)

The firſt Three are ſuch Bleſſings unto which God abſolutely choſe us in relation to Chriſt's Perſon. And they are,

1. Perfect Holineſs, ver. 4.
2. Perfect Glory, or Adoption, ver. 5.
3. Acceptation of our Perſons in and upon that our relation to his Beloved, ver. 6.

But then Secondly, There are three other Bleſſings, founded upon our relation to Chriſt through his Merits. As,

1. Redemption; taking it in the largeſt ſenſe for whatever Redemption may extend to; for redeeming us as well from Miſery as from Sin, and for the purchaſing of all thoſe Bleſſings which we had forfeited; [In whom we have redemption through his blood,] ver. 7.

2. Juſtification; which is one fruit of Redemption; [The forgiveneſs of ſins according to the riches of his Grace,] ver. 7.

3. Vocation, or Calling us; which is the work of the Spirit; [wherein he hath abounded towards us in all wiſdom and prudence, having made known to us, &c.] ver. 8 and 9.

Calling (you know) is either external or internal. External is the Preaching of the Goſpel; that you have in the 9*th* Verſe, [Having made known to us the myſtery of his Will.] Internal is the working Faith and Holineſs in us; which is mentioned mentioned in the 8*th* Verſe; [He hath abounded to us in all Wiſdom, (the principle of Faith,) and Prudence,] which is the principle of Holineſs, (as Interpreters carry it.) Ser. VIII.

Now obſerve, what is common to theſe two ſeveral ſorts of Bleſſings?

Firſt, They come from God's Decree, both the Three latter and the Three former. How this is true of the three former, you have already ſeen. We were Elected to be Holy, and Predeſtinated to Adoption, according to the good pleaſure of his will, &c. And the three latter do depend upon the ſame good pleaſure of his Will from everlaſting; [In whom we have redemption, &c. according to the good pleaſure of his will, ver. 9. So that, God's good pleaſure is as well the fountain of theſe Three latter ſort of Mercies, (and therefore cometh in the Reer of them too,) as it was of the three former. And ſo Eraſmus ſaith, that this, [according to the good pleaſure of his will,] referreth as well unto Redemption and Forgiveneſs of ſins, as it doth to Calling us and giving us Wiſdom and Prudence.

Secondly, They have this likewiſe common unto them, That there is Free Grace in them both: For the Apoſtle ſpeaking of the firſt ſort of Bleſſings, he ſaith, [He hath choſen us, and predeſtinated us to the praiſe of the glory of his Grace, wherein he hath made us accepted in the Beloved:] and then coming to the other ſort of Bleſſings, at the 7*th* Verſe he ſaith, [We have redemption and forgiveneſs of ſins, according to the riches of his Grace.] And then it follows, [In which (namely Grace) he hath abounded towards us in converting us alſo, ver. 8.] So that ſtill here is Free Grace in both.

And, Thirdly, They are both ſorts in Chriſt. God Choſe us in Chriſt, Predeſtinated us through Chriſt, and Accepted us in the Beloved: There is the firſt ſort. In whom we have redemption, and the forgiveneſs of ſins through his blood: There is the ſecond ſort. We have all in and through Chriſt, both the one ſort of Bleſſings and the other. Theſe are common to them all.

But before I come to expound theſe words in the 7, 8, and 9*th* Verſes, and give you Obſervations out of them; give me leave from the Connexion, and the Apoſtles thus ranking theſe Bleſſings into theſe two ſorts, to give you in my tranſition between them the greateſt matter of note (that I know of) I can commend to you, and it ſhews their diſtinction.

In theſe Verſes (take them all together from the 4*th* Verſe to the 10*th*) the Apoſtle ſeems to hold forth unto us two ſeveral parts of God's Decree. Two deſigns contained in it; and theſe, framed according to thoſe two ranks of Bleſſings before-mentioned. There are two Parts (I ſay) of the Myſtery of God's Will towards us from everlaſting. Two contrivements that God had towards us poor Creatures; and both of them (as you will ſee in the handling of them) infinitely glorious.

The One is, the Decree of the End that God hath ordained to bring us unto, Decretum finis.

The other is Decretum viæ, or medii, the Decree of the Way through which God leads us in bringing us to that End. Divines uſe to diſtinguiſh them thus, terming the one Decretum Intentionis, the Decree of God's utmoſt Intention to us; the other Decretum Executionis, the Decree of his Executing or bringing about the things intended; and is likewiſe by them called Decretum Mediorum, but I rather call it Decretum Viæ. The diſtinction is common among Divines; but I find but few that apply it unto this Scripture (though ſome do it.) And we ſhall ſee theſe words naturally to part themſelves into theſe two Decrees.

1. Here are God's Decrees concerning the End unto which he meaneth to bring us, or about what he meaneth to do with us, and make us to be at the laſt. He intendeth to make us perfectly holy and perfectly glorious, like his Son; he meaneth to delight in us for ever, as conſidered in his Beloved. And theſe Decrees the 4, 5, and 6*th* Verſes do contain.

2. Here are the Decrees of the Way unto this End; that is, of what ſhall fall out to us in his leading us through this way unto this End; namely, perfect Holineſs, Glory, &c. and of what ſhall betide us ere we come to enjoy all this. The Apoſtle plainly intimates unto us, that we ſhall fall both into Sin and into Miſery, and ſo have need of a Redeemer. This ſame Head we were choſen in, muſt come to redeem us, and our Sins muſt be forgiven, and we muſt be Called, and muſt have Faith; and all theſe things wrought in us before we can come to Heaven. This is the Decree of the Means, Decretum Viæ, as the other is Decretum Patriæ,) Via and Patria you know is an old diſtinction;) and this latter is expreſſed in the 7,8, and 9th Verſes.

For this diſtinction itſelf, you ſhall find it founded upon Scripture; as *Heb.*2.10. where the Apoſtle ſpeaking, that God had ordained Chriſt to be the Author, Captain and Leader [ἀρχηγὸν] of our Salvation. The Apoſtle ſays, Thus it became him in bringing many Sons into Glory. So we tranſlate it: the words in the Original are [πολλοὺς υἱοὺς εἰς δόξαν ἀγαγόντα,] [In leading many Sons unto glory.] Here you ſee is the Glory which God means to bring us unto as the End, and here is a Way implied, through which he leads us unto that Glory. Here is the Canaan, and here is the Wilderneſs through which we are to paſs unto it. And as we are thus ordained to an End, and led through a way unto it; ſo is our Redeemer too. You ſhall find the Scripture ſpeaking in the ſame language concerning him alſo: So *Pſal.*110.7. the Pſalmiſt ſpeaking of Chriſt, tells us what he ſhall be in Heaven; *v.*1. Sit thou at my right hand, &c. but before he comes thither, he ſhall drink of the brook in the way. Our Saviour Chriſt is ordained to drink of fulneſs of pleaſure in Heaven at the end. At thy right hand (ſays Chriſt, *Pſal.*16.11. which Pſalm was written of him) are pleaſures for evermore. Rivers of pleaſure (as they are called elſewhere;) but he muſt drink of a bitter Cup before he comes thither; he muſt drink of the brook by the way. So that God had another Decree about him too, even the Decree of the Way.

Now to ſum up all; If you ſpeak of what God hath ordained us unto as the End and Iſſue of all, it is contained in the 4,5, and 6th Verſes, to be perfectly holy, and perfectly happy, and for God perfectly to delight in us; this is the end and upſhot unto which God meaneth to bring us.

But by the way, (to make the end and concluſion of all the more illuſtrious,) God, in and by the ſame everlaſting Decree, ordained to permit the Fall of theſe his Elect. So that inſtead of theſe three, perfect Holineſs, perfect Glory, and perfect Acceptation with God, he throws you into a condition wherein you are perfectly unholy, perfectly unhappy, and perfectly hateful unto him (as in your ſelves conſidered.) This is an accident that falls out by the way; you ſhall ſee who will cure it preſently. Inſtead of perfect Holineſs, here you have nothing but Sin; inſtead of Glory, and being the Children of God by Adoption, you have nothing but Hell, and then being the Children of wrath; and inſtead of being accepted by God, you are made a Curſe; Curſed is every one that continueth not in all that is written in this Book to do it. This Curſe ſeizeth upon all Mankind, and upon your ſelves although elected to the contrary. Here God's firſt deſign about the End unto which he means to bring us, ſeems utterly daſht and ſpoiled; and we are as far off from all that Glory intended as poſſibly could be imagined. And what does God order then? Even that this Chriſt, God-Man, he in whom he choſe us, and he to be a Head unto us from everlaſting, who is the Captain of our ſalvation (as he is called in that place before-named;) that he ſhould come and take frail fleſh; come in the likeneſs of ſinful fleſh, and become our Redeemer, [In whom we have redemption through his blood.] Through him (ſays God) I will forgive all their Sins into which they are fallen, (as the word here uſed for Sins fitly expreſſeth it, [παραπτώματα,] and though they have nothing but unholineſs, wickedneſs, and unbelief in them; yet I will abound towards them in all Wiſdom and Prudence, and turn them unto me, and that in this life; and then bring them to that perfect Holineſs and Glory, and to that perfect Acceptation with me in the World to come, that I have ordained them unto.

SER-

Ser. VIII.

SERMON VIII.

EPHES. 1. 7.

In whom we have Redemption through his Blood, the forgiveneſs of Sins, according to the riches of his Grace.

I Stand here at the 7*th*. verſe, between two of the greateſt (what ſhall I call them?) Heights or Depths of God's Wiſdom and Grace towards us; and as that Angel in the Revelation had one foot upon the Earth, and another upon the Sea; ſo I ſtand with one foot upon the Bleſſings ordained us from eternity, and intended us when we come in Heaven, and the other upon the bleſſigs intended us here in this World. They are both of them two vaſt Arguments, and therefore you ſhall give me leave to be ſomewhat larger then ordinary about them. For of all the Myſteries of the Goſpel (ſince I knew it,) this hath moſt ſwallowed up my thoughts.

Two things I ſhall obſerve about theſe two ſorts of Decrees and Bleſſings.

Firſt, I ſhall ſhew you how theſe Bleſſings differ, (as before I ſhewed you what was common unto them among themſelves.)

And Secondly, I ſhall give you a glimpſe of that infinitely glorious harmony between theſe two contrivements, and of the wiſdom of God that ſhines in them both. The greatneſs of the Point deſerves this.

For the Firſt, How theſe bleſſings differ.

Firſt, The firſt ſort of bleſſings perfect Holineſs, Adoption, &c. were ordained us without the conſideration of the fall, (though not before the conſideration of the Fall; for all the things which God decrees, are at once in his mind,) they were all both one and other ordained to our perſons. But God in the Decrees about theſe firſt ſort of bleſſings viewed us as Creabiles, as Creatures which he could, and would make ſo and ſo glorious: For God can eaſily ordain the Subject, and the utmoſt well-being of it both at once; and this might well be the firſt Idea taken of us in God's puroſes, becauſe ſuch is the perfection of God's underſtanding, that he at firſt looks to the perfection and end of his work. But the ſecond ſort of bleſſings were ordained us meerly upon conſideration of the Fall, and to our perſons conſidered as Sinners and Unbelievers. And the firſt ſort were to the praiſe of God's grace, taking Grace for the freeneſs of love; whereas the latter ſort, are to the praiſe of the glory of his grace, are with an ἄυξησις, an endearment of a greater degree of his grace, unto a further glory of his grace and an illuſtration of it, taking Grace for free Mercy.

Secondly, Thoſe firſt ſort of bleſſings are ordained to have their full and plenary accompliſhment, and to take place in that other World, and are ſuited to that ſtate into which we ſhall then be enſtalled. And as in Gods primary intention they are before the other, and therefore are ſaid to have been before the foundation of the World, ver. 4. ſo they are to take place after this world ended; they being the Center of all God's thoughts towards us. Then we ſhall be ſo holy as Satan himſelf ſhall find no ground to carp at us: Then we ſhall receive the Adoption of Children; and though we are now the Sons of God, yet then it ſhall appear to us and and all the World, by that infinite glory that God will then beſtow upon us. But thoſe ſecond ſort of bleſſings were ordained for our entertainment in this World, and are ſuited unto that condition which we ſhall run thorough unto the day of Judgment.

Ser. VIII. Thirdly, The firſt ſort are founded meerly upon our relation to the Perſon of Chriſt, as is manifeſted in all thoſe three mentioned, ver. 4,5,6. [Choſen in him,] and therefore Holy; becauſe as he being the Son of God, was to be holy, (Luke 1. 35. That holy thing which ſhall be born of thee, ſhall be called the Son of God,) ſo are we, we being Members of him. And as this is true of holineſs, ſo of the other two it is more plain. But this ſecond ſort are founded meerly upon the Merits of Chriſt: As, Redemption through his blood, and ſo Forgiveneſs, Converſion, &c. In a word, Theſe latter bleſſings are but the removings of thoſe Obſtacles which by reaſon of Sin ſtood in our way to that intended Glory. In the fulneſs of Time God ſent his Son to redeem them that were under the Law, that they might receive the Adoption of Sons. *Galat.*4. 5.

I come now to the Second thing propounded. That glorious harmony of Wiſdom and Grace, &c. that ſhines in theſe two deſigns, and in the reducing them unto theſe two heads; the one ſubordinate and ſubſerving the other.

It is true, if we ſpeak rigidly, there is but one Act and one entire Object of God's Decrees; for God doth all at once. Yet according to the Language of the Scripture (wherein God condeſcendeth to our apprehenſions, and hath plotted all things to our apprehenſion, to take us the better) you ſhall find that there are two plots or deſigns that God had towards us.

He had a primary Plot, which was firſt in his intention; and he had an after plot ſubordinate to the other. His firſt Plot was to chooſe us to that ſtate which we ſhall be in in Heaven, His after plot that he had towards us whilſt we are in our way, was to Redeem us, and reconcile us unto himſelf by his Son Jeſus Chriſt. To open the glory of this Myſtery unto you.

Firſt, God made two Worlds for us; He made this World, and put us into it holy once, in Adam. But alaſs! we ſtood not long in that ſtate, but fell into Sin. Then God hath made the World after the day of Judgment. Now, anſwerably, he hath two deſigns about us. Whilſt we are in this World, under Sin and Miſery and imperfect holineſs, he hath the deſign of Redemption, to juſtifie us, to forgive us our Sins, and to abound towards us in all wiſdom and prudence. And when we come into that other World, namely, Heaven, there he hath ordained perfect holineſs for us, and acceptation with himſelf in Chriſt's perſon as the Beloved. Again anſwerably, as God hath two worlds into which he puts us, and two deſigns about us in thoſe Worlds, ſo he hath ordained us two ſorts of bleſſings anſwerable to thoſe two deſigns; the one for this World the other for that to come. He hath perfect Holineſs, Glory, and Acceptation of our perſons, for the world to come; and he hath other bleſſings, Redemption, Juſtification, Forgiveneſs of Sins, Calling us, &c. for this life and this World.

Secondly, Anſwerably, Chriſt runs through a double ſtate; one that was intended him firſt and ſimply, which in Joh. 17. 5. he calls the glory he had with his Father before the World was; that is, to ſpeak the loweſt ſenſe of thoſe words, the glory which God firſt and abſolutely intended him before he had created the World, and before or without the conſideration of Chriſt's coming into this wicked World or Earth. For he cannot hereby mean the glory of the ſecond perſon, for that muſt not be begged or prayed for, and ver. 24. it is ſaid to be given him; and therefore it is a glory which he hath as God-man. He hath a glory now in Heaven which was intended him before the world was. But then Chriſt had an other ſtate even a frail ſtate, clothed with our frail Fleſh and Blood, he came down here, and takes upon him the likeneſs of ſinful Fleſh in all the infirmities of it, and here he drinks of the Brook by the way; he ſuffers, and ſo redeems us.

In the Third Place; Chriſt by both theſe ſtates comes anſwerably to have a double Relation to us; the one of a Head and Common Perſon, ſimply conſidered as an Author of ſalvation, (as he is called, *Heb.*2.10.) more ſtrictly conſidered; the other, as he is a Redeemer. You have them both in Coloſſ. 1.18, 19,20. Verſes compared together; where the Apoſtle deſcribeth our Saviour Chriſt in both theſe his Fulneſſes. Firſt, he tells what Chriſt is abſolutely ordained unto, and his body with him, ver. 18. He is the Head of the Body the Church: he is the beginning, the firſt-born from the dead, (and ſo the founder of that ſtate we ſhall have after the Reſurrection,) that in all things he might have the pre- eminence: For it pleased the Father, that in him should all fulness dwell, (even the fulness of all Relations to us, ver. 19.) And what followeth? And having made peace thrugh the blood of his Cross, by him to reconcile all things to himself, ver. 20. Here is the relation of a Head, and likewise the relation of a Redeemer and Reconciler too. God chose us in him, predestinated us in him, and accepted us in him; and besides this, In him we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of sins,&c. That place in the Colossians answereth this here in the Ephesians. Ser. VIII.

In the Fourth place; From both these doth arise unto Christ a double glory, which he is ordained to: The one Intrinsecal, due to him as he is the Son of God dwelling in an Human Nature, and being therein an Head of a glorious Body the Church; in whom as such, and so beloved of God himself, and for his sake meerly in respect of his Person, they are beloved of God in him. And then besides this, there is another glory more Extrinsecal, and acquired by the work of Redemption; purchased and bought with the sweat of his Soul, as Phil. 2.8,9. He humbled himself, and became obedient unto the death of the Cross; therefore God also hath highly exalted him,&c.

And thus Fifthly, you see how these double sorts of Blessings come to be bestowed upon a differing ground. Those Blessings, which are the Blessings of the End unto which God will bring us, namely, Perfect Holiness, Glory, and Acceptation of our Persons in Heaven, they are founded meerly upon our Relation to Christ's Person. Therefore we see it is here said, that we are chosen in him to be holy before God in love; and we are predestinated through Jesus Christ unto the adoption of Sons. He being a Natural Son, and we adopted in him; and we are accepted in him, he first being God's Beloved; and it is meerly our Relation to his Person that is the foundation of these Blessings. But when the Apostle comes to the other sort of Blessings, as Redemption, Forgiveness of sins, and the like; these he founds upon Christ's blood, [In whom we have redemption through his blood,&c.]

And thus in the Sixth place, We come doubly to be saved; saved over and over; and hereby we obtain a double right to Heaven: We have one right founded upon our relation to Christ's Person, being chosen in him, and accepted in him: And then we have all these bought over again (when we had forfeited them) by Christ's purchase in Redeeming us. And for this you have a Scripture in the 14*th* Verse of this Chapter, where you shall find that Heaven is both an Inheritance, and Purchased too; [Which is the earnest of our Inheritance, until the redemption of the purchased Possession.] And therefore, Rom. 8.23. Heaven is called both the Adoption, in respect to its being an Inheritance, by our being chosen Heirs with Christ; and also a Redemption, as being purchased by his blood.

In the Seventh place; Hereby God hath a double Glory too. Here are two Editions of his Attributes, (besides that in the works of Creation,) and both in Christ; one in the Person of Christ, simply and alone considered, in whom the glory of God doth shine: the other in the story of his Mediation and the works thereof, in which all the same Attributes are manifested over again and anew by Works of his, and the Merit of them. It would be too long to go over them all; as to shew the double glory of his Wisdom, the double glory of his Grace, Power, &c. A double glory riseth to God's Wisdom, in that he could make one Jesus Christ serve for two designs, the greatest that ever were, and either of them worth the Incarnation of his Son, I mean his taking our Nature upon him. For I appeal to you; Suppose that God should have created the Man Christ Jesus in Heaven, in that glory which now he hath, and he should never have come down hither to suffer and die, (as he did:) Suppose withal, that God had taken up all his Elect unto himself in Heaven, or created them there at first with him, as he did the Angels, so as they had never been in the other Adam, nor in this World; but had been made Sons and Heirs with Christ, and Members of him as their Head; and so God delighting himself in them, and they in him from their first Creation: Suppose God had done no more, I appeal to you if this had not been worth the assumption of our Nature? For here had all the Attributes of God been manifested; here had been infinite Love and Free grace shewn;

ſhewn; here had been the greateſt Power, the greateſt Goodneſs, the greateſt Holineſs, and whatever elſe you will in all theſe manifeſted. But you may haply ſay, here had the manifeſtation of one Attribute been wanting, namely, Mercy to Creatures in miſery. I Anſwer, This Mercy is but a further extenſion of the ſame love, cauſing God to continue to love them as Sinners, whom he loved with a Free love as Creatures. Love is the ſoundation of Mercy; and ſo that Love in God was ſo great, that it would have turned into Mercy, if there had been need; *Epheſ.*2.4. God, who is rich in Mercy, for the great love wherewith he hath loved us, &c. Yet the more evidently to ſhew forth this, he leaves us to Sin and Miſery, and then ſends his Son to take frail Fleſh upon him, and to Suffer and Die to redeem Us. And in this work of Redemption appear all theſe Attributes anew, his Power, Juſtice, Wiſdom, Holineſs, &c. as I ſaid before.

Eightly, and Laſtly, God ordered it thus ſo to take us the more, whom he would bring to heaven. Had we at firſt been brought to that Communion with Chriſt, which we ſhall have in Heaven after the Day of Judgment, without having known either Sin or Miſery, it had been a good and bleſſed condition indeed; we ſhould infinitely have rejoyced in it, and had reaſon ſo to have done. But certainly Heaven will be ſweeter to us, by reaſon of our having once fallen into Sin and Miſery, and then having a Redeemer that came and freed us from all, and then brought us to Heaven. O! how ſweet will this make Heaven to be unto you? Romans 9. 23. before God brings the Veſſels of Mercy unto Heaven, it is ſaid, he prepares them unto glory. Now, what is it that prepares them to glory? It is couched in that expreſſion therewith joyned, That they were Veſſels of Mercy, that is, that once had been filled with Miſery, and then he takes them up to glory. This adds a ſhadow and a foil to Glory, to make it the more glorious in their apprehenſions. In an Ante-Maſque you ſhall have Hell firſt preſented; and that being removed, you have Heaven preſently before you. Thus doth God with us; all that falls out to us here, together with the whole work of Redempt on, it is but an Ante-Maſque and Præludium to take us up in our thoughts while we are here in this World: ſo to render that glory, which we ſhall have in Heaven, the more reſplendent and glorious. This double Plot ſerveth alſo to make the ſtory of Chriſt's Love the more illuſtrious to the Church his Spouſe. Thoſe that write Romances and feigned Stories, you ſhall have them ſet up ſome one Man, and ſome one Woman, whom they mean to magnifie and exalt to the dignity of a King and Queen, and in the end marry them glorioufly together: this they drive at; this is their firſt project when they ſet themſelves to write ſuch a Book. But that they may take the Reader the more, before this concluſion they will in their Fiction throw this Man and Woman into the greateſt and moſt deſperate extremities that can be imagined, ſeparate them in the greateſt diſtance each from the other, that the Reader ſhall judge it impoſſible theſe ever again ſhould meet in an happy enjoyment and embraces. They will hurry them through all ſorts of Misfortunes and diſaſters, and make that Lover to endure the greateſt hardſhips, and run through the moſt hardy and heroical adventures and hazards for that his eſpouſed Love, that can be; ſo to effect and bring about in the end her and his liberty and mutual content in the enjoyment each of other. This makes the Story to be read along with pleaſure; to ſee all the way the conſtancy of them both in their begun Loves, and in the end to ſee them both extricated out of the depths of Miſeries, and to meet together and enjoy each other, and become moſt great and glorious Princes. This uſeth ſtrongly to take thoſe that are but Readers, and that, when they know it is but feigned; but if it were real, how would ſuch an happy Cataſtrophe take with and affect thoſe Lovers themſelves? Now juſt thus hath God ſet up Chriſt and the Church his Spouſe, to be married together in Heaven for ever; that is his Plot: But he firſt throws her into Sin and Miſery, and then ſends his Son Jeſus Chriſt to reſcue and relieve her, ſo to ſhew his love unto her unto the uttermoſt; and all this ſo, to take our hearts the more, when we ſhall come to ſee his Perſon in Heaven. God commendeth his love to us in this, that while we were yet Sinners, he ſent his Son for us, &c. God loved us in ordaining us to life; but I will commend it yet more (ſays God,) for they ſhall be in a ſtate of death, and then I will give my Son for them to redeem them. So that this Plot of Redemption, was but a further improvement or edition of the love of God and of Chriſt. Ser. VIII.

And then Laſtly, God's Love is ſet out unto us by a double gift of Chriſt to us and for us; whereof the gift of him as of a Redeemer to us, is of the two the leaſt. Thou art a good Soul; tell me, whether doſt thou prize more the perſon of Jeſus Chriſt given thee, or the benefits thou haſt by his Death? Thou wilt ſay, I prize the perſon of Chriſt moſt, and thou pitcheſt right; it is more worth then all his benefits. I uſe to ſay (and it is moſt certainly true,) that Chriſt's love is more then his Sufferings; His Sufferings worth more then all his benefits; but his perſon is more then either benefits or ſufferings. Now, God in chooſing thee in him to be a Son, and placing thee in him by Election, and in him Accepting thy perſon; He gave thee in this, his perſon, and a relation to him, to live with him, & to have communion with him, and to be like to him for ever. And this is the firſt gift, and that which firſt he intended to thee. But then, over and beſides this, God gave him as a Redeemer for thee; and this Redemption is but a benefit which thou haſt by him: And indeed, it was but to remove objections that lay in the way unto that other great plot, as hindering the accompliſhment of it; (as I remember Cyril well expreſſeth it.) Præfunditur nobis Chriſtus (ſaith he) ut poſſit Natura Humana, (ſuperatis malis, quæ interim acciderant) ad priſtinam gratiam Chriſti, & dignitatem recurrere. It was to recover us out of thoſe evils that fell out by the way, unto that dignity which God in Chriſt firſt choſe us unto.

And (to conclude) the knowledge of Chriſt, and communion with his perſon and the glory thereof, is part of the happineſs ordained for us in the World to come. But the knowledge of Chriſt in his benefits of Redemption, is that which takes up our thoughts here; and both do conduce to make him moſt glorious and moſt dear unto us, and us moſt compleatly happy in him.

Ver. 7. In whom we have redemption through his blood, &c.
Here is,
Firſt, Redemption it ſelf.
Secondly, The Redeemer, [in whom.]
Thirdly, The price of this Redemption paid or laid down, [His Blood.]
Fourthly, One fruit of this Redemption inſtanced in for all the reſt, The forgiveneſs of Sin.
Fifthly, The Spring or ſource of all this, the Benefactor or Founder of all this; The Riches of his Grace.

Firſt, The Redemption it ſelf, which is larger then forgiveneſs of Sins, for Redemption reacheth to Glory alſo: Glory was to be purchaſed anew. And why? Becauſe, though we were predeſtinated to Glory in our relation unto Chriſt's perſon as our head, yet we forfeited it all, and it muſt therefore be bought again; and therefore the glory of Heaven, in Luke 21. 18. is called Redemption. Lift up your Heads, for your Redemption draws nigh, ſaith Chriſt, ſpeaking of the latter day; you have the like place, Rom. 8. 23. we groan within our ſelves, waiting for the Redemption of our bodies. And Tit. 2. 14. Sanctification itſelf is called Redemption, who gave himſelf for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purifie unto himſelf a peculiar people zealous of good works. Redemption is a large word; for Chriſt was fain to buy all that God intended us, becauſe we loſt it. That's for Redemption.

The Second, This Redemption, as is ſaid, we have it in Chriſt; in whom (ſaith he) we have Redemption. He ſpeaks not of the Redemption we receive here, but of the work of Redemption which Chriſt himſelf wrought, that is the cauſe of all the Redemption we receive; for he ſaith, it is Redemption in Chriſt. There are ſome put this difference between being Redeemed in Chriſt and redeemed through Chriſt; ſay they, the Elect only are Redeemed through Chriſt, that is, his Redemption is applied to them; There is an univerſal Redemption for all men, but it is only efficacious for them that are Elected, they are only Redeemed through Chriſt. But it is confuted here out of the Text, by comparing the coherence. Who are Redeemed? We, ſaith he, what We? Obſerve of whom he ſpeaks before, fore, according as he hath Choſen us in him, and Predeſtinated us in him, and Accepted us in him; thoſe Us that were choſen, they are Redeemed and no other.

Ser. VIII

In the Second place, He ſaith [We] have it in him; What is the meaning of that? What doth that imply?

It is ſpoken firſt in a diſtinction from the Fathers in the Old Teſtament. It is true, they were redeemed virtually, but the thing was not done, they did not ſee Chriſt, they ſaw his day afar off indeed, and he was the Lamb ſlain from the beginning of the world; but he had not yet done it, but we have it, Chriſt hath done it. We ſee Jeſus (ſaith he, Heb. 2.) taſting of Death for every man, and crowned with glory and honour. In the 9*th*. Heb. 15. you ſhall find there this expreſſion, For this cauſe he is the Mediatour of the New Teſtament, that by means of death, for the Redemption of the Tranſgreſſions that were under the firſt Teſtament. Mark the expreſſion. He was to die for the redemption of the tranſgreſſions that were under the firſt Teſtament. The meaning is this; That the world had gon upon the ſcore with God, he received not one penny of money for all the Fathers he had ſaved, they had been redeemed indeed, they had the fruit of that redemption that was afterward to be done, but as yet Jeſus Chriſt had not paid his Father one penny of money: Now then he comes under the New Teſtament; and he is the Mediator, that by means of death he might be for the redemption of the Tranſgreſſions that were under the Old Teſtament; that he might cancel all thoſe Bonds. You have the like expreſſion in the 3*d*. of the Romans.

So that (My Brethren) it is a help to your faith in compariſon of them; they had Redemption only in the promiſe, they ſaw it afar off. We have Redemption in Chriſt, it is done, it is paſt; we ſee Jeſus taſting death, ſee him hang upon the Croſs by faith, and ſee him now he is in Heaven crowned with glory and honour; ſo ſaith the Apoſtle in that place Heb. 2. You have more help to believe than our fore-Fathers had.

Secondly, We have redemption as in a common perſon in Chriſt, we have it not only when it is applied to us, but we have it in him as we had condemnation in Adam, before we were born in the world, ſo we had redemption in Chriſt when he died.

The next thing I would have you Obſerve is this, and it may mightily and wonderfully inſtance the love of God towards us. The laſt words he had ſaid of Chriſt, if you mark it, in the 6*th*. verſe, was that he was God's beloved; He hath made us accepted in the Beloved. What is the next word after in this 7*th*. verſe? In whom we have redemption through his blood. It is Chryſoſtome's Obſervation, it is ſtrange, infinite ſtrange, that he that was God's beloved, whom he delighteth in as in himſelf, that God ſhould ever ſend him to be a Redeemer, and to ſhed his blood for Sinners. What! was he God's beloved, and have you redemption in him too? ſhould God ſacrifice his beloved? God choſe us to be holy in Heaven with him, to be Sons with him there, to delight in us there. Let that plot ſtand, let them never come to be ſinful, let me have them up in Heaven preſently with my Son; One would have thought God might have ſaid this. No, God would commend his love yet further; He would let them fall into ſins, to redeem them, he would ſacrifice this beloved. He had ſo much love in his heart that he could commend it to us no way but by ſacrificing his beloved. He might have choſen whether he had done ſo or no, he might have made us as happy in Heaven as now we ſhall be, it needed not have coſt him the blood of his Son. But now he wonderfully ſets out his love to us, in that we have redemption in his beloved.

So much for the Redeemer which was the Second head.

The Third is the Price; and that is his Blood, Redemption through his blood.

The Hebrew word for Redemption importeth ſomewhat more than redeeming by price; but the Greek word that is here uſed and elſe where imports only a redeeming by price, not a redeeming by force. When God came to deal about our ſalvation, conſidering us Sinners, ſaith he, I will have a full price or I will not ſave you, I will be ſatisfied to the uttermoſt. He will have Redemption by a price, price, ſo the word ſignifieth ἀπολύτρωσις. He will have them bought; What I give I give, ſaith he, what I ſell I ſell, I will ſell their ſalvation, and I will ſell it to the uttermoſt, I will have a ful price for it; you are bought with a price, ſaith the Apoſtle, over bought: And 1 Tim. 2. 6. it is called ἀντίλυτρον, an adequate price, a price that if you weigh it in the Ballance it is heavy, it weighs down the other, it is ſufficient for it, it was a full price. In Rom. 3. 24. and ſo on; you ſhall find there that when God came to juſtifie a ſinner, he ſaith he will be juſt too. I would fain ſave the ſinner but I would be juſt too; therefore he will have a price, a full price, and therefore it is called Redemption by price. Ser. VIII.

But what is meant by his Blood? His Blood is only mentioned not that his Active obedience doth not go into it: Take all Chriſt, good Brethren: But becauſe his Blood was the laſt part of the payment, that cancelled all the Bond, therefore his Blood is ſtill mentioned in Scripture. And his Blood is more mentioned than the other; Why? to anſwer the expreſſion of the Type in the Old Law; there was the blood poured out, you know, and there was blood laid upon the horns of the Altar, and all things were ſprinkled with blood. What did the blood ſignifie in the Old Teſtament? Blood in the Old Teſtament ſignified the ſoul of the beaſt; ſaith he, the life of it, or the ſoul of it lieth in the blood. So in the New Teſtament ſtill the blood of Chriſt is mentioned, to ſignifie the ſufferings of his Soul; and it is mentioned too to anſwer the Type. In the Lord's Supper you have Bread, to ſignifie the breaking of his Body, but you ſhall find that he aſcribeth more peculiarly his ſufferings to his Blood, ſignified by the Wine, to repreſent the ſufferings of his Soul, and therefore his ſoul is ſaid to be poured forth. Fall down (my Brethren) before the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; Thou art worthy to receive all honour and glory, for thou haſt redeemed us to God by thy blood, ſay the Angels and Saints, Revel. 5. 9.

So much for the Price. What is the fruit of it? (Which is the Fourth head.) Forgiveneſs of ſins. What ſins? Look in the Coloſſ. 2. 13. Having forgiven all your Treſpaſſes; All, paſt, preſent and to come. He retaineth ſin in your Conſciences, to humble you, to break you, and when men are caſt out of the Church, he then bindeth in Heaven upon their Conſciences what is bound on Earth; yet conſidering you in Chriſt he forgiveth all ſins, ſtrikes off all at once by his blood.

And what is this great buſineſs of the forgiveneſs of ſins? We that are poor Sinners, when we are firſt humbled and ſee our ſins, Oh, what a mercy is it that our ſins were forgiven! True, but it is a ſmall matter, my Brethren, forgiveneſs of ſins is, it is buried in the foundation, Heaven, Glory, Eternity, Communion with Chriſt and God being all in all. I ſay, it is but a ſmall thing, it is but the foundation of this great building, in Heaven all ſins will be remembred no more. Yet we poor Souls (as we have reaſon) we come to Chriſt for forgiveneſs of ſins firſt, and we do well as we are Sinners, he is the fitteſt Object for us as he is the Saviour of us from our ſins; take him in his blood; but when we are come to Chriſt once, you find perfect holineſs, you find Adoption, Glory, Acceptation in his perſon, you find in his perſon more than in all his benefits, then in forgiveneſs or whatſoever elſe.

Laſtly, what is the cauſe he beſtoweth all this? The riches of his Grace; According (ſaith he) to the riches of his grace. Grace, you muſt know, ſignifieth properly God's freeneſs in doing it; He hath juſtified us freely by his grace, Rom. 3. 24. Therefore the love of God is called grace, becauſe it importeth a freeneſs of his love, and the mercy of God is called grace, becauſe it importeth a freeneſs of his mercy. Grace is taken in the firſt ſenſe in the 6 verſe. It is taken in the ſecond ſenſe here in this 7 verſe; for the freeneſs of ſhewing mercy, for mercy refer.eth to forgiveneſs. I ſhall have occaſion to handle theſe things, when I come to the ſecond Chapter the 4, 5, 6, 7, verſes. In a word now Obſerve what is the reaſon, when he ſaid he did bleſs us firſt, it was to the praiſe of the glory of his grace; when he ſpeaks of the forgiveneſs of ſins, then comes in the riches of his Grace. What is the reaſon of this difference?

Ser. VIII.

This is the reaſon of it, ſaith God, My Attributes they are mine, and they are yours, they are mine for my own glory, but they are yours for your benefit; all the riches of my grace, take them to your uſe, (riches you know are for uſe,) all the riches that are in me take them as they are riches, as they may be imployed to the good of the Creature take them, they are yours as much as mine, only the glory ſhall be mine. He hath Predeſtinated us to the praiſe of the glory of his grace, but he forgiveth ſins according to the riches of his grace.

And why riches of grace?

It is to help your unbelief. When you come and ſee your ſins told out before you, ſet in order before you, and piled up as high as Heaven, and as low as Hell; thinks the poor ſoul, where is the wealth, where are the riches, where is that that ſhall forgive all theſe Sins? Here it is, here is riches of grace told out before you, here is the blood of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt manifeſted to you. Riches of grace: Thou needeſt not bring one penny, God is rich enough, what ſhouldeſt thou bring thy duties or any thing to the forgiveneſs of Sins? Here is riches of grace doth it, not a penny of ours; get but faith, it is the key to unlock this treaſure, and to poſſeſs thee of theſe riches. There are multitudes of ſins, here are multitudes of mercies; riches implieth multitudes, abundance, According to the riches of his grace.

There is one difficulty I muſt open, and I have done with this verſe; I ſhall be then over the greateſt difficulty that I know in this chapter or Epiſtle. I ſhall do it in a word.

There is this one Objection or ſcruple. How doth God forgive ſins according to the riches of his grace when, he receiveth a price for it? Doth a man forgive freely, when he is paid for it?

This ſtumbles the Socinian's. Indeed, the Goſpel is made, up ſay they, with nothing but contradictions; God is paid for what he doth, and yet it is done freely; God chooſeth men to life and ſalvation, and it is done immutably; ordaineth what their wills ſhall do, and yet they work freely; theſe are contradictions, we could name many more, amongſt the reſt this is one.

It is Anſwered, Firſt, It is true, Juſtice had a ſatisfaction, but who called Chriſt to give this ſatisfaction? Not Juſtice, but it was Grace did it. Juſtice indeed ſtood upon it, kept her own diſtance, I will be ſatisfied, ſaith Juſtice. But who ſpake to Chriſt to pay this? Grace did. So that here is one reconciliation of it, it is according to the riches of his grace, becauſe grace did move Chriſt to do all this for us.

Secondly, The Merits of Chriſt, though they be a price of themſelves, if Chriſt had offered, I will die for my people now they are ſinners, God might have refuſed it. Quando aliud offertur, &c. It is a Law Maxime, When another thing is offered then what is in the Obligation, the ſatisfaction may be refuſed. The meaning is this, as if God ſhould ſay, I will be paid by them that ſinned, I will not take your offer, it's true your Merits are worth it, but I am at my liberty whether I will take them or no. Now here is grace, I will take my Son, I will ſacrifice him and accept of that ſatisfaction.

Again Thirdly, you muſt know this, that it is to God that Chriſt did all he did, he calls himſelf his ſervant, my Elect, ſaith he, my ſervant; I came down, ſaith he, Joh. 6. not to do mine own will, but the will of him that ſent me. He did it all upon his Father's coſt, meerly upon that motion; Hence then becauſe that the very death of Chriſt was the gift of God, as he is called, Joh. 3. 16. He gave his onely begotten Son, hence to us it is free grace.

And then in the Fourth place, That God ſhould accept thee and me through his Son, and forgive us our ſins through his Merits, it is free grace. Thou art bought without any of thy mony; it is free to thee; though it coſt Chriſt's ſoul dear, it coſt thee nought, as the phraſe is, Iſa. 52. 3. You have ſold your ſelves for nought, it is free to us. Thus you ſee grace and Chriſt's merits are reconciled; God takes a price, and yet he doth it freely.

And

And Laſtly, let me add this; The more that God paid for to buy us, if it were his own he paid, the more grace it was to pay it. He gave his Son, he was his own, his onely begotten Son, he gave him, he gave him freely, he might have ſaved you without Chriſt's ſatisfaction, that's certain. Chriſt when he was to go to ſuffer, he uſeth this as the utmoſt argument with God, Father (ſaith he) all things are poſſible with thee, thou canſt ſave the world another way, if thou wilt thou maiſt forgive them freely without my ſatisfaction, let this Cup paſs from me. No, ſaith God, I will do it this Way to chooſe, I will have thee to die for them. Well, ſaith Chriſt, not my will but thy will be done. Here is free grace more then if he had no ſatisfaction made, becauſe his grace giveth this ſatisfaction. He hath redeemed us by his blood, yet according to the riches of his grace. I have done with theſe words. Ser. VIII.

Serm. IX.

SERMON IX.

EPHES. 1. 8, 9.

8. Wherein he hath abounded towards us in all wiſdom and prudence,
9. Having made known unto us the myſtery of his will, according to his good pleaſure, which he had purpoſed in himſelf.

THE Apoſtle's ſcope in this Chapter is an enumeration of the Grand particular Bleſſings which we have in Chriſt; which Bleſſings are either ſuch original Bleſſings to which we are ordained from eternity, and ſhall enjoy in the end and iſſue of all; or they are ſuch Bleſſings as in the world were wrought for us in Chriſt, and are applied unto us in this life in and through Chriſt. There are Decreta finis, that is, of our Journies end, &c. that God means to bring us unto. Perfect Holineſs in the 4*th* Verſe; Adoption or Glory through being Sons, in the 5*th* Verſe; a perfect complacency of God for ever in us in his Beloved Son, mentioned in the 6*th* Verſe, for the ſake of his Son's Perſon, and what he is in himſelf the Natural Son of God, and the Beloved one of God, and communicated to us by our Relation to him, and Union with him. There are likewiſe Decreta Executionis, the Decrees of Execution, or of the way to that End, [Heaven,] which are theſe that follow in the 7, 8, and 9*th* Verſes. Redemption through Chriſt's blood, &c. And theſe benefits depended upon what moreover Chriſt wrought and did for us; He redeemed us by his blood: And this he performed in this World; and in reſpect to this work he is to be conſidered as Redeemer, and our Perſons conſidered by God the Father as Sinners, Children of wrath, &c. and here begin the benefits of Application. Remiſſion of ſins is the firſt, and is the foundation, and is put for the whole of Juſtification, as his Blood ſpeaks his whole Obedience and Redemption in parts, viz. the Price as paid by Chriſt, and the Benefits purchaſed, which are Redemption, &c. Then Secondly there is the work of Vocation, our firſt converſion to God, and of Faith and Sanctification. The whole work, as it is imperfect from firſt, and wrought in us from firſt to laſt, which God hath begun to work, and will continue to perfect till the day of our death. And this is expreſſed by thoſe words of the 8*th* Verſe, Wherein he hath abounded in all Wiſdom and Prudence. He by theſe two words expreſſeth the chief and leading principles of Sanctification wrought in us, and which comprehend in them the whole complex of the work of Grace in this life wrought in us firſt and laſt. For the Apoſtle being to contract and crowd up theſe benefits into a Compendium, he ſpeaks Synecdoches, and mentions parts for the whole of each kind, which he afterwards dilates upon in particulars.

I ſhall now repeat nothing more of what I delivered on the former Verſes; I come immediately to that which is the next Benefit here before us, his having abounded toward us in all wiſdom and prudence, &c.

It is (as you will ſee by the opening of it) the bleſſing of Converſion, and of our Calling, and the working Faith and alſo our imperfect Holineſs, which God works in us here by the Goſpel. And he ſaith Three things of it.

1. He

1. He ſheweth you the greatneſs of the Bleſſing; he ſaith, that God hath abounded in grace in beſtowing it: In which Grace it is he hath abounded.

2. You have the Bleſſing it ſelf, and both the parts of it: Both the inward Calling, working wiſdom and prudence in us; and the outward Calling, Having made known the myſtery of his will,&c. in the preaching of the Goſpel, and the revealing of it.

3. You have the cauſe of both, and that is his good pleaſure; According to his good pleaſure.

And then Fourthly, (for I may add that) you have the Cauſe of that good pleaſure too, which (ſaith he) he had purpoſed in himſelf. So you have the diviſion of theſe 8 and 9*th* Verſes.

Divines (you know) they make two parts of our Calling; there is Vocatio externa, that is common to all men that hear the Goſpel, and to whom the myſtery of the Will of God is made known. But then there is an internal Calling, a work upon the heart, whereby he doth work wiſdom and prudence in us to embrace this word, and to lay hold upon this Myſtery, and give up our Souls unto it.

And then for the inward Calling, you know Divines reduce it to two Heads: Firſt, the working of Faith; Secondly, the working of Holineſs, or change of heart and life. All is reduced to theſe two, Holineſs and Faith, as I ſhewed you out of the firſt verſe of this Chapter, there are the Saints and faithful in Chriſt Jeſus. Now accordingly the Apoſtle hath two words here; here is Wiſdom, which is the principle of Faith; and here is Prudence, which (as I ſhall ſhew you) is the principle of Sanctification, and is put for the whole work.

To begin firſt with that whereby he ſetteth out the greatneſs of the Bleſſing, Wherein he hath abounded toward us. ἐπερίσσευσεν. To open that word a little, Abounded. The word in the Greek, it is taken either to ſignifie an abundance that one hath and hath received, taken paſſively, (as I may ſo expreſs it,) as when in Scripture we are ſaid to abound in grace, (as in ſome places we are:) or elſe it is taken actively, as it implieth abounding in the Giver, in the Beſtower, when one beſtoweth out of abundance. As there is plenitudo fontis, and plenitudo vaſis, a fulneſs in the Fountain, and a fulneſs in the Veſſel; both are ſaid to be full, but the Fountain is ſaid to be full as that which communicateth, as that which beſtoweth, which fills the Veſſel; and the Veſſel is ſaid to be full, as having received all from the Fountain. So we are ſaid to abound in Grace, when he hath filled us with it; Of his fulneſs (which is the fulneſs of the Fountain) we have received grace for grace, ſaith the Apoſtle, John 1. 16. So now here is πλήρωμα fontis, and πλήρωμα vaſis; here is ſignified the abounding of the Fountain, namely of God, as a Fountain communicating; and the abundance of the Veſſel, of us receiving. Now it is the abounding of the Fountain that is here meant; and of that there are two meanings too, which I find in Scripture; two ſignifications or uſes of the word.

Firſt, It referreth to ſomething abundantly or largely beſtowed; when God doth largely or abundantly beſtow, then he is ſaid to abound; or as they do tranſlate it, 2 Cor. 9. 8. (where the ſame word is uſed,) He is able to make all grace to abound towards you. The meaning is not, he abounded in wiſdom by making wiſdom abound in us; for alwaies when it is ſo taken it is joyned with an Accuſative caſe, as it is there in that place of the Corinthians with πᾶσαν χάριν; but here it is not πᾶσαν σοφίαν, but ἐν πάσῃ σοφίᾳ, not making Grace abound, but (which is the ſecond meaning of the word or phraſe in which God abounded) it doth not only import, that God did cauſe wiſdom, &c. to abound, but that he out of abundance of Grace in himſelf beſtoweth wiſdom. And ſo I find it to be uſed Luke 15. 17. abounding in Bread, in my Fathers houſe, (ſays the Prodigal.) It is in the Genitive caſe, as it is here, bread enough, ſo we tranſlate it: ſo here God aboundeth in his grace, and it is all one as to ſay his Grace aboundeth; or as the Engliſh phraſe, when we ſay one aboundeth in love, it is all one as to ſay his love is abundant.

So that the meaning of it in a word is thus (to gather it up for the weaker underſtandings;) that God out of abundance of Grace in himſelf beſtoweth upon us

Serm. IX. us in converting us, wiſdom and knowledge, wiſdom and prudence, faith and holineſs, (as you ſhall hear afterwards,) and his ſcope is to magnifie the riches of Grace that is in God, in beſtowing ſuch benefits on us; his Grace aboundeth in the doing of it. And ſo it is all one with what Paul ſaith of himſelf in 1 Tim. (a parallel place to this) chap. 1. v. 14. Paul ſpeaks there of his converſion, as he ſpeaks here of the Epheſians, and every Chriſtian's calling, and converſion and works inherent in him. He ſaith here, wherein God abounded, namely in Grace: ſo he ſaith there, The Grace of God was exceeding abundant toward me; (Exceeding abundant, ὑπερεπλέονασε, it was over-full,) with faith and love, which is in Jeſus Chriſt, ſomeway anſwerable to receive it. Here he reduceth the work of Calling to two Heads too, Faith and Love, Faith and Holineſs, (for Love is the principle of Holineſs,) and Wiſdom and Prudence do by a Metonymy, or by a Synecdoche rather, imply both theſe. So that that which Paul ſaith of his own Calling there, the ſame he ſpeaks of our Calling here, and the one expreſſeth the other: There he ſaith the Grace of God was over-full, it overflowed; ſo the word ſignifieth: And here his compariſon is from a Fountain. Grace guſhed out from God's heart as a Fountain, when he firſt beſtowed ſaving wiſdom and prudence, when he firſt converted them. This is the meaning of the words, Wherein he hath abounded towards us.

I ſhould not have ſtaid ſo long upon the word but for the ſake of ſome Obſervations which this expreſſion will afford.

The Firſt Obſervation is this.

Obſerv. 1. When you would ſet a right value upon any bleſſing beſtowed upon you, you are not to value it chiefly by the bleſſing it ſelf beſtowed, but by the grace in God out of which it comes. He doth not ſay here he gave abundance of Wiſdom and abundance of Prudence (though all the quantity is noted here,) but he ſaith, he abounded in grace when he did it: The Apoſtle would have them ſet the value of this bleſſing upon the grace which was the fountain of it. Wherein (ſaith he) or in which he hath abounded towards us. My Brethren, learn to value Spiritual bleſſings and Temporal bleſſings likewiſe, not by the things themſelves, but by the love of God from which they come. A ſmall bleſſing may be out of abundance of love: So in what we do for God, a Cup of cold Water, the Widows mite. God may abound in grace to thee in beſtowing it, when the bleſſing is in the matter of it but little. What is the reaſon that many good Souls that have true grace wrought in their hearts, why are they ſo unthankful? They look to the grace wrought in them, and they ſee that there is but a little of that, and therefore they value all by what they find in themſelves, by the bleſſing wrought; I find but little in me if any at all, and while thus they value the bleſſing by what they find in themſelves, they prove unthankful to God. Whereas that little grace thou haſt, that little faith, be it but as a grain of Muſtard-ſeed, it proceeds out of abundance of grace in God; Wherein he hath abounded toward us (ſaith he here,) in working the leaſt beginning of true wiſdom and prudence in the leaſt Saint. God abounds infinitely in his love to thee, when thou haſt but the leaſt beginnings of grace in thee, as ſmall at firſt as Nicodemus had.

If you mark Paul's expreſſion in 1 Tim. 1, 14. (the place even now quoted,) he doth not ſay that his faith and love in Chriſt were exceeding abundant; No, but ſaith he, the grace of our Lord was exceeding abundant in beſtowing Faith and Love upon me; he looks not to the quantity of his faith or his love, but he looks at the grace of both; and how doth he magnifie that? He had ſaid before two things of himſelf; Firſt, ſaith he, I was a Perſecutor and injurious, I hated the Saints, there is the firſt; but, ſaith he, I did it ignorantly in unbelief; I was an unbeliever, and I was a Perſecutor. Now for God to work faith inſtead of unbelief and love to the Saints inſtead of perſecution and hatred of them in me that was once an unbeliever and a perſecutor, the grace of God was exceeding abundant herein. He looks not to the work wrought, but he looks to the grace that beſtowed it, conſidering the circumſtances of the condition he was in before.

Obſerv. 2. Secondly, Obſerve what thing it is that this big ſwelling word abounded, overflowing, guſhed out, (as I may ſo ſay) what is it uſed about, what is it that he he ſhewed abundance of grace in? It is the work of converſion, working in them wiſdom and prudence, that is, faith and holineſs, as you ſhall ſee by and by. Serm. IX.

Obſerve. The Obſervation then from thence is this, That God ſheweth abundance of mercy in converting of a man. It is an abundant grace he ſingleth out, that you ſee here eminently, and Paul, in that other place, ſaid it was over full; he was (ſaith he there) exceeding abundant, ſpeaking of his converſion.

To give you another Scripture for it, 1 Pet. 1. 3. Bleſſed be God the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who according to his abundant grace, hath done; what for us? hath begotten us again. There is an abundance of mercy eminently above all other works in a man ſhewed in his converſion.

I might inlarge upon this, but I will only give you one reaſon and ſo paſs from it. It is the fundamental mercy to all grace and glory. It is the firſt appearing of the love of God to a man. Tit. 3. 3, 4. After that the kindneſs and love of God our Saviour towards us appeared, not by works of righteouſneſs which we have done, but according to his mercy he ſaved us by the waſhing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Ghoſt. God's love is like a River or a Spring that runs under ground, and hath done ſo from eternity, where breaks it up firſt? where bubbleth it firſt, (as the word in the Text ſignifieth, it is a ſimilitude I have uſed before, but the words in the Text will bear it,) where doth this fountain begin to bubble up or iſſue forth? When a man is firſt called, then that love that hath run from everlaſting under ground, and through the heart of Chriſt upon the Croſs, breaks out in a mans own heart too: And it is the fundamental mercy of all grace and glory whatſoever.

My Brethren, the word here uſed doth compare God to a full Fountain, which was reſtrained till the fulneſs of time came, when he would break forth in love to a man. Oh! when ſhall it once be, ſaith he? And when the time comes, his Love and Mercy guſh out upon a man, when he calls and converts him. This is the meaning of the word in the Greek: It was the time of his Eſpouſals, a time of love. So much for the firſt thing in the Text, that whereby he ſets out the greatneſs of this bleſſing, wherein he hath abounded toward us.

I come Secondly to the Bleſſing itſelf, wherein (as I told you) there are two parts of it. Here is firſt the Internal part, the work of grace upon the heart, expreſt here by wiſdom and prudence: And here is the External Calling, in the 9*th* Verſe, Making known the myſtery of his will, &c.

He expreſſeth Converſion, and the whole work inherently wrought in us by the making of a man wiſe. It is uſual in the Scriptures, and you may oft-times meet with it. Pſal. 19.7. Converting the Soul, making wiſe the ſimple. Prov. 2. 10. the beginning of converſion, and ſo all along, the increaſe of all grace to the end is expreſſed by Wiſdoms entring into a mans heart, If wiſdom enter into thy heart, and ſo goes on to do more and more; not into thy head only; a man may have all that, and be a fool in the end; but when it entreth into the heart, and draws all the affections after it, and along with it, when knowledge is pleaſant to thy Soul, then a man is converted; when God breaks open a mans heart, and makes wiſdom fall in, enter in, and make a man wiſe.

Wiſdom.] It is taken ſometime for the Doctrine of the Goſpel, in which a ſtupendious Divine wiſdom is to be ſeen and adored; 1 Cor. 2. 7. We ſpeak (ſaith he) the wiſdom of God in a myſtery, even the hidden wiſdom, &c. ſpeaking of the Doctrine of the Goſpel, he calls it the wiſdom, and the hidden wiſdom of God.

Or elſe Wiſdom is taken for the gift of Saving Grace, working a principle in the Soul, whereby our Souls are made able to take in all the Truths of the Goſpel effectually: and ſo it is taken in this very Chapter, ver. 17. for the Grace of wiſdom in the knowledge of Chriſt, and to be wiſe to ſalvation; he prays there, that they may have the ſpirit of wiſdom and revelation in the knowledge of Chriſt, that is, to have the Holy Ghoſt working wiſdom in them, and giving a Principle to be capable of all the Spiritual ſaving Truths, that diſcovers the knowledge of Chriſt, and to enlighten that Principle, to take them in and wiſely to apply them to themſelves; in one word, to be wiſe unto ſalvation.

Some

Some have thought that in 1 Cor. 1. 30. Chriſt is ſaid to be made, in this ſenſe, wiſdom to us, as particularly intending the Grace of Graces, namely the principle of Faith; (now it is certain it is a diſtinct thing from Sanctification and Juſtification, as there the Apoſtle uſeth it.) And that it is made thus diſtinct from the other, and ſet, firſt becauſe thereby we are enabled to take in all the Spiritual Truths of the Goſpel, ſo as to have a man's Soul ſaved. Chriſt is made wiſdom to us; when the Soul is humbled, emptied of it ſelf, and when a man comes to himſelf, his eyes are enlightned to behold, and he is made wiſe to lay hold upon that offer of Mercy made to us in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. But we muſt not exclude that Objective wiſdom, that is, all that wiſdom which God in the Doctrine of the Goſpel contrived and prepared, which is called, The wiſdom of God in a myſtery; with which the Apoſtle in that Chapter had out-faced the Greeks that were ſo for Wiſdom, that in compariſon of which all the Wiſdom in this world, Civil, moral, natural, (he ſays) is fooliſhneſs and comes to nought, and which the Doctrine of Chriſt utterly out-ſhined. And ſo I judge that in that place 1 Cor. 1. 30. both this inherent Spiritual Wiſdom in us, and Objective wiſdom, which is in our Chriſt, as revealed in the Goſpel are meant.

Now if you ask, which of the two are meant here; whether wiſdom taken for the Doctrine of the Goſpel, or for the gift of God, working Faith in the heart? I Anſwer you, (as I have ſaid) it is taken for the gift of wiſdom wrought in a man's Soul, whereby he applies all the Truths of the Goſpel, and Wiſdom of the Goſpel to himſelf. For, Firſt, So it is taken plainly in the 17*th* verſe, where he calls it the Spirit of wiſdom and revelation, by the Holy Ghoſt working wiſdom in a man, and then revealing to that new eye of wiſdom, Spiritual Truths.

Then Secondly, It is taken rather for the gift of wiſdom beſtowed upon us, than for the doctrine of wiſdom revealed in the Goſpel, becauſe that follows in the 9*th* verſe, Having made known to us the myſtery of his will; therein the Doctrine of Wiſdom is revealed. Therefore when he ſpeaks of wiſdom and prudence in this 8*th* verſe, he meaneth a heart made wiſe and prudent, the work of wiſdom in a man's Soul.

And then again Thirdly, There is this Reaſon, why it is meant of the gift of wiſdom and of Faith wrought in us, by that parallel place, (and indeed almoſt parallel Epiſtle,) Coloſſ. 1. 9. where the Apoſtle prays, that they may be filled with the knowledge of his will in all wiſdom and ſpiritual underſtanding; and that word Spiritual underſtanding puts it out of doubt, that the knowledge of Spirituals within us is meant.

And then that it is particularly meant Faith, a Fourth reaſon for that is this, That when the Apoſtle comes to dilate this General Head of the work of God, thus here expreſſed by Wiſdom, &c. inherent in us, into diverſe particular works wrought in them, (which he doth in ver. 11, 12, 13.) both to Jew and Gentile, he enumerates and inſtanceth in their believing on Chriſt; In whom (ſaith he) we have obtained an inheritance, (namely the Jews,) who firſt truſted in Chriſt. The like ſaith the 12*th* verſe: then coming to the Gentiles, In whom (ſaith he) ye alſo truſted, after that ye heard the word of Truth, the Goſpel of your ſalvation. So that his ſcope is to lay open the grace of Faith and Spiritual knowledge.

Now, Brethren, To ſhew you how Wiſdom and Prudence do differ, that is the Second thing I muſt make good; for here are two things mentioned, He hath abounded toward us in Wiſdom and in Prudence.

To open this, I ſhall difference them unto you by their Objects. You know there are two ſorts of things revealed; the firſt are Credenda, as we call them, things to be believed, all Evangelical Truths, the Myſteries of Salvation, the Revelation of God's Free grace, and of Chriſt, and of all he hath done and is made to us. Secondly, There are Agenda, things to be done and practiſed by us, that ſtrictneſs and holineſs of heart and life, which they that do believe are to take up. Into theſe two is the whole Will of God divided; it conſiſts either in things to be believed by us, or in things to be done by us. It is that diviſion the Apoſtle makes 1 Tim. 1. 19. Holding Faith and a good Conſcience: by Faith, he means the Doctrine of Faith; all things that are delivered to us to believe, we are to hold hold thoſe faſt; and by a good Conſcience he means (by a Metonymy) holineſs and obedience, the things we know we ought to do, whereof a good Conſcience is the principle. Now then as all things in the Word are reduced to theſe two Heads; ſo all the work of Grace upon a Chriſtians heart, they are reduced to two Heads: Serm. IX.

Firſt, A principle of Wiſdom to take in and believe and ſee the worth and excellency (as by Faith we do) of things that are to be believed by us, and which God revealeth for our Salvation. And,

Secondly, To have a principle of prudence ſavingly, ſpiritually, and effectually, to ſee that holineſs and obedience we owe to God, if we believe, and if we be ſaved, and ſo to ſee them as to have the heart taken with them; and that is prudence.

Firſt, Wiſdom is that gift of Knowledge or Faith, whereby we believe all ſpiritual truths that are to be believed, and our hearts are affected with the goodneſs of them: For (Brethren) therein lies Wiſdom, to ſee the excellency of a thing, and to be taken with it, and to chooſe it; a man is wiſe, when he is wiſe for himſelf, as it is ſaid, Pro. 9. 12. when a man knows what is good for him. That ſame Merchant by whom, and by whoſe carriage the converſion of a ſinner is expreſt to us, he was a wiſe Merchant, for he ſaw a Pearl of great value, and he had the wiſdom to like it, and to ſell all he had for it; and this was by Faith wrought, as I ſhall ſhew you by and by. When Wiſdom enters into the heart and becomes pleaſant unto a man (as it is ſaid, Pro. 2. 10.) takes the whole man, when a man ſees by Faith thoſe ſpiritual things ſo really as his whole heart is drawn after them, he chuſeth them as excellent for him, this is Wiſdom. You have it expreſt by the Apoſtle, in Phil. 1. 9, 10. (for he uſeth ſeveral expreſſions in ſeveral Epiſtles (as his manner is) but intends one and the ſame thing:) he prays, that their love may abound in Knowledge and in all Judgment, that they might approve the things that are excellent. Where you have ſuch a knowledge as works a love to the things known, and an approving of the excellency of them. This is ſpiritual knowledge; this is Wiſdom, for ἐπίγνωσις, the chiefeſt part of Wiſdom, as Ariſtotle, ſaith well of it; it is to diſcern what is good, and to pitch upon it and chooſe it. Now when a man ſees all the truths of the Goſpel, and the excellencies of them ſpiritually, ſo as all his heart is taken with them, and they become pleaſant to his ſoul (not the knowledge of them only, but the thing) when they are as the only Pearl for which he ſells all, then is a man made wiſe to Salvation (you have the expreſſion, 2 Tim. 3. 15.) when a man is made wiſe to ſave his own ſoul, ſees the things of the Goſpel ſo as he is taken with them, and hath the wit never to leave them after, this is the firſt thing that is wrought.

Now (my Brethren) it is Faith that doth inable you thus to ſee the excellency of ſpiritual things, to chooſe them, to embrace them, and never to depart from them; therefore Faith is truly called Wiſdom here. I will give you a Scripture, in which you ſhall have two inſtances of it, to name no more, it is in Heb. 11. 13, 24. at the 13 Verſe, Theſe all died in Faith, not having received the Promiſes, but ſeeing them (by Faith) afar off (for that is the meaning) they were perſwaded of them. (They believed the truth of them) and they embraced them, they laid hold upon them as good for them. This Faith makes you to do, to ſee all the ſpiritual things in the Word really, and to embrace them as good for you. And the other inſtance is that of Moſes, verſ. 24. By Faith, Moſes when he was come to years, refuſed to be called the ſon of Pharaoh's daughter; chuſing rather to ſuffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleaſures of ſin for a ſeaſon: Eſteeming the reproach of Chriſt greater riches than the treaſures of Egypt. Here Faith made him wiſe, he ſaw what was the beſt bargain, it made him put a value upon the true riches, it made him to leave all the World, to refuſe to be called the ſon of Pharaoh's daughter, or whatſoever preferment elſe he had at Court, and to chooſe affliction rather with the people of God, becauſe by Faith he eſteemed the reproach of Chriſt greater riches than the Treaſures of Egypt. So that now to have that Wiſdom as to ſee ſpiritual things, the real nature of them, to ſet a value upon them, to approve the excellency of them, to be taken with them more than with all the things of the World, and he hath that light and knowledge of them begotten in his heart which he can never ſell away again, but it works his heart off from all things elſe, this man is a wiſe man; and this is wrought in your hearts by Faith. This is the firſt thing.

Secondly, Prudence, it is that principle of wiſdom, that doth change the heart, which as Faith looks out to the truths of the Goſpel, and the Promiſes of the Goſpel, to Chriſt and to God, and free Grace, and the like; ſo this ſpiritual prudence it looks out to all that is a mans duty, that God requires of him again, to holineſs, to obedience, to the whole Law of God, to the whole Will of God, and a man's heart is taken with them too, and that man whoſe heart is drawn by them through ſeeing the excellency of them in his judgment, that man is a wiſe man, is a prudent man. What is it that turns a man's heart to righteouſneſs and holineſs? It is a ſpiritual knowledge of what holineſs is, and what that obedience is that we ought to perform to the Lord. I will quote you one or two places for it, Luk. 1.17. where the very ſame word is uſed that is uſed here. He tells us there that the end of John's Miniſtry, it was to turn men; to what? The hearts of the Fathers to the Children, that is the firſt that reſpecteth matters of Faith: The Phariſees they had in their Doctrine led many from the Goſpel, and from the Faith of Abraham, and the Children of Iſrael did not believe as their Fathers did, he turns them to their Fathers to believe as Abraham did, and not as the Phariſees taught them. And then it follows, and the diſobedient to the wiſdom of the juſt, of the righteous; it is the ſame word in the Original that is tranſlated here for Prudence in my Text. That wiſdom that doth make a man righteous, that changeth his heart, makes him take in all that holy and righteous Law of God, ſee an excellency in it, that it is right in all things (as the Prophet David ſpeaks, Pſal. 119.) this is Prudence, and this is the ſecond thing wherein Converſion lies; to make a man a prudent man, prudent with the prudence of the juſt, to make a man righteous, to make a man juſt, to make a man holy. It is a practical skill (as I may ſo call it) which God imprints upon a man's underſtanding, that frames the heart and makes him wiſe to do good. You read in Jer. 4.22. where the Prophet ſpeaking of wicked men, he ſaith, They are wiſe to do evil, they are wiſe enough there, but to do good they have no knowledge: Now to have an underſtanding to do good, to have ſuch an underſtanding, as changeth a man's heart and makes it conformable to the Law; this is Prudence. And it conſiſts in two things, that I may open it unto you.

First, It conſiſts in enabling a man to take in all the rules of holineſs, or the more fundamental rules of holineſs in a ſpiritual manner, to know the rule ſpiritually. A man's heart muſt be changed to do that. The Apoſtle prays, Rom. 12 2. that they may be renewed in their minds (to be changed there, is to have their minds turned) to what end? That you may approve (ſaith he) of that good and acceptable Will of God; to take in the Will of God, or any part of it in the ſpiritualneſs of it, to approve it in the excellency of it, and to eſteem it right in all things. My Brethren, to know the rule ſpiritually, it is from ſpiritual prudence, it is from Grace to ſay the Law is holy, ſpiritual, good. The carnal part of the Law, carnal men ſay it is good; but to ſay of the ſpiritual, the holy part of the Law that requires the whole heart to be obedient to God, as ſuch principles as theſe to lye in no known ſin, to aim at the glory of God more than at a mans ſelf, and the like, for a man to take in ſuch principles as theſe, and to approve them from his very ſoul, this is wiſdom, this is prudence, this is part of the prudence of the juſt that makes a man righteous.

Again, in the ſecond place it imports a skill that God imprints upon the mind of a man to manage his whole man, to do according to what he knows. We know not how to pray as we ought, the Holy Ghoſt comes and imprints a skill upon a man's heart, and teacheth him how to pray acceptably to God, which no man in the World can do; to make an acceptable prayer to God, is as much as to make a World, to have the skill of it, to have the knack of it, as I may call it, to have the wiſdom in the performance of any holy duty, for there is a skill, a wiſdom that belongs to the performance of holy duties. When you take an Apprentice you teach him two things, you teach him the Rules of your Trade, but when he hath learnt the Rules he muſt by uſe get a skill in his fancy to enable him to Work. Now that which men get by time and uſe, which you call Habits, that doth God Imprint in every every godly mans heart when he firſt turns him, as he teacheth him the rules, ſo he imprints the habit of skil, a ſpiritual wiſdom to manage his heart, to be able to pray, to believe, to do all things acceptably, this is prudence, this is that holy skil; for God undertakes to teach us; he takes no Apprentice but he teacheth him his trade, this is my Covenant, ſaith he, they ſhall all know me from the leaſt to the greateſt, they ſhall be all taught of God; it is part of our Indenture and his Indenture with us, as Pſal. 25. 12. He imprints a holy skil in the heart, that guides a mans feet into the way of peace, as the expreſſion is, Luk. 1. 79. Serm. IX. Obſerve.

It is, my Brethren, expounded in that parallel place I quoted but now, Col. 1. 9, 10. He prays, that they may be filled with all wiſdom and ſpiritual underſtanding; for what end? That they might walk worthy of the Lord, unto all well pleaſing, being fruitful in every good work. Now, to have that skill as ſhall ſo guide and frame the heart to the Law and will of God, that a man ſhall be able to walk worthy to well pleaſing, to do that which is acceptable to God in ſome meaſure, this is this ſpiritual prudence which is put for all ſanctification as wiſdom is put for Faith. So that here you have the two parts of converſion, here is wiſdom which is put for Faith, here is prudence which is put for that principle of ſanctification which doth change and turn the whole man, make it obedient to the will and law of God.

And now I have opened it, I will caſt in but this. Here you ſee Four particular bleſſings, (for now I ſhall ſo rank them in this 7 and 8 verſes,) here is Redemption, In whom we have Redemption through his blood; here is Juſtification or Forgiveneſs of Sins, that's a Second; here is Wiſdom, which is put for Faith, believing ſpiritual truths revealed in the Doctrin of the Goſpel; here is Prudence, which is put for that principle of light which changeth a mans heart and makes him holy, and ſanctifies him, and ſo it is put for Sanctification. Well then here you have the ſame Four bleſſings which Chriſt is made to us, reckoned up, 1 Cor. 1. 30. Of him are ye in Chriſt Jeſus, who is made unto us of God, Wiſdom, there is one. 2. Righteouſneſs, there is Juſtification or Forgiveneſs of Sins. 3. Here is Sanctification which Prudence is put for. And 4 Redemption, And ſo I have done with the opening of the words.

You will ask me now, why doth the Apoſtle expreſs the work of Grace, Faith, and Sanctification by Wiſdom and Prudence?

One Reaſon is this, becauſe he uſeth ſeveral phraſes in ſeveral Epiſtles, ſometimes he calls it ſpiritual Wiſdom and Knowledge, ſometimes Wiſdom and Prudence, ſometimes he calls it Senſe, αἴσθησις as I remember he expreſſeth Sanctification ſo, that light that ſanctifieth a man, it is a ſpiritual ſenſe, whereby a man taſteth the goodneſs of ſpiritual things; ſo he calls it in the Philippians, as the other is in the Coloſſians. This is one reaſon, he uſeth ſeveral expreſſions in ſeveral Epiſtles.

Secondly, he wrote to the Grecians, and to the Aſiaticks, to thoſe at Epheſus, who were all for Wiſdom, they liked nothing but what had wiſdom in it; the Jews humor was to ſeek for a ſign, the Greeks were for wiſdom, and therefore they refuſed the Goſpel, becauſe to them it was fooliſhneſs, it had no wiſdom in it. Saith the Apoſtle, here is wiſdom, ſeeing you prize wiſdom ſo much, I will ſpeak to you according to your own deſires; mark, what a bleſſing God hath beſtowed upon you, he hath made you wiſe to ſalvation, he hath made you able to keep the Law, and to obey the will of God, which prudence doth change your hearts, ſaith he, therefore he expreſſeth ſanctification by wiſdom and prudence; he ſpeaks to them in their own language.

A third reaſon is this, becauſe (the truth is) that the work of grace it lies in working upon the underſtanding of a man, it lies in working ſpiritual knowledg in a man, (however men little think of it,) it is a light let into the heart, that ſaveth a man, a different light from that wicked men have. Eph. 4. 23. he bids them put off the old man and put on the new; how muſt they do that? be renewed (ſaith he) in the ſpirit of your mind: If the ſpirit of a mans mind, if the underſtanding be renewed, it changeth the whole man preſently. Therefore becauſe the mian of the work of grace, or at leaſt the firſt of it lies in working upon or renewing the mind, therefore it is expreſt here by wiſdom and prudence. You have the like, Coloſſ. 3. 10. The Image of God it is renewed; it is renewed in or by knowledge. God when he doth frame and paint his Image upon the heart, what doth he? He lets it in by the underſtanding, openeth a mans eye to ſee ſpiritually what true holineſs is, and what the love of God is, and how a man muſt aim at the glory of God, and with this light let into the mind and underſtanding, the heart being taken with it, the Image of God is framed in mens ſpirits. Therefore it is expreſt by Wiſdom and Prudence.

But here is one particle yet more to be explained, [all Wiſdom.] Do we receive all wiſdom and prudence when we are turned unto God?

The meaning therefore of that is this, It is taken, Firſt, for all kinds, for all ſorts, ſomething of every thing, as we uſe to ſay. They are made wiſe to believe truths, and they are made wiſe to do what they know, their duties in their callings, their duties in their Relations; there are ſeveral parts of the will and mind of God, which God inſtructs a man in, ſo far forth as it is neceſſary for him to know to be ſaved. 1 John 2. 20. it is ſaid, the Spirit teacheth us all things, what is the meaning of that all things? Why, all things neceſſary to ſalvation, all things that go to ſave a man; and ſo the pooreſt ſoul that is, knoweth all things, hath all wiſdom and prudence in him, he hath all neceſſary knowledge to ſave his ſoul, if God ſhould call him preſently, therefore it is called all wiſdom and prudence.

And in the Second place it is called all wiſdom and prudence for the excellency of it, it is in ſtead of all wiſdom, and better than all wiſdom elſe; as verſe 10. he calls the Saints all things in Heaven and in Earth: why, there are more things in Heaven and in Earth beſides them? Yea, but they are worth them all; God looks upon none elſe, cares for none elſe, they are his all, as if there were no other thing. So here, all wiſdom and prudence, becauſe this is inſtead of all, it is worth all; this is the whole man, as the expreſſion is, Eccleſ. 12. 13. For whatſoever elſe is in a man, whatſoever wiſdom and knowledge he hath elſe, it is worth nothing; he that hath this, hath enough, he hath all.

Then Thirdly, Take in all believers, (whom he ſpeaks of here collectively,) and they have all wiſdom and prudence amongſt them. The Apoſtle ſpeaks here of himſelf, and of the reſt of the Apoſtles, and of all that are called by the Goſpel; he ſpeaks generally and collectively of all Saints, they have amongſt them received all wiſdom and prudence, it is in the pack of them.

And then in Chriſt there is all Treaſures of Wiſdom and Knowledge laid up for us, and we are compleat in him, ſo ſaith the Apoſtle, Coloſ. 2.

And all wiſdom and knowledge is hid in this word, and if thou haſt grace, thou haſt a principle to underſtand it ſavingly more or leſs. If thou wilt dig for wiſdom, thou haſt a principle of wiſdom, which a wicked man wants; thou haſt all wiſdom and knowledge in Semine. And though we know but in part, yet in Chriſt is hid all wiſdom for us, & all the wiſdom that is in Chriſt, is made ours too, for our good; and we ſhall one day know it all, that is more. This wiſdom and prudence will bring thee to know all the Treaſures that are in Chriſt; and therefore God hath abounded to thee, in Semine, in all wiſdom and prudence when firſt he turns thee.

All the gifts of the Apoſtles and Prophets, they are all ours, all thine when thou art once called. Therefore God hath abounded toward us in all wiſdom and prudence.

And then Laſtly, and it may be chief of all. The Apoſtle ſpeaks it in relation to them under the Old Teſtament, they received truths but by piece-meal, at ſundry times, as the expreſſion is, Heb. 1. now one and then another. But now under the Goſpel God hath hidden nothing, he hath unlocked all; therefore the leaſt in the Kingdom of Heaven is ſaid to be greater than John the Baptiſt, the leaſt Saint knows more than John Baptiſt did. So comparatively to thoſe under the Old Teſtament, God hath abounded towards us in all wiſdom and knowledge. And ſo much for the opening of the words.

I will come now to gather ſome Obſervations from them (for I ſee I cannot inſtance in all I meant,) The Firſt Obſervation is this.

A Godly Man only is a wiſe man.

Obſerv. 1. He that is turned to God, he that is made wiſe to ſave his own Soul, he only is a wiſe man, and all the reſt of the world are fools, becauſe let them ſeek for whatſoever excellency they will, yet they loſe their ſouls in the end. Thou fool, ſaith Chriſt, he thought himſelf a wiſe man to get riches, thou fool, ſaith he,

where where will thy Soul be to night? He was a fool for his labour. A man that knows how to believe ſavingly, and that is wiſe for his Soul, that man is only the wiſe man. Other men are wiſe in their Generation, (as Chriſt diſtinguiſheth it,) they are wiſe in their kind, take them in the world, and there they are wiſe indeed, and wiſer than the Children of light: But ſaith the Apoſtle, God hath choſen the fools of the world to confound the wiſe, he did it on purpoſe, it was his plot. The chiefeſt thing the wiſe ones of the world brag of, it is their wiſdom; God hath taken out fools, that have leſs underſtanding, makes them able to ſave their Souls, and at the latter day, who is the fool then? Thus he confounds all the wiſe ones in the world. They are only wiſe, that are wiſe to ſalvation. Ser. IX.

I will give you a Scripture for it. It is in Job. 28. 28. Behold the fear of the Lord, that is wiſdom, and to depart from Evil, is underſtanding. That is the underſtanding, the only underſtanding, and if men be wiſe never ſo much in any thing elſe, they are fools.

A Second Obſervation is this. Obſerv. 2.

Whom ever God ſaveth, he doth give them ſo much knowledge in Spiritual things as ſhall make them wiſe.

Let them be never ſo ignorant before, (they that are come to years of diſcretion,) they ſhall be wiſe to ſave their Souls. Do but obſerve it, Men that had but little wit in them before, when they are turned they will ſpeak of Faith and of Chriſt and of the Myſteries of Salvation, exceeding ſtrongly and wiſely: What is the reaſon of it? When God is Maſter and teacheth a man, how ſoon is he learned whom he teacheth! No ſuch School-maſter as God is, he aboundeth toward a Man in wiſdom and prudence, ſo that a man hath abundance of knowledge the firſt day almoſt. You ſhall ſee it in many poor men that are turned to God. I will give you but a Scripture for it, and ſo paſs from it. Iſa. 35.8. The Prophet ſpeaks there, of the times of the Goſpel, when Chriſt was to preach the word, as appears by the former verſes; He tells us there that Chriſt, is a way, and a high way, (that way that leads to life,) and it ſhall be called a way of Holineſs, (which men miſ-call, and call by a thouſand other nick names, but that's the true name for it, a way of Holineſs,) and the unclean ſhall not paſs over it. Take an ungodly man he ſhall never hit on the way let him be never ſo wiſe, for ſo the oppoſition implies, as you ſhall ſee by and by; For whom then ſhall this way be? It ſhall be for the wayfaring men, though fools, they ſhall not err in it. Art thou a wayfaring ſoul that art a going to Heaven, and haſt a mind to go to Heaven? And art thou ſimple, hath God given thee a heart to deſire to be ſaved and to ſeek after Chriſt? Take the greateſt Doctor in the world, (if wicked) he ſhall not find out the way that thou ſhalt find: Another man, a fool, he ſhall find it, he ſhall not err in it, becauſe God whom ever he doth ſave, he himſelf is the Maſter and teacheth them this wiſdom. And ſo much for that 8*th.* verſe; I will ſpeak a little of the 9*th.* and ſo I will have done.

Having made known unto us the myſtery of his will, according to his good pleaſure, &c.

Here (as I told you,) he comes to External Calling, the making known to us the Myſtery of his will, whereby he doth work Spiritual Knowledge and Underſtanding in a man. Now to open this a little.

What is meant by making known? You all know, that he did it by the preaching of the Apoſtles, he doth it now by the preaching of the word, and by the Scriptures opened to you, whereby all that hear it and know it are called.

But what is meant by the Myſtery of his will? (for this is the only, the chief hard thing here.)

Some men do take it thus, to ſhew the difference between the knowledge of believers and others. Others may know the will of God (they ſay,) but there is a Myſtery in the will of God, which only godly men know, and God reveals it to them: As in Coloſ. 1.26. To whom God would make known (ſpeaking of the Ser. 1X*m.* the Saints, as you ſhall ſee by comparing the 25 and 26*th.* verſes together,) the Myſtery which hath been hid from Ages, and from Generations, but now is made manifeſt to his Saints, to whom he hath made known the riches of the glory of this Myſtery. My Brethren, the Myſtery of Gods will, and the riches and the glory of it, the Saints only know.

But I rather think that the aime of it here, (though this be a truth, and I ſhall have occaſion to mention it by and by,) yet I think the main thing intended here is not to expreſs the difference of wicked mens knowledge of the Goſpel, and godly mens. But it is taken for the ſubſtance of the Goſpel it ſelf. The Doctrin of the Goſpel it is called the Myſtery of Gods will, 1 Tim. 1. 16. Great is the Myſtery of godlineſs, God manifeſted in the fleſh: The Doctrin of ſalvation by Chriſt was a great Myſtery.

Here I muſt open two things to you.

1. Why it is called a Myſtery.
2. Why the Myſtery of his will.

Firſt, why it is called a Myſtery. A Myſtery, is that which is a Secret hidden, a thing unknown, which could no way have been known, unleſs it had been revealed by him that knew it: a Myſtery is properly a thing hidden. 1 Cor. 2. 7. We preach the wiſdom of God in a Myſtery, even the hidden wiſdom which God ordained before the world: Therefore it is a Myſtery, becauſe it is hidden. So a ſecret unknown is called a Myſtery in the 1 Cor. 15. 51. Behold I ſhew you a Myſtery, what is that? We ſhall not all ſleep, but we ſhall all be changed. Some men ſhall not die at the latter day: Who knew this before? It was a thing unknown, it is not in all the Prophets, nor in all the Old Teſtament, it is a thing we had not known, had not Paul told it us, it was a Myſtery.

Now to come to the Goſpel, it is a hidden Myſtery, the moſt hidden ſecret that ever was. It was hid where all the world could not have found it; no, all the wit of men and Angels could not have found it where it was hid. It was hid in God's breaſt, in God's heart, hid in God; you ſhall ſee the very expreſſion in Epheſ. 3. 10. To make all men ſee what is the fellowſhip of the Myſtery, which from the beginning of the world hath been hid in God. If you will know, ſaith he, in what field it lay, it was hidden in God.

Hid from whom?

Firſt, From all the wiſe men in the world, they could never have found it out. Thoſe that ſearch into Myſteries of State, and would know Arcana Imperij, they think they are wiſe men, and that they know great matters; what ſaith the Apoſtle, 1 Cor. 2. 8. We ſpeak the wiſdom of God in a Myſtery, even the hidden wiſdom, which none of the Princes of this world knew. They that have all ſecrets in their heads, and know how to govern States and Kingdoms, none of them all knew this, nor could ever have known it.

Nay, Secondly, The Goſpel was hid from all the Saints in the Old Teſtament, as now it is revealed, in Coloſ. 1. 26. The Apoſtle ſaith it was hidden from Ages and Generations, from all the Generations paſt; hid from the beginning of the world, as you have it Epheſ. 3. 10. You ſhall find in 1 Pet. 1. 10, 11. That the very Prophets that wrote the Scripture, did not fully underſtand what themſelves wrote, in all things concerning the Goſpel; Of which Salvation (ſaith he) the Prophets have enquired and ſearched diligently, (they enquired by prayer, and ſearched diligently by ſtudy of their own writings,) who prophecied of the Grace that ſhould come unto you; ſearching what, or what manner of time the Spirit of Chriſt which was in them did ſignifie, when it teſtified before hand the ſufferings of Chriſt, and the Glory that ſhould follow; unto whom it was revealed, that not unto themſelves, but unto us, they did miniſter the things which are now reported unto you. They had them in their writings indeed, but they miniſtred them to us, and that was the chief anſwer they could get upon all their prayers and ſtudy.

Laſtly, It was hidden from the Angels. The Angels were near God, but they were not in his boſom, they were his Favorites indeed, they were Courtiers, they ſtood round about him, but they knew none of it; no, God hid it from them. Not a Creature knew it, not an Angel in Heaven knew it as we now know it.

it. Nay the Churches know it before the Angels know it, and the Angels do learn of the Churches, that is part of the hiding mentioned, Eph. 3.10. It was hidden in God, to the intent, that now unto the Principalities and Powers in Heavenly Places, (that is, to Angels,) might be known by the Church, the manifold Wisdom of God. They learned the Gospel of the Church, therefore they come to hear Sermons. Brethren, the Churches are full of Angels, they love to hear the Gospel preached, and you know Peter tels us they prie, they bow down their necks, it is in 1 Pet. 1. 12. Which things the Angels desire to look into. Serm. IX.

Thus the hidden Gospel is a mystery so hidden, as none could have known it. Adam knew the Law, it was written in his heart; we have principles of the knowledge of the Law in our Consciences; when we hear the Law preached, we have a principle in our own Consciences within us, that goes along with what we hear, and answers to it; we cannot deny it. But there is not the least footstep of the Gospel in the wisdom of all the men in the World, there is nothing in the heart of man to answer to it. If the Gospel be revealed, God must create light; when it was first discovered, he created light in their hearts, to whom it was revealed: We were nothing but darkness, saith the Apostle of himself as well as others, 2 Cor. 4. 6. God that commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give us the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Christ. God must bring in a light (saith he,) or else not we nor any of the Apostles could ever have found it out.

What is the reason of this?

Because it is the Mystery of God's will, which Reason we have in the Text. Who could have known that God would ever have saved Sinners? who could ever have thought it? He had said, he had pronounced it as his will, it was gone out of his mouth, In the day thou eatest thereof, thou shalt dy the death. Here was a Riddle now for all the Angels in Heaven: How could they have known the mystery of God's will, that he would save Sinners. Adam he stood trembling poor man, and the Divil he thought all cock sure, I shall damn them (thought he,) as sure as I have damned my self; And all the Angels stood mute, till God himself came and makes the promise to us, Rom. 11. 32. Saith the Apostle, God hath shut up all in unbelief, that he might have mercy upon all. That God should let man sin, and permit sin to spoil his Creature; and when he had done, should mean to save it, and have mercy upon those that are shut up under Unbelief; Oh, the depth (saith he) of the riches both of the Wisdom and Knowledge of God! (so it follows in the next words) How unsearchable are his Judgments, and his waies past finding out! Who hath known the mind of God, or who hath been his Counsellor? Who could ever have known this, had not God revealed it, that this was his Will? No Counsellor (my Brethren) but one, that is the wonderful Counsellor, the mighty God, as he is called, Isa. 9. 6. Therefore in Joh. 1. 18. where the Apostle speaking of the Gospel of Grace and Truth that came by Jesus Christ, as the Law came by Moses (he speaks of the revelation of this Gospel in opposition to the Law) saith he, No man hath seen God at any time, that is, hath known the mind of God, that is meant by seeing God there, it is a Jewish Proverb of knowing God's mind, The only begotten Son which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared it; None in the World could have declared this Will and Mind of God, but only he that was in his bosom, that was familiar with him, his only Son, therefore he came down from Heaven, and first broached the Gospel; Which was first Preached by the Lord himself (saith the Apostle, Heb. 1.)

Moses, my Brethren, St. John speaks of him in the Verses before, and he saith the Law was given by Moses; Moses was very intimate with God, he saw God face to face, so the expression is, and God shewed him his Glory, The Law (saith he) was Given by Moses, yea, but Grace and Truth, the Gospel, came by Jesus Christ. Though Moses saw God face to face, he was not in his bosom, as Jesus Christ only was, and he only could reveal it, he only knew this Mystery and mind of God.

I should

Serm. IX. I ſhould likewiſe ſhew you that it is a Myſtery for the depth that is in it; but I ſhall let that paſs. For an Obſervation.

Obſerv. Let all that live under the Goſpel, and Saints eſpecially, acknowledge what an infinite favour of God it is to know this Myſtery of his Will (as you do) that God will ſave ſinners, and that you ſee the reaſon of it too.

For it is brought down to you in a plain manner; you ſee ſuch a ſatisfaction in Chriſt as will ſatisfie a man's reaſon, bleſs God for that infinite Mercy. You ſee how dainty God hath been of his Goſpel, he kept it hidden from all Ages and Generations till the Apoſtles times, above four thouſand years. And ſaith our Saviour, Luk. 10. 24. Bleſſed are your Eyes that you ſee, and your Ears that you hear ſuch things as all the Prophets and Kings did deſire to ſee and hear, and could not; I tell you (ſaith he) many Prophets and Kings have deſired to ſee thoſe things which you ſee, and have not ſeen them, and to hear thoſe things which you hear, and have not heard them. Thou wouldſt wiſh thy ſelf to be a King, if thou deſireſt to be happy, or thou wouldſt wiſh thy ſelf to be a Prophet, an old Prophet, ſuch a one as Elias was, or Iſa, or Jeremy, or ſome of them; nay, wiſh thy ſelf as Solomon and David was, both Prophet and King: Thine eyes and ears are more bleſſed than they. For theſe Kings (ſaith he) and theſe Prophets neither could ſee nor hear thoſe things which you both ſee and hear; Why? Becauſe you hear and know the myſtery of his Will. My Brethren, it is the greateſt priviledge in the World. Our Saviour Chriſt was a man of ſorrows, we ſeldom find him rejoycing, but once, and upon what occaſion was it? Look in the 21 Verſe of that Tenth of Luke, juſt before theſe words, In that hour Jeſus rejoyced in Spirit, and ſaid, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of Heaven and Earth, that thou haſt hid theſe things from the wiſe and prudent, and haſt revealed them to Babes; And ſo he goeth on in his diſcourſe, Bleſſed are your eyes, &c. that is the Coherence of the words. Doth our Saviour Chriſt, our Head, bleſs God for revealing the Goſpel to us poor ſinners, for to ſave our Souls, and accounts it the greateſt mercy of all others beſtowed upon us, and ſhall not we? Doth Chriſt himſelf thus, as it were, fall down upon his knees and thank God for it, and ſhall not we?

You will Object and ſay to me, But it is a common Mercy, we ſee many wicked men partake of it.

I anſwer firſt, Why do wicked men partake of it? becauſe there are Saints among them, and live in the places with them, therefore the Goſpel comes to them. I have much people in this City, ſaith God, ſpeaking of Corinth, and therefore he ſent Paul to Preach amongſt them. And ſo, 2 Cor. 4. 15. For all things are for your ſakes. That Paul had all that knowledge, and all thoſe gifts, it was for their ſakes, it was for the Elect, and therefore you have reaſon to be thankful for it, wicked men ſhould not know a word of it elſe.

Secondly, Wicked men, though they hear the Goſpel, yet they hear, but underſtand not, there is a Myſtery in the Goſpel, which wicked men hear, and know not: There is, I ſay, a Myſtery in it; I paſt it over before, I will ſpeak but a word of it now, Matth. 13. 11, 12, 13, 14. To you it is given to know the Myſteries of the Kingdom of Heaven, but to them it is not given: Here Chriſt ſpeaks of the Myſteries of the Goſpel; a man muſt have it given him to know it, which is not done to wicked men; here both heard the ſame Parables; Chriſt, ſaith he, ſpake in Parables, and ſo he goeth on; ſaith he, Seeing, they ſee not; and hearing, they hear not, neither do they underſtand, that is, they do not underſtand ſavingly.

In 1 Cor. 2. 7. (the place I quoted but now) We ſpeak (ſaith he) the wiſdom of God in a Myſtery; it is called Wiſdom in reſpect that wicked men may ſee and underſtand a rationality in it; but there is a Myſtery in this Wiſdom which godly men only ſee, and it muſt be given them to ſee it; The ſecret of the Lord is with them that fear him, Pſal. 25. 14. So that now, though you think it a common mercy, yet it is a peculiar mercy to know the Myſtery of the Goſpel, to know the riches and the glory of it, it is a peculiar mercy to the Saints.

Serm. IX.

A Second Obſervation is this. That the mercy lies in this, to know the Goſpel, the Myſtery of his will: He doth not ſay to know the Law, how ſlightly the Apoſtle ſpeaks of the Law; The Law (ſaith he,) came by Moſes, it is a ſlight ſpeech, in compariſon of Grace and Truth, that, he ſaith, came by Jeſus Chriſt: It is the myſtery of his will in the Goſpel that he purpoſed in himſelf, the knowledge of which a man ſhould prize. This is the glory of Chriſt, and this is the glory of our preaching, He hath ordained it for our Glory, ſaith he 1 Cor. 2. 7. The preaching of the Goſpel is that which brings in Souls. Luke 16. 16. The Law and the Prophets were until John, but now the Goſpel is preached, men crowd into it, preſs into it, they come thick and threefold to it, men come in now when the Goſpel is preached, infinitely more then when nothing but the Law and the Prophets were preached. The Law and the Prophets were until John, ſince that time (ſaith he,) the Kingdom of God is preached, and every man preſſeth into it. This is it that bringeth men in, my Brethren. Woe is me (ſaith the Apoſtle,) Why? He ſaith not ſimply, if I preach not, but, if I preach not the Goſpel; that is the main thing.

There is but one thing more to be opened, and that is, Why it is called the myſtery of his will?

One reaſon is this, Becauſe the will of God is the foundation of the Goſpel. What will you reſolve into? You muſt reſolve it into his will, and into nothing elſe. I will have mercy, this is the Goſpel, but his will is the foundation of it; I will have mercy upon whom I will have mercy; and his Will ſets his Underſtanding a work, as it were to find out ways to bring about the ſalvation of mankind. He worketh all things after the counſel of his own will, as it follows afterward at the 13*th.* verſe. Hence therefore it is called the myſtery of his will.

I will give you another reaſon for it, which is the better reaſon for you, becauſe the moſt comfortable thing we know in the Goſpel, is the will of God to ſave Sinners. Mark what I ſay, if thou kneweſt all that God knows, (it is a great word,) if thou didſt not know this thing, that his mind and will were to ſave Sinners, thou wert undone; the knowledge of this is worth all the reſt. To know that God is merciful in his nature, this will not do it, you might have known that, and deſpaired, for it might have been ſaid, it is true, he is merciful in his nature, but the Queſtion is whether he will be merciful or no. Yea, but I will have mercy. This word is worth all the World, this is the Goſpel.

It is called the Myſtery of his will thirdly, becauſe you might have known that Jeſus Chriſt had dyed too, yet if you had not known it is the will of God to accept of that Death for Sinners, you had been undone ſtill, if you could poſſibly have ſuppoſed this. What ſaith the Apoſtle, Heb. 10. 10. when he comes to ſpeak of the Sacrifice of Chriſt, what influence it had into our Salvation? I came to do thy will (ſaith he,) by the which will we are ſanctified through the offering of the body of Jeſus Chriſt once for all. What is it that ſaveth you? that ſanctifieth you? It is not ſimply the offering of the blood of Chriſt, if you had heard Chriſt had dyed, that would not have comforted you, had it not been for this will, by this will you are ſanctified through the offering of the body of Chriſt.

Take an Obſervation or two from hence.

You ſee, my Brethren, what is the pith of the Goſpel; It is the myſtery of God's will; to know but this, that God will ſave Sinners in the blood of Chriſt, this is the pith of the Goſpel. This is that which is eſſential to ſalvation; and you ſee too, that it is but a ſmall thing, to know that God will ſave Sinners in Chriſt. How gracious hath God been, he hath not laid upon you to know all the hard things in the Goſpel, (which Schollars know, and many believers that have large underſtandings know,) or elſe you cannot be ſaved. But this is the kernel of all, God will ſave Sinners, it is the myſtery of his will; doſt thou know that? hath that taken thy heart? Thou knoweſt that which will ſave thee, if thou knoweſt no more; thou knoweſt that which faith may feed upon, and which will make thee happy everlaſtingly.

Serm. IX. But ſaith a poor Soul, will God ſave Sinners indeed, (when the Soul begins to believe this in good earneſt,) hath God a mind to ſave ſuch ſinners as I am, ſaith he? I have reaſon to be content to be ſaved then, and ſo he giveth up his ſoul to God and to Chriſt, and ſo the bargain is made: Faith is to know the Myſtery of his will, it is reſolved into that.

I will give you but a familiar inſtance, that the knowledge of this one thing is worth all the reſt. Suppoſe that one had lived in Solomon's time, had been a Subject to Solomon, a great favourite in his Court, and had run into Treaſon, ſo that it was in Solomon's power to take away his life; and Solomon ſhould yet uſe him exceeding kindly, open to him all his heart; you know he had the moſt knowledge that ever man had, both in matters of Nature, and in the Book of the Law, and he ſhould tell him all his Notions; and he had as many Notions in his Head, as there were Sands on the Sea ſhore, for it is ſaid he had a heart as large, he had a vaſt knowledge; and ſuppoſe that Solomon ſhould have told him all theſe: This poor man being a Traytor, and in Solomon's power to put him to Death when he would, if he had known but one thing of him, that Solomon would but ſay to him, I will pardon thy Treaſon, I will ſave thee, thou ſhalt not die; this would have pleaſed him more than all the knowledge Solomon could have imparted to him. So I ſay here, we are Traytors, and have deſerved death, and it is in Gods power to deſtroy us, if now God reveale unto thee that he hath an intent to ſave Sinners, happily he doth conceal other things from thee, thou haſt not a large underſtanding, thou canſt not take in much; but this I know, that God hath a mind to ſave Sinners in Chriſt, and I will give up my ſelf unto him. But doſt thou know further, that he meaneth to ſave thee? It is worth all the knowledge elſe in the World, why? Becauſe it is the myſtery of his will.

Secondly, See the Grace of God in applying himſelf to all ſorts of believers, in revealing the Goſpel to waek as well as ſtrong.: He hath applyed himſelf to weak Capacities. If the Goſpel lay all in great hidden Wiſdom and rationalities, and that a man muſt know all the depths of wiſdom in it, all the rationalities of it, the coherence of one truth with another, before he can be ſaved: Many poor weak underſtandings ſhould have been undone, and never ſhould have come to be ſaved. God doth load your hearts but with one truth, I will ſave Sinners in and through Chriſt. Haſt thou learnt this in the Goſpel? This will ſave thee, the Goſpel is the Myſtery of his will. And, my Brethren, he hath applied himſelf to weak underſtandings in faith too; why did he chooſe Faith of all Graces to ſave a man by? Becauſe the pooreſt in the World, the weakeſt underſtanding can believe and truſt; when he heareth that God will ſave Sinners, he is able to truſt God, as ſtrongly and as firmly as the wiſeſt underſtanding man in the World. Nay, your weak men, they are apteſt to believe, they are more ſuited for Faith, let them but have this revealed to them, that God will ſave poor Sinners, it lies but in a truſt; when a mans heart is convinced of this, and a poor ſoul is able to do it, he doth it as ſtrongly as the greateſt underſtanding in the world can do. Thus God hath applied himſelf.

Laſtly, Though the Goſpel be a myſtery, yet you ſee God hath made it known, Obſerve from hence, that God cares not who knows it. He kept it indeed hidden a while, but now he would have all men ſee it, ſo it is Epheſ. 3.9, 10. That all men might ſee what is the fellowſhip of the Myſtery, &c. It is the Glory of God and of our Religion, that we deſire to have all known, all the myſteries of it. We do not as the Papiſts do, that keep things from the people. Know it to the uttermoſt on Gods name, and let all God's People in their ſphere and place Propheſy, let them be all as Prophets, to know the uttermoſt myſtery of God's will; God hath abounded, not to Miniſters only, but to all his Saints, in all wiſdom and prudence, and hath made known the myſtery of his will to them; let them all get what knowledge they can of it. It was not the nature of other Religions to do ſo, the wiſe Heathens and the Prieſts of the Egyptians and other Heathen Nations, had Myſteries in their Religion, but they kept them as Myſteries, they never told the People of them. Popery you know is called a Myſtery of Iniquity, as this is called the Myſtery of God's will, for the Devil hath made a Goſpel for his eldeſt Son, as God hath for his Son. But what is the reaſon they will not let you know it, but keep you in ignorance? Becauſe it is a myſtery of Iniquity, and People would come to ſee the iniquity of it, if they knew the myſtery of it. But the Goſpel, it is the Myſtery of Gods will; ſaith God, all that you know by me is, that I will ſave poor Sinners, that I delight in Mercy. I care not who knows this, ſaith God, it is a matter of Grace, and therefore he makes known the Myſtery of his will. This is the Glory of our God, and the glory of our Religion, and the glory of the Goſpel. Would all the Saints in the world underſtood every Tittle of this Book! then our Sermons would be underſtood, and we ſhould preach with eaſe My Brethren, God deſires this, and we deſire it, to have all men know the myſtery of his will. Serm. IX.

Myſteries

According to his good pleaſure, which he hath purpoſed in himſelf.

That which remaineth is this, That which was the moving cauſe of making known the myſtery of his will, and of calling home thoſe whom he had called, and ſhall call to the end of the World; It is according to his good pleaſure which he had purpoſed in himſelf.

When I opened the 5th. verſe, I ſhewed that, εὐδοκία, the good pleaſure of his will, was that which of all things elſe he is pleaſed moſt with, though he willeth other things. Here it is ſimply ſaid, According to his good pleaſure, but the thing is all one. It was out of the good pleaſure of his will, that he did chooſe us and predeſtinate us to glory, to adoption, to perfect holineſs, as the 4th. and 5th. verſes have it. And it is out of the ſame good will that he makes known the Goſpel ſavingly to any ones heart, and converts him, and turns him to him.

It is a known place, that in Mat. 11. 25. (to confirm this to you,) At that time Jeſus anſwered and ſaid; I thank thee, O Father, Lord of Heaven and Earth, that thou haſt hid theſe things from the wiſe and prudent, and haſt revealed them unto Babes, even ſo Father, for ſo it ſeemed good in thy ſight ὅτι οὕτως ἐγένετο εὐδοκία. The word is the ſame that is here. It was thy good pleaſure, that thou ſhouldeſt put this difference, to reveal it unto ſome, and thoſe Babes, and paſs by the wiſe and prudent: He ſpeaks it of making known the myſtery of his will, the thing in the Text. Now, when he ſaith, I thank thee, becauſe thou haſt hid theſe things from the wiſe and prudent, and haſt revealed them to Babes, for ſo it ſeemed good in thy ſight; It is not that he doth make the ground, the terminus of it, to be in Gods hiding of it ſimply from the wiſe or from the prudent; but the thing he giveth thanks for, it is, his revealing it to Babes. Only, here is the mercy ſet off the more; there is this foil caſt upon it, that he hideth it from the wiſe and prudent, while he revealeth it unto Babes, and herein is ſeen by refuſing ſome and taking others, the good pleaſure of his will.

It is a like ſpeech too, that in Rom. 16. 17. God be thanked, that you were the ſervants of Sin, but you have obeyed from the heart, that form of Doctrine which you were delivered into. He doth not thank God that they were the ſervants of ſin ſimply, but that which he thanketh God for, was, that they had obeyed that form of Doctrine they were delivered unto, only ſeeing they were the ſervants of ſin once, the mercy is ſet off by this ſo much the more. Juſt ſo here, Father, I thank thee, becauſe thou haſt hid theſe things from the wiſe and prudent, and haſt revealed them unto Babes, for even ſo it ſeemed good in thy ſight. I ſhall have recourſe to this place by and by.

You have the like in 1 Cor. 1. 21. where the ſame phraſe is uſed, the ſame word of Gods good pleaſure that is here; and it is ſpoken of God's revealing the Goſpel to the Babes of the World, as you may read there throughout the Chapter. Not many wiſe, nor many noble, &c. and the reaſon was this, becauſe God would confound wiſe men after the fleſh, by enabling poor Creatures to ſave their own Souls.

I will make but an Obſervation out of this, and ſo paſs from it.

Serm. IX. God's making known the myſtery of his will and the preaching of the Goſpel, and inlightning of men unto life by the Goſpel, it doth not depend upon, nor is it diſpenſed according to preparations in the Creature, but it is according to his good pleaſure. There are thoſe that affirm otherwiſe, but this one place compared with many others, ſufficiently confute it. Having made known unto us the myſtery of his will according to his good pleaſure. If you would know why the Goſpel is preached in that powerful manner in England or in London, and not in many other places of the world, and not in many other places of the Kingdom; It is meerly upon the good pleaſure of God.

It is a thing that will never be anſwered. Why did God ſuffer the Gentiles ſo long, three thouſand years to walk in their own ways without revealing to them the myſtery of his will, (for it was 3000. years and upward after Abraham,) and choſe the Jews to whom he would make known his Law; He dealt not ſo with any Nation (ſaith the Pſalmiſt,) neither had the Heathen the knowledge of his Law? It was meerly God's good pleaſure. Moſes tells them, Deut. 9. 6. that it was not for their righteouſneſs, for they were a ſtiff-necked people, in obſtinacy they ſurpaſſed all other Nations, they were the moſt perverſe and the moſt unbelieving people of any other in the world. And Deut. 10. 14. Behold (ſaith he,) the Heaven of Heavens is the Lord's thy God, the Earth alſo with all that therein is, only the Lord had a delight in thy Fathers to love them, and he choſe their Seed after them, even you above all people. It was meerly the good pleaſure of his will that did it. And why doth Moſes mention his Title, of being Lord of Heaven and Earth, but to ſhew that this proceeded from his ſoveraignty that he choſe this people and revealed the word to them? All the Earth (ſaith he,) is mine, and I have Angels in Heaven, I need no man upon Earth at all. He might have left them all to their own ways: The Heaven of Heavens is mine, and the Earth alſo with all that is therein.

Mat. 11. 25. You ſhall find in that place I quoted even now, that Chriſt reſolveth it, why God revealed it to Babes, into the ſame principle, by the Title he giveth God there when he giveth him thanks. I thank thee, O Father, Lord of Heaven and Earth, becauſe thou, &c. God ſheweth his liberty in this. And do but mark upon what occaſion thoſe words of Chriſt's come in. At that time (ſaith the Text,) Jeſus anſwered and ſaid; Father, I thank thee, &c. Our Saviour, he had in the 20 and 21*th.* verſes upbraided the Cities wherein moſt of his mighty works were done, becauſe they repented not. Woe to thee Chorazin, woe to thee Bethſaida, if the mighty works which were done in thee, had been done in Tyre and Sydon, they would have repented long ago, in Sackcloth and Aſhes. If God had gone and revealed the Goſpel according to preparations in men, certainly he would not have paſt by Tyre and Sydon, and preached it to Chorazin and Bethſaida; for he ſaith that Tyre and Sydon would have made better uſe of it, they would have repented long ago. And Tyre was of all Nations the moſt ingenuous to the Jews, they helped to build the Temple, you know, yet God paſt by them. At that time Jeſus anſwered and ſaid, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of Heaven and Earth, that thou haſt hid theſe things from the wiſe and prudent, and revealed them to Babes. Thou goeſt in revealing the Goſpel by no ſuch conditions in men, but doſt it as the Lord of Heaven and Earth out of thy good pleaſure. And ſo much for that, According to his good pleaſure;

Which he purpoſed in himſelf:

Theſe words [which he purpoſed in himſelf,] ſome Copies, and as good as any other,) leave προέθετο out, and ſo they do not referr them to the 9*th.* verſe, but to the 10*th.* He purpoſed in himſelf, to gather together in one all things in Chriſt. Yet becauſe ſome have it, and thus you ſee it is read, and indeed more generally by Interpreters, therefore by referring them to this 9*th.* verſe, let us ſee the reaſon why theſe words [which he purpoſed in himſelf] come in after all as having relation to his good pleaſure.

It might firſt be ſaid, It is true God doth it out of his good pleaſure, but yet notwithſtanding though his own will caſt it, is there nothing at all he looks at in the Creature why he doth it?

Nothing

Nothing at all! It is, ſaith he, his good pleaſure, which he purpoſed in himſelf; meerly in and out of himſelf. He looked to nothing but himſelf, when he did thus purpoſe eternal ſalvation to any, or to call them by the Goſpel. Serm. IX.

And Secondly, whereas they might enquire, and ſay; Was it out of a fixed will, taken up from everlaſting thus?

Yes, ſaith he, It was not a meer Velleity, but it was a purpoſe, ſecum ſtatutum, he purpoſed with himſelf, unalterably: ſo indeed Beza ſaith, that God's Purpoſe is mentioned to ſhew the firmneſs of Election, as in Rom. 8. 28. where the Purpoſe of God is mentioned, to ſhew the firmneſs and ſtability of his will and reſolution in it, He purpoſed.

If the words be referred to the 9th verſe, then you may obſerve from thence theſe two things out of it;

1. That effectual Calling is the fruit of God's everlaſting good will to us, Jam. 1.18. Of his own will he hath begotten us. It was his will and his purpoſe he took up from everlaſting. His begetting us, it is of his will, of his purpoſe, which he purpoſed (ſaith he) in himſelf. And therein now, our begetting differeth from that of Chriſt's. Chriſt is his Natural Son: As he is the Second Perſon, he begat him not of his will; as he is Man indeed, ſo he came under God's Decree as well as we: but as he is the Natural Son of God, the Second Perſon, he was not begotten of his will; but ſo are we by an everlaſting Purpoſe, by an everlaſting Decree, which he purpoſed in himſelf. So that (my Brethren) look how you are called, and when you are called; it was all as God had plotted it from everlaſting. He appointed that thou ſhouldeſt go to ſuch a Sermon, and there hear ſuch a word ſpoken as ſhould ſtrike thy heart. It may be it was ſpoken by the by, or it may be thou cameſt into the Church by the by, and thoughteſt to go to another place, but God turned thee in: this was plotted from everlaſting. God doth his great works by the by oftentimes, and ſo he converteth Souls; yet they are plotted from everlaſting. It is his purpoſe within himſelf.

There is one word yet in this 9th verſe [which he purpoſed in himſelf;] ſome read it ἐν αὐτῷ, which he purpoſed in him, namely in Chriſt. But becauſe that is ſo much afore and after, certainly he meaneth ἐν αὐτῷ, in himſelf. The word ſignifieth either, (as I have formerly ſhewed what is the meaning of that;) he did not view any thing in us, or out of himſelf, when he decreed any thing concerning us. God hath no efficient cauſe to move him, but his own Will. He hath no final cauſe that ultimately moveth him, but his own glory and his Sons. He conſults with nothing; he looks not out of himſelf: As he underſtandeth all things by himſelf, and by his Eſſence, ſo that that caſteth his Will this way or that way, it is himſelf. The meaning is not, but that ſomething out of God moved God, if we would ſpeak ſtrictly: I ſhall ſhew you why; for take the glory of his Grace, that you know moveth him, ſo the 6th verſe telleth us, He did predeſtinate us to the praiſe of the glory of his grace. Now the praiſe of the glory of his grace, is a thing out of God, for it is that manifeſtative Glory that ariſeth from the hearts of Men and Angels to him, upon his works that he declareth to the Sons of Men; it is that which ariſeth out of all. He looked and ſaw that in the Creature which he made, there would be ſuch a praiſe ariſing; this moveth him, and yet it is out of himſelf. How then is he ſaid to purpoſe all in himſelf?

In one word thus; Althouhg the praiſe of the glory of his grace, is but a Creature; yet relatively it is God, it is his own, it is himſelf, it hath relation to himſelf. My glory (ſaith he) I will not give to another, no not this glory which thus ariſeth out of the Creature: Not only his Eſſential glory, but not that Manifeſtative glory he hath out of all things, it is incommunicable to any Creature: though it be not eſſentially himſelf, yet relatively it is; therefore Prov. 16. he is ſaid to have made all things for himſelf, and the wicked for the day of evil. And now to ſay, that the praiſe of the glory of his Grace moved him, is all one as to ſay, himſelf moved himſelf; becauſe it is his, and it is incommunicably his. So much now for that 9th verſe.

SERMON X.

EPHES. 1. 10.

That in the diſpenſation of the fulneſs of times, he might gather together in one all things in Chriſt, both which are in Heaven, and which are on Earth, even in him.

THeſe words contain the whole of God's everlaſting Purpoſes of Grace, (ſever them from thoſe of Creation and Providence,) toward all or any, either in Heaven or Earth, whom he regards or loves.

This is his comprehenſive ſcope, and that both the coherence of them with the former, and the matter itſelf (when opened) will diſcover and declare. Firſt, the coherence theſe words have with the whole he had been diſcourſing of from Verſe 3. until now. From Verſe 3 unto Verſe 7, he had been enumerating the particular purpoſes of God's grace to us men in Chriſt, the things on Earth, how from evrlaſting he had choſen, predeſtinated, and graciouſly accepted us in his Son Chriſt. And then from Verſe 7 to this, how he had redeemed us, forgives us, and calls us according to the ſame rich grace in Chriſt. Which done, and ſaid of Us men, whom this Epiſtle was wholly wrote to and concern'd, he then brings forth the whole of God's deſign in the utmoſt extent of it, ſo to glorifie this Grace, and this Chriſt. [To gather in him,] not us only; you and us men, the things on Earth, but all things that are in Heaven alſo, [In him I ſay;] and it's as if he had ſaid; For a concluſion of theſe particulars, I will give you the total ſum of all in comprehenſive words.

That particular account began concerning us men, occaſioned and drew out this general Concluſion and glorious Coronis.

The words immediately before [he purpoſed in himſelf,] there are two known variations of them; yet ſo as either ſtream falls into this ſcope.

1. Some Copies, and thoſe more ancient, have not that word [which;] they render it not (which he purpoſed in himſelf,) but ſimply thus, [he purpoſed in himſelf.] And ſo thoſe words before them, verſe 9. (Having made known the myſtery of his will, according to his good pleaſure,) they give a full Period to his former ſentence, verſe 8. and then theſe words, He purpoſed in himſelf, begin anew, and do of right belong to this 10*th* verſe; and are to be cut off from the 9*th* verſe. And ſo the ſcope runs naturally to ſhew, (as hath been ſaid.)

1. What was the whole, and all, and utmoſt, of what he purpoſed in himſelf, namely this, to gather all in Chriſt; the good Angels, as well as us men, thereby to ſhew the fulneſs of Chriſt's glory. For, Secondly, if that word [which] prove to be that which fell from Paul's Pen (as moſt Copies,) yet ſtill the Current empties it ſelf into the ſame meaning: for whereas in the 9*th* verſe he had ſet out the rich Grace of God, ſhewn to the Epheſians; as alſo himſelf in particular, that he had called them unto Chriſt by the knowledge of his Will, making known to them the myſtery of his will. Which Grace of gathering them perſonally, firſt, unto Chriſt, he attributes unto the good pleaſure of his will, as it follows; According to his good pleaſure, Κατὰ τὴν εὐδοκίαν, ἣν; that is, according to that, even that ſame good pleaſure; which (or out of which) he had purpoſed to gather univerſally all of them he loved in heaven or earth in his one Chriſt. So as comfort your ſelves, and adore that Grace which herein is the very ſame unto you, which which it is unto any or all of Angels and Men. And what love can be ſuppoſed greater? Yea, and this is your priviledge, to be taken into that general account and number of that general Aſſembly, conſiſting of an univerſal Company of Angels, &c. the priviledge of which the Apoſtle doth ſo celebrate, Heb. 12. What ſhall I ſay more! You have the bottom of God's heart; the center and circumference of his decrees of Grace, the greateſt birth the heart of God was ever big with; ſo great, as God having been in travel with it from everlaſting, as became ſo great a deſign, had alſo appointed a fulneſs of time; a center of time for the delivery or diſcovery of it, which began when Chriſt was firſt revealed, ſeen of Angels, things in Heaven; believed on in the world, both of Jew and Gentiles, which ſhall be gathered together in that laſt and general Aſſembly in Heaven. This is the coherence and general ſcope. Serm. X.

There are two eminent Phraſes to be opened:

Firſt, What is meant by all things in Heaven, in Earth.

Secondly, What the import and ſignification of this word, (of gathering together in one,) ἀνακεφαλαιώσασθαι, by which the Apoſtle undertakes to expreſs the ultimate and moſt perfect deſign of God towards all his Elect. What it ſignifies and extends it ſelf unto, I ſhall for a clearer view of what I am to deliver,

Firſt, Explain what is meant by All things: And then,

Secondly, Set forth the particular Heads I mean to treat on.

Thirdly, After that, I will give the import of that other Phraſe [Gathering together in one;] the reaſon of doing which latter, after the other, will eaſily appear, becauſe the variety of the ſignification of that phraſe will be found to fall in with all theſe Heads.

Firſt, What is meant by all things.

It expreſſeth thoſe two ſorts of intellectual Creatures, who are here ſet out and diſtinguiſhed by their original Countries they belong unto, the places of their habitation, Heaven and Earth: The Hebrews are wont thus to expreſs them, as in the Second Commandment,

1. Thou ſhalt not make the likeneſs of things [in Heaven above], wereby are meant Angels, who ſometimes took ſhapes;

2. Nor of things [on the Earth beneath,]

3. Nor [under the Earth,] Devils, who appeared in the ſhapes of hairy ones, Satyrs, &c. You have the very ſame Phil. 2. 10.

Now of this third Dominion of God's, viz. that of Devils, or of thoſe in Hell under the Earth; of this, Sin was the ſole founder. But God only took out his original Dominions, Heaven and Earth, for the Subjects of this his choice. Thoſe under the Earth are left out, as they are ſaid to be without, there is no gathering thence. But two Colonies he hath ſingled out, of Earth and Heaven.

Secondly, Theſe are thoſe two ſorts of Intelligent Creatures, Angels in Heaven, and Men on Earth. Beza, and others, would have the Souls of Elect men, that were in Heaven when Chriſt died and aſcended, to be the things in Heaven; but without any inſtance of any Scripture where they are ſo termed, and alſo that parallel place, 1 Col. 18. 20. that Chriſt is the Head of the Body, by whom God hath reconciled all things to himſelf, whether things in Earth, or things in Heaven; the Phraſe is clearly interpreted by verſe 16. By him all things were created, that are in Heaven, and that are on Earth; as being diſtinguiſhed by the places, which by their Creation they belong unto.

If, Secondly, you ask, Why the Perſons of Angels and Men are meant by things?

Reſp. It's ordinary in Scripture ſo to expreſs it, Gal. 3. 22. God hath ſhut up all things under Sin, τὰ πάντα; which is elſewhere expreſſed, Rom. 11. 32. τὰς πάντας, as meaning Perſons.

If, Thirdly, why all? The anſwer is, The Apoſtle intends, all whom God cares for; and indeed thoſe only Are, whom God's favour gives Being unto: Of him ye are in Chriſt Jeſus, 1 Cor. 1. 30. Again, Secondly, All; that is, all ſorts in either, (1) In Heaven, there are ſeveral ranks of Angels, which 1 Coloſſ. 16. warrants; Thrones and Dominions: as you ſee among Peers; Dukes, Marqueſſes, Earls; althoughthey are all of the ſame houſe: So here, here are Archangels, Angels,

Serm. X.

Angels; the Scripture mentions both. (2) On Earth there are ſeveral ranks of Men. Now God affects to have of all, 1 *Tim.*2. 1, 2. of all Nations, Countries, Families, Conditions, that ſhall be made happy by him.

The Heads of the enſuing Diſcourſe.

The eminent particulars contained in this total, of God's purpoſes of Grace; the Subjects of my diſcourſe, are,

Firſt, The utmoſt of that thing it ſelf, which God intended to bring all his unto: It is an union with himſelf, and a collection of all things to himſelf.

Secondly, His ſetting forth and ſingling out the Perſon of Chriſt, the great Him here; in Him, I ſay, in whoſe very Perſon he firſt purpoſed to gather up all ſorts of things, and thereby to fit him to become an Head or Center, in which he might gather all whom he loved.

Thirdly, That he hath taken his Elect out of all ſorts of Perſons that were in Heaven, or are in Earth, and united them in Chriſt, as in, and through, and under one common Head.

Fourthly, That to illuſtrate his Grace, and the glory of his Chriſt the more, he ordained a firſt and a ſecond gathering or union of all theſe; and the firſt being ſlippery and failing, he ordained a firm and everlaſting union at laſt, in and through his Son.

Fifthly, The manner of his effecting this, by Chriſt. And ſo you have the Heads to be treated on.

Thirdly, Let us conſider the import and extent of this great word ἀνακεφαλαιώσασθαι, and the ſeveral ſignifications of it, which the Holy Ghoſt ſingled out on purpoſe to expreſs this whole of God's deſign, and the ſeveral particulars fore-mentioned therein.

I ſhall but give you what is collected from approved Interpreters and Criticks, of which it's too large to give the account.

I. In General; it imports to joyn many things in one, and to bring them to an unity. This ſenſe our Tranſlators favoured, rendring it ſimply thus, a gathering together in one. And this general ſenſe of the word falls fitly in with the firſt of thoſe Heads mentioned, viz. That God's utmoſt deſign was an union with himſelf.

II. Particularly, this more general contains many more particular ſignifications under it.

1. It's a ſimilitude taken from Arithmetick, and ſignifies a ſumming up many leſſer broken numbers and accounts in one total ſum, as Merchants do: Thus the tale or total ſum of Bricks to be gathered by the Iſraelites, Exod. 5. 18. is render'd by the Septuagint, κεφάλαιον, which is a phraſe akin to that of κεφαλὴ, the head. The Grecians placed the total ſum of any account at the top, as we on the contrary at the bottom of it; and whereas we call it Pes computi, Diſcomputation, the Foot of the account: they termed it κεφάλαιον, the head or top.

2. The word is a ſimilitude from Rhetorick, that is, to ſum or gather up many particulars, which have been largely and particularly dilated on, into one word or ſentence, which is the brief or compendium of them all. Thus Rom. 13. 9. having rehearſed many particular Commandments, Thou ſhalt not ſteal, murther, &c. he concludes, And if there be any other Commandment, it is briefly comprehended (it's the ſame word that is here) in this one ſaying, Thou ſhalt love thy Neighbour as thy ſelf. And theſe two ſignifications do correſpond with the Second Head; and fitly ſerve to expreſs, how that in the very Perſon of Chriſt are ſum'd up, as ſo many particulars in one ſum, or one brief ſentence.

3. It's a ſimilitude taken from Politicks, as when we would expreſs many Nations or Perſons united under one Prince, as their Head: Thus Chryſoſtom underſtood it, and many ſince. And ſo in the Natural Body, ἀποκεφαλαιῶσαι, is, to cut off the head, Truncare caput, oppoſite to which is this word here, To gather under one head. And this ſignification ſuits and ſerves the Third Head, namely, that all things, all ſorts of Angels and Men are gathered up under Chriſt, as their Head and Natural Prince. Laſtly, there is an ἀνὰ added, to gather again a ſecond time, time, to redeem or collect Things or Persons that were scattered asunder, as the dead Bones in Ezekiel, which being disjoynted came together miraculously again, and made up one body under one head. Serm. X.

And this serves fitly to the two last Heads proposed, so as not one of them can be spared. You have the Heads of my Subject cut out, and the words opened as holding them forth. Now to give you the story of all these. For the first Head,

Head I.

That the great God purposed and designed an union with himself of those, whom in a special manner he had set himself to love; and that this Union is the deepest and fartherest design of his heart, of any he hath towards them, or the whole Creation. The full demonstration of his manifold wisdom and power, moved him to make a variety of Persons, Things, yea, of Worlds; but then his goodness and his love moved him to reduce out of that variety, an All out of every sort, (as a pledge of his respect to all) unto an unity again, and that with himself and this Union is the top perfection of all his works, as that 17 John 23. I in them, and they in me, that they may be made perfect in One. It is the perfection of the Creature (whereof the unity of the three Persons is the pattern,) and the perfection of God's design.

Head II.

The next thing to be considered, is, what medium, means, or Corner-stone and foundation it was, which God laid and designed, in and by whom most efficaciously and harmoniously to accomplish this design'd Union between himself and all things in both Worlds. For the whole Creation was at that distance from God, as God would have them know and retain the sense and remembrance of it, even when this Union should be in its height and perfection; and to that end neither admits the generality, the All here, to an immediate union with himself, and those he doth admit but in and through another, and Him the Text names and holds up with the greatest eminence, in Him, in Him I say; thereby shewing that 'twas this great He, and he alone, that was or could have been the foundation of this work.

Him, whom God hath made both Lord and Christ, and to that end singled forth and made up, and constituted him such a person as should be the Center, the compound of all things, which he meant in and by him to unite.

And herein let us adore the infinite Wisdom of God, to find out and contrive such a kind of person to be his Instrument therein; remembring all along, that we are not at present speaking of Redemption, but only of Union.

Now, to set forth this in general, let us consider, that if there were a general counsel of all sorts of intelligent Natures, called by God, and commissionated to choose out an Head to this All of themselves, they would certainly pitch upon such an one (if such an one could be found out by them,) in whom all the interest and concernments of them all do meet. Now this hath God done for us, without us, in this choice of his Christ, and our Lord. For what can, or could be supposed more harmonious, than that, when God meant to unite the variety of all sorts in one Head, he should ordain that one Head in his Person to be the sum of all their natures and conditions, and yet a person of himself, and distinct from them, and independent of them: and so Christ mystical, the Church, and Christ Personal, (who were to be espoused together) might suit and match, and alike consist of all things, to the end they might be like in all things, as near as possible might be?

And this collection of All in the very Person of Christ, takes up two of those fore-mentioned significations; of this word ἀνακεφαλαιώσασθαι. First, The casting up of divers numbers in one total sum. Secondly, The epitomizing or summing up a variety of dilated Discourses into one Sentence.

Let us run through the divided numbers which all things, in Heaven or Earth, are parted into.

The first great and more general division of all things, is God and the Creature, and to cast up or bring in these two into one sum or total, was the hardest piece of Arithmetick that ever was; and yet none of us Creatures had ever come into this after-account or ſecond union with God, under Chriſt; if God himſelf had not come into and made one of this firſt account and higheſt union, that is, of God and a Creature making one Perſon.

Deny Chriſt to be God, and deny him to be Head, and diſſolve all our union with God, as alſo reconciliation unto God, the foundation of all is taken away. The mutable Creature could never fix unto God, but by this ſure and immutable foundation.

Secondly, Come we then to Creatures, among them there is another diviſion; for as God hath made two Worlds, ſo two poſſeſſors of them; the Angels, the Intellectual Natures of the World above, and us Men on Earth the lower World. 'Tis true, that becauſe the redemption of Men was in his eye, as well as this of Union of all things; therefore he took not the nature of Angels; and beſides, therein there was a more ſpecial reſpect and inclination had unto men, rather than unto the Angels, as *Heb.*2. ſhews: yet withal it muſt alſo be affirmed, that in order to the fetching in of this General Union of all things both in Earth and Heaven; this was the only way to comprehend and graſp both, and all. To take into one perſon with him one individual Nature of man, rather than any other; and hereby, and by this alone, he hath ſum'd up all in Heaven and Earth in his Perſon. Not only, becauſe in the Nature of man, as in a little world, all things are ſum'd up in both Worlds; Man having a ſpirit, which like the Angels can ſubſiſt alone, out of the body, and live in their World i.e. in Heaven. But he hath a Body alſo, which conſiſts of all ſorts of Creatures here below, the Heathens obſerved, and their Poets feigned a piece of every thing elſe went to make up man. Whereas, had he taken the nature of Angels, then the all things on earth had been quite left out of this account, for though Man hath a Spirit like that of the Angelical Nature; yet that Spirit being ordained to dwell in a Body, and that Body being a part of man, and conſtitutive of him as ſuch; (and therefore Chriſt proves the reſurrection of the Body of Abraham by this, that elſe it's not Abraham, the Man Abraham, unleſs Soul and Body be joyned.) But upon a further ground we ſhall ſee it was, that in taking of Man's Nature he took in Angels alſo, that is, the condition of Angels. 'Tis true, had he to have been no more but an Earthly man, (as Adam, his type) this deſign of taking in all had fallen ſhort; but the perſon who aſſumes and takes into his perſon this individual Nature of man, being God the Son of God, that man whom he ſo aſſumes, is inſtantly a Heavenly man, as to his condition, 1 Cor. 15.47,48. And although the ſubſtance of his Nature is the ſame that ours, yet the ſtate is Heavenly, and to be ὡς Ἄγγελοι, as Angels: yea, far above all principalities and powers, Epheſ.1. yea, all Heavens, Heb.7.25. 'Tis not his right only to be in Heaven, but he is Lord of it, the Lord from Heaven, as 1 Cor. 15.47. and other Scriptures ſpeak, (as *John.*3.13.) and is ſpoken as if, as he is Man, he had firſt been actually in heaven, becauſe it was a real condeſcenſion in him to take our Nature, with its frailty, by which he became (for a little while) lower than the Angels, Heb.2. His natural due was that Heavenly ſtate, and to be as glorious as he is now. Here then is in an inſtant all in Heaven and Earth met, and all their intereſt; for though man could ſay, he hath our Nature; yet the Angels could withal inſtantly reply, but he is our Country man, by right we ſhould have him here, and there he muſt in the end be, and live for ever. None of his Creatures could ſay, We have a King and Head in whom we have no ſhare nor alliance unto. You know how ſharp the Contention grew between the Men of Judah and the Ten Tribes, 2 Sam. 19. about David their King; He is nigh akin to us, ſay the Men of Judah, ver.42. Fleſh of our fleſh, and bone of our bone. They of Judah plead, (as he was David,) ſo *v.*11. but he hath ſaved us out of the hands of our enemies, and delivered us out of the hands of the Philiſtins, (as he was King,) ſay the Ten Tribes. And thereupon the Men of Iſrael anſwered, We have ten parts in the King, and we have more right in David than ye. But, my Brethren, here neither things on Earth, neither things in Heaven, need either of them to complain or quarrel about the like in Chriſt; for God hath ſum'd up all in their King, Jeſus, that ſo he might become their Catholick King and Univerſal Head; He is fleſh of our fleſh, and bone of our bone, and (by birth) akin to us, might Man ſay, which the Angels cannot.

But

But this they can truly reply inſtead of it; But he is an Heavenly man, and that by right of Inheritance from an higher Birth, which his Perſon had from everlaſting. Heaven is his Country, his Court is for ever to be there; his Throne is there erected, and by Birthright he is to ſit at God's Right-hand; he is a Spiritual man, 1 *Cor.*15.46. yea, and a quickning Spirit, unto us, and to you the Sons of men alſo: yea, and you men, if you will enjoy your King and his preſence for ever, you muſt come up or be brought where we are, even as Chriſt prays they may, John 17. be where I am, and ſee my glory; and I have given it them. So then, neither can they ſay, they have no part in Jeſſe.

Yea, here I may add, that in taking Man's Nature there was this further advantage; there was a gratification to all kinds of Creatures elſe; they can all ſay, we have ſomething of every one of us in him. Man's Nature being the Epitomy of all, the Center of both Worlds, higher and lower; the Elements, Vegetatives, Senſitive Creatures. Man is the little Idea of all ſpecies or kinds of things; and this great Idea, the Son of God and the Image of God, they married together; and an happy match it muſt needs prove, which brings God and all Creatures thus into one perſon.

Thirdly, Come we to things on Earth, the Sons of Men; amongſt them we find one famous diviſion of Jew and Gentile; and that Chriſt might be a meet Head to both, God hath ſum'd up both Jew and Gentile in him. And yet as touching the former, between Men and Angels, the Election was, that he took not the nature of Angels, *Heb.*2. (which you have ſeen removed:) So here, that which follows, that he took on him the ſeed of Abraham, ſerves wholly to exclude us Gentiles from having any portion in his perſon.

But the Anſwer is as ready; 'Tis true, that immediately and more eminently he came of the Jewiſh Race, *Rom.*9.5. Whoſe are the Fathers, and of whom as concerning the fleſh, Chriſt came. And as in that other diviſion between Angels and Men, the portion that man hath in him preponderates: ſo 'tis here on the Jews ſide alſo, yet withal not to the utter excluſion of the Gentiles. For to allude to that Speech of the Ten Tribes, concerning David, We Gentiles have Ten parts in him. There were Ten Patriarchs, that were his Anceſtors and ours, and came to us; and the Jews, afore this diviſion of Abraham's Seed was brought up in the World; and Two thouſand years or more before Abraham was ſtyled the Father of the Faithful, and the Promiſed Seed; Eve was called the Mother of all Living: and ſo, that both Jew and Gentile had the firſt Promiſe of the Seed that ſhould break the Serpents head, to be her Seed. Yea, and after that diviſion made from Abraham, you have two Gentiles mentioned in his very Genealogy, Rahab and Ruth, as his great Grand-mothers: So 'twas, he would have ſome of the Gentiles Blood run in his Veins, as well as that of the Jews.

Thus you have now ſeen, (1) God's moſt deep and comprehenſive deſign, to be the union of all things with himſelf. (2) The fulneſs of fulneſs in the Perſon whom he ſingles forth, to be the means or effecter of it; and therein two of the fore-mentioned ſignifications of the word ἀνακεφαλαιώσασθαι taken up therein.

Head III.

We come now to the Perſons gathered. The Third Head propoſed was that, that God out of all ſorts of Perſons, both in Heaven and in Earth, hath deſigned to collect a body and ſelect Company to union with himſelf, and through Chriſt as their Head. Which the third particular import of this word, gives warrant to; it ſignifies, gathering together as in one head.

As he is an Arithmetical Head, ſo he is a Political Head; he is a Prince and a Lord, and a Head to all things in Heaven and in Earth, and they are made all one, in being reduced to him as to a Head. He hath given him (ſaith he, Eph. 1. 21.) to be the Head over all things to the Church. So that, my Brethren, this is the ſecond Myſtery I am to unfold to you, That as in the Perſon of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt there is God, and Angels, and Men, Jew and Gentile, ſum'd up in him; he partakes in his Perſon of all theſe: So his Body (if you will ſo call it,) or rather his Family, whereof he is Head; (for I do not know that the Angels are called Members of his Body; that is, peculiarly the priviledge of the Saints,) but they are all gathered into one Commonwealth, into one City, into one Family, both Angels and Men, unto him as their Head. And that ſame Univerſal Church, that ſhall appear at the latter day, when the fulneſs of time is out, when the Glaſs is run; for then he will have them all about him, and they will all be under one Head: and ſo that Family of his, which ſhall all come unto him, will have a conformity to his Perſon. Chriſt Myſtical will have a conformity to Chriſt Perſonal; as Chriſt Perſonal was ſummed up of all, ſo will that whole Family of his, that whole Commonwealth of his, whereof he is the Head, be ſummed up of all too, both Angels and Men, Jew and Gentile, all ſorts of men; all thing in Heaven and all things in Earth, ſhall all be gathered in one, in him.

And this is that ſame great Μυςήριον, as the Apoſtle calleth it, Eph. 3.9, 10. At the 9*th* verſe, To make all men ſee, (ſaith he) what the fellowſhip of the Myſtery is; and the Angels come in there too, at the 10*th* verſe; (for by the preaching of the Goſpel they have a fellowſhip with him, as well as the Jew and Gentile:) To the intent, that now unto the principalities and powers in heavenly places, might be known by the Church the manifold wiſdom of God. This is that great Aſſociation of all the Creatures, whereby they are all, though they are two ſeveral Kingdoms, as England and Scotland are, yet all united; there is an Aſſociation under one Monarch, ſo under one Chriſt, that they come all to have relation to one, as their Head; and all make up a Family, and a Commonwealth, and a Kingdom too.

There are two things here to be treated of,

(1) That the good Angels, as well as Men, are united and come into this Society under Chriſt as an Head, which alone I need inſiſt upon; for of Men there is no queſtion.

(2) That all of each, that is, all ſorts of Angels, and all ſorts of Men, are taken in; to make up this Body or Society.

I. Angels, as well as Men; which I explain by theſe particulars;

Firſt, When I ſay they are gathered in one in Chriſt, I mean not as a Redeemer, but ſimply as an Head. The difference of theſe two I ſhall in another Section give the account of. I obſerve, that Rev. 5.9.11,12. when the two firſt Rounds, or Rings, gathered about the Lamb and the Throne, the firſt and neareſt is of Men, of Angels the ſecond; and both celebrating the Lamb that was ſlain.

This in general, That Chriſt is Head both to Angels and Men.

The Second Branch, That all ſorts of each, both Angels and Men, were gathered unto him, as in that one Head.

I. All ſorts of Angels: there are ſeveral ranks of Angels; which Coloſ. 1. 16. doth give us the Heraldry of: All things that are in Heaven, and that are in Earth; viſible, and inviſible, whether they be Thrones or Dominions; there are things in Heaven, Principalities or Powers; there are three ſorts of things on Earth. 1. Thrones ſpeaks Kingly power to be among them, Dan. 10. 13 Lo Michael, one of the firſt of the Princes, as he is there called, which is ſpoken of a good Angel; for 'tis Michael. 2. There are Dominions, Vice-Roys, as 'twere ranks, and orders under them; and this order in Hell is kept, by which their Kingdom is governed; there is one that is the Prince of Devils, even as under a King there are Dukes, and Marqueſſes, and Earls, &c. And thoſe good Angels are all of one Houſe, conſiſting of the Original Peers of Heaven. And this diſtinction of Angels, for we preſume not to give any more ranks of them; (as the Counterfeit Dionyſius, and from him the Papiſts do,) we elſewhere find in Scripture, that ſome are called Archangels, one at leaſt, Jude 9. who was a meer Created Angel, as is evident by this, that He durſt not bring a railing accuſation; which muſt not be applied unto the ſecond Perſon as God, as ſome have done; likewiſe, 1 Theſſal. 5. 16. it is ſaid, the Lord ſhall deſcend with the voice of an Archangel; which Archangel is diſtinct from the Lord himſelf.

ſelf. The Angels then are of ſeveral ranks, and there are of all ſorts of them in Heaven. Serm. X.

II. Men on Earth: Chriſt hath a body of men, made up of all on Earth, an Elect of all ſorts.

The Firſt diviſion of things on Earth is into Jew and Gentile, in common; that the Church of men conſiſts of both theſe, is known to all.

Secondly, Among the Gentiles, there are many Nations, and Gen. 18. 18. the Promiſe is to Abraham, that in him (i. e. in Chriſt,) all the Nations of the Earth ſhould be bleſſed, and it is repeated again in Chap. 22. It is not only that Chriſt ſhould ſprinkle many Nations with his Blood; Iſai. 52. 15. but the firſt promiſe ſaith, all Nations. Pſal. 86. 9. All Nations whom thou haſt made ſhall come, and worſhip before thee, O Lord, and ſhall glorifie thy name. Chriſt therefore gave Commiſſion that the Goſpel ſhould be preached to all Nations, and ſo it ſhall be before the end of the World.

Then Thirdly, In every ſeveral Nation there are many Kindreds, Families, or Fatherhoods, as Peter ſpeaks of them; Acts 3. 25. out of Gen. 12. 3. In thy Seed ſhall all the Families of the Earth be bleſſed; and that is twice ſaid, as well as the 'tother of Nations. And if you will hear the whole Church of the New Teſtament, ſum up all in their own Names; Rev. 5. 9. Thou waſt ſlain, and haſt redeemed us to God by thy blood; one of every Kindred, and Tongue, and People, and Nation. He multiplies words enough, even as Lawyers uſe to do, that he might be ſure to comprehend all.

Fourthly, There are other diviſions: Sinners of all ſorts, ſeveral ranks, kinds, and degrees of Sinners. And God will ſave out of all theſe ſorts but of one, and they are ſuch of the Sons of Men as joyn iſſue with the Serpent, and ſin, the Devil's Sin, the ſin againſt the Holy Ghoſt; and are in the ſtate of the Devils while they are upon Earth; and therefore are not to be reckoned with things on Earth. But of all ſorts of Sinners, our Saviour Chriſt hath ſaid, Matth. 12. 31. that they ſhall be forgiven, All manner of Sin, and Blaſphemy ſhall be forgiven unto men; but the Blaſphemy againſt the Holy Ghoſt, ſhall not be forgiven unto men. He doth not ſay that all manner of Sins may, but he ſaith that all ſhall be forgiven in one or other. And he through whoſe hands all Pardons run, 'tis he ſaith this; God hath ordered his Elect, take the whole body and bulke of them, to fall into all ſorts of Sins, one or other of them, ſo as there is no ſort or kind, degree of Sin, no way of Sinning, manner of Sinning, or aggravation of Sin, but in ſome or other it ſhall be pardoned, and he doth it to glorifie his grace in Chriſt, in whom he gathers them; and this was the myſtery of that Sheet, which Peter ſaw coming down from Heaven, Acts 10. 11, 12. tied at the four corners, as pointing to all the four quarters of the world; In which there were all manner of unclean Creatures; fourfooted Beaſts of the Earth, and wild Beaſts, and Creeping things, and Fouls of the Air. It imports all ſorts of Sinners, all the world over, the moſt venemous Creatures, as many creeping things are; of thoſe ſhould the Church Catholick conſiſt.

Laſtly, There is another diviſion of the outward ranks of men; and out of all doth God take ſome, 1 Tim. 2. He exhorts that prayers and thanks may be made for all men; for Kings, and for all that are in Authority. He takes up Kings, and of all ſorts, and ranks that are in Authority elſe; yea and out of all men, and therefore he would have thanks given for all ſorts, as well as prayers made. You know your calling, Brethren, not many wiſe, not many noble, yet ſome. I am a debtor to the wiſe, and to the weak, ſaith Paul; aud God takes fools as well as wiſe men. The fools ſhall not err therein, Iſa 35. 8. though they be natural fools, he can come at their hearts.

And ſo you have the Third Head in general mentioned, and the Third ſignification of the word, ἀνακεφαλαιῶσαι fill'd up and made good.

The Fourth Head, That God, to illuſtrate the glory of his grace, and of his Chriſt, purpoſed a ſecond gathering after a firſt, both of men and Angels; this the word to gather again implies, recolligere. This ἀνὰ, as Biſhop Andrews on this text, muſt not be loſt, it is an addition of infinite importance, to amplifie the glory of God in this purpoſe of his. It imports,

1. A

Serm. X.

1. A firſt and ſecond gathering of theſe All things, or a double union of theſe Creatures to God; whereof the firſt being ſlippery and failing, he ordained the laſt firm and fixed in Chriſt, never to be broken or diſſolved again. The firſt was not firm enough, but ſoon and eaſily diſſoluble.

2. This ἀνὰ, or again, imports a miſerable ſcattering of the firſt gathering, to fall out between the firſt and ſecond gathering; a diſſolution of all firſt, on purpoſe decreed and permitted by God, to make this ſecond gathering and Oneneſs with himſelf, and unity one with another (which was the ultimate aim of his deſign,) more illuſtrious.

3. A Third thing, is the way, and manner, and means of doing it; it is in Chriſt.

The firſt ſerves to magnifie his Grace in Chriſt, the Head, to Angels, who are All things in Heaven: And the ſecond to magnifie his Grace to the Sons of Men, the All things in Earth, both as a Head and Redeemer. And all put together contains the whole Counſel of God unto both. God united Man and Angels to himſelf in their firſt Creation, and one to another. The Elect Angels that ſtood in need of a ſecond union, or gathering of them in Chriſt, as a Head; to put them out of danger and poſſibility of being ſcattered, as their Fellows had been: and therein lies their obligation. And Elect men having all run into an actual Riot and Rebellion; and were ſeparated from God, and ſcattered from one another; they needed a gathering together again; and both in and through Chriſt, to fix either for ever from a perpetual hazard of departing. And the opening theſe things, and being added to the former, bring in an infinite revenue of Glory unto God and Chriſt; and do give us indeed an account of the whole Counſel of God: and ſtill he renders it more and more compleat.

For the firſt Branch: There was an union of Man and Angels to God by the meer Law of Creation, and Covenant of Nature or Works: and though the Angels, (for I ſpeak of them now in common; and ſo of the Elect Angels, in the general condition with them that are fallen in their firſt Creation,) were created in Heaven, and Man upon Earth; yet the ſame Law of Nature, and the ſame terms and tie of Union, were alike enjoyed; and thereby they had an Union and Communion with God; but meerly by their Graces, and the exerciſe of them, according to the Covenant of Works: ſo, as long as that held, their Union held, but not a moment longer.

For though the Law of Creation, that was common both to Men and Angels, had this meet dueneſs in it; as was ſaid, that God ſhould create them in that eſtate, and afford them help ſuitable thereunto; yet no Law of Nature or Creation, either to Angels or Men, had a promiſe, that God ſhould keep them, and preſerve them in that eſtate from falling. They were as Glaſſes without a bottom, which ſoon fell and broke; which by the event was made good, by the fall both of Men and ſome Angels: which ſhews the weakneſs and the ſlipperineſs of this firſt Union in either of them.

I. For Angels.

As concerning the Angels; If God would aſſure them to himſelf from the poſſibility of falling, they muſt be headed in Chriſt, or by Chriſt; they muſt be gathered by a gathering together in Chriſt, as a Head, a ſecond time; and then all is in ſure hands. If therefore the Query be, Wherein ſhould the Grace vouchſafed to them lie, ſo as they had need of Chriſt to interpoſe, and to make this ſecond gathering of them; whereas they never had fallen actually? For it may be thought needleſs. The neceſſity lay in this;

1. If it were no more but the weakneſs and ſlipperineſs of their firſt Union: therefore, if there were no more, it was neceſſary they ſhould be fixt in him, by an immutable Relation to him, who is the Rock of Ages, and then they are in ſure hands: For Chriſt, he is as ſure and immutably fixt, as the Son of God himſelf, by perſonal union with the Son of God; and they, if they be choſen in him, and accepted in him, and have a relation unto him, as to their Head, they are made as immutable as Chriſt is. Job. 4. 18. Behold, he puts no truſt in his Servants,

Servants, and his Angels he chargeth with folly. The Lord foreſaw, that if he kept to the Laws that the condition of Works required, and unto the dues of it, he could be ſure of none; and he plainly ſaith, he could put no confidence. And indeed he had little reaſon; for you know how all on Earth ſerv'd him, and how great a part of Heaven (in the event) did ſerve him; thoſe Morning Stars fell. And this in Job is ſpoken of the good Angels, his Servants and Courtiers he had about him; and all my Creatures may ſerve me ſo, if they be left unto their firſt condition, to the Law of their Creation, and if they ſtand a thouſand years, yet what Grotius dreams may be now, upon thoſe words, Galat. 1. If an Angel from Heaven, &c. let him be accurſed; as if Angels might ſtill fall, though that be falſe now ſince their confirmation in grace by Chriſt, yet it was true once; and he chargeth them with folly, becauſe he ſaw their aptneſs to folly. He ſaw the poſſibility of it, and therefore could have no ſettled contentment in any of them, in that eſtate, nor perfectly love them; but loved them, tanquam aliquando oſurus, as thoſe whom he might one day hate, which prejudgeth perfect love; and therefore upon a fore-ſight of their Creature condition, he vouchſafed a ſecond gathering of them in Chriſt, ſo to fix them. And hence aroſe quædam ſimultas, I will not ſay a grudge againſt them, for they had no ſin, yet a kind of diſplicency with them, as mere Creatures, if alone, and apart conſidered. And then, 2. His charging them with folly might, and did ariſe, becauſe he is ſo holy a God; and he is ſo infinitely holy, as that though in juſtice he hath nothing againſt them, for he knows they are Creatures, and whereof they are made; yet ſtill they are not of that holineſs he would be pleaſed in, as Calvin doth interpret it, upon all theſe grounds his grace firſt fixed them in Chriſt the Rock of Ages, as in their Head, and a firm union with him as in that relation; for if he became and undertook to be a head to them, he would not loſe his Members. And Secondly, thereby he pleaſed himſelf in them through him, in whom only he is well pleaſed; which ſaying reaches the Angels as well as men, even all intelligent Creatures he is any way pleaſed withal; and he is pleaſed with the relation they bear to his perſon. Yea, Thirdly, to take away all diſtaſte aforeſaid, they needed a kind of reconciliation, reconciliatio analogica, as learned Davenant; it was not a reconciliation by a price, ſo as to purchaſe their peace for ſin actually committed, they needed not that, reconciliation is a larger word; there is a reconciliation preventive of them that have any aptneſs, or poſſibility to fall out, ſo as to make them faſt friends for ever, and to make them ſure unto himſelf, and to take away all occaſion of jealouſies, and ſo they were, as Bernard ſaith, ſuo modo redempti. Fourthly, I ſhall add this further, mercy doth not lie only in pardoning, but in preventing; it coſt Chriſt's blood to keep us from the ſin we might have committed, as well as to obtain forgiveneſs for the ſins we have committed; and therefore the Apoſtle ſaith he hath redeemed us from our vain converſation, even which we might have fallen into. God knows our thoughts afar off: and what they would be of our ſelves, Angelica Natura egebat miſericordiâ Dei, ne poſſet errare, ſo ſaith Ambroſe; ſo you have ſeen the need the Angels had of their ſecond gathering, and that by Chriſt. Serm. X.

I ſhall for the opening of this, do theſe three things.

1. Prove it by other Scriptures.
2. Explain it, and that by two things.
1. What fellowſhip and aſſociation Angels and Elect have, and ſhall have, one among another.
2. What communion and fellowſhip, and relation Angels have to Chriſt, as to a head.
3. Give ſome cautions, that you may not be miſtaken in the point.

Firſt, For the proof of it. There are many places brought, but the truth is, I know none come home to it ſo much, (and therefore I will but name it,) as that, Coloſſ. 2. 10. In him dwelleth all the fulneſs of the God-head bodily, and you are compleat in him who is the head of all Principalities and Powers. By Principalities and Powers, in the uſual phraſe of Scripture, is ſtill meant the Angels.

Serm. X.

gels. Epheſ. 1. 21. He hath raiſed him up, (ſpeaking of Chriſt,) and ſet him at his own right hand in the heavenly places, far above all Principalities and Powers, and might and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but alſo in that which is to come. Now, ſaith he, what need you go out of Chriſt? you are compleat in him; why are we compleat in him? Here is his reaſon, If the Angels are compleat in him, that are the higheſt Creatures, that ſtand at God's right hand, and in his preſence, if he be their head, then you may very well be compleat in him, you poor men that live on Earth. You are compleat in him who is the head of all Principalities and Powers.

I will give you ſome general expreſſions that will prove it and explain it. Firſt, the Angels and men they do make up one family unto God, whereof Chriſt is the head, or the Pater-Familias, as you know it is the ordinary expreſſion in all languages, to call the Maſter of the Family the head of the family; ſo is Jeſus Chriſt to Angels and men, that make up one family to God. And, my Brethren, ſo it falleth out, that the very Text hinteth this to be the Apoſtle's meaning, for that which we tranſlate, in the diſpenſation of the fulneſs of time, is in the Original εἰς οἰκονομίαν, the houſhold diſpenſation, the family diſpenſation, (as many read the words,) that is, he hath gathered them all in one for a family diſpenſation, for a family government of them, into one family, ſo to order and govern them, and diſpenſe to both, to Angels and men, as to one family, now to be diſpenſed in theſe laſt times.

That which fitteth this Interpretation, is that in the third of the Epheſians, ver. 15. Of whom (ſaith he) the whole family in Heaven and Earth is named. He had named Chriſt juſt before, ſaith he ver. 14. Unto the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, of whom (of Jeſus Chriſt, namely) the whole family, (he taks all in, both Angels and men,) in Heaven and in Earth is named. They all hold of him. You know he that is the head of a family, they have all their name from him, as that of the Turks, they call the Ottaman family, becauſe Ottaman was the firſt of them. It is ſpoken there by the Apoſtle in oppoſition to the Jews, for the Jews, they boaſted, that all God's family was in Abraham's Houſe, in Abraham's Children; no, ſaith he, not only is the family of God reſtrained unto Abraham's Children, but it is diffuſed and diſperſt over all the Earth, and not only ſo, but it reacheth to Heaven too; and all on Earth, and all in Heaven, make but one family to God, Angels and all; for otherwiſe, when the Apoſtle wrote this, there were few in Heaven but Jews, and ſo he had not ſpoken ſo appoſitely to what the Jews intended, who would arrogate all to themſelves: No, ſaith he, though God hath appointed Abraham, and erected a family in him, peculiar to the Jews, yet all in Earth hold of Chriſt, and all in Heaven too, and all are named of him, he is the foundation of both families, and they make all but one family. The whole family in Heaven and in Earth. I will not ſtand to open to you the meaning of the word [named] any further, his meaning is general, univerſal. He had ſaid two great things of Chriſt juſt before, he had ſaid in the 9*th.* verſe, That God created all things by Jeſus Chriſt; he had ſaid in the 11*th.* verſe, that God purpoſed all things in Jeſus Chriſt; now he telleth you, that things both in Heaven and Earth, that whole family, Angels and men, (he bringeth it in here at the 15*th.* verſe, to honour Chriſt,) they are all named of him, they all hold of him, he owneth them all, and they all own him, and they have their being of him, (as the word named often times ſignifieth.)

Again, another expreſſion is, as they are called one family, whereof he is the head, ſo they are one City, both Angels and men, they make one Jeruſalem, Saints on Earth, and Angels in Heaven, whereof Jeſus Chriſt is the Governour, and the King and Head, a political head. For this, ſee Heb. 12. 22. You are come unto Mount Sion, (which was the place of worſhip before,) and unto the City of the Living God, the Heavenly Jeruſalem. Here are the generals, Now who are the Inhabitants of this City? Who are the Citizens? Who are the Worſhippers in Mount Sion together? It followeth, To an innumerable company of Angels, to the general aſſembly and company of the firſt born. All theſe make up one City to God, they make up one Heavenly Jeruſalem, they make make up one company of worſhippers, (as you ſhall ſee afterward.) Now, because when a man is converted, he cometh to all theſe; that is, he entreth into an aſſociation with all theſe, he is made free of the company of all theſe, therefore they are ſaid to be gathered in one in Chriſt. Serm. X.

My Brethren, the Angels they are part of the worſhippers of Chriſt as well as we, as they are part of his Family, as they are part of his City, whereof he is the King and Lord, ſo they are part of his worſhippers, and (as you ſhall ſee anon,) we with all they, worſhip God and him together, both here, and ſhall do ſo hereafter. They are worſhippers of him, and in that ſenſe make a part of the Church, for Eccleſia Colentium, a Church is properly for worſhip; if they be therefore part of the worſhippers of Chriſt, they come under his Church, they are a part of it; particular Churches are ordained for worſhip, and ſo is the general Church for a worſhip to be performed to Chriſt. And it is the proper expreſſion of the members of a Church, what they are deſigned unto, they are worſhippers. Now, in Heb. 1. 6. you ſhall find, that the Angels they are all worſhippers of Jeſus Chriſt, And again, when he bringeth his firſt begotten into the World, he ſaith, let all the Angels of God worſhip him, ſpeaking of Chriſt. I will not ſtand to open the phraſe, whether it be at his firſt coming, or his ſecond, for ſome read the words thus, ſo Cameron doth, and to me it certainly ſeemeth the meaning, When he bringeth his Son again into the world, ſo the word εἰσαγάγῃ better beareth it; the ſecond time, when he cometh to Judge the World, then the Angels of God ſhall worſhip him, together with all Saints, and all the Elect, before all the World. I will not further open the place, I only alledge it for this, that they are worſhippers of Chriſt.

See but the reaſon of this Head, you have ſeen Scripture for it. Firſt, It is a due to Chriſt. If that Man Chriſt ſhall be the Son of God, and the Heir of all things, it is his due, that he ſhould be the head of the beſt of God's Creatures, of Angels that are ſaved as well as men, that he ſhould be the head of God's Family. The Eldeſt you know were the head of the Family. Are the Angels a part of God's Family? Will you ſhut them out? No, they are a part of God's Family as well as you, (how, you ſhall ſee afterward,) if they be; then the Eldeſt Son, the Heir of all, he is the head of that Family, and ſo of the Angels by the Law of Nature. It is Chriſt's due, and therefore they all hold and depend upon him.

Secondly, that all, thus gathered together to one head, to make up one Family, and one City and Church to God, it was for the infinite glory and ſplendor of this Church. What could be greater, then that all in Heaven and all in Earth, ſhould be united one day, in one to worſhip God, and all to bow at the name of Chriſt, as the Apoſtle telleth us, Phil. 2?. God appointed his Church to be all in one place, he would have them all up to Heaven, and therefore he appointed them all one happineſs, he hath appointed them to be all one City, therefore they ſhall have one head, they ſhall be united all together in one. He loves not ſcattering and diſtraction, to have two companies of Worſhippers at laſt, for God is one. It is therefore for their perfection, it is therefore for their greater ſplendour, as you ſhall ſee, in the Obſervations that I ſhall raiſe.

Thirdly, Men and Angels were capable of this union, to be knit together, thus under one head. Why? For we agree both in an intellectual Nature, we have the ſame Underſtanding, and Will, and Affections as they have, (take us as we are ſouls,) we are capable of the ſame common happineſs that they have, to ſee God, and to ſee Chriſt; we ſhall one day, after the Reſurrection, be made like unto them, ſo the expreſſion is, Mat. 22. If we be brought up to the ſame condition with them, we ſhall have the ſame happineſs, ſhall live in the ſame place, why ſhould we not have the ſame head, and be joyned all together; that as God is the head of Chriſt, Chriſt may be the head of all, both Angels and men?

Laſt of all, By this is made up a moſt compleat parallel oppoſition with Sathan, who is the head of wicked men, and of the Devils; ſo God ordaineth it, he made two heads, and all the World falls to one of them. The Devil you know, that great Devil, is the head of the evil Angels, therefore Mat. 12, 24. he is called the Prince of Devils, he is the head of all wicked men; therefore, Joh. 12. 31. he is called the prince of this World, and when as the World is at an end, let that Devil take all his Angels and wicked men, and he as a head is tormented with them for ever; they are caſt into the fire with the Devil and his Angels, you know it is ſaid of wicked men. Anſwerably, as this great Devil, whom God ſetteth up againſt Chriſt, he is the great, I cannot call him Antichriſt, becauſe he is no way for Chriſt, but he is the great one that oppoſeth Chriſt, whom God ſetteth up againſt him to ſhare the World with him, as he is the head of all that are wicked on Earth, and of all in Hell; ſo is Chriſt oppoſite, the head of all that are godly on Earth, and of all in Heaven; and though the Devil is not of the ſame nature with men yet he is the head of wicked men, he is the Prince of the World, and he rules effectually in the Children of diſobedience. Eph. 2. 2. So likewiſe, though Jeſus Chriſt is not of the ſame nature or ſubſtance with the Angels, yet he is the head of Angels, of all Principalities and Powers, and rules as effectually; nay ten thouſand times more effectually, for Satan is not ſuch a head as Chriſt is. And when Jeſus Chriſt hath taken up his All, the Devil will take all the reſt. Chriſt is made the head of all things in Heaven and in Earth, he takes out his Saints, and the Devil takes all the reſt, they ſhare the World between them. So you have the thing proved both by Scripture and by Reaſon.

The Second thing then that I am to do, is this, to explain this Aſſociation between men and Angels, under one Chriſt; and Firſt, (as I ſaid,) I ſhall explain the Aſſociation between men and Angels one amongſt another, what the fellowſhip is between Angels and men, as making up one Family to God: And then Secondly, What Communion, what relation, what Union and Communion the Angels have with Chriſt, as with a head. This I muſt explain.

Firſt, Men and Angels, amongſt themſelves, they have this fellowſhip under Chriſt their head, that they are all worſhippers of God and Chriſt together. They are ſo in this World, and they ſhall be ſo more compleatly and fully in the World to come, when that fulneſs of the diſpenſation of all time ſhall take place at the latter day. Firſt, I ſay, there is an Aſſociation in worſhip in this world, between Angels and Saints. Little do we think it, but the Angels fill our Churches as well as men, and are preſent at all our Congregations and Aſſemblies; becauſe we are to be with them hereafter, and to worſhip God together with them, therefore they come down and are preſent at the worſhip of God here with us. I could give you many proofs for it, I will but name one or two.

What was the reaſon that the Tabernacle and Temple at Jeruſalem was all full of Cherubims? Read Exod. 25. 19. there was to be two Cherubims over the Mercy-ſeat, in the Holy of Holieſt. Read Exod. 26. 1. All the Curtains that were to be for the Tabernacle, they were all to have Cherubims wrought in them. Cherubims are Angels. Go from thence to the Temple of Solomon, 1 King. 6. 23. there you have Cherubims again, at the Mercy-ſeat too; and then verſe 29. all the walls of the Houſe round about were Carved with Carved Figures of Cherubims, with Angels ſtill; nay the very Doors for the entring into the Holy of Holieſt, and the Doors of the Temple, had Cherubims Carved upon them. All this betokened that Angels ſtill filled the Temple as well as men; and therefore 1 Cor. 11. 10. (ſurely it is the meaning of it,) he biddeth Women to be modeſt, to be Vayled, to ſhew ſubjection, not only becauſe of men, but becauſe of the Angels, (ſo the Text is there,) that are preſent at their Chriſtian Aſſemblies. He inſtanceth in the leaſt miſdemeanour, and argueth from the leſſer to the greater, to make this a motive, that men ſhould behave themſelves religiouſly and holily in the Churches of Chriſt, becauſe the Angels are preſent. If (ſaith he,) you are not to ſuffer the Angels to eſpy in you the leaſt immodeſty, then much more, any other misbehaviour.

In the 5*th. Revel. verſ.* 11. There you have the Church of Chriſt deſcribed, and there you have 24 Elders and 4 Beaſts, (which are the People and Officers of Congregations,) and they ſing a new Song unto Chriſt, v. 9. Thou art worthy to take the Book, and to open the ſeals thereof, for thou waſt ſlain, and haſt redeemed us unto God by thy Blood, out of every Kindred, and Tongue, and People, and Nation; and haſt made us unto our God, Kings and Prieſts, and we ſhall reign on the Earth. And I beheld (ſaith he,) and I heard the voice of many Angels round about the Throne. Angels are round about the Throne, they are preſent at the Courts of God's Houſe, ſtill they are worſhippers, you ſee, together with us on Earth.

Secondly,

Secondly, They do delight to hear Chriſt preached, becauſe Chriſt is their head, and therefore are preſent. The Text is expreſs, Epheſ. 3. 10. he ſheweth there the end why to him was committed, and ſo to others, the preaching of the Goſpel. To the intent, that now, unto the Principalities and Powers in Heavenly places, might be known by the Church, the manifold wiſdom of God. They do not know it out of the Scripture ſimply, but as it is opened in the Church, by the Miniſters of the Church, for the good of the Church, ſo they come to know it, and they delight to do ſo, for ſo you have it, 1 Pet. 1. 12. Saith he, ſpeaking of the Fathers before, in the Old Teſtament; It was revealed unto them, that not unto themſelves, but unto us they did miniſter the things which are now reported unto you, (he ſpeaks in general,) by them that preached the Goſpel, with the Holy Ghoſt ſent down from Heaven, which things the Angels deſire to look into. The Angels they are preſent, and they are glad to hear Chriſt laid open, and preached unto men, to hear their head ſpoken of, they are Worſhippers together with us of Chriſt. Serm. X.

Then Thirdly, Here on Earth they have joy when any poor ſoul is converted. As they come to Church, ſo they obſerve who is wrought upon; when they ſee a poor ſoul go home and humble himſelf, fall down upon his knees and become a new Creature, news is preſently carried up to Heaven, for the Text ſaith. Luc. 15. 10. That there is joy in the preſence of the Angels of God, (that is, in the Court of Heaven, amongſt them all, ſo the word ſignifieth, ἐνώπιον in the face of all the Angels, it is the ſame word uſed, Luc. 12. 8. Him ſhall the Son of man confeſs before the Angels of God, he will own him in his Court, and confeſs him in the preſence, in the face of all the Angels; ſo there is joy amongſt the Angels, they rejoyce before God,) over one Sinner that is converted, over a poor ſoul that is gathered unto Chriſt their head.

This aſſociation, my Brethren, we have with them, beſides all the ſervices they do us, (which I cannot ſtand to repeat and reckon up unto you,) for all the Angels are our fellow ſervants, ſo that Angel calleth himſelf, Revel. 22. 9. And Jacob's Ladder that touched Heaven, the Angels aſcended and deſcended upon it, and Chriſt himſelf, John 1. 51. interprets it, that he is the Ladder, they all come down upon him, and aſcend upon him, for the ſervice of men. He is their head, their ruler, their governour.

But as we have in this world this aſſociation with them, ſo in the world to come we ſhall all worſhip God with one worſhip, both Angels and men together. Such he there in the 12*th. Heb.* the place I quoted before, you are come to the Mount Sion, ſo he calleth the Church; which conſiſteth both of Angels and men, (as I obſerved before,) Mount Sion, you know, was the place of God's worſhip, what is his meaning then, when he ſaith, you are come to the Mount Sion, to the Heavenly Jeruſalem? You are all come, ſaith he, to the place of worſhip, whither Angels are come up; (for all the Tribes came up there, to that Mount Sion to to worſhip God,) the Mount where all the Angels are, and where all the ſouls of juſt men made perfect, ſhall come up in their ſucceſſion, and all to worſhip God. It is called Mount Sion, becauſe it is the place of God's worſhip: And that which we tranſlate the company of Angels, μυριάσιν, it is the ſolemn aſſembly of Angels, ſo the word ſignifieth, ſuch an aſſembly as was at a ſolemn Feaſt of the Jews, whither all the people came up. The men that dwelled at Jeruſalem, he compareth them to the Angels, for that is their ſtanding ſeat and dwelling; and we that are upon earth, he compareth to the Tribes that came up to the ſolemn Aſſembly, to the ſolemn Feaſt. And he calleth them the general Aſſembly, for there God will have all his Children about him. So that both Angels and we one day, ſhall be common worſhippers, live in one Kingdom together; we ſhall be as Angels, ſo Mat. 22. 13.

We are beholding to the man Chriſt for doing this, for he hath bleſſed us with Heavenly bleſſings, as the third verſe hath it. We ſhall live in one City, in one place. I will give you but one Scripture for it, and ſo I will end, It is Zach. 3. 7. There our Saviour Chriſt, the Angel of the Covenant, he makes this promiſe to Joſhua the High Prieſt, and to Zerubbabel, If thou wilt walk in my ways, and keep my charge in my Houſe, in my material Houſe, while thou art here below, I will give thee a better Houſe than this, I will give thee places to walk amongſt theſe that ſtand by, I will give thee a place amongſt the Angels, (for they were they that ſtood by, and appeared upon the ſpeckled Horſes, as Chap. 1.) I will give thee a better Houſe, a better Temple, thou ſhalt live with Angels, and dwel with them, and worſhip with them, thou ſhalt be raiſed up to a Heavenly Court, even to Holy Angels, if thou wilt keep my Courts here below. Thus you ſee what an aſſociation men and Angels have amongſt themſelves, both in this world, and in the world to come.

Well, let us ſee what communion they have with Chriſt as a head. Firſt, ſome ſay that Jeſus Chriſt is a head to them only by way of eminency and external government, becauſe he is the principal and the head of all power, he hath all power in him, therefore, becauſe he governeth them and ruleth them externally, as a King doth his Subjects, in that reſpect they ſay he is only a head.

But, my Brethren, he is a head in a nearer relation to them than ſo. Why? For Firſt, So he is to all Creatures in reſpect of government, all Creatures are ſubject to him.

Again Secondly, The Angels are a part of his Family, (as I ſhewed before.) Now though he that is Maſter of the Family be a Lord to all the things in the houſe, and the Maſter of them all, yet he is a head only to the perſons, for he hath a more near relation to the Perſons in the Family, than he hath to all the goods. God ruleth all the world, he ruleth all the goods belonging to this Family, in Heaven and in Earth, and they are all ſubject unto him, but he is a head of the Perſons in this Family, of which Angels are a part as well as men.

Thirdly, This were to make Chriſt the head of the Angels, as the Papiſts do make the Pope head of the Church, but by external government; certainly he is more than ſo. Nay, it were to make Jeſus Chriſt head of the Angels in Heaven, as the Devil is head of evil Angels and wicked men, by ruling of them only externally. Certainly he is more than ſo, when they are made part of the family, when the Scripture ſaith that he is the head of all Principalities and Powers. Therefore,

In the Second place, He is a head to them by way of ſecret influence of grace and glory. If Jeſus Chriſt be a head, it is fit that he ſhould do ſome thing for them, that they ſhould be beholding to him, that he ſhould not only have that headſhip by virtue of his dignity and excellency, but that they ſhould have ſome benefit, ſome influence ariſing to them from Chriſt, if that thus he ſhall be advanced to be a head over them; for God will never advance Chriſt to be a head over any, but they ſhall have benefit by him.

Firſt, they had their creation by him, Col. 1. 15, 16. The Apoſtle telleth us there, that all things, whether viſible or inviſible, they are all created by him; By him (ſaith he,) were all things created, that are in Heaven, and that are in Earth, (here is the ſame enumeration,) viſible and inviſible (here is Angels and men,) whether they be Thrones or Dominions, or Principalities or Powers, all things were created by him and for him.

Yea, and my Brethren, they were virtually created by him, as ſuppoſed to take man's Nature, for of him, as ſuppoſed to take mans Nature, doth the Apoſtle there ſpeak, who is the Image (ſaith he) of the inviſible God, the Firſtborn of every Creature; which can be aſcribed to Chriſt, no way, but as he is God-man, and ſo all the reſt likewiſe, but I will not ſtand upon that.

In the Second place, He is the common principle of their grace, as well as their being. Epheſ. 1. 23. It is ſaid, that Chriſt filleth all in all, (ſpeaking of him, as he is a head, and as he hath a body,) it is the ſame phraſe that is uſed of God after the day of Judgment. 1 Cor. 15. He ſaith, that God will be all in all, God is all in Angels, and all in men then; ſo is Jeſus Chriſt, he is that univerſal principle of all grace.

And there is this Reaſon for it; For whatſoever hath any thing by way of participation, it is reducible to ſomething that hath it per ſe, of itſelf. The Angels have Grace, but they have it by participation; therefore they are reduced, as well as Men, to ſome thing, to ſome Head, to aliquid primum, which hath Grace in him per ſe; that only Chriſt hath, he only is of himſelf beloved; he only only is the Sun, the Church is the Moon, and the Angels they are the Stars; they are the Morning Stars, as they are called, Job 38. he enlighteneth both the Moon and Stars. But however this may be certainly ſaid, that they were kept from falling by virtue of Jeſus Chriſt to come. In the ſame firſt of the Coloſſians, having reckoned up all things in Heaven and in Earth, as created by him, he addeth, and by him all things conſiſt. Angels and Men are all kept by him, the ſtation they have is in and through the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Serm. X.

And there is this great Reaſon for it; Becauſe to ſtand in Grace and not to fall, is a ſupernatural gift, more than was due to the Angels, as Creatures, though they were never ſo excellent. The Devils fell, the other Angels ſtood; what put the difference? It muſt be ſome ſupernatural Grace. Now Chriſt is the fountain of all Grace, the great beloved, the univerſal principle. Job 4. 18. it is ſaid there, that God charged his Angels with folly; he put no confidence in his Servants. The good Angels, they had a poſſible folly in them, though they had not an actual folly; they might have ſinned, yea, it was impoſſible, being but Creatures, but that they ſhould have a poſſibility to ſin of themſelves, take them as Creatures. They were indeed a houſe of Stone, whereas Man is but a houſe of Clay; how much leſs (ſaith he, verſe 19.) we that dwell in houſes of Clay? but though they were as an houſe of Stone, yet that ſtood upon a Quagmire, the ſhocky weak Will of a Creature. And ſo they were apt to fall without propping. Now, what hath underpropped theſe Creatures that they ſtand? What putteth the difference? It is, becauſe they are united, they are headed in Chriſt, they belong to him, only Chriſt of all Creatures could not ſin; for if that man could have ſinned, there had been a Perſon in the Trinity wanting. The ſecond Perſon muſt have come down from Heaven himſelf, if that Man could have ſinned; for he was united to it, and as the blood is called the Blood of God, ſo the ſin would have been the Sin of God, which would have been Blaſphemy to imagine; He only could not ſin. And the Angels, as they ſtand now, it may be ſaid of them that they are impeccable; they cannot ſin, and they ſhall never ſin to all eternity, becauſe they are underpropped by this Corner-ſtone, that is the Baſis of all parts of the Family both in Heaven and in Earth. It is Jeſus Chriſt that under-props them, both things viſible and inviſible, things in Heaven, and things in Earth.

Now, my Brethren, if they had had no Grace from him at firſt, or had none now, but that which they had only by a Covenant of Creation; yet notwithſtanding, to have this Priviledge annexed to their Grace, That they ſhould never fall as the Devils did, and be out of all danger of ſinning as they did; this is an infinite Priviledge, it is worth their acknowledging Chriſt their Head, if they had no more by him. It is ſaid of Glaſs, that if it could be made a Metal that would not break, it were worth all the Gold and Silver in the World; and therefore it is reported of an Emperour that put a man to death for making of Glaſs that could not be broken, as being an Invention that would ſpoil all the Gold and Silver in the World. My Brethren, the Angels are glorious Veſſels, but they are as Glaſs; what doth Chriſt now? He makes them that they cannot fall, they cannot be broken, and this is more than all their Grace; and this they have from Chriſt, as he is their Head, and as they belong unto him.

Laſtly, They have a happineſs in Chriſt, in ſeeing of him as well as we. I take that to be part of the meaning of that 1 Tim. 3. 16. (I have often wondred at the expreſſion there; I ſhall give you what I think to be the meaning of it,) ſpeaking of Chriſt, and of the great myſtery of Godlineſs in him, ſaith he, God, who was manifeſted in the fleſh, (and there was more of God manifeſted in the fleſh in the perſon of Chriſt, than there is in all Creatures that were made, or poſſibly could be made,) juſtified in the Spirit, (which was ſpoken of his Reſurrection,) ſeen of Angels, preached unto the Gentiles, believed on in the World, received up into glory. Here are two principles, Faith and Viſion; here is Faith attributed to men, they cleave to Chriſt their Head by Faith, believed on in the world. The Angels, they cleave unto him by Viſion, ſeen of Angels; admiring him, with infinite joy looking upon him, as upon their Head; they ſaw more of God manifeſted in that Man Chriſt Jeſus, than they had ſeen in Heaven before. We cleave to him by Faith, they cleave to him by Senſe; that which we ſhall have, for we ſhall ſee him one day as he is, that the Angels do, and are made happy in him; the same eternal life that we have, they have, and this is eternal life, to know God, and to know Jesus Christ, Joh.17.7. their happiness lieth as our happiness, in seeing God Incarnate, in seeing God in the flesh, in seeing God face to face, and his Christ for ever. And so much for the association which the Angels and the Elect have, and shall have one among another, and what communion and relation they have with and to Christ, as a Head.

I will give you but a Caution or two, (which is the third thing I am to do,) and so I will conclude.

The first Caution is this, That Jesus Christ he is only a Head to them, he is not a Redeemer. The expression here, *ver.*7. is not, that he redeemed Angels and Men; No, saith he, In whom we have redemption, We only: but both they and we are gathered to him, as a Head, as the word here signifieth. You know I told you, that there are two sorts of benefits we have by Christ, the one founded upon our relation to his Person, the other founded upon his Merit and Redemption. Now, the benefits that Angels have by him, are not founded so much upon his Redemption, (how far it is, I shall discourse upon the third thing, when I handle this, Hath gathered together all things to himself;) but the benefits they have by him, are founded upon their relation to his Person. That is the first Caution.

The second Caution is this, That it is certain that Jesus Christ is so a Head unto Men, as he is not unto Angels. Though he is a Head both to them and us, and all (both Angels and Men) are gathered together in one head in him, yet he is so a Head to us as not to them. You shall see a wonderful Priviledge that we have, in this same first of the Ephesians, ver.21. (this Chapter holds forth this unto us) for there the Apostle telleth us, that God hath advanced Christ far above all principality and power, and might and dominion, (meaning Angels,) and hath put all things under his feet, and hath given him to be the head over all things to the Church. Here the Church, and his Headship of the Church, is a distinct thing from that relation he beareth to Angels, as here it is mentioned; he hath a superiority over Angels for the good of the Church: he is so a Head to his Church, as not to Angels. I know they are mentioned as well as Men in that verse; But, how are they mentioned? Not that he is the Head of them, as he is of Men, that is not the scope of it; but the scope of this place is only this, That he that is above principalities and powers, is the Head of the Church; he beareth a more special relation to them, than he doth to Principalities and Powers, and is above them in order to his Headship of the Church. Hence it is that the Angels are not called the Members of Christ, you have not such an expression in the whole Book of God. As God is said to be the Head of Christ, 1 *Cor.*11. having an influence into Christ, yet Christ is not a Member of God: So, though the Angels are said to come unto Christ as a Head, and he is their Head, yet Members of him no where you read it; for that is peculiar only to the Saints, to the Elect here on Earth, to the Sons of Men.

I will give you more things wherein we differ from them. Jesus Christ, he is not a Common person, representing them as he represented us, as he did while he was here below; we obeyed in him, we died with him, we rose with him. Not so the Angels; he did not act their part, he was not a Common person to them; therefore they are no where said to be elected in him; but we are said to be elected in him, and he did sustain a Common person while he was here below.

Thirdly, We are Brethren to Christ, and so not the Angels, you have no where that said. I will give you a Scripture or two for it; one is that in *Heb.*2. and the Scripture is exceeding express. The Apostle there goeth to prove, that Jesus Christ took the same Nature with us; How doth he prove it? Because, saith he, *ver.*11. he calleth us Brethren, saying, (he takes a place out of Psal. 18.2.) I will declare thy Name unto my Brethren in the midst of the Church, I will sing praise unto thee. And at *v.*14. For asmuch then as the Children are partakers of flesh and blood, he also himself likewise took part of the same: and *v.*16. For verily, he took not on him the nature of Angels, but he took on him the Seed of Abraham. So that the place is clear and express, that therefore we are Brethren thren to Christ, and Christ to us, he having the same Nature with us; therefore the Angels are no where said to be Adopted Sons to God, as Men are said to be, as not having relation to Christ, as to a Husband, and in that relation being Sons of God. To give you another Scripture for this, *Revel.*19.10. you shall find there, that the Angel indeed calleth himself, fellow-Servant with John; but he doth not call himself, Brother; nay, he doth not call himself Brother, though he mentioneth the Saints as John's Brethren, I am thy fellow-Servant, and of thy Brethren. The like you have *Revel.*22.9. I am thy fellow-Servant, and of thy Brethren, the Prophets, and of them which keep the Sayings of this Book. The Saints of God are Brethren one to another, and unto Jesus Christ. They are but their fellow-Servants. Serm. X.

Much less are they the Spouse of Christ, much less have they the relation of a Wife to him as a Husband; this is proper to the Headship of Christ over Believers. *Eph.*5.23. The husband is the head of the wife, as Christ is the head of the Church, and the Saviour of the body. He is not a Saviour of the Angels in a way of Redemption, for he speaks of the Church which hath spots and wrinkles in it, as *ver.*27. The Church is the Queen, the Angels are but his Guard round about his Throne, *Revel.*5.11.

I will give you one Caution more. Though they have not these relations to Christ, yet they have the relation of Servants, and Servants are a part of the Family. The Family you know, is usually made up of Servants and Sons and the Wife. Now the relation of Sons and the relation of Wife, this the Sons of Men bear unto God and unto Christ, and of being Brethren too unto; but the Angels are but Servants sent out. They are his Angels, and indeed in that respect he is called their Father and their Head, as the Master is called the Father of the Servants, 2 Kings 5.3. So I have exprest to you, what association the Angels have with Jesus Christ, and one with another.

I will make some Uses of what hath been delivered, and give you some Observations, and so end this great Point.

You heard how that All things are the elect of Angels and Men, which God summeth up in Christ. The first Observation then is this, See what reckoning God putteth upon things, he calleth his elect Children, Angels and Men, All things; he looks upon all things else as nothing, they are of no esteem, they have no value with him. They are God's All that belong to Christ, both Angels and Men, and the rest are the Devils, as I said; therefore you know the Scripture calleth Souls that are damned, lost; they are not, *Psal.*77. The men whom thou remembrest no more. God makes no reckoning of them, he accounts them not. The things in Heaven and in Earth that belong to Christ, they are the All things, they are the choice of all, they are the First-fruits, as they are called, *Jam.*1.18. Observ. 1.

Let us therefore, if we would have a Being, get into Christ; let us gather our selves to that Head. You are lost else, you are of no reckoning with God, nor shall not be to all eternity.

A second Observation is this; Have we this association with Angels? Shall we be as Angels hereafter? Let us live as Angels now. We must live with Angels for ever, we must be made like to them, we are come with them unto one Head, Christ. Be as Angels now. Observ. 2.

And, my Brethren, let it be one Motive to you to keep you from sinning. If Men were by, you would not sin. Think with your selves, Angels may be by while I am sinning, whom I am gathered unto, and with whom I must live for ever. 1 *Tim.*5.21. what is the meaning there, I charge thee before God, and his elect Angels. He chargeth him, that he should not in the execution and exercise of Government in the Church, be partial. I charge thee before God, he seeth thee; and before the Lord Jesus Christ, he sees thee; and the elect Angels, some or other of them see thee too. What is the reason of this? If that Angels did not see, and were not Witnesses, many of them, or some of them, of Mens carriages; why should this charge be laid upon Timothy? I charge thee before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, and the elect Angels, that thou observe these things, without preferring one before another, doing nothing by partiality.

Observe

Serm. X. Observ. 3. Observe again in the Third place, from what hath been delivered, That the Saints are nearer unto Christ than Angels are, (as I told you before;) he is so a Head to men, as he is not to them. Both their Union and ours with God, it is by Christ; now, if we be more united to Christ than they are, then we are more nearly united to God too; more nearly united to Christ we are, for he is our Brother, he hath our Nature, he hath more of ours, he hath done more for us; we are Sons by Adoption in him, he is our Husband. To which of all the Angels was it said, that Christ is their Husband? Of which of all the Angels is it said, that Christ is their Saviour? The Church of God, is the Queen; the Angels, they are our Guardians. We belong both to one Family, we are Worshippers together; yet you shall find in *Revel.*5. 9. where the Church is described, that the Angels, they are farther off from the Throne, than the four and twenty Elders; and the like you have *Rev.*9.9, 10,11.

SER-

Serm. XI.

SERMON XI.

EPHES. I. 10.

That in the diſpenſation of the fulneſs of time, he might gather together in one all things in Chriſt, both which are in Heaven, and which are on Earth, even in him.

THe Coherence of theſe words I have formerly ſhewed you, to be a relation unto what is ſaid juſt before, He had purpoſed in himſelf. What was it he purpoſed in himſelf, but this (as the words may be truly read) to gather together in one all things in Chriſt? I told you my thoughts were, that the Apoſtle did here, (having ſpoken of God's decrees, of Election in Chriſt, and Redemption in Chriſt, &c.) in the concluſion of the Doctrinal part of his diſcourſe, give you the ſum of all God's purpoſes in himſelf, both towards Chriſt and us; and he expreſſeth it in this, that it was to gather all things in one, in Chriſt, both which are in Heaven, and which are on Earth.

The great thing to be opened, (which I have made entrance into) is, what is meant here by gathering together in one, which ſeemeth to be the adequate deſign and project of God's heart towards Chriſt and us for ever, and comprehenſively to contain all under it.

That by All things in Heaven and all things on Earth, Angels and Men are meant, I ſhewed the laſt time. I told you the word ἀνακεφαλαιώσασθαι implieth firſt, a ſumming up of many numbers into one. I gave you an account of this.

God intending to ſum up all things in Heaven and in Earth, in Chriſt, he ſummeth up firſt all things in Heaven and in Earth in Chriſt's Perſon, as the foundation of the other ſumming up of a myſtical Body too.

All ſorts of diviſions God ſummed up in Chriſt. God and the Creature firſt, he caſt them up into one ſum; for he made God and the Creature one Perſon.

He takes, in the Second place, (whereas he had two reaſonable Creatures, Angels and Men) the Nature of a man and uniteth it unto God; and the condition of an Angel, (for that is his due too.) That Man, (if he be united unto God) is called, The Heavenly man; he is not an Earthly man, nor to be an Earthly man, though for our ſins he took frail fleſh; but that which is his due, is to be a Man, and like an Angel for condition. He ſummeth up the condition of things in Heaven, and the Nature of Men on Earth, in his own Perſon.

Then come down to Earth, and there you have Jew and Gentile; he ſum'd up both in Chriſt, for Chriſt came of both. Jew and Gentile, all the World, Chriſt and all, had the very ſame Great Grand-fathers, thoſe Ten men that were from Adam to Noah. Thus he ſummed up all in his Perſon.

When he had done, he ſummeth up of all a Body to him anſwerable to his Perſon; or rather a Church, a City of the living God, a Family to him, (as the Scripture expreſſeth it.) He takes of all things in Heaven, and of all things in Earth, and he makes them up unto Chriſt, as a Head, one Body.

That Chriſt was the Head of Angels, I ſhewed in the laſt diſcourſe: That there is an Aſſociation between Angels and the Saints, I ſhewed likewiſe; and this, under Chriſt, as a Head. All theſe particulars I have largely opened; I ſhall not ſtand to repeat them. Only there is one thing, which I added not in the laſt diſcourſe, concerning that of Angels; and that is this, Why it is ſaid all things in Heaven? You know, when we ſay all things on Earth, it is all ſorts of Men, all ranks of Men upon Earth. Is there any ſeveral ſorts of Angels in Heaven?

Serm. XI.

My Brethren, for certain there are several ranks of them; what they are we cannot define, but that there are several ranks of them, that known place, and many others might be brought. Coloss 1.16. By him were all things created, that are in Heaven, and that are in Earth, visible and invisible; whether they be Thrones or Dominions, or Principalities or Powers. The Angels, they are called Principalities and Powers, that we have an express place for in this first Chapter of the Ephesians, *ver.*21. He set him at his own right hand in the heavenly places, far above all Principalities and Power, and Might and Dominion, and every Name that is named; not only in this world, but also in that which is to come. He expresseth these several ranks of Angels, (for there is Acies ordinata of them,) by the ranks that are here on Earth, by way of similitude, so to convey it to our apprehensions. Some he saith are Thrones; Thrones importeth Kingly power, as we read in Daniel; He was the first of the Princes, speaking of one of the Angels; and likewise we read of an Arch-Angel. Some he saith are Dominions, which are as Vice-Roys; and Principalities, which among men were Governours of Provinces; and Powers, which were ordinary lower Magistrates. He expresseth it by these ranks, not that there are but four, or how many we know not; but he conveyeth what is in Heaven to us, by what is on Earth. Now of all these sorts of Angels, he hath taken some, (as perhaps of all these Angels, some fell; as of all sorts of things in Earth, some are gathered to Satan;) but of all sorts of things on Earth, he gathereth some to Christ, and so in Heaven too. So much for that.

Dan. 10 13.

Now I must come to shew, That he hath gathered all things on Earth to him. That which I handled in the last discourse, was but the gathering to a Head (as the word signifieth) of all things in Heaven, with things on Earth. Now God hath taken all sorts of Men on Earth, and meaneth to make out of them a Body unto Christ: And therefore he expresseth it by the word τὰ πάντα, All things; because he takes all sorts of things and conditions whatsoever: therefore he expresseth it, I say, rather by Things than by Persons, as implying all conditions of men.

The first great division upon Earth, what is it? It is both of Jew and Gentile. He will take of both these. (I shall not need to prove it, for I shall meet with it again and again in opening of this place.) In the very next words to my Text, (which therefore argueth that to be his meaning,) he speaks of the calling of the Jews first, at the 12*th* Verse, That we should be to the praise of his glory, who first trusted in Christ; there is the Jews: In whom ye also trusted, (verse 13.) after that ye heard the word of truth; there is the Gentile. It is a thing I must often speak to, therefore I will speak little to it now.

Come to the Gentiles; they are divided we know into many Nations, which God hath made here upon Earth. God takes, first and last, of all the Nations upon the Earth, to make up a Body to his Son Christ. In Gen. 18. 18. there is a Promise made to Abraham, that in his Seed all the Nations of the Earth shall be blessed. The like you have, *Chap.*22. repeated again, (for you have two places for it.) And in *Prov.*8. it is said, the delights of Christ were in the habitable parts of his Earth, so the expression is *ver.*31. Whereever God hath Earth inhabited, there Jesus Christ hath some from everlasting, whom he did delight in, and shall do to everlasting.

Then come to Nations, and there you have several Kindreds. Now go, take all the Kindreds of Men, that continue from the beginning of the World unto the end, God will take of all Families and Kindreds too. You shall find, that the Promise made to Abraham, as it runneth, that all Nations shall be blessed in him, so it runneth, that all Families of the Earth shall be blessed in him too; and as Peter interpreteth it, all Father-hoods: so the expression is Acts 3.25. In Gen. 12.3. In thee shall all the Families of the Earth be blessed. The like you have *Gen.*28.14. Twice it is said, that all Nations shall be blessed in Abraham, and in his Seed; and twice it is said, all Families shall be blessed, that is, all Kindreds shall be blessed in him and his Seed.

Then there are other Divisions besides: There are several sorts and ranks of Sinners. God hath excepted but one; and what is that one? Those that on Earth become the Serpents Seed, and so joyn issues with Hell; those that sin against againſt the Holy Ghoſt, and have the venom of this ſin in their Spirits, of revenge againſt God, ſuch as the Devil hath: except thoſe God takes of all ſorts. It is a known place, Matt. 12.31. He, through whoſe hands all the Pardons of the World goes, Jeſus Chriſt, that ſtands at the ſealing of them, ſaith, that all manner of ſin and blaſphemy ſhall be forgiven unto men. He doth not only ſay, it may be forgiven, but he expreſly ſaith, it ſhall be forgiven. God hath ſo ordered it, that as all Mankind ſhall fall into all ſorts of ſin; ſo ſhall ſome of his Elect do, ſome into ſome, and ſome into another: that you can inſtance in no ſin, or way of ſinning, or aggravation of ſinning, which ſhall not be pardoned to ſome of the Sons of men. Serm. XI.

Then go, take all ranks, (there are other diviſions yet,) take all ranks of Poor and Rich, Kings and Nobles, Wiſe and Fools; God takes of all theſe. He takes of Fools, as he ſaith, Iſai. 35.8. Though a fool, he ſhall not erre in that way. Natural fools, God takes ſome of them, and teacheth them to know Chriſt. Pray (ſaith he) for Kings, and all in Authority; for God would have all men to be ſaved, all ſorts of ranks. 1 Tim. 2.

See now, my Brethren, of whom the Church Univerſal conſiſteth, and ſee the glory and ſplendor of it: All things in Heaven, and all things on Earth; all Nations, all Families, all Kindreds; whatſoever diviſions you can make. You have it, Revel. 5.9. and likewiſe Rev. 7. where the Church Univerſal is repreſented, perhaps under a particular way; yet, I ſay, you ſhall find it repreſented there. Firſt, in the 5*th* Chapter, the four Beaſts and the four and twenty Elders, they cry unto Chriſt, they give glory unto him; for (ſay they) thou waſt ſlain, and haſt redeemed us unto God by thy blood; out of every kindred, (there is Families,) and Tongue, and People, and Nation. And all things in Heaven come in too, ver. 11. And I heard the voice of many Angels round about the Throne. You have the like words, Chap. 7. ver. 19. I beheld, and lo a great multitude, which no man could number, of all Nations, and Kindred, and People, and Tongues, ſtood before the Throne and before the Lamb. And ver. 11. All the Angels ſtood round about the Throne, and about the Elders. The Angels come in too. Men are nearer the Throne; for if you obſerve it, the Angels do ſtand about the Elders. Men are nearer, becauſe (as I ſaid before) they have a nearer relation to Chriſt; he is in ſuch a way a Head to them, as he is not to Angels. Obſerv. 1.

This (my Brethren) is the glory and the ſplendor of this Univerſal Church, of the Body of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. And what ſhould this teach us, by way of Uſe and Obſervation, but to long for that day when we ſhall all meet thus together; when God will bring men out of all parts of the Earth, where thou ſhalt meet with ſome of thy kindred, ſome of thy Nation, ſome that have been juſt ſuch Sinners as thou art? What a glorious day will that be! We account it a glorious day, when the fulneſs of the Gentiles ſhall come in, and Jew and Gentile ſhall make up one Sheepfold, and Chriſt be one Shepherd: and it will be a glorious day indeed. But the day that is to come, whenas Chriſt ſhall have all his Children about him; when God-Man, in whom all things are ſummed up in his Perſon for excellency; and when Men and Angels and all ſhall be gathered up to him, that have been from the beginning of the World to the end of it, when that general Aſſembly ſhall be full and compleat; and he ſhall not want, no not the leaſt joynt, the leaſt Member. What a glorious day will this be, when God hath all his Sons about him! He forbeareth now opening the fulneſs of his Glory, becauſe he hath not all his Sons about him; but when he hath them all about him, then he will bring forth all his Riches, all the Treaſures of his Glory: As you know Ahaſuerus did, when he had the Princes of the Provinces before him in his great Palace. He was King of an hundred twenty ſeven Provinces; and the Text ſaith, He ſate on the Throne of his Kingdom, which was in Shuſan the Palace; and he made a Feaſt to all his Princes and his Servants, the power of Perſia and Media, the Nobles and Princes of the Provinces being before him. It ſeems it was a great occaſion, whether to ſhew the greatneſs of his glory, or for what other end he calleth them up, they were all before him, and then he makes a Feaſt, ſuch a Feaſt as never was read of. So, when God ſhall have all the Princes of the Earth, the Firſt-born before him; when Men ſhall come from the Eaſt, and from the Weſt, and ſit down with Abra- Heſt. 1.2.

Serm. XI.

ham, Iſaac, and Jacob in his Kingdom; then will God Feaſt, then will he bring forth all his Glory, and empty himſelf for ever.

Therefore (my Brethren) long for this day, and let your hearts ſeek to be one of this number, not to be left out of this All. For your encouragement herein conſider this, (which is a ſecond Obſervation,) that no condition can be ſaid to be any hindrance to you from being in Chriſt. Thou canſt object nothing againſt thy ſelf, neither poverty, nor folly, nor want of memory and underſtanding, nor weakneſs, not ſinfulneſs. I ſay there is nothing at all thou canſt object againſt thy ſelf, which may hinder thy ſalvation. Why? Becauſe God takes all ſorts of things on Earth. Thou canſt ſay nothing of thy ſelf, but that there are ſome whom God hath ſaved juſt like thee. There is no difference (ſaith he, *Rom.*3.22.) he juſtifieth freely by his grace. There is no difference; take a Beggar and a King, they have the ſame ſhadow in the Sun. Alas, Sins (my Brethren) they make no difference, the greatneſs or the ſmalneſs of them, to hinder ſalvation. Mountains, they bear no proportion, no more than Mole-hills to the Heavens, they are ſo high. If one were in the Heavens, the Earth would ſeem as a round Globe; Mountains would not be ſeen no more than Mole-hills are.

Again, in the third place, You may ſee here the infinite goodneſs of God to all, that he takes of all ſorts of things, of all ſorts of ranks; of Angels in Heaven, he takes of all things there; of all ſorts of things on Earth, in all their ſeveral varieties. This is a great reſpect God hath to his Creation, in that he will do ſo. He created and made all things, and he made them all by Jeſus Chriſt, and therefore he ſhall have the Firſt-fruits of every one, and of every ſort of thing. I take it to be part of the meaning, though not all, of that, *Epheſ.*3. where ſpeaking of this Myſtery, that all men (ſaith he, *ver.*9.) ſhould ſee the fellowſhip of the Myſtery, (having ſpoken of the Calling of the Jew and Gentile before, *ver.*8.) that Myſtery which from the beginning of the World hath been hid in God. What cometh in afterward? Who created all things by Jeſus Chriſt. He made all things by him (ſaith he,) and therefore he will ſave of all ſorts by him. He hath reſpect to the whole Creation; he will have ſome of all ſorts in it. Therefore Acts 10.34. when they ſaw that God did ſave the Gentiles as well as Jews; what concluſion do they make out of it? Then Peter opened his mouth and ſaid, of a truth I perceive that God is no reſpecter of Perſons; but in every Nation, he that feareth him and worketh righteouſneſs, is accepted of him. And there is another reaſon intimated in the next verſe following, *ver.*36. The word (ſaith he) which God ſent unto the Children of Iſrael, preaching peace by Jeſus Chriſt, he is Lord of all. Is he Lord of all? He will ſave of all ſorts by him.

God, as he hateth nothing that he hath made, as it is his Creature: ſo he will ſhew the freeneſs of his Grace, by ſaving all varieties of his Creatures. For therein lieth the freeneſs of his Grace, that no condition ſhall hinder. I conclude with that which the Apoſtle concludeth (Rom. 11.) all the Doctrinal part of his Epiſtle. He had ſhewed, that Jews and Gentiles were both corrupt, in *Chap.*2, and 3. He had ſhewed that God would ſave both of Jew and Gentile, in Chap. 9. 10, and 11. How concludeth he? Verſe 30. of that 11*th Chapter*, As you in time paſt (ſpeaking to the Gentiles, they take their turns) have not believed God; yet have now obtained mercy through their unbelief: Even ſo have theſe alſo (ſpeaking of the Jews) now not believed, that through your mercy they alſo might obtain mercy, that both they and you might have mercy together; for God hath concluded (it is tranſlated Them; but the word τὰ πάντα, is) All, Jew and Gentile, in unbelief, that he might have mercy upon all. And upon this he doth (as we all ſhould do;) O the depth of the riches, both of the wiſdom and knowledge of God, (and mercy too;) how unſearchable are his Judgments, and his ways paſt finding out?

So much now for that part of gathering a body out of all ſorts of things on Earth and things in Heaven. I have ſhewed you, in opening theſe words, firſt, that God hath ſummed up all in Chriſt, he caſt up all as into one number in his Perſon; which was the firſt ſignification of the words. He gathereth all things, both in Heaven and on Earth, as a Church, as a Family to him, as unto one Head; that the word likewiſe ſignifieth.

There

Serm. XI.

There is a third thing that is to be added to the ſignification of this word, there is ἀνὰ, that he doth this again; there is a gathering together under one Head again the ſecond time; ſo the word ſignifieth. This ſame ἀνακεφαλαιώσασθαι (as I remember Biſhop Andrews in a Sermon upon this Text hath it) ſaith he, the force of it is not only to ſignifie a collection, a gathering of all; but it is a recollection. It is true our Tranſlators took not notice of it, they tranſlate it ſimply, gather together in one; but all know that the word ſignifieth again; to gather together again under one Head.

Now this gathering together again may import two things. Firſt, a gathering a ſecond time of all things in Heaven, and in Earth. Secondly, it doth imply a ſcattering firſt; that he doth after his firſt gathering of them, ſcatter all apieces as it were, ſevereth them one from another, and from himſelf. They are like members disjecta, like members rent and ſeparated from their head; and then he gathereth them all together again, ἀνακεφαλαιώσασθαι importeth recollectionem, they were ſcattered from Chriſt, and ſo gathered again to him, as to a Head.

Againſt this Interpretation there is this great rubb in the way; that the Angels, the things in Heaven, they never were ſcattered: why ſhould they be ſaid to be gathered together again, with all things on Earth, unto Chriſt as a Head? Therefore Interpreters have been exceeding ſhy of interpreting, All things in Heaven, to be meant of Angels. I muſt firſt remove this rubb, it is the main difficulty.

There are two interpretations that may help to remove it. The firſt is this, That although both things in Heaven, and things on Earth, were not both ſcattered; yet if things on Earth were, it may be ſaid to be a gathering together of all: take them altogether in ſenſu compoſito, though not in ſenſu diviſo. Some explain it by this ſimilitude: Suppoſe two Nations were united under one Monarch, and one of them falls off, and turn all Rebels unto him, and rend themſelves away from that other Nation with which they were at Peace and Union under that one Head. As when thoſe Seven Provinces revolted from the Spaniard, there were Ten remained ſtill firm unto. If ever theſe Seventeen (the Seven and the Ten) unite themſelves together again, and ſubject themſelves, as before, to him as their Head and Monarch, and lay down hoſtility againſt him; it might be ſaid that here is a gathering of them all, a reducing of them all to their former obedience, though but one part fell off. This is a ſimilitude that one giveth of it to explain it. The like you find in Calvin. Suppoſe you find (ſaith he) a houſe, a great part whereof were fallen down, and ſome ſtood ſtill; if that part that is faln be built up again, the whole houſe is ſaid to be rebuilt. So it is here. And this is the firſt interpretation to reconcile this difficulty; that becauſe men were ſcattered, that part of the houſe on Earth, the family on Earth, were ſcattered from him, which were once joyned unto him, unto one head, unto Chriſt, (God united all, Angels and Men unto him) yet now being gathered together again, all is ſaid to be gathered together in one unto him.

There is a Second which I do find, that both Calvin and others have, and is more hard to explain; I will do it as clearly and as briefly as I can. I ſhall expreſs my meaning perhaps in ſomewhat a differing way from theirs, yet it comes all to one. And it is this: That even of the Angels themſelves, there is a double knitting of them unto God. Firſt a common that they and the Devils (created once holy) had, and that Adam in innocency, and all mankind in him had in common together. And the other is a ſpecial Union unto God, and that by Chriſt. So that though there was not an actual ſcattering of them from that firſt Union of theirs, but that alſo held and continued firm; yet it was prevented by a further Union, by a gathering of them in one in Chriſt, as their Head, unto God, that did fix them for ever to ſtand firm unto him.

I may expreſs it unto you well thus, That God to magnifie his Grace the more, both his glorifying Grace to Angels and Men, and ſupernatural Grace to ſtand for ever, (which is a ſupernatural Grace) he did ordain (to exalt this Grace) two ſeveral knittings, two Unions and Communions of his Creatures (made holy at firſt) to himſelf: whereof the firſt was not ſure not ſtedfaſt, nor would not perhaps have held to Eternity; they would have dropped off one after another, if God had ham, Iſaac, and Jacob in his Kingdom; then will God Feaſt, then will he bring forth all his Glory, and empty himſelf for ever.

Therefore (my Brethren) long for this day, and let your hearts ſeek to be one of this number, not to be left out of this All. For your encouragement herein conſider this, (which is a ſecond Obſervation,) that no condition can be ſaid to be any hindrance to you from being in Chriſt. Serm. XI.

had let things go on ſo, there would have been a perpetual hazard of the Angels departing and ſcattering from him: The things on Earth they actually fell from him, the other were in danger, and therefore God to make all faſt and ſure, ordaineth a ſecond Union, and a gathering together again in Chriſt.

To explain both theſe knittings to God (it will, as I ſaid it would, contain the whole deſign of God both of Creation andthe inſtauration of the Creature in Chriſt, and Redemption and what ever elſe;) To explain I ſay this double knitting to God, this knitting the firſt time, and knitting again, I ſhall do theſe two things. I ſhall firſt ſhew you, what Union at firſt in common, the good Angels, and thoſe that are now bad,and man, and all had with God. And then Secondly, the neceſſity of a further Union for their perpetual and everlaſting ſtanding in Grace, and their enjoying their full Glory in Heaven.

For the firſt, to ſhew what this ſame firſt Union and gathering of all Creatures both in Heaven and on Earth, in common, was. It was by their Creation and the Covenant thereof: that Covenant that paſſeth between God merely as a Creator, unto them as his Creatures, which was common both to good Angels that ſtand, and them that fell, and man in his innocency who alſo fell. Now, my Brethren, this you muſt know, that although Man was created on Earth, and the Angels created in Heaven, in a higher condition of knowing and enjoying God; yet ſo as take them merely as creatures, and as a Covenant ſhall paſs between God the Creator,and them,they are both under the ſame Law of Nature, ſo as they may fall from their condition as well as man; and there was no Law either of Nature or Juſtice between God and the Creature, could any way oblige God to uphold and to maintain them; thus ſlippery was the firſt Union, ſimply conſidered as creatures.I need not ſtand to ſhew you how bothAngels and Men were at firſt united to God. Adam he is called the Son of God, *Luk.*3. ult. by creation. And the Angels they are called the Sons of God, as they were firſt made, when they were holy and ſtanding holy, Job. 38. 7. United then they were both to God.

And in the Second place, although we cannot ſay that there was a perfect aſſociation between Angels and Men, then in the ſtae t of innocency, as now under the ſtate of Grace there is (which I ſhewed you before) and ſhall be for ever; but that Angels ſhould remain in their Heaven, and Man ſhould have remained on his Earth: The firſt Man (ſaith he) is of the Earth earthly; he ſpeaks of Man at beſt. I am not of the mind of ſome of thoſe Modern Divines that have ſaid,that the Sin of the Angels was this,that God did ſend them down upon Earth to attend Man; this they ſtomached, and tempted Man to ſin, and that was their Sin. There is no ground of that at all, to think that under the Law of Nature, the elder ſhould ſerve the younger; it is a priviledge we have by Chriſt, they are his Miniſtring Spirits, ſent forth to miniſter for them, that ſhall be the heirs of Salvation,Heb.1.14.Yet concerning the aſſociation of both then,we may ſay this; That it is moſt certain,that the ſame things whereby Adam knew God, by the ſame things did they know God; though alſo in a further degree,and in a higher meaſure. And therefore, as before I ſaid, there was an aſſociation both of Angels and Men in this reſpect, that Angels themſelves do pry into the things of the Goſpel, and ſo are preſent to our Aſſemblies; ſo likewiſe in this reſpect, both Angels and Man then had a kind of Aſſociation in this, that the Angels themſelves took in the Glory of God from things here below. They rejoyced when they ſaw the World made, when they ſaw God to limn out the World, and fill up that firſt Draught of the Chaos as he did, and when he brought Man in the Lord of all. That you have an expreſs place for, Job 38.7. He ſaith, That when the foundations of the Earth were laid, the Angels (that were created the firſt day with the Heavens) they ſhouted for joy. The Morning Stars (ſaith he) ſang together, and all the Sons of God ſhouted for joy. They are called the Morning Stars, becauſe they began early to glorifie God, they were Matutina, and they are called Sons of God, it is ſaid they all ſhouted for joy; and if they ſhouted for joy when theFoundations of the Earth were laid,certainly then when Man was made: they ſtood by as Spectators to ſee God (I ſay) limn out the World, and perfect it in Man's Creation. So that though Man ſhould not have known, nor knew things from Heaven; yet they knew things on Earth, and therefore in that reſpect there was ſome kind of fellowſhip, they partaking of the ſame things that we did, though not we, that they did. Serm. XI.

And then again, if there were not a Fellowſhip, nor ever ſhould have been (and we have no ground at all to think ſo that I know of;) yet this is certain, there was a peace amongſt them, in theſe two Kingdoms of God, of which he was Monarch and Lord, though they remained diſtinct and divided; yet notwithſtanding they were at peace, they were not at hoſtility, they were gathered in peace under one Lord then, both Men and Angels, and ſo united unto God; and they did glory in the good of Man certainly, as they ſung at the Birth of Chriſt, Peace on Earth, and good will towards men; they ſhouted when Man was made, if they ſhouted when the Foundations of the Earth were laid. So that you ſee there was a common Union, both to God, and ſome way among themſelves, there was a Peace at leaſt.

But you will ſay unto me, This firſt Union, was this in Chriſt? The word [again] you will urge will imply ſo much, they are gathered again to a Head in one in Chriſt; was he the Head then both of Angels and Men in Creation?

For that I anſwer Firſt, It was not abſolutely neceſſary (though the force of the word will hold.) They were gathered unto one Head, God; for in the 1 Cor. 11.3. you ſhall find that God is called the Head of Chriſt, and ſo of all things elſe, of all Men and Angels; he is the Supream Head of all, above the reſt. They were gathered unto one Head, God, that is certain then. But that they ſhould be gathered firſt unto Jeſus Chriſt, as a Head, as God-Man, that is not neceſſary. It is true that the ſecond gathering is in him, as a Head.

Yet in the Second place, there is much in the current of the Scripture (which I ſhall have, ſometime or other, opportunity to alledge) that even Jeſus Chriſt was the Corner-ſtone of the Creation, both to Men and Angels. If he would not have been a Creature, God would not have made a Creature elſe: the meaning of it is not as if that he ſhould have been incarnate, if Man had never faln; but that neither Men nor Angels ſhould have been made, if Chriſt had not been to have been incarnate, which was at once ordained together with him. I could name many places for it. *Rev.*3.14. ſpeaking of Chriſt, Theſe things ſaith the Amen, the faithful and true Witneſs, the beginning of the Creation of God. You have the like, *Coloſ.*1. He reckoneth up all the uſes of God-Man, and he ſaith, *ver.*16. That by him all things were created, viſible and inviſible, (there is the firſt gathering unto him,) and then, ver. 18, 19. he ſpeaks of reconciling all things in Heaven and on Earth, which is the ſecond gathering, and the ſame with that in the Text.

But then another Queſtion will be this. Was Jeſus Chriſt the Head of the Creation? What Sripture is there for that?

For that I will give you but this place, 1 *Cor.*11.3. &c. Saith he, I would have you know (for perhaps it was a thing they did not ſo much conſider) That the Head of every man is Chriſt, the Head of the woman is the man, and the Head of Chriſt is God. He ſpeaks of Chriſt as God-Man; for ſo only God is ſaid to be his head. He doth not only ſay, he is the head of the elect Angels and Men, but of every man, and that by the Law of Creation: for as the Man by Creation is the head of the Woman, ſo is Jeſus Chriſt the head of the Man; therefore *ver.*8,9. ſaith he, The man was not created for the woman, but the woman for the man. He ſpeaks of Creation expreſly. So we elſewhere read, All things were created by Chriſt, and for Chriſt, that is, by vertue of him. For as he was the Lamb ſlain from the beginning of the World, that he might redeem it, (as he did thoſe that were before he was incarnate;) ſo vertually he might have an influence into the Creation alſo, he being to be incarnate.

So now (my Brethren) you ſee the firſt gathering how it was. But then you will ſay, if he was their head in Creation (there is this difficulty yet,) why did they not then ſtand? Why did not he preſerve them, being their head, by virtue of being the head of the Creation alſo?

The

Serm. XI.

The Anſwer to that is eaſy, and it is this; He was their head by creation, but in a common Relation, but by way of Eminency, as being the chief of the Creation of God, and as the Lord and Heir of all, in a natural way, by a natural due; and therefore notwithſtanding it was his due, thus to be their head, it went no further; he left them to the courſe of Nature. But now his being a head a ſecond time, in this ſecond gathering, it is by a ſpecial Protection, undertaking to preſerve them in a more peculiar manner, and that in a ſupernatural way, to beſtow ſupernatural glory, and if they fall, to Redeem them, as he did the Sons of men. So that now, by a natural due of his, he was the head in Creation; by a ſpecial undertaking, by a ſpecial Protection, (as I may ſo expreſs it,) he becometh a head in the ſecond gathering: and therefore he will be ſure now to hold them faſt enough. Thus you ſee, what this firſt gathering in Chriſt was; you have that explained, as briefly and as plainly as poſſible I could.

We come now to the neceſſity of a ſecond gathering, both of Angels and men. Still the difficulty will be on the Angels part, of men (you know they falling,) there is no difficulty at all about them.

To repreſent this neceſſity unto you, my Brethren, it is thus in a word. All things, Angels and men, though they were by the common tie of Creation being made holy, knit unto God; yet only by no other term of Juſtice or Union, no ſtronger than what was ſimply due to the Creature as the Creature, and as it was meet for God as a Creator, to carry himſelf towards the Creature. It was not ultra debitum, beyond the due of the Creature, as the School-men expreſs it. Now, therefore it was not a due to the Creature, nor no Obligation by the Law of Creation, that was between God and the Creature, that he muſt uphold it; but that he might leave it to ſhew itſelf, what it was to be a Creature. What therefore aſſiſtance he giveth to uphold and to confirm in grace and perpetually to ſtand, it is above the bargain, above the Covenant of Creation, above the Obligation of Nature; it is wholly ſupernatural, and it is of grace, it is more than Natures due. So that (as I ſaid before,) though the Angels themſelves were created in Heaven, as man upon Earth; yet they ſtood by the ſame common Law, and no otherwiſe, that man did upon Earth. It is true indeed, this of the Angels, they had ſtronger Natures, and were built of ſtronger matter, and ſo were leſs ſubject to fall, they were more able to ſtand; yet ſtill, if left but to the meer aſſiſtance, that by the Covenant of Nature God was to give them, though in Heaven, they would fall as well as man. See a Scripture for this, wherein Angels and men are compared together; Job. 4. 18. It is a Scripture, which in this Argument Divines have recourſe unto, and I ſhall have recourſe unto it afterward. Behold (ſaith he,) he put no truſt in his Servants, his Angels he charged with folly, how much leſs on them that dwel in Houſes of clay? Comparing men and Angels together, ſaith he, the Angels had two advantages, they were firſt by nature made of ſtronger ſtuff; alas, man he dwels in a Houſe of Clay, a Houſe of Cards, that is eaſily tumbled or blown down, but they are built of a Houſe of Marble, that is ſtronger and abler to ſtand. Secondly, they had this advantage, that they were God's ſervants in a more peculiar manner; ſo they are called his, becauſe they were his Servants about his Throne, at Court; Man was his Subject, but they were his Houſhold Servants then in a more peculiar manner, and therefore nearer God. Yet notwithſtanding theſe Advantages, ſaith he, God could put no confidence in them, he could put no truſt in them, and he had a great deal of reaſon not to truſt them, for you know how a great part of things on Earth ſerved him when they fell. He chargeth them that fell with folly, with damnable folly, he ſpared them not, for he laid the guilt of ſin upon them, and threw them down to Hell, as Peter ſaith, and he chargeth the other with poſſible folly, as I ſhall ſhew anon.

So that you ſee by the Law of Creation, (for it is the Law which he diſputeth there; ſhall a man be more pure than his maker? It is the words immediately before, in the 17*th.* verſe: He bringeth it in indeed to another purpoſe; yea, but take God as he is a Maker, the one as the Clay, the other as the Potter,) he is no way obliged to make them ſtand as they are of themſelves, but they are Creatures

Creatures that are not ſtable, (as the word ſignifieth, and as ſome Tranſlations have it.) You ſee then the Angels, (and there was ſufficient proof for it,) that by that Law, wherein they were firſt gathered to God, by that knot, by that Covenant, it was too ſlippery, God could put no truſt in them, all the Angels might have ſerved him as the Devils did. Serm. XI.

Again, There is this infallible reaſon, for it is an inſeparable property of the Creature by an eſſential defect that cleaveth to it, that it is mutable, it is changeable, and may be tempted to ſin. I call it a property of the Creature, for in James 1. ver. 13. and 17. compared together, you ſhall find that it is made the property of God alone to be immutable and without ſhadow of turning.

Now then, my Brethren, you ſee that for theſe Angels, if God would be ſure of them, if he would put confidence in them, there muſt be ſome further knitting of them to him, by ſome further Covenant, ſome further medium, by ſome higher Law than this, meerly of Creation, that paſt between them as Creatures, and him as their Creator. There needed therefore a ſecond gathering. Out of this that hath been ſaid, you ſee then, that although they were not actually ſcattered, yet they were in danger, they had need therefore be fixed in a head, they are Glaſſes, and they had need of a bottom, which might keep them from falling; and theſe Morning Stars, the Lord Jeſus Chriſt had need hold them in his hand, or they may fall down from Heaven as Lucifer that great Devil did. They needed ſupernatural grace to confirm them, it is not their due by Nature, it is not their due by Creation: And by whom ſhould they have this Grace? By whom ſhould they have this Protection? Why, from him whoſe Miniſtring Spirits they are; his Miniſtring Spirits, he calleth them ſo, becauſe he hath a ſpecial intereſt in them; they are not our Miniſtring Spirits, it is no where ſaid ſo, they are ſent indeed for our good, but they are his Miniſtring Spirits, he hath a proper intereſt and title in them; he is the Fountain of Grace, and every thing that hath any thing by participation, is reduced to that which hath it of it ſelf. Now the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, he is that man of Grace, he is the Fountain of all Grace; therefore if they have ſupernatural Grace, they muſt have it from him, and therefore in him. When the Apoſtle had reckoned that he had Created all things in Heaven and in Earth, he addeth that ſtill in him all things conſiſt, Angels and all, the ſtanding they have, this conſiſtency, it is from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Coloſſ. 1. 17. He is the corner ſtone of both the buildings, both that in Heaven and that in Earth.

For, my Brethren, (let me give you the reaſon of it,) it is only Jeſus Chriſt his natural due, it is his natural due, only being the natural Son of God, that after he is united to the Son of God, God ſhould be ingaged by a Law, a Law of Nature to uphold him, to be impeccable, to be put out of the danger of falling. It is only proper unto Jeſus Chriſt, it is his Law of Nature, for he is the Natural Son of God. It is his priviledge to have life in himſelf, ſo you have it, Joh. 5. 26. For as the Father hath life in himſelf, ſo hath he given to the Son, to have life in himſelf; no Creature hath ſo that it can ſtand of it ſelf; therefore he having life in himſelf, if they ſtand and continue to have life, they have it from him.

Likewiſe, let me ſay this unto you, that the fulneſs of the Glory in Heaven, which is by a Union with God, the Angels could not attain to it, nor had it by the Law of their Creation, it is ſupernatural to them. The Papiſts they aſcribe it to the uſe of Free-will, and to their Merit; but it is above the due of the Creature, as the beſt Divines hold it. This utmoſt Glory in Heaven, that beatifical Viſion which we ſhall have after the day of Judgment, and which the Angels are brought unto, tanquam ad Terminum, as unto their utmoſt happineſs, this is only Jeſus Chriſt his natural due. So to ſee God as Jeſus Chriſt himſelf doth (and with the ſame kind of ſight ſhall his Members ſee him, though for degree he exceedeth, as we are anointed with the ſame Spirit that he is, though in degree, he above meaſure) that ſight which is thus proper to Chriſt, is the tranſcendent priviledge of the Son of God, it is peculiar unto him, and it is by virtue of him we have it, both Angels and Men.

Serm. XI.

I will give you both Scipture for it, and Reaſon. Joh. 1.18. No man hath ſeen God at any time. (It is tranſlated no man, but it is, None, οὐδεὶς, hath ſeen God, you may take it of all Creatures at any time) The only begotten Son, which is in the boſom of the Father, he hath declared him. If Angels had ſeen God as Chriſt ſeeth him, they might have declared him: it had not been Chriſt's peculiar Prerogative to help us to that ſight, if that the Angels had had the fulneſs of that Beatiful Viſion, which the Lord Jeſus Chriſt hath, and bringeth all unto at laſt.

And, my Brethren, I will give you this Reaſon for it. (Another Scripture there is, it is Pſal. 16. it is a Pſalm of Chriſt, and he it is that ſaith, At thy right hand there is Fulneſs of Joy, and Pleaſures for evermore; he was able firſt to ſpeak that ſpeech.) There is, I ſay, the greateſt Reaſon for it that can be: The Angels did not, by the Law of their Creation, receive that full ſight, which now they have in Heaven, not by the Law of their Creation, though they that ſtood might have it at firſt; but it is probable otherwiſe. There is this evident Reaſon, for otherwiſe thoſe Angels that fell, had never fallen: had they been filled with the ſight God, which the ſaints of Heaven ſhall be for ever filled with: It had kept them from ſinning: Why? Becauſe there had not been a poſſibility of thinking there was any other Good, not a poſſibility of it. If the Creature knew God to the uttermoſt; knew God as we ſhall know him one day, as we are known of him, and ſee his face with that clearneſs, as Chriſt, the Saints and Angels in Heaven, now do; they could not have ſuppoſed, they could not have turned their thoughts upon any thing elſe. Therefore you muſt ſuppoſe there was but ſuch a ſight and knowledge of God, as they might entertain a thought of ſome better good thing; for the Will of any Creature, whether ſinning or otherwiſe, muſt ſtill be pitched upon ſome good. Therefore the Schoolmen do rightly ſay, that the utmoſt beatiful Viſion of God doth captivate, doth ſwallow up the mind. When we ſee God to the full, we ſhall be ſo in love with him, that the heart ſhall never turn off from him. That fulneſs of pleaſure, thoſe rivers of joy, carry the Soul away with a Torrent for ever, it can never go back again, the ſtream Amor Dei it conſtraineth. Now you ſee the Angels did fall, and therefore certainly that fulneſs of the ſight of God they had not: and if it had been by virtue of their Creation they would have had it. To think that it ſhould be by their own works, we know no ſuch Covenant, it is that, as you ſee, that is proper to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt ſo to ſee God, he only lying in his boſom: by virtue of him men ſee God, and ſhall ſee God; by virtue of him Angels ſee God.

And ſo much now for that, why there was a neceſſity of their being gathered unto Chriſt, as unto a head, a ſecond time. Both that they might have confirmation in Grace, that God might put truſt in them; and ſecondly, that they might have fulneſs of Glory, and that beatifical Viſion, that might make them impeccable, and without danger of ſinning for ever.

There is yet ſomewhat more in that ſecond of the Coloſſians, (I confeſs I need not meddle with it, for it is out of my Text, but yet it cometh fitly in.) It is ſaid, He reconciled all things, both in Heaven and in Earth. Interpreters are very ſhy here of interpreting it of Angels, becauſe they needed, ſay they, no reconciliation, for reconciliation doth ſuppoſe enmity. Therefore to ſpeak to this a little.

This reconciliation you ſee, is more than a ſecond gathering, what need had they of this? Biſhop Davenant ſaith of it, that there was Reconciliatio analogica, ſome thing that had the ſhadow of it, ſomething like it. I ſhall give you my ſenſe of it thus. When God had experience that the Angels fell from him, and fell from him ſo at a clap; why, might he think, they will all ſerve me thus, if they be left to the Law of their Creation; they may drop away thus, and turn Rebels one after another, and as I have loſt man, ſo I may loſe all the Angels too, it is in their nature to do it, the Creature is apt to do it; I ſee experience in ſome of their natures already, made of the ſame Metal with them. Now, (my Brethren,) this muſt needs be ſuppoſed, that God is not contented with his Creature, (taken meerly in it himſelf,) it breedeth a kind of Simultas, a kind (I cannot call it of grudge, becauſe there is no ſin, but a kind) of unſatisfiedneſs and diſplacency. Therefore the Scripture doth not only ſpeak of the Evil Angels gels that fell, that God put no confidence in them; but it ſpeaks plainly of the good Angels, that God put no confidence in them, ſeeing the evil Angels fall, Serm. XI. Job 15. 15. compared with that place I quoted before, Job 4.18. Behold (ſaith he) he putteth no truſt in his Saints, yea the Heavens are not clean in his ſight, how much more abominable and filthy is man? Whom doth he call Saints here? He meaneth the Angels. It is the ſame parallel'd ſpeech with the other, He put no truſt in his Servants, and his Angels he chargeth with folly. And it is plain he meaneth the Angels by Saints here, for he oppoſeth them to Man; how much more abominable and filthy is Man? They are called in Scripture the Saints of God oſtentimes, as in *Dan.*8.13. I heard one Saint ſpeaking, and another Saint ſpoke to that certain Saint, that ſpake, &c. Then ſaith he, The Heavens are not clean in his ſight. By Heavens he meaneth Angels too, or at leaſt-wiſe they may be meant by Heavens, for in Scripture often they are; as the Devils are called the Gates of Hell, ſo the Angels are called Heaven, from the place where they are. Now (ſaith he) theſe Heavens, theſe heavenly Creatures, theſe Holy ones, the Angels, they are not clean in his ſight; he ſeeth a poſſibility in them of ſinning. And as he repented that he made Man, when he ſaw Man fall from him: ſo when he ſaw ſome of the Angels fall from him, there was juſt ground of repenting for making Angels; for, ſaith he, all theſe may fall too, if let alone. He could take no contentment in them. Here is ſome ground for a Reconciliation, to take away all this diſcontent. God could not love them perfectly, unleſs they could ſtand for ever: Why? Becauſe he muſt ſo love, as ſometime he muſt hate; and that you know, is not every way perfect love; Amare tanquam aliquando oſurus. Therefore now, as Mercy, it is not only called mercy to deliver the Creature out of miſery, but it is truly mercy to prevent from miſery; it is more than Goodneſs to do ſo, it is Mercy. Mercy reſpecteth miſery, either miſery that it may fall into, as well as mercy to deliver out of it; it is analogically mercy, though the other is more properly mercy: So there is quædam analogica reconciliatio; whether this was by the Blood of Chriſt, or no, I will not now ſtand to diſpute. This is certain, Chriſt needed not to have died to preſerve Angels in their ſtanding, the neceſſity was only on man's part for ſatisfaction; there is a plain place for it, 2 *Cor.*5. 14. In that he died for all, we conclude that all were dead. That he died thus out of neceſſity, it muſt be for them only that are dead. Yet dying for men, there might be this over-plus in it, that for the merit of his Obedience ſake, he having relation to Angels, they might have not a ſatisfaction, but a benefit by it. And if it be true, which ſome Divines, not Papiſts only, ſay, that he did Mereri ſibi, merit for himſelf; he hath the benefit of his death, being exalted on high, he hath a double right to Glory; ſo likewiſe he might for them too. And ſo I have done with this thing, things in Heaven, the Angels; and thus much for them.

I will but anticipate a Uſe, or Obſervation or two.

The Firſt is this. Hath God now purpoſed in himſelf, (as the Text telleth you here,) ſuch a great and a vaſt price as this is, and is this the ſtory of the purpoſe of his heart? (and I have not told it out,) Mr Brethren, I appeal to you all, whether the heart of man could ever have invented ſuch a ſtory as this is; One God, making the Creature one with himſelf, and the Creature falling from him, making him one again, in making of all things, in ſumming up of all in Chriſt, that is the founder of this gathering again, making up a body of all things in Heaven and in Earth unto the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. I cannot ſtand to lay open the particulars of it, you have heard it: The Text ſaith, He purpoſed it in himſelf; it could have come into no ones heart but his, it was hid in God, it was purpoſed in himſelf; the wiſdom of God therefore, it is called, *Eph.*3. Obſerv. 1.

Doſt thou not believe that there is a God? Come hither, let this convince thee. Could all Intelligible Natures, all Reaſonable Creatures invent ſuch a ſtory as this? You think the Gunpowder-Plot to have been a Plot ſo deſperate, that it muſt have been hatched in Hell, it could not be formed in any man's brain. My Brethren, This Plot here could be hatched no where but in Heaven, and in the heart of God. Go, and take Angels and Men, lay all your heads together and make ſuch another. Such a God, ſuch a Chriſt, thus Great, having ſuch a

Serm. XI.

Kingdom made out of all, both in Heaven and Earth, ſcattered from him, and reduced again; how infinitely doth this ſet out God and Chriſt? It is beyond the thoughts of Men and Angels, to invent ſuch a thing as this. No ſtory ever had ſuch a winding up as this. Read all Hiſtories, all Romances that men are pleaſed with all, they have not the ſhadow of ſuch a plot as this. Take all the plots of all the great ones of the Earth, and all their petty plots come to nothing. The Wiſdom of the World is Foliſhneſs, in compariſon of this. We preach Wiſdom, (ſaith the Apoſtle,) in a Myſtery, which none of the Princes of the World knew, their wiſdom comes to nothing before this, it all vaniſheth. To ſet up ſo great a Monarch that hath Allyance to all his Subjects, and to make him King of all the World, of both Worlds, and to have ſome out of all, in Heaven and in Earth, to be made Subjects unto him, and he in his own perſon to have all things in him; and they falling from God, he being able to knit them all again a ſecond time. Without controverſie, (ſaith he, 1 Tim. 3. ult.) Great is the Myſtery of godlineſs. What is it? This very thing I have ſpoken of. It is firſt, God manifeſted in the Fleſh, God and Man ſummed up in one, it could never have entred into the heart of Man or Angel, to have a thought that the Son of God ſhould have taken a Creature up into his own perſon thus, and ſuch a Creature as all ſhould be ſummed up in him. Juſtified in the Spirit, that is, at his Reſurrection. Seen of Angels, to be their head. Preached unto the Gentiles, believed on in the World, to be the head of them on Earth by Faith too. This is a Myſtery, without Controverſy, no man that readeth it or heareth it, but he muſt fall down before it. This is not man, this is not the wit of Angels, this is without controverſy, from an Omniſcient underſtanding, that knoweth all things and hath infinite depth in him; nay, my Brethren, of all the Arguments that ever fell upon my underſtanding, to convince me, that there is a God, there is none like unto this.

A Second Obſervation is this. See the ſeveral ſteps of the goodneſs of God to his Creatures in theſe three particulars, which that which I have handled doth ſhew. Firſt, There is his ſimple goodneſs, as he is a Creator, communicating himſelf unto them, as to Creatures by the Law of Creation, but not beyond their due, as Creatures. This was the ſtate of Adam in innocency, and this was the ſtate of the Angels that fell. Then Secondly, there is a further degree of goodneſs ſhewed, which becometh grace, which hath a peculiarneſs in it, it is ſupernatural, it is beyond the common tye of Creation, to keep them from falling; this he ſhewed to the Angels that ſtood, when he let the other fall, which prevented them from falling. Well, but there is a third degree beyond all, that is, when actually they did fall, (as the Elect of the Sons of men did,) then here is riches of mercy, to gather them all to himſelf, in him again, and that by his blood. This is the mercy, this is the top of the mercies of God; and the truth is, to ſhew forth this, he ſhut up all under ſin, that he might have mercy upon all. It was but to ſhew mercy ſo much the further. There was his mercy in preventing this, but there is infinite depth of mercy in recovering out of this, when they were all ſcattered from him, to gather them together again.

SER-

SERMON XII.

EPHES. i. 10.

According to his good pleaſure which he hath purpoſed in himſelf, in the diſpenſation of the fulneſs of time, to gather together in one all things in Chriſt, both which are in Heaven, and which are on Earth, even in him.

THeſe words (as I have formerly, in opening the Coherence of them, ſhewed) do hold forth the full purpoſe, the whole Birth that lay hid in Gods eternal Purpoſes and Decrees. All that God purpoſed, both concerning Chriſt and concerning us, him as a Head, and us as Members, they are all gathered into this one expreſſion, He purpoſed to gather all in one in Chriſt, both things in Heaven, and things on Earth. That by things in Heaven, are meant Angels, I have ſhewed: That by things on Earth are meant Men, I have ſhewed alſo. There are all things in Heaven, for there are ſeveral offices of Angels at leaſt; and there are all things on Earth, there are ſeveral ſorts of Men. Now, God hath gathered together all things in one. The great thing to be opened, (as I promiſed at firſt,) which containeth in it all that God intended both toward Chriſt and us; it is this word, which is tranſlated to gather together in one, ἀνακεφαλαιώσασθαι. It is a teeming word, a pregnant word, that containeth all that God intended toward Chriſt and us in the womb of it.

At the firſt, I did give you four approved ſignifications of it, that none that knoweth and ſtudieth the meaning of the word, can deny.

The Firſt, It ſignifieth a ſumming up, a caſting up of ſeveral Figures into one total ſum.

The Second is, It is a gathering together of ſeveral Members or Parts unto one Head.

The Third, (which is rather an addition unto the Second,) it is a gathering of them again. There is ἀνὰ, a doing of it the ſecond time.

The Fourth is, A reducing things unto their firſt principles, to their firſt eſtate, Inſtaurare, as I ſhall ſhew you anon.

I gave you theſe, when I made entrance into the words, to be the four ſeveral meanings of it. There is a Fifth, which I will not ſtand upon. And theſe four contain, all that God intended both towards Chriſt and us.

Firſt, As a foundation to the great Reſtauration of all things, the great Recapitulation and gathering of all under one Head, God layeth this foundation, He ſummeth up all thing in Chriſt's Perſon. He was to make him a Head, and he would make him a Head that ſhould partake of all the Body; one that ſhould be a fit and a meet Head, fit to be King of both Worlds. He caſteth up, ſummeth up in him, into one total, all diviſions whatſoever, all things in Earth and all things in Heaven.

He ſummeth up in him, God and the Creature. That was the firſt great diviſion.

He ſummeth up in him, the nature of Man and the condition of Angels; for he is an Heavenly man, and far above Angels. It is his due, and he poſſeſſeth it now.

He ſummeth up in man's Nature aſſumed, both Jew and Gentile; for he came of both.

Thus

Serm. XII.

Thus he cast up all sorts of Divisions into one total Sum in Christ's Person first, and made that a foundation unto a Second; and that is this, To gather together all things in Earth and in Heaven under one Head, that is both Head of Angels and Men; that Angels and Men, do make up one great Association under this one Head and Monarch, Christ; and that of all sorts of Angels, and of all sorts of Men, make what division you will, Nations, Tongues, Kindreds, Sinners, Ranks, whatsoever; he gathereth together of all such, and makes up a Body to Christ. That is the Second.

The Third was this, (which I entred upon in the last discourse) That he hath made a second gathering of all things in one. In Christ there is a second gathering. There is a twofold Union of Creatures reasonable, with God, and amongst themselves, a first and a second; ἀνὰ, is not to be lost. Yea, and he hath gathered together again the second time after a scattering, when they were dispersed, broken all in pieces; he makes up all again in Christ, to make his glory so much the more illustrious.

In the first place there was a first gathering of all things unto God, as under a Head, which was that gathering of all in Heaven and in Earth by the Law of Creation; which I explained in Four things.

First, That both Angels and Men were, by that Law of Creation, united to God. It was their due so to be; a natural due, if he would make them Creatures reasonable.

Yet Secondly, So, as they were both united to God; but by the same like common Tie, they might both fall in pieces.

Then Thirdly, There was a Peace betwe-n both these among themselves, if not an Association; which indeed the Scripture holds not forth; but a Peace there was.

And then Fourthly, In some respect this might be said to be in Christ; not as a Head undertaking for both, but by his natural due: It was his right, if he were to be a Creature, to be the Head of that Creation, the beginning of the Creation of God, as he is called, Rev. 3.24.

Now, I shewed, there is a second gathering in Christ, as a Head undertaking both for Men and Angels.

First, for the Angels parts, It was the thing I shewed you; the necessity of a Second Union, and that in Christ. I cannot stand to repeat the particulars. They needed both confirming Grace, as I shewed out of Job. 4. 18. compared with Job 15.15. They needed elevating Grace to that fulness of the Vision of God, which is only Christ's natural due, as Joh. 1.18. None hath seen the Father; it is not only no man, but it is οὐδεὶς, none, but only by way of participation from him, who lay in the bosom of the Father. There is a Vision of God, which the Angels were not created unto, which in Christ they are raised up unto.

Then, Again, I shewed there was a kind of reconciliation of them, a gathering together in that respect, as the Phrase, Colos. 1.20. importeth, where all things are said to be reconciled, both in Heaven and in Earth. It is not a proper Reconciliation indeed; but when God saw that his Angels served him so, the most part of them, he chargeth the rest with folly: It was in their nature to do it, he could not trust them; it might have made him repent, that ever he made Angels. Christ takes this off, (it is not an actual falling, but a possible falling,) and fixeth them to God for ever. Thus he gathered all things in Heaven to himself by a second gathering; for that is the Point.

Now, that which I am to handle is this, That there is a Second gathering of Men, of all things on Earth; and that is clearer than the other.

God, he doth not preserve Men only from a danger of scattering, by a second Union with himself in and through Christ, but he actually preserveth them. He sheweth not his Grace of preservation only; he withdraweth, or he leaveth them unto themselves, suffereth them all to turn head against him; to turn Rebels, to the end he might get Glory by a further degree of Grace toward them, to shew forth the riches of his Mercy in their recovery.

And

And, my Brethren, This gathering of all things on Earth in Christ, of Men to himself, it is the great gathering of all the rest. It was the greatest work of Christ: that of Angels was but an overflow of it, cast into the bargain, to confirm them; but that which did draw forth all that was in Christ, to satisfie his Father, it was to reconcile Men unto him. This was the great scattering, for it divided Heaven from Earth, Angels from Men, Men amongst themselves, as I shall shew you by and by: Therefore when this cometh to be added unto the other, it makes it an Universal gathering, it makes Christ a Catholick King, the only Catholick King, the only Universal Head, to all things in Heaven and in Earth, when all come in again to him.

I shall explain or present unto you this gathering again in one of all things, all sorts of Men on Earth, by these four particulars.

I told you first, it implied a dispersion, a scattering; therefore I will briefly lay forth the desperate, miserable, forlorn, scattered condition of the Sons of Men, by the sin of Adam. How all in Earth and in Heaven were fallen in pieces, divided and at enmity.

I shall Secondly shew you, the making up of all this again; what a compleat, full, and entire gathering together in one there, is, of all that were scattered.

And then, Thirdly, Because God's second works always exceed the first, with an addition of a more near, and entire, and more glorious Union than at first; a more indissoluble Union, never to part again.

And, Fourthly, That all this was done in Christ, or by Christ, as you shall hear anon; and by what it was in Christ, that all was thus gathered together, when they were all scattered and broken in pieces.

These are the Four Heads, which I shall now insist upon; and all are necessary to open this Text.

First, I shall shew you the division, the scattering that was of things on Earth, both from what is in Heaven, and from amongst themselves.

First, What is in Heaven? There is God there, he is the Chief in Heaven. Why, they were all cut off from God. It is called a departing from God, in *Jer.*17. and *Heb.*3.12. it is called a going a stray, like Sheep, after a thousand Vanities, in Isai 53.6. This People, (saith he, *Jer.*5.23.) hath a revolting and a rebellious heart, they are revolted and gone; clean gone from God, and gone for ever, if God take not the care of them: so the Phrase is there. And *Col.*1.21. there are three degrees which indeed comprehendeth all; You were (saith he) alienated and strangers: once they were Friends, God and they were one; now they are Strangers, not only so, but Enemies in their minds, yea, thirldy in evil works; all sort of hostility, not only in outward actions, but in inward dispositions; and by means of this, an eternal wall of Separation is set up between God and Man, *Isai.*59.2.

Here now is one division, all on Earth cut off from him, without God in this world; it is the expression the Apostle useth, *Eph.*2.12.

Secondly, What else is there in Heaven? There are Angels. Men are scattered utterly from them; because (as I told you) though there were not an Association, yet there was a Peace; though there were two Worlds divided, distinct, though there was no Trade, yet there was no enmity. But through Man's Fall there was; for the Angels cannot but hate where God hateth, and they cannot but be angry where God is angry: And therefore you read, *Gen.*3.24. when that Man by sin was cast out of Paradise, then Cherubims come with their Swords turned every way to keep Man out, with their Swords drawn upon him. You never read of Angels till then. When Balaam went on in a perverse way, *Num.*22.22. it is said, The Angel of the Lord stood in the way, as an Adversary against him. They are Adversaries, they are Enemies to men in their evil courses and ways; and howsoever some Divines have thought, that all executions of Judgments here below have been by evil Angels; yet the Scripture evidently sheweth, that they ordinarily and mostly be good, we have more instances of the one than the other. Those that destroyed Sodom, they were good Angels, and Lot entertained them as such; And God (say they) hath sent us to destroy Sodom, *Gen.*19.13. They were Angels created; therefore, *Heb.*13.2. Lot is said to have have entertained Angels. The like may be said of that 1 *Chron.*21.15. Of that that stroke Herod, Act. 12. 23. and of that smote the Camp of the Assyrians, 2 *King.*19.35. It is evident; for in all those places they are still called the Angel of the Lord, which is never spoken of Satan.

There is once indeed mention of an evil Spirit from the Lord, but it is with an addition of Evil; but the Angels of the Lord are still good Angels. And that Angel that destroyed Jerusalem, which David saw with a drawn Sword in his hand, stretched out over the City, 1 *Chron.*21.15. was evidently a good Angel; for, *ver.*18. he directs Gad to tell David, where the Temple should stand, and biddeth him worship; which an evil Angel, God would never have used him to do it.

And, (my Brethren) if Men be Enemies to the Church of God, as Wicked men by nature are, Angels will revenge it. Take heed (saith Christ, Matt. 18. 10.) that you offend not one of these little ones; and he giveth the reason of it, for, saith he, their Angels do alwaies behold the face of my Father which is in Heaven: they have Angels that take their part. Thus they are enemies in this life unto Wicked men; and at the Day of Judgment, you shall read in *Matt.*13.41, 42.49. The Angels are the Reapers (saith he, *v.*39.) and he sheweth there, how they take the Bodies and Souls of Wicked men. The good Angels are their Gatherers, but it is for Hell; They gather all together, and cast them into the furnace of fire, there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth. It is attributed unto the Angels.

Thus you see, I say, that Angels and Men are at odds, and all by Sin; all is broken now, God is gone, Angels are divided from us, and at enmity with us. All in Heaven and Earth is broken to pieces.

Well, come to things on Earth; nothing but Divisions there. There is not a man in the World, but by nature is divided from all Men. We, like sheep, have gone astray, every one after his own way; so it is *Isai.*53.6. All went one way once, we all cleaved to God; we have left God, and are fallen all in pieces. God made Man righteous, there was but one way then, for so the opposition implieth, but they have sought out many Inventions, even as many as there are men, *Eccl.*7. and *Tit.*3.3. serving divers lusts and pleasures.

Then again, Secondly, Men are at enmity one with another, it is certain, more or less, Homo homini lupus. Tit. 3. 3. We (saith he, describing Man's natural condition,) we our selves lived in malice and in envy, hateful, and hating one another. Hateful every man is to another more or less, he is hated of another, and he hateth another more or less; and if his nature were let out to the full, there is that in him, Every man is against every man, as it is said of Issachar. Self-love, my Brethren, that ruleth all the World, is the greatest Monopolist that ever was in the World. Men shall be lovers of themselves, as you have it 2 *Tim.*3.2,3. and what followeth? Covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to Parents, without natural affection, truce-breakers, &c. Self-love breaks all bonds; all things in Earth are scattered.

Go amongst all Nations, there is nothing else but a fatal confusion amongst them; the Jew at enmity with the Gentile, and the Gentile with the Jew. All have heard how the Scripture sets it out, they were an abomination and curse each to other; of which I have treated elsewhere.

Vid. Sermon of Christ's being the Universal Peace-Maker, on *Eph.*2.14.

And, Thirdly, In Religions, nothing but Divisions, before our Lord and Saviour Christ came in the fulness of time. Look upon all Nations, so many Nations, so many gods, nay, so many Cities, so many gods, as it is *Jer.*2. 28. nay, so many Families, so many gods; there was not a Family but chose a several god to itself; and therefore, 1 *Cor.*8.5. there are lords many and gods many. Many indeed, for there was as many almost as there were men to worship them, each chose what god he pleased. And the Apostle in that place I last quoted, if you read it, you shall find, instanceth in both, things in heaven and things on earth, there was scarce any thing in earth. All things in Heaven and in Earth, from Stars to Serpents, that creep on the Earth, the very Onions were made gods amongst them. Thus was all the World divided; this was the shattered condition of all Mankind, of all things in Earth, when Jesus Christ came.

Nay,

Nay, my Brethren, Fourthly, there is another diviſion yet; There was a fatal ſentence to ſcatter mens Souls from their Bodies, their Bodies to go to the Grave, and to return to duſt, which alſo is ſcattered up and down with winds, God knows where, and their Souls to Hell, called their own place. Serm. XII.

And Laſtly, to conclude, by all theſe gatherings, They are gather'd to the Devil, as their Head and Prince, though they know not of it; who is the Prince of the World, that rules it, and the God of this World, that is worſhipt by the Children of Diſobedience. What a miſerable ſhattering is here; all in Earth broken in pieces, and all in Heaven. And thus have I repreſented to you, the ſtate and condition of Man diſperſt.

Now I muſt ſhew you, Secondly, That Jeſus Chriſt hath made all one again; I muſt go over all theſe particulars, and make it good, that's the Second thing.

Firſt, (as I told you) all things on Earth were cut off from God. What doth Chriſt do firſt? He makes peace with God, that was the great buſineſs of all the reſt; make peace with him, and all elſe will fall in. This Chriſt did Coloſſ. 1. 20. Having made peace through the blood of his Croſs, by him to reconcile all things unto himſelf, whether they be things in earth, or things in heaven: Here you ſee it; I need name no more Scriptures, for I might give you many for it.

In the Second place, Angels, they come to be reconciled; you heard before they were Enemies. I will ſhew you it in the general firſt, and ſecondly in the particulars.

Firſt, in the General, They were Enemies before you heard; you ſhall ſee that the Angels in Chriſt are made friends to Souls and Bodies. Read Luke 15. 8,9,10. Chriſt makes there a compariſon of a Woman that had loſt her Groat, and ſhe lights a Candle and ſweeps her houſe; and when ſhe had found it, ſhe calls in her friends and neighbours, and, ſaith ſhe, Rejoyce with me, for I have found my Groat which was loſt. Who are thoſe Friends? the next words ſhew that they are Angels; for it is added in the very next verſe, There is joy in the preſence of the Angels of God over a Sinner that is converted. They are made Friends you ſee, the Text is expreſs for it. And in token of it what do they? Look in the ſecond of Luke, they are ſo far Friends, that as ſoon as they knew the Saviour of the World was born, they came flying down a whole Troop of them, their hearts were full of it, to bring men the News of it; and to ſhew their rejoycing, they ſing; they were glad at heart, and ſing, Peace on earth, Good-will towards Men. They are the firſt Meſſengers of that glad Tidings, verſe 17. Suddenly there was with the Angel a multitude of the heavenly Hoſt praiſing God, and ſaying, Glory to God in the higheſt, Peace in earth, and Good-will towards men. Every where you ſhall find Angels deſcribed throughout the whole Scripture to be the heavenly Hoſt, becauſe they are the Men of War, they are the Militia of Heaven, to ſpeak in the language of the Age; ſo they are called in that ſecond of Luke, and they are every where elſe ſo called. 1 King. 22. 19. 2 King. 6. 17. Matt. 26. 53. Chriſt calls them Legions, as the Devils are called. Now, my Brethren, what do theſe Angels that were Souldiers, Enemies, Warriours againſt Devils and Men? They come in all their Warlike habit and attire down to Earth, and proclaim Peace. It became them ſo to do. A multitude of heavenly Souldiers, ſaith he, praiſing God, and ſaying, Glory, &c. What do they ſay? God is at peace with men, and We are at peace with men; we are in our Armour ſtill, but it is to fight for this Goſpel we preach: As in the Revelation, I am thy Fellow-ſervant, ſaith he, and of thy Brethren, that have the teſtimony of Jeſus. If any man have the teſtimony of Jeſus, and hold it forth; If you be for Jeſus, we are for Jeſus and for you too, ſaith he. Angels and Men are friends. Pſal. 34. 7. They encamp about the Saints. All that heavenly Hoſt turns all their Weapons now for Chriſt, and for the Saints: Therefore, when Ahab went to fight in that 1 King. 21. 19. the whole Hoſt of heaven appeared; for the whole Hoſt of heaven ſtandeth ready to defend the Goſpel, they are all Friends to Chriſt and the Saints: ſo that you ſee that all in Heaven is for them. See another place, Gen. 32. 1,2. When poor Jacob went out to meet Eſau, he went out trembling before; but the Angels of God met him, and ſaith he, this is God's Hoſt; there were two Hoſts of them, Mahanaim, two Troops, ſo he calleth them.

Serm. XII.

Now, what is the cause of this, that Angels come thus to be reconciled with us; that they come down upon the Earth to serve Men, and to be friends with them thus? It is Christ. *Gen.*28.12. Jacob saw a Ladder that touched Heaven and touched Earth; who is that Ladder? Christ himself is that Ladder, and himself interpreth it so *Joh.*1.ult. You shall see the Angels ascending and descending upon the Son of Man, as they did there ascend and descend upon that Ladder that appeared to Jacob. The Ladder, it touched Heaven, it touched Earth, for Jesus Christ hath both in him; he is a heavenly man, and he hath the nature of a man, he hath made up Heaven and Earth. You heard before, how Christ was partaker of both Natures, and by the one he hath a Foot on Earth, whereof the Top is in Heaven; and it is he that hath made the high-way between Heaven and Earth an open passage. Therefore now Angels are reconciled to Men, Heaven is reconciled to Earth, and there is an intercourse, a trade, a high-way, they ascend and descend familiarly; it was there to defend Jacob, and for many other ends they do it. Before you heard, they kept Man out of Paradise with a Sword; but now you read, that they carry into Paradise the Souls of Men. As of Lazarus, *Luk.*16.22. and at Latter day, as in *Matt.*24.31. And he shall send his Angels with a great sound of a Trumpet, and they shall gather together his Elect from the four Winds, from one end of Heaven to the other.

This is the General. Now see it in the Particulars, that Angels are in all the particulars wherein they are at enmity that I instanced in, reconciled to men. In the first place, I told you before, that they execute Judgments, and Plagues. It was a good Angel that destroyed in Jerusalem with the Plague. Now read *Psal.*91.10,11. it is a pat instance of the contrary, There shall no evil befall thee neither shall the Plague come nigh thy dwelling: for he shall give his Angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy waies. You heard before, that when Man fell, and was cast out of Paradise, Angels stood there with a flaming Sword to keep him out. Now you shall see the Angels stand to let him in. *Rev.*21.12. describing there the New Jerusalem, he saith, there were twelve Gates, and at the Gates twelve Angels. It was Paradise, as appears Chap. 22. 14. because there was the Tree of Life, for so it is described, Blessed are they that do his Commandments, that they may have right to the Tree of Life, and may enter in through the Gates into the City. It is an allusion to Paradise; there Angels kept out, here Angels carry in: the Angels you know fetched the Soul of Lazarus, and carried it into Abraham's bosom, Luk.16. And so at the latter day, *Matt.*14.31. The Angels shall take the Saints that rise, and bring them all to Christ, so the Text saith there. Here you see it, I say, in all the particulars wherein they are Enemies; how they are made Friends. Here is then Angels and Men reconciled after a being broken to pieces.

Well, I shewed you in the Third place, That all on Earth were shattered to pieces, the Jew from the Gentile, one man from another. Now Christ hath made up this division too. Take any man, my Brethren, that is the greatest enemy to any; let them have had the most desperate enmity that ever was between two mortal men; let these two men be turned to God, let them meet in Christ, they will love one another, it is certain. Take a godly man, set before him the greatest enemy he hath in the Earth; do but put that question to him, what will you say, if this man should be turned to God? Oh, saith he, I could fall down before him, he would do any thing in the world to procure it and bring it about.

My Brethren, the Jew and the Gentile were two, so they are called; it is the very word used *Ephes.*2.15. They were two indeed, saith he, He hath made of twain one, he hath reconciled both; Christ did it, it was by the Blood of his Cross he broke down the Partition wall, the μεσότοιχον, the Partition wall of the Ceremonial Law is broken down: which is elegantly signified, alluding to the Wall in the Temple, that kept the Gentiles from the Court of the Jews. The Jews were such Enemies to the Gentiles, that they could not endure the Gospel to be preached to them; they were all filled with envy, so you read in the Acts, the carnal Jews were: Well, but when Peter goeth and preacheth the Gospel to the Gentiles, what say the godly Jews? See what they say, *Act.*11.18. Good Souls, When they heard these things (namely, that the Gentiles tiles believed, that is the Context,) they held their peace and glorified God, ſaying, then hath God given alſo unto the Gentiles repentance unto life; they fell down and glorified God. Here Jew and Gentile, that would not eat one with another before, are made friends; now they eat together at the ſame Table, at the ſame Lord's Supper. Now there is one Body, one Supper, one Sacrament, one God, one Lord Jeſus Chriſt, both Jew and Gentile one.

Go over particulars. Amongſt the Jews themſelves there were great diviſions. There was the ten Tribes oppoſite to the two Tribes. Ephraim and Judah extreamly oppoſite; you have it Iſai. 11.13. He ſpeaks there of the envy of Ephraim, and how they were adverſaries to Judah; but I will order it ſo, ſaith he, that the envy of Ephraim ſhall depart, and the adverſaries of Judah ſhall be cut off; Ephraim ſhall not envy Judah, and Judah ſhall not vex Ephraim. This is in Chriſt, for if you mark it, he ſpeaks of the Root of Jeſſe in the 10 verſe. Here now both theſe are reconciled. You have the like, Ezek. 37.19. there is two Sticks, the one is Ephraim, and the other is Judah; Take theſe Sticks, ſaith he, and make them one; for I will make them one Nation, and they ſhall have one King, and they ſhall be no more divided into two Kingdoms. You may read it there at large, verſ. 21, 22, 24. And you read how theſe are ſcattered as dry Bones uſe to be; ſo as none knows, who theſe Jews of the Ten Tribes are: as in a Charnel-houſe, none knows what Bones are of ſuch and ſuch men. Theſe are the whole Houſe of Iſrael, ſaith God to the Prophet, v. 11. Bones that were dried, their hope loſt and cut off, and they ſcattered one from another.

Well, you heard that the Gentiles were diſperſt one amongſt another, and had a thouſand Religions: by the death of Jeſus Chriſt they are all gathered into one. Take one place for it, it is John 11.50, 51. The High-Prieſt there propheſying of Chriſt's death, and ſhewing the end of it, ſaith he, It is neceſſary that Jeſus ſhould die for this Nation, (for the Jews.) And what followeth, added by the Evangeliſt? (it may be it was the prophecy of the High-Prieſt at that time; but this followeth,) And not for this Nation only, but that alſo he ſhould gather together in one the Children of God, that were ſcattered abroad: All the Gentiles that were ſcattered, ſcattered in Place, ſcattered in Religion; thus divided, Chriſt dieth to gather them together in one all them that belong to God's Election, both in that Age, and in all Ages to the end of the World. Therefore now, when Chriſt came into the World you have it fulfilled; in the Apoſtles time there was as many gods as Men, as many gods as Cities, as many gods as Families, 1 Cor. 8. 5. There are lords many and gods many, as many as there were things in Heaven and things in Earth, (as I ſaid before he intimateth it there,) their Religion lay in having lords, that were Mediators unto their gods. But, ſaith he now to us, there is but one God and there is but one Lord. This alteration did God make in the very Apoſtle's times. And, (my Brethren) let me add this to it, Since the greateſt part of the World, it hath one God, though it have not one Lord: the Turks and we have one God, we have not one Lord indeed; but yet over all Turky, over all the Roman Empire, there is ſtill one God to this day, and thoſe Heathen gods they are all gone. Thus he hath gathered together things in Earth in one, in Jeſus Chriſt; he hath reconciled the Nations, and he will never leave till ſuch time as he hath been the God of the whole Earth, of the whole World. He ſaith, Iſai. 11.5. when both Jew and Gentile ſhall come in, that the Earth ſhall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the Sea. Iſai. 54.4. he ſaith, that the Redeemer, the holy One of Iſrael, ſhall be called the God of the whole Earth. Dan. 7.14.27. he ſaith, there ſhall come a Kingdom, after all the Kingdoms, after the fourth Monarchy, which is now a deſtroying, (for the Pope is the laſt Head of it,) there ſhall come a Kingdom of all Nations, and Tongues, and Languages, and they ſhall ſerve him, and he ſhall poſſeſs all the Kingdoms under the whole Heavens; (it is not a Kingdom in Heaven.) He ſhall gather all in one, and there ſhall be but one Kingdom, and one Lord thorough the whole Earth. This God will do in the end. Thus you ſee, I ſay, that Jeſus Chriſt hath reconciled all on Earth, he hath made them up all again; he meaneth to do it by the virtue of his death.

Serm. XII.

Well, there was one division more that I named, as great a scattering as any of the former, is not yet made up; and it is of things that are yet both in Heaven and Earth, and remain divided one from another; and it is of the Saints from the very beginning of the World, and will continue so to the very end. For Death and the Grave hold and keep the Bodies of them, remaining still in the Earth, whilst their Souls, being Spirits made perfect, are lodged together in Heaven. Here is a great scattering. All the Patriarchs that did die before Christ came, all that have died since, their Bodies are in one place, and their Souls in another; one is in Heaven, and the other is laid in the Grave, and there resteth. Death hath scattered all the Saints into two Worlds, it hath reigned over all; and though he will be the God of all the Earth, and joyn all Nations together, yet Souls and Bodies are still divided of all that are dead, and of all the Saints from the beginning of the World, and that shall be the end. Now, what will Jesus Christ do? He will raise up all, and bring them all together, make up that division too. 1 Thess. 4.16. compared with Matt. 24.31. He saith there, the Angels shall go into all the four Corners of the World, (when the great sound of the Trumpet cometh) he speaks of the latter-day, and they shall gather together his Elect from the four Winds, from one end of Heaven to the other.

My Brethren, the Bodies of the Elect, where are they? Some burnt and turn'd to Ashes, all disperst into the Elements; who knoweth where every man's Body is, and all the parts of it? All those Atomes, all those Bones will God bring together again, and gather them all in one, and joyn their Souls to them, and saith he, we shall ever be with the Lord. There will be then, a gathering together that shall never be dissolved. Thus I say he hath gathered together all in one that were all shattered and fallen to pieces.

The Third Head (as I told you,) was this, That this Second gathering shall exceed the first infinitely. I mentioned Four particulars you know to explain. First, That all were fallen in pieces. Secondly, that all shall be gathered together again: And that this Second gathering shall exceed the First. It exceedeth it in two things, I will name no more. It exceedeth, First, in sureness and stability, That same first union with God by Creation, was upon slippery grounds. He putteth (saith he) no trust in his Saints, Job. 15.15. He could trust none of them. He could not send an Angel down, (for he speaks of Angels there, as I shewed before,) he could not send them on an Arrant to Earth, but they might have fallen and been in Hell, afore they came up again. It was a slipery knot, that of Creation. But now they are headed in Christ. God would never trust Creature more, he will make sure work; and what doth he? He headeth them all in Christ; and what saith Christ? My sheep shall no man take out of my hand. If Angels and Men be once bottomed on Christ, they can never be parted again. Who shall seperate us, (now we are again the Second time gathered,) from the love of God in Christ? It exceedeth in sureness, you see.

It exceedeth in nearness of the union too. We have a more near union with God, and one with another, than we had. First, A nearer union one with another, for in the first gathering by Creation, (as I told you at first,) men and Angels were at peace indeed, but they should have lived in two Worlds; Man should have lived upon the Earth, and they in Heaven: they should not have come one at another, that is certain; Man was an earthly Creature, and he must have continued upon Earth, (as I have often hinted out of 1 Cor.) But when we are gathered together the second time, Angels and Men live together in one World, Men shall be like Angels, Matt. 22.13. They shall bear the Image of the Heavenly man, 1 Cor. 15. And we are come to Angels, Hebr. 12.22. And we shall have places where they are, as I shewed out of Zach. 3.7. There is a nearer union now one amongst another, than was before. And a nearer union with God too: For, my Brethren, let me tell you this, that men that were thus shattered from God, and fallen into this great misery, shall be raised up to the neareſt union with God that can be; for ought I know, nearer than the Angels. Rev. 7.11. There is the Throne, the four Beasts next that, the four and twenty Elders next them, and the Angels round about the Throne and the Elders. They are more remote from the Throne than the Beasts are, than the Men are: Therefore (as I ſhewed before) Chriſt is our Brothrer, which is no where ſaid of Angels, they are no where called Brother; it is proper unto Men, Heb. 2. Chriſt is our Huſband: It is not ſaid of any of the Angels, that Chriſt is their Husband, and that God is a Father to them by Adoption through the marriage with Chriſt; there is a nearer union that theſe ſcattered ones have with God through Chriſt, upon this ſecond gathering. So there is the Third Head explained. Serm. XII.

There is a fourth Head, and which ſhall be, and deſerves to be the Coronis of this glorious ſtory. They are ſaid to be gathered together in Chriſt.

Well, in Chriſt. What will this hold forth? It holdeth forth, that they are not only all gathered in Chriſt, as unto a Head, but they are gathered by virtue of him: Not only gathered to him, but in him, efficiently, meritoriouſly, by ſomething he hath done to gather all together again, when they were all ſhattered in pieces. You heard how All things both in Heaven and Earth are gathered together, and ſumm'd up in the Perſon of Chriſt, who is the founder of this their gathering. We ſhall now ſee, that ere he himſelf could effect a gathering together of All in Heaven and Earth, himſelf muſt be made the Subject of a fatal ſcattering: and as the gathering of All things in his Perſon, is the fundamental Medium unionis, means of union of All things elſe that are united to God by him; that ſo this ſcattering is the means of all that reconciliation of things ſcattered, as hath been ſaid. Chriſt had his ἀνὰ too, he had his gathering again in his own Perſon; and therefore a ſcattering firſt that befel his own Perſon, and what is true of us, is firſt true of him. And by virtue of this it was that we were All gathered; for 'tis a ſure Rule, That what is done in us by him, the like was firſt done for us in Chriſt himſelf; as if we that are poor be made rich, it is becauſe he that was rich was made poor: So in like manner, if he would gather all things that are out of himſelf into one in himſelf, himſelf muſt be ſcattered in himſelf. As his Incarnation was the ſumming up of All, ſo his death the ſcattering of All, and his Reſurrection is his gathering of All again; and we had not God's deſign compleat without all theſe. Now to ſhew, that he was ſcatter'd and ſhatter'd in All, but the Perſonal Union.

Firſt, That his death, it was a ſcattering of him, it was a taking down all, as I may ſo expreſs it. Indeed, the Union could never be taken down; the Union with the Godhead could never be diſſolved, but it went as near as poſſibly could be. You ſhall ſee the expreſſion the Scripture hath, John 11.51,52. when he ſpeaks of gathering all in one that were diſperſt, he ſaith, he muſt do it by his death. It is neceſſary, ſaith he, that Jeſus ſhould die for that Nation. And not for that Nation only; but that alſo he ſhould gather together in one the Children of God, that were ſcattered abroad. You know, that Death is a ſeparation of all things, and ſo it was to Chriſt. Were we cut off from God? Look that phraſe, *Dan.*9.26. Meſſiah ſhall be cut off. There was a diviſion, a ſeparation made. There was theſe three things ſummed up in him, God, the Condition of Angels, the Nature of Man. They are all diſſolved, there was a kind of diſſolution; it came as nigh as could be, ſo as he might ſtill hold a Perſonal union, for that was neceſſary.

Firſt, God. God, you know, is called the Head of Chriſt, 1 Cor. 11.3. Now, when as Jeſus Chriſt came to die, as we were cut off by Sin from God our Head, ſo there was as near a cutting off of Chriſt from God as poſſibly could be. My God, my God, why haſt thou forſaken me, ſaith he? My God, my God ſtill; yet he was turned enemy to him. Zach. 13.7. Awake thou Sword againſt the man that is my fellow. He ſtrikes him, runneth his Sword through his Soul. Here God was gone, yet God is his God ſtill. You ſee here was one ſcattering of that was once ſummed up in him.

Secondly, All the Creatures left him; firſt his Diſciples, as it followeth there in Zechary. Smite the Shepherd and the Sheep ſhall be ſcattered. When he hung upon the Croſs, not an Angel durſt come to comfort him; though whilſt in his Agony in the Garden, when the Curſe came not on him unto its height, not ſo until he hung upon the Tree; and then when the Curſe came in its fulneſs upon him, no Angel did, or durſt appear to comfort him. If the light of the Sun would comfort him, God withdrew it: and in *Dan.*9.24. 'tis expreſly ſaid, the Meſſiah had nothing. So in your Margins.

Serm. XII.

3. In the Third place, He was born (as I said) unto the condition of Angels. He was a Heavenly man, the Lord from Heaven, 1 *Cor.*15. and it was his due to be advanced, as now he is, far above all principality and power; and therein he hath but his due. This I shewed at first, when I told you there was a summing up of all in him. Now what saith *Heb.*2.9? saith he there, We see Jesus, who was made a little lower than the Angels, for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour, &c. To give you the exposition that Learned Camero hath given of it, and certainly it is the right. The Apostle had shewed in the first Chapter, that Christ was above the Angels, and that both as God and Man it was his inheritance, his due, as he saith *vers.*4,6. And *Chap.*2.5. he sheweth, that the World to come is not put into subjection to the Angels, but to Christ, so that, saith he, he hath that glory and that honour above the Angels, as due to him. What did God make him now? He made him, saith he, lower than the Angels, when he came to die. You will say, a little lower: But that same βραχύ is but for a little time; per illud tempus passionis, for the Time of his suffering, that is the meaning of it; for otherwise he was made a great deal lower than the Angels. I am, saith he, a worm and no man, Psal.22.6. that is, lower than the Angels, infinitely lower; but βραχύ for a little while, so Interpreters many of them carry it; A little while, saith he, that is, while he suffered death, as Camero interpreteth it. That Man that had an inheritance above Angels, to whom all things should be put in subjection under his feet, Angels and all; this Man (saith he) he was for a little while made lower than the Angels, and this while he suffered death. So that now, my Brethren, you see, that as God hath forsaken him; so likewise in the next place here is the condition of Angels, that he was born unto, that is gone too, while he tasteth of death for every man.

Well, but he is Man yet? Why, but that is scattered too. What is Man? He is the result of Soul and Body. Take the Soul from the Body, the Humanity ceaseth; there is a Body indeed and a Soul still, but where is the Man? Though he was personally united to the Body in the Grave, and the Soul in Paradise, yet in a proper and strict sense, there was a ceasing to be Man. You know Death is the dissolution of Man into his Soul and Body. Take Christ's own expression, *Joh.*12.19. he calls it an unbuilding or destroying of himself. Destroy this Temple, saith he, take it in pieces, fling one stone from another, (for when he died, his Soul went one way and his Body another,) and, saith he, I will build it again. The Stones were pulled down, it was but unbuilt. It is true, it may be said that he was God-Man, when dead; but it cannot be said he was Man, when dead. Man he was indeed, in respect that his Body and Soul must be united again; but yet in a proper and strict sense, Man he was not then. Here, I say, all is gone, here is a shattering even in Christ himself, so far as possibly may be. The Union could not be dissolved, for then it could not have been said, that God died, and that God was buried, and that God was raised, if the Godhead had not been united to the Body: the union of the Godhead ceased not, the union of the Soul and Body, the Man ceased. Though 'tis true, that the Godhead was united personally to his Body in the Grave, and to his Soul in Paradise, and that Union was never interrupted; yet our Divines, speaking in a strict sense, say, In Triduo desiit homo, He ceased to be Man; as Man consisted of Body and Soul united in one together, so he ceas'd to be Man during the time he lay in the Grave. Here, I say, you see all is gone in his death. Here is his Manhood scattered too.

But what followeth? In his Resurrection all was made up again; he gathereth all together again in one, and by virtue of this we are gathered together in him, for what is done in us, is done first in Jesus Christ. To give you an express Scripture for it, *Act.*13. when Peter speaks of his rising again, saith he at the 33 verse, God hath raised up Jesus again. How doth he prove it? As it is written, saith he, in the Second Psalm, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee. As if all had been shattered, dissolv'd, and taken in pieces, and he was, as it were, new born; God never saw his Son look like his Son, till now; he begets him anew when he raiseth him, bringeth Soul and Body, and all is knit and made up again.

1. His

1. His Body and Soul, they came together again: He was declared to be the Son of God, in that he was raiſed up by the Eternal Spirit; that is, the God-Head. Rom. 1. 4. deſtroy this Temple; he ſpake it of his Body; and then at his Reſurrection, it was verified, that he built it up again; ſo then he was an entire Man again, with Soul and Body united. 2. He is made now an Heavenly Man, in qualities, not only ſuch as the Angels have, but far above the Angels; and is become a quickning Spirit. 3. God is come again, and never ſo near him as now, for he hath admitted him to ſit at his Right-Hand. 4. He is advanced above all principalities, and powers. 1 Pet. 3. laſt. Yea, far above all Principalities, and Powers, Epheſ. 1. 22. and let us ſee the ſame place that ſpake of his abaſement, that he was made a little lower then the Angels, to give teſtimony of his Glory; we ſee him crowned with Glory and Honour. Heb, 2. And in Heaven he ſits as a Head and Redeemer, to draw all men to him, in all Times and Ages to come; until he is compleat, in reſpect of his Body, which is his fulneſs.

Thus you ſee my Brethren, how all is made up, when all was ſhattered, and all broken to pieces, by the ſhattering of Chriſt himſelf; God, and the condition of Angels, and the nature of man in a ſenſe, all being as it were diſſolved, although the Union with the Godhead was kept. So you ſee now, this Third Interpretation made good, That there is a gathering together again, when all in Earth, and all in Heaven were ſhattered, in and through Chriſt.

There is a Fourth Interpretation, a Fourth ſignification rather to make up all compleat, I ſhall give it you in a word, for it is a thing caſt in by Chriſt, and therefore I will not inſiſt upon it. I told you this, that he would reſtore all things to the firſt Original; I laid open that, when I expounded the words, I remember at Firſt. And therefore, many Tranſlators read it Inſtaurare, to reſtore all things, which is reſerv'd, as the Complement of all, in the fulneſs of time; and others, though they do not reject it, yet they ſay it is not the full meaning of the words, but it falleth ſhort.

Well, my Brethren, what doth this hold forth to us? You ſee all is in Chriſt's perſon, here are Angels and Men made a body to him. Well, take all things in Heaven and in Earth, all Creatures elſe, and they ſhall all be reſtored to him, and when that is done, there is all God's full Plot, all that was in his heart toward Chriſt, and us, and the whole Creation. There is a time a coming wherein the Creatures ſhall be reſtored, all things in Heaven and in Earth, to their firſt Original, and a more glorious condition, in and through Chriſt. It is a thing indeed that cometh in by accident, it was but caſt into his bargain, he came to gather together Men and Angels, but yet this is caſt together into the bargain.

To open this unto you a little. Man falleth. With his fall what ſhould have fallen? The World ſhould have fallen about his ears, as Traytors, you know their Houſes ſhould be pulled down and made a Jakes. What doth Jeſus Chriſt? He buyeth the World of his Father; I will pay for it ſaith he, and will have it into the bargain. He payeth for wicked men that live in the World, therefore it is ſaid they deny the Lord that bought them; that is the meaning of that, 2 Pet. 2. 1. He buyeth wicked Men and all the World at one lump of God, in the mean time he upholdeth it. It was ſaid of David, Chriſt's Type, Pſal. 75. 3. The Earth is diſſolved, and the Inhabitants thereof, I bear up the Pillars of it; and Chriſt upholdeth all things (ſo ſaith the Text, Heb. 1 3.) by the word of his power, (it is ſpoken of Chriſt.) And my Brethren, when he hath governed the World, and made it ſerve, though indirectly, that all works together for good, though wicked men have it directly, and the Devils they carry the World away with them, and have done ſince the Creation, but they ſhall not do ſo always; there is a time a coming, wherein all things in Heaven and in Earth, ſhall be reſtored to their firſt condition, to a glorious condition, in and through Chriſt. Read but Rom. 8. 19, 21. there the Apoſtle is expreſs for it, for the earneſt expectation of the Creature, ſaith he, waiteth for the manifeſtation of the Sons of God. For the Creature was made ſubject to vanity, not willingly, but by reaſon of him who hath ſubjected the ſame in hope; becauſe the Creature it ſelf alſo ſhall be delivered from the bondage of corruption, into the glorious liberty of the Children of God: For we know that the whole Creation groaneth and travelleth in pain together till now. And delivered, saith he, they shall be, if not before the Day of Judgment, yet certainly while the Day of Judgment lasteth, which will be a long day, while Christ will be upon Earth and judge Angels and Men. As the first Adam did bring them all into bondage, by reason of Sin; (for as all was created for him, so most justly the whole frame and fabrick of what was made for him, was subjected to bondage by reason of his Sin, and would have fallen to nothing had not Christ upheld it:) So the second Adam shall restore All unto a liberty; and this in *Act.*13.21. is called, the restitution of all things: not of Angels and Men only, but of All things. It was meet that Christ, having taken the Nature of man, that is the sum of All things, that therefore all things should have some benefit thereby in their several kinds and capacities, and be in their kind gathered and restored according to their capacity; and when this shall be done, then God's design of gathering is fully accomplished. And though the time was full in respect of the Center of it, when Christ came; and therefore it is said, that in the fulness of time he might gather all, in the Text; yet the fulness of time in the circumference is yet to come, and is then when we shall be gathered to Christ; as in 2 *Thess.*2.1. the time of the Resurrection and Judgment, is called.

And unto this doth Bishop Davenant, as divers Others, extend this word, because of the word πάντα, speaking of Things; and not πάντας, speaking of Persons only.

And, my Brethren, it became Christ thus, into the bargain to restore all things in Heaven and in Earth. He created all things, therefore it is fit he should restore all things; they were all created by him and for him. The first Adam lost them, (so saith *Rom.*8.) but they were subjected under hope of a second Adam, that should come and restore them.

So now, I shewed you the splendor of the Universal Church, out of Rev. 5. and we will add the Creatures to them, at that general Assembly at the last day. I shewed you, that all things on Earth will meet then, and the Angels will meet then; a representation of it you have there, though I will not say it is the full intendment of the place, yet it will hold forth much unto us. Read over the 9,10,11,12,13. verses of that 5*th* of the Revelations, you shall see all things brought into Christ's presence. First, you have Men, All things on Earth, v.9. They sung a new Song, saying, Worthy art thou to take the Book, and to open the Seals thereof; for thou wast slain, and hast redeemed us to God by thy Blood, out of every Kindred, and Tongue, and People, and Nation. Here is all on Earth gathered together, as I shewed you before. And I beheld (saith he, verse 11.) and I heard the voice of many Angels round about the Throne, (here Angels come in too,) saying, Worthy is the Lamb that was slain, to receive power, &c. Here you see God hath gathered both Angels and Men together, they both come in. Well, now there is but the Creatures wanting; read the next verse, And every Creature which is in Heaven, and on the Earth, and under the Earth, and such as are in the Sea, and all that are in them, heard I, saying, Blessing, honour, glory and power be unto him that sitteth upon the Throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever: Because not only Angels and Men are thus gathered in one unto him, but all the Creatures shall be restored; every Creature that is in Heaven, and in Earth, and under the Earth, they all afford and administer matter of glory to Man to praise God. My Brethren, now you see the sum of gathering all in Christ.

A Meditation or Two.

First, View and contemplate, with admiration and astonishment, the glory and splendor of Christ, and his Universal Church, to move your hearts to seek to be one thereof, and not left out of this number and gathering up of All things. You have the representation of this Church Universal, during this World, in *Rev.*5. And *Chap.*7. you have first the Church of Men; Four Beasts, and four and twenty Elders, next the Throne; falling down and worshipping him that is on the Throne, and the Lamb. Thou hast redeemed us, say they, there are All things on Earth; out of every Kindred, Tongue, Nation, and People, Chap.5.9. Secondly, You have a round of All in Heaven; they come in too, vers.11,12. And I beheld, and I heard the voice of many Angels round about the Throne, and the Beasts, and the Elders; and the number of them was ten thousand Thouſand times Ten Thouſand, and Thouſands of Thouſands; ſaying with a loud Voice, worthy is the Lamb that was ſlain, to receive Power, and Riches, and Wiſdom, and Strength, and Honour, and Glory, and Bleſſing. You have the like, Chap. 7. 9, 10, 11. Then Thirdly, you have a ring of all the Creatures that are round about both Angels and Men; that afford matter of praiſe unto God for his Creating them. Chap. 5. 13, 14. This is the Scheme, and repreſentations, as in this World; O, but what will it be at the great day, when Chriſt will come in his own, and his Fathers glory, with all his holy Angels, when Chriſt, that hath all thing in his Perſon, ſhall appear in his fulneſs! And all the Holy Angels, and Saints of the Sons of Men, that have been exiſtent from the beginning of the World to that day; and not one wanting, but that Chriſt will raiſe it up at the laſt day; and then when all theſe ſhall go to Heaven, and be ever together; when God ſhall have all his Sons about him, and his eldeſt Son in the midſt of them; then he will bring forth all his Treaſures of glory, that ſhall laſt, and not be ſpent to all Eternity. Serm. XII.

Secondly, Make ſure to be one of this great Aſſembly; let men flock unto, and get into Chriſt by cluſters, Gen. 49. 11. to him ſhall the gathering of the People be. Jeſus Chriſt ſetteth up his Standard, come into Jeſus Chriſt, not to be as Judas, who fell ſhort by iniquity from this lot; 'tis a fatal ſaying of Peter's to Simon Magus, thou haſt no part nor portion in this matter; that ſo innumerable a company ſhould be gathered under this one Head, and that thou ſhould'ſt be ſhut out. I have but further to move you to it, Two things out of the Text; you muſt be gathered one way, either to Chriſt or Satan; you muſt fall either to Chriſt's or the Devils allotment and ſhare; as Chriſt is the Head of all that ſhall be ſaved, Ephes. 1. latter end; ſo the Devil is the Head of all the Children of diſobedience, Ephes. 2. 2. And as Chriſt is the Head of the Angels, though he be not of the ſame nature with them; ſo is the Devil of men, and at the end of the World, when Chriſt ſhall have taken out all theſe his own, all the reſt ſhall be caſt into the Fire, prepared for the Devil and his Angels. The Old expreſſion in the Old Teſtament was, That Men were gathered to their Fathers, the wicked unto Cætus Gigantum, unto the company of the Giants; thoſe wicked ones afore the Flood, from whom Hell hath its denomination, as the firſt Inhabitants of it; in Prov. 21. 16. ſo the Language of the New is, to be gathed to there Devil and his Angels, to the Fire prepared for them.

I will give you but one Obſervation and ſo I will end. The Obſervation is this. (It is from this ſame gathering together again,) That God to ſhew forth his Glory and his Skil and his Grace the more, goeth over his works again the ſecond time ſpoils them, ſhatters them in pieces, and then makes them better than ever: This is his manner. Shattered, you ſee, are all things in Heaven and in Earth, here is his Glory now to make them up again: This makes his Glory illuſtrious, and his work illuſtrious. To give you an inſtance or two, and then to make a little uſe of it, and ſo conclude.

God created Man according to his Image you know at firſt; (and certainly had you lived with Adam, you would not have known how you could have been happy.) A Glorious Creature he was, he had the Image of God drawn upon him, he was God's Herald, he had his Arms upon his breſt: On a ſudden, after God had drawn this Picture, he daſheth it, breaketh it in pieces, ſtrikes out all he had done. What was the reaſon of this? He meaneth to make it up better; he meaneth to frame upon Man, the Image of Chriſt, and make him like unto him; You bore the Image of the Earthly, but I will make a better Image for you, you ſhall bear the Image of the Heavenly, you ſhall be changed from Glory to Glory. Thus he goes over his work again, after he had ſpoyled the firſt.

So likewiſe, he createth Man at firſt Immortal; there was a poſſibility he ſhould die, but by the Providence of God, he ſhould not have dyed. What doth God? He takes and divides Soul and body, and flings the Body into the Grave, there to rot: What is his end in this? He will raiſe it up a Spiritual Body, more glorious Ten Thouſand times than it was at firſt. What ſaith the Apoſtle, 1. Cor. 15? Firſt, ſaith he, that which is natural, and then, that which is Spiritual.

Serm. XII.

Go, take his choſen People the Jews; they were the only Nation, his darling; theirs were the Oracles of God, the Promiſes, the Covenant and they were all in all with him for many thouſand years. Why? he ſcatters them, breaks them all in pieces; the Ten Tribes he carrieth captive away long before the Two Tribes, and then the Two Tribes: And when he had thus ſcattered them all, what is his Promiſe? *Iſai.*11.10,11. It ſhall come to paſs (ſaith the Text) that the Lord ſhall ſet his hand again the ſecond time to recover the remnant of his People: And (verſe 12.) he ſhall gather again the diſperſed of Judah from the four Corners of the Earth. He will gather them together in one again. What ſaith the Apoſtle, *Rom.*11.11? Have they ſtumbled, ſaith he, that they ſhould fall? Or as the Prophet Jeremy expreſſeth it, we may allude to it, if it be not the meaning of the place, *Jer.*8.4. Shall they fall, and not riſe? He compareth the caſting off of the Jews but to a ſtumbling, it was no more; yet it was the greateſt ſtumble that ever was, for they ſtumbled upon the Rock, Chriſt; they crucified him, and yet God calls it but a ſtumbling; but it was a ſtumbling of a long ſtride, for it was 1600 years. But, ſhall they ſtumble, ſaith he, that they ſhall fall? No, he will recover them again. Shall they fall, and not riſe? Yes, and their riſing ſhall be life from the dead, as it followeth *verſ.*12,13. In *Ezek.*37.3. God compareth them to dry Bones; Can theſe dry Bones live, ſaith he? Their hope was gone, all was gone. Behold, ſaith he, verſe 5. I will cauſe breath to enter into theſe Bones, and they ſhall live. He comes over them the ſecond time, and makes all theſe Bones come together, and fleſh comes upon them, and they ſhall live, and he will never caſt them off again. Compare but *Rom.*11.26. the Apoſtle quoteth but one Scripture to prove the Calling of the Jews there; it is out of *Iſai.*59. Read but that Chapter, and you ſhall find, that when they are once called, he will never caſt them off again; but their ſeeds ſeed ſhall remain for ever. And *Iſai.*65.17. he ſaith, that the former Heaven and Earth ſhall no more be remembred, nor come into mind.

This, my Brethren, is the manner of God. I ſhould give you the reaſon of it, but I muſt paſs on. I will conclude with a ſhort Uſe. You ſee here, how all Mankind ran into a confuſion, here is a ſhattering in pieces of Heaven and Earth, and God gathred up all again. Fear not God's ſhattering nor breaking things in pieces. You think our Kingdom now is running into confuſion, confuſion in Opinions; the Saints are divided, one runs one way, and another runneth another; one holdeth one Opinion, and another holdeth another. My Brethren, although the revealed Will of God is, that they ſhould all agree, yet notwithſtanding all this ſcattering and diviſion, God will in the end bring forth a glorious gathering together in one. If he pull down the Tabernacle ſet up, and the frame and form of it, he will ſet up a better. If he pull down the Temple, it is in three days to build it up again, and make it better, as Chriſt's Body was, when he roſe again. Never fear, I ſay, God's ſhattering things, God's unbuilding.

To give you an Inſtance. God ſet up a glorious Church in the Primitive times, and it was according to the pattern. What doth he do? He ſendeth Antichriſt into the world, and he pulls it down and defiles all the worſhip of God; there is a falling away to be (ſaith he, ſo he calls it 2 *Theſſ.*2.3.) both in worſhip and doctrine. And, what hath God done? He hath reaſonably well built it up again, recovered this Temple out of the hands of Antichriſt; he had once all Nations following him, as you have it, *Rev.*13.4.7. Why, ere Chriſt hath done, all Nations ſhall worſhip him; he had loſt them all, he gathers all again. Fear not his ſcattering then.

There was a Reformation made, when firſt we came out of Popery. My Brethren, what is imperfect, God will pull down certainly; he will ſcatter you, he will melt you; and what is his end? to fetch out the droſs, and when he hath done, you ſhall have a purer Reformation come out of all. This is his manner. Fear not, I ſay, therefore his ſcattering: And he will never ceaſe till he hath brought the Church, not only to that purity that was in the Primitive times, but to a purer. When the Whore is burnt and caſt off, and the Bride cometh to dreſs her ſelf for the Lamb, as you have it *Rev.*14. and *Chap.*18. the Apoſtle ſaith, he fell down and worſhipped the Angel, that brought this news. This, ſaith he, is better than ever I ſaw, than ever was in his time, he would never have worſhipped ſhipped for it elſe; nay, he could ſcarce be brought to believe it, the Angel was fain to ſay, Theſe are the ſayings of God, and they are true. Thus, when God goeth to break all, he meaneth to mend all; and he will never ceaſe till he hath brought the Church to the full ſtature of a perfect man in Chriſt. Fear not confuſions therefore, for the iſſue of them will be a cloſing in the end, it will be a gathering together of all again in one. Serm. XII.

Again, After the Reformation, the Church is to get power againſt Antichriſt, and againſt all his Adherents; The Witneſſes, ſaith he, ſhall have power to do thus and thus, *Rev.*11. ye, but after that power, when they have gotten it and carried it as you think they ſhall do, there will be an unbuilding, a ſcattering of the Power, of the holy People, ſo it is expreſt *Dan.*12.7. he ſpeaks there of theſe latter times. Fear it not, for if God pull down one Temple, he will ſet up the Holy of Holieſt afterward. And as it followeth in that ſame 12*th* of Daniel, Bleſſed are thoſe that come to thoſe days; and thrice bleſſed indeed are they, for they ſhall ſee better times. Fear not therefore God's ſcattering. What a miſerable confuſion was there when Man fell! All was ſcattered, Man divided from God, from Angels, from himſelf. Chriſt came into the world when all Nations were divided, Men from Men, and things on Earth from things in Heaven. So he will do in the Church, ſcatter all that he may, make all up again; melt all, that he may mend all. Fear not then his ſcattering.

I have done you ſee with the deſign it ſelf, which God had. I am now to come to the Time when this great diſpenſation began, when God did break up his Decrees that had laid hid from everlaſting in his breaſt, and ordered the diſpenſation and adminiſtration of things to his Church; and then I ſhall have finiſhed the 10*th* verſe.

The Text telleth us, that he purpoſed in himſelf, in or for the diſpenſation of the fulneſs of time, to gather together all things in Him.

Concerning this time, firſt in General, the meaning is this, That God that hath made every buſineſs under the Sun, hath ſet a time for it. So you have it *Eccl.*3.1. To every thing, ſaith he, there is a ſeaſon, and a time to every purpoſe under the Sun. Here is now a diſpenſation of the fulneſs of Seaſons, (ſo the word ſignifieth) and of the greateſt purpoſes God had, (not under the Heavens, but before the Heavens were,) which he purpoſed in himſelf from everlaſting. A time, ſaith he, there is to be born; If there be a time to be born, and a time to die, (as the ſecond verſe ſaith) there was certainly a fulneſs of time when Meſſiah ſhould be born, when all things ſhould be gathered in the perſon of Chriſt in one, and when all ſhould be ſcattered again, and he ſhould die, as I opened before. There is a time, ſaith he, *v.*3. to break down, and a time to build up. So there is a time when he ſuffered all the world to lie ſcattered, and a time when he buildeth them up. The word Diſpenſation, is a Family word, and is taken from rearing, or building up an Houſe. There is a time, ſaith he, *v.*5. to caſt ſtones away, and a time to gather ſtones together. God let all the ſtones, both of Jews and Gentiles, lie ſcattered; but when the ſet time came he had pity upon thoſe Stones, (as the expreſſion is *Pſ.*102.14.) and gather'd them all in one. It was a diſpenſation of the fulneſs of times.

I am to open here theſe Three things:

1. What is meant by fulneſs of times.
2. Why diſpenſation of the fulneſs of times, is added.
3. In, or for: For indeed the word rather ſignifieth, For the diſpenſation of times, than in.

1. For the fulneſs of times, when this great project of God began to take its birth, as I may ſo ſpeak. There was ſome ſhews of it before, but when the great delivery was, that was when Chriſt came firſt into the world, and after his Aſcenſion into Heaven, then Jews and Gentiles were called, and Angels fall down before him and acknowledge him their Head, and all things were gathered together in one. There was firſt a fulneſs of times when this was done; and ſecondly, a fulneſs of ſeaſons, for ſo the word in the Original ſignifieth. It is not only a fulneſs of time, as you have it, *Gal.*4.4. but it is alſo a fulneſs of ſeaſons: for ſo I ſay the word ſignifieth.

Firſt, It was a fulneſs of time for this great work, when Chriſt came into the world. And why was it a fulneſs of time? What is meant by fulneſs of time here?

Serm. XII.

Then is time ſaid to be full, when all Ages are run out, that God ſhall come to turn the Glaſs, and ſet the lower end upwards, as I may ſo expreſs it. Or if you will have it in Gal. 4. 2. the time appointed by the Father, ſo it is called there; it is called the fulneſs of time, in the Fourth Verſe. There is a time ſaith he, that God hath ſet, ſo many Ages ſhall run out, and when they are run out, I will turn the Glaſs, and begin a new diſpenſation and adminiſtration of things in the World, I will ſend my Son. When times appointed by God are run out, then is a fulneſs of times. I will give you a Scripture for that Phraſe, it is Luke 21. 24. he ſaith, Jeruſalem ſhall be trodden down, till the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled; that is, till the times be expired, that God hath given to the Gentiles to enjoy the Goſpel alone; and when that time is expired, he will call the Jews, and till then Jeruſalem ſhall be trodden down. So that this is the Firſt ſignification of it, it is till all times be run out that God hath appointed. There is as you know, the Firſt Age of the World, and the Latter Age of the World, you may juſtly compare it to your Hour-glaſs, when the former Age was expired, when all is run out, and the bottom glaſs is filled, then God cometh and turneth up a new Adminiſtration, and beginneth another Diſpenſation.

In the Second place, It is not only a fulneſs of Times, but is a fulneſs of Seaſons; ſo the Text hath it.

Chriſt came into the World in the Center of Seaſons, when the World was ripe, when as all things called for him, the condition both of Jew and Gentile, the full time was come, the Harveſt was ripe, as our Saviour Chriſt doth expreſs it to his Apoſtles. When Chriſt came into the World to begin a new Adminiſtration and diſpenſation of things, it is called a due time, Rom. 5. 6. in due time (or in due ſeaſon, as the word is,) Chriſt dyed for the ungodly.

Now, why was it a fulneſs of time Firſt, and Secondly; why was it a fulneſs of Seaſon?

It was a fulneſs of Time, why? For the World had ſtaid long for it, they had ſtaid Four Thouſand years, before the Meſſiah of the World came. Great Actions have long delaies, ſo God doth order things in his Diſpenſations, great Mercies have long delaies; the greateſt Mercy that ever was, had Four Thouſand years after it was promiſed, and then came the fulneſs of time.

But why a fulneſs of Seaſon? Why my Brethren, it was a fit Seaſon for the Jews, and it was a fit Seaſon for the Gentiles that Chriſt ſhould come into the world when he did, and that he ſhould ſtay long before he came.

It was a fit ſeaſon for the Jews, for the Church of God, (which was only confined to the Jews,) they were as a man to grow up by degrees, to be a Child firſt, and then to grow up to Youth; and when a full Age was come, then to receive their Inheritance. This is the very reaſon the Apoſtle giveth, Gal. 4. 2, 3. which reſpecteth the Jews; he compareth the Jewiſh Church there, God's firſt Church, to a Child, though an Heir, but an Heir under age. This Heir, ſaith he, ſo long as he is a Child, differeth nothing from a Servant, but he is under Tutors and Governours. He is under the government, under the diſpenſation of what? Under the elements of the World, under his A b c; for ſo was Moſes Law. The Church of God was an Infant, and was to grow up by degrees; firſt to learn its letters, its A b c; for ſuch, I ſay, was the Ceremonial Law, the types of it. And then came David and the Prophets, and led them up further; but the Church was not grown to Man's eſtate till Chriſt came: what followeth then? When the fulneſs of time was come (verſe 4.) God ſent his Son, made of a Woman, &c. It was fit that the Jewiſh Church, or whoever was a Church, it was fit they ſhould for a while be under Non-age, and have a diſpenſation, an Oeconomy, a diſpenſation that was fit for a Child; but when they were come up unto Man's eſtate, then the great Heir of the World, Chriſt himſelf, their elder Brother, cometh into the World to beſtow their Inheritance upon them.

In the Second place, It was a fit ſeaſon in regard of the Gentiles too: For you know I ſaid, it was to gather together all things on Earth, not Jews only, but Gentiles, as I have expounded. Now God ordered, that Chriſt ſhould not come into the world, till about the time he meant to have the Gentiles called; and there was great reaſon that he ſhould ſtay the Experiment of many thouſand years, years, before the Gentiles ſhould be called; he would not have Chriſt come into the world, till he ſhould break up his Decrees, till there ſhould be the great birth of his everlaſting Purpoſes, that both Jew and Gentile ſhould come in. Serm. XII.

When Chriſt was to come into the World, he was not to ſtay long for his reward. What was his reward that he bargain'd for? Not for the Jew only, but alſo for the Gentile. *Iſai.*49.5,6. it is driven there, by God the Father, bargain-wiſe: when he ſaw that he was to die only for the Jew, ſaith he, *ver.*4. I have laboured in vain, and ſpent my ſtrength for nought. But what ſaith God in anſwer to him at the 6*th* verſe, Is it a light thing that thou ſhouldeſt be my Servant, to raiſe up the Tribes of Jacob, and to reſtore the preſerved of Iſrael? I will alſo give thee for a light to the Gentiles, that thou maiſt be my ſalvation unto the ends of the Earth. Our Saviour Chriſt would have complained, if he had not had the Gentiles brought in after his death; therefore God ordered his coming into the World then, when he meant to have both Jew and Gentile to be brought in; then ſhould the deſires of all Nations come, as you know he is called.

And there was a great deal of reaſon, that God ſhould ſuffer the Gentiles and all the World to lie in ſin, long before Chriſt came, that there might be a fulneſs of ſeaſon for his coming. Why? I will give you Scripture reaſon.

Firſt, He would have Mankind try all the ways they could for to be ſaved, and when they had tried, all in vain. Lo your Phyſician, ſaith he, there is he that ſhall help you. You have it *Act.*17.26,27,28,29. He ſpeaks expreſly to the point, (to open the Text) he telleth the Athenians there, ver. 26. that God had made of one bloud all Nations of men, and determined their times and the bounds of their habitation; and he was pleaſed to ſet ſuch times wherein the Gentiles ſhould walk in their own ways: he would afford them but the help of nature, That they ſhould ſeek the Lord, verſe 27. if happily they might feel after him, find him in his works by groping in the dark, though, ſaith he, he be not far from every one of you. Let them try all their works of nature, whatever might do them any good; when he ſaw all theſe would ſtand you in no ſtead, then, ſaith he, he ſendeth his Son into the World. When they had tried all in vain, then there was a fulneſs of ſeaſon. God now, ſaith he, verſe 30. commandeth all men every where to repent.

I will back this with another Scripture, it is 1 Cor. 1. 21. He had left the World, the Gentiles, to their Philoſophy, (the wiſdom of the World, he calleth it, *verſ.*20.) to find out the way to be ſaved. Where is the Wiſdom of this World? You Philoſophers, where are you? God (ſaith he) hath made fooliſh the wiſdom of this World. All the light that Nature hath, how made he it fooliſh? After that (ſaith he, *v.*21.) the world by wiſdom knew not God. I will try you, whether by that wiſdom I gave you by nature you will come to know me, I will turn Nature every way. Mark now, After that, ſaith he, when through their corrupt wiſdom they did abuſe that light God gave them, and inſtead of knowing God, worſhipped Idols, it pleaſed God by the fooliſhneſs of Preaching, to ſave them that believe among the Gentiles; to ſend Chriſt, and by the preaching of the Goſpel to ſave theſe poor Gentiles, after they had tried all ways. So that it was the fulneſs of ſeaſon every way.

I will but add one Scripture more, and ſo I will leave it. It was fit that all men ſhould corrupt their ways to the full, before the Meſſiah came. As they ſhould try all ways, how they could grope after God, and pervert all the wiſdom and light God gave them, ſo to be corrupted to the uttermoſt; for then the Phyſician comes moſt ſeaſonable to adminiſter Phyſick, when the diſeaſe is at the height. Read but the 14*th* and the 53 Pſalms, and read the laſt verſe of both. The Apoſtle quoteth both thoſe two Pſalms in *Rom.*3.14. to ſhew that all Mankind was corrupt. The Fool hath ſaid in his heart, there is no God; corrupt they are and have done abominable, they are altogether become filthy, there is none that doth good, no not one; their throat is an open Sepulchre, &c. What followeth? Oh, that the Redeemer would come out of Zion! That is the laſt verſe of thoſe Pſalms. When David, by the Spirit of Prophecy, fore-ſaw that all men ſhould corrupt their ways, that they were all full of wickedneſs, and that the World could never be ſaved of themſelves, and that they had tried all ſort of ways to help help themſelves, and all in vain; then, Oh, that the Redeemer would come out of Zion! Now is the time for the deſire of all Nations, the Redeemer longed for to come; he ſpeaks it upon occaſion of the univerſal corruption of all Mankind. Here was a fulneſs of ſeaſon, when God ſent his Son into the World to gather in one both Jew and Gentile.

So now you ſee what is meant by fulneſs of time, and by fulneſs of ſeaſon. Fulneſs of time, is, when all the times appointed by God were run out, fulfilled. Fulneſs of ſeaſon, is, whenas there was the fulneſs of Seaſon for the Jews, that was to be a Child grown to age; for the Gentiles, when they had all corrupted their ways, then it was a fit ſeaſon for the Meſſiah to come. And that is the Firſt.

But Secondly, What is meant by Diſpenſation, εἰς οἰκονομίαν, in, or for the diſpenſation of the fulneſs of times. The truth is, to read it for is more genuine and more natural; and what is the meaning of it? Some interpret it, In the diſpenſation of times, that is ſay they, Time wiſely diſpenſed. God is the Steward of Time, and he did wiſely diſpenſe it; he gave every Age a portion, and in the end brought forth this fulneſs of time, wherein he diſpenſeth his Son. But I take it, it is not ſo much meant of the diſpenſation of times properly taken, of Times ordered, although that is a true meaning of it. But it is taken Metaphorically; the Fulneſs of time is ſaid to have a diſpenſation, a new diſpenſation, which new diſpenſation is to gather all things in one. The latter daies, when Chriſt came into the World, it ſhould have a new buſineſs, a new diſpenſation; there ſhould be a new adminiſtration of thoſe times, to begin from that time and continue to the end of the World.

See Jackſon, Book 7. p. 42.

We know that Time, is ſaid, to do that which is done in time; As for Example, you find in Scripture, a day is ſaid to bring forth, ſo here it is ſaid, that time doth diſpenſe. He compareth it to a Steward, as in other places he compareth it to a Womb, or a Mother, ſo here to a Steward that hath a Diſpenſation. It is not meant of diſpenſatio temporis, ſo much as diſpenſatio rerum, of things in time. In the 6*th* verſe of the Epiſtle of Jude, the great Day of the Lord is expreſſed thus, The Judgment of the Great Day. Why, the Great Day is not the Judge? It is called the Judgment of that Day, becauſe it is done in that Day. So here, The diſpenſation of the fulneſs of time, it is not the diſpenſation of time properly taken, the ordering of time, though that is included; but it is meant the buſineſs of time. So that the ſcope is this, That God did appoint that the latter daies, (which is meant the fulneſs of time, from the time that Chriſt was born, and ſo on,) he intended this to be the diſpenſation, the buſineſs, the adminiſtration of the World from that time, to gather all together in one.

It agreeth with what the Apoſtle ſaith, Heb. 1. 11. God, ſaith he, did at ſundry times, and in divers manners, ſpeak in times paſt unto our Fathers by the Prophets; he hath in theſe laſt days ſpoken unto us by his Son. There is a new buſineſs, a new diſpenſation of things belonging to the fulneſs of time, to the latter daies, from the time of Chriſt. He beginneth to alter the diſpenſation of himſelf to his Church; he turneth the Jewiſh Church into Chriſtian, out of one Nation to another; he turneth all the types of the Law into his Son, for his Son is nothing but the types of the Law really expreſt. This is now the diſpenſation of the fulneſs of time; he makes that the buſineſs of the laſt Age, to ſend his Son into the World, to make him the Head of his Church Viſible; whom Angels ſhall acknowledge, whom all things that are in Heaven and in Earth, ſhall come in to that, are his Elect both Jews and Gentiles. This was, ſaith he, reſerved for the fulneſs of time, to be the buſineſs of the latter Age. This is the meaning of it.

I will come to an Obſervation or two, and ſo end. You ſee, my Brethren, that there was a fulneſs of time when Chriſt came into the world; the World ſtaied long firſt, it ſtaid four thouſand years. Learn this Obſervation from it, That if you wait for a great Mercy, you muſt have many times and daies run out before the fulneſs of time cometh, to have it. You cannot have a greater inſtance; for how long did the World ſtay for Chriſt? Four thouſand years, as I ſaid before. Thou art a poor Soul, that haſt waited for Chriſt long to come into thy heart; how many years haſt thou waited? The World waited Four thouſand thouſand years to have Chriſt come into it. It is the greateſt Mercy thou art capable of to have Chriſt come into thy heart; he is well worthy thy waiting for then. It is no argument that he will not come, becauſe he ſtays long; for ſhould the World have argued, that becauſe he ſtaid two parts of the three, therefore he would not come at all? No; Great Mercies, they are long a coming, for the Meſſias was ſo. The breaking up of God's heart, of the great deſign, of all the Treaſures there, you ſee it was hid in himſelf from the beginning of the World for ſo many thouſand years. That's the firſt Obſervation. Serm. XII.

The Second is this, That God may let men go on in ſin long, and give them Chriſt too for all that. You ſee, God let the world go on in ſin, try all ways to help themſelves; let all the world corrupt their own ways; he did it for a long time, and at laſt in the fulneſs of time ſent his Son. Thou maiſt try all ways; try Duties, try what thou canſt, how far corrupt Nature may go, and God may give thee Chriſt at laſt. He did ſo by the world; after that by their wiſdom they knew not God, he ſent his Son made of a Woman. When God hath given thee light, and thou haſt tried a thouſand ways, thy Duties, and this and that to get Chriſt, and thou haſt ſet up a Ladder to Heaven, to get Chriſt this way and that way. After thou haſt tried ~~all~~ things, he ſends Chriſt into thy heart, when thy caſe is deſperate, when thy heart is forlorn, then Chriſt cometh.

There is a Third Obſervation, that I will but mention; it is this, That God is the Lord of all time. He appointeth the fulneſs of Times.

SER-

Serm. XII.

SERMON XIII.

EPHES. 1. 11, 12, 13, 14.

In whom alſo we have obtained an Inheritance, being predeſtinated according to the purpoſe of him, who worketh all things after the counſel of his own Will, &c.

I Will give you firſt, the general ſcope of the words; and ſecondly I ſhall open them unto you particularly.

Firſt, For the general ſcope of the 11, 12, 13, 14*th* verſes, it is to apply all that he had doctrinally ſaid in the firſt Ten verſes. He had ſpoken of Predeſtination, of Adoption to glory or an Inheritance, of Redemption, of Vocation, and of gathering together all in one: Of theſe things he had diſcourſed in general, in a doctrinal way, from the third verſe to the 11*th*. Now he beginneth particularly to apply all theſe; for in the opening of them you ſhall perceive there is nothing almoſt he had delivered doctrinally, but he applieth and comforteth the People of God with it.

He had ſaid, that God had intended to gather all in Heaven and all in Earth to himſelf, (that is the laſt thing ſpoken to in the 10*th* verſe.) To apply this to things in Heaven there was no need, for he was not a Preacher to Angels, to ſpeak directly unto them; therefore he applieth it only unto things on Earth. All things on Earth are divided into Jew and Gentile: Firſt therefore he applieth it unto the Jews, In whom we (ſaith he) have obtained an Inheritance, that we ſhould be to the praiſe of his glory, who firſt truſted in Chriſt. Here are the Jews, whom God called firſt; we Apoſtles, we Jews. Then he applieth it unto the Gentiles, and that under the Epheſians, whom he wrote to; In whom ye alſo truſted (verſe 13.) after that you heard, the word of Truth, &c.

He had ſpoken of a great gathering into one in Chriſt. Let us Jews (ſaith he) and Apoſtles, comfort our ſelves, we have a part in it; and the Epheſians and the Gentiles, comfort your ſelves, ye have a part in it too; (as you ſhall hear that the word ſignifieth by and by.) So much for the general ſcope.

Now to open the words particularly; and firſt to begin with the application that he makes to the Jews, in the 11*th* and 12*th* verſes. The firſt word that we meet withal to be opened, is this, In whom we have obtained an Inheritance; ſo it is tranſlated, and rightly tranſlated too: but I ſhall giv: you ſomewhat a larger meaning of it, which they that are Scholars do well know it agreeth with the meaning of the word; for I profeſs, this rule and principle in opening of the word, (though there be a more eminent ſcope of one thing than another,) yet to take in the moſt comprehenſive meaning that can be given of things, for the Holy Ghoſt hath vaſt aims in writing of the Scripture.

Ἐκληρώθημεν, That is the word here which is tranſlated, We alſo have obtained an Inheritance. To open this word to you. There is two things to be opened concerning it.

The Firſt is, What the word cometh from and importeth.

The Second is, The kind of the Verb; for it is a Verb; I ſhall make it plain by and by to the eaſieſt capacity.

That

That which is contained in the ſubſtance of the word, for the ſignification of it is this. The word κλῆρος, which it cometh from, it noteth out firſt, having a part or a portion in a thing. I ſhall give you clear Scripture for every ſignification I give you of it. It noteth out firſt, I ſay, having a part or a portion in a thing, being partaker with others of the ſame thing. That is the firſt ſignification of the word κλῆρος, and ſo it cometh in fitly here: He had ſpoken of gathering all things in Heaven and in Earth in one, in Chriſt; In whom we (ſaith he) have a part, in this Chriſt, in whom all are gathered; Let us comfort our ſelves, we have a part. That is the firſt. I ſhall give you a Scripture where the word Cleros (whence this word cometh) is taken for a part, a portion in common. Read *Act.*8.21. ſpeaking of Simon Magus, Thou haſt no part or portion, or lot or portion. It is the ſame word that this word cometh of. Ser. XIII.

Now, my Brethren, what is the Obſervation from hence? Do but ask your own hearts, (you have heard of this great gathering in the 10*th* verſe,) have you a part in it? have you a portion in it? You are to apply the word as you go; you ſee the Apoſtle doth ſo: when he had ſpoken of this general gathering of all things in Chriſt, now he cometh to apply it; in whom we have a part, ſaith he; In whom ye alſo have a part, ſaith he. Haſt thou a part in it? Let me ask thee the queſtion; ask thine own heart the queſtion. Oh, to be found not to have a ſhare in this great gathering, what a miſery will it be! That is the firſt thing it ſignifieth, a part or portion.

In the Second place, It ſignifieth a part or portion of an Inheritance. The word κλῆρος is often uſed for an Inheritance, as *Act.*26.18. where he ſaith, an Inheritance among them that are ſanctified. Therefore our Tranſlators well tranſlate it, In whom alſo we have obtained an Inheritance.

In the Third place, The word κλῆρος is taken for a Lot. Inheritances, you know, uſe to go by Lot. The Jews Inheritances were divided by Lot, ſo Numb. 34.13. This is the land ye ſhall inherit by lot; therefore it is called the Lot of the Inheritance, *Numb.*36.3. and in may other Scriptures.

Here then are three ſignifications of this word: Here is firſt, a part or portion, which part or portion is an Inheritance, which Inheritance cometh by Lot. The word ἐκληρώθημεν it doth imply all theſe, that is, In whom we have a part and portion, an Inheritance annexed to that portion, and it cometh to us by Lot. Theſe Three things are included in the ſignification of the word.

Now, my Brethren, it is a word of a paſſive ſignification, and it implieth, that we are paſſive in obtaining it; it is not a thing we ſeek for, but it is caſt upon us. We have a word in the Engliſh, we ſay a man is Diſinherited, that is a paſſive word; there is no Engliſh word that ſhall anſwer it, to ſay a man is inherited, but he is endowed with an Inheritance; he ſeeks not for it, it is caſt upon him. Therefore in that place, *Act.*26.18. it is called Receiving an Inheritance; that they may receive (ſaith he) an Inheritance with thoſe that are ſanctified. The word here uſed in this Text (ſaith Beza) is uſed of Magiſtrates, that were choſen by Lot to their places; even as Saul was choſen King by lot, ſo do we obtain this Inheritance, a part or portion in Chriſt by a kind of Lottery: it was not a thing we deſerved, it was a thing came to us we never dreamed of. It was not ſo much as ſought for by us; the word here is a mere paſſive word, it was caſt upon us, we found a ſhare in Chriſt before we were aware, as it were, not thinking of it. Not but God awakeneth men firſt, but they do no more towards it, they know no more of it (till God takes them and works upon their hearts) than a man aſleep doth for the obtaining of an Inheritance, which is beſtowed on him.

What is the Obſervation hence? This: You have Heaven caſt upon you (you that are Believers) as it were by lot. Poor Souls, you come hither to Church, and here you put your ſelves upon God's Lottery, and you do well. What is the reaſon, that a poor Servant goeth away with Chriſt in her heart? She hath a Draw for it, and ſhe draweth Eternal life, it is caſt upon her. Ladies come here; here come Men and Women of great quality, perhaps they go away without it. It is caſt upon men by lot. The greateſt work that ever God did, is to convert Souls, and he carries it ſo as if he did it the moſt caſually. You know the moſt caſual thing in the World is a Lot. A Lot you know, is a thing carried by a ſecret providence, for ſo he ſaith, *Prov.*16.33. The Lot is caſt into the lap, but the whole diſpoſing of it is of the Lord. Here you come, and you are all caſt into the bag of the Church, and God (by his ſecret Providence) throws and caſteth Heaven upon thee, and letteth others go. Poor Zacheus climbs up upon a Tree (for he was a little man) to ſee Chriſt: Come down, ſaith Chriſt, this day ſalvation is come to thine Houſe. Go, ſaith he, into the High-ways, and bring in the Beggars, take whom you can find. God had predeſtinated them, yet it is carried ſo as if it came to them by lot; even as Saul, that went to ſeek his Father's Aſſes, and before he cometh home he was anointed King of Iſrael. What did ye go out to ſee, (ſaith Chriſt to John Baptiſt's Hearers) a Reed ſhaken with the wind? They went out to ſee a Novelty, when they went to hear John; To ſee a Reed ſhaken with the wind, or to ſee ſome Great man clothed in gorgeous Apparel; juſt as men go out to ſee Shews; but yet John turned the hearts of Children to the Fathers, turned many of their Souls to God, that went thus out for other ends. Even thus, God, I ſay, by a kind of Lottery, caſteth Heaven upon men; they obtained an Inheritance by Lot.

Now, my Brethren, if you ask how, and when it was that they came to have a part and portion in Chriſt; In whom we have obtained a Lot, a Portion, and an Inheritance? Then, when they were converted and turned unto God; then it was that they came to have a right and portion in Chriſt, and in this Inheritance. It is not ſaid expreſly in the Text, but the coherence carrieth it ſtrongly: Why? For firſt, he ſaith, they were predeſtinated by God, that works all things by the counſel of his own will. How came they to have it? Not ſimply by Predeſtination, but by a work which was the fruit of Predeſtination, and by a work of Grace; therefore many Interpreters tranſlate the word here, Vocati, we were called to an Inheritance. Then Secondly, he mentioneth Faith; We (ſaith he) did obtain this Inheritance, who firſt truſted in Chriſt. So now, when they began to truſt in Chriſt, then they began to have a part and portion in this Lot. Then Thirdly, When he applies this ἀπὸ τῦ κοινῦ to the Epheſians, v. 13. In whom ye alſo had a part and portion in him, (for that is the beſt reference of the words) after ye heard the word of truth, the Goſpel of your ſalvation, and believed, &c. So that then it is we come to have a part, and a portion, and right to this Inheritance, when we are ſavingly converted and called, and turned to God. That is the Apoſtles ſcope, and is as if he had ſaid, When we were converted and ye were converted, then both ye and we came to have a part and portion in this gathering univerſal, and in this Inheritance.

I will give you a Scripture or two to back this. The firſt is Act. 26. 18. Chriſt from Heaven ſpeaks there, that he would ſend Paul to preach to the Gentiles, To open their eyes, and to turn them from darkneſs to light, (here is Converſion mentioned you ſee) from the power of Satan unto God, that they might receive forgiveneſs of ſins, and an Inheritance (that they might receive it, and obtain it by being thus turned) among them that are ſanctified by Faith in him. Mark, when they were turned, when men believe, when they begin to truſt in Chriſt, (as he ſaith here of the Jews, verſe 12.) when after they have heard the Goſpel of ſalvation, they believe, (as he ſaith of the Gentiles, verſe 13.) when they are called and ſanctified; then it may be ſaid, that they began to receive or obtain this Inheritance, though they were predeſtinated to it before. My Brethren, you cannot without converſion either have a right to this Inheritance, neither can you be made fit to be made partakers of it. In that place Act. 8. where he ſpeaks to Simon Magus, (Simon Magus, he lay ſtill in ſin, he was a Carnal wretch,) Repent, ſaith he, thou haſt neither part or lot in this matter. He doth not ſay, that he might not have for time to come. What reaſon doth he give, why he had no part for the preſent? For thy heart is not right in the ſight of God, repent therefore. He doth not ſay but he might have; thou that art yet ſtill in thy unregenerate eſtate, thou that haſt not obtained a lot, a part and portion, yet thou maiſt have; repent therefore, ſaith he, of this thy wickedneſs, and pray God, if perhaps the thoughts of thine heart might be forgiven thee: and if once he repented, then he ſhould come to have a part in this Inheritance, and in this Chriſt, and in being gathered together in one, with all things elſe, in Heaven and in Earth.

From hence you ſee, (to give you an Obſervation upon it) what it is that giveth giveth you a part and portion in the Inheritance with the Children of God; it is being Called, it is having Faith wrought in you, it is being Sanctified; for by all theſe are you gathered to Chriſt as your Head. 1 *Pet.*1.3. Who hath begotten us again to an Inheritance, ſaith he, (thoſe are his words) you muſt be begotten again before you have right to this Inheritance, before you can receive an Inheritance among thoſe that are ſanctified; ſo you heard out of the Acts. I will give you but one Scripture more to convince you of it, and it is a parallel place to this, it is *Coloſſ.*1.12. Giving thanks to the Father, who hath made us meet to partake, (to have a lot, to have a ſhare) in the inheritance of the Saints in light. What is it that makes you meet? It is being holy; why? becauſe it is an Inheritance of the Saints, and an Inheritance in light; and while thy heart is carnal and walketh in darkneſs, thou canſt never come to have a part and portion in this matter. In whom therefore, ſaith the Apoſtle (here is the ſum of all) we have a part or portion, an Inheritance ſtrangely caſt upon us we know not how, we never looked after it, it was caſt upon us by lot. How? By giving us Faith, by Calling us, by turning us to God, and by means of that we are come to have a part and portion in this Inheritance. So you have the firſt word explained, In whom we have obtained a lot, a portion, an Inheritance by lot, by being called, and ſanctified, and renewed. Ser. XIII.

Now the Apoſtle, when he had thus applied this for their and his own comfort, he leadeth them to conſider the Fountain. For, my Brethren, we are apt to think with our ſelves, we have Grace wrought in us; therefore we have intereſt in Chriſt, and in him a part and portion in this Inheritance, and ſo look no further. But what doth the Apoſtle? He leadeth us up to the eternal love of God, (I pray think of that,) for what followeth? In whom having obtained an Inheritance, [according to his purpoſe, who worketh all things after the counſel of his own will.] Look to the Fountain of all this, ſaith he, it is your being predeſtinated, and this from an everlaſting purpoſe; and although it came to you (as it were) by a Lot, and by chance, and you were as far off from being called, when you were called, as any men in the world; but yet, ſaith he, it was a Lot guided by God's eternal Predeſtination. Being predeſtinated, ſaith he, according to purpoſe.

I ſhall open this a little. I handled Predeſtination before, therefore I will not ſpeak of it now, only this, Remember that he ſpeaks this of the Jews and Apoſtles, (for he applieth this to them,) In whom, ſaith he, we that firſt truſted in Chriſt have a portion, being predeſtinated. You may read in the next verſes, where he goes on to make the like application to the Gentiles, that he doth not mention Predeſtination in that his application to them; he ſpeaks of their Calling indeed, but he doth not ſpeak of their Predeſtination, not but that they were predeſtinated; but why doth he chuſe to mention it in his Speech to the Jews only? The truth is this, they had been the People of God, and had it by promiſe; they had God and Heaven entailed to them, Abraham was their Father. Yea, but ſaith the Apoſtle, for all this it was God's eternal Love, it was his Predeſtination that was the cauſe of ſingling us out. And he mentioneth it not in his ſpeech to the Gentiles, though he intendeth the ſame thing to them; for if the Jews and Apoſtles had it by Predeſtination, the Gentiles that were without the Promiſe and without God in the World, had it from the ſame Fountain much more. And he mentioneth it to the Jews, becauſe Election carried it away even amongſt them, and Election, the force of difference it puts amongſt men was ſeen moſt amongſt them, becauſe I ſay, they were the People of God by Promiſe. Take two Scriptures for it, Firſt, *Rom.*11.7. You ſhall ſee there, that he makes the Calling of the Jews to depend eſpecially upon Election. What then? Iſrael (ſaith he) hath not obtained that which he ſeeketh for, (multitudes of the People of Iſrael did not,) but the Election hath obtained it; it is the Elect amongſt Iſrael that have obtained it. Do not think ſaith he, it cometh to you by your Father Abraham, (as they thought) it is the Election that obtained it. Secondly, *Rom.*9.11. he ſpeaks there of Eſau and Jacob, he ſaith, the purpoſe of God according to Election was it that ſtood. It was ſaid to the Mother of both, that the elder ſhould ſerve the younger. Election you ſee carries it among the Jews, therefore his mentioning of Predeſtination here cometh in ſeaſonably, for they would have thought the Promiſe to their Fathers would have carried it. No, ſaith he, being Predeſtinated.

Ser. XIII.

But why Predeſtinated [according to his purpoſe,] who works all things after the counſel of his own will? There is an Opinion in the world, that there is a twofold Predeſtination; that God dealeth with ſome men according to purpoſe, as he did with the Apoſtles; converteth them infallibly, and they perſevere. They are, they ſay, choſen according to purpoſe: But Others, God dealeth with them according to their works. It is a truth, God deals with none, but according to their works; but yet he doth not predeſtinate men to be ſaved according to works, for if he did, he ſhould predeſtinate them for their works. It is not therefore brought in here by way of diſtinction, to ſhew that there is one predeſtination according to works, and if you walk thus and thus, then God chooſeth you to life; and another predeſtination, which is peremptory. But all the ſcope of it is this, to ſhew the ſtability of it, to ſhew that God's chooſing of men is ſtable, and firm, and unalterable, therefore it is called predeſtination according to purpoſe.

For this, look into *Rom.*9.11. (the place I quoted even now) ſaith he, that the Purpoſe according to Election might ſtand; that is, that it might be unalterable; joyn purpoſe and ſtand together. What God doth purpoſe is immutable. 2 *Cor.*1.17. ſaith Paul, (who was but a Creature) I promiſed (ſaith he) to come to you, to take you in my way as I came out of Macedonia. Paul did not come. When I therefore (ſaith he) was thus minded, did I uſe lightneſs? Or the things that I purpoſe, do I purpoſe according to the fleſh; that with me there ſhould be yea, yea, and nay, nay? No, ſaith he, what I purpoſe, that I will perform. Why will Paul do it? Becauſe he would have the Goſpel receive no prejudice; I preach the Truth, and I would be true of my word, therefore (ſaith he) if I promiſe a thing, and purpoſe a thing, I will do it. Will Paul do thus? then God will do it much more, having predeſtinated us according to his purpoſe, it ſhall ſtand then; that the purpoſe of God, according to Election, (ſaith he) might ſtand; ſo the word is in that Rom. 9. 11. It ſignifieth therefore the immutability of God's Counſel, that is meant by being predeſtinated according to his purpoſe.

I come now to the laſt thing in the verſe, Who works all things according to the Counſel of his own will. This is a Third thing here in the words. For the coherence of it, how it cometh in: It cometh in firſt, as a reaſon why God had converted them; or rather, why their Converſion, and their Faith, and their obtaining an Inheritance, was by Predeſtination. It is a Reaſon that will convince any man, that they having obtained a part and portion in ſo great a buſineſs as Heaven was, having Grace wrought in their hearts, that did intereſt them in that Inheritance, that it muſt needs be by a fore-knowledge, by a decree of God; why? becauſe (ſaith he) God works all things elſe according to the counſel of his own will, therefore certainly this. The Reaſon is very ſtrong; he would convince them that God did work Grace in their hearts as the fruit of Predeſtination; he would convince them that God had given them Heaven, which came to them by lot; he had done it by a ſet decree, from everlaſting: why? for, ſaith he, he works all things after the counſel of his own will; he plotted every thing before-hand, therefore certainly this; he hath done every thing adviſedly, nothing falleth out but what he had laid the plot before. If he had a hand, ſaith he, in any thing, or in all things that ever he did, he muſt needs have a hand in working Grace in mens hearts, for it is more than all. If he beſtowed any thing upon any Creature; if he hath given the Kingdoms of this World unto men, and that he doth according to his will among the Inhabitants of the Earth, as it is ſaid, *Dan.*4. then certainly, they that have the Kingdom of Heaven promiſed, they have it by his decree. Here lieth the reaſon, and thus he argueth; becauſe God hath an hand in all things, therefore he hath a hand in the Converſion of men, therefore he hath a hand in beſtowing of Heaven upon men. And that is the firſt way; it cometh in as a reaſon of what was ſaid before.

It cometh in Secondly, To ſhew how great a power it was that wrought Grace in their hearts, and how much God's heart was in it when he did it. He hath ſhewed as much power, ſaith he, in working Grace in your hearts, as in working all things elſe; his heart is as much in this thing, as in doing all things elſe; he doth put them altogether you ſee.

How

How do you prove that to be the ſcope of ſuch a Phraſe as this?

Ser. XIII.

I will give you a Scripture for it, it is Phil. 3. 21. he ſpeaks there of changing of our vile bodies, which requireth a mighty power, to make them like Chriſts glorious Body. How doth he expreſs the greatneſs of this Power? By juſt ſuch a Phraſe as this here; who ſhall change our vile body, ſaith he, that it may be faſhioned like unto his glorious body. How? According to the working whereby he is able even to ſubdue all things unto himſelf. This phraſe commeth in to ſhew, that God putteth forth the ſame power, in changing our vile bodies, and making them like the body of Chriſt; the ſame power I ſay, and no leſs than that power, that muſt ſubdue all things, that created the World, that ruineth the World in the end, and annihilateth or bringeth down Kingdoms, and doth every thing. Well, you have Grace wrought in your hearts here; how had you it wrought? By him ſaith he, that worketh all things; no leſs power than that which goeth to work all things, goeth to work this, the ſame proportion of power that goeth to work all things elſe, goeth to work Grace.

So now you have the general ſcope, how theſe words come in. To open the words particuliarly to you a little, for I would fain make an end of this Verſe.

Firſt, The word here that is tranſlated Worketh, it ſignifieth to work effectually; He worketh all things effectually, that is the meaning of it; he doth it according to the counſel of his will, and that will ſhall ſtand, it ſhall not be reſiſted; whatſoever he will do, he doth effectually, you have it Pſal. 135. 6. The Lord is in Heaven, he doth whatſoever he will, whatſoever he pleaſeth in Heaven and in Earth, in the Sea and in all deep places. And Iſa. 46. 10. he ſaith, the Counſel of the Lord ſhall ſtand.

In the Second place, he ſaith, He worketh all things; what all things? I will not meddle with Sin, what hand God hath in it, though the very ſame phraſe is uſed of it, Act. 4. 18. the crucifying of Chriſt, , the greateſt ſin in the World, it is ſaid, nothing was done in it, but what his hand and counſel determined; there was both counſel and hand in it, (that is the expreſſion there,) at leaſt for the ordering of all the circumſtances of it. I only mention that, and conſider all things elſe, God worketh all things effectually, his hand caſteth all things. Doth there a hair come off of your heads? (A hair is a ſmall matter,) it is by the Father; Matth. 10. 29. Doth a Man ſhoot an Arrow, and there is one behind the Buſh, and he killeth him? It is God that delivereth that Man into his hand. Exod. 21. 13. He ordereth the thing that is done by chance, and doth it effectually. God he foretold that Ahab ſhould be ſlain when he went out to Battle, yet the Text ſaith plainly, that the Arrow that did kill him, was ſhot by chance; A certain Man drew a Bow at adventure, (ſo yo have it, 1 King. 22. 34,) and ſmote the King of Iſrael between the joynts of the Harneſs, whereof he dyed; it was a meer adventure, but God guided it effectually, for he had prophecyed that Ahab ſhould not go home from that Battle.

Things that are of the meereſt chance, God works them all. When Nebuchodonozor went to deſtroy Jeruſalem, it was the greateſt deſign that could be, a thing foretold 70 years before; in Hezekiah's time. You ſhall find in Ezech. 21. 20, 21. it was a meer matter of chance that Nebuchodonoſor went thither. The Prophet there deſcribeth the King of Babylon's Journey with his Army, he deſcribeth his comming to Jeruſalem, and how doth he deſcribe it? Son of Man (ſaith he, ver 19.) appoint thee two waies, that the Sword of the King of Babylon may come, both twain ſhall come forth out of one Land, and chooſe thou a place, chooſe it at the head of the way to the City. There were two ways, Nebuchodonozor came out with his Army, he did not reſolve whether he would go, God had foretold he ſhould go to Jeruſalem; he cometh out I ſay with his Army, and he cometh to the head of two ways, one to go to Egypt, (as ſome,) another to go to Jeruſalem, he was undetermined; what doth he do? He goeth and uſeth Divination. The King of Babylon (ſaith he, ver 21.) ſtood at the the parting of the way, the head of the two ways, and to uſe Divinatiion, he made his Arrows bright, (or as ſome read it, he did by mingling Arrows together, gether, cast a lot which way he should go,) he consulted with Images, he looked in the Liver. He opened Beasts to see whether there was good fortune (as some call it,) to go on the right hand or on the left. All this was foretold that he should do; who knew what should be in the Liver of that Beast, and that his Soothsayer should guide his way to Jerusalem, and assure him of good fortune in that way, rather than in the other? The Text saith verse 22. At his right hand was the divination for Jerusalem. All his Lots, shufling of Arrows, looking into the Liver, all this did cast him to go to Jerusalem, and God had foretold this long before. You see he works all things, the most casual things that are by his own appointment. The lot is cast into the Lap, but the whole disposing thereof is of the Lord. Pro. 16. 33.

Come to the wills of Men, they are more tickliſh things than matters of chance are; for what say Men? We have a liberty, we can do what we will; but what saith the Apostle? Say not to day or to morrow we will go to such a Town, but if the Lord will we will do this or that. Jam. 4. 13, 14. But to give you an instance for it, that God ruleth the wills of Men, for I cannot instance in many things,) I will give you (to me) one of the greatest instances the Scripture affordeth? It is Exod. 34. 24. God commandeth them, that at three set times in the year, all the Men should appear before the Lord in Jerusalem, now you know the Jews did live in the midst of their Enemies, and might the Enemies say, now all the Men are gon up out of the Countrey up to Jerusalem, we will go and destroy the Women and Children; this they might plot and order it many years before, what should hinder them? Why saith God, go up three times in the year, and I will order it so that none shall desire thy Land. If God had not a strong hand upon the wills of men that he can turn them which way he pleaseth, how could he make that promise aforehand that they should not desire their Land? If God did not effectually rule the wills of men, the inclinations of Mens Spirits, when they had all opportunity, all the reason in the World, all advantages, yet that they should not have a desire to the Land, how could God I say undertake this unless he did rule the wills of Men? My Brethren I profess I would not serve this God, if he did not rule the wills of men in this World. Why? Because I could have no temporal Promise fulfilled; for most temporal Promises depend upon men's will. If he did not rule the hearts of all the men in the world, of Kings, of Parliaments; what a confusion would this World run into? How could I sue out any Promise that God makes, wherein I have to do with the wills of men, (as in most we have?) Therefore certainly he ruleth, and ruleth effectually, things wherein men are most free; he doth either take away desire, or put in desire; turns their hearts to hate his People, or on the other side, gives his People favour in their eyes, as the expression is; (it is just such another instance,) Exod. 11. 3. when the People of Israel had gone and brought ten Plagues upon them, when all their First-born were slain; here was a fair way made for favour, was there not? That they should come after all this, and say, I pray give us your Jewels. What, after you have done us all this mischief? Yet saith the Text, God gave them favour in their eyes, and they gave them their Jewels of silver, and their Jewels of gold, and Rayment, Exod. 12. 35.

What a mighty thing is this in God's ruling the Wills of men? Doth not this God, think you, work effectually in all things, when he ruleth the most tickliſh things of all, the Wills of men? and so the hearts of Kings. I need not instance. Now, my Brethren, if God thus doth work all things, certainly then he works Grace much more, when he turns the will to believe. If he put a desire in you, if he take away a desire, it doth not lie in the counsel of your own will, saith he. There are those that think Grace is wrought by the counsel of Man's will. God indeed giveth me power to believe, or not to believe, and then the counsel of my Will casteth it. No! it is according to the counsel of his Will, not according to the counsel of thy will, as you know the Apostle saith, He works both the will and the deed. If he brings forth the will into the deed of all things else, much more in the matter of Grace, whereby you come to obtain an Inheritance among those that are sanctified.

I should

I ſhould ſhew you, why Counſel of Will likewiſe is attributed to God. I ſhall be too long if I go on to open that, I will therefore but make an Obſervation or two, and ſo I will conclude. Ser. XIII.

Firſt, Doth God work all things according to his Will? Then give up thy ways to him. It is not in man (ſaith Jeremiah) to direct his ſteps. It is God that muſt direct them for thee, for he works all things according to his will. If any man in the world, if his underſtanding and will were a rule to mine, and I knew he were infallible, I would certainly go, give up all my ways to what he ſaith: As you ſay, you muſt be ruled by him that bears the Purſe, you muſt be ruled by him that bears the Underſtanding. Certainly, if any man have an infallible underſtanding, I will be ruled by him. God hath; he works all things, and all effectually, by the Counſel of his own will; therefore in all thy ways give up thy ſelf to him. Obſerv. 1.

Again, in the Second place, (I cannot proſecute many) God, he works all things according to the counſel of his own will. It[illegible] Inference that Job makes of it, *Chap.*23.13,14. You ſhall find there, that Job profeſſeth his ſincerity, how fearful he was of offending God; My foot, (ſaith he, *v.*11.) hath held his ſteps; his way have I kept, and not declined; he obeyed him, he did not decline the leaſt from his ways; neither have I gone back, ſaith he, from the Commandement of his lips: I have eſteemed the words of his mouth more than my neceſſary food. What is the reaſon of all this? It followeth, according to the coherence, (as beſt Interpreters give it,) He is in one mind, and who can turn him? and what his Soul deſireth, even that he doth; he performeth the thing that is appointed for me, and many ſuch things are with him. Saith he, I conſidered with my ſelf this, that I were as good be ſubject to his will, for he will have his will upon me, I cannot reſiſt his will, I were as good ſubmit, he works all things according to the counſel of his will; he performeth all things that are appointed for me, he is of one mind and I cannot turn him, I muſt therefore comply with him; hence it was that I have not gone from the Commandement of his lips, I thought it was beſt to yield to him, and to give up my will to his. It is a ſtrange Argument, and you ſee the Scripture inforceth it. Obſerv. 2.

SER-

Ser. XIV.

SERMON XIV.

EPHES. I. 11,12,13,14.

In whom alſo we have obtained an Inheritance, being Predeſtinated according to the purpoſe of him who worketh [illegible]things according to the Counſel of his own Will.

That we ſhould be to the praiſe of his Glory, who firſt truſted in Chriſt.

In whom ye alſo truſted, after that you heard the word of truth, the Goſpel of your Salvation, &c.

THe ſcope of theſe Verſes, I ſhewed you in my laſt Diſcourſe to be this. An Application of all that which he had Doctrinally delivered about Predeſtination, Vocation and the like benefits, (an Application of them with ſome interlacings of what was not ſaid before,) unto both the Jews and the Gentiles. Unto the Jews or rather the Apoſtles put for all the Jews themſelves being Jews, in the 11*th*. and 12*th*. Verſes; In whom we have obtained an Inheritance who firſt truſted in Chriſt. And Secondly unto the Gentiles in the 13. v. In whom ye alſo Epheſians, ſpeaking to them in the name of all the Gentiles, as ſpeaking of himſelf and the other of the Apoſtles in the name of all the Jews.

His Application unto himſelf and the reſt of the Apoſtles, and ſo to the Jews, is in the 11*th*. and 12*th*. Verſes, I made entrance into them in my laſt Diſcourſe The 11*th*. Verſe containeth in it two particulars.

1. It ſheweth what God had done for them, and that in three things.
2. He illuſtrateth thoſe three things which God had done for them, by a general propoſition, whereof each particular in the one anſwereth to the other.

Firſt, He ſheweth what God had done for them in Three things, he giveth them the comfort of Three things.

1. By Effectual calling of them, by ſanctifying of them and working faith in them, by their having truſted in him they were intereſted in a glorious Inheritance. In whom (ſaith he) we have obtained (namely, by this ſanctification and faith, as I ſhewed you before,) an Inheritance.
2. He mentioneth the ground and the ſpring, (he applieth that alſo, and brings it home to their hearts,) of Gods calling them; viz. Predeſtination, we having obtained an Inheritance, being Predeſtinated.
3. He mentioneth the immutability of Gods Predeſtinating them, it was according to his purpoſe.

So much for what he ſheweth God hath done for them afore, of which he giveth them the comfort.

Secondly, he doth illuſtrate theſe things by a general propoſition, which containeth three things in it, anſwerable to theſe three. In whom we have obtain- ed

ed an Inheritance, being Predeſtinated according to his purpoſe, (theſe are the 3 Firſt particulars, of him who worketh all things according to the Counſel of his own will. I ſhewed the coherence of theſe latter words before; that which now I ſhall caſt in is, That the Apoſtle doth fit, and ſute, and proportion, this general propoſition, that God worketh all things according to the Counſel of his own will, he fitteth it unto the particulars God had done for them, He had called them to obtain an Inheritance being Predeſtinated, according to his purpoſe. Ser. XIV.

The meaning is this, That by the ſame Counſel of his will, and by the ſame power that he had wrought all things elſe, by the ſame power he had called them, and ſanctified them, by which they had obtained an Inheritance; and by the ſame Counſel of his will he had predeſtinated them according to his purpoſe by the ſame wherewith he works all things elſe. He ſheweth that the principle by which he works all things, is the ſame principle by which he wrought Grace in their hearts. First, in working all things, there is an omnipotent power, an efficacious hand, for he is ſaid to work, ἐνεργεῖν to work effectually, by the ſame power ſaith he, did he work Grace in your hearts. In the Second place, All things that he doth work, he did contrive beforehand by his Counſel, by the ſame Counſel ſaith he, he did Predeſtinate. Then Thirdly, that which caſteth all, according to his Counſel was his will, He works all things according to the Counſel of his own will; why according to that will ſaith he, hath he predeſtinated you, He hath Predeſtinated you according to his purpoſe; namely of that will. So that now, will in the one anſwereth to the purpoſe in the other, and Counſel in the one anſwereth to Predeſtination in the other, (for indeed Predeſtination implieth an ordering, a diſpoſing of things by Counſel.) And then Thirdly, his working grace by which they were called anſwereth to that power which he wrought all things by.

Here then you ſee, there are Three principles of God's working all things whatſoever he works, the Salvation of men and all things elſe. Here is firſt an Omnipotent power which is Executionis, as the thing that executeth and performeth all, he is ſaid to work and work effectually, ſo the word ſignifieth. Secondly, here is his will and the Soveraignty of it, which is Imperationis, that which giveth the command for a powerful execution. Thirdly, Here is his wiſdom, that is Directionis, as that which giveth direction both to will and power. He works all things according to the Counſel of his own will.

And Firſt, For the power of God in working, which is the firſt thing briefly to be explained. Secondly, his Counſel, and Thirdly, the Counſel of his will. I ſhall ſpeak briefly of all theſe three: He works all things by an Omnipotent power, and by Counſel, and by the Counſel of his own will.

Firſt, for the power wherewith he worketh all things. The Firſt thing I ſhewed about it before was this, that God hath an effectual hand in all things. I went over things Natural, things Moral, things contingent, the wills of Men and the like; I ſhall repeat nothing now. That is the firſt thing that the Text affordeth, that God works and works effectually, he hath a hand in every thing.

The Second thing concerning his power that the Text affordeth is, that God's power is limitted in his workings by his will. He doth not work all things that he can work; Unto thee (ſaith Chriſt, Mark 14. 36.) all things are poſſible, It is poſſible ſaith he, that this cup ſhould paſs from me, and that men ſhould be ſaved another way; but his power did not work this, it was limited by his will, ſo you know Chriſt ſaith, Mat. 3. 9. Thy will be done. God can (ſaith John,) raiſe out of theſe Stones that you tread upon Sons unto Abraham; he never did it, but do it he could. God doth not ſhew himſelf Omnipotent by doing all he can do, but every thing that he doth do, he ſheweth an Almighty power in it. Therefore Divines uſe to ſay, that God though he is Omnipotent, yet he is not Omnivolent; though he can do all things infinitely more than he hath done, yet he doth not will to do all things that he is able, for his power is limitted by his will, ſo ſaith the Text; He worketh all things according to the Counſel of his will, If thou wilt ſaith he, thou canſt make me clean, Mat. 8. 2. His power was able, but whether that his will had determined his power to do it or not, that he knew not.

Ser. XIV. The Third thing which this Text holdeth forth concerning his power is this, That whatſoever God will do that he doth effectually; He works all things according to the Counſel of his will, the meaning is not only that all that he doth he doth by Counſel, but that all that his Counſel and will decreeth that he doth, My Counſel ſhall ſtand ſaith he. Iſai. 46. 10.

So much now for that Firſt thing, his Power, which are all bottomed full upon the Text.

The Second is concerning God's Counſel in working, you know Counſel referreth to the Underſtanding, to the Judgment. It is a conſidering what one meaneth to do, how to do it, and to do it, the beſt way and moſt wiſely, that is properly Counſel. There is ſomething in Counſel which is in Man, We muſt not attribute unto God, and ſomething in man which may be attributed to God, (for we muſt cut off all Imperfection in what we attribute to God.) There is two things in Counſel in a Man. There is Firſt a diſcourſe and enquiry what is beſt, he ſetteth his reaſon a work, and one Thought cometh in after another. And then there is Secondly, a Judgment, when he hath conſidered all, what is the beſt. Now the firſt part we muſt cut off from God, he doth not adviſe and deliberate as Men do, to take this thing or that thing one after another by way of inquiry into his mind. No, For known to God are all his Works from Eternity, ſaith the Apoſtle, Act. 15. as the word ſignifieth; he hath them all before him.

How then is Counſel attributed unto God?

Thus, That which is the Reſult, that which ariſeth in Mens Minds or Judgments out of enquiry, a mature pitching upon what is beſt; this now which is the perfection of Counſel, which is the ripening and the maturity of it, this is attributed to God. This is Certum Judicium, a certain Judgment of what is beſt to do. Thus God works all things according to his Counſel. I will give you but one Scripture for it, (for we muſt ſtill back every thing with ſome parallel word, that in the mouth of two witneſſes every thing might be eſtabliſhed,) Iſai. 28. 29. It is ſaid there of God, that he is wonderful in Counſel and excellent in working, (I cannot ſtand to open the coherence of the place, but it falleth in full to the buſines in hand,) He is excellent in working, for whatſoever he willeth that he doth, and he is as wonderful in his Counſel, for all that he doth it is with the greateſt ripeneſs of Judgment, with the higheſt wiſdom that ſhall declare him as much to be God in the wiſe doing of it, as to declare he is God in the powerful doing of it. Thus you ſee in the Second place what is meant by Counſel.

Now then in the Third place, why is it ſaid the Counſel of his will? Here is a Third principle, his will; and it is called the Counſel of his will. I ſhall open it briefly. It implieth theſe particulars following.

Firſt, That God's will doth not pitch upon things blindly, but by an adviſed act, he knoweth what he doth, wittingly and willingly in all he doth, his will hath Counſel joyned with it.

It is ſaid Secondly, to be the Counſel of his own will, (for ſo the Text hath it,) becauſe he doth not go forth of himſelf for Counſel; he neither doth regard the conveniency among the Creatures one with another, but their conveniency depends upon his Counſel. Men when they Counſel, they look upon things, and as things are framed and faſhioned, ſo they muſt frame their Counſels; but with God it is otherwiſe, he frameth things according to the Counſel of his own will, he adviſeth with none, Who hath been his Counſeller? Rom. 11. 34.

In the Third place it is called the Counſel of his own will, to ſhew that in caſting whatſoever he meaneth to do, his will hath the ſupream ſtroke. Still you ſhall find it in the Scripture, that all is attributed to his will; and obſerve the phraſe here, it is not called the will of his Counſel, but it is called rather the Counſel of his will. (it is the obſervation of Catherinus, and Muſculus, upon the place,) to ſhew the difference between Mans will and Gods; The Law of mans will is ſtill to be determined by the underſtanding, ſo that the will of a Man is the will of his Counſel. My Brethren, when God conſidered whether he would make a World or no, the conſultation was not whether it was beſt to make it or not to make it; why? Becauſe there was no beſt to God to do the one or the other; there is the greateſt reaſon for it that can be, for it was all one to him whether he did it or no. What caus'd him then to do it? What did caſt it? It was his will. His will ſetteth teth his Counſel ſo to work as it were to do it the beſt way, but it is not his will being determined by his Counſel as judging it beſt, for it was neither better one way nor other for God, for he ſtandeth in need of no Creature. So that in Scripture yea have Election attributed to his will, He hath mercy on whom he will; you have Creation attributed to his will, by thy will all things were created, Revel. 4. 11. Ser. XIV.

But now, though his will had the caſting of it clearly, and therein lyeth the Soveraignty and liberty of the will of God in his works ad Extra, yet you will ask me, how far did Council attend his will?

I anſwer in theſe particulars. Firſt, God knew all that he could do, all that his power is able to do, and therefore did not pitch upon things that had a contradiction in them. As for example, That God ſhould make a thing to be and not to be at the ſame time, his will did not pitch upon this, becauſe his Council dictated that they were not compatible, it was not fit for God to do. So likewiſe it is impoſſible for God to lie, his underſtanding knew this, ſo his will did not pitch upon ſuch a thing. Here is one Act of Counſel; he did not pitch upon things that have a contradiction in them.

In the Second place, His Counſel dictated to him, if I may ſo ſpeak, that it was good to create, and to communicate himſelf to the Creatures, to chooſe men to Salvation, and that it is the property of goodneſs to communicate it ſelf, and that it becometh goodneſs to do it. But yet ſtill all this is not beſt, it is not beſt to God, we cannot ſay ſo, for he could be as happy without doing this as he is with doing of it, only I ſay his Counſel ſaid it was good.

Then Thirdly, If his will cometh to create and produce Creatures, then wiſdom dictates that it was beſt to do it the beſt way, if God will manifeſt himſelf, to do it to the uttermoſt; ſo will ſetteth Council on work, or rather Counſel preſenteth to the will the utmoſt and beſt ways of glorifying of himſelf. Therefore Heb. 11. you ſhall find there that all things that are made are ſaid to be made of things not ſeen, (namely, of God.) By faith (ſaith he ver. 3.) we underſtand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, ſo that things which are ſeen were not made of things that do appear. The meaning is this, That his underſtanding did preſent to him worlds of Models, as it doth to an Artificer if he will raiſe up a building, how to make it and contrive it. He made things out of things that did not appear, that were in his own mind, the Ideas, the mold, the pattern of things, (ſuch as men have in their heads when they make a Houſe and the like,) and he pitcheth upon what is beſt. And thus far now his Counſel attends his will. If his will reſolveth to create, to do a thing, then Counſel is ſet a work to do it the beſt way. And although it may be ſaid that God had other ways as good, for his wiſdom is not limitted to one world or to the things that are or ſhall be.

To conclude with one Scripture and ſo paſs off from this. Pſal. 104. 24. Wonderfull are thy manifold works in wiſdom, haſt thou made them all. They are wonderful, and they are manifold, and he hath made them all in wiſdom; and his wiſdom ſheweth it ſelf to be as truly the wiſdom of God, as his power ſhewed it ſelf to be the power of God in making them. And this is the ſubſerviency or the concurrency that Counſel hath with his will in working all things.

Now my Brethren, I ſhould give you ſome Obſervations from hence: I did anticipate ſome in my laſt, as namely this. If God works all things according to the Counſel of his own will, you ſhould not lean to your own will, nor to your own wiſdom, Give up your ſelves fully unto God, as it is, Pro. 23. 4.

In the Second place more particularly, If God works Grace by the ſame kind of Counſell of his will, and by the ſame power that he works all things elſe, as the Text plainly ſaith; then he works Grace infallible, for we ſee he worketh other things infallible; Let there be light, ſaith he, and there was light; Let there be light ſaith he, in that Mans Soul, and there is light; He works in us the will and the deed, not only the power to will but the will it ſelf.

The Third thing that I Obſerved is this, That the ſame thing that caſt it, why he would work all things, it was his will, not as judging it beſt for him, it was not following the dictates of his Underſtanding as always is in us, but only he ſaw it was good ſo to do. So likewiſe, of his chooſing men, this or that man, of predeſtinating you and you, (for ſo the coherence carrieth it,) it was meerly his own will, his own goodneſs.

Ser. XIV.

There is no reason why thou shouldest believe, and another not; no reason I say, why God having infinite things before him, should choose such and such; why he should take such and such of those he meant to make; why he should love such, and not others; there is no reason but his will. His counsel propounded, that it was good to love these; but that it was better to love this man than that man, here his Will determineth it. It is not the Will of his Counsel, but the Counsel of his Will. As when he came to create, (it is the comparison that Aquinas hath, and it is an exceeding good one;) Take, saith he, that first Chaos, that lump of Darkness, out of which God made all things; that out of this piece Fire should be made, that that piece should go to make Earth, that the other piece should go to make Air; that such a piece of the Element should make a Tree, such a piece should make Beasts, such, Fishes; that that Dust should make a Man, Adam, rather than other Dust: there is no reason of it, it is his will; that of Mankind, that Nature of man should be assumed, that Jesus Christ hath now in Heaven, it was his will. So, saith he, is it in Election; for God works all things, not according to the will of his counsel, as judging this man better than that by an act of Counsel; but it is the Counsel of his will. But when he hath pitched his love upon these and these men, then Counsel is set a work indeed, to contrive all ways to shew love to them; and all the ways the wisdom of God takes, is but to vent that love that was in his heart. Therefore Christ is given to die, and you to fall into sin; there is a thousand contrivements that the counsel of his will had to manifest the glory of his Grace, and the riches of his Love. And so now I fall off from that, and come to the 12*th* verse.

That we should be to the glory of his Grace, who first trusted in Christ.

Here are two things in this Verse:

1. Here are the Persons whom he applieth this to, designed out with a special Priviledge; We, Apostles and Jews, that had this priviledge, first to trust in Christ; We, saith he, were thus predestinated and called, and have obtained an Inheritance.

2. You have what ought to be the end, what is the duty that every man is obliged unto, that cometh unto these benefits, that is predestinated thus, and called thus; We should be (saith he) to the praise of his Grace.

To begin with the latter, because it lieth first in the Text. The coming in of these words, the coherence of them, it is not so much to shew what was God's end in predestinating us, (that he had shewed before,) as what is the duty of every one that is predestinated; what this benefit should work upon their hearts, (for here the Apostle speaks by way of application;) their duty is this, saith he, to be to the praise of his glory.

I will not stand distinguishing Praise and Glory; I did it before, when I opened the praise of the glory of his Grace. Only first here, Praise is all that God requireth. Psal. 50. Wilt thou, saith he, offer to me the Rams or the Bullocks upon a thousand Hills; they are all mine already, what do I care for them, I can make enough of them. Thou wilt offer God thy Duties, what are they to him? What is it then that will please him? Saith he at the last verse, He that offereth praise, glorifieth me. It is Glory he would have, nothing takes God else. Do what you will, if you do not aim at the praise of his glory, it never pleaseth him. He turns away a Chapman, that would have given him Rivers of Oil. What care I, saith he, for thy First-born, that is the fruit of thy body? why, he would have Glory. Nothing I say takes God else.

In the Second place observe, He doth not, as before, say, To the praise of the glory of his grace only, he doth not limit it to that; but he saith, when he cometh to obedience, to the praise of his glory in the general: For though in our Faith we do most magnifie the glory of his Free grace in the pardon of Sin, which Faith laieth hold upon; yet in obedience we should aim at all his glory, all the ways he can be glorified in. And he will have glory out of every thing you do; Whether you eat or drink, or whatsoever you do, do all to the glory of God, 2 Cor. 10. 11.

In

Ser. XIV.

In the Third place obſerve this concerning it; He doth not ſay, To the praiſe of his glory, by words and by thankſgiving only; but to be to the praiſe of his glory. It is real things, things that have being, that God requireth. My meaning is this, that your being, all you are and have ſhould be to his glory, not only in word, ſo the force of the word will carry it; that we ſhould be, ſaith he, that all you are, that all you have, ſhould be ſacrificed and given up to God, to the praiſe of his glory.

Now, though I might ſhew you how this is inforced from all the former, yet I ſhould be too long. I will paſs that by. So much for the firſt thing.

Secondly, He cometh to the Perſons to whom he applieth this to, deſigned out by a ſpecial Priviledge, namely thoſe who firſt truſted in Chriſt. He hath predeſtinated us, called us Apoſtles and Jews, but to whom he vouchſafed this priviledge, that we ſhould firſt truſt in Chriſt. He ſpeaks (as I take it) eſpecially of that We, that is, we Apoſtles. Paul was an Apoſtle you know, they were all Jews; but in their name, and under them he meaneth all the Jews too that were Believers. He applieth it to themſelves firſt, and unto the Jews, as contained under them: As likewiſe when he applieth it to the Epheſians, (In whom ye alſo truſted;) he ſpeaks but to the Epheſians only, but he meaneth all Gentiles. I ſpeak this to reconcile two Opinions of Interpreters: Some ſay, that the Apoſtles are meant; Others ſay, that the Jews are meant. The Apoſtles had the honour to be the Firſt-fruits of the Chriſtian Church, of the Church of the New Teſtament; and therefore as Chriſt preached to them firſt, and called them firſt himſelf, (for ſo you know he did.) So when he prayeth for his Church, how doth he pray? For the Apoſtles firſt, and then for all them that ſhall believe on him through their word, Joh. 17.20. For the Apoſtles, they were the Firſt-fruits; therefore we are ſaid to be built upon the foundation of the Prophets and Apoſtles, Epheſ. 2.20. They were laid as the firſt Stones of this great building.

See Rom. 8. Firſt-fruits.

The word which we tranſlate Truſted, is in the Original (and you may ſee it in your Margents) Hoped; who firſt Hoped in Chriſt; for, my Brethren, hope is ſometimes put for faith, as Joh. 5.45. Moſes, in whom ye truſt, in the Original it is in whom ye hope. For the truth is this, I do not ſay the grace of Hope is the foundation of Faith, but it is moſt certain that a hopefulneſs that it may be I, founded upon the indefinite Promiſe, is the foundation of Faith. And take the very Apoſtles Faith, it was but at firſt a hoping in Chriſt; who firſt, ſaith he, hoped in Chriſt.

See the difference of Faith and Hope.

Now the thing I would have you obſerve is this, that he mentioneth it as a priviledge to be the firſt truſters or hopers in Chriſt, and he applieth it to the Jews and to the Apoſtles. You ſhall ſee parallel Scriptures fall in with this; Rom. 1.16. The Goſpel, ſaith he, is the power of God to ſalvation to every one that believeth, to the Jew firſt, mark! and alſo unto the Greek; but to the Jew firſt. Take another place, Act. 3.26. When Peter there firſt preacheth to the Jews, ſpeaking of the Reſurrection of Chriſt, he ſaith, God having raiſed up his Son, Jeſus, ſent him unto you firſt, to bleſs you in turning away every one of you from his iniquities. The Jews therefore and the Apoſtles were the firſt that truſted in Chriſt; and then afterwards it was deſuſed from the Jews, by the Apoſtles, unto all Nations; Preach the Goſpel, ſaith he, to every Creature, but to the Jew firſt; they were to believe firſt, who firſt truſted in him.

I have wondred, when I conſidered this one thing, which will further open the Text. That God ſhould call ſo many Jews, and call them firſt, (for ſo he did, and there was Multitudes of them, if you read the ſtory of the Acts,) and after that caſt off that Nation; and why were they, when he meant to convert no more of them afterwards, to have this great priviledge the Apoſtle mentioneth here?

Compare it with Verſe 7. Chap. 2.

I will give you one Reaſon of it; It is, becauſe they were the Firſt-fruits of the Jews, to be called afterwards in the fulneſs of time. Becauſe God meant to call them afterward (as it is certain to me he meaneth to do,) therefore he called ſo great a ſluſh of them at firſt; and called them firſt, to ſhew that they ſhall be the elder Brethren under the Goſpel, though they be caſt off for ſo many hundred of years. That which makes me think ſo, is that which the Apoſtle ſaith, Ser. XIV. 1 *Tim.*1.16. (and I know them that interpret it as spoken of the Jews) speaking of his own conversion, He shewed mercy, saith he, to me first, as one of the First-fruits of my Nation, as in a Type (so the word is,) as in a pattern to them who should hereafter believe, namely to the Jews. They expound it particularly, as being a type of the conversion of his own Nation; yea, and some have thought, that in the same extraordinary way that he was called, shall they be called too. So much now for the expounding of this, who first trusted in Christ.

Observ. 1. I will give you an Observation and so pass off from it, and it is this, That it is a great priviledge, much to be valued by every Christian, to be before others in Christ. You see the Apostle here mentioneth it as the only priviledge, distinct, that the Jews had from the Gentiles, that they first trusted in Christ. It is a priviledge either to be before others in time; you shall find that *Rom.*16.7. where Paul giveth the upper-hand of fellowship to Andronicus and Junia upon this ground, They were (saith he) in Christ before me. And so should younger Christians give unto elder, which may allay the pride and pertness of young ones, who are rather apt to censure Old ones. Paul, he giveth it as an honour in that respect, who were in Christ before me, as here it is made a priviledge of the Jews, who first trusted in Christ. Or, Secondly, it is a priviledge, not only when one is in Christ before another, but more especially when one is the First-fruits either of a Family, or of a Nation that have believed. You shall read, 1 *Cor.*16.15. of the Houshold of Stephanas, that it was the First-fruits of Achaia. Hath God singled thee out of a Family where never none was converted before? this is thy priviledge, thou didst first trust in Christ, and thou art the First-fruits that hast sanctified that Family unto God; it is likely he will have the more out of it, for you know the First-fruits sanctified the lump. Certainly there is that Covenant which God makes with Nations, that where he beginneth to convert, there are the First-fruits of more to come, and God goeth on to continue that Covenant to that Nation for ever, though for a while he may cast them off, for they that are converted are the First-fruits. You may observe it, that scarce ever the Gospel came to a Nation, but it hath continued more or less to this day. The Christian name is as much over the World as ever it was, though Turks dwell with them, and domineer and tyranize over them, yet the Christian name is in all Nations where it first was; because the first converted were the First-fruits of those Nations that sanctified the whole lump. Therefore was Abraham called the Father of the Faithful, he was one of the first great Believers in a way of difficulty; therefore was Eve the Mother of all Living, she was the first Believer; we have a warrant that she believed, we have not a certain ground that Adam did; for the Covenant is made with her, the Promise is made to the Woman, she is called therefore, the Mother of all Living, because she first trusted in Christ.

Observ. 2. Observe again in the Second place, That if you have any priviledge in Grace above another, it dependeth upon Predestination, as well as your salvation doth; it dependeth upon an act of God's eternal love. The Apostle, as he ascribed their salvation to Predestination, so this priviledge that they first trusted in Christ; it was ordered by the counsel of God's everlasting Will, being predestinated, saith he, who first trusted in Christ. Therefore, not only have recourse to bless God and his eternal Decrees, for his love in saving thee, but for any particular priviledge that thou hast before others in point of Grace; have recourse to God's eternal Counsel, for it was the Fountain of it, as well of the degrees of Grace as of glory, they have all their spring from God's eternal Decree, as well as who shall be saved and who not.

Observ. 3. And, which is a Third Observation, It may be made a motive to any one that hath been long in Christ, and in Christ before others, to be more holy than they. Why? That we, saith he, should be to the praise of his glory, who first trusted in Christ. We that were the First-fruits of the World, we that were in Christ before you, We (saith he) should more especially be to his praise; as there is a more especial favour, which God in his Predestination shewed us, so there is a more especial duty lieth upon us, to be to the praise of his glory. Therefore the Apostle findeth fault with them, *Heb.*5.12. that whereas for the time they might have been teachers of others; they might have had abundance of grace and knowledge, they were dullars, they were dwarfs in respect of growth in grace.

Sect. XIV.

And last of all, You that mean to repent, when you come to lie upon your Death-beds, if you do so, what do you lose? You last trust in Christ, and so you shall be dishonoured. Is it not better to turn while you are young, and so to be of those that first trust in Christ? The Apostle here you see makes it a priviledge of the Jews, that they were those that first trusted in Christ. And so much likewise for the application of what he had said unto the Jews.

To come now to his application of it to the Gentiles. In whom ye also, saith he, he saith no more; you have it indeed put into your translation, Trusted, it is not in the Original, but he speaks by way of Ellipsis, shortly, and cutteth off his speech: In whom you also, you Ephesians, you Gentiles; You also, which you may refer either unto trusting, which was in the verse before; In whom you also trusted, as well as they, though they first, after you heard, for so it followeth. Or else you may refer it (for the Holy Ghost hath a comprehensive meaning, and the Scripture is the shortest writing in the World) to what he had said to the Jews, cutting off this priviledge, that they first trusted in Christ. In whom also you have obtained an Inheritance, being predestinated according to the purpose of him, who worketh all things according to the counsel of his own will, that you should be to the praise of his glory; having also trusted in him when you heard of the Gospel of truth, &c. You may refer it either to the one or to the other, and indeed to both: For, my Brethren, the Apostle's scope is to make application of all he had said both to Jew and Gentile; now to go over the same thing twice to both, it had not been so comly, therefore he divideth them, and saith something of the Jew, which he applieth to them; and something of the Gentile, which he applieth to them, yet so as what is said of the Jew is applicable to the Gentile, In whom ye also had an Inheritance, and were predestinated, &c. And what is said of the Gentile, that after they heard the word of truth they believed, and were sealed, is true also of the Jew; and because it would have been too long to mention them both, he divides it therefore, and cutteth it off with a short speech, In whom you also, having reference to all that went before. So much for the Coherence.

There are in this Verse these Three things:

1. That the Gentiles did also trust in Christ and were called, and by calling had an Inheritance as well as the Jews.
2. That this Calling, and the Faith of theirs, was by hearing the Gospel, which he amplifieth by two Encomiums of it.
   1. That it is the word of truth.
   2. That it is the Gospel of their Salvation.
3. After that they had believed, they were sealed with the Spirit of Promise.

These are the parts of this 13*th* verse.

And first of all from this, That he saith the same thing of the Gentiles, that he saith of the Jews, (cutting off that priviledge that they were the first;) the Jews trusted in Christ, and so did the Gentiles; the Ephesians trusted in Christ as well as the Apostles, they were by Faith partakers of an Inheritance, as well as the Apostles. What is the Observation from hence? In a word this.

That we are all saved by the same Faith that the Apostles are. We have all the same common Inheritance, the same common Faith. I will give you a Scripture for both,

First, That we have a like Faith, 2 Pet. 1. 1. Peter an Apostle of Jesus Christ, to them that have obtained like precious Faith with us, with us Apostles, therefore he mentioneth himself as an Apostle when he speaks it. We have likewise the same common salvation, the same common Seal of the Spirit, 1 John 1. 3. That which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us; and truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ. We have assurance of the love of God, and walk in communion with him; You, saith he, are capable of having the same assurance, and we write to you these things, that you may have it; for the scope of that Epistle is to

to beget aſſurance in the hearts of the godly. We are all ſaved by the ſame Faith, and are capable of the ſame Aſſurance, and ſhall have all the ſame Salvation; it is called Common Salvation, Jude verſ. 3. That is the Obſervation from the Coherence, In whom ye alſo truſted, or obtained an Inheritance, (for you may put in both) or obtained it by Faith, or by truſting, after you heard, &c.

After you heard.] He ſheweth that their Faith was wrought by hearing. I will not ſtand upon that, only this Obſervation I ſhall give you out of it, That preſently, as it were, after they heard, they believed; the Goſpel came no ſooner to them but they were converted. It was the manner in the Primitive times, God made quick work then. You ſhall find it backed by what is ſaid to the Coloſſians, Chap. 1.6. he ſaith there, that they had obeyed from the firſt day that they heard the Goſpel. Which, my Brethren, may ſhame us; we live under the Goſpel many years; it is not after we have heard, but after we have heard and heard again, that we are turned unto God. How obedient were they! From the firſt day ſaith the Apoſtle of the Coloſſians, there; After you heard, ſaith he, here, as it were preſently upon it.

I come Secondly to the Encomiums which here the Apoſtle giveth the Goſpel, by which they were converted. He calls it firſt a word of truth, and ſecondly, the Goſpel of your ſalvation. I ſhall but briefly ſpeak of theſe two, and ſhall ſhew you firſt ſingly, why the Goſpel is called a word of truth, and why the Goſpel of their ſalvation. Secondly, I ſhall ſhew you joyntly why both are here mentioned together.

Firſt, The Goſpel is called a word of truth, not only becauſe it is a true word, as being an Hebrewiſm, but it is τὸν λόγον τῆς ἀληθείας, a word of an eminent truth. The greateſt Truth that ever God uttered, or ſhall utter, is the Goſpel of ſalvation by Jeſus Chriſt; therefore it is called the Goſpel of that Truth, as we may ſo expound it. When our Saviour Chriſt told them that he was the Meſſiah, John 8.40. what ſaith he? I tell you the truth, ſaith he, which I heard of God; the greateſt ſecret, the higheſt truth that ever was, which I heard of God, and which came down from Heaven; as he telleth Pilate, Joh. 18.37. that for this cauſe he came into the world to ſpeak the truth. What was that truth? That he was the Son of God and the Meſſiah of the world. In him (ſaith the Apoſtle, 2 Cor. 1.20.) are all the Promiſes of God Yea, and in him Amen. He doth not only ſay, in him they are Yea; if Yea will not ſerve, ſaith he, you ſhall have Amen to it; it is a truth of Truths, it hath Yea to it and Amen to it too. To give you an Inſtance more. My Brethren, there is no Truth that ever God ſwore to, but this: the Law is all truth, but the Law was made without an Oath, for if it had been with an Oath we had been in an ill caſe, for God could then never have recalled it; what is a meer threatning he recalleth, but what is done with an Oath he never recalls. The Goſpel is ſealed with an Oath (God ſweareth by himſelf, Heb. 6.13.) never any Truth was ſealed with an Oath but the Goſpel, the Promiſe made to Abraham.

It may Secondly be called a word of Truth in oppoſition to the Law, for the Law repreſented but a ſhadow; but now ſaith he, you have the Truth, you have Chriſt, that is the ſubſtance of all the Law, you have him revealed and tendred to you in the Goſpel. It is a word of Truth, of Chriſt that is the Truth. The Law came by Moſes, ſaith he, but Grace and Truth by Jeſus Chriſt, Joh. 1.17.

Let your hearts, my Brethren, get hold by faith of this Truth. There are many Controverſies in the World on foot, as about the worſhip of God and a thouſand ſuch things. Though there be a truth in them, and a truth thou muſt inquire into, yet if thou haſt learned this Truth to lay hold upon ſalvation revealed in the Goſpel, thou haſt learned the greateſt truth of all, more than all Truths whatſoever.

And believe this Goſpel, that it is a word of Truth. The greater truth it is the more it requireth Faith, and the greater ſin it is not to believe it; therefore the Apoſtle aggravateth the ſin of Unbelief of the Goſpel, 1 Joh. 5.10. He that believeth not this Goſpel, ſaith he, this record that God giveth of his Son, hath made God a liar; for God hath uttered the greateſt Truth of all in the Goſpel; he hath bound it with an Oath, which he never did any Truth elſe, he hath really really exhibited Chriſt in it. You had him in a Promiſe before, but now you have him really; when he gave Chriſt into the World, there is the truth of all the Promiſes; he therefore that believeth not the Goſpel makes God a liar. Unbelief is the greateſt Lie that ever was; why? becauſe this is the word of truth in an eminent way. Ser. XV.

Secondly, Why the Goſpel of your Salvation?

Firſt, Why of Salvation? Secondly, Why of your Salvation, ſpeaking to the Epheſians?

Firſt, Why of Salvation? Becauſe the matter of it is Salvation. Beza therefore, whereas he uſeth to tranſlate it as we do, the Goſpel or the Evangel, he tranſlates it here, (and he doth it no where elſe but here, and in one place more) the Glad tidings of your Salvation; he giveth it in the ſignification, why? becauſe Salvation, it is the gladdeſt tidings in the World. My Brethren, if a man were in danger of drowning, go and throw him a Crown, and bid him take hold of that and come a ſhoar, and he ſhall have all the Kingdoms of the World with that Crown, and throw him a rope; he will take hold of the rope and let go the Crown. No, ſaith he, I will take this rope, why? It will ſave me, it will tow me a ſhoar; I may be drowned for all the Crown. What could God have ſaid to have pleaſed you more, than that you poor Sinners ſhould be ſaved? than to fling out to you the Goſpel of your Salvation, as a Tow to lay hold upon to get ſafe over the Sea of his Wrath, and to obtain at laſt an everlaſting Salvation? The Matter of the Goſpel it is Salvation, it is called Salvation; the Goſpel is, *Heb.*2.2. as the Writing wherein a man's Pardon is contained, is called the Pardon it ſelf.

It is lik-wiſe called the Goſpel of Salvation, becauſe it doth bring men to ſalvation, and becauſe it is the power of God unto ſalvation, as the Apoſtle ſaith, *Rom.*1.

Now, my Brethren, what Obſervation ſhall we draw from hence? It is the Glad tidings of Salvation, ſo Beza tranſlates it; becauſe (ſaith he) this is the beſt Tidings that ever was; here I will give it in the ſignification of it, ſaith he, I will not uſe the word Goſpel or Evangel; but take it thus, it is the Glad tidings of ſalvation. Oh, how ſhould Salvation therefore be valued by us! When the Apoſtle would ſet out the Goſpel to you, It is the Goſpel, ſaith he, of your Salvation. What could he ſpeak more to have moved the hearts of men than this? It is a word of truth, or it is a Faithful ſaying; it hath truth and faithfulneſs in it, worthy of all acceptation, that may draw you; but it is a Goſpel of Salvation, ſaith he. When firſt this Goſpel was preached to theſe poor Gentiles, it is ſaid, *Act.*13.47,48. They were glad, and glorified the word of the Lord. Oh, how glad ſhould you be when you hear it preached! For you are not ſaved yet, you are not in Heaven yet; it is the Goſpel which muſt ſave you, and bring you there. It is the Goſpel of your Salvation that works ſalvation in you, that bringeth you to ſalvation, that buildeth you up to eternal life, *Act.*20.

I ſhould have likewiſe ſhewed you, why it is called your Salvation, but I will paſs over that. I have ſhewed, why it is called the word of truth, why the Goſpel of Salvation; but why are both theſe here put together? You ſhall find it called the Goſpel of Salvation ſome where elſe, as *Heb.*2.2. and the power of God unto ſalvation, *Rom.*1. And you ſhall find it often called, the word of truth, as *Coloſſ.*1. and other places: but here both cometh in; for what reaſon? For two reaſons.

Firſt, Becauſe if he had ſaid only, the Goſpel of your Salvation, this is ſuch mighty news to poor Sinners that they would never have believed it, for men are not apt to believe too good news, therefore (ſaith he) it is the Goſpel of your Salvation, and the word of truth too. As when the Angel, *Revel.*19. told John glorious things, becauſe he thought they were too good to be true, the Angel clappeth upon them this Seal, *v.*9. Theſe are the true Sayings of God. So the Apoſtle here, when he commendeth the Goſpel as the Goſpel of your Salvation, that brings you news of being ſaved, to draw your hearts to believe it, ſaith he, it is the word of truth, the greateſt Truth that ever God uttered. The greateſt Truth, my Brethren, and our ſalvation are met in one. It is the word of truth, and it is the Goſpel of our Salvation.

Ser. XIV. The Second reaſon why he mentioneth both is this, He ſpeaks of Faith, (as you ſee, who firſt truſted in Chriſt; in whom ye alſo truſted, and after you believed you were ſealed, &c.) Now Faith, it is ſeated in two faculties, in the Underſtanding, and in the Will. Anſwerably, what hath the Goſpel? To ſatisfie the Underſtanding, it hath the greateſt truth in the World, it is the word of truth, the Underſtanding cloſeth with that. To ſatisfie the Will, it hath the greateſt good in the World, it is the Goſpel of Salvation. So that now firſt, a man being perſwaded of the truth of the Goſpel, and that truth being matter of ſalvation, his will hath reaſon to cloſe with it, and ſo he makes up the bargain with God, that is, believeth. Heb. 11. 13. After they ſaw the Promiſes, and were perſwaded of them, they embraced them. There was ſeeing and being perſwaded of them, as being the word of truth; there was embracing of them, as being the ſalvation of their Souls.

Thus you ſee why the Goſpel is a word of truth and the Goſpel of Salvation, and why the Apoſtle here joyns them both together. There remains the third thing in the Text to be handled; After that you believed you were ſealed, which Sealing is an Earneſt, for ſo it followeth verſe 14.

SER-

Ser. XV.

SERMON XV.

EPHES. I. the Latter end of verſ. 13, and verſe 14.

In whom alſo, after that ye believed, ye were ſealed with that Holy Spirit of Promiſe.
Which is the earneſt of our Inheritance, until the redemption of the purchaſed poſſeſſion, unto the praiſe of his glory.

I Have proceeded unto theſe words in opening of this Chapter. The Coherence of theſe words with the former, is both natural and elegant. He had ſpoken of an Inheritance, which they were predeſtinated unto, ſo ver. 11. Which Inheritance was purchaſed for them by Jeſus Chriſt, ſo ver. 14. it is called the purchaſed poſſeſſion. Being appointed them and purchaſed for them, he telleth them in the 13*th* verſe, that the Goſpel brought the firſt news of it to them; After you heard (ſaith he) the word of truth, the Goſpel of your ſalvation. Upon their hearing of it their Faith cloſed with it, and by believing they obtained that Inheritance, ſo ſaith the 11*th* verſe. Now becauſe that this Inheritance, though the right unto it was obtained by believing on Jeſus Chriſt, though it was appointed for them from everlaſting; (They were predeſtinated according to his purpoſe, ſo ſaith the 11*th* verſe,) although purchaſed by Jeſus Chriſt, yet they ſtood ſtill out of the poſſeſſion of it; in the mean time therefore, till the redemption of this purchaſed poſſeſſion, till the time ſhould come that they ſhould enjoy it, he giveth them the Holy Spirit, who had both ſealed them up to it, and had given them the Earneſt of it in their hearts. After you believed, ſaith he; you weare ſealed with that Holy Spirit of Promiſe, who is the Earneſt of our Inheritance.

For the diviſion of theſe words, (I mean the firſt part of them, viz. thoſe in the 13*th* verſe, In whom after ye believed, ye were ſealed with that Holy Spirit of Promiſe,) they fall naturally into theſe parts.

Firſt, Here is a work of the Holy Ghoſt diſtinct from Faith, After you believed you were ſealed. There is a work of Sealing, to open which will be the greateſt difficulty that I ſhall have to do with at this time.

Here is Secondly, the order of that work, it is After they had believed.

Here is Thirdly, the virtual cauſe, if I may ſo call it, in whom this ſealing was wrought, it is in Chriſt: In whom after ye believed ye were ſealed. In whom referreth to Sealing, as I ſhall ſhew you anon.

Fourthly, Here is the Perſon that is the Sealer, it is the Spirit, the Holy Ghoſt, the third Perſon in the Trinity; and he is ſet forth unto us as he is a Sealer, two ways.

Firſt, He is the Spirit of Promiſe.

Secondly, He is a Holy Spirit.

Then Fifthly, here are the Perſons ſealed; After ye believed, (ſpeaking to the Epheſians) ye were ſealed, &c.

Ser. XV. To begin with the firſt. I ſhall profeſs meerly to perform the part of an Expoſitor, and but mention ſuch Obſervations concerning Sealing, (which in it ſelf will afford a large field of diſcourſe otherwiſe,) as the Text affordeth. And firſt, concerning this Sealing, let us enquire what that is.

I ſhall firſt ſhew you what it is not; which ſome Interpreters have given to be the meaning of it too.

Secondly, I ſhall endeavour to ſhew you what it is.

Firſt, What it is not. I will not trouble you with what Popiſh Interpreters make this Sealing to be, becauſe they are enemies to Aſſurance of ſalvation. But firſt, Piſcator, and ſome Others, do take it for the work of Faith it ſelf, and ſo they expreſs the meaning of it to be, that in believing, in the work of Faith, the Holy Ghoſt did ſeal up the truth of the Promiſe unto their hearts. The like ſaith Calvin upon this place; and they have theſe two Reaſons for it: Becauſe he is called the Spirit of Promiſe, ſay they; becauſe he ſealeth up the truth of the Promiſes, when men believe. And whereas he had called the Goſpel the word of truth, in the words before, He ſpeaks, ſay they, to theſe Epheſians, and telleth them, Ye know it by this to be the truth, for the Holy Ghoſt did ſeal it up to you, when you believed.

Their meaning, (that I may explain it to you) as I underſtand it, is this: There is a twofold Aſſurance.

There is firſt, an Aſſurance of the truth of the Promiſes, (and that is their meaning,) whereby a man's Underſtanding is ſpiritually convinced, that the Promiſes are true, and from God. And Secondly, There is an Aſſurance of a man's intereſt in thoſe Promiſes.

Now when they ſay, that the Holy Ghoſt in believing ſeals Believers, their meaning is, that He ſealeth up the truth of the Promiſes to them. Now to confute this Interpretation in a word or two. I do grant them three things concerning it.

The firſt is, That it is a truth, that in all Faith there is an aſſurance of the truth of the Promiſes wrought. I do not ſay there is an aſſurance of a man's intereſt in the Promiſes. No, but whoever believeth, he hath unbelief thus far ſubdued, that he fully believeth this Promiſe is true, and giveth up his Soul unto it. There is a prevailing Aſſurance of the truth of the Promiſe above all doubting in every Believer. I do not ſay, it excludeth doubting, neither do I ſay, it is an Aſſurance of a man's own perſonal intereſt in the Promiſe. I could ſhew you this by Scripture, but I muſt not inſiſt upon it.

In the Second place, I grant that this is a work of the Holy Ghoſt. It is not all the light of Reaſon that can convince a man ſpiritually of the truth of a Promiſe, or draw his heart into reſt upon it. 1 Theſſ. 1. 5 ſpeaking of the Converſion of the Theſſalonians, and of the Apoſtles entrance among them when they firſt were turned to God, he ſaith, that the Goſpel came not unto them in word only, but in the Holy Ghoſt, and in much aſſurance. The Holy Ghoſt and Aſſurance are both there joyned together.

Nay, In the Third place, the Holy Ghoſts convincing of a man of the truth of any Promiſe, it is called a Sealing. I grant that likewiſe. Job. 33. 16. ſpeaking of the manner of God's converting men in thoſe times, (which was done by Viſions and by Dreams,) Then, ſaith he, he openeth the ears of men, and ſealeth their inſtruction.

But yet, though all this be granted, this is not the meaning of the place, to ſpeak of the work of Faith. For firſt, if you mark it, it is not a ſealing up of the Promiſe, the truth of it, a ſealing of Inſtruction that the Apoſtle here ſpeaks of; but it is a ſealing of their Perſons, and ſo their Perſonal intereſt in the Promiſe; By whom, ſaith he, ye were ſealed; he doth not ſay, the Promiſe, or the truth of it was ſealed to them, but their Perſons were ſealed.

Then Secondly, It cannot be meant of that ſealing of inſtruction that is wrought in believing, for it cometh after believing, after ye believed (ſaith he,) ye were ſealed with the Spirit of Promiſe. I know Piſcator readeth the words otherwiſe, but I ſhall meet with his interpretation anon, (for the Order of It,) when I ſpeak to that point.

Again,

Again. It is evident, he ſpeaks of this ſealing, as a diſtinct thing from Faith: For ſuppoſe this ſealing were at the ſame time when men believe, ſuppoſe he had ſaid, when you believed you were ſealed, yet it is evident that it muſt needs be a diſtinct thing from Faith. If a man ſaith that he did ſuch a thing when ſuch a thing was, it argueth he ſpeakes of two things. Ser. XV.

Laſtly, If he had ſpoken of the ſealing of the Spirit as the cauſe of Faith, he would not have ſaid, when you believed you were ſealed with the ſpirit, but thorough ſealing you did believe. He would have ſpoken of Faith as an act of theirs, and of ſealing as an act of the Spirits, the cauſe of Faith. And ſo now to confute that interpretation.

I find again in the other place, that Zanchy doth acknowledge, (as a man muſt needs do,) that Sealing here is a diſtinct work from Faith; but then he interpreteth it of the work of Regeneration, and of Sanctification, and renewing the Image of God upon a Mans heart; and his reaſon is this; for (ſaith he,) a Seal doth import the impreſſion of an Image, (he giveth many reaſons, but that is the main,) now becauſe that Sanctification beareth the Image of God, therefore (ſaith he,) the ſealing of the Spirit is the ſtamping of Holineſs, and of all the frame of graces upon the heart, which (ſaith he) is upon believing, is wrought in a Man by Faith.

Now, (my Brethren,) to confute this. I do grant Firſt, That the ſeal here mentioned, it doth imply and import in a ſecondary ſenſe, the ſtamping of the Image of God upon the heart, and therefore this attribute of Holy is given to the Spirit as he is a ſealer. But yet it is not the meaning of the Holy Ghoſt here, not the principal meaning of it, eſpecially not the firſt work of Sanctification, and the Reaſons are theſe.

For Firſt, Beſides that many Divines hold, (and I think not without ground,) that all the principles of Sanctification are wrought in the heart before an act of Faith, they are all wrought together; this is a truth, that the acts of Sanctification depend upon the acts of Faith foregoing them, (It will decide a controverſy,) I ſay the acts of Sanctification; our acting of the love to God and obedience do follow the acts of Faith, laying hold upon Chriſt and free Grace, but yet the working of the Image is preſuppoſed before Faith, in order of nature. I might prove this unto you at large.

But Secondly, If the working of the Image of God upon the heart were the thing here intended to be the ſeal, he would not ſay after ye believed, why? Becauſe that Believing and Faith is part of the Image of God, part of the Image of Chriſt, as well as any other holy diſpoſition in us. It is ſaid, we receive grace for grace of Chriſt. Joh. 1. that is, look what Graces he had, we alſo have, and Faith amongſt the reſt; and therefore 1 Joh. 5. 1. he that believeth, is ſaid to be born of God.

And then there is this Third Reaſon for it alſo, why that the firſt work of Regeneration is not here intended in this Metaphor, for the Apoſtle followeth an alluſion of making ſure an Inheritance; now when the Scripture ſpeaks of the work of Sanctification, and of Regeneration, he no where calls it the ſeal of the Spirit, but he calleth it the writing of the Law in the heart. For you know when you will make a thing ſure, you write the Covenants, and when you have done, you ſeal to it; now Sanctification is the writing in the heart, as the Scripture is written in the Book. So you have it, 2 Cor. 3. 3. For as much (ſaith he,) as ye are declared to be the Epiſtle of Chriſt written, not with Ink, but with the Spirit of the living God. Here is Sanctification, now the Holy Goſt is as Ink, and that is as writing; but here the Holy Goſt is as the ſeal, and the work here is as the ſeal, which the Holy Goſt works, the thing ſealed.

That which occaſioneth this miſtake is this, Becauſe every ſeal hath an Image in it, it was therefore ſuppoſed that the main intent of ſealing was this, ſtamping of an Image; but that is not the main intent of a ſeal. It is true every ſeal hath an Image upon it, which it leaveth upon the Wax; but yet the main intent of a ſeal, it is to aſſure or aſcertain, to certify and make known, and to conconvey and make ſure a thing, that is the intent of a ſeal, that is the primary intent of it, only Ex conſequente, by way of conſequence, and becauſe you may know this ſeal is true, you have an Image annexed to it. So I have confuted thoſe Interpretations that put moſt fair. It was neceſſary for me to do it, for they that read Comments will find that theſe are the great Interpretations.

Now then in examining what it is, I ſhall do that firſt in general.

It is firſt a work of the Holy Ghoſt; that is certain, he may be called an Earneſt, the Holy Ghoſt's Perſon may be ſo called; but he is not called a Seal, but in relation to an act of Sealing: It importeth a work of the Holy Ghoſt upon the heart; this giving of the Perſon of the Holy Ghoſt to a man is the higheſt Earneſt of Heaven, more than all your Graces. But if you ſpeak of the Holy Ghoſt as a Seal, it importeth a thing ſealed, an act of his, a work upon a man's Spirit. That is the firſt.

Secondly, It is a Metaphorical expreſſion, or a ſimilitude; and if you will open this Similitude, you muſt have recourſe to the uſe of Seals, what uſe Seals ſerve for.

Divines give many uſes of a Seal, that they apply to this particular in the Text. They ſay, God ſealeth his Children, becauſe he owneth them to be his by way of appropriation, ſetteth them apart to be his; as you Merchants ſeal your goods, and ſo diſtinguiſh them from other mens goods. As *Cant.*4. 12. the Spouſe is called a ſealed Fountain unto Chriſt. The meaning of which Metaphor is this; The Jews you muſt know, whoſe drink was Water; there were ſome Fountains and Springs more delicate than others: Thoſe that were great men, ſuch as Solomon, the Kings and others, if they had a delicate Spring of Waters, they rolled a Stone upon it, (ſo you read they did of their Wells, *Gen.*29.) and then when they had done they would ſeal that Stone, that their Servants, or others, walking in their incloſed Gardens, might not taſte of that Spring, they would reſerve it for themſelves; as in *Matt.*27. They ſealed up the Stone that was rolled upon the Sepulchre to make it ſure: ſo they uſed to do to their Fountains, rolling a Stone upon them they ſealed them up. It is an alluſion to what ones Wife or Spouſe ſhould be to him, She ſhould be as a ſealed Fountain, appropriated unto him alone, and ſo ſaith Chriſt is the Church to me. *Prov.*5.15,18. Drink waters out of thine own Ciſtern; Let thy Fountain be bleſſed (ſaith he, ſpeaking of a man's Wife;) rejoyce with the wife of thy youth. And ſo now to appropriate the Soul to Chriſt, to make the Soul the ſealed Fountain, this is one Interpretation they give of it.

So likewiſe for Eſtimation, and for Security, and the like; they give many ſuch. But, my Brethren, I cut off all ſuch Interpretations in a word or two.

And the Firſt is this, That you have all theſe upon believing, as well as after believing. You are diſtinguiſhed from other men, you are ſealed in that ſenſe, you are appropriated to God when you are firſt converted; but this ſealing is after believing: therefore ſtill this hitteth it not.

Secondly, Let there be never ſo many uſes of a Seal, that which is proper to the ſcope here is ſealing of an Inheritance; you ſee the Apoſtle ſpeaks of an Inheritance, whereof the Holy Ghoſt is a Sealer; We have obtained (ſaith he) an Inheritance by Faith, and having believed we are ſealed with the Holy Spirit of Promiſe.

So that now, if you would know the proper meaning of the word, you muſt have recourſe to the uſe of a Seal in ſealing up of an Inheritance.

What uſe is there of a Seal in ſealing up of Inheritances?

There is a double uſe of it: There is firſt, a making the Inheritance ſure to a man in it ſelf; and there is Secondly, a making the man know that it is his, to confirm and ſettle his Spirit that it is his. Now let us ſee which of theſe two is the Seal here meant.

Firſt, It is not the ſealing of it to make a thing ſure, to make Salvation ſure, that is not the ſcope principally here to make it ſure in himſelf; and the reaſon is this; For to make ſalvation ſure there needeth no Seal after believing. No, there was a Seal ſet to make ſalvation ſure long before his believing, therefore that is not the Apoſtle's ſcope here. Look into 2 *Tim.*2.19. The foundation of the Lord ſtandeth ſure, having this Seal, the Lord knoweth who are his. He ſpeaks of God's eternal Election; there is the Seal now by which ſalvation is made ſure in it ſelf, therefore now for the Holy Ghoſt to ſeal it up, to make it ſure in it ſelf afterward, it needed not, there needed not a ſecond Seal to that end. No, upon thy believing, and by being ſanctified, and receiving the Spirit at firſt, thy ſalvation is made as ſure as by all the works of the Holy Ghoſt for ever after. Ser. XV.

Well then, there is nothing therefore that is left that ſhould be the meaning and the principal ſcope of the Holy Ghoſt here, but this, That they are ſealed by the Spirit to make them ſure, to make their Perſons ſure of their ſalvation, to perſwade their hearts, to put them out of queſtion that this Inheritance was theirs, that they might be able to claim it. In the 32 *Jerem.*10. when Jeremiah did buy Land, you read there that he had both the Evidences written, and he had Witneſſes to them, and he had them Sealed too; and all this in publick, before publick Notaries, before the Magiſtrate. (It is the manner amongſt men ſtill,) and the Holy Ghoſt alludeth to what was done then; he doth, I ſay, mention his Sealing there unto that end, that there might be a publick and a general Notice, that he himſelf might be able to claim that Land for ever.

Now, my Brethren, this is that that I pitch upon to be the meaning of the Holy Ghoſt here. You muſt know that in Ancient times, as likewiſe now, (as the Scripture recordeth) when there ſhould be a publick Certificate made, that all men ſhould take knowledge that ſuch an Act is authentical, it was done by a Seal and without hands, ſometimes. Look into *Eſth.*8.8,9. whenas a Decree was made by the Perſian Monarch, it was ſaid, It was written in the Kings name, (there was not the Kings hand to it,) and it was ſealed with the Kings Ring. Read on in that Chapter, he wrote (at the 10*th* verſe) in the King Ahaſuerus his name, and ſealed it with the King's Ring. All acknowledge that to be the King's Seal when they ſaw it. The end of the Seal was to make a Certificate, that it might be known by thoſe whom it did concern. And therefore now to this day you ſee, where the King's Broad-Seal is, the King's hand is not to it; but there is the Seal ſet, and it is enough to aſſure all that ſee it, that it is the King's act. The end of a Seal here therefore, is to make known, to aſſure, to perſwade, and to certifie that ſuch a thing is an act of Gods.

And, my Brethren, not to make ſalvation ſure in it ſelf, but to make us ſure of it, is plainly the meaning of the Holy Ghoſt here; for firſt you ſhall ſee, that in other Scriptues Sealing is ſo taken. Take but one or two places; I will name one eminent one, 2 Cor. 1.21. Now he which eſtabliſheth us with you in Chriſt, and hath anointed us, is God, who hath alſo ſealed us, and given the earneſt of the Spirit in our hearts. As Muſculus well obſerveth upon the place, There are (ſaith he) three ſimilitudes uſed to expreſs what he had ſaid plainly at firſt; he had ſaid, he that eſtabliſheth us with you: this ſame eſtabliſhing, it is expreſt both by Anointing, (for the Holy Ghoſt is given to teach us all Truths, the Anointing teacheth us all things,) and by Sealing, who hath alſo ſealed us, ſaith he, he aſſureth us of our intereſt in them, and he hath given us an Earneſt of them in our hearts; and thus ſaith he, the Holy Ghoſt eſtabliſheth a man. It is not making Salvation ſure, but it is making the Perſon ſure, it is therefore expreſt by Eſtabliſhing us with you. And the ſcope of the Holy Ghoſt in this place is evident to be ſo, for mark by what degrees he ſetteth forth the revelation of ſalvation to Believers. He telleth them firſt, that the Goſpel brought them the firſt news of it, it was the happy news of your ſalvation, as the 13*th* verſe hath it, and ſo Beza expoundeth it; and as uſually the firſt news of a thing is but confuſed; ſo is the firſt news of the Goſpel, it is but an indefinite hint, there is ſalvation, this Salvation is offered to you, it may be yours. Well then Secondly cometh Faith, and that cloſeth with this ſalvation: You believed, ſaith he, you gave your Souls up unto it to be ſaved by it; then cometh the Seal of the Spirit, after believing, and confirmeth a man, ſettleth and eſtabliſheth the Soul, (as the Apoſtle's phraſe is in that of the Corinths,) that this Salvation is his.

And then again in the Second place, if you obſerve it, he doth not ſay that your Inheritance is ſealed, as if it were made ſure in it ſelf; but he ſaith, the Perſons are ſealed, he ſealed us, he ſealed you; thoſe are the phraſes both here and in that of the Corinths; therefore the end of this ſealing, is to ſeal up their peculiar intereſt.

And

Sect. XV. And then again there is this Third Reason for it likewise, that it is not making Salvation sure in it self, but to make us sure of it, because that the inward work here of Sealing answereth to the outward work of Baptism. (It is Zanchies Observation, though he doth not apply it,) I say, the Apostle, instead of saying you are baptized and so sealed, mentioneth the inward work of Baptism rather; You are sealed, saith he, by the Spirit. Now the end of Baptism is to be a Seal, that is the outward Seal, for it succeedeth Circumcision, as appeareth *Colos.*2.11,12. compared. Now, Circumcision is called the Seal of the righteousness of Faith, Rom.4.11. Now every Ordinance hath his proper work, the proper work of Baptism, the inward work that answereth to Baptism, is the Seal of the Spirit, for that is the Seal of the righteousness of Faith. Now Baptism supposeth Regeneration, supposeth Salvation sure in it self first. Sacraments are never administred for to begin or work Grace; you suppose Children to believe before you baptize them, read all the Acts, still it is said, They believed and were baptized: I could give you multitude of places for it. Now then Salvation is made sure upon believing; but you are baptized, that is the Seal to confirm: Answerably, Salvation is made sure upon believing; but the Seal of the Spirit cometh as the fruit of Baptism, which is the proper work of it. The inward Seal answereth to the outward. You shall therefore find in the Acts, that upon baptizing of Men that were at years, the Holy Ghost fell upon them; as when the Eunuch was baptized, *Act.*8.38. he went away rejoycing, so saith verse 39. he had joy in the Holy Ghost. You have the Jailor baptized, *Act.*16.33. you have him rejoycing, *vers.*34. So that now the Seal of the Spirit in those Primitive times, it did accompany the outward Seal of Baptism; and so to this day, the proper fruit you are to expect of your having been baptized, is to be sealed with the Spirit of Promise; it is not to work Regeneration, but supposeth it. So now you see, that sealing it is an assurance of salvation.

But now there is a two-old assurance of salvation, that we may yet go further in examining what is intended in it, (for I must sift things to find out what is the proper scope, what is the Elixir of the Holy Ghosts intention.) There is first an assurance by sense, by conditional Promises, whereby a man seeing the Image of God upon his heart, to which Promises are made, he cometh comfortably to believe that he is in the estate of Grace. That there is a use of sense all acknowledge. But then Secondly, there is an immediate assurance of the Holy Ghost, by a Heavenly and Divine light, of a Divine authority, which the Holy Ghost sheddeth in a man's heart, (not having relation to Grace wrought, or any thing in a man's self,) whereby he sealeth him up to the day of redemption: And this is the great Seal of all the rest. The one way is discoursive; a man gathereth, that God loveth him from the effects, as we gather there is fire, because there is smoak. But the other is intuitive, as the Angels are said to know things; it is such a knowledge as whereby we know the whole is greater than the part, we do not stand discoursing. There is light that cometh and over-powreth a man's Soul, and assureth him that God is his, and he is God's, and that God loveth him from everlasting.

Now the Question is, which of these two is intended here? I shall give you an Answer to it by consulting that in 1 *Joh.*5.8. He saith, there are three that bear witness to a man's Conscience, to a man's Spirit, there is the Spirit, saith he, (that is the Holy Ghost,) and there is the Water, and there is the Blood. By Water he meaneth Sanctification (as all agree,) and by Blood he meaneth the Blood of Jesus Christ, by Faith laid hold upon, which hath a Witness in it; He that believeth, saith he, hath the Witness in himself, verse 10. You shall find both these in *Heb.*10.22. Let us draw near with a true heart in full assurance of Faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil Conscience; (there is Blood, for *Heb.*9.14. the Blood of Christ is said to purge the Conscience from dead works,) and our bodies washed with pure water, that is, our whole man sanctified, alluding to the Types of the Ceremonial Law. But you see here, beside the Testimony of Blood, when a man cometh to believe, he laieth hold upon the Blood of Christ; when a man looks to Christ, though with a weak Faith, Jesus Christ doth somewhat look upon him; as when a man looks upon a Picture, if he eye the Picture, the Picture seemeth to look upon him too; this becometh some quiet to the Soul. A man that is elected, and commits to lay hold upon the Blood of Christ, look as a man that is guilty of Murther when he cometh to the dead Body, the blood floweth: ſo when a man that is a Believer looks upon Chriſt, there is a freſh flowing of the blood, and that ſtrengneth Faith, no man looks upon Chriſt but cometh off more chearly; but this is a weak Witneſs. Then cometh in Water, that witneſſeth too; but yet I ſay, if you mark it, here is the Spirit that differeth from both theſe, therefore there is a further teſtimony than either from a man's Sanctification, or from meer Faith; the Holy Ghoſt witneſſeth with both the other: for your Sanctification cannot comfort you, if it were not for the Holy Ghoſt; no, your Faith could not comfort you, but that it is a work of the Holy Ghoſt. I will give you but one place for it, Rom. 15. 13. He prayeth that God would make them abound in hope through the power of the Holy Ghoſt. If thou haſt any hope wrought in thee, either by looking to Chriſt's Blood, or by ſeeing Grace in thy heart, it is by the power of the Holy Ghoſt. Well, why doth he ſay Spirit differing from both Blood and Water? Becauſe there is an immediate teſtimony beyond all theſe, which the Holy Ghoſt works in a man's Soul. Ser. XV.

Now, my Brethren, to anſwer you which is meant here by the ſealing of the Spirit? I Anſwer in two things.

Firſt, I ſay, That in a large and in a general ſenſe all Aſſurance wrought, whether by Water or by Blood, (for there are no other ways,) any Aſſurance, what way ſoever it be, it is a Seal of the Holy Ghoſt. (I ſhall give you ſomething to confirm it.) If you will take Sealing for a giving in Witneſs in a large and common ſenſe; ſo whatſoever giveth a teſtimony through the power of the Holy Ghoſt, is an irradiating of a Believer, and is the work of the Holy Ghoſt, that may be ſaid to be a Seal. In John 3. 33. you ſhall ſee the uſe of the phraſe of Sealing, it is uſed there for the giving of a Teſtimony, He that hath received his teſtimony, (namely by believing) hath ſet to his Seal that God is true. So that now, in a large and common ſenſe, any Witneſs that is given to confirm a truth, is expreſt in the Scripture by ſetting a Seal unto; therefore now, when the Holy Ghoſt doth give in a witneſs, that you have grace by Blood, laid hold on by Faith, that you have grace by Water; if it be a Witneſs, it may be called a Seal. I will not exclude thoſe two other ways of Aſſurance. Witneſſes did uſe to ſet to their Seals as witneſſes, as well as the Conveyer of an Inheritance in Ancient times. Therefore Divines make degrees of Sealing, they ſay there is a ſealing by Blood, and there is a ſealing by Water by Sanctification, and there is a ſealing by the Spirit; they make them ſeveral degrees, as in paſſing a thing at Court, it paſſeth the King, and then it paſſeth the Privy Seal, and then it paſſeth the Broad-Seal; theſe are but three ſeveral degrees of confirming the ſame thing, but the Broad-Seal doth the buſineſs, whereby a man authentically claimeth it for ever. So that, I ſay, in a large ſenſe, I will not deny but that Sealing here may be put for all kind of Aſſurance.

But yet let me ſay this, That that which is here more eminently meant, is the immediate teſtimony of the Holy Ghoſt, the ſpecial thing that is here aimed at; and my Reaſons are theſe, Firſt, If you follow the Metaphor cloſe, every Witneſs is not a Seal in a ſtrict ſenſe, when there are Witneſſes and a Sealer too; the Witneſſes come in to confirm the Seal, or to confirm the Writing. Every Seal indeed is a Witneſs, and it is the higheſt witneſs that is; and therefore though the Spirit and his immediate teſtimony, is called a Witneſs, yet he is called a Seal too; but yet on the other ſide, every Witneſs is not a Seal, not in a ſtrict ſenſe. There are many things that are Signs that are not Seals, as you have it Rom. 4. 11. There are many Witneſſes that are not Sealers, eſpecially in matters of Inheritances, where there is a conveying over by the Perſon that ſealeth.

Then again a ſecond Reaſon is this; If you obſerve the phraſe, it is ſaid you are ſealed by the Spirit, he is only mentioned. Now, if you have recourſe to that 1 Joh. 5. 8. Water is ſaid to be a witneſs, and Blood a witneſs, and the Spirit a third witneſs; the witneſs of Water and Blood are ſwallowed up as it were in the witneſs of the Spirit, in reſpect of the immediate teſtimony of the Holy Ghoſt. His teſtimony, though it is joyned with theirs, yet it is hid under theirs; it is not ſaid ſo much to be the teſtimony of the Spirit, as the teſtimony of Water and Blood, whereas here it is ſaid to be the teſtimony of the Spirit; therefore that third is rather meant than the other.

And then again in the Third place, In ſealing of an Inheritance, the Witneſſes you know are Extranei; they are Perſons which are not the Conveyors of the Inheritance, he that ſelleth or conveyeth the Inheritance is ſaid to ſeal properly, he whoſe the Inheritance is. Therefore now, though your Grace and Faith may come in as Witneſſes, yet when he ſpeaks of a Seal, he muſt mean the Seal of the Conveyor, which is therefore the Seal of the Holy Ghoſt himſelf, as diſtinguiſhed from theſe two, as principally aimed at.

Great Perſons, that ſtand upon their Authority, they uſe to ſeal without Witneſſes; if you will ſpeak of the Seal of a King, as this is the Seal of God: ſo Eſth. 8. 8. they did but write in the King's Name, and ſeal it with the King's Ring; there was the Seal, there was no Hand to it. To this day the King writeth Teſte me ipſo, Witneſs our ſelf, when he putteth his Seal to. In ſome Colledges, when they put the Colledge-Seal to a thing, they put no Hands to neither of the Fellows, nor of the Maſter, but only the Seal of the Colledge. Saith Chriſt, Joh. 5. 33, 34. I receive not teſtimony from man: though John, ſaith he, hath given me a witneſs, yet I receive no teſtimony from him, I am witneſs enough my ſelf. When the Holy Ghoſt cometh to ſeal up Salvation, he will have no witneſs but himſelf, they may come in as Under-confirmers of it; but he doth it himſelf, Witneſs our ſelf. That is the Seal of the Holy Ghoſt.

God hath made a Promiſe, and he hath made an Oath, to confirm our Salvation; he hath made a Promiſe, and he hath ſet to his Seal, to confirm ſalvation; now do but parallel theſe two. When God ſweareth, he ſweareth by himſelf, he will not ſwear by any thing elſe. Will the Holy Ghoſt ſeal? he ſealeth by himſelf, he will take nothing elſe: ſo you have it Heb. 6. 18. Becauſe he could ſwear by no greater, he ſware by himſelf. Will he ſeal? he will ſeal by himſelf. There may be other Witneſſes, but they are Extranei, they have not to do with the bargain; but (ſaith he) it is my Witneſs. I will ſeal by my ſelf, I will receive teſtimony from none. He doth it himſelf.

So now, my Brethren, I have opened this thing unto you, and all that I have ſaid tendeth plainly and clearly but to open the words.

Now I ſhall come to ſome Obſervations from what hath been ſaid.

In the Firſt place you ſee, that the work of Faith is a diſtinct thing, a different thing from the work of Aſſurance; that is the leaſt that can be gathered from it, he ſpeaks of Faith as one thing, of the ſealing of the Spirit as another thing. Thoſe that have held that Faith is Aſſurance, and others that have held the contrary; there is a double miſtake in the point, I ſhall ſhew it in a word.

Firſt, It muſt be granted, that in all Faith there is an Aſſurance; but of what? Of the truth of the Promiſe. If a man doubt, if he waver, (as St. James ſaith) in the truth of the Promiſe, he will never act his Faith. But the Queſtion here is about the aſſurance of a man's Intereſt, that is not always in Faith.

Again, All Faith is an application of Chriſt; but how? It is not an application that Chriſt is mine, but it is a laying hold upon Chriſt to be mine. It is not a Logical application in way of Propoſition that I may ſay Chriſt is mine; but it is a real one, I put him on, I take him to be mine, and that is the better of the two. Faith, my Brethren, is diſtinct from Aſſurance.

In the Second place, The ſealing of the Spirit here intended, eſpecially that immediate Aſſurance, which is mainly aimed at; it is a light beyond the light of ordinary Faith, that ordinary Faith which a man liveth by; why? Becauſe he makes it to be a further work than believing; After ye believed (ſaith he) ye were ſealed, he makes it a further thing; and becauſe it is the next thing to Heaven, you have no more, you can have no more till you come thither; for you are ſealed, and it is the Earneſt of your Inheritance. Faith indeed doth give the Soul up to Chriſt, it dependeth upon him, quieteth it ſelf in the blood of Chriſt. A man feeleth the load taken off his Conſcience while he believeth, and while he waſheth himſelf in that blood, and eyeth that blood; but this of the ſeal of the Spirit, it is more. At the 17*th* verſe, (it may perhaps prove the meaning of it,

I ſhall conſider it when I come to it,) he is called the Spirit of Wiſdom, (I told you by wiſdom is meant faith, in the 8*th* verſe,) and Revelation. I will give you Job for an inſtance; Job had an ordinary light he lived by, and an extraordinary light that came into his Soul. Look Job 42.5. Mine ear, ſaith he, hath heard of thee, but now mine eye hath ſeen thee: He calleth this Viſion in compariſon of what he had all his life time. I think Job ſpeaks it in reſpect of a ſight of God himſelf, but you may apply it to the ſight of a man's intereſt; it is a light by which a man ſeeth it, though he did but hear of it before. I have heard it whiſpered to me by the Holy Ghoſt, (for the Holy Ghoſt whiſpereth ſecretly by Blood and by Water,) that I am in the ſtate of Grace, but now I ſee it, ſaith he. Ser. XV.

I yield, my Brethren, that the ſealing of the Spirit is but Faith, if you compare it to Heaven; it is not the Viſion of Heaven, and therefore 1 Pet. 1.8. it is ſaid, Believing, you rejoyced with joy unſpeakable and glorious. It is but Faith in compariſon of Heaven, it is believing when you are filled with joy: ſo Rom. 15.17. he prayeth, that they may be filled with all joy through believing. But let me tell you that it is Faith elevated, and raiſed up above its ordinary rate, as Stephen's eye, with which he ſaw Chriſt; it was his natural ſight, but it was his natural ſight elevated, raiſed up above the ordinary proportion of an eye: ſo is this, a light beyond the ordinary light of Faith. I will give you but one Inſtance to difference it unto you, and it is a clear one; You read in 2 Sam. 12.13. that Nathan came to David as a Prophet, and when he ſpake as a Prophet, David believed it, he had faith to entertain this word; and he telleth David plainly, that his ſins of Adultery and Murther were forgiven, and he ſaid that God had told him, that he ſhould not die. Well, this being a word of God, David had an ordinary light of Faith to apprehend it, to believe it, as we believe the Scripture when it is read. Suppoſe thy Name were written in the Book of God, thou foundeſt it in the Goſpel, as Cyrus's Name was in the Prophets, that thou ſhouldeſt be ſaved, thou wouldeſt believe it with ſuch a faith, as thou believeſt there is a God out of the Scripture, and a Chriſt out of the Scripture. Well, but David for all this was not ſatisfied; he had a Faith to believe that his ſins ſhould be forgiven, and that Faith was an aſſurance that they ſhould be pardoned; but it was not a ſeal of the Spirit: therefore Pſal. 51.12. after Nathan came unto him, he prayeth, Reſtore unto me the joy of thy ſalvation, and eſtabliſh me with thy free Spirit. He knew it before by an ordinary light, but the thing he ſeeks for here, is the witneſs of the Holy Ghoſt.

Now when we ſay, that it is a Spirit of Revelation, we do not mean as the Papiſts do; they ſay, A man cannot be aſſured of his ſalvation, but by Viſion, and by an Angel appearing to him, and by immediate Meſſages from Heaven. Neither do I mean ſuch Revelation as Paul had, when he was carried up to the Third Heaven. No, but it is ſuch a light, to know a man's own intereſt in Salvation by, as wherewith the Apoſtles wrote Scripture, (not that he that hath it can write Scripture.) It is not a Revelation of new Truths, but to apply thoſe Truths to a man's own heart. In 2 Cor. 1.21,22. in the Verſes before the Apoſtle ſpeaks of the truth of his Doctrine, as he was an Apoſtle, he pawneth his Apoſtleſhip upon it; I am confident in it, ſaith he, the Goſpel I preached, it is not yea and nay. I am an Apoſtle, and I delivered it unto you as an Apoſtle; but now coming to thoſe ordinary Believers of the Corinths, ſaith he, He that eſtabliſheth us in Chriſt with you, is God, who hath alſo ſealed us, &c. He hath given you that light to ſee your intereſt in thoſe Promiſes, the ſame light wherewith we ſee the truth of the Promiſes, and have preached them unto you.

And ſo now you have the ſecond Obſervation from hence: The firſt was, that it is a diſtinct thing from Faith; the ſecond is, that it is a higher light than the ordinary light of Faith. The third is this, (for I ſhall keep to the Text,) It is called a Seal; now in reaſon every Seal hath an Impreſs upon it, What is the Impreſs of the immediate Seal of the Spirit that it ſtampeth upon a man's heart.

To help you to underſtand this, I muſt have recourſe to that 2 Tim. 2.19. The foundation of God ſtandeth ſure, having this Seal, The Lord knoweth who are his; that is, God knoweth whom he hath loved from everlaſting. Here is God's Seal: Well, what is the ſeal of the Spirit? It is the Impreſs of this Seal from everlasting; he cometh and stampeth upon a man's heart, The Lord knoweth thee to be his. It beareth the Image of God's everlasting Love, (it is news with a witness) of God's everlasting love to a man, to him in particular; that is the Motto, the Impress about this Seal, (it hath Holiness with it too, as I shall shew) but I say the Impress, the Motto is this, God knoweth thee to be his. For this Seal of the Spirit answereth to the other Seal, it is the Copy of it, it is engraven from it; God's Seal is, The Lord knoweth who are his, (that is in general spoken of Election;) the particular Seal of the Spirit is, God knoweth thee to be his. As we choose God, because he chose us, we answer his Election in love, we love God because he loved us first: so this Seal of the Spirit, Know thou that thou art God's, answereth that, God knoweth thee to be his, which was God's Seal from everlasting. It is the Electing love of God brought home to the Soul; therefore as Election looks not to Works nor Graces, when God chose you to be his: so when he sealeth you up, the Impress of that love of his it is without the consideration of Works; a man doth not know that he is God's by marks and signs, but by an immediate impress and light of the Holy Ghost's. And so now I have fully, as I could, explained to you what this seal of the Spirit is.

Let me now in a word but observe the order: You see here it is after believing, After ye believed you were sealed, saith he. I will not here enter upon that Controversie, because the Text giveth not occasion for it, Whether that assurance by Signs be first, or assurance by the Spirit immediately be first? for I must still keep to what the Text saith. Only this I raise out of it, and observe further to open the Text, That the Spirit it is after believing.

Piscator, he readeth the words, Per quod etiam quum credidistis, When ye believed, at the same time that ye believed. But, my Brethren, it is not πιστεύοντες, Believing, as you have it, 1 *Pet.*1.8. Believing you were filled with joy in the Holy Ghost; but it is πιστεύσαντες, it is of the time past, when ye had believed; Having believed ye were sealed. After ye believed, saith our Translation rightly.

Take the greatest Instance in the world for it, the Apostles themselves; they were Believers, and they trusted God by Faith, before they were assured and had the seal of the Spirit. You know, verse 12. Paul speaking of the Apostles, saith, who first trusted in Christ, and the word is hoped in Christ. Now do but look into the 14*th* of John, read but that Chapter, and you shall find that the Apostles had Faith and the Holy Ghost long before they had Assurance and the seal of the Spirit; saith Christ there, Ye believe in God; here they had Faith, but it was a very poor Faith, for *v.*5. they said, they did not know the way to Heaven, so far were they off from this Assurance here mentioned. Christ telleth them there also, that they had the Spirit, v.17. He dwelleth with you, saith he, He is in your hearts. Well, but see what he saith in the 20*th* verse, At that day (namely, when I am ascended,) ye shall know (I will give you the Comforter, the Spirit of Truth, so he calleth him, he dwelleth with you now;) but in that day you shall know that I am in my Father, and you in me, and I in you. Then they should have a full manifestation of their union with Christ, and their union with the Father, and of the union of Christ with the Father; Then you shall know, saith he, in that day: this was after their believing.

I will give you but one Scripture more (it openeth that place to me clearly) in the same Chapter. Christ promised them that do believe the Comforter; I will pray the Father (saith he, *v.*16.) and he shall give you the Comforter, whom (saith he) the World cannot receive, because it seeth them not, neither knoweth him; but ye know him, for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you. I take the meaning of the words thus: I promise you the Holy Ghost as a Comforter, you have him already as a Sanctifier, he dwelleth with you, you have him already as one that hath wrought Faith in you; but as a Comforter the world cannot receive him as you shall. Why? Because the world hath not known him as a Sanctifier, but so you have known him already; for till such time as the Holy Ghost hath wrought Faith, and put a man into the state of Grace, he cannot assure him, he cannot comfort him. For, my Brethren, consider well the Reason he giveth why the World cannot receive the Spirit, is, because they do not know him. I ask this, When thou wert converted, wert not thou one of the world? thou didst not know know the Spirit. If this were the Reaſon why men did not receive the Holy Ghoſt, no man in the world ſhould receive him; therefore the meaning muſt needs be this, Till men have ſome experience of the work of the Spirit upon their hearts; till he hath been a Sanctifier in them, and cauſed them to believe, they cannot receive him as Comforter: Why? Becauſe there is not matter wherewithal to comfort them; they muſt firſt be in the ſtate of Grace before they can be comforted, by being in the ſtate of Grace. They muſt therefore receive him as a Sanctifier, before they can receive him as a Comforter. Ser. XV.

I ſhall name one Scripture more, it is Act. 15.8,9. You ſhall ſee there that the Holy Ghoſt was poured out in the Primitive times after believing. At the 7th verſe he ſpeaks of the Gentiles, that they heard the word of the Goſpel, and believed; and ſaith he, verſe 8. God which knoweth the hearts, (knowing they believed) bare them witneſs, giving them the Holy Ghoſt, even as he did unto us. So that now, the giving of the Holy Ghoſt, as he did to the Apoſtles, as a Comforter, as a Sealer to them of ſalvation, is, when they have believed, when God who knoweth their hearts, knoweth them to be holy.

And, my Brethren, the Reaſon is clear and evident; for Jeſus Chriſt muſt firſt be mine before I can ſay he is mine, the thing muſt be firſt; now he is made mine by Faith, I then receive him to be mine. They were without Chriſt in the world (he ſaith of theſe Epheſians) till they believed, when they believed then Chriſt is theirs, therefore neceſſarily an act of Faith muſt go before an act of Aſſurance; for Aſſurance doth tell you, that Chriſt is yours, and that according to the rule of the Word. Now according to the rule of the Word, though he may be yours in God's ſecret Purpoſe, yet you are without Chriſt before you believe. Things muſt be, before I believe them to be.

Then it is equal, that God ſhould be honoured firſt by meer truſting, by meer believing, before he honoureth your Faith with ſetting to his Seal. Joh. 3.33. He that believeth hath ſet to his Seal, that God is true. Well, when a man hath done that, now ſaith God I will ſet to my Seal, that he believeth, and that he is my Child. But God will have you truſt him firſt with a meer act of truſt, as the Woman did that truſted the Prophet; ſhe had no more Meal nor no more Oil than would ſave their lives one meal more. Well, ſaith he, I will be truſted, Make me thereof a Cake firſt, and bring it to me that I may eat of it, and after make for thee and for thy Son. God will be truſted firſt; and when you have ſet to your Seal that God is true in his, God will ſet to his Seal after your believing.

SERMON XVI.

EPHES. I, 13, 14.

In whom alſo, after that ye believed, ye were ſealed with that Holy Spirit of Promiſe.
Which is the Earneſt of our Inheritance, &c.

THE Coherence of theſe words with the former, (as I have ſhewed you) is eaſie and natural. He had ſpoken of an Inheritance, (he had ſpoken of it in the 11*th* verſe, and he ſpeaks of it likewiſe in the 14*th* verſe,) an Inheritance unto which they were predeſtinated by God's eternal purpoſe, ſo verſe 11. Which Inheritance they had by faith and by believing, (as I ſhewed) obtained an intereſt; we obtained an Inheritance, who firſt truſted in Chriſt, verſ. 11. 12. Now then having been thus appointed to it, having obtained an intereſt in it, and the thing it ſelf being made thus ſure, and this by Faith: now ſaith he, After ye believed ye were ſealed with that Holy Spirit of Promiſe. This Inheritance, as it was made ſure in it ſelf, ſo you had the Inheritance made good to you by a work of ſealing; ye were ſealed with that Holy Spirit of Promiſe.

I ſhewed the laſt time in opening of the work of Sealing; firſt what it was not, which ſome Interpreters would have it to be meant in this place.

It is not firſt the gift of the Spirit only, abſtractedly conſidered, for it importeth a work of the Spirit upon the heart, (which ſealing always muſt needs do) and Impreſſion likewiſe. Indeed, the gift of the Spirit may be the Earneſt of the Inheritance, meerly and alone conſidered, (as I ſhall ſhew you anon;) but the ſealing of the Spirit importeth an impreſſion a work upon the heart.

It is not Secondly a work of Faith, as ſome would have it: for beſides that he doth not ſay, Believing ye were ſealed, (as elſewhere he ſpeaks; ſo the Apoſtle Peter ſpeaks, 1 Pet. 1. 8. πιστεύοντες, Believing ye rejoyce, in the preſent Tenſe;) but it is πιστεύσαντες, having believed, or (as our Tranſlation well rendreth it,) after ye believed; which (at leaſt) implieth, it is a diſtinct thing from Faith.

Then Thirdly, I ſhewed it was not Sanctification or Regeneration, which though it be an image, yet the uſe of the Metaphor of Sealing (though it implieth an Image,) it is taken principally from the uſe of a Seal, which primarily is not ſo much to ſtamp an Image (though it doth that,) as it is to aſſure.

I ſhewed by this what it was not. I ſhewed Secondly, what I conceived it to be.

You muſt fetch the Notion of it from the uſe of a Seal amongſt men, and you muſt confine it likewiſe to the uſe of a Seal in matters of Inheritance, for that is properly the Apoſtle's ſcope, he followeth that Metaphor; therefore though there be many uſes of a Seal, (for ſervice, and propriety, and the like,) yet I take it, they are not the proper ſcope here.

The uſe of a Seal in point of Inheritance, is firſt to make the thing ſure, to convey an Inheritance, that the Inheritance ſhould be thereby conveyed, and made ſure in it ſelf. Now though that is not excluded, (for every work of the Spirit doth make the thing over and over ſure, ſtill engageth God more and more) yet that is not the proper and primary ſcope of ſealing here. Why? Becauſe there there is an ancienter Seal than that, the Original ſeal of all, whereby ſalvation is made ſure in it ſelf, even God's Eternal purpoſe, and this ſealing is a diſtinct thing from that 2 *Tim.*2.19. The foundation of the Lord remaineth ſure, having this Seal, The Lord knoweth who are his; ſpeaking of eternal Election; that is, rather a ſetting of us upon God's heart as a Seal, (as the expreſſion is, Cant. 8.6. Set me as a Seal upon thine heart,) than God's ſealing our hearts by his Spirit. This is not the meaning here, for he had ſpoken of that before, he had ſpoken how by predeſtination they were appointed to it, v. 11. and how by faith they had obtained it, and the thing was conveyed; they had obtained an Inheritance, v. 11. Se. XVI.

There is therefore another uſe of a Seal; It is to aſcertain the parties, or others, to whom the thing is made over unto, that they might have that to ſhew for it for ever. So indeed ſealing is taken in the Scripture, not only ſo much for making Salvation ſure in it ſelf, as to aſſure our hearts, (as the phraſe is that the Apoſtle uſeth in his Epiſtles.) It is parallel to what is in 2 Cor. 1.21, 22. He which ſtabliſheth us with you in Chriſt, and hath anointed us, is God, who hath alſo ſealed us. Sealing and Anointing, is there put for ſtabliſhing us, making us ſure of it, not making the thing ſure.

Now, becauſe there are two ways of making us ſure of ſalvation; the one mediate, by the witneſs of our Graces, and the witneſs of the blood of Chriſt, ſprinkled upon the Conſcience, and laid hold upon by Faith: And the other immediate, which is an immediate teſtimony of the Holy Ghoſt, as I ſhewed out of 1 *Joh.*5.8. where there are ſaid to be Three that bear witneſs that we have Eternal life, (as it followeth afterward, ver. 11.) there is the Water, Blood, and Spirit. Now by Spirit there is meant the Holy Ghoſt, by Water is meant our Graces and Sanctification, and by Blood is meant the blood of Jeſus Chriſt, looked upon by Faith; when Faith hath a recourſe unto it, it leaveth a witneſs behind it ſelf. A man never cometh to Chriſt, but he goeth away ſomewhat quieted, ſomewhat comforted; he never layeth hold upon that Blood, but it eaſeth or pacifieth the Conſcience more or leſs. Now when Spirit is made a diſtinct thing from the other two, it muſt needs be an immediate witneſs of the Spirit diſtinct from the other two. Why? Becauſe the Holy Ghoſt witneſſeth with the Blood and Water; therefore when he ſaith Spirit as a third Witneſs; it is differing from both theſe, it muſt be the Holy Ghoſt witneſſing without theſe.

The Queſtion is then, Which of theſe are meant here, when he ſaith, Ye are ſealed with the Spirit of Promiſe?

I Anſwer, If you take it in a large ſenſe, every witneſs, and all aſſurance of Salvation by any of thoſe witneſſes, it may be called a ſealing of the Spirit; if you take ſealing in a large ſenſe, for teſtifying or witneſſing a thing that is true, as *Joh.*3.33. where the word is uſed, He that believeth (ſaith he) hath ſet to his Seal, that God is true. If you will take it for witneſſing any thing, every one of theſe Witneſſes, in ſuch a Metaphorical ſenſe, may be called a Seal. Yet I take it, that which is principally aimed at here, is an immediate teſtimony of the Holy Ghoſt. The Metaphor of ſealing an Inheritance implieth as much; for you know, in conveying Inheritances, (as I ſhewed out of Jeremiah,) there are Witneſſes that are as Standers-by; but the act of ſealing is the immediate act of the party that conveyeth it. And the Seal of great Perſons, it is ſet to without witneſſes; the Seal of the King is without Hand, as the Broad-Seal amongſt us you know is: and ſo *Eſth.*8.8. the Seal of the King Ahaſuerus was without a Hand, there was no other witneſs but the King's Seal to it. So now, when the Great God of Heaven and Earth, when his Spirit will witneſs over and above Water and Blood, he will do it himſelf. My Brethren, Every Seal is a Witneſs, but every Witneſs is not a Seal, in a ſtrict ſenſe.

Now then concerning this ſeal of the Spirit, we having found what is principally meant, (for all this is but to find out the meaning of it.) I gave you theſe Three things.

The Firſt was, That it was a diſtinct light from the ordinary light of Faith, a light beyond that light. It is indeed Faith elevated, though not to Viſion, where Faith ſhall ceaſe, as it is in Heaven; yet as Steven's bodily eye was raiſed to ſee Chriſt, beyond what the power of the ordinary ſight could have done: ſo here is a light, beyond what the ordinary light can reach unto.

In

Ser. XVI.

In the Second place, This immediate Seal, it must have an Impress that it stampeth upon the heart. Now I told you, that the Motto, or the Impression that this beareth, (to follow still the Metaphor of a Seal,) it is the Impress, it is the Copy of that great Seal in Heaven, which God did set to our Salvation before all Worlds. Now what was that great Seal, that original Seal of all God's heart? Saith the Apostle, The foundation of the Lord remaineth sure, having this seal, The Lord knoweth who are his; that is, he chooseth them out of love. Now then this immediate Seal of the Holy Ghost beareth the Impress of this Original Seal, stampeth this upon the heart, The Lord knoweth thee to be his, and he hath known thee so from everlasting. And as God chooseth us, not looking to works or any thing in us, so this light cometh in without reference to Graces, or any thing else.

Then in the Third place, As in a Seal, the Wax (you know) is passive unto the stamp of the Seal; so is the Heart, the Understanding, and the Will and Affections to this work of sealing. That is a Third thing I add now, still keeping to the Metaphor of sealing, as being proper to the Text. It is a light that doth not leave you to think this may be my own thoughts, but an over-powring light; for when the holy Ghost will speak as a Sealer, he will do his office, and therefore a man's own Spirit is not active in it; he is active in it in the effect indeed, but in the light it self, and in the receiving of it, he is passive, as at the first conversion.

Having opened what the work is, I shewed in the Second place the order of it, it is after believing. I gave you that one Instance in the Apostles themselves, which I shall repeat, because I should have use of it afterward. You may read, John 14. and the first four Verses, that they believed in Christ; yea, at the 17*th* verse, they had the Holy Ghost in them: yet at the 16*th* verse, he promiseth them, when he was ascended he would give them the Comforter; and ver. 20. At that day (saith he) ye shall know that I am in you, and you in me. The Apostles had not this seal of the Spirit till Christ ascended, they had the Holy Ghost afore, they had some Assurance before; for you know Peter appealeth to Christ, Matt. 18. Lord (saith he) thou knowest that I love thee, and Christ telleth Peter, that he did believe so as flesh and blood had not revealed to him. He had the witness both of Blood and Water, yet the Holy Ghost was to come down as a Comforter. And in that day (saith he) ye shall know your immediate Union with me, that I am in you, and you in me.

The Third thing concerning this sealing in the Text, is the Person in whom we are sealed. There is first the work of sealing, that hath been opened. Secondly, There is the order of it, it is after believing. Then Thirdly, the Person in whom, or the virtual cause in whom we are sealed. It is in Christ; In whom, after ye believed, ye were sealed.

The words translated here, In whom, ἐν ᾧ; they are exceeding ambiguous in their reference, as in the Greek they are. They may refer unto the Gospel, spoken off just before, and so Piscator would have it; that is, by which Gospel ye believed, that ἐν ᾧ is put for δι ὅ. Or Secondly, they may refer to Christ, In whom, as our Translation readeth it; and so they have a double reference: Either that the meaning is, In whom, after ye believed, and so it referreth to Faith, to believing in Christ. Or Secondly, they may refer to sealing, In whom, after ye believed, ye were sealed, sealed in him after believing.

My Brethren, There is not a Verse but there are such Ambiguities as these are; so comprehensive and vast a writer in his scope and aim, is the Holy Ghost, yet still aiming at something peculiar. There is no Book written so ambiguously, in that comprehensive way, as the Scripture.

If you ask now, to which I refer In whom? Plainly I say, unto Sealing; and my reason is this, For he mentioneth sealing here as a new benefit distinct from Faith. And as he had said of all other benefits, that they were in Christ; we are Elected in Christ, Adopted through him, Redeemed through him, In whom God abounded in grace to us; still mark it, to every benefit, In Christ, is added. Now speaking of a new benefit of sealing, this phrase, In whom, referreth to sealing; so that this is the meaning of it, that the work of sealing is performed in Christ.

Now,

Now, my Brethren, In whom, will ſtill have a double reference, and a double meaning, if we refer it to Chriſt and to ſealing in him, and both is the meaning and ſcope of the place. Ser. XVI.

Firſt, Ἐν is all one with εἰς, In Chriſt you were ſealed, that is, you were ſealed into Chriſt, into him: ſo it importeth that the matter made known in the work of ſealing, is a man's Union with Chriſt. When the Holy Ghoſt ſealeth a man up, the thing he makes known, the thing he ſealerh to him is this, that he is in Chriſt, that he hath been elected in Chriſt, by God the Father, from everlaſting, that he is one in Chriſt; he was one with him from everlaſting, he was one with him when he hung upon the Croſs, he is one with him now in Heaven. Into whom, ſo the words will bear as well εἰς as ἐν, you may read either, one as well as another; I ſpeak for the ſcope and meaning of it.

I will give you a Scripture for this Interpretation, 2 Cor. 1. 21. where he ſpeaks of eſtabliſhing and ſealing our hearts, he putteth in this phraſe, ſaith he, He who ſtabliſheth us with you, εἰς Χριστον, in Chriſt, is God; He hath ſtabliſhed us in Chriſt, or ſealed us in Chriſt, (for that followeth, ver. 22. ὁ δὲ σφραγισάμενος,) into Chriſt. And, Joh. 14. 20. At that day ye ſhall know that I am in my Father, and you in me, and I in you. So that a man's Union with Chriſt, his being in Chriſt, is the matter ſealed up to him; In whom ye are ſealed. My Brethren, in the work of ſealing there is the love of all the Perſons manifeſted; God the Father's Love, and Chriſt's Love, and our Union with him, he leaveth not him out; therefore you ſhall find, 1 Joh. 5. there are three Witneſſes in Heaven that witneſs Love to us, as well as Three on Earth. I remember that I ſhewed, that the work of Baptiſm is the outward Seal, to which this inward Seal moſt principally refer-reth; for Baptiſm is not to work Regeneration, that is a miſtake, as Circumciſion was not. Rom. 4. 11. he calleth Circumciſion the Seal of the righteouſneſs of Faith, which Abraham had, being uncircumciſed: ſo that it is not to work, but to ſeal Regeneration and Salvation unto us. Now, as we are ſaid to be baptized into Chriſt, Rom. 6. that is the outward Seal: ſo this is the inward work, whereby the Holy Ghoſt ſealeth a man into Chriſt, In whom we are ſealed; it may be as well εἰς as ἐν, as it is in that place of the Corinths, which inter-preteth it.

Or in the Second place, This phraſe, In whom ye are ſealed, importeth, and the intent of it is to ſhew, by virtue of whom this benefit is beſtowed, that it is beſtowed by virtue of Chriſt. The work of Sealing is wrought in us by virtue of Chriſt; it is in him virtually, though by the Holy Ghoſt efficiently. The Holy Ghoſt is the Author of it, but Jeſus Chriſt is the virtual cauſe. In that 2 Cor. 1. 20. the place I quoted even now for ſealing and ſtabliſhing us, you ſhall find there, that all the Promiſes are Yea and Amen in him; now, as all the Pro-miſes are Yea and Amen virtually in Chriſt; they had been worth nothing elſe, if he had not died to make them good, ſo the ſealing of all the Promiſes unto the heart of a Believer is in him too: So the words that follow, He that ſtabliſheth us, and ſealeth us in Chriſt, will bear both ſenſes, as well as here it doth.

Now, my Brethren, to open this a little, (for it is a point of uſeful Conſidera-tion,) The work of Sealing of the Holy Ghoſt is done by virtue of Jeſus Chriſt, He, and his Virtue, is left out in no work that is done for us. I remember, that I gave you this Rule in handling of the 10*th* verſe, (and it is a thing I have largely elſewhere handled,) That whatſoever work God doth upon us, he doth unto Chriſt firſt. Now then, are we ſealed virtually in Chriſt? why then we muſt find the ſame work upon Chriſt himſelf firſt. We died to ſin, becauſe he died; we roſe from ſin, becauſe he roſe; we are ſealed, becauſe he once was ſealed, and by virtue of that we come to be ſealed. This is neceſſary to be opened, if you will underſtand the full ſcope of this, In whom ye are ſealed. Now we read that Jeſus Chriſt was ſealed, Joh. 6. 27. For him (ſaith he) hath God the Father ſealed: Mark it, Him hath he ſealed. Now do but look into your Mar-gents, and ſee to what the Tranſlators have referred this ſealing of Chriſt to, to Matt. 3. 17. do but read there and you ſhall find, that Jeſus Chriſt, when he was baptized (which, as I told you, is the outward Seal) he heard a Voice from Heaven, ſaying, This is my Beloved Son, in whom I am well pleaſed.

Ser. XVI. My Brethren, As Chriſt did partake of the ſame Ordinances we do, ſo there was ſome effect that theſe Ordinances had upon him, which he was capable of, anſwerable and ſuitable to what they have upon us. Therefore as Baptiſm is the outward Seal, to ſeal up Adoption to a Believer, and the witneſs of the Spirit is the inward work, the fruit of Baptiſm, to be waited for, (yet a man hath it not by virtue of his Baptiſm.) So when Chriſt was baptized, what was the fruit of it? what, was the inward work anſwerable to the outward upon him? This, This is my beloved Son, in whom, &c. And as the inward Seal of the Spirit to us, is an immediate Witneſs; ſo was this from Heaven to Chriſt: Not that ours is an immediate voice from Heaven, but a light of the Holy Ghoſt's ſuperadded to the light of Faith; other Revelations ceaſe, and they are the Revelations that the Papiſts ſpeak of.

That you may ſee your ground for this, look 1 Joh. 5.9. compared with the verſes going before. He ſaith there are Three Witneſſes in Earth, and Three in Heaven, that bear witneſs to Two things (read the place you will find it the ſcope,) Firſt, that we have Eternal Life in Chriſt, and Secondly (as appeareth by the 9*th* verſe) that Jeſus Chriſt is the Son of God; This is the Witneſs of God (ſaith he) which he hath teſtified of his Son. There are three in Heaven that bore witneſs that Jeſus Chriſt is the Son of God; when he was baptized, there was God the Father, and God the Son, and God the Holy Ghoſt, all theſe three did bear this witneſs. There was God the Father, he ſpeaks, the voice that came from Heaven, it was his voice properly; for he called him his Son, This is my beloved Son, there was God the Father's teſtimony; and Joh. 1.32. the Holy Ghoſt deſcended down upon him like a Dove; there is the Spirits witneſs, and all at his Baptiſm: and then (as he that believeth hath the witneſs in himſelf, ſo) Chriſt had the witneſs of his being Son of God, from the ſecond Perſon alſo, he had it in himſelf. All theſe three Witneſſes concurred then at his Baptizing; and thus was Jeſus Chriſt our Lord and Saviour then ſealed. Will you have me ſpeak plainly? Though he had the aſſurance of Faith that he was the Son of God, he knew it out of the Scriptures by reading all the Prophets; yea, and as Adam had it written in his heart, that he was the Son of God, ſo Chriſt had the like inſtinct and law in his Spirit, that he was the Son of God: yet to have it ſealed to him with Joy unſpeakable, and glorious by the witneſs of all the three Perſons; this was deferred to the time of his Baptiſm, he was then annoynted with the Holy Ghoſt (as I remember the expreſſion is, Act. 10.38.) annointed with the Oyl of gladneſs (that was the firſt beginning of it) above all his Fellows, in a more peculiar and tranſcendent manner. Now mark it, anſwerably (compare 2 Cor. 1. 22.) he hath ſealed and annointed us, juſt as he ſealed and annointed Chriſt in his Baptiſm; we are conformed unto Chriſt; look what was wrought upon him, is wrought upon Believers. He did believe in God, and himſelf to be the Son of God by Faith from his Mother's Womb, ſo he telleth us Pſal. 22.9. But this eminent, tranſcendent, Heavenly witneſs of it from all three Perſons, was deferred till now. So now we ſee we are ſealed in him, by vertue of him, and by his being ſealed.

The Fourth thing in the Text, is this; The efficient cauſe by whom we are ſealed. By the Spirit, the third Perſon in the Trinity, who is deſcribed to us by two things. 1. That he is the Spirit of Promiſe. 2. A Holy Spirit, and this as a Sealer, for ſo you muſt underſtand it. All theſe muſt be ſpoken to; for there is a Myſtery lieth in all theſe. Firſt, here is the Spirit by whom we are ſealed, there is the Perſon. Secondly, here is his deſcription as he is a Sealer; 1. he is the Spirit of Promiſe; 2. he is a Holy Spirit. You ſhall find every one of theſe have their weight in the matter ~~of ſealing~~.

Fiſt for the Perſon. Let us ſpeak to that a little. The Apoſtle had mentioned the work of the other two Perſons before: he had mentioned the work of God the Father, Bleſſed be God the Father, who hath bleſſed us with all Spiritual Bleſſings; ſo verſ. 3. and 4. he had mentioned God the Son before, In whom we have Redemption through his Blood, and we are choſen in him, &c. But he had not mentioned the Spirit before, yet he had mentioned the Work of Spirit before too, the work of Faith and the work of Vocation, working prudence and wiſdom, wiſdom, as I ſhewed before out of the 8*th.* verſ. What is the Myſtery of this?

Ser. XVI.

The thing I obſerve out of this is, That it is the ſpecial work of the Holy Ghoſt, to comfort and aſſure the hearts of Believers of their Salvation. It is a moſt ſpecial work of the Holy Ghoſt. I will give you but two evidences out of Scripture for it. The firſt is out of Joh. 14. 26. Our Saviour Chriſt did forbear to comfort them, for he telleth them there is a Comforter to come; But the Comforter (ſaith he) who is the Holy Ghoſt, whom the Father will ſend in my name, he ſhall teach you all things, &c. Our Saviour Chriſt would not take the office out of his hands, he is to be your Comforter, ſaith he, and I will refer all to him. As he is called by the ſpecial name of the Comforter, to ſhew what is his ſpecial work and office: ſo anſwerably you ſhall find, that Joy is called Joy in the Holy Ghoſt, 1 Theſſ. 1. 6. It is the Father's Love, which is ſealed up to us, it is the Son in whom we are ſealed, ſo it is the Holy Ghoſt by whom we are ſealed. The Father preſcribed all the Cordials, the Son tempered them, but the Holy Ghoſt applieth them. 1 Cor. 2. 10, 11. As the Spirit of a man only knoweth the things of a man, and he to whom this Spirit in him will reveal it: ſo (ſaith he) it is the Spirit of God that revealeth the deep things of God; that everlaſting Love of his. Who elſe but he is to do it? It is his Office.

Therefore (my Brethren) you muſt give the honour of all the comfort you have to the Holy Ghoſt in a more ſpecial manner. Give it not to your Graces, though the Holy Ghoſt witneſſeth with them; there is no comfort you have, but in the power of the Holy Ghoſt; there is an expreſs place for it, Rom. 15. 13. Therefore look not to your Graces, I mean, do not aſcribe it to your Graces; do not pore and dote upon them, it is the Holy Ghoſt alwaies comforteth when they comfort. As it would derogate from Chriſt to aſcribe Juſtification to any other, ſo it derogates from the Holy Ghoſt, to aſcribe comfort to any other. And remember, that the ſpecial thing upon which mention of the Holy Ghoſt is made, is, when comforting, when aſſuring, when ſealing cometh to be mentioned. So much for that Obſervation.

Come we now to the deſcription of the Holy Ghoſt here, as he is a Sealer. Firſt, He is called the Spirit of Promiſe. Secondly, He is called the Holy Spirit. Ye are ſealed (ſaith he) with that holy Spirit of Promiſe.

He is called the Spirit of Promiſe, for two Reaſons and Conſiderations: Firſt, Becauſe (take him as he is a Sealer and Comforter of them that believe) he is promiſed; we have a Promiſe that the Holy Ghoſt ſhall comfort us and ſeal us. Therefore, becauſe the Holy Ghoſt is the thing promiſed, and that as a Sealer, we are ſaid to be ſealed by the Spirit of Promiſe. And in the Second place, He is called the Spirit of Promiſe, as a Sealer; becauſe he never ſealeth but by a Promiſe, (as I ſhall ſhew by and by) it is ab effectu. To ſpeak of both theſe.

The Holy Ghoſt is called the Promiſe, and that as a Sealer, (that is the firſt thing,) becauſe he is promiſed. Our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt was the great Promiſe of the Old Teſtament, but the Holy Ghoſt is the great Promiſe of the New. I need not quote you places, to ſhew you that Chriſt was the great Promiſe of the Old Teſtament, you have it Act. 13. 32. and Heb. 11. Many places might be brought. The Holy Ghoſt is the great Promiſe of the New, he is called the Promiſe of the Father, Act. 1. 4. Act. 2. 23. and Gal. 3. 14. That we may receive (ſaith he) the Promiſe of the Spirit. He is called the Promiſe there, becauſe he is the thing promiſed.

My Brethren, God doth give forth all Three Perſons in Promiſes, (it is a good Obſervation by the way;) He hath a Son, he promiſeth him; well, he hath given him, that Promiſe is ceaſed, I mean in the exhibition of Chriſt in the fleſh, is fulfilled. He hath a Spirit, you ſhall have him one day fully; but in the mean time you have him under a Promiſe, He hath given us his Spirit alſo (ſaith he;) that alſo cometh in 2 Cor. 5. 5. He had given us his Son before, he giveth us his Spirit too; he hath promiſed it. There is God the Father, you have him promiſed too, for the time will come (as it is 1 Cor. 15. 28.) that God will be all in all. You have all Three Perſons in Promiſes; God hath put forth all out of himſelf, he hath more Bleſſings than one, he hath promiſed all in himſelf: But the Holy Ghoſt is called the Spirit of Promiſe, as he is a Sealer: That is the point I muſt ſtand upon.

Ser. XVI.

The word here is, in the Original, τῆς ἐπαγγελίας, of that Promise, (he hath put the Article to every word,) τῷ πνεύματι, that Spirit, τῆς ἐπαγγελίας, of that Promise, namely of sealing, to seal Believers. There is a special Promise (my Brethren) unto Believers, that they shall have the Spirit to seal them, if they sue it out. Many want it, but there is a Promise for it, that same 14*th* of John which I quoted before. The Apostles, they were Believers, ver. 1. they had the Spirit dwelling in them, ver. 17. yet he promiseth them the Spirit both in ver. 16, 20, and 26. He doth not promise him as a Sanctifier, but under the notion and in the name of a Comforter; not only as one that should give Gifts to them and make them Apostles, but should comfort them. They believed already; but that the Holy Ghost should come unto them as a Comforter; here was a special Promise yet to be fulfilled. Look into Act. 1.4,5. and you shall find this to be true; he biddeth them there wait at Jerusalem for the Promise of the Father, which (saith he) you have heard of me; for John baptized with Water, but you (saith he) shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost, not many days hence. And still observe it, for it is spoken of him as a Comforter; for so Christ promised him, though indeed he came with enlargement of Gifts upon them too as Apostles.

You will say, The Apostles had this Promise, who were extraordinary men; have Believers the same?

Read first Act. 2.33. Saith he, Christ being ascended, and having received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, he hath shed forth this which ye now see and hear. They were filled with the Holy Ghost, as with Wine, (as the Apostles expression is in the Ephesians,) so that they said they were drunk. But doth this belong to Believers? See what he saith to the men that were pricked in their heart, ver. 38. Repent and be baptized every one of you, in the Name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins; (that is, for assurance of remission; for otherwise a man must believe before he be baptized, for so they did, and so they were, as appeareth ver. 41. They that gladly received the word were baptized, or they should be baptized, that they might receive the remission, or the assurance of the remission of their sins,) and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost: For (saith he) the Promise (mark it, that Promise that was made to us, and you have seen fulfilled to us) it is unto you and to your Children; and to all that are afar off, (to the Gentiles afar off to the end of the world,) and even to as many as the Lord our God shall call. Mark that, to all Believers. There is a Promise of it, you may sue it out; and therefore you shall find, Gal. 3. 14. there is mention of the receiving of the Promise of the Spirit after believing, That they might receive (saith he) the promise of the Spirit through Faith. What promise of the Spirit is it that a man receiveth through Faith? A man must have the Spirit to work Sanctification, (mark that;) then to have the Spirit as a work of Faith, as a beginner of Sanctification, cannot be the meaning of it: but there is an eminent Promise yet to be fulfilled to Believers, for they received the promise of the Spirit through Faith. What Promise of the Spirit is that? The Spirit as a Sealer, the Spirit as a Comforter; for so he was promised to the Disciples after they believed.

What is the Observation from thence?

Plainly this; You that are Believers, wait for a further promise of the Holy Ghost as a Sealer, and sue it out with God; for you see here the great Promise, it is the promise of the Spirit as a Sealer. So you shall find Act. 1.4. that the Apostles were to wait for the Promise of the Spirit: so do you. My Brethren, those that did receive the word gladly, (as the Text saith, Act. 2. 41.) had a promise of the Holy Ghost to be expected as a Comforter, as a Sealer, as the place there evidently implieth. Though you have some joy wrought in you by Faith, yet there is some further Promise still to be expected, For the Promise (saith he) is to you, and to all that are afar off, even to as many as the Lord shall call. You shall find in Joh. 7.38. (that I may not stand reckoning up many places,) that our Saviour Christ saith, He that believeth on me, as the Scripture saith, out of his belly shall flow rivers of living water, (of water to comfort and refresh him) But this spake he (saith he) of the Spirit, which they that believe on him should receive; for the Holy Ghost was not yet given, (mark) because that Jesus was not yet glorified. My Brethren, Let me vent that notion to you, for I be-

I believe it will hold, that the giving of the Holy Ghoſt as a Sealer with joy unſpeakable and glorious, was reſerved to the Times after Chriſt was glorified. Men had the Spirit to work Faith before, they had under the Old Teſtament; but for the Spirit to come and work joy unſpeakable and glorious in ordinary Believers, was not till Jeſus Chriſt himſelf was glorified. It is true, that David, and ſome other Saints in the Old Teſtament had it, who were eminent and types of Chriſt, that was to be anointed with the Oil of Gladneſs; but the ordinary Saints under the Old Teſtament, they had a ſpirit of Bondage upon them, (there was a ſpirit of Adoption too,) but not to ſeal up to a man his Sonſhip. This is the great Promiſe of the Goſpel, which cometh to Believers when Jeſus Chriſt is glorified, when he is aſcended up to Heaven, and there is anointed with the Oil of Gladneſs above his fellows; then he poureth out the Spirit upon men, which will ſue out this Promiſe. Ser. XVI.

My Brethren, It is the great fruit of your Baptiſm; you have not that great fruit of your Baptiſm till you have this. The Circumciſion of Old, it was a Seal of the Righteouſneſs of Faith, and of the promiſed Seed, of Chriſt to come, of a bloody Saviour, to redeem by blood, (for ſo Circumciſion was by blood.) Now as Circumciſion was then, ſo now that Chriſt is come and glorified; our Baptiſm is the ſeal of the Spirit, it is the proper work that anſwereth to Baptiſm. Therefore you ſhall find it is called Baptizing with the Holy Ghoſt, becauſe it is that which is the fruit of Baptiſm, it anſwereth that outward Seal; and therefore you may read that Peter biddeth them be baptized, and they ſhould receive this Promiſe, Act. 2. 38.

You that believe are to wait for this Promiſe; as the Jews waited for the coming of Chriſt, ſo are you to wait for the coming of the Holy Ghoſt into your hearts. It is ſaid, that the Fathers ſerved God night and day, waiting for the promiſe, namely Chriſt to come, Act. 26. 6. Serve your God day and night faithfully, walk humbly; there is a promiſe of the Holy Ghoſt to come and fill your hearts with joy unſpeakable and glorious, to ſeal you up to the day of redemption. Sue this Promiſe out, wait for it, reſt not in believing only, reſt not in aſſurance by Graces only, there is a further aſſurance to be had. It was the laſt Legacy Chriſt left upon Earth. Look John 14. 14, 15 he ſaith there, that he would ſend the Promiſe of the Father; this very Promiſe of ſending the Comforter; read Luke 24. 49. Therefore ſue out the Will of Chriſt, ſue out that laſt Legacy of his. It was the fruit of his Aſcenſion, when he was aſcended up and received this Promiſe, then he poured it out.

And let me add this too (I thought to make it a diſtinct Obſervation) from the Perſons here that were to be ſealed; Ye were ſealed; ye, who? ye Epheſians; they were ordinary Believers, they were not Apoſtles, they had not all miraculous Gifts, yet he ſaith of them, Ye were ſealed with the Spirit of Promiſe after ye believed. Read over all the Epiſtles, and you ſhall find almoſt all the Saints in the Primitive times ſealed thus: the Corinths they had it, 2 Cor. 1. 22. God hath ſtabliſhed us with you, and hath alſo ſealed us. The Epheſians, they had it you ſee, they were ſealed; for afterward, Chap. 3. 14. he exhorts them not to grieve the Holy Spirit, by which they were ſealed. The Theſſalonians, they had it, 1 Theſſ. 1. 10. They received the word with ſuch joy, that he ſaith, they waited for the coming of Jeſus Chriſt from Heaven, (for that is the next ſtep, Heaven is next unto it, and to wait for Chriſt when you are thus ſealed.) Thoſe that Peter wrote to had it, 1 Pet. 1. 9. In whom believing, ye rejoyce with joy unſpeakable and full of glory. Thus ordinary it was in the Primitive times, where the defect lies God knows; but certainly it might be more common, if men would ſue it out, ſuch a Promiſe there is; he is therefore called the Spirit of Promiſe, becauſe he is promiſed as a Sealer.

Only (my Brethren) let me give you a Direction or two. Firſt, Believe this Promiſe, wait for it by Faith, make it the aim of your Faith; we are ſaid to receive the Promiſe of the Spirit through Faith, Gal. 3. 14. Believe there is ſuch a thing, aim at it, wait for it, and ſerve God day and night in all humility to obtain it, reſt in no other lower and under aſſurance, and in the end the Lord God will give it. The reaſon why men attain it not, is, becauſe they reſt in other Aſſurance, and they do not aim at this; they content themſelves with bare believing, believing, and that their Consciences are quieted. But be in Heaven, my Brethren, there is such a work as sealing by the Spirit; if you have Faith, there is a Spirit, and a Spirit of Promise made to Believers, which you may receive by Faith. This is the first Reason why he is called a Spirit of Promise, because he is promised to Believers, as he is a Sealer.

I mentioned a second Reason, why he is called the Spirit of Promise, as he is a Sealer. What is that? Because he always sealeth by a Promise. These Truths, my Brethren, are worthy your laying up, not only to clear the Doctrine of this great work of the Spirit, (and I still speak what is proper to the Text,) but also to direct you, and to try whether you have it, you that boast of it. It is always I say, by a Promise; when he sealeth he bringeth a Promise home to the heart. He is therefore called the Spirit of Promise, because he useth a Promise in sealing; as we say of a Souldier, he is a man of the Sword, because a Sword is the Weapon he useth: so he is called the Spirit of Promise, because he useth a Promise. As we are said to be Heirs of the Promise, because the Promise belongeth to us: so he is called the Spirit of Promise, because he comforteth us by a Promise. There is a Spirit lieth hid and dwelleth in the Promise to comfort us, if Faith could but draw him down to come into our hearts and set them on.

My Brethren, We heard that Jesus Christ was sealed when he was baptized; but he was sealed by a Promise, it was not by an immediate Revelation only, but by bringing home a Truth to his heart. What was it? This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. This is a Scripture Promise, you shall find it in *Isa.*42.1. This is my Servant in whom I delight, my Elect in whom my Soul is well pleased. That which had been speaking before of the Messiah is brought home to his heart. He sealeth not up his Son when he speaks from Heaven immediately, but he doth it by a Promise; therefore much more, my Brethren, doth he seal up you. The Word and the Spirit are joyned; they are joyned in the New Jerusalem, much more now. *Isa.*59.21. the Promise there, that My Word and my Spirit shall not depart out of thy mouth, is spoken of the Calling of the Jews plainly, (for the Apostle quoteth it in *Rom.*11. and it is the only place he quoteth for their Call,) The Redeemer shall come out of Zion, are the words just before. When Jesus Christ gave the Promise of the Holy Ghost, as a Sealer and Comforter to the Apostles, he calleth him a Comforter indeed; but how? Saith he, He shall bring all things to your remembrance, for he shall take of mine and shew it unto you; for if the Holy Ghost do not come with a word, and take of Christ's and set that upon your heart, it is a delusion; he sealeth by a Promise still, and therefore in all that discourse of Christ, where he promiseth him as a Comforter, in *Joh.*14. he calleth him a Spirit of Truth as well as a Comforter. Therefore when we say, it is an immediate Testimony, the meaning is not that it is without the Word, no, it is by a Promise; but the meaning is, it is immediate in respect of using your own Graces as an evidence and a witness; but he bringeth home a Promise to the heart, some absolute Promise or other; he rideth upon the wings of a Promise, as you may read in the Book of Martyrs, concerning Bilney. He is a Spirit of Promise, my Brethren, when he sealeth. Therefore let me tell you this, All your Revelations that are without the Word, or would draw you from the Word, they are naught and dangerous. We do not speak for Enthusiasms, it is the Spirit applying the Word to the heart that we speak of. It is not to write new Scripture, to make words, to be guided by the Holy Ghost without the Word. No, we detest all such; but it is to draw you to the Word, he fastneth the Word upon your hearts, sealeth you by a Promise, therefore he is called a Spirit of Promise.

There is one thing more that I must make an end of; it was necessary to open these Truths unto you, for I could not open the words else. The last thing he is described by, as he is a Sealer, is, that he is a Holy Spirit. The Holy Ghost hath put a mighty Emphasis upon this, as you shall see by and by; he hath put an Article upon every word, as they that understand the Greek, know it is τῷ πνεύματι τῆς ἐπαγγελίας, τῷ ἁγίῳ, sealed with that Spirit of that Promise, that holy. There is not the like again in any place. There is a special Promise of him as a Sealer; and he sheweth himself to be a holy Spirit, if in any work, in sealing. And which is more, he doth not say, that Holy Spirit, τῷ πνεύματι ἁγίῳ, indeed we translate it so, we put Holy to Spirit; but the truth is, the word Holy cometh cometh individed from the other, and Promiſe cometh in between in the Greek, τῷ πνεύματι τῆς ἐπαγγελίας, τῷ ἁγίῳ, it is that Spirit of that Promiſe, that holy. This is the true reading of it according to the Original, to ſhew, that this title of Holy is not given to the Spirit himſelf, but as an effect of his in ſealing. It is true indeed, he is holy in himſelf, and it argueth him to be ſo, if he make us ſo when he ſealeth us; for look what Impreſs is left upon the Wax, muſt needs be in the Seal much more; if he make us holy when we are ſealed, he himſelf muſt be holy much more originally. But that is not the aim of it, only to ſhew that he is holy; but to ſhew, that when he ſealeth then he works holineſs; therefore the Holy Ghoſt here putteth an Emphaſis upon it, by putting to the Article That. Ser. XVI.

Obſerve from hence this, That all Aſſurance that is true Aſſurance, and the true Seal of the Holy Ghoſt, it makes a man holy. If ever any thing makes him holy, this doth it. Is he a Holy Spirit in working Faith? Doth he purifie your hearts by believing? He will purifie your hearts, much more when he ſealeth you, when he works joy in believing, unſpeakable and glorious.

Yea, my Brethren, God doth not give this Promiſe of his Spirit as a Sealer, till a man be very holy. Joh. 14.21. He that hath my Commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me; and he that loveth me, ſhall be loved of my Father; and I will love him and manifeſt my ſelf to him. God doth not put theſe Cordials into a foul Stomach; and when a man hath theſe, they make him wonderfull holy. Take the Apoſtles for an Inſtance. The Apoſtles (as I told you) they were Believers, they had a promiſe of the Holy Ghoſt, as a Sealer and a Comforter; but they were to wait for it, (as you read in Act. 1.4.) Now all the while they waited for it, what did they? They continued all the while, till they had it, in prayer and ſupplication; the Text ſaith ſo: they were exceeding holy, eſpecially before. Well, when they had it, how holy did it make them! (it is of purpoſe made the Preface to the book of the Acts.) You ſee how full of boldneſs they were, how full of zeal; becauſe full of the Holy Ghoſt, and full of the joy of the Holy Ghoſt. The Apoſtles were poor low Chriſtians as any are, almoſt; when Jeſus Chriſt was to die, how ſleepy were they? When Chriſt was adminiſtring the Sacrament to them, and told them what he ſhould ſuffer, they talked preſently who ſhould be the greateſt amongſt them. Thus carnal were they, they had not received the Spirit as a Sealer; but when once they had received him as a Sealer, read the ſtory of the Acts, read their Epiſtles, and ſee what a ſpirit of Boldneſs and Zeal they had. When thou art converted, ſtrengthen thy Brethren. It is a new Converſion, it will make a man differ from himſelf in what he was before in that manner, as Converſion almoſt doth before he was converted; there is a new Edition of all a man's Graces, when the Holy Ghoſt cometh as a Sealer. Self-love buſleth before, and keepeth a quoil to ſecure it ſelf; but when once Self-love is ſecure, and the love of God is ſhed a broad in a man's heart, it makes a man work for God ten times more than before, or elſe at leaſt more kindly. I know there are ways wherein the Soul can glorifie God more, in a way of recumbency, when he hath wrought Aſſurance, by ſubmitting himſelf to God whatſoever becometh of him; and by pure truſting of God, though he know not whether he will ſave him or not, which is the greateſt truſt in the world: But yet in matter of Holineſs and Obedience, the aſſurance of the love of God, when it is ſhed abroad in the heart, will conſtrain a man, (as the Apoſtle's phraſe is.) He that hath this hope (he ſpeaks of Aſſurance in that 1 Joh. 3.3.) purifieth himſelf even as he is pure. My Brethren, it is the next thing to Heaven, therefore it muſt needs make a man heavenly. If there were nothing but Self-love in a man, it is true he would abuſe it when he hath Aſſurance; but when this love ſhall ſtir up love to God, and bring a greater increaſe of love to God above a man's ſelf, how will that work! I appeal to you good Souls, If Chriſt do but look toward you a little, how holy doth it make you! Much more then, when the Holy Ghoſt is poured out upon you, and when you are baptized with the Holy Ghoſt, as a Comforter. Look, as when the Sun cometh near to the Earth, then is the Spring; it was Winter before: ſo when the Holy Ghoſt cometh in this manner upon the heart; it was Winter before, but it will be Spring now.

My

Ser. XVI.

My Brethren, (to end this) therefore all those Comforts, (mark what I say, try your selves, and try others by it,) all those Revelations and Comforts that make men loose and unholy, unclean and carnal, they are not these Comforts of the Holy Ghost. I confess, a Holy man may, when they are gone, abuse the remembrance of them; but while they are upon the heart, they do carry a man's Soul in all up to God. The Apostle Jude doth not know how to speak words bitter enough against those men, that turn the Grace of God into wantonness; They are ordained of old (saith he) to this condemnation. Read how bitterly he speaks of such men from the third Verse to the end of his Epistle: Especially whenas men shall be loose in their Opinions, as he saith, corrupt themselves in what they know naturally to be sin. My Brethren, he is a holy Spirit, nothing is more opposite to this holy Spirit, than looseness, than uncleanness, and such sins, are. If we say (saith he) that we have fellowship with God, and walk in darkness, we lie. What doth he mean by Fellowship here? He meaneth Assurance plainly. These things we write to you, that you may know ye believe in the Son of God; (it is the scope of that Epistle,) He that saith he hath fellowship with God, and walketh in darkness, he lieth, let him be what he will. The Apostles they are vehement, their Spirits are up against no men more. He is a holy Spirit of Promise that sealeth men to salvation.

Let this therefore be made a Motive to seek it at God's hands; urge him with this, besides his Promise, tell him it will make you holy: It is a great Motive to seek if, it is a motive to you to seek it, and it is a motive to you to urge God to obtain it.

I conclude with this; A Seal hath two ends and uses, the first is to assure and certifie, and the other is to stamp an Image; for so always a Seal doth. Now they are both here; He is called the Spirit of Promise, because he bringeth home the Promise to a man's heart, and assureth him of an interest. He is called the holy Spirit of Promise in sealing, because he stampeth the Image of Holiness upon you, and makes you more holy than before.

So you have the meaning of these words, In whom ye were sealed with that holy Spirit of Promise, with all those concurring Scriptures that were necessarily to be brought for the opening of them.

Ser. XVII.

SERMON XVII.

EPHES. I. 14.

Who is the Earneſt of our Inheritance, until (or, for) the redemption of the purchaſed poſſeſſion, unto the praiſe of his glory.

IN the firſt place, for the reference of theſe words to the former, Who is the Earneſt. It referreth not unto Chriſt, in whom you are ſealed, as Faber Stapulenſis would have it; but they refer to the Spirit of Promiſe mentioned immediately before. And to put us out of doubt in it, in 2 Cor. 5. 5. it is called the Earneſt of the Spirit. Chriſt is called no where an Earneſt.

Then Secondly, For the ſcope of his words, the Verſe I have read to you is the concluſion of all about the benefits beſtowed upon us, and of the Apoſtles application of theſe benefits both to Jew and Gentile. He had enumerated all ſorts of Benefits, Election, Predeſtination, our Redemption by Chriſt, our Vocation, and Faith and Sealing. In enumerating of all theſe benefits his ſcope is, to mention the ſpecial glory that all the three Perſons have, and are to have from us in the work of our ſalvation. And ſo his ſcope is here to ſhew, how great a gift of the Holy Ghoſt is added unto all that Chriſt hath done for us, and unto all the Father hath done for us, of which he had ſpoken in the former Verſes. As he had ſet out the Father's work in Election, in the 4th, 5th and 6th Verſes: Jeſus Chriſt's work in Redemption, in the 7th and the 10th Verſe: ſo here his ſcope is to ſet forth the great benefit we have by the Holy Ghoſt; the greatneſs of that gift, We are ſealed by him, who is (ſaith he) the Earneſt of our Inheritance. It is the concluſion of all, and ſo comprehendeth all that either the Spirit is to us, or works in us; it expreſſeth the greatneſs of the gift of the Holy Ghoſt to us, and the uſe that that gift is to us.

So you have the reference of the words; you have the coherence and ſcope of the words.

Now for the diviſion of the words, you have three things contained in this Verſe eminently.

The Firſt is, That the Holy Ghoſt is an Earneſt.

The Second, Of what he is an Earneſt? of an Inheritance. Until when? Until the redemption of the poſſeſſion of that Inheritance.

And then Thirdly, The End of all, To the praiſe of his glory.

I muſt firſt begin to explain the Holy Ghoſt his being an Earneſt; and firſt, I ſhall explain the phraſe unto you, what that importeth in it ſelf: And Secondly, how it is to be underſtood, that the Holy Ghoſt he is an Earneſt.

And firſt for the phraſe Earneſt, what is meant by that. Ἀρραβών, It is a word which the Greeks had from the Jews; and although it is not only uſed in the New Teſtament by the Holy Ghoſt, but by profane Writers alſo; yet the Greeks had it from the Tyrian Merchants, and ſo uſed it in their bargains as an Earneſt of the whole ſum in bargaining. They uſed it likewiſe for any other kind of Earneſt whatſoever.

The Hebrew word is of a larger ſignification, it takes in a Pledge or Pawn, as you call it. You know in your Engliſh phraſe a Pawn is one thing, a Pledge is another. Now the word that the Jews uſed, from whence this is fetched, ſignifieth a Pledge, a Pawn, as well as an Earneſt: As Gen. 38. 17. there Tamar doth require of Judah a Pledge, that he would give her what he promised her: But Ser. XVII. the Grecians use it especially for an Earnest. Ἐνέχυρον is put for a Pledge, but ἀρραβὼν, for an Earnest.

Now you will ask, how these two, a Pawn and a Pledge, do differ from an Earnest?

I will shew you first what is common to them both, which will help to open the thing. Secondly, Wherein they differ.

In common, the nature and use of a Pledge and an Earnest is this, both are to give assurance, to give security. If a man borroweth Mony of one, oftentimes they leave a Pawn, that Pawn giveth assurance, giveth security for the payment of so much Mony. On the other side, if a man goes to bargain with one, the Buyer giveth an Earnest to the Seller, and that also doth bind the bargain. They are both for Security, they are both for Assurance, that is the scope of both.

How do they differ then?

A Pawn is properly for Mony borrowed, or promised to be paid, and must alwaies be worth as much as the Mony that it is engaged for; who will take a Pawn else? But an Earnest is not so; an Earnest is but a part in hand. You shall have a Bargain that is worth a thousand pounds, and the Earnest it may be is but Sixpence or a Shilling, or a Piece. It is but part of the payment.

In the Second place; A Pawn or a Pledge may be something of another kind from Mony. One may pawn his Jewels his Cloaths for Mony; but an Earnest alwaies is a piece of Mony, for Mony to be paid. It is a thing of the same kind.

Then Thirdly, a Pawn is restored again when the Mony is paid; but an Earnest is never restored, for it is part in hand, a man keepeth it for ever by him.

So that now, by this, you will come to understand what is meant by an Earnest. It is first a part in hand, part of payment, it is not the whole. It is Secondly, something of the same kind, it is part of the same we shall one day receive. And Thirdly, it is never restored again as a Pawn is. I shall have use of these, as you shall find in opening, how the Spirit is an Earnest.

The Second thing for opening the phrase is this: I have shewed you how a Pawn and an Earnest differeth. Now let us see what reference this phrase hath (in the place it cometh in,) both to what is before, and what is after.

An Earnest, it is of use in two cases; and they are both here glanced at.

An Earnest, it is of use in case of buying and selling, when the buyer hath not Mony ready, or the seller hath not his Commodity ready, then you give Mony as an Earnest of the bargain.

Secondly, An Earnest doth not hold only in buying and selling; but it holdeth in conveying of Inheritances. This is the latitude of the Greek phrase. You shall see it amongst our selves, (as I take it at this day.) When an Inheritance is conveyed to another man, there is first a Writing drawn with Hands unto it. Answerably there is now for the Inheritance of heaven Sanctification and Faith wrought in the heart, which are the finger of the Holy Ghost; they are his work. There is Secondly the Seal, which is after you have believed and have been sanctified. And Thirdly, in conveying Inheritances (if I be not mistaken) they use to carry a man unto the ground. If you sell Land or convey an Inheritance, if you will give possession, what do you? You carry him unto the Ground, and there you give him a Turf of Earth, something that grows upon the ground; not Mony, but something of the same kind with the Inheritance he is to possess, and that bindeth the party, as Lawyers know; and it is said to give possession, to give the Buyer a further degree of right.

Now see how aptly the Holy Ghost followeth this similitude here in these words. He aimeth at both, he glanceth at both: First, at that way of bargaining, and that is evident by two expressions, the Redemption which is by price, ἀπολύτρωσις, and the Purchased possession. Yet he chiefly aimeth at conveying an Inheritance, for so the words are exprest, it is the Earnest (saith he) of our Inheritance; and the word Possession that relateth to Inheritances; The Earnest of our Inheritance, until the redemption of the purchased possession. He glanceth you see at both, and takes in both.

And

And first to speak a little to that of bargaining. It is true, my Brethren, that Heaven is a free gift, and there is no buying and selling between us and God about it in a proper sense. Yet let me tell you of this first, that Jesus Christ bought it, it is his purchased possession for us. Now as we sinned, Jesus Christ paid the debt, and he purchased the possession, and we have the Earnest of the bargain.

And it was exceeding proper it should be so; why? Because we are Christ's, we are one with him. It is my purchased possession, saith Christ, give them the Earnest of it, for whom I purchased it, and it is all one as if you give it me. So now, though in a contrary way to bargaining, (for there the Buyer useth to give the Earnest of the Mony, not the Seller of the commodity; but here God doth accept of Christ's Mony, and giveth us an Earnest, part of the Commodity in hand;) yet, if you will take it in respect of bargaining, it is an Earnest between us and God; the Scripture is not abhorrent from that Metaphor. You shall find in Matt. 13.44,45. The kingdom of Heaven (saith Christ) is like to a Treasure hid in the field, which a Merchant man espieth, selleth all that he hath and buyeth the field. It is not a proper buying indeed, but it is a buying what in him lieth, it is a parting with all he hath; God can have no more. He giveth up all his lusts, all the interest he hath in this world, and all the comforts of it, he giveth up himself; it is a buying without Mony, as the phrase is, Isa. 51.1. Now then, when we have given up our selves thus to God; sold our selves to him to work righteousness, as Ahab sold himself to work wickedness: Then doth God come, there is an Earnest for you (saith he;) he giveth us an Earnest of the commodity which we give up our selves for. That is the first use of it, it is in respect of bargaining; how it is in respect of Inheritances, I shall shew afterward.

Observe now how properly and pertinently the Holy Ghost followeth these two Similitudes or Metaphors of Sealing and Earnest, he placeth his words most fitly. When he speaks of Heaven as a thing promised, then he mentioneth the Seal of the Spirit; Ye were sealed, (saith he) with the Spirit of Promise. When he speaks of Heaven as a thing to be possest and enjoyed, he useth the Metaphor of an Earnest, or part in hand, that doth give a kind of possession before hand. So much now for opening the phrase, and the correspondency that one phrase hath to another, which giveth much light to the whole.

The Second thing, (as I told you) to be done is this, to shew how the Holy Ghost is an Earnest.

The great question I had with my self a long while was this, Whether the Holy Ghost is said there to be an Earnest only in respect of working assurance of salvation in the hearts of men; so as the meaning should be, that whereas before the Apostle had expresst the work of Assurance by sealing, now he doth do it by a new Metaphor of being an Earnest, importing only the same thing: so as this Similitude should be limitted to the same thing only that sealing is, namely to working Assurance: But when I had fully considered it, the upshot of my thoughts is this,

It is true indeed, he mentioneth this of the Spirit being an Earnest in a special manner, in respect of assuring us of Salvation; for the scope of an Earnest is to assure as well as a Seal: yet so, as it is not to be limitted only to the work of Assurance, though he hath that especially in his eye; but it is spoken in a large and more general sense, (as when I shewed the scope of the words I mentioned) he speaks of the Spirit in respect of all he is to us, and all the work in us. In a word, He is not only an Earnest in respect of working an Assurance in our hearts, (though so and more particularly;) but he is an Earnest in his Person given unto us, in his Graces wrought in us. An Earnest takes in all these. It is a general Proposition, brought in indeed upon an occasion of the mention of the Holy Ghost as a Sealer in the words before; and it doth second that phrase, and doth more peculiarly suit and comply with it, (for an Earnest is ordained to assure,) yet it is taken in a larger sense. Therefore, now I am to do two things in opening how the Holy Ghost is an Earnest.

Ser. XVII.

I am firſt to ſhew in general, how the Spirit and all his workings, are all the Earneſt of our Inheritance.

Yet Secondly, That there is a work of Aſſurance, in which he is more particularly an Earneſt.

The ſcope of an Earneſt is both to aſſure the thing, and it is to aſſure the party to whom the Earneſt is given. Now in the general ſenſe take the gift of the Spirit, the graces of the Spirit, they all aſſure the thing; but then the work of Aſſurance, which the Holy Ghoſt works, that aſſureth the perſon. He is an Earneſt in both.

The Metaphor of a Seal only reſpecteth the work of Aſſurance, (as I ſhewed when I handled it;) but the ſimilitude of an Earneſt dothimport aſſuring the thing. It is an Earneſt of Heaven, to make that ſure in it ſelf; and it is an Earneſt of Heaven to us, to make us ſure of it too. Now therefore I ſhall ſpeak to theſe two things. Firſt, in general to ſhew you, That the Holy Ghoſt and all his Graces, are an Earneſt of our Inheritance, that makes ſure the thing to us.

And firſt, the Holy Ghoſt himſelf abſtractedly taken from all our Graces, being given to us, he is the greateſt Earneſt of Heaven to make it ſure of all other. My Brethren, the gift of the Holy Ghoſt is the greateſt Earneſt of Heaven, that ever was or could be.

You muſt know that in the Greek ὃς, there is a varying from Grammatical Rules in relation to what he had ſpoken of; for he had ſpoken that the Spirit, πνεῦμα, in the Neuter Gender; but yet he ſaith ὅς ἐστιν, who is, it is not which is. I know the Obſervation, (and I took it as an excellent one) which Beza makes out of it, that to ſhew (ſaith he) that the Holy Ghoſt is a Perſon; though πνεῦμα be in the Neuter Gender, yet he ſpeaks of him in the Maſculine, as of a Perſon, as elſewhere in Joh. 16.13. When He ſhall come, ſpeaking of the Spirit of Truth, he ſpeaks of him as of a Perſon, when He, ſaith he. Which ſhould teach us to ſpeak reverently of the Holy Ghoſt; (It is a good Obſervation,) that we ſhould not ſay of him, It, as is the uſual manner amongſt us to ſay, Lord give us thy Spirit, that It may work this or that. No, that He may work this or that; He is a Perſon. The Original word varieth, as they that know it know well; he doth not ſay, that or which, but who or he; we ſhould ſpeak ſtill of the Holy Ghoſt, not as of a thing, but as of a Perſon. I thought, I ſay, it was a good Obſervation, that which is gathered from it; but, my Brethren, it is not all the meaning of it, when he ſaith, he or who, (ſpeaking of his Perſon) is an Earneſt. His meaning is, that the gift of the Perſon of the Holy Ghoſt, taken ſevered from all his works in us, his Perſon given to us to dwell in us for ever (as he is,) this is the greateſt Earneſt that God could beſtow upon us, of our Inheritance to come. And that is the firſt thing wherein the Holy Ghoſt is an Earneſt; he is an Earneſt in the gift of his Perſon.

You ſhall find 2 Cor. 5.5. the Apoſtle ſpeaks there of the Perſon of the Holy Ghoſt, as an Earneſt given to us diſtinct from his graces and works in us. Mark the phraſe, He that hath wrought us for this ſelf ſame thing, (namely for Heaven, which he ſpeaks of ver. 4.) is God. Here is you ſee the work of God upon us; he hath wrought, he hath faſhioned Graces in our hearts: Are not they the great Earneſt? No, not comparatively, for it followeth, who alſo hath given unto us the Earneſt of his Spirit. You ſhall find in another place (as I ſhall ſhew anon,) when he ſpeaks of working Aſſurance, he calleth it the Earneſt of the Spirit in our hearts; but here is the Perſon of the Spirit mentioned diſtinct from his works, who hath alſo given us the Earneſt of his Spirit.

The giving of the Holy Ghoſt is the greateſt Earneſt of Heaven to come, and that conſidered as diſtinct from his Graces wrought in us. I will make this plain to you in a word or two.

He is the greateſt Earneſt of Heaven; why? Becauſe he is more than Heaven. And in this (if you will) he is a Pledge rather than an Earneſt; that ſignification will come in, for it will bear both. It is a Rule in the Civil Law, A Pawn muſt alwaies be worth more than the Mony it is pawned for. My Brethren, the Holy Ghoſt is more than Heaven, let me tell you ſo. The Apoſtle argueth in Rom. 8.32. If he have given us his Son, how ſhall he not with him give us all things things alſo? I will argue likewiſe; Hath he given the Perſon of his Spirit to you to dwell (not perſonally, take heed of that,) but to dwell in your perſons for ever; why, will he not give Heaven and all things elſe, which are leſs than his Spirit? The gift of the Holy Ghoſt is the foundation of all Grace and Glory. Ser. XVII.

And more (my Brethren) we have two of the greateſt Pawns of our going to Heaven that ever was: Firſt, We have the Lord Jeſus Chriſt in Heaven with our Nature, to ſhew that man's Nature ſhall come there; there is a Pawn in heaven for it. He ſendeth down the Holy Ghoſt into our hearts, the Third Perſon, to ſhew we ſhall come thither likewiſe; for this Spirit will fetch us up. If he be given to your Perſons once, (as I ſhall ſhew you by and by) he will never reſt till he hath brought you thither. So he is called an Earneſt, becauſe he is the great gift, and will draw on the leſs.

And Secondly, If he be given you ſimply, his Perſon to your perſons, why then he is engaged to bring you to heaven. You think, if you get Grace in your hearts, there is an Earneſt of heaven. Why, Grace in it ſelf might be loſt, if it were not for the Holy Ghoſt, that dwelleth in your hearts; that is the Fountain of it: the Stream may be cut off; but if the Stream have a Fountain that continually bubbleth up, the Stream will never be dried up, the perpetuity of the Stream dependeth upon the Fountain. Now, who is the Fountain of all Grace? It is the Holy Ghoſt, the gift of the Holy Ghoſt. *Joh.*7.38. He that believeth on me, as the Scripture hath ſaid, out of his belly ſhall flow Rivers of living water. Here is a Fountain you ſee, whence ſhall flow Rivers of Living water. Who is this Fountain? Read on, This he ſpake of the Spirit, which they that believe on him ſhould receive.

It is the ſame Spirit, my Brethren, that works Grace and works Glory. In *Rom.*8.23. we are ſaid to have received the Firſt-fruits of the Spirit. Why is Grace there called the Firſt-fruits of the Spirit; but becauſe if you have the Spirit, you ſhall have Glory? The ſame Spirit that works grace works glory, as the ſame ground that beareth the Firſt-fruits beareth the Crop.

Learn therefore to value and priſe this great gift of the Holy Ghoſt: If he dwell in you, and hath begun to work Grace in your hearts, (which is an Argument, his Perſon is given to your perſons for ever,) he will never leave you. The Spirit doth not dwell in us as he did in Adam, ſo long as we ſhall be holy; but he dwelleth in us to work holineſs, he cometh down to us therefore when we are unholy.

I will name but one place, it is *Rom.*8.11. If the Spirit of him that raiſed up Jeſus from the dead dwell in you; what then? He that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead, ſhall alſo quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you. My Brethren, Doth the Spirit dwell in you now? When you are laid in the grave, that Spirit dwelleth in you, as he did in the body of Chriſt; I do not ſay, in the ſame high manner. The Spirit of God did dwell in the body of Chriſt in the grave, and raiſed it up, he never left him; though his body was a dead Carkaſs without a Soul; yet that body was hypoſtatically united to the Godhead, therefore it is called Holy One; My Holy one ſhall not ſee corruption. Now the compariſon is, If we have the Spirit of Chriſt, and if he dwell in us, the ſame Spirit ſhall never leave our Bodies till he hath raiſed us up alſo. Nay, while thy Body is dead and rotten in the grave, the Holy Ghoſt dwelleth in it. So that now the gift of the Holy Ghoſt, it is the greateſt Earneſt of heaven that could be. That is the firſt.

As the Spirit is an Earneſt of heaven, ſo the graces of the Spirit are to aſſure the thing ſtill, for that is one uſe of an Earneſt. My Brethren, Grace is part of heaven, as I have oft expreſt it, it is that to Heaven which colours are to Varniſh, that is Grace to Glory. He that believeth hath eternal life. Love (you know) is ſaid to remain, 1 *Cor.*13. and Grace is called the Firſt-fruits of the Spirit, *Rom.*8.23. And ſo now in general you ſee, how the Holy Ghoſt is ſaid to be the Earneſt of our Inheritance in a more large ſenſe than the work of Aſſurance; he is an Earneſt both in the gift of his Perſon, and likewiſe in his Graces.

What Graces you will ſay?

Why, in Faith and Love. You would look for ſome glorious thing now;

Faith

Ser. XVII.

Faith and Love are the Graces that God works by the Perſon of the Holy Ghoſt, given unto thee. The Apoſtle inſtanceth in theſe two in the next verſe to the Text; For this cauſe (ſaith he) I have given thanks for your Faith in Chriſt, and love to all the Saints. Hath the Holy Ghoſt wrought theſe in thy heart? Theſe are an Earneſt that the Perſon of the Holy Ghoſt is given unto thee; and the Perſon of the Holy Ghoſt being given unto thee, is an Earneſt, that that Inheritance that God hath appointed for his Children ſhall be thine. That Spirit dwelling in thee that dwelt in Chriſt, ſhall raiſe up thy mortal body, as it raiſed up Chriſts.

Now, My Brethren, I muſt come in the Second place, and ſhew you how, though in general in a more large ſenſe, the Holy Ghoſt is ſaid to be the Earneſt of our Inheritance; yet in a more proper ſenſe it is ſpoken in reſpect of the work of Aſſurance, which the Holy Ghoſt works in us; that is, the peculiar, ſpecial thing that the Holy Ghoſt hath in his eye: and why? Becauſe he coupleth it with Sealing, ſaith he; He hath ſealed us by his Spirit, who is the Earneſt, namely as a Sealer, as one that giveth Aſſurance; we have Aſſurance in us of our Redemption, &c. Compare but Epheſ. 4.30. with this verſe; there you read, We are ſealed to the day of redemption; that is, God hath wrought Aſſurance in us, that we ſhall be redeemed, and he hath ſealed us up to the day of Redemption. Here it is, Who is the Earneſt of our Inheritance, until the redemption, &c. So that both import the work of Aſſurance.

The end of an Earneſt is to work Aſſurance in the party that it is given unto, as well as a Seal. You ſhall find in 2 Cor. 1.21, 22. ſpeaking of eſtabliſhing us in Chriſt, (it is a place I have often quoted) of his working Aſſurance in our hearts of being in Chriſt, he calleth it in the next verſe, Sealing us, and giving us the Earneſt of the Spirit in our hearts. He mentioneth them both, and putteth them both together, as being that whereby the Holy Ghoſt doth eſtabliſh us. And in that he addeth, He hath given us the Earneſt of the Spirit in our hearts, for that is the Phraſe there. The place in 2 Cor. 5. 5. I quoted even now, mentioneth only giving of the Spirit; but in that place of 1 Cor. 1.20. he is ſaid to give the Earneſt of the Spirit in our hearts. What is the meaning of that? It importeth a work upon the heart, to aſſure and eſtabliſh the heart; that it is not only an Earneſt from God to the perſon, to make the thing ſure to him; but it is an Earneſt wrought in the heart of the man to whom the thing is given in a ſpecial manner. And that that is the meaning of it, read the next verſe in that 2 Cor. 5. Therefore, ſaith he, (becauſe we have this Earneſt) we are alwaies confident.

Now, my Brethren, the great buſineſs is this, ſeeing the Earneſt of the Spirit is put for giving Aſſurance, and the Sealing of the Spirit is put for the giving Aſſurance too, how to diſtinguiſh theſe two: or rather, what is it that the one Similitude holdeth forth more eminently, and what doth the other mainly import? I had thought ſometime, that the Earneſt of the Spirit had been ſome further thing than the Sealing of the Spirit; but certainly it importeth the ſame thing, only as the manner of Scripture Similitudes is, wherein one Simile falleth ſhort the other helpeth it out. So they both imply the work of Aſſurance; He hath ſealed us by the Spirit, who is an Earneſt; that is, as a Sealer he is an Earneſt: yet Sealing implieth one thing in Aſſurance, the Earneſt of the Spirit implieth another.

You will ask me, how we ſhall diſtinguiſh theſe two?

I ſhall do it briefly as God hath given me light. You know the Soul of man hath two great faculties that are wrought upon, he hath an Underſtanding, he hath a Will and Affections. Now as we believe with the whole heart, ſo we are aſſured with the whole heart too. There is a work both upon the Underſtanding and upon the Will; by the one a man knoweth his eſtate in grace, his Underſtanding is fully convinced of it; the Will and Affections do taſte the ſweetneſs of it before-hand. You ſhall find Rom. 5.5. ſpeaking of Aſſurance, which he calleth Hope, (as he doth elſewhere) he ſaith, Becauſe the Love of God is ſhed abroad in our hearts; not only into one faculty, but into all faculties both into the underſtanding and will.

Now

Now then, if you will know what Sealing holdeth forth more eſpecially, it is the work upon the Underſtanding. The Seal, though it aſſureth, yet it is not part of the Inheritance; but the Earneſt ſo aſſureth as it giveth you part of the Inheritance; it works that joy in the heart, which the Saints ſhall have in Heaven. You have both theſe mentioned in Aſſurance in ſome places of Scripture. The work of Aſſurance upon the Underſtanding, (that is properly ſealing.) Col. 2.2. it is called πληροφορία τῆς συνέσεως, the full aſſurance of Underſtanding: ſo Heb. 10. 22. it is called the full aſſurance of Faith. It is an overpowring light, whereby a man's Underſtanding is fully convinced that he is Gods and that God is his; as God knoweth who are his, he knoweth himſelf to be God's. That is ſealing properly or more eminently. Now what is Earneſt? It is a giving you part in hand, part of that joy and comfort, that taſte of Heaven. When he thus ſealeth he accompanieth it with a taſte, with joy unſpeakable and glorious. It is a part taken up before-hand, as Heirs take up Mony upon their Lands before-hand. It is not a bare conviction that a man ſhall go to Heaven; but God telleth him in part what Heaven is, and lets the Soul feel it. There is nothing ſweeter than the Love of God, and the taſting of that ſweetneſs is the Earneſt of the Inheritance. Ser. XVII.

I ſhall give you Scripture that holds forth both theſe. Look into Pſal. 4. there firſt you have the work upon the Underſtanding of a man, verſ. 6. Lord lift thou up the light of thy countenance upon us; then followeth the work upon the Will, verſ. 7, Thou haſt put gladneſs in my heart, ſaith he, more than in the time that their Corn and their Wine increaſed. In Coloſſ. 2. 2. you have two things mentioned, you have firſt that their hearts may be comforted, there is the Earneſt of the Spirit; then you have, unto all riches of the full aſſurance of underſtanding, there is the Seal of the Spirit. The Spirit, Joh. 14. as promiſed by Chriſt, is called both a Comforter and the Spirit of Truth; the one for working upon the Will, putting comfort there, the other for working upon the Underſtanding, convincing that. 1 Theſſ. 1. 5, 6. compared, there is receiving the Word in much aſſurance, that is the work upon the Underſtanding; and there is with joy in the Holy Ghoſt, that is the work upon the Will and Affections. Here is Sealing, here is Earneſt.

You ſhall find in 1 Pet. 1. 8, 9. he had ſaid, that believing, they rejoyced with joy unſpeakable and full of glory, (therefore this is no leſs than Heaven, part of Heaven. When Paul was in Heaven, what did he hear? Things unſpeakable: ſo is this Joy; and it is called glorious, becauſe it is a part of Heaven:) here now is the Earneſt of the Spirit. Yea, if you obſerve the phraſe that followeth in the 9*th* verſe, Receiving (ſaith he) the end of your Faith, the ſalvation of your Souls. I find that the beſt Expoſitors interpret this receiving of Salvation not to be meant of Heaven, for then he would have ſaid, you ſhall receive Salvation; but to be meant of Aſſurance, which is the end of Faith, it is the reward of Faith. When a man hath been long tried, (the trial of your Faith, which he ſpeaks of verſ. 7.) in the end he cometh to be aſſured, he receiveth the end of his Faith, which is the aſſurance of the ſalvation of his Soul. Why is it called Salvation? It is Heaven, my Brethren, that is the reaſon of it. So now you ſee, what is meant by the Earneſt of the Spirit, both in reſpect of Aſſurance and alſo in reſpect of aſſuring the thing, and the work of Aſſurance.

I ſhall now come to ſome Obſervations. The firſt Obſervation is this: Obſerv. 1.

There is no falling from Grace; why? Becauſe the gift of the Holy Ghoſt, and his Graces, and the work of Aſſurance, they are an Earneſt. Pledges indeed are reſtored again; if he were only a Pledge or a Pawn it were ſomething, but he is ſaid to be an Earneſt. Now, what ſaith Chriſt, Joh. 14. 16? I will give you the Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever; never to be returned again, as you know an Earneſt is not.

The truth is this; If men, to whom he giveth the Spirit, ſhould not be ſaved, God muſt loſe his Earneſt, he muſt loſe his Spirit. As he would not loſe the death of his Son, that he ſhould die in vain; ſo he will not loſe his Spirit, whom he giveth as an Earneſt unto Believers. Luk. 10. 42. Saith Chriſt to Mary, Thou haſt choſen the better part, which ſhall never be taken from thee.

Secondly,

Ser. XVII. Obſerv. 2. Secondly, As joy in the holy Ghoſt and aſſurance is an Earneſt, it is part of payment: you know in an Earneſt if you have part in hand you have the leſs when you come to receive the full ſum. I will not ſay that it is ſo here, that thoſe that have moſt comfort here ſhall have leſs in Heaven; but this I will ſay, if they do not improve this Earneſt, if they do not put this Tallent out to uſe they ſhall have leſs, let me tell them ſo. I may ſay in this caſe, juſt as Chriſt ſaid to Thomas, Joh. 20. 29. Becauſe thou haſt ſeen me, thou haſt believed; bleſſed are they that have not ſeen and yet have believed. Thou haſt ſeen Chriſt, thou haſt an Earneſt of Heaven, thou haſt ſome ſight, ſome taſt, it is well thou art obedient; but let me tell thee that they that are obedient as thou art, and yet have not this Earneſt, there is more behind. Therefore poor Soul comfort thy ſelf, haſt thou not had this Earneſt Penny, and yet thou haſt been obedient to God? There is the more behind.

Obſerv. 3. Thirdly, You that have the Earneſt of the Spirit, priſe it. You uſe to lay up your Earneſt Money by which you may ſue for the bargain, ſafely and carefully, you praiſe it more than all your other Money, as you do your Bonds more than all your other Papers in your Study beſides, becauſe you have that to ſue for your debt: Vallue therefore the Holy Ghoſt, his graces, eſpecially the Earneſt of him whereby he works aſſurance. So much now for this, that he is ſaid to be the Earneſt of our Inheritance.

Now to come to the Second thing mentioned, of what he is ſaid to be the Earneſt, and until when. He is ſaid to be the Earneſt of our Inheritance until the Redemption of the purchaſed Poſſeſſion. I put both theſe together, of what the Spirit is an Earneſt and until when, as under a Third head.

Firſt, Of what? Of an Inheritance. What is the Inheritance? Will you know what it is my Brethren? Look Rom. 8. 17. we are ſaid there to be Heirs of God, (it is a mighty ſpeech, I do not know how to ſpeak more of your Inheritance,) Heirs of God ſaith he, and Co-heirs with Chriſt, that is God himſelf is your Inheritance. Why how do you prove that that is the meaning of it? Becauſe you are Co-heirs with Chriſt. Now who is Jeſus Chriſt's Inheritance? Who makes Chriſt happy? God. Pſal. 16. 5. (it is a Pſalm of Chriſt plainly,) The Lord is the Portion of mine Inheritance, and of my Cup, and ſo he concludeth, At thy right hand there are Pleaſures for ever more. Now my Brethren, if God be the Inheritance, you ſee a juſt reaſon why that the Perſon of the Holy Ghoſt ſhould be the Earneſt, that he that is God ſhould be the Earneſt of the Inheritance which is God too.

I will give you one Scripture more, it is Revel. 21. 7. He that overcometh ſhall inherit all things, and I will be his God. God and all things are a Mans Inheritance, whereof the Holy Ghoſt is the Earneſt.

He is the Earneſt until, until the Redemption of the purchaſed Poſſeſſion. The word εἰς our Tranſlators do rightly interpret it, they read it until, for ſo Epheſ. 4. 30. Ye are Sealed ſaith he, unto the day, εἰς ἡμέραν until the day, until then; for that indeed is the proper ſcope of an Earneſt when the full payment and poſſeſſion is deferred to aſſure in the mean time, to aſſure until then, therefore Rom. 8. we are ſaid to wait for the Redemption of the Body, having received the firſt fruits of the Spirit.

The Second thing to be explained is Redemption, what is ment here by Redemption.

That is eaſie; It is not the Redemption by Chriſt's Blood, there need no Earneſt until that, for that is paſt, that is done already, that you read of verſe 7. In whom we have Redemption through his Blood, that is actual Redemption, it is he paying of the price once for all, but the Redemption here is actual and compleat full Redemption. as Luke 21. 28. When your Redemption draweth nigh, lift up your heads.

There

There is a twofold Redemption; The one is a Redemption by price, the paying of the price. In Heb. 9. 12. it is ſaid that Jeſus Chriſt, (before he went to Heaven,) obtained Redemption for us. And there is a Redemption of application of that price unto us, which is the Redemption meant here, as Eph. 4. 30. They were ſealed unto the day of Redemption, it is to come. Sermon XVIII.

And let me ſay this to you, the reaſon why Muſculus would have this word Poſſeſſion added to Redemption, is ſaith he to diſtinguiſh it from that Redemption of Chriſt's by price, that was Redemptio ſolutionis, the Redemption of paying the price, but this is Redemptio poſſeſſionis, whereby we are put into the poſſeſſion of it.; it is εἰς ἀπολύτρωσιν τῆς περιποιήσεως. And that is the account that he doth give of the Phraſe.

Or if you will, I will diſtinguiſh it thus to you, that I may magnifie the Holy Ghoſt unto you. There is a Redemption by Jeſus Chriſt's paying the price, and there is a redeeming us by the Spirit, applying that price; therefore he is ſaid to be the Earneſt of our Inheritance for the Redemption, that is to work Redemption, ſo ſome interpret, εἰς ἀπολύτρωσιν, he is the cauſe of Redemption, he is ἀρραβὼν εἰς ἀπολύτρωσιν, on purpoſe to work it not as an idle Earneſt that lieth by us, but as an hoſtage, being a perſon that works the Redemption of the party, he is an hoſtage for us, therefore if you read Rom. 8, 9, 10, 23. you ſhall find that the redemption of our bodies, and the raiſing up of our bodies it is aſcribed unto the Spirit of God. So now you eaſily underſtand what is meant by Redemption.

But then why ſhould the Holy Ghoſt put in this word Poſſeſſion, and purchaſed Poſſeſſion, as the word indeed ſignifieth? Certainly he is not redundant, it is not an overplus, Epheſ. 4. 30. where he ſpeaks of the ſame thing, he ſaith meerly this, they were Sealed to the day of Redemption; but there it is untill the Redemption of the poſſeſſion. There is a myſtery in it.

Firſt, Beza makes it a meer Hypallage, that is an inverſion, a ſpeaking backward, or (as I may expreſs it in Engliſh,) inſtead of ſaying poſſeſſion of Redemption, he ſaith Redemption of the poſſeſſion; and it is (as Schollars know) a frequent thing in Scripture, for to uſe ſuch inverſions of ſpeech, as the Law of Righteouſneſs, for the Righteouſneſs of the Law, or the Righteous Law, a man of bleſſedneſs, for a bleſſed man; Levit. 5. there the Silver of the Shekel is put for a Shekel of Silver, &c.

And there is this to confirm Beza's interpretation, that in the 1 Theſ. 5. 9. where he uſeth this Phraſe, we are ſaith he, ordained εἰς περιποίησιν σωτηρίας, for the poſſeſſion, or obtaining Salvation; It is the ſame word uſed here. So that the poſſeſſion of Salvation in that of the Theſ. is all one with the poſſeſſion of Redemption here, Redemption being ordinarily called Salvation; therefore as I ſaid before, Muſculus ſaith it is put by way of diſtinction, that whereas in the 11*th.* verſe he ſaid, we had obtained an Inheritance, here in the 14*th.* verſe he ſaith, the Spirit is an Earneſt of the poſſeſſion of that Redemption, or of that Inheritance. That is the firſt interpretation.

But my Brethren, becauſe that this may ſeem to be a harſh phraſe, we will ſee if there be any thing that Expoſitors give that will run more ſmoothly and currently. I find that there are two Interpretations that are given of it yet more.

It is called in the Firſt place, the Redemption of the purchaſed poſſeſſion, by purchaſed poſſeſſion, meaning the People of God, ſo that the meaning is this, that the Holy Ghoſt is the Earneſt of our Inheritance, till all God's People, his purchaſed Poſſeſſion and Inheritance, be all redeemed, and then we ſhall receive the full Inheritance together with them all. And this, (the truth is,) moſt Interpreters run upon, and Calvin himſelf, and he giveth this good Gloſs upon it too; You ſhould not ſaith he, think much to ſtay a while, and only to be content with an Earneſt, for you ſtay but till God hath gather'd in all his People whom he hath purchaſed, when he hath once perfectly Redeemed them all you your ſelves ſhall be eſtated in the Inheritance. The Spirit is an Earneſt of the Inheritance, until the Redemption of the purchaſed Poſſeſſion.

Ser. XVII.

To give you ſome Scripture to confirm this Interpretation. Firſt in 1 *Pet.*2.9. there he calleth the People of God (he uſeth the very ſame phraſe that is uſed here,) λαὸς εἰς περιποίησιν, a peculiar People, or a purchaſed poſſeſſion to God, (ſo you may read it,) he doth allude unto that in *Exod.*19.5. whence he takes the word, where they are ſaid to be a a holy People, a peculiar Treaſure, or an Inheritance unto God. And ſo now, as he calleth Heaven our Inheritance in the former words, ſo he calleth us that are redeemed God's Inheritance in theſe words.

I ſhall name no more places, but that *Deut.*32.19. The Lord's portion is his People, Jacob is the lot of his Inheritance. And then, whereas it is ſaid, they are a purchaſed Inheritance; my Brethren, it is well added, for the People of God are ſo; they are not only God's Inheritance by choice, but they are his by purchaſe. The word περιποιεῖν, as all Grecians acknowledge, is to get a thing by labour, by coſt, and by conqueſt, and ſo it is more than κλῆρος; they are not only his Inheritance, but they are his purchaſed poſſeſſion, his purchaſed Inheritance. Look into *Act.*20.28. ſaith he, The Church whom he hath purchaſed with the blood of God. The word uſed for purchaſed there, is the ſame word that is uſed here. This is the glory of the People of God, that they are God's purchaſed ones; not only his Inheritance, but his purchaſed Inheritance.

A Second Interpretation is this; By purchaſed poſſeſſion here is meant Heaven it ſelf. The ſame thing which he had ſpoken of before, calling it there an Inheritance, here he calleth it a purchaſed poſſeſſion. For this there is as expreſs a Scripture as for the former; *Heb.*10.39. We are not of thoſe that draw back to perdition, but of them that believe, εἰς περιποίησιν, unto their ſalvation; (it is the ſame word that is here;) we tranſlate it unto the ſalvation of their Souls, which Salvation is purchaſed by the blood of Chriſt. So that now his ſcope is, to note out the glory of Heaven to conſiſt in two things: Firſt, in a perfect Redemption, freeing us from all ſin and miſery; and Secondly, in a glorious poſſeſſion, purchaſed by the Blood of Chriſt. Now, ſaith he, He is the Earneſt of our Inheritance, until the redemption of our purchaſed poſſeſſion.

But only the phraſe, you will ſay, is harſh to interpret it of Heaven; for how, you will ſay, is there a Redemption? for Heaven is not ſaid to be redeemed; it is bought indeed, but how is it ſaid to be redeemed?

I Anſwer two things. In the firſt place, it is ſaid to be the redemption of this poſſeſſion in reſpect of the perſons to be redeemed and poſſeſt of it. That is ſometimes attributed to Heaven, which is not meant of it, but of the Perſons that ſhall come thither. As for Example, It is called an Inheritance immortal and unaefiled; why? Becauſe we ſhall be undefiled when we come thither. I go (ſaith Chriſt) to prepare a place for you. It was prepared from the beginning of the world; he ſaith ſo, becauſe they were to be prepared. So, becauſe we are to be redeemed and to be poſſeſt of it; therefore it is called the redemption of the poſſeſſion, that is, by which, when we are redeemed, we ſhall be poſſeſt of it.

And, my Brethren, it is not an improper phraſe to ſay, the redemption of this poſſeſſion, of Heaven; why? becauſe there lieth a great many clogs in our way to it, which muſt be removed; there lies Sin and Satan, in whoſe hands we are, and Death, and all theſe we muſt be redeemed from; all theſe muſt be removed before we have clear and quiet poſſeſſion, therefore it is ſaid, the Spirit is a Seal until the redemption of the purchaſed poſſeſſion. As a man that hath an Eſtate, and right to it good enough, but he is troubled with Suits in Law that keep him from the poſſeſſion of it; it may be called the redemption of his poſſeſſion, when all is paid, and all Suits are at an end.

If you ask me, Which of theſe two the Holy Ghoſt meaneth? Clearly and plainly, my Brethren, he meaneth both, and it is the greateſt elegancy in the Writings of the Holy Ghoſt, that he ſhould intend both, (as you ſhall ſee by and by.)

For

For firſt, if you take this purchaſed poſſeſſion to be meant of Heaven it ſelf, that Inheritance he ſpeaks of, which the Spirit is the Earneſt of, it is the Moſt elegant expreſſion that could be. Why? For whereas you have not the actual poſſeſſion of Heaven, until you are redeemed from ſin and miſery; and an Earneſt doth uſe to give intereſt in a poſſeſſion before-hand, it giveth a right unto the Land, you may claim the Land by it. Hence he fitly ſaith, he is the Earneſt of our Inheritance afore-hand, before we come to poſſeſs it, and being redeemed to poſſeſs it. Ser. XVII.

Then again, If you take it for the Church and People of God, for God's Inheritance, it is as elegant every way and as proper. For firſt, the Apoſtles meaning is this, Ye have the Earneſt of the Spirit, ſaith he, until the redemption. Do you think much to ſtay for it, you do but ſtay till the redemption of all God's People; it is a common caſe, and God himſelf he ſtayeth for them; they are his Peculiar, they are his Treaſure, they are his Purchaſed ones, he ſtayeth till they be redeemed; therefore (ſaith he) you may well ſtay. They were his redeemed People, his People purchaſed by the blood of Chriſt; but though purchaſed by the blood of Chriſt, yet they are ſold under ſin, as the Apoſtle ſaith; they are pawned the word is, and therefore they are detained from him by Sin, and Death, and Satan. Now therefore he in the mean time giveth them an Earneſt until the redemption of this poſſeſſion, until he hath redeemed unto himſelf, and vindicated by his Spirit his People unto himſelf.

My Brethren, Whereas God is fain to ſtay for his own Inheritance, what doth he do to make ſure of the Commodity? He giveth an Earneſt. It is an elegant expreſſion, and infinitely comfortable to us. As the Holy Ghoſt is an Earneſt to us of our Inheritance, he is an Earneſt to God of his Inheritance too; the Apoſtle hath both in his eye, for our Hearts are ſlippery commodities. God hath bought us by the blood of Chriſt, we would give him the ſlip; therefore to make ſure of us, he giveth us his Spirit (to be an Earneſt of our Redemption too) to redeem us, and to bring us to Heaven at laſt. And the word περιποίησις, purchaſed poſſeſſion, it ſignifieth a Guard, thoſe that are guarded and defended; it ſignifieth Tueri. He giveth us the Holy Ghoſt to guard us to Heaven; an Earneſt, not to lie ſtill, but as an Hoſtage to accompany us thither. God is loath to loſe you, as you are loath to loſe him, therefore he giveth you his Spirit as an Earneſt; therefore nothing can be more to the comfort of God's Saints. Thus vaſt and various is the Holy Ghoſt in his writing, and in his aims in both theſe expreſſions; We are God's Inheritance, He is our Inheritance; the Holy Ghoſt is an Earneſt to us, He is an Earneſt to God, until the redemption of the purchaſed poſſeſſion.

Now you have the meaning of the words, I will give you an Obſervation or two from them.

Firſt, See the Love of God.

1. That God ſhould not only beſtow an Inheritance upon us, but beſtow Himſelf upon us, (for himſelf is this Inheritance;) and not only make us Heirs of him, but make us his own Inheritance too, for ſo the word Poſſeſſion will bear it. That that God, who is bleſſed for ever, and needeth no Creature, ſhould call his People his Inheritance, which he liveth upon as it were, (for you know a man's Inheritance is that he liveth upon,) call them his purchaſed poſſeſſion; here was Love.

2. That he ſhould purchaſe this Inheritance by the blood of Chriſt, and pay ſo dear for it. They are not only his Inheritance, but his purchaſed Inheritance too; he did it to ſhew his Love the more.

3. When he had bought us by Chriſt, he ſheweth yet a further love; for though we were bought, and the price was paid, we ſtill lie in ſins, and therefore he ſendeth his Spirit into our hearts to reſcue us thence, to ſubdue us, to redeem us; until the redemption of the purchaſed poſſeſſion, he giveth the Spirit as an Earneſt.

4. He doth this to make ſure work, that he might not loſe us.

Ser. XVII. 5. He giveth us this Spirit as an Earneſt to aſſure us in the mean time, to comfort us. He doth not only reſerve Heaven for us, (as it is 1 Pet. 1.4.) but he is careful to give us the Comforter while we are here, before-hand. You ſee the Love of God.

In the Second place, do but obſerve (from what hath been opened) ſome Arguments of the greatneſs of the Glory of Heaven.

1. Heaven is an Inheritance given, and God's Inheritance. Great Men give Inheritances anſwerable to their greatneſs; what Inheritance then will God give? Himſelf, my Brethren, (as you heard before;) Heirs of God, and Co-heirs with Chriſt. You cannot be more happy than God can make you, or than Jeſus Chriſt is, and you are Co-heirs with him.

2. How great muſt that Inheritance be, whenas Joy in the Holy Ghoſt is but the Earneſt? The Earneſt you know is but part in hand, it is but a Sixpence (it may be) to a Thouſand pound; Then (as a Father well ſaith) How great is the Poſſeſſion, when the Earneſt is thus great! Take Joy in the Holy Ghoſt, it filleth your hearts fuller of joy than all the good things in the world will do. So David telleth you, more than Corn, and Wine, and Oil. Are you in diſtreſs? It carrieth you above all thoſe diſtreſſes; We rejoyce in tribulation, ſaith the Apoſtle; they made nothing of Tribulation. Nay, ſaith he, rejoyce when you fall into divers of them. This the Holy Ghoſt doth. If the Earneſt do this, ſhall a little piece of it do this, what will the poſſeſſion it ſelf be? If you mark it, the great Inheritance is to come.

3. It is called the purchaſed poſſeſſion, (if you interpret it of Heaven;) purchaſed by what? By the Blood of Chriſt. What think you will the purchaſe of Chriſt's Blood come to? do but think. A King's Ranſom is uſed to expreſs a great Sum; what will the Ranſom by the Blood that was made a Ranſom, (ſo the Text ſaith, 1 Tim. 2.6.) what will the Ranſom by the Blood of God come to? When Jeſus Chriſt laid down his Blood, ſaith he, let my Heirs take out all that Blood of mine in Glory and Grace. What will that Glory come to think you?

4. It is both a Redemption and a Poſſeſſion. Two things in Hell makes men miſerable, and Divines know not which is the greater; The one is Pœna damni, that they have loſt Heaven and Happineſs, and that wringeth them; the other is Pœna ſenſus, the feeling of the Wrath of God. The Glory of Heaven anſwerably, which makes us happy, conſiſteth of two things; A redemption from Miſery, and the poſſeſſion of Happineſs.

There is yet one thing more in the Text, which I muſt ſpeak ſomething unto ere I conclude; They are the laſt words in the 14*th* verſe, Unto the praiſe of his glory.

It is a thing mentioned as the end of all. It is mentioned in the 6*th* verſe, as the end of Election, to the praiſe of the glory of his Grace. It is mentioned in the 12*th* Verſe, in his application to the Jews, That we ſhould be to the praiſe of his glory, who firſt truſted in Chriſt. It is mentioned here again in the 14*th* verſe, when he maketh application of all unto the Gentiles, In whom ye alſo truſted, &c. unto the praiſe of his glory.

You ſhall find, that in all the Enumerations of the benefits of God towards us, that theſe two things come in again and again, In Chriſt, and To the praiſe of his glory. That [In Chriſt] cometh in nine times; To the praiſe of his glory cometh in thrice. There is a Trinity of Glory unto God, as there are Three Perſons whom he had diſtinctly mentioned as the Authors of our Salvation; both God the Father, and God the Son, (In whom we have redemption through his blood, at the 7*th* verſe,) and God the Holy Ghoſt, by whom ye are ſealed, who is the Earneſt of our Inheritance, verſe 13.

To the praiſe of his glory.] It referreth firſt to the Perſons; when he had ſpoken of the Salvation of the Jews, ver. 11,12. there he mentioneth their Salvation to be to the praiſe of his glory. When he ſpeaks it again to the Gentiles, there he ſounds it out again, To the praiſe of his glory.

That

That the Gentiles ſhould be added to the Church, therein was God exceedingly glorified. So it is ſaid in the Acts, when they ſaw that God had given Repentance to the Gentiles, then they glorified God. And though in making application both to the Jew and Gentile, he reckoneth apart ſomething of the one and ſomething of the other, that are in common to be applied to both; yet in his application he diſtinctly mentioneth, to the praiſe of his glory. So in the concluſion of his application to the Jew, in the 12*th* verſe, To the praiſe of his glory: So in the concluſion of his application to the Gentile, in the 14*th* verſe. Ser. XVII.

As it referreth thus to the Perſons, that God ſhould have glory for converting the Gentiles, turning them: ſo likewiſe it referreth to the ſpecial benefits he had mentioned. He had mentioned their believing, he had mentioned their being ſealed up, and having the Holy Ghoſt as an Earneſt of their Inheritance, to the praiſe of his glory, ſaith he.

Every new benefit ſhould have to the praiſe of his glory added to it in our hearts. Doſt thou believe? Live to the praiſe of his glory. Haſt thou Aſſurance added to thy Faith, and a being ſealed by the holy Spirit of Promiſe? There is a further expectation, that thou ſhouldeſt be to the praiſe of his glory; for God hath in that, (if thou beeſt ſealed) glorified thee, for to that it hath reference. He that is ſealed up to the day of ſalvation, and hath joy unſpeakable and glorious, that hath his heart filled with it; he hath not only the Spirit of Grace, but (as the Apoſtle ſaith, 1 Pet. 4.14.) he hath the Spirit of Glory reſting on him. He hath the beginnings of Glory in his heart, therefore it is expected that he ſhould live much more to God's glory. It is the expreſſion of Peter, in that 1 Pet. 1.9. (as by the coherence appeareth, and as I have ſhewed already,) that thoſe which are filled with joy unſpeakable and glorious, (which are the words juſt before) do receive the end of their Faith; they do receive it at preſent, they have part of their wages; they are partly in Heaven, eſpecially at the time when they have it. Therefore if God glorifie them, it is expected much more of ſuch, that they ſhould live to his glory. And Self-love in theſe is ſecured, it is provided for, which uſeth to buſtle in thoſe which want aſſurance; but God hath quieted and ſecured that principle in thee, that now thou muſt lay out all for God's glory.

Or elſe in the laſt place, Unto the praiſe of his glory, may have relation (and ſo Piſcator carries it, and there is none of theſe references but it is to be taken in) to the redemption of the purchaſed poſſeſſion. There is a purchaſed poſſeſſion to the praiſe of his glory; God hath appointed us and ſealed us up unto it.

My Brethren, Why hath God appointed an Inheritance, a Heaven to his Children? It is to the praiſe of his glory. God will be glorified in nothing more than in the greatneſs of that Glory, which he beſtoweth upon his Children at laſt. How great therefore ſhall their glory be, whenas the utmoſt Glory of God, the utmoſt praiſe of his glory, of his manifeſtative Glory, (for that is meant by the praiſe of his Glory; Glory is his eſſential Glory, the praiſe of it is the manifeſtation of his Glory,) when this muſt ariſe out of his glorified Creatures? We ſhall by this ſee how glorious a God he is, by ſeeing how glorious and happy he can make Creatures to be. In 2 Theſſ. 2.14. he ſaith there, that we are ordained unto the obtaining, εἰς περιποίησιν, of the glory of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. The words may be read (as in the Original they are, and Interpreters read them,) either to the obtaining Glory in Chriſt, or elſe to the obtaining the ſame Glory Jeſus Chriſt hath: and either of both argue this Glory to be infinitely glorious. 2 Theſſ. 1.10. When he ſhall come (ſaith he) to be glorified in his Saints, and to be admired in all them that believe. This ſame purchaſed poſſeſſion it is to the praiſe of his glory. Then will Jeſus Chriſt be manifeſted how glorious he is; but where and how? In them that believe; in ſhewing how glorious he can make them to be.

SER-

Sermon XVIII.

SERMON XVIII.

EPHES. I. 15, 16.

Wherefore I alſo, after I heard of your Faith in the Lord, Jeſus, and love unto all the Saints,
Ceaſe not to give thanks for you, making mention of you in my Prayers, &c.

General Coherence, and Parts of the Words.

IN the former Verſe, he had ſet forth the cauſes of Salvation, and the Original and Fundamental benefits of Election, Predeſtination, Redemption, Calling, &c. From the 3*d.* verſe to the 11*th.* And then from the 11*th.* to this 15*th.* verſe he had made Application of it, both to the Jews, of which Nation he was, In whom We have obtained an Inheritance; and then to the Gentiles, under the perſons of thoſe Epheſians, In whom Ye alſo truſted, and ſo obtained an Inheritance. After which at the 25*th.* verſe he beginneth to expreſs his own particular affection to them, upon Gods having endowed them with all thoſe bleſſings before, thereby provoking theſe Epheſians, unto whom he had applied theſe great benefits, unto two great Duties.

I. Unto Thanksgiving unto God, who had beſtowed ſuch great things on them.
II. To the further increaſing in Grace, through the knowledge of them both, which he provokes them to, by ſhewing what his own Prayers and Thankſgivings were to God for them.

Now he provokes them to theſe two Duties, moſt ſtrongly, and yet but ſecretly and impliedly. He doth not ſay in expreſs words, Wherefore do ye give thanks, and do ye pray? &c. but he doth more, he lays before them his own example, Wherefore (ſaith he,) I alſo do give thanks for you, and have not ceaſed to pray for you ſince I heard of your Faith and Love. And this muſt needs ſtrike all their hearts. Hath Paul that is but as a ſtander by, ſuch a ſenſe of the greatneſs of thoſe things God hath beſtowed upon us, that he giveth thanks for us, and out of his love to God and our Souls praieth that we may attain the knowledge of, and an increaſe in that knowledge of theſe things, how much more ſhould we our ſelves do it? If I, ſaith Paul, (for he frameth his expreſſion to ſuch a meaning,) κἀγὼ, Even I, ſaith he, (or I alſo, as it is here tranſlated,) do give thanks unto God for you making mention of you in my Prayers, then you your ſelves much more ſhould do it.

There are Three things in theſe 15. and 16. verſes.

1. What Paul did for them, which are two. 1. He gave thanks for them. 2. He had prayed for them, both amplified by this, without ceaſing.

There is Secondly, the occaſion of theſe; Having heard, ſaith he. 1. Of their Faith in Chriſt. 2. Of their love to all Saints.

Then Thirdly, there is the ſubject matter or cauſe of his thanks, noted out in this particle Wherefore, διὰ τοῦτο, or For this, I give thanks, which referreth to all thoſe benefits he had before enumerated, made theirs hereby.

Expoſition

Sermon XVIII.

Expoſition of the words.

Wherefore,] This holds out the cauſe of his thankſgiving, and Firſt, It referreth to what he ſaith in the next words, hearing of your Faith and Love. You ſhall find in that parallel Epiſtle to the Coloſ. Chap. 1. 3, 4. the ſame in the very ſame words; We give thanks to God, the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, praying always for you, ſince we heard of your Faith in Chriſt Jeſus, and of the love you have to all the Saints. This was the cauſe of his giving thanks, their Faith in Chriſt, and the Love which they had to all the Saints, as Graces which did evidence their intereſt in all thoſe benefits.

It referreth alſo Secondly, to all that went before. Paul had a comprehenſive eye to all the benefits mentioned in the former verſes, which God had beſtowed upon them, this Wherefore draweth all in. When I conſider (ſaith he,) how God hath Elected you, Predeſtinated you, Redeemed you by the blood of his Son, given you Faith, ſealed you up by his Spirit, which Spirit is the earneſt of your Inheritance, διὰ τοῦτο, for this cauſe, (ſaith he,) ſince I heard of your Faith and Love, and of your increaſe in theſe things, and ſo was confirmed thereby of the certainty of your intereſt in all theſe; I do give thanks for you, and I ceaſe not to do it. Paul's giving of thanks for thoſe he writes to, although uſual in other Epiſtles, yet is with this difference here from what elſewhere, namely, in reſpect of his ordering the bringing of it in. In other Epiſtles it comes in in the Preface or beginning, and ſtands alone and entire by it ſelf, but here he ranks it in the midſt of a diſcourſe, after a large, exact, doctrinal enumeration of the great benefits we have in Chriſt, and withal after an Application to the Epheſians, by ſhewing them their perſonal intereſt in thoſe benefits, and ſo it comes in in a way of Coherence to all the reſt fore-going, and upon occaſion of thoſe benefits. So as indeed Paul looking back (through this ſmall particle, διὰ τοῦτο, for this cauſe,) upon all the former beams of grace and benefits mentioned, and having taken a full and a ſummary proſpect of them, gives thanks in the conſideration of them for theſe Epheſians.

Yea, and Thirdly, This particle referreth to the very laſt words immediately before, to the praiſe of his glory, God (ſaith he,) had made this the end of all the benefits of our Salvation, that himſelf ſhould be glorified for them. Wherefore I give thanks to God for you, and give him the praiſe of his glory on your behalfe, God is not to looſe his end, it is therefore my duty. Wherefore I ceaſe not to give thanks for you, &c. Theſe Three particulars, to which the words refer, are the cauſe of his thanks.

ration of the greatneſs of the benefits of God towards us when we take a full proſpect of them, (ſuch as here the Apoſtle had given them,) and withal our intereſt therein with application to our ſelves, (which the Apoſtle here likewiſe made,) together with this, that the end of all theſe is the praiſe of his glory, when the Soul conſidereth all this, it is provoked to give thanks to God. Learn then by this the way of ſtirring up your hearts to thankfulneſs to God. Take a view of all his benefits to you in Chriſt, labour to ſee your intreſt in them, and then conſider that all this God hath ordained not for my Salvation only, but for the praiſe of his glory: All this if thoroughly apprehended by a freſh view of Faith, will at any time move a good heart to give thanks to God.

Wherefore I,] Let us a little take notice of the grace of Paul, to quicken our own hearts by the example of it, (he was the higheſt example of grace, but Chriſt that ever was upon Earth,) and conſider how inlarged his heart was in thankfulneſs to God for the ſalvation of the Souls of others, as well as in deſires to ſave them. 2 Theſ. 2. 13. We are bound (ſaith he,) to give thanks, to give glory to God always for you Brethren, beloved of the Lord, becauſe God hath from the beginning choſen you to ſalvation through ſanctification of the Spirit, and belief of the truth. It was not a matter of liberty, it was a matter of duty, (as Paul here ſpeaks of it,) we are bound. And he ſpeaks this, not as having ving been moved ſo much by his own intereſt in being the Inſtrument of converting them; but he ſpeaks of it as a Brother, a Member of that Body, and accordingly when he utters this thanksgiving, he calls them Brethren; We are bound to give thanks always to God for you Brethren. for you beloved of the Lord; and the ground of it which he mentions, is, that God hath loved them and choſen them. Here lieth much of the communion of Saints, this is one great and high part of it. This is the Angels grace, to rejoyce at the converſion of ſinners; and this will be one great exerciſe of Our grace in Heaven, that we ſhall be thankful to God for his having choſen and ſaving every Soul there. This will make up one great part of the happineſs of Heaven, that each Saint ſhall rejoyce in the ſalvation of all, and every one as in his own; which will be like the reflection of a multitude of Looking-glaſſes, ſo placed and diſpoſed as every one reflects the Image of it ſelf upon the other in a moment. To return to Paul. In 1 Theſ. 3. 8. He is ſo deeply affected this way, that he doth not know how to expreſs his thankfulneſs to God, What thanks, (ſaith he,) are we to render unto God again for you for all the joy wherewith we joy for your ſakes before our God? It was when he heard of their Faith, ver. 5, 6. My Brethren, this is the happineſs of a Chriſtian, and of a holy heart, when made exceeding ſpiritual; he hath all that concerneth God's glory to rejoyce in; the joy that we joy is for your ſakes, ſaith he, and yet not for their ſakes ſimply, but in the ſight of God, having an eye to him too. This did fill his heart ſo full of joy, that he ſaith, it kept him up in the midſt of all his diſtreſſes, ſo ver. 7. We are comforted over you in all our afflictions and diresſſes by your Faith. Oh, my Brethren, where is the ſpirit of Paul?

Wherefore I alſo,] Καὶ ἐγὼ, or as the Syriach expreſſeth it, Lo I. He holds it up, tanquam notandum, that he ſhould thus do it. I that am a looker on, yet ſaith he, through the grace of Chriſt, as it is my duty, I do give thanks to God for you, much more ought you your ſelves. You ſee (ſaith he,) how my heart is affected about you with the conſideration of theſe great things which God hath beſtowed upon you, therefore much more ſhould your Souls be thus affected unto God for your ſelves.

Obſerve. It ſhould be a mighty argument to move the heart of any one to work out his own ſalvation, when he ſhall ſee another take care for it. Thou that art an ungodly Son or Servant, perhaps thy Parents or thy Governours, (as thou mayſt perceive, and thy Conſcience telleth thee,) aym to bring thee to God, and to ſave thy Soul; do they do it, and wilt not thou do it much more? Should not this ſtrike thee? Saith the Apoſtle, Phil. 2. 13. Work out your own ſalvation. There is a motive with an Emphaſis, your own. We Apoſtles labour about it, you are ingaged much more to work out your Own ſalvation.

After I heard. This is the Third thing, the Occaſion the other was the cauſe. After I heard (ſaith he,) of your Faith in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Act. 21. we read that Paul had been the means of their converſion, and therefore muſt needs have been an eye-witneſs of their faith and love at that their firſt converſion; why then (may ſome ſay,) doth he here only mention (as matter of his thanksgiving,) what he had by hear-ſay of them? It holds forth two things to us. 1. A further eminent grace and gracious practice of this Apoſtle towards the Saints, eſpecially thoſe to whom he was a means of converſion, namely, that when he had converted any, (his calling of Apoſtleſhip enforcing him to leave them,) ſtill his heart was longing, yerning after them, ſolicitous and inquiſitive about them to hear of their continuance in that Faith, and growing up in Grace. You ſhall ſee this too in 1 Theſ. 3. 5. For this cauſe when I could no longer forbear, (mark his affection,) he could not hold, he could have no reſt in his ſpirit; I ſent to know your Faith, and then verſe 6. when Timotheus came from you unto us, and brought us good tiding of your Faith, &c. it was even as Goſpel unto me, and we are comforted in all our afflictions by your Faith, ſo verſe 7. And what thanks, ſaith he, can we render to God again for you? ſo at the 9*th.* verſe. You ſhall find the like my Brethren in all his Epiſtles. News of the Saints thriving in grace, it kept Paul alive. Now do I Live, ſaith he, if ye ſtand faſt in the Lord; ſo it is verſe 8. of that Chapter to the Theſſalonians. It comforteth me in all my diſtreſſes ſtreſſes, though I have I know not how many perſonal diſtreſſes, yet I draw that comfort out of the news of your faith, which upholds my heart, and doth counterballance my afflictions. Sermon XVIII.

2. It holds forth, That not only the work of Converſion in others, but withal their growing up in faith and love, and walking ſuitably, is a great cauſe and matter of Thankſgiving to God; for that this is both an evidence of the truth of converſion at firſt, without which it proves it ſelf to be unſound, as alſo that whereby God is as much glorified.

[Of your faith in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and love unto all the Saints.]

1. In general. You ſhall find the ſame words to the ſame purpoſe uſed both in *Coloſ.*1.4,5. We give thanks, ſince we heard of your faith in our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and love unto all Saints: And in his Epiſtle to Philemon, a particular perſon, Hearing of thy love and faith, which thou haſt towards our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and to all Saints. He coupleth Faith and Love you ſee together, both as the two eminent Graces, and as the two great Evangelical Commandements, ſumming up all in theſe two. Thus in 1 Joh. 3.23. This is his commandement, that we ſhould believe on the name of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and love one another, as he gave us commandement. Thus likewiſe the whole work of Converſion: The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt was exceeding abundant in Faith and Love, ſaith the Apoſtle of his own converſion, reducing all to theſe two, 1 *Tim.*1.14.

Particularly,

Faith] That goeth firſt, (you ſee;) for Faith works by love, and it is love out of faith, 1 *Tim.*1.5. Faith brings home the love of God to the heart, or elſe fixes the heart in a dependance upon it, and purſuit after it: and then theſe do cauſe love to all the Saints. Be ſure thou find Faith in Chriſt coupled with love to the Saints, yea and to be the riſe of it.

Faith in our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.] It is Chriſt that is the object of Faith. Faith indeed takes in, and looks at all things elſe in the world; but Faith, as juſtifying, preyeth and ſeizeth upon Chriſt, as its proper object. This is therefore the uſual ſtyle of the Scripture, ſpeaking of, or deſcribing Faith; Faith that is On me, ſaith Chriſt, *Act.*26. for Chriſt is the more immediate object of faith; we believe in God through Chriſt, that through him our faith might be in God, 1 *Pet.*1.20,21. And it is not only upon the perſon of Chriſt, ſimply conſidered, but it is upon Chriſt, as [Jeſus;] ſo here, Faith in our Lord Jeſus. It is Faith on Chriſt as a Saviour, for as ſuch only he is fitted to a Sinner's Faith. Take Chriſt in his perſonal excellencies, he is rather the object of Love than of Faith; but take him as a Saviour, and as made juſtification to the ungodly, ſo juſtifying faith looks upon him. But of this elſewhere.

Yet further, By [Faith,] as he meaneth the work of faith, ſo he meaneth conſtancy in faith, perſevering in faith; he doth not ſpeak ſimply of their believing at firſt, for then he would have ſpoken of it, as out of his own experience himſelf had ſeen that: It was of the continuation of their faith, whereof he had heard. And thus the Apoſtle of the Theſſalonians alſo, he calleth their continuing in faith, their faith, 1 *Theſſ.*3. 6. Timothy, ſays he, brought tidings of your faith. He had ſaid in the firſt Chapter, they had believed, (and himſelf was their Converter, as of theſe here,) but yet afterwards he ſent, and had heard by Timothy of their faith, that is, of their continuance and their conſtancy therein.

Your Faith.] Here is one phraſe more to be taken notice of. That which our Tranſlators have rendred your Faith, in the Original is πίστις ὑμῶν, Faith which is amongſt you. And it denotes the eminency and renown of their Faith. Faith in Chriſt being held out amongſt them, as the great and main buſineſs and matter of ſalvation; and not the Doctrine of it only profeſt, but in the work of it; and this generally and ordinarily by them that were Believers, ſo that it was notorious. Paſſim apud vos, (as we in Latin ſpeak) frequent or currant amongſt you: ſo eminently in the generality of Believers, that their faith was renowned tanquam fides Epheſina, as the Epheſian Faith. As in like phraſe of ſpeech, when we would ſpeak of the Learning in an Univerſity or Society, as generally eminent, we ſay, The Learning that is amongſt you; as Paul of the Romans Faith, Your faith, which is ſpoken of in all the world, Rom.1.8.

Sermon XVIII.

Musculus carrieth it to this sense, That because Paul did not think them all godly, that therefore he doth use a more wary expression; not saying, the faith that is in you, but the faith that is among you. Others, That the Apostle intended only an outward profession of faith, common to carnal Christians; because many wicked men may be (as it is certain de facto they are, though de jure they should not) in the Church, yet so as still it may be said, apud Ecclesiam est fides, it is amongst them. But besides the former Interpretation given, and that if he should mean outward profession of faith, by Faith here, such a profession is like to have been in all and every one. Besides, I Answer, 1. If you consult his style in other Epistles, he speaks of all and every one of other Churches as having true Grace, as of the Philippians, Even as it is meet for me (saith he) to think of every one of you, Chap. 1.7. And it is not meerly an outward profession of Faith he speaks of there, but a perswasion of a good work of faith, which God would fulfil to the day of Christ. So at ver. 6. Being confident of this very thing, that he which hath begun a good work will perfect it; (and then follows) even as it is meet for me to think of you all. In 2 Thess. 1.3. there is yet a more distinct phrase to this purpose, We are bound (saith he) to thank God always for you, Brethren, as it is meet, because that your grace groweth exceedingly, and the charity (ἑνὸς ἑκάστου πάντων ὑμῶν) Of every one of you all aboundeth. 2. If Musculus his Criticism should have place here, yet there may be this account given of the variation of his style to the Church of the Ephesians, That in a special manner Paul had it revealed to him by the Spirit of Prophecy, of this Church of Ephesus, that many, or some of them at least, should prove unsound in the faith, and so useth here a more wary and indefinite phrase. For look into Act. 20.29. in a Speech he made to the Elders of Ephesus, he saith plainly, I know this, that after my departure, there shall enter in among you grievous Wolves, not sparing the flock: also of your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away Disciples after them. And 3. If any would make use of this his Interpretation, that therefore the rule for receiving men into Churches, is not put upon a judgment of their Holiness, but outward profession only. Then let us see such a profession of faith in any, such as is mentioned here, that hath love to all the Saints joyned with it, and I affirm they ought to be received. But when men are enemies to the Saints, and do make them the men of their hatred, then let them profess what they will, there is not that Faith which the Apostles gave signs of, for to judge of others by. When men do discover a Spirit contradictory to the power of Religion, of such, or in the like cases, I may say as John, 1 Joh. 3.17. How dwells the love of God in him? Truly, says John, I know not. It is to me, says he, a contradiction which I know not how to believe; nor would all the charity in John (the beloved Disciple) his heart, have relieved him. Neither was the testimony the Apostle gives here of these Ephesians, and in the fore-cited places, of those he writ to, a judgment of meer charity, (such as useth to be pleaded for) founded upon an outward profession, and a knowing nothing to the contrary. For as Calvin well observes upon this place, In that he gives thanks thus solemnly afore God for their Faith, it was not a bare testimony of charity, but of judgment. Paul gives thanks here for what was positive, namely, their Faith in Christ, and love to all the Saints. Such was the judgment the Apostles gave of men, and so grounded.

Hæc gratiarum actio non modo testimonium Amoris erat erga Ephesios, sed etiam Judicii, quod de illis habebat Paulus. Nam ita coram Deo illis gratulabatur.

[And Love unto all the Saints.]

To Saints.] You see he mentioneth not love to God, and why? for if there be a love to all Saints, as Saints, (as if it be to all, it is to them as Saints) they must needs be supposed to love God also; as the Apostle saith, 1 Joh. 5.1. He that loveth him that begat, loveth him also that is begotten of him. As on the contrary, the same John had said in the Chapter afore, ver. 20. If a man say he loves God, and hateth his Brother, (that is, any Saint) he is a liar: for he that loveth not his Brother, whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen? That is, if men do not love them in whom they see the image of God, certainly they love not God himself, whom they see not; as on the contrary also, If they do love that image, certainly they love God. If mens eyes cannot endure the light of a Candle, I will never believe they would endure the light of the Sun.

Again,

Again, The Apoſtle mentions not love to every man, (though that be a duty) but love to Saints. It is a duty to love a man's Neighbour, as *Matt.*22. *Luk.*10. but that is not mentioned here as a ſign of their intereſt in Chriſt, there is an humanity in man's nature to love his kind; but it is (you ſee) loving the Saints, under that notion as Saints. Our Saviour is very accurate in diſtinguiſhing it thus, as you find it *Matt.*16.41. He that giveth (ſaith he) a cup of cold water to a Prophet, in the name of a Prophet, he ſhall receive a Prophet's reward: he that receiveth a righteous man in the Name of a righteous man, (that is, (as we in the Latin expreſs it) eo nomine, under that notion and abſtracted conſideration that he is a righteous man, and therefore loves him) he ſhall receive a Righteous man's reward. In another Evangeliſt it is yet more emphatical to this purpoſe, Mark 9.41. Whoſoever ſhall give you a cup of water to drink in my name, (becauſe You are Chriſt's) he ſhall not loſe his reward. Sermon XVIII.

My Brethren, Look upon Saintſhip as the greateſt excellency to love it. So Chriſt did, *Pſal.*16.1. His eye was upon the excellent ones in the earth, that is, upon the Saints, who were excellent to him; yea, alſo even when not Saints, becauſe God loved them, as *Iſai.*43.4. It is ſtrange to hear how men by their Speeches will undervalue a Saint, as ſuch, if without ſome other outward excellency. For whilſt they acknowledge a man a Saint, yet in other reſpects they will contemn him; he is an Holy man, they will ſay, but is weak &c. But is he a Saint? and can there be any ſuch other imperfection or weakneſs found as ſhall lay him low in thy thoughts, in compariſon of other Carnal men more excellent? Hath not Chriſt loved him, bought him, redeemed him? Obſerve.

To All Saints.] All thoſe they judged to be Saints. And this univerſal love unto all the Saints, to be a certain evidence of true faith, follows from what was mentioned even now. For if a man love a righteous man, or Saint, in the name, or under the notion of a righteous man, as Matthew, or becauſe he is Chriſts, as Mark, then he will love all Saints and righteous men, and all that are Chriſt's; for à quatenus ad omne valet conſequentia, he will love the totum genus, the whole kind and Tribe of them, in whom ever he ſees the image of God, and upon whomſoever the love of God is pitcht. Here then lieth the trial of Grace indeed, to love all kind of Saints. There are Saints that are froward, and peeviſh Saints, and proud Saints, &c. that is, they expreſs a great many of theſe corruptions in their converſes with men; yet as we muſt love theſe, ſo it is a great ſign of Grace notwithſtanding to love them, meerly becauſe they are Saints, and that they are Chriſts. A Brother loveth his crooked Brother, and a lame Brother, and a little Brother, as well as thoſe Brethren that have none of theſe defects; and they do it, becauſe they are Brethren, and for the Parents ſake who love them. Rich Saints and poor Saints, gifted Saints and weak Saints, theſe all together muſt be loved. Or as the Holy Ghoſt's expreſſion is, *Rev.*19.5. The Servants of God ſmall and great. Some are great Saints, ſome are ſmall Saints; there is little Holineſs appears in them, and yet love them all, for God and Chriſt doth. It is an excellent argument which the Apoſtle hath, urging of Chriſt's Example to this purpoſe, in *Rom.*15.1. We that are ſtrong, ſaith he, ought to bear the Infirmities of the weak, and not to pleaſe our ſelves: For (v.3.) even Chriſt pleaſed not himſelf, as it is written, &c. There are Saints that have Infirmities, and great Infirmities. He had inſtanced in the Chapter afore in differences of Opinion and Judgment, and diſcourſed thereof throughout that Chapter, and upon occaſion thereof it was he makes this Exhortation. One believes, ſaith he, that he may eat all things, that is, believeth it fully; Others (ſpeaking of the Jewiſh Ceremonies that continued to ſome men's Conſciences) they eat not fleſh, but they eat herbs rather. Theſe were Opinions oppoſite, and which produced contrary practices; each of theſe muſt bear the Infirmities of either, they are Saints. Yea further, ſome of them were cenſorious, and judging all others raſhly, that were not of their minds, as theſe words import, *v.*3. Let not him that eateth not, judge him that eateth. And again, Others were apt to deſpiſe their Brethren, as the following Exhortation implies, Let not him that eateth not deſpiſe him that eateth. The word there uſed is ſo to deſpiſe, as to ſet at nought, diſdain, villifie, as Herod and his Souldiers did Chriſt, *Luk.*23.11. ('tis the ſame word.) Theſe were high and great Infirmities; not in reſpect of difference in Opinion only, but diſtempers in Affection alſo. μὴ ἐξουθενείτω

Sermon XVIII.

In this 15*th Chap. ver.* 1. the Apoſtle laies this command upon each, to [Bear] the Infirmities of either. The word βαστάζειν is uſed of Porters carrying burthens. We muſt be as Porters for our Brethren; (the worſt and irkſomeſt of Services;) and bear their greateſt burthens, that may conſiſt with their being Brethren. And thus *Gal.*6.2. you have the word uſed, and to this ſenſe there again explained; Bear ye one anothers burthens: For what he calls Infirmities, *Rom.*15.1. he calls Burthens here; and in both commands our bearing them, becauſe they are Brethren, as *ver.*1. And as for the meaſure and proportion of bearing, the word refers us even to what Porters do, (who of all Mankind are enured to the greateſt ſtrainings and ſtretchings of their Limbs.) And for the obligation and Motive thereunto, the Metaphor inſinuates that alſo. Kindneſs and common humanity in men, who are of a knot, and travel in Company, doth afford to any of their Companions mutual aſſiſtance: If there be any among them, who through his having an infirmiry, or a burthen too heavy for him, which himſelf cannot carry alone, and ſo comes lagg (as we ſay,) or faints in the way: Then the reſt of his Fellows, that are ſtronger, will do what they can to eaſe him in it, and bear it with him, or take it off from him. And then, in that 15 Rom. (for we walk to and fro, from one of theſe places to another,) it follows, And not to pleaſe our ſelves. If a man conſults with Self-love, a man will find this irkſom to Self; that uſeth to ſeek pleaſure in its Self and its own Opinions, and boaſts it ſelf in its own Underſtanding; and cannot bear contradiction from others, minds not others good, much leſs is pleaſed with bearing others Infirmities, or ſupporting them in them; but ſeeks to depreſs another for them. But to enforce this, and the reſt of theſe Exhortations, he propounds the diſpoſition and example of Chriſt too, *ver.*3. For even Chriſt pleaſed not himſelf. Never was any one burthened, and ſo oppreſſed with the burthens of others he converſeth withal, as Chriſt was with thoſe he walkt with. His humane Nature coming into the World, was to take and cleave to ſuch company as God had choſen for him; and take them all from firſt to laſt, and how unſuitable and unpleaſing Conſorts they were, and muſt needs be unto him! Firſt, his Parents, of mean birth and breeding, of low underſtandings. He could have taught them, (for at Twelve years he poſed the Doctors,) yet he was obedient to them. The next which we read of that he converſed with, were his Diſciples; all of them Men of contrary Spirits to his: Of two of them he ſays, You know not what ſpirit you are of. Fire muſt come down from Heaven preſently, to ſatisfie their zeal upon thoſe that were oppoſite to them, and their Maſter Chriſt; which was as contrary to his Spirit, as any one thing can be to another: he was perfectly of another Spirit, he was meek, they were fiery; yet he loveth them, ſtill holds in with them. Yea, one of theſe fiery Sons of Thunder and Lightning was peculiarly his beloved Diſciple, and lay in his boſom. Then alſo Peter, how bold and ſawcy was he with him, and ſo great a provocation to him, that he once with full mouth cried out againſt him, Get thee behind me Satan: yet he loves him, dies for him. In a word, He bitterly complains of all his Diſciples at once, *Matt.*17.17. Te faithleſs and perverſe generation, how long ſhall I be with you; how long ſhall I ſuffer you? He had born ſo much, and ſo long, as he now at length ſpeaks as one overpreſſed, as a Cart with Sheaves, groaning under it as weary. Nor was there, or ever could there be ſuppoſed any man ſo put to it this way, as He: Wiſdom to converſe with Folly, perfect Holineſs with Sin and Impurity, Truth with Errors and Miſtakes. In converſes of near Relations, Contrarieties, and Antipathies of diſpoſitions, how burthenſom are they? He could have much better, and more ſuitable Company in Heaven; yet Chriſt with an unwearied patience bore all this, and loved them not a whit the leſs in the main; but died for them after all, and in dying bore their Sins, and all ours alſo, 1 *Pet.*2. ult. with an infinite far deeper and higher kind of Suffering for them, (when God laid on him the Iniquities of us all,) then this of ours from our Brethren, he here ſpeaks of, which was his righteous Soul, its being vexed with ſeeing and hearing what was contrary to the perfect tranſcendent Holineſs thereof. And now he is in Heaven, thoſe his Saints that are on Earth, are of croſs Natures one to another, bad natur'd Creatures to God and Man: yet he holdeth in with all ſorts of Saints, uſeth them kindly, and maintaineth ſuch a fellowſhip fellowſhip with them all, as they all ſpeak well of him. Now follow, ſaith the Apoſtle, this Example of your Lord and Maſter. And according to this his Exhortation, in the 5*th* verſe, he frameth his Prayer for them; The God of Patience and Conſolation, grant you to be like-minded one towards another, according to Chriſt Jeſus. He mentions ſuch Attributes in God, as were ſuitable to the thing prayed for; To be like-minded, (when differing thus in Judgment,) and needed patience; therefore he prays to God, as the God of Patience, to give and beſtow on you the Grace of Patience towards your Diſſenting Brethren, who himſelf is a God of Patience towards you, in bearing with you that differ from him in infinitely more things, than you from your Brethren. And alſo to be a God of Conſolation to you, and that will help you to bear the Infirmities of the Saints, and to love and cheriſh them; for if once the heart be filled with the Comforts of the Almighty, If there be any comfort in Love, as the Apoſtle ſpeaks, *Phil.*2.1. they will be like-minded, and then they will bear with their Brethren. He adds, According to Jeſus Chriſt; that is, the Example of Jeſus Chriſt, of which you heard out of Rom. 15. and alſo according to the Law of Jeſus Chriſt; for upon that ground, (if now you return again to *Gal.*6.2. and to what immediately follows there, Bear one anothers burthens, ſays he, and ſo fulfil the Law of Chriſt. And thus to love, and love All the Saints, is commended to us by Chriſt, by that great and ſpecial Law of his, which you find enacted by him, *Joh.*13.34. A new Commandement I give unto you, that ye love one another: as I have loved you, that ye alſo love one another;) you will find he urgeth it under the Old Law; they were to love every one, becauſe they had one and the ſame God their Creator. Moſes commanded to love every one as their Neighbour, whether they were Samaritans or Jews; but Chriſt hath brought up a new Law, and new Motives thereto, and a new way of loving, by his Example; A new Commandement I write to you, ſays John, 1 Epiſt. 2. 8. which is true, (and ſo holds good in him, who began to ſet us the Copy of it,) and in you, the Followers of him. And when he was on Earth, all his delight was in the Saints, *Pſal.*16.3. A new Motive we have alſo for it, namely our participation and communion together in Chriſt's blood. Men were before united in one God, their Creator, and in being made of one blood, Acts 17. and upon that ought to have loved one another as Men, or if of the ſame Nation: But the Saints are all made of Chriſt's Blood, and in that reſpect are a Royal generation, a Choſen Nation, having of his Blood all of them running in their Veins. And accordingly he hath chalked out a new way of loving alſo; he gave his Life for us, yea, Himſelf, and all his Glory; and ſo it follows in that John 15.12. Love one another, as I have loved you: And greater love than this hath no man, than to lay down his life for his friend, ver.13. and ſo ſhould we do, as 1 *Joh.*2.16. for the Spiritual good of our Brethren. And as Chriſt ſingled out the Saints thus to love them, and that with a ſpecial love, and all and every of the Saints, ſo ſhould we.

The laſt thing I obſerve, (which gives light to the Text, and Inſtruction to us,) is from the ſtyle the Apoſtle uſeth; Love to [All] Saints. That this was the Primitive language; and this then made the great outward ſign of a man's being in Chriſt in thoſe times, as may appear both by this Apoſtle's ſo frequent mention of it in his Epiſtles, as *Coloſſ.*1.4. *Philem.*4. ſo alſo in that our Saviour Chriſt himſelf made it his badge, in that fore-named *Joh.*13.35. By this ſhall all men know that you are my Diſciples, if you love one another. The Diſciples were known by ſome peculiar badge; as John Baptiſt's Diſciples, by auſterity of life; and thoſe that were the Diſciples of the Phariſees, by their habit and Traditions; and thereupon ſaith Chriſt to his Diſciples, I will give you a badge whereby ye ſhall be known, and that by all men; it ſhall not be Miracles, I will give you a greater ſign; what is that? Love one another. Let that Love be amongſt you Saints, that is not amongſt any Generation in the world elſe; and ſo ſhall not I only know you that you are mine, and own you, nor you your ſelves only know that you are mine, but All men ſhall know. The Love of thoſe firſt Times to Saints was ſuch, according to this Prophecy of Chriſt's, that the very Heathen taking notice of their mutual love, did diſtinguiſh and decipher them them out by it. Tertullian, in his Apology for the Chriſtians, writes, The Love (ſays he) amongſt us is ſuch, ſo great, that it is ſet as a mark and brand upon us; ſee, (ſay they, ſpeaking of the Heathens, their uſual ſaying of us Chriſtians;) how they love one another. Whereas they, the Heathens, hate one another, (ſaith he:) And ſee (ſay they) how they are ready to die one for another; whereas you Heathens (ſays Tertullian) are ready to kill one another.

Application.

My Brethren, How far are theſe Times off from this Temper; wherein a little difference in Judgment, what a great deal of judging one another, and deſpiſing one another doth it breed in the hearts of men profeſſing Chriſtianity! in the hearts of Saints! As the Apoſtles words are there, in that Rom. 14. (And the diſcourſe in that Chapter, and his exhortation to forbearance, is not only in point of things meerly indifferent, but in matters of exceeding great moment and conſequence, namely about the Jewiſh Ceremonies, and Ceremonial worſhip. One would have them in the Church, as once inſtituted of God; and another, not; One eſteemed one day above another. Theſe were not matters of indifferency; yet (ſaith he) Receive one another for all this, own one another for all this; for God (ſaith he) hath received him into his own Family: (that is one Motive he uſeth there in ver. 4.) He is God's Servant; the word is not δοῦλος, a Servant any way, at large ſpoken, but οἰκέτης, he is a houſhold Servant. Jew and Gentile, both differing in Opinion and Practice, were both of the ſame Family to God, whereof Chriſt is named; therefore do not you dare to caſt him out from you. Yea, at the third verſe of Chap. 14. the Apoſtle upon this ground, would not have them ſo much as judge them for ſuch kind of Opinions, as might ſtand with their continuing the true Servants of Chriſt, and the power of Holineſs in them. Judge not him that eateth, (ſpeaking to the Ceremonious Jew,) for God hath received him; that is, into his favour and grace, notwithſtanding that opinion and practice of his: ſo as though he ſhould die in that error, (which thou thinkeſt ſuch,) through want of conviction, and never repent of it; yet God would ſave him. God accepts of him, and ſhall the Subject take on him to reject and condemn him, when his King doth not? Yea, ver. 4. Who art thou that judgeſt another man's Servant? To judge thy fellow Servants in matters of this nature, is an invaſion of, and intruſion upon God's proper right, according to the law of Nations; which therefore no power, Civil or Eccleſiaſtical, is to meddle in. He is notwithſtanding this, as faithful a Servant to God as thou art; And who art thou? and, Who are ye? Be you the Major part, and have the power in your hands; yet matters of difference from you of this alloy, are not in your cognizance. And, who are you, to aſſume this? Give to God the things that are God's, and to the Magiſtrate, and to Churches, what are theirs. But we would keep them (will men ſay) from falling into errour. Let God look too and take care of that, ſaith he, He ſtands or falls to his own Maſter, who in a Judicatory way is only to deal with him, without thy judging of him. Yea, but he is in an Errour, which will prejudice and endanger him; but yet, not his Salvation, ſays the Apoſtle. All ſins for which a man ſhall be judged in the Church are of that nature, as unleſs repented of a man ſhall not be ſaved, as is ſtrongly inſinuated 1 Cor. 5. 5. For though you that are contrary minded, are apt in the ſeverity of ſelf, to condemn what is oppoſite to you, as that which will endanger, or not ſtand with Grace, yet he ſhall be holden up: and he ſpeaks it with a peremptorineſs, Yea, he ſhall be holden up, for God is able to make him ſtand: So as an errour of invincible ignorance ſhall not endanger him, he embracing all the Principles and Practices that are neceſſary to Salvation. What? is there nothing but preſently caſting out for this? No, ſaith he, Receive one another notwithſtanding. Let not him, ſaith he, that eateth, or is ſtrong, deſpiſe another that eateth not, or ſet him at naught, and ſay he is weak and ſilly, and I know not what: and let not the other that eateth not, judge him that eateth. In theſe two lieth the rule of Peace between them. Now, it is not likely that theſe men ſhould preſently be brought to one and the ſame mind or judgment; but let this Rule be preſſed in the mean time, not to judge one another for ſuch things.

things. There will be one believing one thing, and another believing another thing; and it will be ſo to the end of the World. In that Rom. 15. there is this expreſſion, in verſe 7. Let us receive one another, ſaith he, as Chriſt hath received us, to the glory of God. When the difference is but in ſuch things as theſe; In God's name, ſaith he, if one Heaven muſt hold us all, let Churches hold us all. At leſt, let none dare to hinder the Children from that bread, the Children's Bread, which Chriſt left as his laſt Legacy for all, whom he hath received at preſent. Yea, ſays he, unto glory: let the ſame Land hold us All. Chriſt, ſaith he, hath received us to glory; even now whilſt the Saints are as yet on Earth, with their infirmities and differences, both from himſelf and one another. If he think men meet for glory, and that they ſhall live together in Heaven; then, if the difference will never exclude them from Heaven, they may not be excluded from the food of Heaven; how far off is this from what the Apoſtle ſaith here, Love to all the Saints? Sermon XVIII.

Verſe 16. Ceaſe not to give thanks for you, making mention of you in my Prayers.

In this Verſe are, 1. The two Duties he performed for them: 2. The Conſtancy of his performance of them.

Firſt, The Duties: He prays for them, and gives thanks for them.

Secondly, The Conſtancy expreſt twice by theſe two words, [Alwaies,] and [I ceaſe not.]

General ſcope.

Since I heard.] Muſculus obſerves, that Paul had himſelf been the Inſtrument of their Converſion, as Acts 19. And he uſed to pray for thoſe Churches which he had converted, as you may ſee in his Epiſtles; as to the Philippians alſo, Chap. 1. and that ſo his meaning ſhould be, ſays he, my Prayers have ever been for you. But, Secondly, Since I heard of your perſeverance in Faith and Love, and increaſe in both. I have been abundantly more enlarged, and have added new Petitions to my Prayers, which follow after, as thoſe which befitted the eſtate of Grown and Sealed Chriſtians. And, Thirdly, I have given thanks accordingly, and have been enlarged in that Duty alſo.

Firſt Duty, Prayer.

[In my Prayers.]

'Tis private Perſonal Prayer he means. My Prayer; ſo in Philemon: In every Prayer of mine; not thoſe Prayers which he made in publick, as the Mouth of thoſe Congregations. To diſtinguiſh it from which, he ſays, My Prayers; that is, which he made alone by himſelf, as alſo in Phil. 1.

Making mention of you.] The word here ſignifieth either Remembrance, or it ſignifieth Mention. When it is taken for Remembrance, then it is joyned with the word [to have] remembrance, ἔχω μνείαν, as you have it 2 Tim. 1. 3. but here that which is joyned with it is, making, ποιούμενος, (and not having:) For to ſay, to make remembrance of one, is not proper; therefore they tranſlate it rightly, Making mention. Only this you muſt know, This ſame word here uſed ſignifieth Remembrance, and ſignifieth Mention, and are both applied to Prayer for others; the one in 2 Tim. 1. 3. the other here.

Obſervation I.

Obſerve out of it in General; The remembrance of another in Prayer, is as the Inward part, which is a ſpecial work of the Holy Ghoſt, bringing to mind a man, or perſons, for whom he would have one to pray: And [mention] is the Outward part, a praying for them by name; as whom the Holy Ghoſt doth ſet upon a man's heart, (as Paul telleth the Philippians, how he prayed for them, and gave thanks for them, as he doth here, adds, And I have you in my heart, ſays Obſerv. 1.

Sermon XVIII.

ſays he, *Chap.*1.7.) thoſe, I ſay, whom God hath ſpecially ſet upon a man's heart, and whom the Holy Ghoſt in Prayer bringeth to his remembrance, a man ſhould in a ſpecial manner make mention of. This from the ſignification of the word, both remembrance and mention. And withal know, to encourage you in the Practice hereof, That the particular, expreſs mention, (eſpecially in private Prayers,) of perſons that are in our heart, and of whom the Holy Ghoſt bringeth the remembrance to us in Prayer, is that which is exceeding acceptable to God, as being conformable to the mind of the Holy Ghoſt, who guides us in praying. The Apoſtle doth not only pray thus for, and make mention of Churches by name; but you ſhall find, he makes mention of particular perſons in his Prayers by name, as of Philemon, *v.*3.4. I thank my God, ſaith he, making mention of thee alwaies in my prayers, hearing of thy love and faith. The like he did of Timothy, 2 *Tim.*1.3.

Obſervation II.

Secondly, Obſerve the largneſs of Paul's heart in his private Prayers, as he had the care of all the Churches. Read all his Epiſtles, and you ſhall ſee almoſt every Church that he writeth unto, he telleth them he prayed for them. And he telleth ſome ſpecial, particular perſons ſo too, whom he had in his heart: And not only he, but other Miniſters did the ſame. Thus he tells the Theſſalonians, that Timotheus and Sylvanus likewiſe, made mention of them in their prayers, 1 Theſſ.1. Paul, my Brethren, was neareſt to Chriſt of any Saint that ever was, and near unto Chriſt in this; for Jeſus Chriſt in Heaven hath the names of all Saints in his breaſt, (as the High-Prieſt had,) and makes interceſſion for them. Paul maketh Interceſſion for all the Churches, and for many particular perſons; he was abundant this way; and what a large time did he then ſpend in private Prayer? Oh, think of the largeneſs of Chriſt's heart for us in his Interceſſions; as he knows his ſheep by name, ſo every one that comes to God by him, he ceaſeth not alwaies to intercede for them, even every one of them in particular; as it follows there, He ever lives to make Interceſſion.

Since I heard of your Faith and Love, I have not ceaſed, &c.] From this Coherence, Obſerve, The remembrance of eminent Faith and Love in Chriſtians, or in Churches, ſhould provoke us to give thanks to God for them, and to pray much for them: And withal, it is a great encouragement to every Saint to be very holy. For then God will ſtir up the hearts of many, to pray for them that are ſo, and the Holy Ghoſt will bring them to remembrance. Paul makes an Argument for himſelf, *Heb.*13.18. Pray for us, why? for we truſt we have a good Conſcience in all things, willing to live honeſtly. Seeing in all things we have a good Conſcience for the time paſt', but willing for the time to come to preſerve it, you ſhall not loſe your Prayers in your praying for me. And in his Epiſtle to Timothy, he telleth him, that this moved him to pray for him without ceaſing; remembring, ſaith he, thy tears, and thy faith, 2 Tim. 1.3,4. Thoſe that have much, ſhall have much added to them, and that by the Prayers of others for them. And to that end God will ſtir up many to pray for them. This, among other, is a great motive and encouragement to Holineſs. Thou deſireſt many Prayers for thee, this is the way to procure them.

Second Duty.

[Giving of Thanks.]

By Prayer, we ſhew our dependance upon God for what we want: In Thanks, we return an acknowledgment to God, of what we have already received. Thanks, is for Mercies beſtowed, and paſt: And Prayer is a ſeeking of God for Mercies to come.

Now

Now, firſt mark the Coherence: The words he had immediately before uttered, were, that God had done thus and thus for them, to the praiſe of his glory. And ſo it is, as if he had ſaid, The end of all the benefits God beſtoweth to the praiſe of his glory. And I having this praiſe of his glory in mine eye and heart, as deareſt to me. And having heard of your Faith and Love, ceaſe not to give thanks for you. My Brethren, the higheſt way that we in this life are able to give glory to God, is, by Thankfulneſs, Pſal. 50. 14, 15. compared with ver. 23. Offer unto God Thankſgiving, and pay thy Vows to the moſt high: and call upon me in the day of trouble, and I will deliver, and thou ſhalt glorifie me. And this glorifying is offering Thanks: ſo *ver.*23. Who ſo offereth praiſe, doth glorifie me. So that now you are obliged unto this duty, upon the higheſt obligation, becauſe of all duties elſe it doth tend ſo much to the glory of God. Sermon XVIII.

I have diſpatched the two Duties.

The Second thing in the words is, his conſtancy in praying.

[I ceaſe not.]

The meaning is this; In every Prayer, as oft as I have prayed ſolemnly, (which I have not ceaſed to do.) I have not ceaſed to give thanks to God for you; ſo Philip. 1.14. Alwaies, in every Prayer. If we ſeek a great Bleſſing at God's hand, we ceaſe not praying for it till we have an Anſwer: The Parable ſo teacheth us, *Luk.*18.1. And then

The Obſervation is, That (which we are wanting in the performance of,) Great Mercies, either upon our ſelves or others, which we are bound to thank God for, we ſhould do it without ceaſing a long while after. When you are to ſeek to God for a great Mercy, then you ceaſe not to make mention of it in your Prayers; but the Apoſtle you ſee, He ceaſeth not to give Thanks: they are both alike to the Glory of God. And according to your Prayers, ſo are your Mercies; great and long Prayers, bring down in the end great and laſting Mercies. And on the other hand, if your Mercies be great and laſting, your Thankſgivings ſhould be great alſo. Obſerve.

Beſides the Reaſon I formerly mentioned, That Thankſgiving glorifieth God ſo much, and is to the praiſe of his Glory; take the meaſure of the Duties themſelves. Prayer and Thankſgiving, they are of an equal latitude, they are both Duties of the firſt Commandement. And as we ſay of God's Attributes, they are all of a like extent: ſo are thoſe Duties that are Duties of the firſt Commandement. It is a ſhame for us, that if we have been long, and much in Prayer for great Mercies, before we obtained them, that we ſhould make ſhort and ſmall work of our Thankſgivings for them: That when you have not ceaſt to be inſtant in Prayer to obtain them, you ſhould ceaſe to give Thanks for them, when you have received them. The Glory of God is concerned alike in both. If they be great Mercies, and ſuch as have influence into the whole courſe of a man's life, whereof he hath the daily benefit, he ſhould not ceaſe to remember them, and to give thanks for them daily. If they be occaſional Mercies, they ſhould work as occaſional Afflictions do. It is not to be ſaid, that every Affliction a man ſhould be continually thinking of, or making uſe of: No, but they are ſpecially to operate till another Affliction cometh. A man ſhould make uſe of the laſt: So it is in Mercies and Thankſgivings. God ſtroweth ſome benefits, ſome Mercies in our life, as a Rhetorician doth Flowers in his Orations, here and there, up and down: Now the laſt Mercy, till God hath put down that Mercy by ſome greater, we ſhould ſtill remember it. Only on Solemn days of Faſting, upon God's calling thereto by ſome eminent Affliction; we ſhould then take notice and a ſurvey of as many former Afflictions as we can call to mind, to humble our ſelves under God's diſpleaſure in multiplying of them. And thus of Mercies in daies of Thankſgivings.

Sermon XVIII.

Secondly, There are two words to ſhew this Conſtancy, I ceaſe not, applied to his giving Thanks; and [Alwaies,] ſpoken of his Prayings; and either denote a conſtant ſet ſolemnity of Praying and Thankſgiving: but eſpecially both joyned do import it. Which was Morning and Evening, as the worſhip of Old was, Night and Day, 2 Tim. 1. 3. And though Daniel prayed thrice, and others ſeven times; yet the general conſtant Cuſtom, principle and manner of the private worſhip of all the Jews, was, twice a day, being conformable to the publick Inſtitution of the Sacrifices and Incenſe twice a day, which was termed Continual Sacrifice; by which Pray continually may be interpreted, which was the Rule of Paul's practice, Act. 26. 7. Unto the which Promiſe our Twelve Tribes, inſtantly ſerving God day and night, hope to come. But of that I have ſpoken more upon Phil. 1. 4.

SER-

SERMON XIX.

EPHES. I. 17.

That the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give unto you the Spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of him.

I Come now to the 17*th* Verse, and that is the Prayer it self, which Paul here did put up for them, Since he heard, &c.

I will give you the division of the Words, and some short Analysis of them.

First, Here is the Person whom he prayeth to, that is, God, whom he doth set forth under the apprehension and notion for the strengthning of his Faith, for the obtaining of what he asks (as we are alwaies to do in Prayer) of the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the Father of glory.

Secondly, You have the things he prayeth for. Concerning which in the general, all the things he prayeth for are Spiritual knowledge, he mentioneth nothing else; That he would give you the Spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of him, (so saith the 17*th* Verse;) and that he would give you enlightned eyes, (as I shall shew you the words may be read, and I think are rather to be read,) that you may know what is the hope of his Calling, &c. (so saith the 18*th* Verse.) In general you see it is for Knowledge. More particularly here are four things he doth especially pray for.

1. For the Spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of God; which (as I shall open to you,) I take it is in Personal Communion with God.

2. That they might know what is the hope of his Calling; what grounds they had to hope for eternal life, that they might see more clearly into them every day than other.

3. That they might have great and enlarged apprehensions, working in their hearts, and telling of their Spirits of the Riches of Glory which God had laid up for them. That ye may know (saith he) what is the riches of the glory of his Inheritance, &c.

4. That they might know the power that was engaged, and had begun to work in them, that would subdue all their Lusts, that would never leave them till it had brought them to the same place where Christ was. Whereas they might look upon themselves as men, and sinful; and how shall we come to this Glory you speak of? He prayeth that they might know the exceeding greatness of that Power, which works in those that believe, even the same that wrought in Christ in raising him from the dead. And further to encourage them, he setteth forth Jesus Christ, not only in glory, raised up by the power of God, and that the same power is engaged to raise them up; but he setteth him forth as their Head, in whom therefore they have interest, who sate at the right hand of God in the Heavenly places, (so saith the 20*th* Verse,) and whose heart was engaged to them; For, (saith he, ver. 23.) you are the fulness of Christ, and Christ will not lose one of them. That they might know all these things, and live in the comfort of them; this is the sum and matter of the Apostle's Prayer. So much now for the short and brief Analysis of the words to the end of the Chapter.

Ser. XIX. But I come to the firſt thing which is in the 17*th* Verſe, he prayeth that they might have the Spirit of wiſdom and revelation in the knowledge of him. The Perſon he prayeth to I ſhall handle afterward, becauſe the underſtanding of it hath influence into what followeth, as well as this firſt Petition; why God is called the God of Chriſt, why the Father of Glory; why Paul ſetteth him up under both theſe conſiderations to ſtrenghthen his Faith, that theſe particulars ſhall be granted, I will ſhew this afterward; but I will now handle what is meant here, by giving them the Spirit of wiſdom and revelation in the knowledge of him. For the opening of this, and likewiſe of all the reſt, I will give you theſe general Premiſes.

Firſt, As I ſaid, the thing he prayeth for is Knowledge. He doth not mention Grace and Holineſs not in all this Prayer; yet it is moſt ſtrongly included in it, and it is the moſt neceſſary effect and concomitant of that knowledge he prayeth for here.

Secondly, That he doth not pray ſo much, that they might increaſe more and more in the knowledge of their intereſt in God and in Heaven, (though ſome think that that is the meaning of the hope of their calling;) but the main thing he prayeth for, is, That they might know the things themſelves; that they might know God, that they might know what riches of Glory is laid up for them in Heaven; have enlarged apprehenſions of the things themſelves to be known, and ſo that they might know the power that works in them that believe, &c.

Thirdly, That the things he prayeth for here, were for things that befitted the ſtate of growen Chriſtians. He doth not pray for them as for men to be converted: No; for it is a Prayer he framed for them ſince he heard of their Faith and Love, of whom he had ſaid, they were ſealed too with the Spirit of Promiſe; as in the former Verſes. Now, my Brethren, this the Apoſtle doth; he conſidereth with himſelf to what pitch Chriſtians that are to grow in grace ſhould be brought, and what is the greateſt means to cauſe them to grow in grace; and for the working and effectual knowledge of thoſe things, he prayeth here. He doth not pray, that they might know ſin, as in the firſt converſion, that they might repent and believe, &c. but he prayeth, that they might increaſe in the knowledge of him, in an experimental communion with God, and acknowledgment of him, (for ſo, as I take it, it is to be meant, as I ſhall ſhew you afterwards.) He takes the utmoſt things that his own light reacheth to, and he putteth them into his Prayer for theſe Epheſians: And read all the Prayers that he makes for others in ſeveral Epiſtles, as Coloſſ. 1.10. Phil. 1.9. and they all fall ſhort of the Prayer here. The Apoſtle, his mind is more filled with a higher and a further light; he expreſſeth more glorious things; his eye was upon the utmoſt pitch of Chriſtianity, which he would have theſe Epheſians aim at, and which he deſired God to beſtow upon them.

And yet, in the laſt place, let me tell you, That here is nothing that he doth pray for, but that Common Chriſtians, vulgus Chriſtianorum, the Epheſian Women and Men, all the Saints there were capable of. This I put in, becauſe of the word Revelation, which might ſeem to carry things to ſomewhat extraordinary, proper unto Apoſtles. What is the meaning of it I ſhall ſhew afterward.

Now, my Brethren, take an Obſervation or two before I come to the Particulars.

Obſerv. 1. The Firſt is this; That Spiritual knowledge is the great, the main thing in the working of Grace, or in the increaſing of Grace. He mentioneth not a word of Holineſs, but you ſee all he prayeth for is for knowledge; but it is ſuch a knowledge as no carnal heart in the world hath. He certainly prays for the higheſt thing, and the beſt thing he could pray for, that his light ſuggeſted to him. He prayed for holineſs elſewhere with knowledge; but here you ſee for knowledge alone, becauſe knowledge in the Scripture ſenſe includeth the Affections, includeth the whole Heart to be carried after it; true knowledge doth; to know things as a man ought to know them, as the Apoſtle diſtinguiſheth it in 1 Cor. 8.3. to know the truth, as the truth in Jeſus, as the truth is in the things themſelves.

themſelves. The more knowledge and light a man hath in his underſtanding, the more his whole life is carried after ſuch a knowledge. He need pray for nothing elſe, if he have ſuch a knowledge, for all elſe will fall in with it. Ser. XIX.

Look in all the Prayers he makes for the Churches, for the Philippians, Chap. 1. ver. 9, 10. he prayeth, that their Love may abound, but how? In all knowledge and ſenſe, an experimental knowledge, that ſees and taſtes the things that a man knows, That you may approve the things that are excellent, ſo ſaith ver. 10. So for the Coloſſians, Chap. 1. he prayeth, that they might walk worthy to all well pleaſing, ſo at the 10*th* Verſe; but at the 9*th* Verſe firſt he prayeth, they may be filled with all Spiritual wiſdom and underſtanding. So that ſtill, I ſay, obſerve, that all his Prayers in theſe Epiſtles, it is for Knowledge in the firſt place, that is the main Spring of all the reſt.

My Brethren, There is indeed a Notional knowledge, or, as I may call it, a Fantaſmatical knowledge of Spiritual things, that is, whereby a man knows them; but it is by ſuch a kind of light as is in any knowledge and Science whatſoever, whereby he knoweth the Rationality of things, but by Images as the Fancy delivereth up to the Underſtanding to work upon, by hear-ſay. But then there is a Real knowledge, that bringeth down the things into a man's heart. Saith Paul, 2 Cor. 3. ult. With open-face we behold the glory of the Lord, as in a glaſs, and are changed into the ſame Image. Put but the difference in the ſimilitude that the Apoſtle expreſſeth it, and you ſhall ſee how all knowledge falleth ſhort of Spiritual knowledge, which changeth the heart. Take a man now that is a rational Divine, and no more, he knoweth the truth of the Scripture, and the reaſon and the harmony that is between one principle and another, as a man doth of things by hear-ſay, and the Underſtanding works upon the Reaſon that is in them, and the concordance and harmony that is in them. Take a temporary Believer, and his knowledge hath more life in it; it is as the knowledge that one hath of a man in a dream, he hath heard much of a man, and he dreams of him and fancieth him to be ſuch a man, and thinks he ſees him lively and really, and is affected by being in his preſence. But Spiritual knowledge the Apoſtle expreſſeth to beholding as in a glaſs. Now mark, If you were looking in a Glaſs, and a man you never ſaw before ſtood behind you, and you ſee his Face; here now is ſuch a real ſight as putteth down all hear-ſays, all Pictures, all Dreams of a man; yet you do not ſee this man face to face. Now viſion in Heaven is ſeeing God face to face; but (ſaith he) in the mean time we behold him as in a glaſs. We have a real knowledge of him through the artifice of the Holy Ghoſt, and this knowledge now changeth the heart into the ſame image; therefore no wonder if the Apoſtle here prayeth for Spiritual knowledge, and for that only, for theſe Epheſians.

There is a Knowledge (my Brethren) by way of Gifts that is in Chriſtians, that is not this Spiritual knowledge. Men may have large Gifts, and yet be Babes in reſpect of this knowledge, and they themſelves be Saints. That inſtance of the Corinthians is full to this purpoſe. The Apoſtle telleth them, 1 Cor. 1. 5,6,7. that in every thing they were enriched in all utterance and in all knowledge. Mark it, It was ſuch a knowledge which they had as ſerved for Utterance; they could expreſs their minds fully and punctually, ſtamp their minds upon another man about Spiritual things, which was from a diſtinct knowledge of the things: And (ſaith he) you come behind hand in no gift. Well, but theſe knowing men, how doth the Apoſtle talk to them afterward? He tells them firſt, that there is another manner of knowledge than this, which is a Spiritual knowledge; which (ſaith he, Chap. 2.) the Spirit of the world doth not teach us, but the Spirit of Chriſt in a more eminent manner, and that to a man as a Spiritual man. This you have in the 12,13,14, and 15*th* Verſes of that ſecond Chapter; We have not, ſaith he, received the Spirit of the world, we do not know Spiritual things by that underſtanding, only in a notional way that a man underſtandeth worldly things; but (ſaith he) there is a peculiar revealing of them by the Holy Ghoſt to a man's heart made ſpiritual, ſuited to the things. Now when he had told them there was a Spiritual knowledge, what ſaith he to them? Why, (ſaith he, Chap. 3.) you that have all this knowledge, yet I cannot ſpeak unto you as unto ſpiritual, but as unto carnal: For all they were enriched

Ser. XIX. in all utterance, and in all knowledge, and came behind in no giſt; yet (ſaith he verſe 3.) You are yet carnal, they were but as Babes in Chriſt, (ſo verſe 1.) They were not ſpiritual, they wanted this Spiritual knowledge in a great meaſure. Now take a good heart that hath many notions in his head, Oh (thinks he,) had I but a drop of that Elixir, that would turn all theſe notions into pure Gold, into ſpiritual knowledge! that were excellent. Unbelief my Brethren, makes the knowledge of Spiritual things to be but as Dreams, though a Man have much, whereas Faith turns them all into realities, and works upon the heart accordingly. The Apoſtle telleth the Corinths in that ſecond Chapter, verſe 9. That the Eye hath not ſeen, nor the Ear hath not heard, nor never entred it into the heart of a natural man; Men may have much knowledge by the Eye and by the Ear, which entreth into their fancies, and ſo is delivered up to their underſtandings, about Spiritual things; but this is a knowledge that never entred into the heart of a carnal man. And this is the knowledge the Apoſtle here prayeth for.

Obſerv. 2. The Second thing I would have you Obſerve is this, That that knowledge which makes a man Holy, is, eſpecially of Spiritual things themſelves. Though the knowledge of a Mans Intereſt that they are his, carrieth abundance of Holineſs with it, yet it is the Revelation of the things in a Spiritual way, that doth it in a more eminent manner. Paul you ſee here doth not ſo much pray that they might know Heaven was theirs, he took that for granted, but that they might know it, have glorious apprehenſions let into their Souls of what Heaven was, and that they might increaſe in the knowledge of it, that they might know what God was more in his Glory, as the God of Chriſt and the Father of Glory. It is I ſay, the knowledge of the things themſelves, that doth it. You think now that the want in knowledge is the want of application, that you know not till you have made them your own by application, and that therein lyeth the great defect of Faith. I acknowledge it is a defect of Faith, but (my Brethren) the main thing in Faith is to ſee ſpiritual things really, to behold the Glory of the Lord. Saith the Apoſtle, Heb. 10. 39. (it is a place I have often upon occaſion quoted to this very purpoſe,) We are not of them that draw back unto Perdition, but of them that believe unto the ſaving of the Soul. Now what is this Faith that is to the ſaving of a mans Soul? Read the whole 11*th.* Chapter to the Hebrews, it is ſeeing the things, the evidence of the things themſelves; it is (you will wonder at it,) to believe that God is, ſo he telleth us at the 6*th.* verſe. He that cometh to God (ſaith he) muſt believe that God is; It is to believe that the World was made; It is to believe all ſpiritual things by a divine light, by a ſpiritual light. Now my Brethren, when once things are thus ſtrongly and really repreſented to a man's mind, it will carry them all to the heart. The Apoſtle in 1 Joh. 5. 5. ſaith, that by Faith we overcome the world; what is the Faith that overcometh the World? It is not ſo much believing Chriſt is yours, as it is believing that he is; for who is he that overcometh the World but he that believeth that Jeſus is the Son of God?

You will ſay unto me, that this is to preach only for general Faith.

No my Brethren, if you will come now to the Faith that juſtifieth you, it muſt be with the whole heart; and although all that is required to juſtification in the Underſtanding be to believe the thing really and ſpiritually, yet the will muſt concur, and how muſt that concur? It muſt caſt it ſelf upon God for it, for juſtification, there indeed cometh in application. Nay let me tell you farther, that it is the ſtrength of ſeeing the things themſelves that draweth in the heart to give it ſelf up to Chriſt. As now, take a poor ſoul that hath little evidence that Chriſt is his, it may be he is altogether out of hope of it, yet he hath a light that repreſenteth ſuch excellencies to be in Chriſt, as he can never leave him; this is it that makes him give up his ſoul to him. Take a man that hath aſſurance (I will exemplifie it there too,) he believeth that Heaven is his, Chriſt is his; well, this aſſurance oftentimes lieth by him dead, why? Becauſe he wanteth a ſpiritual knowledge of the things. Let God come in now with a light, and reveal what himſelf is, and what Heaven is to him, then aſſurance works in him. So that it is the knowledge of the things themſelves is the main thing in Chriſtianity, and the main thing in Faith. And ſo much in general for the Obſervations which I do premiſe.

I

I come now to the particular opening of the things he Prayed for, He prayeth for the Spirit of Wiſdom and Revelation in the knowledge of him. This is the Firſt thing. Ser. XIX.

I muſt explain Three things here.

1. What is meant by the knowledge of him.
2. The ways by which he prayeth that they may know, by Wiſdom and by Revelation.
3. The Author of this Knowledge, and Wiſdom, and Revelation and all, The Spirit of Chriſt, whom he praieth might be given to them as ſuch. That he may give you (ſaith he,) the Spirit of Wiſdom, and Revelation, in the knowledge of him.

The Firſt thing you ſee he praieth for, as the concluſion of all, is the knowledge of him, whether you take it of God or of Chriſt, it is firſt of him; which implieth that all humane knowledge of humane things, if you know all the ſecrets in nature, it is nothing to this. Paul you know deſired to know nothing but Chriſt, and him crucified. 1 *Cor.*2. This is the eminent knowledge, the knowledge of him that the Apoſtle here prayeth for. He praieth not you ſee that they might have the knowledge of their own graces ſo much, nor the knowledge of their own corruptions ſo much, (though all theſe will follow upon the knowledge of him,) but the thing he pitcheth upon for grown Chriſtians to grow up in, is the knowledge of him. The eminent thing in a Chriſtian is to deſire more knowledge of God and of Chriſt eſpecially. If they know their own corruptions, what uſe do they make of it? To drive them to Chriſt, to make them know him more, I thank God through Jeſus Chriſt, ſaith Paul, when he ſaw himſelf a miſerable man. If they know their own graces, it is that by thoſe beams they might look upon that Sun. If they know the Law, it is to direct them to Chriſt. The end (my Brethren,) of all duties (mark what I ſay,) the end of grace it ſelf, it is knowledge of God and communion with him, therefore you hear, and therefore you pray. If you reſt in the duties without communion with God and the knowledge of him, your ſoul will be found empty, and will ſit down in ſorrow at the laſt. In Coloſ. 1. 8. 9. you ſhall ſee what the Apoſtle ſaith there, where he makes the very ſame Prayer parallel to what is here; He prayeth that they may be filled with the knowledge of God's will in all wiſdom and ſpiritual underſtanding (this is grace now,) that they may know their duties more, for this is the will of God, even your ſanctification; that Husbands may know their duties, what is the will of God to them, and Wives theirs, what is the will of God concerning them; take the whole will of God in the whole compaſs of it, he praieth for that. To what end? that you might walk worthy of the Lord to all pleaſing, (ſo it is verſe 10,) being fruitful in every good work. But mark it, what is the end of all this knowledge and of all this walking? Increaſing (ſaith he,) in the knowledge of God. That cometh in laſt, as being the perfection, the reward of all obedience, to know God more. A Chriſtian, a holy heart improveth the knowledge of all truth, to know God more perfectly, and to have more communion with him by it. Wicked men, they often times ſee the great wiſdom that is in the knowledge of God; they ſee the harmony and the agreement of one truth in Divinity with another, how one kiſſeth another, and they are mightily taken with it, as nothing will take a mans underſtanding ſo much as matters of divinity, and the rationality of it. But ſtill they pick not God out of all this, they do not know him ſpiritually and perſonally. Or take a man that is an Atheiſt (as the one ſtudieth the Scripture, the other ſtudieth the works of God,) let a man be an arrant Atheiſt, he will ſee a mighty wiſdom that nature hath in all the works of nature; in all the cauſes and effects of things, and how in weight and meaſure they are all made, and one thing is ſubordinate to another, but ſtill he picks not God out of all this, but ſo a Chriſtian doth. So that it is the knowledge of him you ſee in diſtinction and oppoſition to all things elſe which the Apoſtle here prayeth for theſe Epheſians.

Ser. XIX.

But now of him, of whom? Is it God the Father, or Chriſt, for ἀπῶ will bear either of them.

My Brethren, he ſpeaks of God the Father juſt before, the God of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the Father of Glory, that he may give you the Spirit of Wiſdom and Revelation, in the knowledge of him. He ſpake both of God and he ſpake of Chriſt. Who is the Him here then? I take it eſpecially God the Father; for in the 19*th* verſe, he ſpeaks of Chriſt while he is praying this Prayer, as of a diſtinct perſon. That you may know (ſaith he,) the power that he wrought in Chriſt. That ſame He there, is the Him here; yet ſo as becauſe it may refer to either, take both: It is the knowledge of God and Chriſt, or rather of God in Chriſt, to know God as he is the God of Chriſt, and as he is the Father of Glory, and ſo to have the heart taken with him, to have the heart drawn into communion with him. This is the knowledge the Apoſtle here meaneth, you have them both put together. 2 Cor. 4. 6. God who commanded the light to ſhine out of darkneſs, hath ſhined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the Glory of God, in the face of Jeſus Chriſt. How come you to know Him here but in and through Chriſt? So that it is the knowledge of both, but eſpecially of the Father. And ſo in Coloſ. 1. 10. where the ſame words are uſed, it is called ἐπίγνωσις, as here, Increaſing ſaith he, in the knowledge of God. You have them both mentioned 2 Pet. 1. 2. Grace and Peace be multiplied through the knowledge of God, and of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Therefore I ſay take both in. So much now for this of him, of God in Chriſt, of the Glory of God in the face of Jeſus Chriſt; as the Apoſtle expreſſeth himſelf in that 2 Cor. 4. 6.

Now let us conſider what is meant by the knowledge here he ſpeaks of. It is certainly meant an excellency of knowledge, as γνῶσις is often taken, not meerly for a knowledge, but for an excellency of knowledge, as Grotius well obſerveth. Rom. 3. 20. By the Law is the knowledge of Sin. The word there is the ſame that is uſed here, ἐπίγνωσις. That is, though a Man know what is ſin, by the light of nature, yet he cometh to an exact, to a perfect knowledge by the Law. I had not known ſin (ſaith the Apoſtle, Rom. 7. 7.) but by the Law. Well, then the thing the Apoſtle prayeth for here is, an exacter knowledge, a more perfect knowledge of God.

Yea, but what manner of knowledge?

My Brethren, if you will have me plainly ſpeak what I think the Apoſtle chiefly aimeth at, is this. It is not only a more inlarged knowledge about the things of God, as it is ſaid of Chriſt, Luke 24. That he expounded the Scriptures concerning himſelf; ſo it is not to know more things concerning God, to have their knowledge inlarged for the matter of it; but the thing he aimeth at here, being the perfection of knowledge, and the end and iſſue of all knowledge to grown Chriſtians, to ſealed Chriſtians, it is Communion with God, is ſuch a knowledge as the Apoſtle here meaneth. Not ſuch a knowledge as ſhall enable you to expreſs God to others, but ſuch a knowledge as makes you perſonally holy, and hath perſonal communion with God joyned with it.

The reaſon why I interpret it ſo, is, not only becauſe the word will bear it, for γνῶσις, is indeed an acknowledgement or owning. One knoweth a ſtranger, but he doth Agnoſcere, he doth acknowledge, (as ſome Interpreters well diſtinguiſh,) one he knew before, his friend. So that the intimate knowledge of God as of a friend, as he ſaid of Moſes; I know thee by name, and Moſes he knew God again, as the Phraſe is; Joh. 10. 14. I know my ſheep, and am known of mine. To have this mutual knowledge, God knowing me, and I knowing God, and ſo to converſe with God, and to have communion with him as with a friend; this intimate knowledge I ſay is the thing the Apoſtle meaneth. And my reaſon (beſides what the word will bear,) is this, becauſe in Coloſ. 1. 9. 10. where he prayeth for the ſame thing, he makes it the conſequent of holy walking; he prayeth before that they might walk worthy of the Lord to all well pleaſing, and then followeth, Increaſing (ſaith he,) in the knowledge of God, (the word is the ſame ἐπίγνωσις, there and here,) that is, Increaſing as the reward of holy walking, and being filled with the knowledge of his will,) in communion with him, or in growing up to know him as your God, and his glory and excellency, and converſe familiarly with him as with your friend. They were ſealed Chriſtians he wrote this to, for whom he prayeth, that knew God to be their God. Now take a man that hath aſſurance, what is the next thing he deſireth? To have much communion with God, to have much intimate converſe with him; to ſee that God of whom he is aſſured, by a ſpiritual light revealed to his ſoul, to ſee him, and to ſee the excellency and the glory of him; as Moſes you know it was his great deſire, ſhew me thy glory, ſaith he, when God had uſed him once familiarly as a friend. Now, becauſe this is the next great thing that ſealed Chriſtians, (as theſe Epheſians were,) do deſire, therefore the Apoſtle prayeth for this knowledge. Ser. XIX.

There is a parallel place to this likewiſe. 2 Pet. 1.2. Grace and Peace, ſaith he, be multiplied, (the word is, be fulfilled,) through the knowledge of God and of Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. The word knowledge there is the ſame word that is uſed here. Now my Brethren, what is the meaning of it, Grace and Peace be fulfilled, (for ſo the word ſignifieth, πληθυνθειη? How are they fulfilled, perfected? The meaning of it is this, God doth fulfil the utmoſt intent of his grace and favour to a man, by cauſing him to know him, and to have intimate communion with him. God doth fill a mans ſoul with perfect peace and joy in believing, through an intimate knowledge of God and of Chriſt. You ſee there the knowledge of God and of Chriſt, it is put for the utmoſt perfection, for the utmoſt iſſue both of God's grace and of peace of Conſcience, and of joy in the Holy Ghoſt; they are fulfilled (ſaith he,) through the knowledge of God and of Chriſt.

So that my Brethren, in one word, that is meant by the knowledge of God here, which he prayeth for for theſe Epheſians that were already ſealed, which the Apoſtle John meant, 1 Joh. 1.3. where he ſaith, Our fellowſhip is with the Father, and with his Son Jeſus Chriſt. That is, that you may have communion with God, know him as a friend, converſe daily with him, have an intimacy of knowledge, that he owns you, and you own him, he know you, and you know him, and upon this knowledge of him, that you do Agnoſcere, that you acknowledge him, cleave to him, give up your ſelves to him, and delight to converſe with him. This is the knowledge of God here meant. And ſo much for what is meant by the knowledge of him.

The next thing is, what is meant by the Spirit of Wiſdom and Revelation.

By Spirit, I take is meant the Holy Goſt, why? Becauſe he is called a Spirit, of Revelation. Indeed, if it were only a Spirit of wiſdom, it might have been taken for a gift of the Holy Ghoſt, for a principle of faith infuſed into us, inherent in us, but that he is called the Spirit of Revelation; that is not a gift inherent, for revealing is an act of one without us, of a perſon diſtinct from us; therefore 1 Cor. 2. 10. He hath given us (ſaith he,) his Spirit to reveal the things that are given unto us of God. So that by Spirit of Revelation muſt neceſſarily be meant the Holy Ghoſt, who is the Author of ſuch Revelation, and of ſuch wiſdom in a mans heart as cauſeth him to have intimate communion with God. This is the meaning.

Now you will ſay what is meant by Wiſdom? And what is meant by Revelation? And why is Revelation added to Wiſdom? By Wiſdom, (as I ſhewed in the 8*th.* verſe,) is meanta principle of Faith, and ſo ſome take it here. To open this of Revelation.

It is not extraordinary Revelation that he meaneth here, ſuch as Paul had, Gal. 1.12. where it is ſaid, that he knew the Goſpel by Revelation, he never heard any man preach it; I neither received it of man (ſaith he,) neither was I taught it, but by the Revelation of Jeſus Chriſt. It is not ſuch a Revelation he meaneth, though indeed this Revelation beareth ſome Analogy with it, for they ſhall be all taught of God, yet ſo as it is by the word, and it is Revelation which the light of the word leadeth him to. And the reaſon why it is taken here for ordinary Revelation is clear; becauſe it is that which he would have all the Epheſians whom he wrote to, to grow in, and to have beſtowed upon them as ordinary Chriſtians; therefore he doth not mean the extraordinary Revelations of thoſe times.

Sermon XVIII.

Now then, what is meant by Wiſdom and by Revelation?
There are ſeveral Interpretations of it, which will hold forth to us the Apoſtles meaning.

Firſt, You muſt know that all Spiritual true knowledge it is called Revelation, and therefore many Interpreters think that Wiſdom and Revelation is all one, only he calleth it Revelation, to ſhew that it is ſuch a knowledge as is peculiar to Chriſtians, and ſuch a knowledge as is by a ſpecial Revelation of the Holy Ghoſt proper unto them. Mat. 11. 25. I thank thee O Father, that thou haſt hid theſe things from the Wiſe and Prudent of the World, and haſt revealed them to Babes. All Spiritual knowledge even of the meaneſt Chriſtians is called Revelation.

Now it is called Revelation in Three Reſpects.

Firſt, For the peculiarity of it; for that you know is properly ſaid to be by Revelation, which is hid to another, but is made known to me, and which I could elſe no way have come to know it if it had not been revealed to me. This is plainly the meaning of Revelation. Mat. 11. 25. Thou haſt hid theſe things from the Wiſe, and haſt revealed them unto Babes; and verſe 27. None knoweth the Father but he to whom the Son revealeth him. So that it importeth a peculiarneſs of knowledge, proper unto Saints which the Holy Ghoſt giveth, and which the Apoſtle prayeth they might grow up in.

Secondly, It doth import ſtill a further newneſs of knowledge, for if I know a thing but as I did afore, it is not revealed to me, it is not a knowledge by Revelation, for Revelation I ſay implieth ſtill ſome further new thing. Now read Rom. 1. 17. he telleth us there that the Goſpel, the Righteouſneſs of Chriſt is revealed from faith to faith. What is the meaning of that? Why, it is revealed from one degree of faith to another. Why is every new degree of faith called a Revelation? Why? becauſe a further degree of faith makes the thing new. That is the property of Spiritual knowledge, when a man increaſeth in it, he ſees ſomething new in it, when that which is more perfect cometh, ſaith the Apoſtle, that which is imperfect is done away. My Brethren, in notional knowledge, when a man doth know a thing, he cannot be ſaid to know it again, for he knoweth it already, becauſe the mind of man is all for news. Well, but in ſpiritual knowledge, if thou knowſt God ſpiritually, though thou knoweſt no more of him materially, yet thou haſt a new light come in, and God becometh again a new thing unto thee, as if thou hadſt not known him before. Therefore it is called Revelation, this knowledge that is joyned with wiſdom whereby we know God. As when a man ſeeth a beauty, though he ſees all parts and all proportions, yet if he be in the dark let light come in he ſees a further excellency, it is as it were a new face to him to what it was when he had but a glimmering light. So though you ſee no more of God, no more of his Attributes, yet if you riſe to have a new light from the Holy Goſt, all that knowledge will become new, you will ſee a further excellency in God, and have your hearts anew drawn to him as if they never had been drawn yet; you will ſay, (when a new light cometh in,) you ſee that in ſin which you never ſaw before. A man will ſay, I ſaw not this before, though he did. Every new degree of light addeth a further degree of knowledge. Therefore it is ſaid to be by Revelation, he would have them to have new ſights of God, which might lead them into communion with God.

Thirdly, But there is one meaning which I ſhall give you, which I think the Apoſtle in a ſpecial manner aimeth at. For the Apoſtle here ſeems not to make Wiſdom and Revelation one and the ſame thing, as this Interpretation doth, but to make them different. Therefore the meaning that I do think may more eſpecially be aimed at, I ſhall open to you as briefly and clearly as I can.

The knowledge of God here, (as I ſaid at firſt,) is Communion with God, intimate knowledge of him, which he would have the Epheſians grow up in. Now, there are two ways of a Chriſtians having communion with God, which the Scripture holdeth forth, and which the Saints have experience of. The one is a way of wiſdom, and the other is a way of Revelation. I ſhall open theſe to you as plainly as I can, and then prove it.

The

The way of wiſdom is this, (for he takes wiſdom in a diſtinction from Revelation,) it is a knowing God by faith, making uſe of ſanctified reaſon, taking in ſeveral truths of God, laying them all together, working them upon a mans heart by meditation, arguing God's excellency out of this and out of that, and ſo raiſing up a mans ſoul to admiring of him and delighting in him; by a way of diſcourſe, by a way of wiſdom, taking wiſdom as oppoſed to and diſtinct from revelation, for ſo I now do. A mans underſtanding that is filled with many notions of God, a holy heart he takes them and putteth them all together, and he boyleth them together and the Concoction the reſult of all is, that the ſoul is raiſed up to a communion with God, and delighting in him whom he admireth. This is the ordinary way of communion with God, for wiſdom you know is a rational laying of things together, to ſee the harmony of all thoſe truths one with another, out of all which I gather how great and glorious a God he is, and ſo my heart is affected with him. When a man knoweth God out of a diſtinct conſideration of ſeveral Attributes, meditating of ſeveral paſſages, of Redemption, &c. This is a way of wiſdom my Brethren. And the Scripture is written ſo as it doth deal with a man Humano more, a ſanctified reaſon and meditation which the light of faith accompanieth, and by them converſeth with God, reſolveth all a man knoweth into God, by peece meale, taking firſt this thought and then that. This is knowing God in a way of wiſdom, as I may ſo expreſs it.

Sermon XIX.

Then there is a way of Revelation, which the Scripture and experience holdeth forth more or leſs, and it is a ſhorter cut. The Holy Ghoſt cometh down into a mans heart ſometimes in prayer with a beam from Heaven, he ſees more at once of God, of the glory of God, ſtounding thoughts of God, inlarged apprehenſions of God, many beams meeting in one and falling into the center of his heart. They uſe to call theſe of Old commings down of God, whereby he ſlideth into a mans Spirit by beams of himſelf; a man doth not come to have communion with God by way of many broken thoughts put together, but there is a contraction of many beams from Heaven which is ſhed into a mans Soul, ſo that he knoweth more of God in one quarter of an hour, then he knoweth the other way in a year, and hath more communion and converſe with God. This I take it is the way of Revelation as it is diſtinguiſhed from Wiſdom.

The Apoſtle becauſe he would have them perfect Chriſtians, prayeth for both, that they may grow up both in a way of wiſdom ſo to have communion with God, and in a way of Revelation likewiſe, that God might often come and viſit their Spirits in a more immediate manner, and ſhew himſelf to them. The one my Brethren, the way of wiſdom, is More humano, accommodated and ſuited unto the reaſon of man, knowing God by way of diſcourſing, yet reaſon ſanctified, for that it doth ſtill. The other is, More Angelico, as ſome of the Schools diſtinguiſhing of theſe two knowledges uſe to ſpeak. The one is diſcourſive, the mind runneth to and fro, compareth one thing with another; but the other is more intuitive, hath a proſpect of God at once. The one is acquiſite, wherein God uſeth a mans induſtry, by many conſiderations working upon a mans heart, which the Holy Ghoſt accompanieth, leadeth a mans heart into communion with God, but the other is infuſed, more immediate. In the one the Spirit works in us, by applying himſelf to our own thoughts, goeth our own pace. But in the other a man is in the Spirit, as the Phraſe is of Paul, he went bound in the Spirit, and as it is ſaid of John, He was in the ſpirit, and being ſo, his heart having this communion with God, then his Revelation was made to him. The one is your Commons, (as I may ſay,) The other is your Exceedings. The one is the common ſtanding light of Faith that goeth to Sermons with you, that goeth with you to all your prayers more or leſs, and cauſeth your heart to cleave to God. But the other is comparatively an extraordinary light. We walk by faith, (ſaith he,) and not by ſight; yet Chriſtians now and then get a ſight a ſight comparaitively, it is a Revelation comparatively to that of wiſdom, though it be not that ſight that we have of God in Heaven.

Ser. XIX. I ſhall expreſs it to you by this Similitude: The ordinary conſtant courſe of a Chriſtian, that is, a holy Believer, he walketh in light; as we walk in light in the day, whether the day be dark and cloudy, or not; we have light enough to do our work, to go about our buſineſs; though we do not ſee the Sun, yet we know the Sun ſhineth: So there is an ordinary ſtanding light of Faith, that cauſeth you to cleave to God and obey him, and it is enough for you to help you to do your work. But ſuppoſe now upon a ſudden, in a cloudy day, a Cloud ſhould break, and a beam be let in that you ſee the Sun; ſuch kind of irradiations hath the Spirit of God into the hearts of his People, ſometimes. Sometimes you pray to God (my Brethren) and there is, as it were, a Curtain between God and you; you know he is behind the Curtain, you know you pray to him, and you have ſo much knowledge and faith in him, that you believe he heareth your Prayers, and accepts of you: But another time you go to Prayer, and all the windows are ſet open, all the Curtains are drawn, as I may ſo expreſs it. Now this is a way of revelation, more than by a way of wiſdom.

This Chriſtians have experience of; and this the Scripture holdeth forth.

Firſt, Chriſtians have experience of it. My Brethren, Take a Chriſtian of a weak underſtanding, but exceeding holy, he hath little knowledge of God by way of wiſdom, by a way of diſcourſe, and by a way of laying this thing to that thing, and ſo knowing God. He is hardly able oftentimes to ſpeak wiſely and rationally of things; yet notwithſtanding this poor Soul, you ſhall have God breaking in upon his Spirit ſometimes, and he will know more of God in one Prayer than a great Scholar (though very holy) hath known of him all his life. And the truth is, that oftentimes God doth deal with weak Underſtandings, that are very holy in this way: For if they were ſhut up unto knowing God, by a way of ſanctified reaſon, thoſe that have large Underſtandings would have infinite advantage of them, and they would grow little in Grace and little in Holineſs; therefore now God makes a ſupply by breaking in upon their Spirits by ſuch irradiations as theſe are.

You ſhall ſee it in Temptations: A poor Soul, he is tempted that there is no God, he doubteth whether there be a God. You may come, and bring forth Arguments by way of wiſdom, and ſometimes they will convince him, he will get a little light from them; but ſometimes God will come into his Soul with an immediate beam and ſcatter all his doubts, more than a thouſand Arguments can do. The way of wiſdom thus of knowing there is a God, that untieth the knot, but the other cutteth it in pieces, doth it preſently. So it is in all Temptations elſe; Whether a man be a Chriſtian or no, a man goeth the way of wiſdom, of ſanctified reaſon, and he looks into his own heart and there ſees the work of Grace, argues from all God's dealings with him, and all theſe ſatisfie not a man. Well, God cometh with a light into his Spirit, and all his bolts and ſhackels are knocked off in an inſtant. Here now you ſee is a way of wiſdom, and here is a way of revelation.

Take thoſe Chriſtians that have great Parts and Underſtanding, and have grown up to much communion with God in a rational way, by way of Meditation and Sanctified digeſtion of their knowledge; yet do but ask them, If at ſome times they have not had ſuch mighty impreſſions of God upon their hearts, have been lifted up to the Mount: ſo that they have ſeen that in God which hath left that impreſſion upon them, that all their life time they had not before. Now, even in them here is a way of wiſdom and revelation in the knowledge of God.

Now to prove it to you by Scripture: I will give you one out of the Old Teſtament, and another out of the New; and then I will give a Caution or two, not to be miſ-underſtood, and ſo I will end.

Firſt, Out of the Old Teſtament. Job 41.5. (I quoted it by way of Illuſtration indeed in the point of Sealing; but it properly belongeth to this Head I am now on.) There you ſhall find, that Job, who was a holy man, and lived holily all his days; when God had ſpoken to him out of the Cloud, preached a Sermon to him; what was the iſſue of it? I have heard of thee (ſaith he) by the hearing of the ear, but now mine eyes ſee thee. He doth not mean, that he had had any outward Viſion of God, that is plain, for you read of no ſuch thing made to Job in the whole Book; and if there had, that Viſion had not been comparable to the knowledge of Faith. He ſpeaks therefore of an Inward light, that now upon this Sermon fell upon his Spirit; That (ſaith he) all the knowledge I have had of God in compariſon of this, is but hear-ſay; not but that it was real, but ſo he compareth it: I have heard of thee by the hearing of the ear, but now mine eyes have ſeen thee. Ser. XIX.

The other place that I ſhall mention to you, is that in John 14. 21. He that hath my Commandements, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me; and he that loveth me, ſhall be loved of my Father: and I will love him, and will manifeſt my ſelf unto him. My Brethren, Here is a Promiſe made not only to Apoſtles, but to Believers; for it is to them that keep the Commandements, and have out of much love obeyed God's Law. He that hath my Commandements (ſaith he) and keepeth them, he loveth me: him do I love, and him will my Father love; that is, we will take him into a more ſpecial nearneſs to expreſs more love to him; and how will he expreſs more love to him? I will manifeſt my ſelf unto him. Here is now ſome further manifeſtation than what they had before; yet they had Faith before, that is plain, for they loved God. The Promiſe is to him that hath the Commandements and keepeth them, and it is to one that loveth God, and that God loveth before; yet there will be ſome further expreſſion of love, and that by ſome ſpecial manifeſtation of God himſelf, and of Chriſt to a man's Soul; which is the reward of having the Commandements written in his heart, and kept in his life. He that hath my Commandements, and keepeth them: I will love him, and manifeſt my ſelf unto him. The word ἐμφανίσω, as Beza readeth it, I will ſet my ſelf, in medio lucis, in open light to him; and it is uſed of thoſe Apparitions, Matt. 27. 53. that were after Chriſt's Reſurrection; not that there are ſuch Apparitions of God or of Chriſt, but becauſe they hold a kind of ſimilitude with this, for it is wholly by the Spirit. And (ſaith he, ver. 23.) we will come unto him, and make our abode with him. Mark, We will come, as if he had never come before, ſo the expreſſion implieth and carrieth it: As you know a Martyr ſaid, He is come, he is come. He cometh in ſuch a manner, with ſuch a manifeſtation of himſelf unto a man as he never ſaw him before. So you have it likewiſe Rev. 3. 20. I will come in and ſup with him, and he with me. I will come; It is a manifeſtation of the preſence of God rather in a notional way: And it is a Supping with him; he cometh and cometh ſuddenly, as when a great Perſon ſendeth his Meat and will Sup with a man, and converſe familiarly with him, and letteth him taſte of his Chear.

I will give you but a Limitation or two to what I have delivered: For this I have delivered, all Divines (Popiſh and Proteſtant) acknowledge, and the experience of Chriſtians do confirm it, and the Scripture it ſelf holds it forth. Only, let me ſay this to you,

By Revelation you muſt not underſtand, as if there were Viſions made: No, (Brethren,) Hence forth, though we have known Chriſt after the fleſh, we know him no more. How had Paul known Chriſt after the fleſh? He had ſeen him in Heaven. But mark it, That knowledge which he had by Faith he valued more, than that ſight he had of him when he was converted. All the wicked men in the world ſhall ſee Chriſt one day, but that will not ſave them; but to know him by Faith is more. And there is no ſuch Revelation now.

And then, if you mark it, he doth not pray that they may have the Spirit of wiſdom and revelation in the knowledge of Truths, to open Scripture, to have an immediate light thus from Heaven; to be able to ſay, This I know by Divine revelation to be the meaning of ſuch a place: or in matters of Controverſie to be able to ſay, This I know by Divine revelation immediately that this is the Truth. No, there is no ſuch Revelation now: It is the knowledge of him, it is only this in a way of Perſonal communion between God and a man's Soul. And for God to make ſuch Revelations as theſe to a man's Spirit, to take him up to a nearneſs with himſelf; to come and Sup with him, and manifeſt himſelf to him, beyond the ordinary light of Faith, going about by a long rational way of diſcourſe and meditation; there is no harm in this, no abſurdity in it.

All

Ser. XIX.

All Truths that you know, you know them by a way of wiſdom, and by ſuch a way indeed a man's heart is ſettled in them; but when you come to converſe with God, oftentimes, God will in a more eſpecial and immediate manner reveal himſelf to you.

It is not a Revelation to draw men from the Word; No, but uſually God cometh down upon the wings of ſome Promiſe, or ſome Word of his, and in that Promiſe putting an immediate beam of light from Heaven into it revealeth himſelf to a man's Soul, that a man knoweth more of God in half an hour, than he hath done in all his life.

And becauſe the Apoſtle would have the Epheſians grow up in both, aim at both, he prays for both. He prays, that they might know God both in a way of wiſdom and revelation, and both joyned together make perfect Chriſtians indeed. Weak Underſtandings oftentimes know God much in ſuch a way of revelation, when they cannot in a way of wiſdom; but to know him in a way of wiſdom, and to have Perſonal communion with him in that way of revelation, (as I have opened it) it makes a ſtrong Chriſtian fit for the profit of others. For this other knowledge, a man ſaith, Indeed I have ſeen God and his Goodneſs, and I have taſted of it; but I can ſcarce give an account of him in a rational way, as a man may do by the knowledge he hath of God in a way of wiſdom. Both together therefore make perfect Chriſtians.

And ſo much for the opening of this, which I have been the longer about, becauſe I deſired to finiſh this 17*th* Verſe; and it was neceſſary alſo to inſiſt ſo long, for the explaining theſe things.

SER.

SERMON XX.

EPHES. I. 18.

The eyes of your underſtanding being enlightned, that you may know what is the hope of his calling; and what is the riches of the glory of his Inheritance in the Saints.

THis is part of one of Paul's Prayers; for the words juſt afore are, Making mention of you in my Prayers, That the God of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, &c.

In the Prayer that he makes, (which reacheth to the end of this Chapter) there is firſt the Perſon he prayeth to, it is God the Father, under two conſiderations, as he is the God of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and as he is the Father of Glory. And Secondly, Here are the things that he prayeth for unto this God; he prayeth for Spiritual knowledge, (that is the general;) and that in theſe four particulars.

1. In the knowledge of himſelf, in communion with God, and that by two ways, a way of wiſdom, and a way of revelation; as I have already ſhewn in the 17*th* Verſe.

2. That they may know, what is the hope of his calling.

3. What is the riches of the glory of his Inheritance in the Saints.

4. What is the Exceeding greatneſs of his power, that works in the Saints, and that will bring them to this Glory. The Apoſtle enlargeth his heart, according to the utmoſt experience himſelf had, what was requiſite and neceſſary for ſealed and grown Chriſtians, and accordingly frameth his Prayer for theſe Epheſians.

I have opened to you the meaning of the firſt Petition, That he would give unto you the Spirit of wiſdom and revelation, in the knowledge of him. By knowledge of him, I ſhewed, was meant an excellency of knowledge, as the Apoſtle calleth it, Phil. 3. 8. which conſiſteth in communion and fellowſhip with God. The ways of which knowledge, is either in a way of wiſdom, or in a way of revelation. I diſpatched this in the laſt diſcourſe.

Now I come to the 18*th* Verſe, where there is a new Petition. Our Tranſlators read it, The eyes of your underſtanding being enlightned, that you may know what is the hope of his Calling, &c. But I read it otherwiſe, and I ſhall give you an account of it afterward. I read it thus, And that he would give you eyes of your underſtandings enlightned, for you to know what is the hope of his Calling, &c.

To open theſe words, To give you eyes of your underſtandings enlightned, I ſhall but mention to you, how others would interpret the coherence of theſe words with the former.

They would make this and the former to be but one entire Petition; and ſo indeed our Tranſlators carry it; That he would give unto you the Spirit of wiſdom and revelation in the knowledge of him; the eyes of your underſtandings being enlightned, that you may know, &c. They would make it, I ſay, but one one entire Petition or Sentence, both this in the 18*th* Verſe and that in the 17*th*. And their meaning is this, That in the knowledge of God and Chriſt, their eyes being enlightned by a Spirit of wiſdom and revelation, (all theſe being means by which we come to knowledge,) they might know what is the hope of his Calling. To ſuch a purpoſe or ſenſe as this, do many Interpreters uſually read it.

But I rather cut it off from the former, and make it a new and diſtinct Petition. He had finiſhed one Petition, when he prayed, that God would give them a Spirit of wiſdom and revelation in the knowledge of him, or communion with him: And now he prayeth for knowledge of the hope of his Calling; for a taſte, and prelibation or fore-knowledge of the greatneſs of that Glory they were ordained unto. And as he prayed they ſhould have a Spirit of wiſdom and of revelation given them to know God: ſo now he prayeth God to give them Eyes of their minds enlightned, to know the hope of his calling, and the riches of his Inheritance.

Only I yield thus much to the other Interpretation, (which I deſire you to obſerve,) That of the two, the Apoſtle putting knowledge of God, and communion with God, the knowledge of him, (as the Text hath it) before the knowledge of what is the riches of his Inheritance. I ſay, I yield thus much to it, That Communion with God, and Knowledge of God, is the higheſt way to come to know what Heaven is, and what the riches of his Inheritance is; and therefore it is a meaning agreeable to the Analogy of Faith to read it thus, That in the knowledge of him their eyes might be enlightned, to know what Heaven is. It is, I ſay, a meaning agreeable to the Analogy of Faith; the knowledge of God, and communion with God, is the high way to know what is the hope of his calling, and what the riches of his Inheritance is.

But yet, my Brethren, that Interpretation of theirs is certainly to me not the meaning; and my reaſon is this, becauſe they would make the knowledge of God, but as a way and means only ſubordinate to the knowledge of what Heavens Glory is: In the knowledge of him, the eyes of their underſtandings being enlightned, (ſay they) that they may know what is the hope of his calling, and what is the riches, &c. But though it is true, that by the knowledge of God, and communion with him, we come to know what Heaven is; yet of the two, Communion with God is the greater. I ſhall explain my ſelf to you thus.

There are two things to be conſidered in Heaven; There is either the happineſs that the Saints themſelves ſhall enjoy, which is in the Saints (ſaith the Text) their happineſs and their bleſſedneſs: And there is ſecondly, Communion with God, which is the cauſe of this happineſs. Now of the two, Communion with God is the greater. There is Beatitudo objectiva, the thing poſſeſſed, which is God himſelf; and there is Beatitudo formalis, which is the fruition of him; the happineſs by enjoying God, and by knowing God. Now of the two, the knowing of God, Communion with God is more than our happineſs; and therefore, if you mark it, the Apoſtle putteth that firſt, That you may have a Spirit of wiſdom, (ſaith he) and of revelation in the communion and knowledge of him; and then cometh, That you may know what happineſs you ſhall have, what is the riches of the glory of his Inheritance in you, in the Saints: there is Beatitudo formalis, your fruition of it. Of the two, my Brethren, it is the greater, therefore it is put firſt here, and therefore is not meant as a means only of knowing the other, but as a diſtinct thing from the other.

You ſhall find as much to this purpoſe in Rom. 5. comparing the third and the fourth Verſes with the 11*th*. The Apoſtle ſpeaks there of Faith; By Faith (ſaith he) we rejoyce in the hope of the glory of God, (that is, of that Glory we ſhall have from God,) and not only ſo, but we glory in tribulation alſo. Though for the preſent we are miſerable, yet through Faith we ſee ſo much Glory to come, that the Soul ſhall have, as it upholdeth us, we rejoyce in the hope of glory notwithſtanding tribulation. Now mark the 11*th* verſe, And not only ſo, but we alſo joy in God. He riſeth higher; To rejoyce in hope of Glory, it is a great matter; and not only ſo, but to do it in affliction too, that is more. But will you have the higheſt, ſaith he? Not only ſo, but we joy in God too.

Ser. XX.

These words, Not only so, but we joy in God, have an aspect, have a look to what is said in the third Verse, where he bringeth in the same phrase, Not only so, but we rejoyce in afflictions. Not only so, (saith he) but we rejoyce in God. We do not only rejoyce in our Afflictions, in the hope of Glory, but we rejoyce in God too. Not only in the hope of our happiness, the Inheritance in the Saints, (as the Text saith) but in the knowledge of him. So that, In the knowledge of him, is not the means only or simply whereby we come to know what Heaven is, but it is a greater matter, for the top of Heaven lieth in Communion with God, and not only in your being made happy.

And so you see now why it is preferred here: So that here beginneth (this is all I have contended for) a new Petition in these words, and I read them thus, (and he that consulteth the Original will find it will bear it,) That he would give you eyes of your mind enlightned, to know what is the hope of his Calling, &c.

The words in the Original are, πφωτισμένυς τὺς ὀφθαλμὺς τῆς διανοίας, Eyes of your understanding enlightned, in the Accusative Case, (to give you the Grammatical Coherence of the words) it is not in the Dative Case, The eyes of your understanding being enlightned. But take the words simply and they lie thus, That God would give you eyes of your understanding enlightned.

There are some that would make the words before, The Spirit of wisdom and revelation, to intimate and import the causes of Spiritual knowledge; and these words, The eyes of your understanding being enlightned, the act of Spiritual knowledge, which is the effect of those causes; and they would make that to be the coherence of these words with the other; and they open it handsomly thus. Say they, unto spiritual knowledge by way of causation, there are two things required; There is first a Spirit of Wisdom, which is a Spirit of Faith: and secondly of Revelation, which is bringing light to that Faith. They express it well by this similitude, which I shall afterward make use of. To Bodily sight (say they) there is two things required, There is first an Eye to see with, a faculty of seeing, that is meant by the Spirit of wisdom; the Holy Ghost giving a power, an inherent principle, a habit, a disposition of Spiritual wisdom; (for you know he is a wise man, not that hath wise thoughts sometimes, but that hath Wisdom habitually in him; as we use to say, He that is wise of himself, that hath a principle of wisdom in him, he is properly wise:) so now by a Spirit of wisdom, they mean that inherent principle of Faith which makes a man wise, that infused habit which the Spirit works, that is as the new Eye in the Soul. And then, by the Spirit of revelation is meant, the light that the Holy Ghost acts this principle of Faith by; and as the effect of both these, he mentioneth the eyes of their mind being enlightned to know him. The one noteth out the causes, the other noteth out the effects.

But, my Brethren, I will give you a Reason or two against this Interpretation, and so I will go on; for the coherence of these words is the greatest difficulty in this Text, the rest will go on more easily.

If his meaning were, to pray only for the principle of Spiritual knowledge in the former words, and the act of knowledge in these latter words, The eyes of your mind being enlightned, to know, &c. First, He would not have terminated the Spirit of wisdom and revelation in an act, in the 17*th* Verse, as he doth; In the knowledge of him, saith he. Then he cometh with a new business, The eyes of your mind being enlightned to know. Here is a new cause of a second act, therefore certainly we must part them. Here is a Spirit of wisdom and revelation produceth one act, The knowledge of him. Here are eyes enlightned, which produce a second act, That you may know, saith he, &c. Certainly therefore, the one doth not note out the Causes and the other the Acts; but here is an act answering the cause of knowledge in the one, and an act of knowledge, answering the cause of knowledge in the other.

So now, having shewed the Coherence of the words, I come to the parts of the Text.

Ser. XX.

The Parts of this 18*th* Verse, they are two.

Here is first a new expression of Spiritual knowledge, That they might have enlightned eyes to know.

Here is Secondly, new Objects to be known, the knowledge of which would make them compleat Christians. Which Objects are three.

1. What is the Hope of their Calling.
2. What is the Glory of their Inheritance.
3. What the Power is that is engaged to bring them to this Inheritance.

To begin with the first, what is meant by Spiritual knowledge, as it is set forth to us here by giving them eyes of their mind enlightned, enlightned to know. As I take it, here are Four things held forth to us.

1. Here is the Subject of Spiritual knowledge, the Mind, the Understanding. The eyes of your understanding.
2. Here is a double Gift: 1. Of Eyes unto the Understanding. 2. Of Light unto these Eyes; for so I read the words, That he would give you the eyes of your understanding enlightned.
3. Here is the Act, To know.
4. Here are the Persons, Ye, saith he, εἰς τὸ εἰδέναι ὑμᾶς, That ye may know.

I will open all these in order.

Here is first the Subject of Spiritual knowledge, it is the Understanding; The eyes of your understanding. Some Copies read it τῆς καρδίας, The eyes of your heart. There is variæ Lectiones of the New Testament, as well as of the Old, that is, various Readings. The King of Spain's Bible readeth it, The eyes of your heart. Ordinarily we read it, The eyes of your understanding. The truth is, the Hebrew word לֵב, which signifieth Heart, the Septuagint usually translated it διάνοια, Understanding; as Gen. 27. 17. Gen. 24. 45. We use to call Wise-men, Cordati; and Fools in the Latin are called Men without a heart, that is, without Understanding; and it is called Applying a man's heart to wisdom. Understanding and a man's Heart in the Scripture phrase are put both for one; they are both joyned, διανοίας καρδίας αὐτῶν, Luk. 1. 51. The understanding of the heart. So indeed the words may be read there, which are translated The imaginations of the heart.

Now then from hence the Observation is but only this, That the Heart followeth the Understanding. They are put one for another, whether in a man's corrupt estate; when they erre in their Understandings, they are said to erre in their hearts; for if their Understandings erre, their Hearts will certainly do so. Saith our Saviour Christ, Matt. 6. 22. Where the Treasure is, there will the heart be also. Mark the reason, The light of the body is the eye. How are these joyned together? Plainly thus; Look what the eye of the Understanding of a man setteth up to be a man's good, his Treasure, that the Heart, the Affections will follow. As we judge of things, so we are affected, and so the whole body, that is, the Will and Affections, (for he compareth the Understanding to the Eye, and he compareth the Will and Affections to the Body, which is as the Heart, and Affections as the Members.) Look which way the Eye goeth (saith he) the Body will go as that directs: Look what the Understanding pitcheth upon to be a man's Treasure, there the heart will be. Therefore now, it is all one to say, The eyes of your understanding, as one Copy readeth it; or, The eyes of your heart, as another readeth it. If the Understanding be once enlightned, the Heart is enlightned, and so the whole Soul is drawn; if that knoweth the excellency of Heaven, where thats Treasure is, the Heart will be also. I speak this to reconcile those diverse Readings which the Copies have.

And so much for the Subject, the Mind, or the Heart, when that is once enlightned.

Here

Here is a double gift. Here is an Eye given, and here is an inlightned Eye; light given to that Eye too. There are ſome Interpreters that do refer the words to the word Give in the former Verſe, and do put ſome words in, and read it thus; That God would give the eyes of your Mind, δὸν τὺς ὀφθαλμὺς φωτισμένυς, to be enlightned. Others, as Ambroſe, read it, To have eyes of your mind lightned. But I take the Words nakedly and barely as they are in the Greek, and I read it thus, That he would give you eyes of your Mind inlightned. The gift, I ſay, conſiſteth of two things: Firſt of an eye of the Mind. Secondly of Light to that eye; and both theſe are requiſite for us to know any Spiritual thing, ſaith he εἰς τὸ εἰδέναι That you may. That a man may know Heaven or any Spiritual thing, he muſt have a new eye in his Mind, and he muſt have a new Light put to that eye, That he would give you eyes of your Mind inlightned. So that now cometh fitly in, the interpretation that others would give it of the Spirit of Wiſdom and Revelation; the one noteth out the Principle, the other the Light that the Holy Ghoſt bringeth in. To clear this to you. Ser. XX.

In the firſt place, before a man can ſpiritually apprehend Spiritual things, yea or if he would grow in the apprehenſion of them, he muſt ſtill have more of a new Eye put into his Mind: read Deut. 29. 4. God hath not given thee (ſaith he) eyes to ſee, nor ears to hear, nor a heart to perceive to this very day. If a man will underſtand Spiritual things, he muſt have a new Eye and a new Heart: God muſt give him an Eye of his Mind, and to his Mind, put into his Underſtanding a new Underſtanding.

In the 1 John 5. 20. (it is another place I bring for it,) ſaith the Holy Ghoſt there, He hath given us an underſtanding to know him, that is true; a peculiar underſtanding; not creating a new faculty, No, but enduing that faculty with a new diſpoſition, with a quickneſs; for it is called by the Prophet Iſaiah, the underſtanding of the Mind. You ſhall find therefore in Scripture, that Wicked men are ſaid to be blind, they want an Eye; and ſo far as we are unregenerate we want Eyes as well as Light to ſee Heaven, or any Spiritual thing with. Saith he Joh. 3. 3. Unleſs a man be born again he cannot ſee the Kingdom of God; for to ſee the Kingdom of God a man muſt have a new Light begotten in him, a man muſt have (as it were) a new underſtanding; and therefore you read 1 Cor. 2. 14 that a carnal man he cannot receive the things of God; that is the Phraſe there he cannot receive, he wants an Eye, as a blind man he cannot receive in colours.

Well that is the firſt gift therefore, to have an Eye, which in Pſal. 119. 18. is called opening the Eye, Open mine eyes, ſaith he, ſo we traſlate it; read the Margent, it is Reveal mine eyes, Lord take off the veil, and then I ſhall ſee the wonderful things of thy Law; which anſwereth with what is in 2 Cor. 3. 16. the veil lies over all mens hearts: that as there is film over all mens eyes that are blind, that they cannot ſee; ſo there is over every mans heart by nature. Here then is the firſt thing to be done, to clear the Eye, to give a new Eye, to take the veil off.

But if a man have never ſo good an Eye, if he be in the dark, he can ſee nothing: therefore the ſecond thing that concurreth to Spiritual Knowledge here, is, To give you eyes enlightned; as to give you a new Eye, ſo to give you a new Light: For Epheſ. 5. 13. it is Light that makes all things manifeſt: it is a Philoſophical ſpeech the Apoſtle there uſeth, it agreeth with what Ariſtotle ſaith, Lumen, it is actus perſpicui, it is that which putteth life into colours and acts them. Let ever ſo good an Eye be in the dark it ſeeth not; therefore now here is a ſecond work of the Holy Ghoſt, To inlighten this eye if ever a man cometh to ſee any thing in a Spiritual way; and as there cometh more Light in, ſo a man ſeeth more or he ſeeth leſs; and therefore you ſhall find in Act. 26. 18. the Converſion of a ſinner hath two expreſſions; the firſt is to open his eyes, to take away the veil; and then to turn him from darkneſs to light: you ſhall find the like in 2 Cor. 4. 6. God, ſaith he, that created light out of darkneſs cauſeth the light of Knowledge (mark that Phraſe) of the Glory of God in the face of Jeſus Chriſt. Will you have knowledge? there muſt be a Light to accompany it. All mens experience that have Grace agreeth with this: what is the reaſon that you ſhall ſee ſome things in a Chapter at one time and not at another, ſome Grace in your

h earts at one time not at another, have a ſight of Spiritual things at one time not at another; the Eye is the ſame, but it is the Holy Ghoſt that openeth and ſhutteth this dark Lanthorn (as I may ſo call it) as he openeth it wider, or contracts it or ſhutteth it narrower, and ſometimes he ſhutteth it wholly, and then the Soul is in darkneſs, though the Soul have never ſo good an Eye. Therefore as the Apoſtle prayeth for an Eye, ſo he prayeth for Light, That he would give them eyes of their Mind enlightned. And ſo much for the Gift, here is the ſubject of it, the Mind or the Heart, that was the firſt; Secondly here is the Gift, to give them an eye, to give them Light, eyes inlightned.

3. Here is the Act, both of this Eye and of this Light, that is, To know, εἰς τὸ εἰδέναι To know, ſaith he. To every act of Spiritual Knowledg that you have in any thing (my Brethren) there is a Giving you an eye to ſee it, and there is Giving you a new Light to ſee it with. It is a Gift of the Holy Ghoſt, not only to give you a Light and to give you an Eye, but it is a gift for him to draw forth the Act of Knowledge, to give you for you to know, ſo the Word is in the Original, εἰς τὸ εἰδέναι. It referreth to give, with the 17 verſe, even this as well as the other.

Our dependence upon the Holy Ghoſt, conſider what it is, in all Spiritual things. It is firſt to have a new Eye; it is in the ſecond place to have a new Light from the Holy Ghoſt to actuate, to inform that Eye, to ſhine upon it to irradiate it: and thirdly, to draw forth the Act of Knowledge. In Phil. 2. 13. It is God (ſaith he) That giveth the Will; that giveth τὸ θέλειν, the very Act of the Will is from him; and here τὸ εἰδέναι an Act of Knowledge is his too, it is a Gift too: Saith our Saviour Chriſt, To you it is given to know, δέδοται γνῶναι it is given to know, the very Act of Knowledge it is a Gift. We ſee, I ſay my Brethren, the great dependance we have upon the Holy Ghoſt, not only muſt he give us an Eye and give us Light; but he muſt give us to know too. It is a mighty expreſſion that in 2 Cor. 3. 5. ſaith he, we are not able of our ſelves to think a good thought, he doth not ſay we are not able to do, as Chriſt ſaid before him, Without me ye can do nothing, but he ſaith Ye cannot think, if you come to ſpiritual things, No, You cannot think, of all things elſe it is the eaſieſt to think, yet this muſt be given too. Prov. 20. 12. The hearing ear, and the ſeeing eye the Lord hath made both of them. Is it true in naturals, that not only the Eye is made but the ſeeing too? it is certainly much more true in Spirituals. The ſcope of Solomon there is to let us ſee (as Cartwright well obſerveth) that in the ſmalleſt thing, in the very applying of ſight to an act of ſeeing, The hearing ear and the ſeeing eye are of the Lord; ſo it is much more in Spirituals, he muſt give you an Eye and he muſt give you a Light, and he muſt draw forth that Gift too, elſe we have no ſufficiency to do it, We are not able to think a good thought, but all our ſufficiency is of God; and there cannot a greater inſtance be given that, All our ſufficiency is of God, when we cannot ſo much as think one good thought elſe. So much now for the giving them both an Eye and Light and the Act of knowledge.

Here is a Fourth thing, and that is the Perſons, for You to know, for ſo indeed it is in the Original. He mentioneth you no leſs than three times, That he might give to you ver. 17. the eyes of your mind; that you may know, ver. 18. All that I obſerve out of it is this, which ſome againſt the Papiſt have done out of the ſame Text, againſt Implicite Faith. What do the Papiſts ſay? They would have you ſee with other mens eyes; they would have you beleive the greateſt thing in the World, and beleive it becauſe the Pope ſaith it. No, ſaith the Apoſtle, I would have you ſee with your own eyes, I would have him give you, the eyes of your mind enlightened, that you may know. There all theſe three Yous in it. The juſt ſhall live by his Faith, and no bodies Faith elſe. And ſo much for that.

I divided the Words into theſe Two parts. Firſt into Spirituai Knowledge, that he prayeth for; that you ſee I have diſpatched. The next (which is that I now come to) is the Objects he prayed they might know, which I told you were three three, and in this Verſe we have two of them laid down. The Frſt is, what is the Hope of their calling: The Second is, what is the riches of the Glory of his Inheritance in the Saints. There is nothing difficult in theſe words but only this, What is the hope of their Calling. I ſhall preſent the difficulty to you, and I will tell you what my apprehenſion and judgment of it is. Ser. XX.

Hope, it is taken (ſay Interpreters) for two things; Either for the thing hoped for, as *Coloſſ.*1.5. For the hope (ſaith he) which is laid up in Heaven, that is, Heaven it ſelf, the thing hoped for: So *Tit.*1.13. Looking for the bleſſed hope, that is, the thing hoped for. Or elſe in the Second place, it is taken for the Grace of Hope; not for the object, but for the Grace of Hope, by which we do hope. And it is ſometimes put for aſſurance of our intereſt in the thing hoped for; as 1 *Joh.*3.2.3. Now we are the Sons of God, ſaith he, and he that hath this hope in him, that is, hath an aſſurance of this, is confident of this, he purifieth himſelf as God is pure. And ſo likewiſe Rom. 5.4, 5. Experience breedeth Hope, and Hope maketh not aſhamed, that is, it worketh an Aſſurance that leaveth not the Soul in confuſion; Becauſe the love of God is ſhed abroad in our hearts, (ſo it followeth.) So that by Hope there, he meaneth aſſurance of Salvation; as likewiſe Rom. 15. That you may abound in hope through the power of the Holy Ghoſt.

Now, my Brethren, Interpreters do generally carry it by Hope to be meant here, the thing hoped for. I find almoſt all Interpreters go that way, reſtraining it to the thing hoped for; And (ſay they) the Apoſtle, what he calleth Hope in theſe words, he more plainly explaineth in the next words, that he meaneth by Hope the thing hoped for; he telleth you in the next words what it is, what is the riches of the glory of his Inheritance, (ſaith he:) So that what he meaneth by Hope in the one, he plainly expreſſeth in the other. Only he calleth it Hope here in the firſt ſentence, to ſhew that it is but in Hope, but it is to come in the World to come; and to ſhew, that the higheſt Joy that we have here, is but in hope to what is to come. For as it is Rom. 8.24. What a man ſeeth, that he doth not hope for. By Hope there, he meaneth the Object of Hope.

And it is called the Hope of your Calling, or (ſay they) the Hope of his Calling. Why? Becauſe it is that unto which we are called. Read 1 *Theſſ.*2. 12, 13. Who hath called you, ſaith he, to his Kingdom and Glory. So then the meaning of the Apoſtle (ſay they) is this, He prayeth that they may know what great things are laid up in Heaven for them, which God calleth to them to hope for, which are annexed to their Calling.

I find Zanchy thinks the Grace of Hope ſhould be here meant; not ſo much the thing hoped for, as the Grace by which we hope for this thing hoped for: And ſo they interpret it thus, The Hope of his Calling; that is, ſay they, the Hope which God calleth us to have of that Glory that is to come, which God commandeth us to have, and calleth us to; Therefore, ſay they, it is called the Hope of his Calling. And his meaning is this, He prayeth that they may know what great hopes and aſſurance God would have us Chriſtians to have of the Life to come.

Now to this Interpretation of theirs, I add but this, That by Hope is here meant the ground of Hope; it is not meerly the Grace of Hope by which we do hope, but the ground which God doth give us to hope upon; the grounds and the Evidences that we have for eternal life, that that ſhould be the Apoſtle's meaning. And I find, that Zanchy falleth into this, and ſo hinted me indeed to it; for he explaineth it thus, That they might know their Hope is founded upon the moſt infallible and certain grounds that can be.

I muſt give you Scripture for this, to ſhew where Hope is put for the ground of Hope: I will give you but one. Rom. 4.18. there it is ſaid, that Abraham againſt hope, believed in hope. What is the meaning of that? He did againſt all grounds of hope, believe. He mentioneth the grounds that might diſcourage him, in the next Verſe; ſaith he, His body was dead, being an hundred years old, and Sarahs womb was dead; yet againſt all hope, that is, againſt all grounds of hope, he believed in hope.

So

Ser. XX. So then, the Interpretation I pitch upon is plainly this: The Apostle prayeth here, that they may know what great, what infallible, what multitudes of grounds of Hope God had called them to; what grounds of Assurance and Evidence their Souls might have, that Heaven is theirs. So that now, in this first part, he prayeth that they may have much Assurance of their own interest in Heaven, and see good grounds for it. And in the second part, he prayeth, that they may see the glory of his Inheritance.

I will give you my Reason why I Interpret it thus, rather than for the thing hoped for; That this expression should mean one and the same thing, Heaven in both. My Reason is this; The Apostle seemeth to pray for three things distinctly, and he putteth a Conjunctive, καὶ, between them all. First, He prayeth, that they may see what is the hope of their Calling, and see what is the glory of his Inheritance, and see what is the exceeding greatness of his power. Now, if Exceeding greatness of his power be a distinct thing from what is glory of his Inheritance, then what is the glory of his Inheritance is a distinct thing from what is the hope of his Calling; therefore the thing hoped for is not meant, but he intendeth three several sorts of things that he prayeth for. And he addeth τίς, and τὶ τὸ ὑπερβάλλον μέγεθος, what, and how great to all three, to shew that they are distinct; what great grounds you have of your Interest, and that you may see what a great and glorious Inheritance it is that you have interest in, and that you may see thereby how great the exceeding greatness of his power is, that he works in them that believe, and keepeth you for that Glory.

Having thus opened to you what is meant by the hope of his Calling, what grounds of hope you have; I will but shew you how it agreeth fully with the scope and with the phrase the Apostle here useth, that I may back this Interpretation.

It agreeth fully with his scope: For first, he prayed in the former Verse for Communion with God. Now, what is the next thing a good Soul would desire, next to Communion with God? To have the grounds of his Assurance kept continually fresh in his heart, that he may know the hope of his Calling; (that is the next thing any good Soul would pitch upon, to keep himself in perfect peace and comfort;) and then to know the greatness of that Glory that he had an interest in. Link these three things together, this makes a compleat Christian, full of comfort, full of joy and peace in believing.

It agreeth also with the phrase that followeth, The hope of his Calling; interpreting it for grounds of Hope or grounds of Assurance, what grounds of Assurance you have.

By his Calling here, is either meant that Calling which God commandeth you to have; such grounds of Hope as God calleth you (being Christians) to have, commandeth you to have, that is one meaning of the phrase. So the word Calling is used 1 Thess. 4.7. saith he, God hath not called us to uncleanness, but to holiness, that is, he hath commanded us to be holy, for so you may interpret it by the third Verse, This is the will of God, your holiness. God's Calling and his Will is all one. If you did but know (saith the Apostle) the grounds that God calleth you, to have the Hope you have, the Assurance God calleth you to have, and hath given you grounds to have; that is the meaning of his Prayer.

Or Secondly, The Hope of his Calling may refer to the work of Grace, which is called Calling and Conversion; and so the meaning is proper and very good, and it is thus: That you being called by God, you have all the grounds to have Assurance that may be; and I pray (saith he) that you may know what is the hope of your Calling. A man effectually Called, hath multitude of grounds to be assured, if he be not negligent in it: So that that which I pray for (saith he) is, that you may know the very Calling it self, the very work it self; God's Calling you, affordeth you grounds enough of hope. I pray that you may know the grounds of your Hope, keep that fresh in your eye, and so you will be comforted.

I come

I come now to ſome Obſervations out of this Interpretation.

Ser. XX.

The Firſt Obſervation is this. That every man in the ſtate of grace is called to have aſſurance, and there are grounds enough for it. Oh, ſaith the Apoſtle, would you did know what is the hope of his calling, what grounds you have of hope from that calling of God that hath put you into the ſtate of grace! The ſtate it ſelf affordeth it, and the word of God upon you affordeth it, only you want eyes to ſee it; therefore I pray that the eyes of your underſtanding may be enlightned to know it, dayly enlightned to ſee thoſe grounds. Obſerv. 1.

My Brethren, every believer hath grounds enough of aſſurance if there eyes were but enlightned. There is a whole Epiſtle written on purpoſe; God wrote one book to ſhew the vanity of the Creature, he hath written another book on purpoſe to aſſure us of Salvation and every believer. The firſt Epiſtle of John is written on purpoſe for that end; you ſhall ſee it is his ſcope both by the firſt Chap. verſe 4. ſo he beginneth, Theſe things write we unto you that your joy may be full, and by Chapter 5. verſe 13. Theſe things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God, that ye may know that ye have eternal life. And ſaith he, I write to all ſorts of Chriſtians that are called, ſo he ſaith Chapter 2. verſe 12. 13. I write to you Children, (thoſe that are babes they are capable of aſſurance, to know the hope of their calling, if God enlighten them,) becauſe your ſins are forgiven for his Name ſake. I write unto you Fathers, becauſe ye have known him, that is from the beginning. I write unto you young men, &c. All ſorts of Chriſtians they are capable of aſſurance if God enlighten their eyes, and if they be once called there is abundance of grounds to give them aſſurance, to give them hope of ſalvation. He telleth us in the 10*th.* verſe of the 5*th.* Chapter, He that believeth hath the witneſs in himſelf, that is, he hath the matter of it. Yea there is no act of faith but putteth forth a witneſs; as when we come to a hollow place there is no voyce but turneth back an Eccho, only if you ſpeak low the Eccho anſwereth you low, but if you ſpeak loud the Eccho is loud too; ſo if a mans faith ſpeaks ſtrongly, it will Eccho forth back again a ſtrong witneſs; there is the witneſs of blood and the witneſs of faith. He that believeth hath the witneſs in himſelf. There is no grace a man hath but it is a ground of aſſurance, there is no exerciſe of grace but is a ground of aſſurance. In your very not ſinning you may fetch aſſurance from it, ſo John telleth us, Ep. 1 c. 3. v. 9. He cannot ſin, he hath the ſeed of God in him; you ſhall find that in your hearts that you cannot ſin, there is an evidence of grace when you are tempted to ſin. The grounds that every believer hath for aſſurance of ſalvation, if he did but know them, they are infinite ones and infallible. So much for the firſt Obſervation,

To give you a Second Obſervation. Though a man have never ſo much ground of hope from God's calling him, yet notwithſtanding he muſt have the eyes of his mind enlightned to know what is his hope, what are the grounds of evidence and aſſurance of ſalvation; and further than he hath an eye and an act of knowledge drawn forth he cannot ſee it; therefore the Apoſtle prayeth that the eyes of their minds may be enlightned that they may know what is the hope of his calling. Obſerv. 2.

To make this plain to you. All graces as they work with a borrowed ſtrength, not with a ſtrength of their own, but with the ſtrength of the Holy Ghoſt, ſo they ſhine to comfort you with a borrowed light, as the Stars do with the light of the Sun. A man hath a natural power to know what is within him, ſo ſaith the Apoſtle, 1 Cor. 2. 11. Let any man ask me what I think, I can tell him and ſo can you, it is from the natural ſpirit that is in every one; What man (ſaith he,) knoweth the things of a man, ſave the Spirit of a man that is in him? The Spirit of a man that is in him doth know it, it can tell you a mans thoughts and affections; but if you would come to know whether faith be in you or not, or whether true love to Chriſt be in you or no, or zeal for his glory; now you muſt have the ſpirit to enlighten your eyes, though it be in you, the meer Spirit of a man will not do it; ſo it followeth, we have received the Spirit that is of God, that we may know the things that are freely given us of God. If you will come to know whether you have grace or no, which God hath beſtowed upon you, here you muſt have

Ser. XX. have the eyes of your mind enlightned, that you may know, (ſaith the Apoſtle,) or elſe you will not ſee it: Your graces ſhine with a borrowed light. You can tell I think ſuch thoughts as believers think, but to tell that this is true Faith and differeth from that of Hipocrites, this you cannot tell without the Holy Ghoſt enlighten you: Therefore he prayeth that the eyes of their minds may be enlightned that they may know.

I will give you a Scripture more for this, Rom. 8. 16. (mark that place,) It is the Spirit (ſaith he) that beareth witneſs with our Spirits that we are the Children of God; he doth not only ſay he beareth witneſs to our Spirits, but he beareth witneſs with our Spirits, our Spirits, our graces, (that which is born of the Spirit is Spirit,) never witneſſeth unleſs the Holy Ghoſt witneſs with them; if he do not give in his Teſtimony with them, your graces will give no witneſs at all, if he do not enlighten the eyes of your mindto know, you will not know the hope of your calling, you will have no aſſurance.

Likewiſe that other place, Rom. 15. 13. the Apoſtle prayeth there, that they may abound in hope, through the power of the Holy Ghoſt. Doth a man abound in hope? Hath he any comfort? Any aſſurance? (for I take hope there for aſſurance as I do here,) Any confident perſwaſion? It is ſaith he through the power of the Holy Goſt. So much for the ſecond point.

I might interpret it thus. The Scripture is not of private Interpretation. So ſaith the Apoſtle, 2 Pet. 1. 21. Read another book, your natural underſtanding will help you to underſtand it, but ſaith he, the Scripture is not of private interpretation; that is, no mans private underſtanding will help to underſtand it, but that Spirit that writ it. Look into your own hearts, there is a word written in the heart, as here the word is written in our books; that word written in the heart, the Law written there, is not of private interpretation; all the humane wit that any man hath who hath grace, cannot help him todo it, to know the meaning of it, but that Spirit that wrote it there, for ſo you know we are called the Epiſtle of Chriſt, written not with Ink but with the Spirit of the living God. 2 Cor. 3. 3. He is only able to read it, unleſs he enlighten your eyes, give you an eye, and give you light, and draw forth an act of knowledge, you will not know what is the hope of his calling, you will not know what ground you have for aſſurance of Salvation.

Obſerv. 3. To come to a Third Obſervation, and it is a good one. You know I interpreted the hope of his calling, partly in this ſenſe, to be that which God calleth you to have. Art thou a believer? He calleth thee to hope, as he calleth you to holineſs, ſo he calleth you to aſſurance, to hope. What is the reaſon then that poor ſouls want comfort? It is God's mind you ſhould have it, there is enough in the word to comfort you; there is enough in your own hearts to comfort you, there is a Holy Ghoſt that dwelleth within you. God I ſay calleth you to hope. Satan (my Brethren,) and Antichriſt, they call you to doubt, ſo the Papiſts do, but God calleth you to hope, calleth you to aſſurance. The Papiſts they exact of every man as neceſſary to ſalvation, to believe a harder point than the aſſurance of their own ſalvation; for they exact of them to believe that the Church of Rome is the only Church of Chriſt, to believe the Mother, but they would have men to doubt of their Father; they would have men to be baſtards that is the truth of it. But ſaith he, that you may know what is the hope of your calling, he would have them know it. The Apoſtle writing to men that had aſſurance, to Old Men, ſaith he, you have known the Father from the beginning, not only the Mother but the Father. It is a harder point to believe that the Church of Rome is the only true Church of Chriſt, then to believe that thou art in Chriſt, and there is more evidence in thy own heart, if the Holy Ghoſt irradiate thy mind, than there is of the other, for that is an extrinſical thing, and yet they are ſtrict in that point, upon pain of damnation a man muſt believe that that is the true Church: yet they would not have a man believe he is a true member of the Church, nor of Jeſus Chriſt. No, it is, what is the hope of his calling, he calleth you to hope, that is his Commandment.

Rom.

Rom. 15. 13. The God of hope fill you with all peace and joy in believing. God is a God of hope, and he would fill your hearts with peace and joy through believing. He is not only called the God of hope becauſe he is the Object of hope, but becauſe he is the Author of it; and all the Scripture is written to work hope in us, ſo ſaith verſe 4. of the ſame Chapter. God's mind is, that the Saints ſhould have nothing elſe, that you may know what is the hope of his calling; only your eyes are darke indeed, there lieth the defect, naturally you are dark and can know none of theſe grounds, therefore the Apoſtle prayeth that the Eyes of their mind may be enlightned, that they may know what is the hope of his calling. Ser. XX.

In the Fourth place, if you Obſerve it, it is what is the hope of his calling, it is not what is the hope of your calling, or what is the hope of your grace, he giveth it not that title, take calling in that ſenſe for God's work of converſion upon a man's Soul, I do obſerve but this out of it,and it is to you a note of much conſequence.If you come to have good aſſurance, that the Holy Ghoſt giveth,he will draw your eye unto his work rather in you, than unto thework that is wrought in your ſelves.

I will explain my ſelf to you as well as I can. It is the property of the Holy Ghoſt when he doth give any man aſſurance and hope, and enlightneth his eyes to ſee what the hope of God's calling is, not to make the heart pore upon the work in himſelf, but to draw his heart up to God as the worker of it, and to have a hint from thence to ſtand admiring of him that thus called him,and by his mighty power wrought theſe things in him through his free grace. When men look upon grace wrought in themſelves, ſelf love rejoyceth in it, and they boaſt as if they had not received it, No, ſaith the Apoſtle look not upon the hope of your, but upon the hope of his calling; as having received it from him, let it lead you to the fountain of his free grace. I do obſerve it there in 1 Cor. 2. 12. (I quoted the place afore,) we have received (ſaith he,) the Spirit of God that we may know the things that are freely given us of God. Mark that expreſſion, not only know the thing, that this grace is wrought, but with this addition, it is the free work of God's grace. This is the end always of the Holy Ghoſt when he giveth aſſurance, that is his manner, as he diſcovereth his graces to you, theſe things are in you, ſo that theſe things are freely given you of God, he leadeth you to the fountain of his grace,that you may admire it and fall down before it, That you may know (ſaith he,) praying for aſſurance,) what is the hope of his calling, he fixeth their eyes there.

Next to communion with God and knowledge of him, he prayeth they may know their own intereſt.

The next thing that is to be handled is this, and what is the riches of that glory which is the glory which they had aßurance of. Put but theſe Three things together my Brethren, and do but think with your ſelves, what mighty effects it would work, what comfortable Chriſtians it would make you, if your hearts came up to what Paul prayeth for here, that you lived in the knowledge and communion with God day by day, to converſe with him as he is the God of Chriſt and the Father of Glory, (as he calleth him in the next verſe.) And next to that add, the grounds and evidences of our aſſurance and eyes enlightned to ſee them, admiring the love of God in you and toward you; and Thirdly add, the eyes of your underſtanding farther enlightned, with mighty vaſt apprehenſions of that Heaven you have intereſt in, of the riches of the glory of his Inheritance. If a man's Soul would live but in theſe thoughts, what a mighty powerful Chriſtian would that man be. Paul he had all theſe things in his heart, and when he cometh to pray for men he prayeth after this rate, and this is the meaning of his prayer.

Ser. XXI.

SERMON XXI.

EPHES. I. 18.

—And what the riches of the glory of his Inheritance in the Saints.

AS I told you, this is one of the Apostle's Prayers, as he hath many other scattered up and down in his Epistles. In this Prayer of his you have these two parts: First, the Person that he prayeth to, The God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of Glory. He doth set him forth under such considerations as were suitable unto the matter of his Prayer, as I shall shew you in the closure of this Sermon. Then, Secondly, you have the matter of his Prayer, which is for Knowledge. 1. Intimate knowledge of God, intimate Communion with him, (as I have opened to you;) That he may give you the Spirit of wisdom and revelation, in the knowledge (or acknowledgment) of him. 2. He prayeth God to give them Eyes enlightned, Eyes of their understanding. That which is translated the Eyes of your understanding being enlightned; if you will read it according to the Original, (as many Interpreters go) it referreth to the word Give, That he would give you eyes of your understanding enlightned, enlightned to know what is the hope of his Calling; that is the second part of his Prayer. And then Thirdly, What the riches of the glory of his Inheritance in the Saints, is. And Fourthly, What is the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward who believe.

I am yet in the 18*th* Verse. It hath two parts: It hath first a description of Spiritual knowledge. It is a giving of enlightned eyes of the understanding, that you may know; which I handled the last time. There are Secondly two several Objects, which these Eyes of the Understanding being enlightned do serve to know; The first is, What is the hope of his Calling. The second is, What is the riches of the glory of his Inheritance in the Saints.

I opened to you the last time, what was meant by the knowing of the hope of his Calling. I told you, that by Hope (as I understood it) was meant, not the thing hoped for, (for that is expresst afterward;) but the grace of Hope, the grace of Assurance, and the grounds of that Assurance, the grounds of Hope. Hope is taken for the grace of Hope, and it is taken likewise for the grounds of Hope, as well as for the thing hoped for. It is taken for the grounds of Hope; I gave you one Scripture for it. I will add but this, In your ordinary expression, in our English Dialect, when you come and ask a Physician concerning a dying Friend, or one that is sick, you will say, What hope is there? that is, what grounds of hope? There is hope in Israel concerning this thing, that is, there is grounds of hope. Now then, the Apostle's meaning is plainly this, He prayeth they may know both what Assurance and Hope God calleth them to have, What is the hope of his Calling, what his will, and mind, and command is, you should have; he commandeth that you should be assured, be men full of hope, and of great hope; (for by Calling is sometime in Scripture meant his Command, as I have shewed you.) Or else in the second place, and together with it, (for it is both meant,) he prayeth that they may know all the grounds that may give them hope by virtue of God's Calling, for to God's Calling there are a world of grounds of hope annexed. There is no man that is called of God, but hath all sorts of grounds to be assured of his salvation, and that by virtue of his Calling. Now then, this is the first thing the Apostle prayeth for, that they may make their Calling sure, that is the meaning, to know what is the hope of their Calling, what what grounds their Calling affordeth them, that are annexed to their Calling, to being in the ſtate of Grace, what hope is annexed to their Calling, of their intereſt in ſalvation. So that this is the firſt Petition, that they may know their own intereſt for themſelves, a peculiar one, a particular intereſt in thoſe great things to come. Ser. XXI.

Having prayed for this, he doth in the ſecond place pray, that they may know what the riches of the glory of his Inheritance in the Saints, is; that they may know what the greatneſs of that Glory in Heaven is, of which they have an intereſt, and for which they have grounds to hope.

Now then, put but theſe two things together, I appeal: Let a man's eyes be but enlightned to ſee all thoſe grounds that God, by virtue of his Calling, hath given him to hope for ſalvation by; to ſee his own intereſt clear, to have thoſe grounds freſh in his eye. And then, let him have a light to ſee, a glorious light to ſee what the riches of that Glory is; what mighty, ſtrong, and glorious Chriſtians would this make men! Now for both theſe doth the Apoſtle here pray.

Having then handled this firſt part, what is the hope of his Calling, I now come to the ſecond, And what the riches of the glory of his Inheritance in the Saints, is. I come to theſe words, and ſo on. As the Apoſtle would have them know their own intereſt, and all the grounds of it, that they might be comforted; ſo he would have them know the thing. How happy would Chriſtians be, if they knew there own happineſs; if they knew both their own intereſt, and likewiſe, if they knew what the riches of the glory of his Inheritance in the Saints, is!

There are two things that are to be opened in the handling of theſe words. The firſt is, To lay open to you (ſo far as the word openeth it, and doth give you a ſight of it,) what the glory of Heaven is by the deſcription here that the Apoſtle makes of it, he calleth it the riches of the glory of his Inheritance in the Saints.

The word here ὁ πλοῦτος, the Article that is put to Riches, is not only to know what it is for the ſubſtance, but how great it is. That you may know (ſaith he) τίς ὁ πλοῦτος, how great the riches are, that is, the Apoſtle's meaning. I was in Heaven (ſaith the Apoſtle, ſo he might have ſaid to them,) and I ſaw things, ſaith he, that I am not able to utter. When he came down again, he could tell no news of it; ſo you may read 2 Cor. 12. they were too big for his mouth to utter. Therefore here the Apoſtle is as it were in travel, he bringeth forth great words Riches, and Glory, and Inheritance, and knoweth not how to expreſs it, heapeth up one word upon another.

And then the Second thing that is to be conſidered in the Text, is, of what uſe the knowledge of the glory of his Inheritance, is to Saints; for he would not pray for it unleſs it were of mighty uſe. There are theſe two things to be handled in the words. And, Firſt, for the deſcription (for that the Apoſtle doth;) As he doth pray that they may know it, ſo he doth interlace in his Prayer ſuch deſcriptions of it whereby they may know it. Now concerning the deſcription he giveth of it. I divide that into two parts.

Here is firſt the ſtate it ſelf, that the Saints ſhall be in.

Here are ſecondly, the Perſons to whom it belongeth to.

Firſt the ſtate it ſelf, ſet forth to us by theſe three things:

1. An Inheritance.
2. A rich Inheritance.
3. A glorious Inheritance. The riches of the glory of his Inheritance.

Secondly, Here are the Perſons whom it belongeth unto. Here is firſt the Perſon whoſe it is more properly and moſt eminently, it is His Inheritance. Secondly, Here is the Subject in whom this Inheritance is. He is the great Inheritor; but who come in as Heirs too under him? It is His Inheritance in the Saints. And ſo now you have the diviſion of the words.

To begin with the firſt, an Inheritance.

Inheritance doth note out the ſubſtance of this Glory, which is the Subject, of which the other two are predicated or attributed to. There are two Attributes of this Inheritance, Rich and Glorious; but an Inheritance is the ſubſtance of it; therefore he ſaith, the riches of the glory of his Inheritance. Riches is attributed to Glory; but both are attributed to Inheritance.

Ser. XIX.

In the firſt place, becauſe we have a title to it, being Saints, as Sons have to their natural Inheritance. In reſpect of our title to it therefore, it is called an Inheritance. My Brethren, God, to make Heaven ſure, and that his Children might have mighty hope of their Calling, he hath made Heaven ſure by all ſorts of waies that are found amongſt Men to make a thing ſure. He hath made it ſure by a purchaſe of the Blood of Chriſt; ſo ſaith ver. 14. he calleth it the purchaſed poſſeſſion. He hath made it ſure by an Inheritance too; not only by a way of ſale, it was ſold to Chriſt, and it is his Inheritance too, but it is an Inheritance to us though he purchaſed it; ſo ſaith the Text too. It is likewiſe by way of Gift, that is the third way of conveying of it; for the gift of God is eternal life, Rom. 6. ult. Laſtly, It is given by Will of a man that dieth. Heb. 9. 15. You read there that Jeſus Chriſt, he died, and he made his Will, that all thoſe that believe in him, they ſhould have eternal life; For this cauſe (ſaith he) he is the Mediator of the New Covenant, or Teſtament; that by means of death, for the redemption of the tranſgreſſions that were under the firſt Teſtament, they which are called might receive the Promiſe of eternal Inheritance. As it is an Inheritance, and purchaſed by Chriſt, and given by God, ſo bequeathed by Chriſt at his death. Read the next Verſes, For where a Teſtament is, of neceſſity there muſt be the death of the Teſtator; for a Teſtament is of force after men are dead, otherwiſe it is of no ſtrength at all whilſt the Teſtator liveth. So that Jeſus Chriſt died, and left it to us by Will. We have it by all waies; you cannot have God made over to you more ſurely than by way of gift, than by way of Inheritance, (if a man make no Will, yet the Heir ſucceedeth him,) than by way of purchaſe, than by way of Will. All theſe waies is Heaven conveyed to us.

In the Second place, An Inheritance noteth out a perpetuity. You know your ſtyle of Inheritance runs thus, To a man and his Heirs for ever. So doth Heaven, and therefore in the ſame place I even now quoted, Heb. 9. 15. it is called an Eternal Inheritance.

In the Third place, An Inheritance noteth out a whole poſſeſſion; it doth not note out a part, it doth not note out a portion. Abraham, you know, he gave portions to his youngeſt Children; but an Inheritance he gave to his eldeſt Son Iſaac, to his Firſt-born. Now read Heb. 12. 23. he calleth the Saints there the Firſt-born of them whoſe Names are written in Heaven. They have all Inheritances as Firſt-born.

You will ſay, How is that poſſible? For if one Saint inherit all, how doth the reſt do ſo too?

Yes, my Brethren. Look Coloſſ. 1. 13. it is called an Inheritance in light. Now thoſe that are Sons of Adam born into this World, one man doth not inherit part of the light of the Sun and another man another; but all men are Heirs alike of the light of the Sun. If God be the Inheritance, if he be the light of it, as you ſhall hear anon in Revi[illegible].22. then all may be Heirs; for God (ſaith he) is all in all. He can be whole happineſs to one man and whole happineſs to another, and no man ſhall complain; every man poſſeſſeth whole God to himſelf. An Inheritance is of the whole, it is not a portion.

So much now for the word Inheritance. I have touched upon ſuch things as are moſt material for the opening of it.

I come now to the Attributes of it. Firſt, it is a rich Inheritance: Secondly, it is a glorious Inheritance. Thirdly, there are riches of Glory in it: For the word Riches may either be attributed to Inheritance (and ſo Glory) apart; or you may joyn both together, Riches of Glory of our Inheritance. In the general, my Brethren, The Apoſtle ſpeaks here pertinently, after the manner of men; for all Inheritances here below conſiſt either of Riches or of Glory, we ſee that men inherit both; the Children of rich men inherit their Riches, if they be Noble men they inherit their Honour; both Honour and Riches go by deſcent, he joyneth them both here you ſee; and where both theſe meet there is fulneſs. When the Glory of the greateſt Monarch upon Earth is deſcribed, Eſth. 1. 4. it is done both by Riches and by Glory, he ſaith, Ahaſuerus made a Feaſt, when he ſhewed the riches of his glorious Kingdom, and the honour of his excellent Majeſty.

Majeſty. There are but theſe two things which the World purſueth, Riches and Glory; Riches will compaſs all ſorts of pleaſures, and if you have theſe two you want nothing. Read but Eccleſ. 6. 2. he makes a ſuppoſition of a man to whom God hath given Riches, Wealth and Honour, ſo that (ſaith he,) he wanteth nothing, (if he have theſe he wanteth nothing,) that his Soul can deſire in this life. Hence therefore, becauſe theſe two are things enherited, and becauſe theſe two put together do fully make up a ſatisfaction to a man's deſires, he deſcribeth Heaven to us both by Riches and by Glory, what is the riches of the glory (ſaith he,) of his Inheritance. And therefore you ſhall find that the reward of Heaven is ſet forth to us by theſe two, by our Saviour Chriſt, and theſe two alone, Matt. 13. 43, 44. At verſe 43. he layeth forth there the glory of that Kingdom, Then ſhall the Righteous ſhine forth as the Sun, in the Kingdom of their Father; there he mentioneth their glory. Again, (ſaith he,) the Kingdom of Heaven is like to a Treaſure hid in a Field, there is Riches, therefore Pro. 8. 18. Wiſdom is ſaid to have in her left hand Riches and Honour; for theſe are the great things the World deſireth. You have both here. Ser. XIX.

Firſt, To begin with Riches, and Secondly with Glory, apart: And then why Riches of Glory.

It is Firſt a rich Inheritance, the Holy Ghoſt in this doth deſcend, he ſpeaks as to Children, he expreſſeth Heaven by Riches and by Glory, becauſe they are the great things, the only things we are capable of to underſtand Heaven's glory by, and the abundance of good things there. Firſt, For Riches. You ſhall read in Revel. 21. a deſcription of the New Jeruſalem, (whether it be an eſtate of glory of the Church here on earth yet to come, which is but the fore-runner, is but the harbinger to that great glory after the day of Judgment, (which I rather incline to,) or whether it be the glory of the Saints in happineſs hereafter, I will not diſpute that now, however it will ſerve my purpoſe; for if it be meant of the eſtate of the Church on Earth in her perfect glory and beauty yet to come, it will argue much more what is in Heaven; therefore it is all one for my purpoſe whether you underſtand it of the one or of the other.) Do but read out that Chapter and you ſhall find there that he rakes all the bowels of the Earth, he fetcheth up all the precious ſtones out of it, and Gold and Chriſtal, all thoſe things that the world hath turned up trump (as I may ſo expreſs it,) to commend all things elſe, wherein riches ly, he hath reckoned them up all as you ſhall find there, to what end? He mentioneth Gold to pave the ſtreets of that City, for men to tread upon, ſo you have it verſe 21. Nay he is not only profuſe in his expreſſions, laviſh (as I may ſo expreſs it,) to have a ſtreet paved with Gold, but he doth feign as if he were a Poet, he ſaith it was ſuch Gold as did ſhine as Chriſtal, ſuch Gold as the Chimicks ſay they can make, they can make Gold, (they ſay,) to have the very tranſparency of Chriſtal, but the Holy Ghoſt aimeth not at this art, for it was not in the World; but if Gold had a reſplendency in it, if it were as tranſparent as Chriſtal, (for to that he compareth it,) it had a perfection in it. What a glorious creature Gold were, if together with the weight it had a tranſparency as Chriſtal, whereas Gold hath a darkneſs in it. In Solomon's time, which was a time of riches, 1 King. 10. 27. he ſaith, Silver was in Jeruſalem as ſtones in the ſtreet; here is the type now, but it is but of ſilver, it is not of Gold; but here the ſtreets of the New Jeruſalem are paved with Gold. Well, the wall of that City, (if you read verſe 18.) he ſaith it was all of Jaſper-ſtone, there was never ſuch Jaſper in the world to make one wall; ſtill he feigneth, he is fain as we ſay to compound, to make Golden Mountains to expreſs the riches of the New Jeruſalem. And you ſhall find verſe 21. that every Gate of the City was a Pearl: A Pearl as big as a man's Thumb what a mighty value is it of! Here is City Gates, broad Gates, open Gates, for he ſaith they were never ſhut at all by day, for there was no night there. They are every one of one Pearl, each Gate is but one Pearl. Here is the ſtrangeſt fictions that ever were; you ſee what viſions the Holy Ghoſt makes to ſet out the riches of the New Jeruſalem. And he ſaith that all the Nations ſhall bring their glory and honour into it, ſo at v. 26. that is, they ſhall bring their riches into it, that is the meaning of glory there; for in Scripture we find it often that glory is put for for riches, Gen. 31. 1. we read there that Jacob heard the words of Laban's Sons, ſaying, Jacob hath taken away all that was our Fathers, and of that which was of our Fathers, hath he gotten all this glory; that is all this riches. The alluſion here is to Iſai. 61. 6. there you ſhall find it is called the glory of riches which the Nations ſhall bring in; and ſo the Septuagint tranſlateth it. The like you have in *Iſai.*60. 9. It is a manifeſt alluſion, (this in the Revelation,) to thoſe places. Now my Brethren, that which is the head City of a Kingdom, as London; that which is the head City of the world, as Rome once was, all the Nations of the world bring their riches thither. Heaven is the head City, it is the City of the living God, all riches are come thither, it is therefore a rich Inheritance.

And let me but add one thing to you, All theſe ſame riches of which the Holy Ghoſt, (condeſcending to our capacities,) if we may ſpeak ſo with reverence, is fain to make fictions, (for Mountains of Gold, and Gates of one Pearl, is a thing that never was, nor never will be in this world, but he doth it to ſet things forth to us.) All theſe deſcriptions what are they but falſe riches? Luke 16. 11. he calleth only the riches of grace and glory the true riches, and he calleth the other the Mammon τῆς ἀδικίας It is tranſlated of Unrighteouſneſs, but the Hebrew word the Septuagint often times tranſlates it for Falſehood, as now in Engliſh we ſay a thing is right when it is true, and it is wrong when it is falſe, ſo the riches of unrighteouſneſs or of wrong in the Hebrew Dialect oftentimes is put for falſehood. All the riches here are but falſe riches, theſe only are the true riches, the other are but ſhadows of it.

To ſpeak a little more home to it. It is a rich Inheritance, rich why? Becauſe that God laieth forth all his riches in making the Saints happy. In Phil. 4. 19. (it is a place I ſhall afterwards quote to a further purpoſe,) ſaith he, My God ſhall ſupply all your needs according to his riches in glory by Jeſus Chriſt. You know God is ſaid to be rich in Mercy, and rich in Grace, and rich in Love, and rich in Power; all his Attributes are called riches in Scripture. Now mark, wouldſt thou know what Heaven is? Thou ſhalt have all God's riches, not in Bullion, for that cannot be, they are incommunicable, thou canſt not have them in Species, but thou ſhalt have them in uſe, in comfort, thou ſhalt have all God's riches turned into comfort. The Attributes themſelves are incommunicable, thou canſt not have it in money paid thee down, it is proper to God; but all the riches in God ſhall be to make thee happy, God ſhall ſupply all your needs according to his riches, ſaith the Text; and if God's riches undertake to ſupply you, certainly you will be full.

In the Second place, To deſcribe theſe riches more full unto you, I will give you one place of Scripture, the other place that I mentioned is applyed to God, that all his riches ſhall be turned into comforts, this place I now give is of Chriſt's riches, it is 2 Cor. 8, 9. Ye know the grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that though he was rich, yet for your ſakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich. He doth not mean riches in this world, for the Saints are the pooreſt in this world, you ſee your calling, (ſaith the Apoſtle,) how that not many rich nor many noble are called; therefore the riches he meaneth are the riches of glory hereafter. Now ſee, for I argue as from God before, ſo now from this that Chriſt did, an infinite maſs of riches are laid up for us in the world to come. To raiſe up your conſiderations, conſider this ſaith he, Jeſus Chriſt that was rich, became poor, to that end that you might be rich. Jeſus Chriſt was rich, he was the Heir of all things, he had all glory, he left himſelf not worth one Groat my Brethren, The Foxes have holes, and the Birds of the Aire have Neſts, but the Son of Man hath not where to hide his head; he became poor, the Word is a Beggar, not that Chriſt was a Beggar, or lived by begging, for there was to be no beggar in Iſrael, he had not fulfilled the Law if he had; therefore the Papiſts have but an ill ground from this place to juſtifie the calling of their Mendicant Friars, but he was in the eſtate of a beggar, he was miniſtred unto, he left himſelf worth nothing. If that this Chriſt who ſaith he was rich, it is πλούσιος ὤν, he did exiſt rich before he was poor, he laid all aſide, emptied himſelf to nothing, if he will put all the riches he was worth out to uſe, that you might be rich ſaith he, and you ſhall have all the uſe of it, what will this come to? My Brethren the Apoſtle in Ep. 3. 9. calleth them the unſearchable riches of Chriſt, you cannot tell them over to all Eternity, for if Chriſt will put forth all his riches, and become poor on purpoſe to make men rich, what riches will that be? So that you ſee it is a rich inheritance. Ser. XXI

And let me add this too, (which is a good Meditation of Auſtins upon this place,) ſaith he, quid facturi ſunt, &c. How rich will his riches make us when we ſhall meet with him in glory, when his poverty makes us thus rich! As the Apoſtle I remember expreſſeth, Rom. 11. 12. ſpeaking of the Jews, If the fall of them be the riches of the world, and the diminiſhing of them be riches of the Gentiles, what will their fulneſs be? And ſo much now for this firſt Attribute, that it is a rich Inheritance. We come to glory. The riches ſaith he, of the glory of his Inheritance.

To open to you the word Glory. Glory, it importeth always an excellency of things; and it importeth a ſuperexcellency too. It importeth an excellency, as it is ſaid, Matt. 4. 8. that Satan ſhewed him the Kingdoms of the World, and the glory of them, that is, all the excellency of them. And it importeth an height of excellency, τὴν δόξαν ſo is the expreſſion, 2 Pet. 1. 17. the excellent glory. Always glory hath an excellency, yea and an excelling excellency too, or elſe it is not glory ſaith he, 2 Cor. 3. 9. 10. This glory (ſpeaking of the Law,) is no glory by reaſon of the glory that excelleth, and if the miniſtration of condemnation be glory, much more doth the miniſtration of righteouſneſs exceed in glory.

The word that is uſed for Glory, it ſignifieth in the Hebrew and the Chaldee both, a weight, and the Apoſtle hath an alluſion to the meaning of the word according to the Hebrew phraſe in his expreſſion, 2 Cor. 4. 17. where he calleth it a weight of glory. Very well, now to make uſe of this to ſet forth to you the glory of Heaven.

Firſt it noteth out all excellency in Man. The glory of men he calleth it 1 Pet. 1, 17. The flower of the graſs, that is the excellency of men; all ſorts of excellencies, are meant by glory. And it is an exceeding weight of thoſe excellencies too, or elſe it is not glory. To inſtance in ſome. As,

Firſt for beauty, it is an excellency of man; when his beauty doth ariſe to a brightneſs, to a ſplendor, it is called glory, when it riſeth to ſuch a glory as dazeleth the eyes. Therefore 2 Cor. 3. 7. you may read that Moſes face did ſhine that they could not behold the glory of his countenance. It is not an ordinary beauty that is called glory, but when it ariſeth to ſuch a hight as it dazeleth the eyes that they cannot behold it, it hath a weight in it; it oppreſſeth the eyes. So likewiſe Act. 22. 11. it is ſaid there, that Paul could not ſee by reaſon of the glory of the light; it is not an ordinary light, but that light that dazeleth the eyes, that a man cannot ſee it, that is ſuperexcellency of light; that is called glory. So likewiſe if you come to pomp, if it riſeth, if it be ſuch a pomp as is tranſcendent, which all men fall down before as they do before a King, then it is glory, it is not only pomp, but it is a ſuperexcellency, a tranſcendency, beyond what is ordinary. You read of the Queen of Sheba, 1 King. 10. 5. when ſhe ſaw all the riches of Solomon, his glory as it is deſcribed there, that there was no more ſpirit in her, yet ſhe her ſelf was a Queen, ſhe came into the City with a great train and with much riches, yet when ſhe ſaw Solomon exceeded her, he did ſo exceed her that ſhe had no ſpirit in her. Now what ſaith Chriſt of the ſtate, of the pomp of Solomon, Matt. 6. 29? Solomon in all his glory. it is in the Original, in all his Royalty, it was a glory ſuch as no King elſe had, it was not only pomp, but it was a pomp that made her even ſwone again, when ſhe ſaw it ſhe had no ſpirit in her, this was glory. So if you take it for power and ſtrength; ordinary ſtrength is nothing, but if you come to a ſuperexcellency of ſtrength, it is called glory, therefore in 2 Theſ. 1. 9. it is called the glory of Chriſt's power; when he hath ſuch ſtrength as is not in all creatures again, this is not power only, but the glory of power. The word Glory it noteth out the ſuperexcellency of every good thing. So likewiſe, take joy and pleaſure, if it come to joy which hath a ſuperexcellency in it, which the mind of man cannot imagine how great it is, nor cannot utter, then it is called glorious. 1 Pet. 1. 8. With joy unſpeakable and glorious, or full of glory. So now whatſoever doth exceed the expectation of the Creature; that is admired, that is called glory. In 2 Theſ. 1. 10. Speaking of Chriſt, ſaith he, when he ſhall come to be glorified in his Saints, and to be made wonderful, or admired in all them that believe; when it cometh to wonderment, then it is glory.

So

Ser. XXI.

So that now you have a compleat definition of Glory: It ſignifieth firſt all Excellences whatſoever; and all Excellences in the height, and ſuch a weight as they do oppreſs, that the ordinary underſtanding of man cannot bear: So Strength, in the glory of it, is ſuperexcellency of ſtrength; and Joy, when it excelleth, is called Joy full of glory. So much for the opening of the phraſe.

Now, if you would know the Glory of Heaven, you are to do two things. You are firſt to fancy all ſorts of Excellences, of Beauty, of Strength, of Joy, of Holineſs; take what you will, and when you have done, it is a ſuperexcelling Excellency; there is that Glory in it beyond all what you can imagine in all theſe.

To exemplifie it a little. Firſt, In the Body, for indeed the Scripture doth not hold forth the glory of the Soul, nor are the words of men able to expreſs it; but the Scripture ſets forth the glory of the Body. The World hath but one thing, (that is a Creature) that truly deſerveth the name of being glorious, and that is the Sun. Now, ſaith he, Matt. 13.43. The righteous ſhall ſhine as the Sun. And our Saviour Chriſt, he giveth them an inſtance of it Matt. 17. 2. there he transfigured himſelf before them, and it is ſaid, His face did ſhine as the Sun, and his garments were as white as the light, ſo white as no Fuller could white them.

Now, my Brethren, to what end doth the Scripture give us one inſtance of what glory there is in the Body, but thereby to raiſe up our minds to think, what the glory of the Soul will be in all ſorts of perfection? For conſider with your ſelves; The Sun, you do not call it a beautiful Creature, as you call a Woman; but it is a ſuperexcellency of beauty, it is glorious. Saith he of the Church, *Pſal.*45.13. She is all glorious within; what is the meaning of that? It is not a painted beauty, it is not extrinſecal, it is innate, it is within; I take that to be the meaning. He inſtanceth only in the glory of the Body, becauſe from that you may argue the glory of the Soul. The Body that ſhall ſhine as the Sun, which is the moſt glorious thing the World hath; what will the Soul be then? The Body, that is but the ſheath of the Soul. Look *Dan.*7.15. I was grieved in my Spirit in the midſt of my Body, ſo it is tranſlated. Look in your Margents, and it is in the midſt of my ſheath; he calleth his Body but the ſheath of his Soul, but the garment. Now in the Transfiguration of Chriſt there is mention made, that his Garments were white, ſo white as no Fuller could white them; and Luke 9.29. it is ſaid, they were white and ſhining. Now, if his Body ſhining as the Sun, made his Garments white, and the Body is but as the Garment of the Soul; and if the Body ſhineth as the Sun, how will the Soul be then? Here lieth the compariſon; His Body did ſhine as the Sun, his Garments were white, and they were glittering too; the Body is but the Garment of the Soul, if that ſhine as the Sun, what will the Soul do? Riches of glory, ſaith the Apoſtle here. My Brethren, The Soul is the glory of man. *Gen.*49.6. My Soul (ſaith he) come not into their ſecret, nor my glory into their counſel. Now, if the Soul be the glory of man, and the Body which is but a vile thing, (Our vile Bodies, ſo he calleth them *Phil.*2.23.) if they ſhall ſhine as the Sun, how will the Soul, that is the glory of man in all ſorts of perfection? Therefore the Apoſtle here ſaith Riches of glory.

I will name but one place and ſo leave it, it is 2 *Cor.*4. 17. That word there which is tranſlated exceeding, is καθ' ὑπερβολὴν εἰς ὑπερβολὴν, one Hyperbole upon another, that is, one Hyperbole of Speech will not expreſs it; as when you ſay, A Wall up to Heaven, or a high Wall. Saith the Apoſtle, Expreſs Heaven by Hyberbolies, and when you have done, tumble one hyperbole upon another hyperbole and it will not expreſs it. This he ſaith of the Glory there, it is exceeding, it is hyperbolical, it is hyperbole upon hyperbole. I remember he ſpeaks of Sin, and ſaith it is καθ' ὑπερβολὴν ἁμαρτωλὸς, above meaſure ſinful; *Rom.*7.13. the ſinfulneſs of it hath an hyperbole in it, man's wit cannot reach it. When he cometh to ſpeak of the Glory of Heaven, it hath one hyperbole upon another, it is an exceeding hyperbolical Glory.

So much now for the opening of that.

I told you likewiſe, that as it is a rich Inheritance, and a glorious Inheritance, ſo it is Riches of Glory; you may joyn both together if you will. For Riches you know they are external things, but the Saints in Heaven, Omnia ſua ſecum portant, their Riches are within, inherent Riches, therefore are glorious Riches, the which Glory importeth excellency and a ſuperexcellency of all good things; And then to add Riches to this Glory, which noteth Abundance, this overwhelmeth the mind of man; how can he look further? What is the riches of the Glory of his Inheritance. So I have done with that. Ser. XXI.

Now I come to the Perſons whom this belongeth to. Here are two Perſons mentioned.

Firſt it is ſaid to be His inheritance, namely God's, Chriſt's.

But Secondly, In the Saints.

This little Pronoun here, αὐτοῦ, which is put in one would think againſt the hair; for look elſe where, and he calleth it Our Inheritance, ſo verſ. 4. The earneſt of our Inheritance: but when he would ſet out Heaven to the uttermoſt it is, What is the riches of the Glory of his inheritance, not of the Saints Inheritance ſo much, it is but in them; but His Inheritance in the Saints.

I have read over all the Comments that I can meet with, (and I think I have almoſt all) and I do not find them inſiſt at all upon this Particle, but I may truly ſay of it, that which they refuſe is the Head of this corner; it argueth the Glory of Heaven more than all the words beſides: That it is His inheritance, take it either of God the Father (of whom I think it is principally meant here, as I ſhall ſhew you by and by,) or take it of Chriſt.

To ſhew you in what ſenſes it may be called His inheritance, and that all theſe ſenſes argue to you what an infinite Glory it is.

Firſt it is His inheritance, becauſe he is the Father of it; therefore (if you mark it) he prayeth to God the Father of Glory in the words before. He calleth him the Father of Glory, becauſe he as the Father, doth give and beſtow this Inheritance, and therefore it is called His, His that beſtowed it; for it is His originally you know rather than the Sons that inheriteth. And you ſhall ſee how that muſt needs argue an infinite Glory that the Saints muſt have, becauſe it is His inheritance, his gift, and his as the Father of Glory (take that in too). Men give Inheritances according to their Eſtates, you ſhall know whether a man be rich or no when he dyeth, by his Inheritance he giveth. He is God the Father of Glory, ſo ſaith the 17*th. verſ.* He is God the God of Glory, ſo ſaith Act. 7.2. He is Chriſt the Lord of Glory, ſo ſaith 1 Cor. 2. He is King of Glory, ſo ſaith Pſal. 24.7. If he will give an Inheritance, he will do it like himſelf; therefore it muſt needs be a glorious Inheritance and a rich one, that which God meaneth to give as a Father.

I will give you a Scripture for it. It is Phil. 4. 19. (I quoted it before, but it cometh in now full for our purpoſe.) My God (ſaith he) ſhall ſupply all your need (or as the word is, all your deſires, the word ſignifieth both) according to his riches in Glory by Jeſus Chriſt. What is the meaning of this? God (ſaith he) he is a rich God and a glorious God, and he is a Father of Glory (ſo the 17*th. verſ.* calleth him here.) Now, ſaith he, he will not have theſe riches of Glory lye by him. You know Abraham when he had no Son, ſaith he, Lord thou haſt given me theſe riches, but behold to me thou haſt given no ſeed, I have never a Child to inherit it; therefore God giveth him Iſaac upon whom he might beſtow his riches and inheritance: So God had all theſe riches of Glory lying by, he choſeth him Sons to inherit, and when he beſtoweth an Inheritance upon them, it is according to that Glory of his, in proportion to his Riches that lye by him. Here is you ſee Riches and Glory, and accordingly doth he beſtow an Inheritance rich and glorious. It is therefore called His inheritance, and this argueth it to be great. Every man (you know) if he mean to give, will give according to his Eſtate. If the Apoſtle had ſaid Our inheritance, alas we are poor creatures, what inheritance is ours! But he doth ſay His inheritance, he argueth the greatneſs of it from his gift. I remember Alexander the Great when he had given a City to a mean man that asked it of him, he ſaid, I do not give a

Ser. XIX.

City away according the proportion of the man, but as it is fit for me to give. If Alexander will give gifts, he giveth Cities; if God will give gifts, it is according to the Riches of his Glory. It is His Inheritance.

Secondly, it is called His inheritance, which mightily doth argue this to be a glorious Inheritance which the Saints shall have (for it is In the saints, still take that, it all aggravateth the Glory of it,) I say it is called His, because he is in a special manner the Possessor of it, and the Maker of it.

I will give you Scripture for it, it is Psal. 115. 15, 16. Ye are blessed of the Lord which made Heaven and Earth (he made both you see) The Heaven even the Heavens (or the Heaven and the Heavens as most read it) are the Lords, but the Earth hath he given to the Children of men. What do I observe out of this place? This, As for the Earth (saith he) and all the good things in it, God doth give that away, let the Sons of men take it; I will let out that (saith he) nay I will give it freely, let them take it and do what they will with it, but saith he, The Heaven and Heavens is the Lords, he reserveth that to himself, as his possession, it is his Inheritance; the Earth he hath given away to men, that is their Inheritance, and let them take it, saith he, I made them both. Now if you observe the coherence of these words, this saying The Heaven and Heavens are the Lords, that is the third Heavens, it is brought in to shew how blessed the Saints are, he argueth it from this, for (saith he) ye are blessed of the Lord which made Heaven and Earth; why? The Heaven and the Heavens are the Lords, and the Earth he giveth to the Sons of men. The meaning is plainly this; How happy must the Saints be that must be taken up to Heaven, whenas Heaven is reserved for God himself, this World he careth not what becomes of it, he giveth that away. He argueth the Blessedness of the Saints from this, that Heaven is the Lord's inheritance, The Heaven and Heavens is the Lords, the Earth is not good enough for him, but the Heavens is his. Now my Brethren, what a mighty Glory then must that be which The Lord who made both Heaven and Earth reserveth to himself, and this Glory he takes the Saints up to: Therefore now in that it is His inheritance, he is the Possessor of it, he hath reserved that to himself, blessed must they needs be that do fear the Lord.

I could inlarge this, that God is the Maker of it too, out of Heb. 11.10. where it is said that God is the Maker and Builder of this City; it is His in that respect too, he hath shewed all his Art upon that, so the Word signifieth. Heaven was the first thing made: In the beginning he created the Heavens and the Earth, Heaven first. It was that he had in his eye from all Eternity, as the πλῆρωμα, the Perfection of all, as it is called, Rom. 6. 1. and therefore Mat. 25. it is said to be prepared from the beginning of the World, from the foundation of the World. The first thing that God ever made was that glorious State that he reserveth for himself, which is called his Dwelling-place 1 King. 8. 39. and his Throne Psal. 11. 4. (I will not stand upon that,) it is called likewise His inheritance in that sense too.

That which setteth forth the Glory of Heaven here, is that it is the Inheritance κληρονομίας of him in the Saints, and so the meaning is this, that God himself is the Inheritance of the Saints, what is the riches of the Glory of the inheritance of him by the Saints, that is, which the Saints have by inheriting him. My Brethren, will you know what Heaven is? It is the Inheriting of him, it is the Inheriting of God; He that overcometh shall inherit all things, I will be his God, Revel. 21. And therefore in the Scripture Phrase, God is called Heaven; saith the Prodigal, I have sinned against Heaven and before thee: And Dan. 4. 16. till thou knowest the Heavens rule, that is, That God ruleth. The Saints they shall inherit God, they have the possession of him κληρονομίας will signifie so too.

Now my Brethren, what an infinite Argument doth this afford of the Glory of Heaven, that it is the possession of God! Saith he, Mat. 25. 23. Enter into thy Masters joy, that is, into that Joy that God hath materially, it is the inheriting of him, the inheritance of him: And the Word entring is a Phrase that alludeth to an Inheritance, for then we enter into an Inheritance, when we take possession of it, it imployeth the full possession of it; and it is not to partake of it, but to enter into it, to take possession of it, it implyeth a fulness, it is not a participation so much.

My

Ser. XXI.

My Brethren do but think with your ſelves now, what Heaven muſt needs be when a man's Soul ſhall poſſeſs God as his Inheritance. An Inheritance, you know, is a thing for a man to uſe freely, and to be ones to the uttermoſt for his comfort; you ſhall have God, and all his Attributes ſet before you: Lo there is your Inheritance. Pſal. 16. 5. Thou art the lot of mine Inheritance; at thy right hand there are pleaſures for evermore. A man hath God ſet before him, improve him, be as happy as he can make you.

I have wondered at thoſe expreſſions in the Scripture, Rom. 15. 7. we are ſaid to be received to the Glory of God. 1 Theſſ. 2. 12. we are ſaid to be called to his Kingdom, and to his Glory. Revel. 21. 11. the City is ſaid to have the Glory of God, materially God's Glory is the Glory of the Saints, it is not the Glory of Creatures, or created Glory, it is the Glory of God that makes them happy. And Verſ. 22. 23. it is ſaid there that The City had no need of the Sun neither of the Moon to ſhine in it, for it is enlightned by God, The Glory of God did enlighten it, and the Lamb, ſaith he, is the Lamp thereof, ſo the Word ſignifieth, they ſhall need no other happineſs but to have God to be all in all, he is their Happineſs, it is the Inheritance of him.

And let me yet further expreſs this out of the place laſt mentioned. The Original here in the Text, when the Apoſtle ſaith it is The Riches of the Glory of his Inheritance, is τῆς δόξης κληρονομίας αὐτοῦ: he meaneth God the Father, or God the Son; I think God the Father, I will give you my Reaſon why; becauſe he prayeth to God as the Father of Glory that he would open their eyes to ſee what is the Riches of his inheritance. Now mark the Expreſſion there in that, *Rev.*21.23. he ſaith, God is the light of it, but The Lamb, he ſaith, is the lamp of it, and in *Rev.*2.28. you ſhall find him called the Morning Star; Chriſt is but the Lamp, he is but the Morning Star. Who is the chiefeſt happineſs in Heaven now? God. A happineſs beyond what Jeſus Chriſt as God-man affordeth, he is but the Lamp, but the Morning Star, God is all in all, when he hath given up the Kingdom to his Father, It is his inheritance, it is not the inheriting of Chriſt only, as poſſeſſing him.

I will convince you by this. Who is it that makes Chriſt as God-man happy? It is God, it is God immediately participated, God is All in All to the Lord Chriſt: Now he that is the hapineſs of Chriſt, ſhall immediatly be our happineſs too; for Jeſus Chriſt hath received us to the Glory of God, that is the expreſſion, Rom. 15. 7. into the Glory that himſelf hath. So that now there is abundance in this, that it is, the inheritance of him, of the Father of Glory, what is The Riches of the Glory of the inheritance in him, ſo the Word will likewiſe ſignifie.

I will give you but one meaning more, my Brethren, and I take it, it is the moſt proper here, and it is as great as any of the former, and it is this; What is the riches of the Glory of his inheritance in the Saints. The meaning is this, That the Glory that the Saints ſhall have, God reckoneth it to be his Inheritance, His Inheritance, ſaith he, in the Saints. The meaning is plainly this, That that Glory that ſhall ariſe to God, which he ſhall for ever live upon, as upon his Inheritance, ſhall ariſe out of theirs; it is not ſaid to be their Inheritance, but his Inheritance in them. My Brethren, there is much in this, not only are the People of God called God's Inheritance, but the Glory of the people of God in Heaven is called God's Inheritance too. In 2 Theſſ. 1. 10. it is ſaid that He ſhall come to be glorified in his Saints, and admired in all that believe; Mark his expreſſion, the Saints ſhall be glorified, but how? ſo as Jeſus ſhall be admired in them and glorified in them: And Rom. 9. 23. what if God willing (ſaith he) to make known the riches of his Glory on the veſſels of Mercy, which he had afore prepared unto Glory? Bringing veſſels of Mercy unto Glory, is but to make known the Riches of his Glory; his Glory ſhall ariſe out of theirs, therefore it is ſaid to be His Inheritance in the Saints.

Ser. XXI.

Now think with your ſelves this; It is not a ſmall deal of Glory that will content God as his Inheritance, for if he mean to manifeſt himſelf, he will do it like God. Ahaſuerus, when he made a Feaſt, he would do it like a King, to ſhew forth the riches of his glorious Kingdom, and the honour of his excellent Majeſty, as Eſth. 1.4. Now therefore, when God ſhall ſet himſelf to glorifie himſelf to the uttermoſt, and all that Glory that he meaneth to glorifie himſelf in, ſhall be in the Saints, and their glory ſhall be his Inheritance; what will this riſe to?

To explain this to you in a word, There is an Eſſential happineſs and Glory in God, which none can ſee; Thou canſt not ſee my Glory, ſaith he, Exod. 33.20. And there is a manifeſtative Glory that ariſeth out of his works. Now this Manifeſtative Glory he counteth his Inheritance, as well as the other; My Glory I will not give to another. He hath formed all for his Glory, that is, for the manifeſtation of his Glory, he counteth it his, his incommunicable; it is his Inheritance.

Now then, if that God will ſhew how glorious a God he is, by ſhewing how glorious a Creature he can make; how glorious muſt thoſe Creatures be! Eſpecially when their Glory muſt come up to be an Inheritance to God, that he may ſay, Lo, I have a goodly heritage. He that is the great God, and hath ſuch vaſt deſires of Glory, ſhall ſay, I am ſatisfied, here I will reſt; this is mine Inheritance that I will live upon for ever, even the Glory that I have beſtowed upon theſe Souls in Heaven. Think with your ſelves what theſe things are, what the riches of the glory of his Inheritance is in the Saints.

My Brethren, It is the laſt of his works: He takes this World here for none of his Inheritance, he will burn it to Aſhes, conſume it, turn it to its old Chaos; he takes Devils and Wicked men and flingeth them to Hell, they are loſt, they are cut off from his hand, they are none of his Inheritance. He takes Chriſt and the Saints up to Heaven and glorifieth them; Here is mine Inheritance, ſaith he, here is my reſt. As when he had made this World, which was to be but a type of this which is to come; he looks over all that he made, and the Text ſaith, He was refreſhed, Exod. 31. 17.

Now God will fling this World away, he flings wicked Angels and Men away, they are loſt, they are gone from him, he hath no more to do with them; he reckons not of them, he reckons them as refuſe things, as Lumber which he only layeth by for the fire. Then he takes the Saints up to Heaven, and there he reſteth, keepeth an eternal Sabbath; therefore it is called Entring into his reſt, that is the phraſe Pſal. 95.5. Oh, my Brethren, what is that think you, what Glory muſt that be that muſt come up to be an Inheritance for God to reſt in for ever! In all theſe ſenſes this particle here, His Inheritance, or Inheritance of him, what doth it ariſe to? The Lord open the eyes of our underſtanding, that we may know what the riches of the glory of his Inheritance is.

I have but one thing more to handle, and that is, In the Saints. He meaneth, as Camero hath well obſerved) Saints perfect, for they are the Subjects of this Glory. It is plain he meaneth ſo by what followeth in the next Verſe, for when he ſpeaks of Saints below on Earth, he changeth his phraſe, That you may know, that is, here below, the greatneſs of his power to us-ward that believe. So that here may be this caſt in likewiſe to make Heaven a glorious condition, That men's Spirits, to poſſeſs all this, ſhall be made perfectly holy. The Spirits of juſt men (ſaith he) made perfect. It is an Inheritance in the Saints; I ſhall behold (ſaith he) thy face in righteouſneſs, when I awake, at the Reſurrection, Pſal. 17.15. There is nothing but perfect Holineſs there.

But that is not the thing I aim at. But let us conſider Heaven from hence too, what the riches of his glory muſt needs be that God hath provided for Saints; take an Argument from them. I will give you an inſtance of it. You heard before, that the Earth God hath given to the Children of men, but the Heaven of Heavens he hath reſerved for his Saints. Well, raiſe up your thoughts now, This Earth here hath many good things in it, there is abundance of Glory and Riches in it, ſo much as the truth is, it draweth all the hearts of the Sons of men after it. To whom hath he given this Earth? To the wickedeſt of men, to the ungodlieſt of men; He giveth Kingdoms (ſaith he) to the baſeſt of men; ſo it is Dan. 4. 17. Nay, and the Devil himſelf is the King of this World, and he hath all the things here. He undertook to give the Kingdoms of the World, and the glory of them to Chriſt. He is the Prince that ruleth in the Air, the god of the World; carrieth all before him. Ser. XXI.

Now raiſe up your thoughts, Hath God given ſuch a World as this is, and all the glory of it to his worſt Enemies; to the very Devils themſelves, that were worſhipped for about Four hundred years by all the World, and had all the glory and riches of it? What hath he reſerved then for the Saints? What muſt be the riches of the glory of his Inheritance in the Saints; whom God loveth, whom he loveth from everlaſting: when they ſhall be made perfectly glorious without ſpot and wrinkle; glorious ſo, as God can fully delight in them, and they delight in him? What will be the riches of the glory of his Inheritance in the Saints?

And ſo now I have done with opening this, to ſhew you from all the Arguments the Text affordeth, what the riches of the glory of Heaven is. I have kept meerly to what the Text ſaith; and I have made this Vow with my ſelf, If I meet with Heaven in a Scripture, I will ſpeak of it ſo far as that Scripture ſhall give me ſcope to do; for no Subject will quicken the heart of more, than to lay open the riches of God's mercy, and the riches themſelves, Glory, and the unſearchable riches of Chriſt.

SER-

Ser. XXII

SERMON XXII.

EPHES. I. 19, 20.

And what is the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward who believe, according to the working of the might of his power.

Which he wrought in Chriſt when he raiſed him from the dead, and ſet him at his own right hand in the Heavenly places.

I will read the Words from the 16*th* Verſe.

Making mention of you in my Prayers, that the God of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the Father of glory, may give unto you the ſpirit of wiſdom and revelation in the knowledge of him.

The eyes of your underſtanding being enlightned, that you may know what is the hope of his calling; and what is the riches of the glory of his Inheritance in the Saints.

And what is the exceeding,&c.

THis is one of Paul's Prayers, and (as I take it) at this 20*th* Verſe doth this Prayer of his end; for the reſt is but a Doctrinal enlargment of what he ſaid laſt concerning Chriſt's exaltation.

I have divided this Prayer into two parts.

Firſt, The Perſon that he prayeth to, That the God of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the Father of Glory. When he would pray for all theſe glorious things, he thus ſtyleth God, repreſenteth God under theſe conſiderations to his Faith, The God of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the Father of glory.

Secondly, Here are the things he prayeth for. He prayeth firſt, that in a way of intimate knowledge and communion with God, they might have the Spirit both of wiſdom and revelation whereby to obtain it, to obtain intimate knowledge and communion with God, That he may give to you the Spirit of wiſdom and revelation in the knowledge of him. I have opened this at large.

In the Second place he prayeth, That he would give them eyes of their underſtanding enlightned, (for ſo I read the words) to know three things.

The Firſt, is, To know what is the hope of his Calling, (ſo at verſe 18.) that is, what grounds from the Calling of God they had to hope for Eternal life, and to ſee their intereſt by them. That ~~this~~ was the meaning of it, I have likewiſe handled, and ſhewed at large.

The

The Second thing he prays for, is, (after he had prayed that they might know their Intereſt, and the grounds of it,) That they might know the Glory, and the greatneſs of that Glory which they had intereſt in; and what the riches of the glory of his Inheritance is, in the Saints. Ser. XX.

And then Thirdly, That they might know that Almighty power, which both had begun the work in them, and would go on to bring them unto all this Glory; And what is the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward who believe, according to the working of the might of his power, (inſtancing in the power that raiſed up Chriſt from death to life,) which he wrought in Chriſt when he raiſed him from the dead, and ſet him at his own right hand in the Heavenly places.

The laſt thing I did was to open theſe words, What the riches of the glory of his Inheritance in the Saints is, which the Apoſtle prayeth they might know. In the handling of theſe words I propounded two things.

The Firſt is, How great and glorious the happineſs of the Saints in Heaven is, ſo far as the Apoſtle here repreſenteth it, while he calleth it The riches of the glory of his Inheritance in the Saints. It is an Inheritance, a rich Inheritance, a glorious Inheritance, and the riches of it conſiſteth in glory; and it is an Inheritance of God's beſtowing, and the Inheritance of himſelf indeed (for ſo the words will bear) and laſt of all in the Saints. How the glory of Heaven is ſet forth to us by all theſe things I ſhewed the laſt time.

The Second is, That the knowledge of this is uſeful to Believers, to have enlarged thoughts of the Glory of Heaven, experimental working thoughts in their minds about it. Therefore you ſee, as he ſetteth forth Heaven to them, it is in a way of Prayer, That they may know it; and to help them to know it, he deſcribeth it thus largely, and under ſo many words. So that now the Second thing that I am to handle and ſpeak to is this, The knowledge of the riches of the glory of this Inheritance, what this is to the Saints; for as he ſetteth out the thing it ſelf, ſo he prayeth for their knowledge of it.

Concerning the knowledge of it, which here he prayeth for, I ſhall but ſpeak theſe few things:

The Firſt is this, That it is proper to the Saints to have genuine and true thoughts of what the Glory of Heaven is. There is a peculiar knowledge that the Saints have of Heavens Glory, which wicked men have not. The Apoſtle you ſee here prayeth for theſe converted Epheſians, that they may know what is the exceeding riches of his glory, &c.

I ſhall name but one Scripture; it is *Heb.*10.34. You took (ſaith he) joyfully the ſpoiling of your goods, knowing in your ſelves that you have in Heaven a better and an enduring ſubſtance. Other men may know it by way of Notion, but the Saints know it in themſelves, they have a prelibation by Faith of Heavens Glory. When their goods were taken away, God ſealeth them Bills of Exchange in their own hearts to receive a better ſubſtance in Heaven. They know it in themſelves, ſo as no carnal heart in the World doth. Eye hath not ſeen, nor ear heard, nor hath it entred into the heart of man, ſaith the Apoſtle, (that is, of a Natural man, for ſo he expoundeth himſelf in the following Verſes, 1 *Cor.*2,9,10.) to know the things which God hath prepared for them that love him; But (ſaith he) God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit.

Therefore, Brethren, it is a great miſtake for men to ſay now, I ſeek God for Heavens ſake, and therefore I am an Hypocrite. No, If thou knoweſt what Heaven is; if thou haſt ſuch a knowledge of it as Paul here prayeth for, that lieth in communion with God, and in fellowſhip with him; and that he is the happineſs, and that thou findeſt a ſpirit ſuited to find happineſs in him alone. The more thou deſireſt Heaven, the more holy thy heart is. It is ſo far from being a ſign that thou art an hypocrite, that there is no greater ſign that thy heart is holy. Whom have I in Heaven but thee, (ſaith David,) and whom in Earth in compariſon of thee.

You will only make this Objection; Do the Saints know what Heaven is? why, Heaven, it paſſeth knowledge?

Ser. XXII.

I Anſwer. Herein lieth their uttermoſt knowledge of it, by that little they feel and believe, for they ſee it paſſeth their knowledge, and that is it which takes their heart ſo much. The very Objection doth prompt matter to my anſwer. I Anſwer that Objection with that which the Apoſtle ſaith, Epheſ. 3. 18, 19: He prayeth that they may be able to comprehend with all Saints, what is the breadth the length and depth and height, and to know the love of Chriſt; (but he addeth,) which paſſeth knowledge. So that now to ſay that Heaven paſſeth knowledge, that it is the Hidden Manna, the Manna in the Pot, (for that is meant by the Hidden Manna, the Manna that was hid in the Ark, which no man ever ſaw after it was put there,) to ſay that it is within the Vaile, unto which no man entred, (as the Apoſtle's alluſion is in the Hebrews.) Their knowledge lieth in this, that it paſſeth knowledge, and yet they are ſaid to know it, we know in part ſaith he, but they know ſo much of it, that it ſwalloweth up all their thoughts in the taſt and apprehenſion they have about it. And ſo much for the Firſt Obſervation concerning this knowledge, what is the riches of his Inheritance the Apoſtle prayeth for.

The Second Obſervation I make about it is this. That to have a taſting knowledge what Heaven is, is one of thoſe things that have the greateſt efficacy to carry on the heart to holineſs. Why doth the Apoſtle mention that when he would ſet himſelf to pray? His aim is to pray them holy, and to fit them for Heaven; you ſee he inſerteth this, he prayeth that they may know what the glory of Heaven is, and have working thoughts filling their hearts continually about it.

I will only give you one, and that the higheſt inſtance for this. It is the inſtance of our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt. What was it that had a mighty power upon his heart to bear out all his ſufferings, to be obedient to the death, to the death of the Croſs? The Apoſtle telleth us in Heb. 12.2. Looking to Jeſus the Author and finiſher of our Faith, who, for the joy that was ſet before him, endured the Croſs, deſpiſing the ſhame, and is ſet down at the right hand of the Throne of God. I know that the words may be read as well, that inſtead of the joy which he might have had, he did indure the Croſs; but this Interpretation ſuteth moſt with the Coherence, with what went before, that for the joy, apprehending what joy that was that was ſet before him, he indured the Croſs, and deſpiſed the ſhame; it was that which bore him up. That this is the ſcope of the Apoſtle appeareth by the connection of this Chapter with the former. In the former Chapter he had ſhewed how by faith all the Saints had lived; he inſtanceth how they ſought a Countrey, profeſt themſelves ſtrangers, their eyes were upon Heaven ſtill; he inſtanceth in all the Patriarchs, in Moſes who did chooſe rather to ſuffer affliction with the People of God, eſteeming the reproach of Chriſt greater riches than the treaſures of Egypt, for he had reſpect to the recompence of reward. Now, in the concluſion, of all, when he had brought in all his cloud of witneſſes that lived thus by faith, and eyed the recompence of reward; he bringeth in laſt of all Chriſt himſelf, who likewiſe (ſaith he,) for the joy that was ſet before him, endured the Croſs, &c. My Brethren, when our Saviour Chriſt came to die, when he ſtood before the High-Prieſt to anſwer for his life; the High-Prieſt asked him whether he were the Son of God or no? He knew the words would condemn him, yet he would ſpeak them, Nevertheleſs, (ſaith he,) you ſhall ſee the Son of Man come in his glory. It upheld him in his ſuffering, he ſpeaks it as to daſh them, ſo to comfort himſelf: For that joy which he had then in his eye, he indured the Croſs, and he deſpiſed the ſhame. Our Saviour Chriſt he had a repreſentation made him of all the glory of the world, ſo as never yet man had of it, either before him or ſince; Satan that is the God of the world, took him up into a high Mountain, on purpoſe to make Land-skips in the Air, of the glory of the world, and cauſed it all to paſs before him; it moved him not this. But God ſetteth the glory of Heaven before him, and this moveth him, and for that glory, and for that joy, he endured the Croſs, he deſpiſed the ſhame, ſo great an incouragement is it. Nay, I will go further with you Brethren, under enduring the Croſs is not meant only bodily death, but it is enduring the wrath of his Father, he was content to endure hell it ſelf, ſo far forth as the Son of God was capable to bear the wrath of his Father without desperation, and all such circumstances cut off; he indured all this, (for Hell is less than the joy of Heaven,) And what joy was it that he endured all this for? He might have been glorious in Heaven, as he was the Son of God, without it, for it was his right the first moment, that he should be made flesh, a right that could not be taken from him. It was but the glory of the Mediatorship, that made him endure all this, it was but an additional glory, yet so great it was as it upheld his soul to endure the Cross, and to despise the shame, and to bear with all the contradictions of sinners, and to be obedient all his life. Ser. XXII.

I will not stand urging other places upon you. Therefore we faint not, (saith the Apostle, 2 Cor. 4.) because we look upon things that are eternal, and not upon things that are temporal. Therefore we are always confident, (saith he in the 5*th.* Chapter following,) because we have an house with God not made with hands, but eternal in the Heavens. In the 1 Cor. 15. 58. when he had spoken of the glory of the Saints after the Resurrection, he exhorteth them there to all holiness, Therefore my beloved Brethren be ye always stedfast abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as you know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord. If this be the reward of it saith he, it will not be in vain; you have good wages, and he that giveth good wages, will look to have his work done well; it is an inference that he maks from the glory he will bestow upon the Saints after the Resurrection, read the whole Chapter.

There is but two men we read of beside our Lord and Saviour Christ that had any more eminent knowledge of Heaven than other men. The one was Paul, the other was Moses. Paul knew what was the riches of that glory, for he was wrapt up to the third heavens, you read of it 2 Cor. 12. And God vouchsafed Moses that priviledge to see his glory; therefore their grace wrought more than any man's we ever read of: It so much quickned the heart of Paul that I saith he, I that have been in Heaven, I could be contented to be accursed from Christ for the glory of God, and for the conversion of my Brethren. And Moses who had seen his glory, (which one would have thought would have made him so much the more to desire it,) Blot me out of the book of life saith he, It enlarged his heart so much the more to the glory of God. I can ascribe these large dispositions of spirit to nothing else, but that God took the one up to the Mount, and shewed him his glory, and took the other up to the third Heavens. So that there is no consideration almost that will have more working and powerful effects upon the Souls of men, to make them holy, than the knowledge of Heaven hath. As likewise Phil. 3. 18. Many walk (saith he,) as those that are Enemies to the Cross of Christ, whose end is destruction, whose God is their belly, who mind earthly things; but on the contrary saith he, our conversation is in Heaven, from whence we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall change our vile bodies that it may be fashioned like to his glorious body. That will make a man heavenly minded, if he look for the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and the glory that is to come. Therefore doth the Apostle pray here that they may know what is the riches of that glory of his Inheritance. And so much now for the use that the knowledge of Heaven is unto believers, and so I have done with the second particular the Apostle prayeth for.

I am behind hand in one debt to you. I slipped over that first part of Paul's Prayer, the Titles he giveth God in the beginning of his Prayer. I must pay this debt. I will therefore do it briefly. I therefore choose to bring it in here, after that I had spoken of Heaven and the glory thereof, because those Titles do agree with the particular matter of his prayer more especially.

The Titles he giveth to God when he prays to him for these Ephesians for these great things is, as he is the Father of Glory and the God of Christ. Making mention of you in my Prayers, (saith he,) that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the Father of glory would do so and so for you. The manner of the Apostles is this in all their prayers, to give such stiles and titles to God as was suitable to the matter that they prayed for. Paul here he prayeth for knowledge, spiritual knowledge of glorious things, he prayeth that they may know what is the riches of the glory of his Inheritance, & all this to be bestowed upon them in & through Christ, Ser. XXII. therefore in the beginning of his prayer he calleth him the God of Chriſt and the Father of glory.

And Firſt, why he calleth him the God of Chriſt. It is ſpoken in relation to his humane nature, for take Jeſus Chriſt as he is the ſecond perſon and God, it is an improper ſpeech to ſay he is the God of him as he is God; but as he is a man, ſo he is the God of Chriſt. I opened this when I handled the Third verſe, therefore I will not inſiſt upon it now, bleſſed be the God (ſaith he there,) and the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, &c. I will paſs over that now, only in a word, he is called the God of Chriſt in diſtinction from the ſtile in the Old Teſtament. How did the Old Covenant run? I will be the God of Abraham, and of Iſaac, and of their ſeed. How doth the New Teſtament run? I will be the God of Chriſt, and of his ſeed. Abraham was there in a Type of Chriſt; and the Covenant was made with him. Now, becauſe he is the God of Chriſt as of a publick perſon that hath ſeed, all the faithful, juſt as he was the God of Abraham that was to have ſeed; hence therefore when he prayeth to God for any Mercy or Bleſſing which is to be conveyed to them in and through Chriſt, he preſenteth God to himſelf and to his Faith as the God of Chriſt, to ſhew the foundation of obtaining all bleſſings.

What is the Obſervation from this in a word? This. Joyne the Third verſe and the Sixteenth verſe together. In the Third verſe, when he would bleſs God, under what notion doth he do it? Bleſſed be the God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who hath bleſſed us with all ſpiritual bleſſings in heavenly things. Here in the 16*th.* verſe, when he would pray to God, he uſeth the ſame ſtile, That the God of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt may give unto you, ſo and ſo. The Obſervation then is plainly this. That all mercies from God do deſcend down to us in and through Chriſt, and all prayers and bleſſings we put up to him, they ſhould be all as to the God, and in the name of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Therefore ſaith he in his bleſſing, Bleſſed be the God of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who hath bleſſed us with all ſpiritual bleſſings in Chriſt; therefore ſaith he in his prayer, that the God of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt may give unto you thus and thus.

But Secondly, Father of Glory, that is the Second Title which here he giveth God. We find in other Scriptures, that he is called the God of glory, Act. 7. 2. That Chriſt is called the Lord of glory, 1 Cor. 2.8. There are many other Scriptures where he is called King of glory, Lord of glory, God of glory; but there is not one other where he is called Father of glory but only here.

There are ſome would read the words thus, they would make a Parentheſis in theſe words, The God of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and the Father of glory, that is, The God (of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the Father) of glory, and ſo they make the ſenſe thus, The God of glory, and the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, joyning God and Glory together, becauſe it is an uncouth phraſe, the like is not in all the Scripture again. But my Brethren, we may well adventure upon the phraſe as it is, and indeed it lieth more fair in the Original, and that is thus, that God is the Father of glory.

He is called Firſt the Father of glory by way of eminency of Fatherhood, there is no ſuch Father as he, he is a glorious Father, and ſo by way of Hebraiſme, he is a Father of glory; that is a glorious Father, ſuch as no Father elſe is. He is called the King of glory, there are other Kings, but he only is the glorious King. There are other Fathers, he only is the Father of glory, he is therefore called the Heavenly Father; it is an expreſſion the Scripture in the New Teſtament often uſeth, and in the Lords Prayer it is. It is ſuch a kind of expreſſion as you uſe to Children, when you would commend the excellency of a thing to them, you uſe to call it golden, you ſhall have a golden Ball, or a golden Girdle, or a golden Coat; becauſe that is a notion under which they apprehend the excellency of a thing. Heaven and Glory are the higheſt things we are comprehenſive of, when he would ſet out how great a God, how glorious a Father he is, he calleth him heavenly Father, a Father of glory in diſtinction to all Fatherhoods.

My

My Brethren, the Uſe or Obſervation, call it which you will,) ſhall be in a word this. Never be aſhamed of your Father, you that are the Sons of God, you are the higheſt born in the world; no Nobility riſeth to glory, your Father is the Father of glory; and therefore walk worthy of him, and let your good works ſo ſhine before men that you may glorifie your Father, the Father of glory, which is in Heaven. That is the firſt. Ser. XXII.

He is Secondly, called the Father of glory, that is, the Father of the Deity, taking Father for the ſpring, the fountain; the head as it is often taken in the Scripture. He is not the Father of the God-head of Chriſt, as if he did beget the Godhead of Chriſt; No, the Object of his Father-hood in that ſenſe is only of the Perſon of Chriſt. But we may ſay he is Fons Deitatis, he is the fountain of the Deity; and ſo Divines expreſs it and the word Father will import it. We find that glory in Scripture is put for the Deity for the Divine nature. Exod. 33. 18. No man can ſee my glory (that is my Deity,) and live.

Now my Brethren, to conſider that God is the Father of the Deity that he is Fons Deitatis, when we come to pray to the Father, (and therefore indeed all prayers are put up to him in a more ſpecial manner,) it is a mighty ſtrengthning of a man's faith. Why? He that is the fountain of glory, of the Deity it ſelf, communicated that Deity to the Son and unto the Holy Ghoſt, that is to ſtrengthen a man's faith that he will communicate grace and glory to a poor Creature; therefore he prayeth here for grace and glory, glorious grace, he prayeth to him as the Father of glory in that ſenſe as I take it now. My Brethren, it is a great ſtrengthning to our faith, that thoſe things which are only in God himſelf, between himſelf and himſelf, yet may be props to our faith, that he will be our God and do that for us in our meaſure that he hath done to the Perſons and to himſelf. For example. One of the greateſt and ſtrongeſt Arguments we have to ſupport our faith is, that God is the Father of Chriſt. But how is he the Father of Chriſt? By Eternal generation; yet this is put in as an Argument to ſtrengthen faith, that he will be the Father of all thoſe that are Chriſt's. When you come likewiſe to pray for grace at his hands, conſider it, he is able to give me a poor Creature grace, for he was the fountain of the Deity it ſelf, he was the Father of glory, taking in that ſenſe. He that is able to communicate the God-head to the Son and Holy Ghoſt, he is able to communicate grace and glory to me. You know that God is juſt, it is an Attribute in him, we may plead this Attribute as it is in himſelf, he having declared himſelf to be our God; if he be juſt he muſt forgive ſins now, if he be God he muſt forgive ſins. So that all thoſe intrinſical things in God himſelf, all his Attributes, thoſe ways which indeed were natural between him and his Son, to be the Father of glory, they are all made ingagements, (we being in Chriſt,) and ſtrengthners to our faith to obtain and ſeek things at his hand.

A Third Reaſon, why he calleth him Father of glory is. He had ſpoken here you ſee of riches of glory, and riches of glory as his Inheritance, ſo he calleth it. Now what ſo proper, (if he ſpeaks of a rich glorious Inheritance, which is God's Inheritance given by him,) then to call him when he putteth this into his prayer, the Father of glory? That is, the Author of all that glory, the contrition of all that glory which the Saints have in Heaven. Likewiſe in his diſcourſe following he mentioneth all the glory that Jeſus Chriſt hath, he ſaith he had raiſed him from the dead, he hath ſet him at his right hand, far above all Principalities and Power, given him a name above every name, given him to be the head over all things to the Church. He was the Father of the glory of Chriſt. Becauſe he was to ſpeak of our glory, and of the glory of Chriſt, and was to inſiſt upon it in the following words, therefore he premiſeth and calleth God the Father of glory.

My Brethren, this is the honour that God the Father hath, that (Take Chriſt as he is Man and Mediator,) all the glory he hath the Father has given him by an act of his will, and ſo in that ſenſe he is more peculiarly the Father of glory; he is the Father of all the glory Chriſt hath, of all the glory the Saints have. And becauſe the Apoſtle ſpeaks of both theſe, therefore he mentioneth this in his title, Father of glory. Look in Matt. 16. 27. he ſaith that the Son of Man ſhall come in the glory of his Father with his Angels, though Chriſt calleth the Angels his, as being their Lord; yet the glory himſelf ſhall have, he calleth his Fathers. Ser. XXII. And ſo much now for the opening of the Phraſe, why it is put in to this Prayer, Father of glory.

I now proceed unto the 19*th.* verſe. And what is the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward who believe, according to the working of the might of his power, (ſo it is in your Margins,) which he wrought in Chriſt when he raiſed him from the dead, &c.

Here is a Third thing that the Apoſtle prayeth for, That they might have enlightned eyes, to know the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward who believe; &c. I muſt Firſt give you the Coherence of the words, why this cometh in here, and next it ſhooteth through the whole Chapter, it ſhooteth up ſmall roots, it hath Coherence higher than the words juſt before.

The reference of theſe words is manifold. He had ſpoken much of God's good will to his Children, in the former Verſes. Read all his diſcourſes from the third Verſe to the 15*th*; he telleth them there, how God had choſen them before the World was, had redeemed them by the riches of his Grace; he had forgiven their ſins, had accepted them in his beloved, he had predeſtinated them to a glorious Inheritance. Here is enough ſpoken of his good Will. Now to ſtrengthen their hearts and their Faith ſo much the more, he addeth, the greatneſs of his power, which his Will putteth forth in their ſalvation. As he had doctrinally taught them, and inſtructed them in the good Will of God from everlaſting; ſo now he likewiſe prayeth, that they may know the power of God, the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward who believe.

My Brethren, Do but joyn Power and Will together and it breedeth ſtrong Conſolation. If God be for us (ſaith he, having ſpoken of his predeſtinating us from everlaſting,) who ſhall be againſt us? They are the two Ingredients in thoſe ſtrong Cordials, Rom. 8. Now he ſtrengthneth their Faith in this power of God, to be as much engaged for their good as his Will. He ſtrengthneth their Faith in it by two things.

Firſt, By what already he had wrought; He had wrought Faith in them, To us-ward who believe.

In the Second place, He ſtrengthneth their Faith by what he had wrought in Chriſt, and in Chriſt as a common Perſon and Head repreſenting us. He raiſed up Chriſt your Head, gave him to be to you as a publick Perſon in Heaven. He that raiſed up Chriſt perſonally, will raiſe up Chriſt myſtically; and the ſame power that wrought in one, ſhall work in the other. Here is Power and Good-will joyned, you ſee. Here is one ſcope, why he mentioneth his Power, and bringeth it in to this Prayer ſo ſolemnly.

A Second ſcope the Apoſtle had, was to provoke them to Thankfulneſs. You may be ſure that that was one of his great ſcopes, for he telleth them, that he gave Thanks for them; I alſo, ſaith he, give thanks for you, and ceaſe not to do it, for the great things God hath done for you; ſo he telleth them verſe 15. Now, that they might know how much they were beholden to God, as he had laid open to them the Love of God, the riches of his Grace in the former Verſes: ſo now he laieth open to them the greatneſs of his power, which he had, and would put forth in their ſalvation. He had told them before, they had obtained an Inheritance by Faith; But (ſaith he) you little think how much Power this Faith coſt the working, it coſt the exceeding greatneſs of his power. He mentioneth that to make them thankful for the work of Faith; that when they ſhall conſider the guilt of Sin that once they lay in, they might know it is of the riches of his Grace that they had forgiveneſs: ſo when they look but upon the power of God that wrought Faith in them, whereby they obtained that Forgiveneſs, and which was engaged to bring them to ſalvation, they might magnifie the exceeding greatneſs of his power. Put but both theſe together, and how thankful will it make a man to God! How will it provoke a man to glorifie God for the Power he putteth forth in working Faith, and in bringing a man to ſalvation!

I

I will give you a Scripture that falleth in with this Coherence. It is Coloſſ. 1. 12,13. he there giveth thanks to God, as here likewiſe, Giving thanks (ſaith he) unto the Father, which hath made us meet to be made partakers of the Inheritance of the Saints in light. How made us meet? He hath delivered us from the power of darkneſs, and hath tranſlated us into the Kingdom of his dear Son. He magnifieth God here as in ordaining them to an Inheritance, ſo in tranſlating them, and reſcuing them, as it were by force and violence, from the power of Sin and Satan, they once lay under. And that is the ſecond ſcope, why he mentioneth the exceeding greatneſs of his power, here. Ser. XXII.

In the Third place, The laſt thing he had mentioned, was the riches of the glory of his Inheritance; and he had ſet out the riches of the glory of it by many Arguments, as I ſhewed in the laſt diſcouſe: here he mentioneth the Exceeding greatneſs of his power engaged to glorifie them, even the ſame that he put forth in Chriſt, when he raiſed him up to life and glory, as one of the higheſt Arguments to let them ſee what Heaven was, and the Glory of it. Why? For that muſt needs be an infinite maſs of Glory, which hath the exceeding greatneſs of God's Power engaged to work it, the ſame Power which raiſed up Chriſt from death to glory; for the effect muſt be anſwerable to the cauſe. Now, ſaith he, if you did but conſider what an exceeding greatneſs of Power there is engaged to glorifie you, you will fall down before the apprehenſion of what Glory this Power muſt work in you; the work muſt be anſwerable to the cauſe, if there be an exceeding greatneſs of Power goes to glorifie Saints, then the Glory muſt bear ſome proportion with it. That is a third Coherence.

In the Fourth place, a Fourth ſcope, Coherence, or reference, is this, When he had prayed that they might know what intereſt they had to Heaven, what the hope of their Calling was, and that they might know how great the Glory was; might ſome Soul begin to think, Alas, we are poor Creatures, (looking upon their vile Bodies,) ſhall theſe vile Bodies of ours ever come to be filled with ſo much Glory? How is it poſſible? Carnal Reaſon will be conſidering, as Abraham's Carnal Reaſon would have him conſider the deadneſs of his own Body, and the deadneſs of Sarahs Womb: ſo Carnal Reaſon will conſider the vileneſs of a man's Body and of his Soul, and the lowneſs and meanneſs of it, and argue as Mary did, when ſhe was told ſhe ſhould be the Mother of the Meſſiah, Luk. 1. 34. How can this be? Saith he, ver. 37. The power of the Higheſt ſhall overſhadow thee; and with God, ſaith he, nothing is impoſſible. He mindeth her of the Power of God. So here, when he had laid open the Glory of that Inheritance, to take away all doubting that they might be raiſed up to it, he prayeth that they might know what the exceeding greatneſs of his Power is that will work this.

I will give you a Scripture anſwerable to this Coherence too. It is Phil. 3 21. Who ſh all change our vile bodie, that it may be faſhioned like to his glorious body. How? According to the working, whereby he is able to ſubdue all things to himſelf. He doth ſuggeſt to their doubting Faith the exceeding riches and greatneſs of his Power, whereby he is able to ſubdue all things to himſelf, as that which was able, if to do all things, then this; and alſo certainly would change their vile Bodies, and raiſe them up to this Glory.

There were worſer Doubts than this that might riſe in their hearts; for they might not only conſider the vileneſs of their own Bodies, but the ſinfulneſs of their own hearts, and that is the worſer doubt of the two. They might not only ſay, How ſhall ſuch vile Creatures as we, ever come to be made glorious? But we are ſinful Creatures, and though we ſee for the preſent the hope of our Calling, and that we have intereſt in Heaven, and though we ſee what a glorious eſtate it is; yet we may miſcarry before we come thither, and we ſhall one day periſh by the hand of Saul, (as David ſaid;) ſome Sin or other may undo us, and make us fall from God. Therefore to take this doubt away, what doth he do? He prayeth next, that they might know what is the exceeding greatneſs of his Power in them that believe, for to bring them unto this Glory; a Power, which as it had been put forth infallibly, in raiſing up Jeſus Chriſt from death to life,

life, and bringing him to Glory, should as infallibly be put forth in bringing them to Glory also. And so now, this added to the former, it makes a man have strong Consolation.

Do but see all these Three things put together, and what strong confidence must it needs work in a Christian's heart! If he seeth the hope of his Calling, what grounds he hath that he is one to whom this Inheritance belongeth. If he seeth Secondly, what the Glory of this Inheritance is, and hath mighty vast and stunning thoughts of it working in his heart. And Thirdly, If he seeth the exceeding greatness of that power that is engaged to keep the Soul, that for the present hath this interest to eternal life. Put all these together, what could be more prayed for? Therefore the Apostle bringeth in that next, That you may know the exceeding greatness of his power, &c.

I Will give you a Scripture that agreeth with all these Scopes too, and mentioneth the very same things in the same order, 1 Pet. 1. 3. only there he mentioneth it by way blessing God, whereas he mentioneth it here by way of prayer to God; but he bringeth in all three things there in a way of blessing, that he doth here in a way of prayer, and in the same order. Blessed be God (saith he) who hath begotten us by the Resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead to a lively hope, that is, to have an assurance and hope of Salvation that putteth life into a Man's Soul. Here is the Hope of their calling. 2. To an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in Heaven for you. Here is the Riches of the Glory of his inheritance described, that is the second thing (you know) in the Text. 3. Who are kept, saith he, by the power of God through Faith unto Salvation. Here is the third. That ye may know (saith he here) what is the hope of your calling; That you may what is the riches of the Glory of his inheritance in the Saints; And that you may know the exceeding greatness of that power that keepeth you thus to Salvation. So now you have the full Scope and Coherence of these words in the general.

The parts of these Words in the 19*th.* vers. they are these Four.

Here is First, a more general Amplification or Description of the Power of God as here it is set forth.

Here is in the Second place, the Persons whom this power is ingaged to, to work their Salvation and their good; it is to us that believe.

Here is Thirdly, the things wherein this power is seen, both in Christ's Resurrection and in working Faith, it is in them that believe, and in raising them up at last to that Glory that Christ in Heaven hath.

Fourthly, here is the use that the knowledge of this will be of to a Christian; wherefore the Apostle prayeth they may know it.

To begin with the First, he prayeth they may know What is the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward. He describeth the power while he prayeth they may know it. Even just as before while he prayed that they might know what Heaven's Glory is, he giveth the strongest description of it that could be, That ye may know what is the riches of the Glory of his inheritance in the Saints. So here when he would have them know what the Power of God is, that is put forth to believers, he setteth it forth in words, he wrappeth in such a description of it in his prayer, that might open their eyes to see what it was, What is the exceeding greatness of his power.

First the description of the Power of God here set forth hath two parts in it, I reduce it to two Heads.

I. The excellency and sublime greatness of the Power of God ingaged to Believers. He calleth not only great power, but greatness of power, and not content with that, it is τὸ ὑπερβάλλον μεγεθος, the exceeding, super-excellent, sublime, overcoming, triumphing greatness of his power.

II. He describeth it by the infallible efficacy of this Power, that it will certainly bring to pass the thing which you believe and hope for, and which God hath intended to you. According (saith he) to the effectual power, for so the Word signifieth, κατὰ τὴν ἐνέργειαν, the effectual working of the might of his strength ſtrength, ſo you may interpret it and the Original bears it; According to the effectual working of the might of his ſtrength, of the force of his ſtrength. He ſetteth forth I ſay this Power, Firſt by the excellency and ſublime greatneſs of it; and Secondly by the efficacy of it, it is efficacious, it bringeth things to paſs. Ser. XXII.

Now to open theſe a little unto you, and to begin firſt with the deſcription of the excellency of this Power. I ſhall open the Phraſes to you, for that will make way for the reſt.

He calleth it Firſt The greatneſs of his power. When he ſpeaks of the power of creating, he never giveth ſuch a Phraſe to it; he ſheweth forth his power there indeed, he ſaith, His power and Godhead, Rom. 1.20. When he ſpeaks of the work of Grace and Salvation, then he calleth it The greatneſs of his power. You ſhall find that uſually, ὁ πλοῦτος, as we call it, that is of number is attributed to mercy, and to the wiſdom of God; but μέγεθος namely greatneſs it is attributed to the Power of God. You no where read the riches of his Power, you no where read of his powers; but you read of his mercies, and riches of mercy, but his Power conſiſteth of greatneſs. Pſal. 147. 5. Great is our Lord and of great power; look how great God is in himſelf, ſo great is his Power, if you would know The greatneſs of his power; but when he ſpeaks of his Underſtanding in the next words, His underſtanding, ſaith he, is infinite. Look in your Margents, in the Hebrew it is, Of his underſtanding there is no number; he attributeth an infinity of number to Underſtanding, and ſo to his Mercy; but when he cometh to ſpeak of his Power, it is a bulk, Great is the Lord and great is his power. Schoolmen have laboured to give reaſons why God is omnipotent, but as Divines well obſerve, all their reaſons fall ſhort to prove it, and there is no reaſon to prove it but this which the Pſalmiſt giveth, The Lord is great, and therefore great is his power.

If you will know therefore how great his power is, conſider how great a God he is, and all the power that is in this God is ingaged to ſave a poor Believer. All Being hath ſome power that doth accompany it, to do ſomething; there is no Creature that hath a Being but hath a power to do ſomething, only becauſe the Creatures have limited Beings; one Creature hath power to do one thing and another Creature hath power to do another thing. Now give me one of an infinite Being and he muſt have an infinite power; as he is in Being ſo muſt he be in working. The Lord is great and great is his power, his power is as great as himſelf. So much now for the Firſt thing, the Greatneſs of his power.

He doth not only ſay the greatneſs of his power, but he addeth That Word hath theſe Three forces in it.

In the Firſt place, it ſignifieth an excelling power that putteth all power elſe down. 2 Cor. 3. 10. the ſame word is uſed where he ſpeaks of the Glory of the Goſpel, The glory, ſaith he, that the Law hath, is no glory, in compariſon of that which excelleth, it is the ſame word which is tranſlated here, exceeding. Take all created powers, my Brethren, and they are nothing to God.

I will give you a Scripture for it. It is in 1 Cor. 1. 25. The weakneſs of God, ſaith he, is ſtronger than man's ſtrength. He hath a power that excelleth, that exceedeth, that all the power of the Creature is no power to it. That is the Firſt thing.

In the Second place, the word τὸ κράτος, it doth ſignifie ſometime overcoming, prevailing. He hath an exceeding greatneſs of power in him, ingaged to Believers, which is a prevailing power, nothing can reſiſt it. Saith he, Phil 3.21. (where he ſpeaks of the power that ſhall glorifie Believers) According to the working whereby he is able even to ſubdue all things to himſelf; he is able to ſubdue them, to conquer them. It is κράτος, it is a conquering, prevailing greatneſs of his power that is able to ſubdue all things. It makes nothing riſe to ſomething, it makes all things arrive to whatſoever he will have them come to, they have all an obediential faculty in them to obey him, he is able to ſubdue all things to himſelf, and by that power he will glorifie Believers.

Again

Ser. XXII. Again in the Third place. It is called ὑπερβάλλον, a supereminent, surpassing greatness of power, because it passeth our knowledg. In Ephes. 3.19. he useth the same word, τὴν ὑπερβάλλουσαν τῆς γνώσεως ἀγάπην, you translate it, The love of God that passeth knowledge. It is the same word that is used here. It is a power that exceedeth all our thoughts, as it is Ephes. 3. 20. To him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we are able to ask or think, it is so exceeding, what he will do for Believers, that they are not able so much as to think. As far as the Heavens are above the Earth, so are his thoughts (and so his power) above ours. It doth not only exceed the power of the Creature, and excel it, all that which is in the Creature is as nothing to it, but it excelleth all their thoughts. I have quoted Scriptures that imply all these significations of the words. And so much for the First part, that description of the exceeding greatness of his power, the excellency of it.

In the Second place, he setteth forth this power by the efficacy of it in the next words, According, saith he, to the efficacious working of the might of his strength. As I take it the scope of these words is to shew that it is such a power that works in Believers, as will always do the things that God intendeth to do with it, as hath an efficacy, a thorough working in it; every word is Emphatical to imply so much.

First, the word that is translated working ἐνεργείαν, it implyeth an efficacy of working, such as bringeth the thing to pass. To give one instance, 2 Thes. 2. 11. God shall send upon them ἐνεργείαν πλάνης efficaciousness of errour, an efficay of errour, they shall be given up to delusions efficaciously and strongly, so as their understandings shall not resist them. More plainly, Phil. 3. 21. According, saith he, to the efficacy, the Energie whereby he is able to subdue all things. So that now that is the First thing, it doth note out an efficacy which is implyed in the first word which we translate working, it is Energia.

The words that follow do as plainly and manifestly express an efficacy and an ability to do what he will for Believers, he calleth it an Efficacy of the force of his strength, or of the might of his strength. Look in your Margents and you will find it so translated out of the Greek. Τὸ κράτος τῆς ἰσχύος αὐτοῦ, It is the Energie of the might of his strength. One word was not enough to express the power that works thus strongly, he therefore doubleth it as the manner of the Hebrews is. He doth not say According to the working of his power, or according to the working of his might; but he putteth two words together, Of the might of his strength, that is, as the doubling in the Hebrew Phrase, it implyeth the uttermost of a thing, as thus, The Holy of Holiest, that is of the most Holy, so the might of his strength, that is, his uttermost strength.

You shall find it is doubled of God to shew the greatness of his strength when he works a thing infallibly and bringeth it to pass. Isa. 40. 26. Lift up your eyes on high, and behold, who hath created these things (the Heavens he meaneth) that bringeth out their host by number, and calleth them all by names, by the greatness of his might, for that he is strong in power, not one faileth When he doubleth the Attribute makes him strong in power, (as here he doth) then alwaies followeth an efficacy, a thorough working the thing, Not one faileth, he never faileth when he putteth forth the might of his strength, as the word here is. And you shall find the Septuagint use the very same words that are used here in their Translation of those words. As likewise in Job. 12. 16. With him is strength and power, the Septuagint read it κράτος καὶ ἰσχύς, the same words that are used here. It is doubled to shew the mighty effectualness of his power, when God will do a thing so as to put forth the might of his strength he will certainly bring the thing to pass. Now saith he, the might of his strength works efficaciously in all them that believe The exceeding greatness of his power according to the working of the might of his strength.

Now that his scope is to shew the efficaciousness, the irresistableness of his power in working what he meaneth to work in Believers, it appeareth by what followeth; for what doth he instance in? He putteth forth, saith he, the same power toward you Believers that he wrought in Christ when he raised him from the dead to glory. Now I appeal to all your thoughts what power it was, that was put forth when God raiſed Chriſt from the dead; a power that could not be reſiſted; a power that ſhould as certainly raiſe him up as God is God, and it was impoſſible it ſhould be otherwiſe. I will give you Scripture for it and reaſon. Ser. XXII.

The Scripture is, Act. 2. 24. Whom God hath raiſed up, having looſed the pains of death, becauſe it was not poſſible he ſhould be holden by it. Now the power that works in a Believer is ſuch a power as works according to the efficacy of the might and ſtrength that wrought in Chriſt in raiſing him from Death to Life.

Now to gather up this. The Apoſtle here would have them apprehend two things concerning the power of God that is ingaged to them. He would have them firſt to apprehend the excellency of it, that they might admire it as it is in God. That is the ſcope of the firſt word, To know the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward who believe, that as it is Epheſ. 3. 20. To him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, unto him be glory in the Churches for ever. He layeth open the greatneſs of his power as it is in it ſelf in the firſt words that they might admire it in God, and thank him for it. But ſecondly he addeth the efficacy that this power will have in them to bring them to ſalvation in the next words, According to the working of the might of his power to the end to comfort them. He addeth the one that they might admire the power in God; he addeth the other to comfort them, when they ſhall ſee ſuch a power works as ſhall efficaciouſly bring a thing to paſs, and as effectually and irreſiſtably as it wrought in raiſing up Chriſt form the dead. That as it was impoſſible that God ſhould looſe his Son, and his eldeſt Son, as he had loſt him when he was not raiſed up again; therefore when he raiſed him up, he ſaith, Thou art my Son this day have I begotten thee; he was loſt before. This power ſaith he, ſhall work in you and bring you to Salvation; that power that wrought in Chriſt when he raiſed him from death to Glory.

I will but add one thing more with which I will end; and that is, the Perſons whom this great power of God, this exceeding greatneſs of his power, a power as great as God himſelf, a power as efficacious as what wrought in Chriſt when he was raiſed from the dead; to whom is all this power ingaged? It is ingaged to us-ward: That is the Second thing. I will but ſpeak a word or two to it, and ſo conclude.

The Firſt Obſervation is this; That the ſimple conſideration of what power is in God, of Mercy or any other attribute, will never comfort a man's heart; unleſs that he have a knowledge that it is to us-ward, and for our good. The Apoſtle doth not, you ſee, pray ſimply that they may know what is the Exceeding greatneſs of his power in it ſelf, that would have done them no good; but he prayeth that they may know what is the Exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward. The Devils they know what mercy is in God; yea, but ſay they, it is not to us-ward; therefore all their knowledg of it doth them no good. So likewiſe you may read, 2 Pet. 3.9. ſpeaking of the Mercy of God to men, and as is thought, peculiarly to the Jews to whom he there writeth, ſaith he, It is his long-ſuffering to us-ward, not willing that any ſhould periſh, but that all ſhould come to Repentance. Here lieth that which works the comfort in a man's heart; that it is, the power of God to us-ward: To us a Child is born, to us a Son is given; and Peace on Earth, not in Hell; becauſe there is peace on earth to us-ward; this is it that draweth a mans heart; this is it which giveth the comfort. That is the firſt Obſervation. Obſerv.

But the ſecond is the main Obſervation, and it is this; That toward the Saints, and for their good and their Salvation, God doth ingage the uttermoſt of all his Attributes; ingageth the uttermoſt of power, the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward. It is not ſo in any work elſe, ſaith he, or toward any Creature elſe; but it is to us-ward. He doth ingage the greateſt of his Mercies, the uttermoſt of them to us-ward: I ſhall give you Scripture for both by and by. He had mentioned in Verſ. 11. the power of God that works all things; He worketh all things by the Council of his will, ſaith he. But there is a peculiarneſs of power, the power that works in us that believe; it is the exceeding greatneſs Obſerv.

Ser. XXII.

of his power to us-ward. The mercies of God they are mercies to us-ward, such as to none else, they are called therefore by way of distinction the sure mercies of David; that is of David and his seed, the faithful, such mercies as to no Creature else, singular mercies, special mercies; others are common mercies, (as Divines use to call them,) but these are mercies to us-ward, sure mercies of David. So now when he speaks of power in other Scriptures, he putteth a singularity of power that works in believers, a power equal to that which works in all things else. Look Phil. 3. 21. and Eph. 3. 20. According to the power that works in us, so it is in the Ephesians, According to the working whereby he is able to subdue all things to himself, so it is in the Phillippians. Take all the power whereby he is able to do all things else, and it is but equal to that which he works in the Saints.

My Brethren, the Grace of God in Christ, and the salvation of mankind by Christ was a new stage God set up to bring all his Attributes upon, to act their parts to the uttermost. He had shewed them all before, he had shewed power in creating the world, and a great power; but when he cometh to make the New Creation then cometh in the exceeding greatness of his power, he speaks superlatively of it. He sheweth mercy, nay he sheweth riches of mercy to wicked men, it is called the riches of his goodness and long suffering, Rom. 2. 4. But when he cometh to speak of mercy to the Saints, what doth he do? Read Ephes 2. 7. He doth not only call it riches of mercy, but he calleth it by the same word that is used here τὸν ὑπερβάλλοντα πλοῦτον, the exceeding great riches, what is said of power here, the same is said of mercy there when he speaks of mercy to believers, The exceeding riches of his grace to us-ward there, The exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward here, All the Attributes of God that he bringeth upon the stage, he acts them, to the uttermost now in and through Christ.

My Brethren, the works of the New Creation they put down the Old, I Create (saith he,) a New Heaven and a New Earth, and the former shall not be remembred; he will put forth such power in them. Nay, let me yet go further, Go to Hell, you shall read indeed that he sheweth his power there; so it is Rom. 9. 22. what if God willing to shew his wrath, and make his power known; and believe it, a blow struck in wrath hath a great deal of power in it; for anger stirreth up power, draweth forth the mighty power of God. But what followeth comparatively to Hell in his working toward the Saints? It followeth verse 10. and the riches of his glory upon the vessels of mercy. Though he sheweth a glorious power in his wrath in condemning men, yet he sheweth a greater riches of glory, of mercy and of all Attributes else in saving men, and bringing men to Heaven. The power that God will shew in glorifying his Saints, will infinitely exceed the power he sheweth in condemning wicked men. The power that love stirreth up is a greater power than what wrath stirreth up in God.

I will give you the reason of it, nothing commandeth power and strength more than love, it commandeth it more than wrath, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy strength, Mark 12. 13. Doth God love thee? He loves thee with all his strength as thou lovest him, and art to love him, Jer. 32. 41. I will rejoyce over them to do them good with my whole heart, and with my whole soul; his love makes him to love them with all his strength, with all his heart. Now, when he sheweth forth the power of his wrath when he cometh to condemn men, yet let me tell you this, it is not with all his heart, there is something that regrets within him; for he considereth that they are his Creatures, and he doth not will the death of a sinner simply for it self, for there is something in him that makes a reluctancy, there is not his whole power in this, though it be the power of his wrath. But when he cometh to shew forth his power out of love, that draws his whole heart; therefore you shall find in Scripture, that mercy it is called God's strength, because when he will have mercy, all the strength and power of God accompanieth it. Numb. 14. 17. Let the power of my Lord be great; what to do? To destroy them? to do some great work for them? No, But according as thou hast spoken,) saith he,) saying the Lord is long suffering and of great mercy; Pardon, I beseech thee the iniquity of this People, according to the greatness of thy mercy. His mercy is there called his strength, because that love doth draw forth all the strength of God.

Now

Now, my Brethren, to gather up to an end and to a concluſion; you therefore that believe, comfort your ſelves with the exceeding greatneſs of this power that is ingaged to you; know the exceeding greatneſs of his power to you-ward. It is a power will do for you above all your thoughts, it exceedeth that way, it is ὑπερβάλλων, in that ſenſe. It is a power that will do beyond all reſiſtance, If God be for us, who ſhall be againſt us, ſaith the Apoſtle. The Father (ſaith Chriſt,) is greater than all, and no man is able to pluck them out of my Fathers hand, John 10. 28, 29. It is a reigning, a domineering power, a power that carries all afore it. The word τὸ κράτος τῆς ἰσχύος, it may ſignify the ſoveraignty, the dominion, the abſoluteneſs of his power, ſuch as a Monarch hath; ſuppoſe a Monarch had ſtrength to do all by himſelf, and had authority wyned with that ſtrength, it were a power that would carry all afore it, and command all; ſuch a power it is that God putteth forth to believers, it is a conquering power, He will have mer- upon whom he will have mercy, and who hath reſiſted his will? When you come to beg pardon for your ſins, what ſay you? Lord forgive us our treſpaſſes. What Arguments do you uſe? For thine is the Kingdom, the Power and the Glory; ſoveraignty and dominion and ſtrength, are both his, and out of both theſe he will pardon your ſins and ſave you, and if all that power of God will bring you to ſalvation, and keep you to ſalvation, you ſhall be ſurely kept.

Sermon XXII.

And my Brethren, let me raiſe up your thoughts to conſider with your ſelves if the exceeding greatneſs of his power be ingaged in you and to you to do for you, what then is the thing that is anſwerable to this power? If that power that wrought in Chriſt to raiſe him from death to glory ſhall work in us, Lord whether will it bring us! What, will God bring you to ſalvation? It muſt then be a thing anſwerable to the power. What glory therefore muſt it be which God will ſhew forth in the Saints at the latter day? The Heavens declare the power and glory of God; yea, but the eſtate of the Saints in Heaven declare the exceeding greatneſs of his power, and what a glory then muſt that needs be! And ſo much now for the ſecond thing, the Perſons, The exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward.

There are theſe Two things yet behind.

Firſt to ſhew wherein, in what it is that this power is put forth, it is put forth, both in working faith, and in keeping them to ſalvation, glorifying them at laſt. All that work and power that God putteth forth toward a believer firſt and laſt, from his converſion to his ſalvation, is that which the Apoſtle here intendeth. This I ſhall ſhew the next day.

The Second thing that remaineth is this, that it is a power that anſwereth to the power of raiſing Chriſt from death to life, and from death to glory. And therein I muſt ſhew theſe two things.

1. That the greateſt work that ever God did, and the greateſt power that ever was ſhewed, was in the Reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt, and raiſing him up to glory.

2. That the working in the hearts of believers grace and faith and and keeping them to ſalvation, and glorifying them at laſt, will hold a proportion with that great power that was ſhewed in Chriſt's reſurrection. And when I have handled theſe, I ſhall have done with the 18. 19. 20*th*. verſes.

Sermon XXIII.

SERMON XXIII.

EPHES. I. 19. 20.

And what is the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward who believe, according to the working of the might of his power.

Which he wrought in Chriſt when he raiſed him from the dead, and ſet him at his own right hand in the heavenly places.

I ſhewed the laſt day the Reference or Coherence that theſe words have with and to the former. I did it in many particulars. The chief whereof is this. Whereas he had ſpoken in the former verſes, of the riches of the glory of that Inheritance that is provided for the Saints, that their hearts might be ſtrengthned againſt all doubts of attaining that glory, he prayeth that they might ſee as the riches of that Inheritance; ſo what is the exceeding greatneſs of his power tous-ward, who believe &c. And he propoundeth for their comfort Two things to them, the greatneſs of the power and the efficacy of it, whereof already they had ſome experience in their firſt converſion; which power was ingaged to perfect and finiſh their ſalvation, and bring them to that glory. And to confirm their faith thus, he preſenteth Chriſt to them, as their Head, (as the 22. verſe hath it,) whom as their Head, God hath raiſed up from the dead, to that ſurpaſſing glory which he hath in Heaven, far above all principalities and powers, as a Pawn that they ſhould one day come thither as well as he; for the ſame power that wrought in him in raiſing him from the dead, is ingaged (ſaith he,) by vertue of him and of his being a common Perſon for you, to work likewiſe in you. This in brief is the main ſcope of the Apoſtle in theſe and the following words to the end of the Chapter.

The parts of theſe 19th. and 20th. verſes, or if you will of this 19th. verſe in a more eſpecial manner are theſe Four.

Here is Firſt, a Magnifick and glorious deſcription, one word heaped upon another; of the power that is in God. And take it Firſt, as it is a general deſcription of it; he ſetteth out concerning it Three things.

Firſt, the ſuper-excellent greatneſs of it. He calleth it not only a greatneſs of power, but he calleth it an exceeding greatneſs of power.

He ſetteth it out Secondly, by that infallible and irreſiſtable efficacy of it in its working, According (ſaith he,) to the Energy or effectual working, working that always hath ſucceſs, faileth not, the thorough working of the might of his power.

Then the Third thing concerning the deſcription of this power is the proportion of its work, According to its working, ſaith he. Thoſe are the Three things concerning this power in the general. I diſpatched Two of them the laſt day.

I ſhewed Firſt, the excellency of this power, it is a greatneſs of power, it is ὑπερβαλλοντος μεγεθους της δυνάμεως, it is a ſuper-excelling power. I ſhewed that the force of thoſe words contained Three things in them, it was a power above all we are able able to ask or think in that ſenſe: Above all our knowledge, as I ſhewed the word is uſed in this Epiſtle to the Epheſians. It is a power above all reſiſtance which any Creature can oppoſe, and it is ſo great a power, ſo excelling, as in compariſon of it the Creature hath no power. This I ſhewed to be the force of the words from parallel places of the New Teſtament. Sermon XXIII.

Then Secondly, here he ſetteth forth the efficacy of this power, he calleth it the effectual working of the might of his power; κατὰ τῆς ἐνέργειας τὸ κράτους τῆς ἰσχύος αὐτοῦ, I ſhewed you that the phraſe is put for efficacy of working, ſuch as hath always ſucceſs, takes effect, and brings the things to paſs. And therefore now to ſhew that God when he thus worketh, he worketh effectually, he doth put two words together, the effectual working (ſaith he,) of the might of his ſtrength, the might of his power; ſo you may ſee the words varied in your Margins.

The word that is tranſlated Power ἰσχύος, it ſignifieth natural ſtrength; the word κράτους τῆς ἰσχύος the might of that ſtrength it is the utmoſt extenſion of it; as when a Man is ſaid to do a thing with the might of his ſtrength, the meaning is, he putteth as it were the utmoſt ſtrength but that he will effect it. The word κράτος, is ſo taken in the Virgin Maries Song, Luke 1. 51. that which is here tranſlated might, it is taken there for the extenſion, the ſtretching forth of the ſtretching of God, ἐποίησε κράτος, ἐν βραχίονι, He hath ſhewed ſtrength (ſaith ſhe,) it is the ſame word,) with his Arm. Now, the Arm you know is the ſtrongeſt part of a Man, He wrought ſtrength with his Arm, he put it forth to the full; and ſhe ſpeaketh it of the greateſt work that ever God did, which was the Incarnation of the Son of God.

Or the word ὑπερβάλλον, is the Authority, the command of his ſtrength, the prerogative of his ſtrength. He doth not work in this with an ordinary power, but as Kings work with their ordinary power, and they will ſtretch their prerogative, ſo doth God in this, it is the working of the prerogative of his might and of his power.

So now you ſee Firſt, the excellency of this power in thoſe words, The exceeding greatneſs of his power. You ſee the efficacy of it in thoſe words, According to the working of his mighty power.

Now then in the Third place, Obſerve concerning the power of God in general, that God hath proportions of work, putteth forth his power more or leſs. When he ſpeaks here of the power toward believers, ſaith he, it holdeth proportion, it is according to the working of his mighty power which he wrought in Chriſt when he raiſed him from the dead. Always God proportioneth the putting forth of his power to his work, ſheweth more power in one work than in another. Therefore you find in Scripture, ſometimes mention of the finger of God, as in thoſe Miracles in Egypt, Exod. 8. 19. the Magicians acknowledge that it was the Finger of God. And our Saviour Chriſt when he wrought Miracles here below, Moſes being his Type, and thoſe Magicians that oppoſed Moſes being Types of the Phariſees, he therefore uſeth the ſame phraſe, If I, ſaith he, by the Finger of God caſt out Devils. Here is the Finger of God you ſee. Well ſometims God putteth forth his Hand, which is more than his Finger; as it is ſaid he brought the People out of the Land of Egypt with a ſtrong hand. But then in other works he putteth forth his Arm, which is more than his Hand, and then he cometh to his might, He ſheweth might with his Arm, ſaith ſhe, Luke 1. 51. And Pſal. 89. 17. Thou haſt a mighty Arm, ſaith he, ſpeaking of God. So that you ſee there are proportions of power God putteth forth, and in this work what ever it be, there is the might of his Arm, the might of his power, there is the prerogative of his power; there is the exceeding greatneſs of his power exerciſed toward believers, as I ſhewed the laſt day. And ſo much now for the conſideration of the power of God as here in general it is ſpoken of God.

The Second Head that I obſerved in theſe word, is, the Subject of this power, whom it works upon, the perſons. What is the Exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward. To us whom he had ſpoken of in the former verſes, Elected in Chriſt before all worlds, and the Obſervation I raiſed from thence was this. That of all the works of God, (ſeeing he hath the ſame proportion of power, more in ſome works and leſs in others,) in the works of ſalvation toward believers, therein he ſheweth the exceeding greatneſs of his power. The power of God, (as I ſhewed,) is ſeen in Hell; the power of his wrath. The power of God was ſeen in Creating the World, but the greatneſs of his power, the exceeding greatneſs of his power; to us-ward. The love that is in God calleth forth all his ſtrength, and ingageth it for the good of believers. As he ſheweth forth, not only mercy, but riches of mercy, yea, exceeding riches of mercy; as it is Eph. 3. 8. it is the ſame word, ἀνεξιχνίας & πλοῦτος, that is here. So likewiſe it is ſaid of his power to us-ward, he ſheweth forth the greatneſs of his power, the exceeding greatneſs of his power.

Now, my Brethren, raiſe up your thoughts, you that are believers. If exceeding greatneſs of mercy ſhall be the contriver of what good you ſhall have, and if the exceeding greatneſs of power ſhall be the worker, and undertake to work all that mercy doth contrive; what will God do with you then? What will God bring you to, upon whom he will ſhew forth, (ere he hath done,) the exceeding riches of his Grace, the exceeding greatneſs of his Power? And ſo much now for the Perſons, to us-ward.

The Third Head, which I propounded to be handled out of theſe words, and which is indeed the moſt difficult, is wherein this greatneſs of God's power is ſhewed. One inſtance you have of it, wherein it was ſhewed, in raiſing up our Head, our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, from Death to Glory; that he inſtanceth in plainly, The ſame power (ſaith he,) that wrought in Chriſt when he raiſed him from the dead, and ſet him at his own right hand, in the heavenly places; there is no queſtion made of that by none that open theſe words. But then, in what work this greatneſs of power proportionable to the raiſing Chriſt from death to life, can be ſpent as wrought in us; of that there is a great controverſie about the words.

There are ſome of our Divines, and Interpreters that reſtrain the Apoſtles ſcope only to the working of faith at firſt, and they make the coherence of the words thus and thus only, That you may know what is the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward. There make a ſtop, Who believe according to the working of his mighty power; joyning, who believe, and, according to the working of his mighty power, together; their meaning is this, who have had faith wrought in them, according to the working of his mighty power; ſo that now all this mighty power is in the working of faith at firſt, and ſo they reſtrain it; as if the Apoſtle had ſaid, you know what power went to work faith in you, it was not the power of your own will, but it was the exceeding greatneſs of his power, you believed according to the working of the might of his power; ſuch as was in Chriſt when he was raiſed from the dead. That is the firſt ſenſe given of it.

The Remonſtrants, or thoſe whom you call the followers of Arminius, they go a clean contrary way, and they quote Calvin himſelf againſt the former Opinion; and indeed to reſtrain it only to faith and the working of faith, which Calvin is againſt. But then they contend the ſcope of the Apoſtle to be only to ſhew what the power of God ſhall be in us, in raiſing us up at the laſt day to glory, and that that is the Apoſtles ſcope and his only ſcope here; they would cut off all the power of God working in us at firſt when we believe, yea and cut off from the Apoſtles aim here, all the power that works in us before the latter day; but that power that ſhall raiſe us up from the dead, and ſet us in glory, that is the power which the Apoſtle meaneth here, which is anſwerable to the raiſing up of Chriſt from death to life. And there is a great deal of appearance for it, that this ſhould be the Apoſtles ſcope. He had ſpoken of Heaven in the very words before, what is the riches of the Inheritance of the Saints; now he ſpeaks therefore of that power that raiſeth the Saints up to that glory; then in the words following you have the inſtance of Chriſt raiſed up from death to glory as your Head, as a pawn that God will raiſe you up likewiſe from the bodily death of the grave to life and glory; and it is a great comfort to believers to know that the ſame power that raiſed up Chriſt, ſhall one day raiſe up them.

Now for my own part, if you would know my thoughts of these words, and what the scope of the Apostle is, wherein the power to us-ward is shewed; as usually all Truth lies between two extreams, and yet takes something of both Extreams. I think this, that the Apostle's scope is to shew, that all the saving workings of God, both of Grace and Glory from first to last, from the first act of Conversion to the setting of a man upon the highest Pinnacle of Glory in Heaven, raising of him up at the latter day, and the like; they are all the plain scope and meaning of the Apostle here. He meaneth both that efficacious power, put forth in working Faith at first, Who believe according to the working of his mighty power. He meaneth that mighty power that keepeth us to salvation, Who are kept by the power of God through Faith to salvation, 1 *Pet.*1.5. And last of all he meaneth, that Almighty power that shall change our vile bodies, that they may be fashioned like to the glorious body of Christ, Phil.3.21. The Apostle looks not forward only to the glorious Resurrection to come, nor backward only to the work of Conversion and first Believing; but likewise to their present keeping in the state of Grace. That those whom God had already by such a Power converted, he would by the same power keep them to salvation, and raise them up at latter day. And all these works are works of the exceeding greatness of his power, and they all hold proportion with raising up Jesus Christ from death to life.

Sermon XXIII.

So that now I do grant to both sides what they would have; and the truth is, that this sense doth Vostrius, one of the Remonstrants side, in his Comment upon this place, incline unto in his Paraphrase; though afterward in his Scholia upon his Paraphrase he denieth it. The exceeding greatness of his power, that is (saith he) partly already put forth, and which shall be put forth in us.

Now, my Brethren, the Reasons why I interpret it is, because you see the Apostle, he neither restrains it to the time past; he doth not say, who have believed; nor doth he restrain it unto the time to come. He doth not say, the Power that shall work in you; but he speaks indefinitely, because he would take all in, What is the power (saith he) to us-ward who believe. And that which is translated, to us-ward, εἰς ἡμᾶς, is either towards us, or in us; the words will signifie either, because the Apostle's scope is for either, either the Power that is towards us for the future, to keep us for Heaven, and raise us up at latter day; or the Power that works in us for the present; the words bear both. And those other words, According to the effectual working, we shall find are applied both to Conversion, to growth in Grace, and to raising us up at last; and so what is elsewhere said in parcels, is all meant here. You have it applied to Conversion, *Ephes.*3.7. where he saith, that he was made an Apostle, and converted according to the effectual working of his power; Whereof (saith he) I was made a Minister, according to the gift of the Grace of God, given to me by the effectual working of his power. It is the same word that is used here. His meaning is, either by that effectual working that wrought upon my heart, or that effectual working he works upon the hearts of others to convert them. He speaks of Conversion. So likewise for growth in Grace, *Ephes.*4.10. he saith, The whole body increaseth with the increase of God, by the effectual working in the measure of every part. Here it is applied to growth in Grace. And then last of all, *Phil.*3.21. he saith, He will change our vile bodies, (speaking of Glory) according to the effectual working of his mighty power, (it is the same word still,) whereby he is able to subdue all things unto himself. So that indeed the Apostle here takes in all the works of God upon Believers first and last; and that I take to be most properly the scope of the Apostle here, that in them all he sheweth the exceeding greatness of his power, the same that wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead.

Now, my Brethren, because there is a Controversie about the words, and that the Remonstrants (as I told you) would cut off all aims that the Apostle should have to the work of Faith and Conversion at first, they would not have it to be understood of that by no means, and of that only is the Controversie; therefore I will take some pains to clear unto you that that is one part of the meaning the Apostle here takes in, and a great part too. You shall give me leave to do it, for for it is the gaining of one of the strongest Forts we have, and the fortifying of it, for the glory of the Grace of God in Conversion.

Whereas our Divines, some of them, would read the words thus; Who believed according to the working of his mighty power, as if their Faith and Believing were wrought by such a mighty power. Here, say they, the words [Who believed] do not come in to any such sense; it is not to shew what power goeth to work Faith, but to describe who they are whom God will shew his power upon one day, they are those that believe. It supposeth them already Believers; he doth not speak, say they, at all of Faith, as the fruit of this power, in which this power is put forth, but as the qualification of the persons in whom it shall be put forth: So that those that are Believers may comfort themselves, that one day the same Power that was put forth in Jesus Christ, to raise him from the dead to Glory, shall raise them up too. So that they make make the words, Who believed, a meer Exegisis, a meer explanation of what Persons he meaneth, in whom this Power shall be put forth.

There is a great reason that they should contend against this; Why? For if it should prove to be the meaning of it, that all this Power of God, the same that wrought it in Christ in raising him from death to life, that that Power should be put forth in conversion at first, and that that Power should be engaged to keep a man to salvation; all the Doctrine of Free-will, as they hold it, and of falling from Grace, falleth to the ground instantly. For, if there be a Power that is efficacious, and such a Power as wrought in Christ, which was such a Power, as it was impossible but he should be raised from the dead. If such a Power converteth a man at first, and afterward is engaged to keep him to salvation, then both Conversion and Faith is wrought, maugre all opposite power in the Creature, whatsoever it be; and likewise they are kept by the same Power to salvation, and shall never fall away. Here will therefore be a Power beyond the power of Moral perswasions or enlightnings; here will be a Power that doth infallibly, efficaciously work Faith in men.

Now, my Brethren, in arguing which of these two is the scope of the Apostle, viz. Whether that the Power of God in converting a man at first, be not the aim of the Apostle in this place? In arguing this, I shall lanch no further into the Controversie, than to clear the place; which as an Interpreter I must do, and I shall do it with all fairness and simplicity, as in all Controversies we ought to do.

To come then to the Reasons of it. There are three sorts of Arguments which I shall bring to prove, that the Apostle's scope is to take in the Power of God working Conversion at first.

The first is taken from the very letter of the words.

The second shall be taken from the Coherence of the words with what is before.

The third sort of Arguments shall be taken from what followeth after.

First, That the Apostle here intendeth to speak of the exceeding greatness of his power in the first working of Faith; take the letter of the words, and it will evidently bear this sense, Who believe, saith he, according to the working of his mighty power. And whereas they say, you should put the stop at Who believe, and read it thus; What is the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward who believe, and should not joyn them with what followeth, Who believe according to the working of his mighty power. It cometh all to one; we see that [who believe] is hedged in with an Almighty power on one side, The exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward who believe; and with an Almighty power on the other side, Who believe according to the working of his mighty power. So that certainly, his mighty Power in working Faith should be intended.

Then again in the Second place, Whereas when he spake of the riches of the Glory that is in Heaven; the Persons there, in whom he had said this Glory is, he calleth Saints; The riches of the glory of his Inheritance in the Saints; that is, as I interpreted it when I handled it) in Saints made perfect: for it is only in those Saints that are now perfect in Heaven. But mark it, when he cometh to ſpeak of the Power that is to us-ward, he doth not ſay the power in Saints, or toward Saints made perfect, but to us-ward who believe; he changeth the phraſe. What is the meaning of that? We that believe at preſent, we have this power put forth in us; he diſtinguiſheth Believers on Earth from Saints in Heaven. When he ſpeaks of the Power that wrought before, and works at preſent in them; he calleth them Believers; when he ſpeaks of the riches of Glory hereafter, he calleth them Saints. Why? You know that perfect Holineſs is in Heaven, but Faith is not there; Faith ceaſeth there, ſaith the Apoſtle. So that his meaning in a word is this; That as there are riches of Glory in the Saints in Heaven, ſo there is an exceeding greatneſs of power towards us that believe on Earth; as we believe at preſent, ſo the power is at preſent. Sermon XXIII.

Again, Thirdly, If you mark it, he doth not ſay the Power that ſhall work in you, as if it were to be confined only to the raiſing men up at the latter day. He doth not ſpeak it in the Future, as if he reſtrained it to the Glory of Heaven to come; but ſaith he, That ye may know what is the power τῆς δυνάμεως, the power at preſent. If he had meant the Power only that ſhall work hereafter, he would have expreſſed it in the Future Tenſe; for ſo he doth expreſs the Reſurrection of Chriſt in the time paſt, Which hath wrought in Chriſt, ſaith he.

Then in the Fourth place, There is ſomething in this word To us-ward; at leaſt the Apoſtle's meaning muſt be to include himſelf who was an Apoſtle, he ſhuffleth himſelf in with theſe Epheſians, and with all Believers, To us-ward. Now, how was Paul converted? When he was converted, he had experience of the exceeding greatneſs of his power, if any men in the World ever had, or ſhall have. Nay, his Example is acknowledged by many of thoſe that are contrary minded to be an exception, God did work (ſay they) infallibly in his Converſion; For a man to be taken in the height of his Perſecution, Chriſt met him in the field, he was going out againſt him armed; He ſtrikes him off his Horſe at firſt blow, turn'd him clean contrary; I that was a Perſecutor and Injurious, I had nothing elſe in my heart; Lord, (ſaith he) what wilt thou have me to do? The exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward, Paul among the reſt. And the Scripture ſeemeth to lean that way, that Paul had an effectual work, as our Tranſlators tranſlate the word ἐνεργεία there, in the place I quoted even now, Epheſ. 3. 7. I was made a Miniſter of the Goſpel, (ſaith he) according to the gift of the Grace of God given unto me, by the effectual working of his power.

To open theſe words a little. He ſpeaks, as I take it, with Rollock and Calvin, of his Converſion, together with which he received his Apoſtleſhip and Commiſſion for it. You ſhall find that Paul's Converſion is expreſt by receiving his Apoſtleſhip, and the one is put for the other. You have many places for that; whenever almoſt his Converſion is mentioned, you have his Apoſtleſhip likewiſe, and the Commiſſion for it, put in. When our Saviour Chriſt would convert him from Heaven, what doth he ſay to him? Read Act. 26. 16. Stand up upon thy feet, ſaith he, for I have appeared unto thee for this purpoſe, to make thee a Miniſter and a Witneſs both of theſe things which thou haſt ſeen, and of thoſe things in the which I will appear unto thee. In his Converſion here Chriſt telleth him, that he would make him an Apoſtle; he expreſſeth his Converſion by it. You may find the like in Act. 9. 14, 15. where his Converſion is likewiſe related; when Annanias was ſent to him, Chriſt ſpeaks of him as of a man new ſtruck; Go thy way, ſaith he, for he is a choſen Veſſel, to bear my Name before the Gentiles, &c. The like you may find 1 Tim. 1. 17. Read his Converſion there; how doth he expreſs it? Saith he, He counted me faithful, putting me into the Miniſtry, I that was afore a Perſecutor and Blaſphemer; and the Grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt was exceeding abundant. He expreſſeth his Converſion by being put into the Miniſtry of Apoſtleſhip, ſuch as Paul had.

Now therefore, when he ſaith here in Epheſ. 3. 7. Whereof I was made a Miniſter, according to the gift of the Grace of God given to me, by the effectual working of his power; this is the Apoſtle's meaning, that he was converted by the effectual working of his Power. And as here in the Text it is ſaid, the Exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward who believe, the ſame that wrought in raiſing Chriſt from the dead: So compare with this *Gal.*1.1. I was made an Apoſtle (ſaith he) not of men, neither by men; but by Jeſus Chriſt, and God the Father. I was converted, ſaith he, and what followeth? Who raiſed him from the dead. Why cometh that in? The ſame effectual working, ſaith he, that raiſed up Jeſus Chriſt from the dead, made me an Apoſtle, converted me to the Faith. Now then the Apoſtle, out of his own experience of the exceeding greatneſs of his power, putteth himſelf in too, To us-ward, ſaith he; the ſame power that converted me, converted you; although there was ſome extraordinarineſs in it in reſpect of the manner of doing it, yet the power is the ſame. As we receive like Faith, (as the Apoſtle Peter ſaith) ſo the ſame Power is no leſs to work in the pooreſt Believer's Faith, than what wrought in the heart of Paul. And ſo much now for the reading of the words, that they will bear that ſenſe; not to relate only to the power put forth in Believers at the Reſurrection, but in the firſt work of Faith.

The ſecond ſort of Arguments ſhall be taken from the ſcope of the Apoſtle here, in the Coherence of theſe words with the former, and with thoſe that follow after; for you ſhall ſee that the Coherence of both will carry it, as well to refer it to the working of Faith at the firſt, as to the raiſing us up at the laſt.

One ſcope of the Apoſtle, which I mentioned when I ſhewed the Coherence was this, To comfort Believers in the weakneſs of their Faith for the obtaining this Glory, againſt all doubting. Now, my Brethren, what is the great doubt that poſſeſſeth the hearts of Chriſtians, that uſually takes up their thoughts? It is not ſo much a queſtioning the Power of God to raiſe them up hereafter, as it is the Power of God to keep them for the preſent; therefore when the Apoſtle would comfort their hearts, that they ſhould attain this Glory, he doth not pray only, that they may know the Power that ſhould raiſe up Saints at latter day; but the Power that ſhould keep them, that they might know the Power that is engaged to us-ward that believe, to preſerve us to this Glory. I ſay, Believers are not ſo much, or not ſo uſually taken up with Doubtings or Queſtionings about the Power of God in raiſing them hereafter with Chriſt, all mens thoughts take that for granted; but the doubt is about keeping them until then. I will give you a Scripture for it, *Joh.*11.23. Poor Martha there, when Chriſt came to raiſe up Lazarus, and told her, Thy Brother ſhall riſe again. I know, ſaith ſhe, that he ſhall riſe again at the reſurrection of the laſt day. She doubted not of this; this did not trouble her at all, but ſhe only doubted of the Power of Chriſt to raiſe him preſently, her Faith ſtuck at that; By this time, ſaith ſhe, he ſtinketh, for he hath lain four days in the Grave. It was the preſent Reſurrection ſhe doubted of, and the power of Chriſt in that; Therefore, ſaith he, verſe 40. ſaid I not unto thee, that if thou believeſt thou ſhouldſt ſee the glory of God, ſee it preſently. I quote it for this purpoſe, to ſhew, that if the ſcope of the Apoſtle be to take away the doubting of Chriſtians concerning their attaining this glory. It is not ſo much he prayeth, that they may ſee the Power that ſhall raiſe men at laſt, for that few men doubt of; ordinarily they do not, but how they ſhall be kept by the power of God to this ſalvation; the preſent Power that ſhall keep them and preſerve them, that they doubt of. This is that therefore that the Apoſtle prayeth for that they may ſee. Therefore 1 *Pet.*1.5. after he had mentioned the glory of that Inheritance, he comforteth them with this, that they are kept by the power of God unto ſalvation; he ſpeaks to their hearts, for that is the great thing they doubt of. Now then mark how I argue: If this be the ſcope of the Apoſtle to comfort Believers, that there is an Almighty, an Omnipotent power that ſhall keep them in the ſtate they are in that they ſhall attain to Glory. The Argument is ſtrong, that if ſuch a Power as this be to keep them and preſerve them, that much more ſuch a Power was put forth in their firſt Converſion, when they firſt came to believe. If to preſerve them in Faith after they have believed, and were ſealed; then much more to perſwade them to believe at firſt, when they were Heathens to bring them to the Faith, would require an exceeding greatneſs of Power.

My

Sermon XXIII.

My Brethren, There is as great a Power and a greater, (if we may make Comparisons) in converting at first, than in keeping afterward. *Rom.*5.9,10. The Apostle makes it there a greater work to reconcile us, being enemies, than to keep us friends, being reconciled. It is a greater work to put life into a dead man (of which the comparison is there) than to keep life in him, you know heat will do that. Conversion is a greater work in some regards, than glorifying a man is; why? Because the glorifying a man is but a gradual change, it is but from Grace to Glory; but to convert a man is a special change, it altereth the state of a man, a Wolf becometh a Lamb, it altereth the kind, the other addeth but a new degree. Now therefore, if the Apostle's scope, be (as most evidently it is) they may know his power, to the end to comfort them, to take all doubts away. They knew the hope of his Calling before, he prayed for that in the former verse; That they might know the riches of the glory of his Inheritance, that he prayed for in the last words before: Now, that they might know the Power that would keep them, according to their hope, unto that salvation. So that now it agreeth well with this scope of the Apostle.

Again, in the Second place, Suppose the Apostle's scope be to comfort them, and to strengthen their Faith in this point, that there shall be an Almighty power put forth in them, to raise them up at the latter day; you shall find, (take this in too) That they may know the Power that first converted them, is the strongest Argument that can be to perswade them of the other. My meaning is this, That the strongest Argument that could be brought to perswade the Ephesians, to strengthen their Faith, That an Almighty power should one day work to raise them from death to glory. I say, the strongest Argument to work this in them, is to see the Power that first converted them. Here is one Argument indeed to strengthen their Faith, namely, They saw by Faith their Head Jesus Christ to have been raised from death to glory; but then add but this to it, We saw as great a Power, and found as great a Power in working Faith in us, and Conversion in us, in changing our hearts, as was put forth in raising of Christ from death to life; here is a double Argument. And so indeed, I find most of the Greek Fathers run that way in their interpreting this place. The Apostle, say they, doth declare what God already hath done for them and in them; how he had wrought them to believe by an Almighty power, to strengthen and confirm their Faith for the future, that he would shew forth the same Power in raising them up from death to life. To this purpose Theophilact and Chrysostom, I name him because he was as much for the freedom of Will as any other, being an Oratour to perswade men to turn to God; a holy and a good man, as good as Austin that was of another mind, living in the same Age with him, yet he interpreteth this place of working Faith at first; for to this purpose is his speech. The Apostle's scope, saith he, is to demonstrate by what already was manifested in them, namely, The Power of God in working Faith; to raise up their hearts to believe what was not manifested, namely, The raising of them up from death to life: It being, saith he, a far more wonderful work to perswade a Soul to believe in Christ, than to raise up a dead man, a far more admirable work of the two, To raise up a dead man, saith he, God made but one word of it, (I speak it to shew that that is his scope) Lazarus arise, and he that was dead arose, and came forth bound hand and feet, &c. Saith Peter to Tabitha, Arise, and she opened her eyes and sate up. But here it costs God many words when he cometh to convert a man, How often would I have gathered you under my wings? I alledge it to this purpose, to shew that they likewise interpret it to this sense, that by what they had already experience of in their own hearts, they might from thence see and believe that great power that would work in them hereafter. And whereas now (take the other sense) all the weight of the Argument to perswade their Faith of the truth of this, that they shall one day be raised up from the dead, lieth upon their meer Faith to believe, that God raised up Christ, which is a thing they did not see, nor had experience of. Take this Argument in too, That a Believer hath found the same Power in him in working Faith that wrought in Christ; he hath not only a double Argument, but an Argument in his own experience of that Power, and so more suitable to him for his heart to be more taken with it, and he hath this comfort besides, that that Power which converted me is engag'd, and will certainly keep me, and raise me up at the last day. So that the Apostle's scope will be every way more full.

Sermon XXIII.

And then another ſcope the Apoſtle hath, (as appeareth by the 15 and 16th Verſes) is to provoke them to Thankfulneſs. He ſaith, that he thanked God for the work of Grace in them, whereby they had obtained an Inheritance, verſe 13. Now, to the end that they may be thankful, and thankful to purpoſe, he prayeth that they might know this great Power that thus wrought Faith in them, whereby they were intereſted in that Inheritance, that thus they might be thankful alſo. Did you but know (ſaith he) what Power it was that works in you that believe, you would be aſtoniſhed with the Love of God toward you, you would be overcome with it, how thankful would you be! It is Auſtin's Obſervation upon this *Epheſ.*1.16. he argueth from it becauſe Paul gave thanks. If God's Power, ſaith he, were not in it, in turning a man to God; and were it not the caſt of his own Will, and yet the Will of man work freely too, how could a man heartily give thanks unto God? There is one abſurdity put upon his Opinion. Say they, If you do not hold that the Will of man caſteth it freely, to what end are all Exhortations made by God to man? But on the other ſide, If the Power of God do not caſt it, and yet the Will work freely too, why are thanks given to God, as the Author of all, more than to man's own Will? And the truth is, there would leſs abſurdity fall upon the other, than upon this.

So now you have two ſorts of Arguments diſpatched; Firſt, from the Letter of the words. Secondly, that this agreeth with the ſcope of the Apoſtle here in the words before.

I will name one more, and that is a great one, and it is the Coherence of theſe words with thoſe that follow after, that the Apoſtle doth here evidently mean the exceeding greatneſs of his power in converting a man at firſt, that he takes this in eminently in his aim. To make this plain unto you. After that the Apoſtle had diſcourſed of the Power of God in raiſing up Chriſt from the dead, from the 20th verſe to the 23. Having ſaid likewiſe, that the ſame Power works in us, that wrought in Chriſt when he was thus raiſed. Mark what he ſaith in the ſecond Chapter, verſe 1. and verſ. 6. And you who were dead in ſins and treſpaſſes, where in time paſt ye walked, hath he quickned: Even when we were dead in ſins, hath he quickned us (ſo verſe 5.) together with Chriſt, and hath raiſed us up together, and made us ſit together in heavenly places in Chriſt Jeſus. Here the Apoſtle plainly declares, that his ſcope and meaning is, ſpeaking of the exceeding greatneſs of power that works in thoſe that believe, the ſame that wrought in Chriſt in raiſing him from the dead, and ſet him at his own right hand in the Heavenly places; the ſame Power, ſaith he, hath quickned you, when you were dead in ſins and treſpaſſes, the ſame Power, ſaith he, hath raiſed you up, and ſet you with Chriſt, your Head, in Heavenly places. When he ſaith, Ye hath he quickned (as he doth at the firſt and fifth Verſes of the ſecond Chapter) his meaning is, he hath put life into you, put a principle of godlineſs into you. 2 *Pet.*1.3. According as his Divine Power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godlineſs.

Now, to ſhut up this Diſcourſe, the Apoſtle from the 19th Verſe of this Chapter to the 6th Verſe of the ſecond Chapter, he ſaith theſe two things, and all is ſummed up in them (to give you the Coherence, and mark it,) Firſt, he layeth down a general Propoſition in the 19th Verſe, That they may know what is the exceeding greatneſs of his power in them that believe, according to the working of his mighty power, which he wrought in Chriſt, when he raiſed him from death to Glory. Here is the general Propoſition, that God ſheweth the ſame power in them that believe, that he ſhewed in Chriſt in raiſing him. Well, there are two enlargements of this; Firſt, he telleth and explaineth what a great Power was ſhewed in Chriſt, and that he doth from the 21 Verſe to the end of the Chapter, how he was raiſed up, and ſet far above all Principalities and Powers, and above every Name that is named in Heaven and in Earth. Then Secondly, he explaineth how it was, and when this ſame Power wrought in them that believe; And ye (ſaith he) hath he quickned, when ye were dead in ſins and treſpaſſes, together with him, and hath raiſed you up, (not only will, but hath done it.) Therefore evidently the Apoſtle ſpeaks of the Converſion of Believers, Believers, the ſame power that wrought in Chriſt and raiſed him up, is that which works in them and raiſed them up alſo.

Sermon XXIII.

Now, my Brethren, to back this with one parrallel place, (which I ever love to do, and ſo I ſhall go off from this. As here in the Text he makes mention of the greatneſs of his power in working Faith, and parallel'd it with the power that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead; ſo read Coloſſ. 2. 12, 13. and you ſhall find the very ſame thing ſaid there too. Saith he, Ye are buried with him in Baptiſme, wherein alſo ye are riſen with him thorough the Faith of the Operation of God, who hath raiſed him from the dead. Parallel this with the words of the Text. Saith the words of the Text, The power that works in you to believe; he ſpeaks of Faith. Saith the Apoſtle here, ye are buried with him, but ye are riſen through faith. Again Secondly, he compareth believing in the Text, (being compared with thoſe following verſes in the ſecond Chapter,) to a riſing from the dead: So here in the Coloſſians, Ye are riſen with him through Faith ſaith he. Then again in the Third place, as in the Text he makes a parallel of the work of Faith with the Reſurrection of Chriſt, who believed (ſaith he,) according to the power that wrought in Chriſt when he was raiſed; So he makes the ſame parallel here in the Coloſſians, Through the Faith of the operation of God who hath raiſed him from the dead, viz. Chriſt. And Fourthly, As we are ſaid to believe according to the efficacious work, the word ἐνέργεια, is likewiſe here in the Coloſſians it is called Faith of the working, or efficacious working of God. And as here God is ſaid to be the Author, the ſame that raiſed up Chriſt, did work Faith in them, ſo likewiſe in this place it is Faith of the operation of God who raiſed up Chriſt from the dead. So that every way the one place is parallel with the other.

I will give you but one evaſion of ſome againſt this place, and ſhew the weakneſs of it, and preſently conclude.

Say they, the meaning of the phraſe, Through faith of the Operation of God; doth not note out that the operation of God is the efficient cauſe of Faith, but that the operation of God that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead, is the Object of Faith, therefore it is called Faith of the operation of God; that is, ſay they, that hath the power and operation of God that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead for its object, to believe that we ſhall likewiſe be raiſed up.

But my Brethren, that the Apoſtle when he ſaith, Faith of the operation of God, meaneth that Faith was wrought by God, and that he takes it in that ſenſe appeareth plainly, by comparing it with the 11th. verſe that went before, ſpeaking there of ſanctification, as he doth here of Faith, (of Sanctification under the notion of Circumciſion, for you know it is called Circumciſion of the heart,) ſaith he, In whom alſo ye are Circumciſed with the Circumciſion made without hands, in putting off the body of the ſins of the fleſh, by the Circumciſion of Chriſt. Now, to open theſe words unto you. Here is an alluſion of the work of ſanctification and faith to be the fruits and effects of two Sacraments, the Old Teſtament, Circumciſion, and the New Teſtament Baptiſme; when he ſpeaks of Sanctification as the work and fruit, the inward work of the Old Circumciſion, he diſtinguiſheth of Circumciſion; there is one faith he, that is outward made with hands, of thoſe that did Circumciſe the Child with their hands, that is outward circumciſion,) but then ſaith he, there is a circumciſion that is by the power of God immediately and that is called a circumciſion without hands, an inward circumciſion that is without hands. What is the meaning of that? Whereof God is the immediate Author, that is the Apoſtles meaning, wherein a man doth make no reſiſtance, wherein a man is as it were paſſive, for ſo you know in circumciſion he was. Now then the very ſame thing which he had ſaid of ſanctification in alluſion to the Old Circumciſion, that Sanctification was a work without hands, that is, of God's power immediately; the ſame he expreſſeth of Faith in the next words under the notion of Baptiſme, calling it Faith of the operation of God: So that when he ſaith, Faith of the operation of God, his meaning is, that it is wrought as the inward circumciſion is by the immediate power of God, and by that very power that raiſed Chriſt from death to glory.

To open this yet a little further. This phraſe Made without hands, it noteth out in Scripture ſtill God's immediate power, and above the courſe of nature, an immediate

Sermon XXIII.

immediate power above ſecond cauſes. When he ſpeaks of Heaven, 2 Cor. 5. 11 he calleth it a houſe made without hands, that is, the glory we ſhall have it ſhall be the immediate work of the power of God. He uſeth juſt the ſame phraſe o the grace we have, it is circumciſion without hands, and it is faith of the operation of God, which is all one. In Heb. 9. 11. you ſhall find that Chriſt's body, the framing of it and uniting of it to the God-Head, (which was the greateſt work that ever God did, The power of the higheſt (ſaith he,) ſhall over-ſhadow thee; he ſhewed ſtrength with his Arm when he did that,)it is ſaid to be a Tabernacle made without hands, that is, it was done by the immediate power of God. So now Circumciſion without hands, is a circumciſion immediately by God, and is all one with what he ſaith afterward of faith, Faith of the operation of God.

Now, then my Brethren, to make an Obſervation out of all this and ſo to end at this time. There are Three things that now remain to be handled.

1. That God in converting and keeping of believers unto life, hath an efficacious working of his power. It is a work of the might of his power, working efficaciouſly and infallibly.

2. That there is an exceeding greatneſs of power put forth therein.

3. That the proportion of power put forth therein is the ſame that raiſed up Chriſt from death to glory. Theſe are the Three things that remain to be handled. I will only ſpeak a word to the Firſt, and ſo conclude:

You ſee here if that be taken, (as it is evident it is,) for the working of faith and converting a man at firſt, that Converſion it is by an efficacious work, an infallible work. I ſhewed you that the meaning of this phraſe; [according to his working,] implieth ſo much, I cannot repeat that; and to inſtance in that, he backs it with the ſame power that wrought in Chriſt,ſtrongly confirms it,for ſaith the Apoſtle, Act. 2.24. It was impoſſible that he ſhould be holden of the grave; ſo that there is an efficacious work that works faith in a man at firſt, that ſhall not be reſiſted.

But you will ſay, ſimilitudes are not to be ſtretched too far. But if it be not ſtretched to ſhew the efficacy and infalibillity of the ſucceſs,that God doth as infallibly convert a man as he raiſed up Chriſt; you ſtretch it to nothing,for if that be not the ſcope, nothing is, ſuppoſing it to be meant of converſion.

We do acknowledge that there is a power of God working in men's hearts that is reſiſted, as he ſaith Act. 7. 51. Ye have always reſiſted the Holy Ghoſt. There is a work of the Holy Ghoſt upon corrupt nature, inlightning it ſo far to ſee ſpiritual things as to effect ſelf-love, and it is a work of power too: And look how far God putteth forth this power, ſo far it works, it works ſo far as to move a man when he is moved, if God had intended that it ſhould ſave a man effectually it ſhould ſave him; thoſe inlightnings ſpoken of Heb. 6. and taſting of the powers of the world to come,are all works tending to ſalvation,they are works of the power of God, they are called the powers of the world to come, which are powerfully ſet on upon a man's heart, but they are not according to the rate and proportion of this efficacy of power here mentioned, which raiſed up Chriſt from death to glory. To give you an inſtance.

Deut. 5. 28, 29. You ſhall find there that the People were exceedingly moved, We will do all (ſay they,) that God by thee ſhall command us; What ſaith God? They have ſpoken well ſaith he, but Oh,that there were ſuch a heart in them that they would fear me and keep all my Commandments always. Compare with this now Deut. 29. 3, 4. Thou haſt ſeen (ſaith he,) all that the Lord did in Egypt, the great temptations,the ſigns and theſe great miracles, yet the Lord hath not given thee an heart to perceive, and eyes to ſee, and ears to hear unto this day. Here now was a work of the power of God,and it wrought upon Self-love,they quaked and trembled, and it was the Power of God to make them do ſo, and ſo far as God intended it,ſo far it wrought it,moved them;but ſtill they had not a heart. To give a man a heart to perceive, and a heart to turn, and turn effectually, this is from the exceeding greatneſs of his power. So that now indeed there is a work and a powerful work too, which is and may be reſiſted, Ye always reſiſt the Holy Ghoſt, as your Fathers have done ſo do ye; but then there is a power that is not reſiſted, it is according to the effectual working of the might of his power, the ſame that raiſed up Chriſt from death to glory.

All

All thoſe of the Remonſtrants do acknowledge that God doth infallibly inlighten the mind of a man to ſee Spiritual things; that likewiſe he doth work upon the affections a man, and works good motions there; but ſay they, the Will, though thus beſet both by the Underſtanding and Affections, muſt ſtill be free and God muſt according to the Law and Courſe of things ſo work upon it as to leave it to its liberty; therefore that may refuſe for all this, and the only way of working upon it is but by moral perſwaſions.

On the other ſide, all the Jeſuits almoſt, they aknowledge an efficacy and infallibility in Converſion in thoſe that are elected, predeſtinated; but they aſcribe it all unto a congruity; that is, that God doth take a man at an advantage, ſpieth out a time wherein a man being under ſuch and ſuch circumſtances and conſiderations, he may certainly convert him. Now ſay they, Meer moral perſwaſions, meer arguments would not be enough, though they were never ſo abundant. On the other ſide, if God ſhould put forth a power to turn the Will, that were too much; That would ſpoil the liberty of it, ſay they: therefore he ſpieth, ſay they, an opportunity, takes a man at ſuch a time as he hath a good diſpoſition, and putteth him into ſuch circumſtances as he ſhall be converted.

My Brethren, that which daſheth both theſe, is this; the efficacy of working upon a mans heart, is aſcribed to the might of his power; ſo the Text ſaith; According to the efficacy of the might of his power. It doth daſh firſt the working by moral perſwaſions only, for that is but a Metaphorical working; ſo far as the objects propoundeth, worketh; the Will being ſet free by a power of grace. But ſuch a kind of working doth no way require an exceeding greatneſs of power: If there were no other working upon a mans heart when he is turned, where ſhould this exceeding greatneſs of power, Paul ſpeaks of here, be ſpent? Not in aſſiſting and accompanying moral perſwaſions or Oratory arguments: The Apoſtle you ſee attributeth it to the might of his power, an efficacious power; therein lieth the efficacy of his grace. On the other ſide, take the congruity of the Jeſuits, they ſay that when God doth mean infallibly to convert a man, he doth take him at ſuch an advantage when he is ſo diſpoſed, and every way ſo circumſtantiated that it ſhall work. Saith the Apoſtle, it is according to the power of his might; therein lieth the efficacy of it too: He daſheth that likewiſe; for do but conſider a little, to put the efficacy of the working of grace upon ſuch circumſtances as a man is caſt into at ſuch a time and not at another, is to caſt the work upon meer accidents that will fall out; whereas here it is aſcribed to the might of his power, not to his power only. And it may be a man is in ſuch a diſpoſition but once in his life time; ſuppoſe he be then converted, and he be out of that diſpoſition the next day, how ſhall his heart be carried on to perſevere in grace? Therefore certainly the efficacy of working grace and carrying it on, lieth not in congruity, it were ill for us if it did; but it lieth in the power of his might; According (ſaith he) to the efficacious working of the power of his might; ſo ſaith the Text.

My Brethren, to end this, you ſhall find that the Scripture ſtill attributeth it to the power of God. What ſaith the Apoſtle, 2 Theſſ. 1. 11. That your faith (ſaith he) may be perfected with power; if perfected with power, then certainly begun with power. The thing I quote, it for is this, he aſcribeth it to power. Now if a man carry a thing by power, you know it is beyond the force of arguments; we uſe to ſay, he carried it by force, by ſtrength; I will not ſay by violence, for God works ſweetly, and according to the nature of the Will; but he ſaith, he carried it with power; Faith it is perfected with power, and it is begun with power; yet God doth cloath his power with arguments and perſwaſions. You ſhall find likewiſe in Scripture, that the keeping of a man ſo as Temptations do not overcome him, is not attributed to moral perſwaſions, to the Liberty of the will being aſſiſted and ſtrengthned; but the victory that caſteth it, whereby we overcome the World, the Devil and all; it is attributed to the ſtrength of God that is in us. 1 Joh. 4. 4. He that is born of God overcometh the World, becauſe greater is he that is in you, than he that is in the World. It is a victory, my Brethren, (that which caſteth the act ſtill) for that is properly victory to give a man power to overcome, but the victory it ſelf is not attributted to the liberty of a man's Will put into ſuch a condition that he may turn or overcome, vercome, but it is attributed to the ſtrength of him that is in us, becauſe he is greater, becauſe he is ſtronger: How is he ſtronger if he do not overcome? wherein is ſtrength elſe ſeen? And ſo now as Paul in 1 Cor. 15. ult. giveth thanks, triumpheth over Death, and Hell, and the Grave; Thanks be to God (ſaith he) which gives us the victory through our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. So come to the work of Faith and believing, and preſerving a man to Salvation; whence cometh the victory? Even from God, from ſtrength, a greater ſtrength that is in you than is againſt you, in your own hearts, or in the Devil; therefore ſaith Paul, Who ſhall deliver me? I thank God through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord.

It is a mighty inſtance that Auſtin hath. Take Adam, ſaith he, whom God did leave to ſhew the liberty of his Will, according to the Courſe and Law of Nature, to ſhew that he was a Creature; he had all helps, he had habitual grace inclined his Will to good, he had no corruption to tempt him, he had all ſorts of incouragements, he had taſted how good God was; yet his Will was tempted with the knowledge of a ſeeming good, and overcome. Take now a poor Believer, he (ſaith he) hath but a little grace in him, and a great deal of corruption in his own heart; he hath habitually as much againſt him as for him, he is inſnared with all the pleaſures of the world, he hath all the evil of it ſet againſt him; nay he is put to deny himſelf; yet this man's Will holdeth, when Adam with all his grace and no temptation fell away. What is the reaſon of this? It is the mighty power of God that worketh in him, that keepeth him, ſaith he. I uſe to ſay, that the weakeſt Chriſtian and Jeſus Chriſt, are too hard for all the World, and all their Luſts. I am able to do all things (ſaith Paul) through Chriſt that ſtrengtheneth me.

But you will ſay, the Will is a Will.

What then? Do you think that God made any Creature that he doth not know how to rule it? Take the inſtance of Chriſt; He had a will and free, and more free it muſt be then any mans in the World; becauſe if he had not that ſame full liberty that we have naturally; he had not merited, if his obedience had not been in the ſame nature free that ours is: For that is the argument, they ſay a man muſt have a Free-Will, becauſe his actions elſe are not worthy of praiſe or diſpraiſe: Our ſaviour Chriſt his actions had no merit in them (that is more than praiſe) if he had not the ſame liberty in working, that we have; the humane nature I ſpeak of. Well, this humane nature is joyned to the Godhead. If God did not know how to carry on the Will of the Creature infallibly what had followed here? That God now dwelling in the humane nature might have ſinned; for if the humane nature had ſinned it had been attributed to him, as it is called the Blood of God. The Will of Chriſt therefore was an inſtrument, as we ſay his humanity was, which aſſuredly the power of God (which had ingaged it ſelf long before Chriſt came into the World) could rule and keep in obedience, yet keep it free, and moſt free, and free in that ſenſe that we in this life are free: For otherwiſe, how could God have made the promiſes to all the Seed, if he had not the Will of this Creature in his power to rule, and rule effectually, and yet the Will be a Will too; all the Saints in the Old Teſtament muſt come down again elſe, all the promiſes muſt have been void, not a man had been ſaved, God could not undertake this, if he could not work upon the will to turn it to Holineſs, and yet be a Will ſtill. Therefore certainly God hath a way to work upon the Will of man efficaciouſly by the power of his might, by an omnipotent ſweetneſs to carry a man on, and yet the Will remain a Will ſtill.

In a Word, my Brethren, Herein lieth liberty, when as a man doth not only do actions out of his own inclinations as Beaſts do; but when he doth actions out of choice, and ſeeth ful reaſon to do them, becauſe they are done with knowledge they are therefore free. That it is both an exceeding greatneſs of power and an efficacy of power that works faith in us, the ſame that wrought in Chriſt when he was raiſed from the dead; and the efficacy of it is aſcribed to power and to the power of his might, that ſo you may give all the glory to God in the great work of converſion: Who according to the exceeding greatneſs of his power, according to the working of his mighty power which he wrought in Chriſt when he raiſed him from the dead and ſet him at his own right hand in heavenly places.

SER-

Sermon. XXIV.

SERMON XXIV.

EPHES. I. 19, 20.

And what is the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward, who believe, according to the working of the might of his power.

Which he wrought in Chriſt, when he raiſed him from the dead, and ſet him at his own right hand in the Heavenly places.

I Shall repeat nothing I have delivered, but only lay open the Method I have proceeded in handling of theſe words.

I propounded theſe Four things to be conſidered in them.

The Firſt is, ſome general Conſiderations about the Power of God. I named Three.

1. The excellency of that Power, deſcribed in theſe words, The exceeding greatneſs of his power.

2. The efficacious working of his Power, in theſe words, According to the effectual working, the Energy of his Power, of the might of his power. They are all words to note out an efficaciouſneſs in the thing here mentioned.

3. The proportions of the Power of God, According, ſaith he. He putteth forth more or leſs power in ſome works than in other, as himſelf pleaſeth.

The Second was, the Perſons toward whom this exceeding greatneſs of his power is exerciſed, it is To us-wards.

Thirdly, Here is the work wherein it is exerciſed: It is all the works that God hath upon Chriſtians, both from firſt to laſt; (this I ſhewed in the laſt diſcourſe) eſpecially the work of Converſion, Who believe according to the working of the might of his power.

And when he had diſcourſed at large from the 20*th* Verſe to the end of the Chapter, what a Power wrought in Chriſt when he raiſed him from the dead; he having ſaid, that he putteth forth the ſame Power in them that believe; he telleth them in the ſecond Chapter, from the firſt Verſe to the ſeventh, That he put forth the ſame Power in raiſing them up, in quickning their hearts, in working Grace in them. Read over the Coherence, and you will find it to be eſpecially meant of the work that he had wrought in them, when he converted them and brought them to believe.

I am yet upon the Third thing, viz. wherein this Power is manifeſted. I proved in the laſt diſcourſe (and I thought to have added ſomething, but that the time cut me off from what I have now to deliver,) that the thing wherein this Power is manifeſted, this exceeding greatneſs of Power, it is at the preſent in Believers; it is not only meant, as ſome would have it, of his Power in raiſing them up at Laſt day. For this I ſhewed Reaſons, which I will not repeat.

I proved it firſt, to be the ſcope of the Apoſtle.

Now the ſecond thing will be, What it is in the work of Converſion that doth draw forth the exceeding greatneſs of the Power of God.

And the Third thing is this, That it holdeth proportion with that Power that raiſed up Jeſus Chriſt from death to life.

Sermon XXIV.

Now then to handle in the first place that Second thing mentioned, viz. what it is in the work of Conversion, (which I have proved to be the scope of the Apostle to take in, and especially to aim at,) I say, what is that should draw forth so great a power from God, to have all these high and mighty expressions of it, The exceeding greatness of the might of his power.

There are great Disputes in the World, what power God putteth forth in converting men to him. My Brethren, believe not discourses of it, but believe the Holy Ghost himself. If you would know what power is put forth in any work, ask the Agent himself. Who is he that lets fall these words, but he that hath converted Millions of Souls, who is the Power of the highest, as he is called Luk. 1.35. He it is that hath indited this Scripture, and he saith no less goeth to it than the exceeding greatness of his Power. Oftentimes the Standers-by, they discern it not. When the Woman was healed by a touch of the hem of Christ's Garment, those that stood by discerned no such thing: Hear Christ speak; saith he, Virtue is gone from me; he could best tell. Because tho Holy Ghost doth work oftentimes in men's hearts in a trice; like unto a strong man that hath a slight of hand, takes up a Weight in shew easily, hence therefore men think that there is no great power goeth to the work; but the Man himself that doth the thing thus slightly, he can tell you what strength he putteth to it. So the Holy Ghost, he that was the Inditer of this Epistle, he telleth us, that the exceeding greatness of his Power went to the converting of you.

Now, my Brethren, though this be enough to settle your hearts in it, yet consider the work it self, what it is that requireth this power. All wise Agents do proportion their power unto the work they have in hand; he that spends more power than the thing requireth, it is folly. And God (you know) works all things in weight and measure. Let us consider therefore what there is in this great work, should draw forth the exceeding greatness of the Power of God.

According (saith he) to the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward.

The word εἰς ἡμᾶς either is towards us, as noting an extrinsecal agency, an Agency without us, yet which concerns us; or it noteth out in us. We will consider first, what God doth when he bringeth a man home to him, which is an extrinsecal work out of him. And Secondly, what he doth in him; and so we shall by degrees shew you, that there is an exceeding greatness of Power required to this work.

In the first place, What God doth extrinsecally toward a man, and for a man, besides what he doth in him.

First, When he converteth a man, he casteth the Devil out of him; that is one thing that is done for a man, besides what is done in his own heart; and there is an exceeding greatness of Power goeth to this. In Matt. 12.28. our Saviour Christ there, from his having cast out a Devil, and there saying, he did it by the Prince of Devils, he clears the point, and he riseth up to the point of Conversion, (for that is his scope likewise,) and he sheweth that it must be a Divine power that must cast the Devil out of a man, and when you are turned to God the Devil is cast out of you. Saith he, If I cast out Devils by the Spirit of God, then the kingdom of God is come unto you; Else (saith he) how can one enter into a strong man's house, and spoil his goods, except he first bind the strong man, and then he will spoil his house?

To open this place unto you a little.

Every man before his Conversion, as he is a Child of Satan, so (as Chap. 2. vers. 2. of this Epistle hath it) the Devil works effectually in him while he is a Child of Disobedience; he doth ride and act, and fill the hearts of men, as you have it Act. 5. You shall find this in Scripture, that the wickedness of men is expresst to you by how many Devils they have in them, as Luke 12.26. when he would describe a man's state to be in a worse condition than his former, He takes seven Devils worse than himself, and they enter into the man. According to the proportion of a man's wickedness in the state of Nature, accordingly hath he Devils that possess his Soul, that is certain. According (saith he in that Eph. 2.2.) to the Prince of the power of the Air, the Spirit that works now in the Children of Disobedience, works not in you as he was wont to do, for he is cast out; he works now, but not in you, You walk thus and thus, not according to the power of the Prince of the Air.

Therefore

Therefore in Joh. 16.11. he ſaith, that the Spirit ſhall convince the World of Judgment, for (ſaith he) the Prince of this World is judged. When a man is converted, Satan is judged, is caſt out. Before a man was taken Captive of him at his will, 2 *Tim.*2.ult. Sermon. XXIV.

My Brethren, This is a mighty Power to throw the Devil out of a man. In that 12*th* of Matt. 28. he ſaith, If I by the Spirit of God caſt out Devils. Look Luke 11.21. If I by the Finger of God. The Finger of God you know was applied to a Miracle that no Creature could do, *Exod.*8.19. He is called the Strong man; and, ſaith he, If I throw the Devil out of any man, I muſt overcome him by ſtrength, for he is a ſtrong man. He compareth him to a Giant, and ſaith he, he will never yield; he muſt be bound; there is no quarter, no moral perſwaſions will turn the Devil out of a man's heart. And he ſaith, (I remember it is an expreſſion in Luke 11.22.) that he hath παγοπλίαν, Armour; he hath all ſorts of Armour for to defend himſelf, and to keep the Heart; which in the 21*th* verſe is compared to his Caſtle. He compareth him to a ſtrong man that hath his Caſtle, and he hath goods there; for ſo he calleth them there, a ſpoiling of his goods, for every ſin is the Devil's goods; it is more the Devil's work than ours, he is gratified in it more than we; it is our loſs, but it is his gain, for he is the Father of all ſin. Now ſaith he, if I caſt the Devil out of a man's heart, he muſt be bound, it muſt be by main ſtrength; therefore ſaith he, a man muſt enter in that is ſtronger than he and bind the ſtrong man, and then he will ſpoil his houſe. Here is, you ſee, one part of the greatneſs of power put forth in the work of Converſion; but here is but the Finger of God, it is no more in compariſon of what followeth; yet this is ſomewhat toward it. Here is the exceeding greatneſs of his power toward us, or to us-ward.

But Secondly, Let us come to the exceeding greatneſs of his power in us. To open that to you, for indeed that is the main: You ſhall find there are exceeding great expreſſions of Scripture about the work of Grace in us.

It is compared to Creating at the firſt, that expreſſion is often uſed, to a Metamorphoſis, a Transformation. It is a word that is uſed *Rom.*12.1. It is ſuch a transformation, as when Beaſts are turned into men; for ſo you know the word Metamorphoſis is. It is the Title of a Book that deſcribeth the Metamorphoſis, the change of Men into Beaſts, and Beaſts into Men. So it is deſcribed Iſai. 11.6. he telleth us there, that the Wolf and the Lamb ſhould dwell together, and the Lion and the Calf ſhould lie down together; that is, God under the Goſpel would change theſe Creatures, the wildneſs of them, he would Metamorphoſe them. And *Iſai.*43.18,19. it is a place that the Apoſtle doth allude to, and therefore I quote it. You ſhall find in 2 *Cor.*5.17. ſaith the Apoſtle, If any man be in Chriſt he is a new Creature; Old things are paſt away, behold all things are become new. Now that place in Iſaiah is quoted for this; and if you read there, where he uſeth the ſame words much to that purpoſe, he telleth you, that the Beaſts of the field ſhall honour him. He had mentioned before. Remember ye not the former things, neither conſider the things of old; here Old things are paſt away; Behold, I will do a new thing, The Beaſts of the field ſhall honour me, the Dragons and the Owls. He would go and convert Heatheniſh men, Men that were Beaſts, that were as remote from honouring God, even as Beaſts are in ſome regard. But how would he do this, but by a Creation? Saith he, verſe 21. This People have I formed for my ſelf, they ſhall ſhew forth my praiſe. Here is that the Apoſtle ſaith, Old things are paſt, all things are become new; it is with a transformation.

Now, my Brethren, where have you in Scripture (mark what I ſhall now ſay) any one that fell away from God, that it is ſaid of him, he was a new Creature, or was born again, which is the infuſion of a new life, or a new Soul; or that he was quickned and raiſed from the dead? All theſe phraſes are put to expreſs the greatneſs of this Power. It is no where ſaid in all the Word of God, of any ſuch man, that he fell away; Why? Becauſe to that work that ſhall never fall away, goeth a Power anſwerable to the work of Creation; it is the infuſion of a new Nature, it is the raiſing of a dead man. There is a counterfeit of it indeed, which theſe phraſes are never applied unto.

Sermon XXIV.

But you will ſay, Theſe are Metaphors?

Suppoſe they be but Metaphors many of them, yet ſtill in this they agree, That the ſame Power that created, the ſame Power that ſhall change a Beaſt into a Man, make that tranſformation; the ſame Power that ſhall quicken a dead man, the ſame Power doth go to convert. In this they agree.

My Brethren, I ask you this Queſtion, To what end doth God ſet forth the work of Grace to us by theſe Metaphors? He ſetteth them forth that he might have real Thanks, therefore certainly there is ſomething in theſe expreſſions that anſwereth the work of Creation that is real; for God would not have you give thanks above his proportion, above what his power in working is. Do but compare Epheſ. 2. 10. with Col. 3. 10. In Epheſ. 2. 10. ſaith he, We are his workmanſhip. How? Produced by Creation. If he had meant any other working, (will you mark my Reaſon?) If he had meant any other working than Creation, he would never have ſaid, His workmanſhip Created; it had been enough to have ſaid, His workmanſhip, for that implieth the Power of God. Why doth he add Created? Certainly, to ſhew that is as great a work as Creation: Therefore in Coloſſ. 3. 10. (compare with this likewiſe Eph. 4. 24.) he compareth the Image of God before the Fall, to the Image of God now renewed in the heart of a Chriſtian. Saith he, We are renewed (ſo it is in the Coloſſians) after the Image of him that created him, namely at firſt. All the World grants that it was an immediate power of Creation wrought that Image at firſt. Now then look Epheſ. 4. 24. and there you ſhall find, that this Image is ſaid to be created likewiſe, After the Image of him that created them at the firſt. So that this is his meaning; As it is the ſame Image, ſo there is the ſame power goeth to work it; it is a Creation works it now, as a Creation wrought it before. He uſeth the ſame expreſſion both of the one and of the other.

Will you come to particulars, this is but in general, you ſhall find it is a Power exceedeth the Creation. I will but take for my ground Ezek. 36. 26. you ſhall ſee there what goeth to convert a man: The Power of God is put forth there in three things.

It is put forth firſt in the removing of what hindereth; there is Amotio impedimenti, it is called the taking the ſtony heart out of your fleſh, ſo Verſe 26.

There is Secondly a giving of a new Capacity to perform, a new Nature and new diſpoſition, which is called giving a new Spirit, and by new Spirit he meaneth another thing than the Holy Ghoſt. Why? For he mentioneth him afterward, I will put my Spirit within you, and cauſe you to walk in my Statutes. That's at the 27*th* Verſe, but this new Spirit is at the 26*th* Verſe.

And then Thirdly, There is not only a Power given, new and holy Diſpoſitions, that ſhall make a man capable by the actings of the Holy Ghoſt to do well, it is a workmanſhip created to good works, it is fit for it; but he telleth us, I will put my Spirit within you, and cauſe you to walk in my Statutes, ſo ſaith Verſe 27. And to ſhew that he it is that doth all this by an Almighty power: What ſaith he at Verſe 36? after he had ſet down inlargements of Promiſes; ſaith he, I the Lord have ſpoken it, and I will do it; as he is Jehova he will do it.

Now let us but conſider theſe Three things, and you ſhall ſee what a mighty power goeth to turn a man to God.

Conſider firſt what God takes away; I will take (ſaith he) the ſtony heart out of your fleſh. It is not a hardneſs, ſuch as is of Wax, that by an extrinſecal power it may be melted; the Fire will melt it, the Sun will melt it; but no Fire no Sun will melt a Stone, you can deal with that no way but by taking it away; therefore that is the phraſe, I will (ſaith he) take away the heart of ſtone, or the ſtone of the heart. You ſee here is ſomething to be deſtroyed, therefore it is called a new Creature, 2 Cor. 5. 17. Why New? Becauſe all New reſpecteth all Old to be taken away, as Heb. 8. ult. In that he ſaith a New Covenant, he hath made the firſt Old, he aboliſheth that: ſo the words following imply, and ſo indeed it followeth in 2 Cor. 5. 17. He that is in Chriſt is a new Creature; Old things are paſt away, behold all things are become New. There is a paſſing away, a taking away of Old things, and there not a whit of the Old remaineth in the New,

New, all is become New, ſaith he; not a ſtick, not a ſtud that was in a man's Natural eſtate will ſerve afterward more, than the Soul and the Faculties of it, All Old things paſs away, and all are become New.

Now, my Brethren, will you compare it with the Creation, that you may ſee it is a thing far exceedeth it: God ſheweth forth power in Creating; he ſheweth forth here greatneſs of power, and exceeding greatneſs of power; it will appear before we have done.

Herein lay the Power of God in the Creation, that he created ſomething out of nothing, as it is *Rom.*4. 17. He called things that be not, as if they were; yet that is made even and equal with the raiſing of the Dead in that very place. But here is a calling things that are to nothing firſt, and when he hath done that, then there is a calling things that are out of nothing. There is a doubling of his Power in this, there is not only a calling things out of nothing, but there is a bringing to nothing Old things. Now it is a Rule in Politicks, and it holdeth true in Philoſophy likewiſe, Ejuſdem poteſtatis eſt deſtruere cujus eſt conſtituere, the ſame Power that goeth to make Laws is it which deſtroyeth Laws, diſannulleth Laws; there is as much power goeth to bring Old things to nothing, as there is to create New things out of nothing. Now then here is a double Power you ſee, here is not only power, but greatneſs of power, it will come to exceeding greatneſs anon.

The Converſion of a Sinner is not expreſt only by putting in a new heart, but the Scripture doth uſually expreſs it by deſtroying Old things, and as much by that as the other, becauſe the power of God is ſeen as much in that as in working Grace, that is, as in working Grace ſimply, it is not but that the working of Grace is at the ſame time with this deſtroying Old things; but it is to ſhew that there is a doubling of his power in it. It is more than to create Grace in Adam or in the Angels. He therefore calleth it the deſtroying of the body of ſin, *Rom.*3.6. The circumciſion of the heart, he cutteth off ſomething, *Coloſſ.*2.11. the taking away of the Vail. I might give you many like Inſtances.

In one word, I do parallel Juſtification and Sanctification together. There goeth more to juſtifie a Sinner, than went to juſtifie an Angel that never fell, or Adam in Innocency. There is not only an Active obedience, Do this and live; but there is a ſatisfaction to the puniſhment of the Law, which was an Appendix to the Law; there is a paſſive obedience too; if you will juſtifie a Sinner you muſt put theſe in. Come to ſanctification likewiſe, there is not only required a power to put Grace into a man, but to deſtroy ſin. Therefore now, as when he would magnifie the Mercy of God in juſtifying us, he mentioneth the ſtate of ſin we were in: ſo when he would magnifie the Power of God in Converſion, he conſidereth the eſtate we were in before Converſion. So you ſee here is now a power to create a new Creature, here is a power to diſſolve the old. Here is power, and greatneſs of power.

Well, but conſider in the third place this, That the thing to be deſtroyed, viz. ſin, is oppoſite, is enmity to the Grace that God bringeth in, and to God and his Law. It is not ſimply to deſtroy Old things, to bring a Creature to nothing; but it is to deſtroy enmity. In the firſt Creation, when all things were made out of nothing; there was nothing to oppoſe, though there were nothing to help it. It had no matter to be wrought upon, yet there was not matter to oppoſe, for all was made out of nothing. But here, that which is deſtroyed is the higheſt, the greateſt Enemy that can be. You may ſee for this *Rom.*8.7. The carnal mind (ſaith he) or indeed, the carnal diſpoſition of the mind (for the word implieth ſo much) is enmity againſt God; for it is not ſubject to the Law of God, neither indeed can be.

Here are two things (you ſee) ſaid of the diſpoſition of a man's mind by Nature. The firſt is, It cannot be ſubject; and the ſecond is, It is enmity.

In the firſt place, It cannot be ſubject. A Wolf will ſooner marry a Lamb, or a Lamb a Wolf, than ever a Carnal heart will be ſubject to the Law of God, which was the ancient husband of it, as in Rom. 7. 6. It is the turning of one contrary into another: To turn Water into Wine; there is ſome kind of ſymbolizing, yet that is a Miracle: But to turn a Wolf into a Lamb, to turn Fire into Water, or rather Fleſh into Spirit; what ſaith the Apoſtle Gal. 5. 12? Theſe are contrary. Between nothing and ſomething there is an infinite diſtance; but between Sin and Grace there is a greater diſtance, than can be between Nothing and the greateſt Angel in Heaven.

To

Sermon XXIV.

To exemplifie this unto you to deſtroy the power of ſin, how great a power muſt it needs be? You all yield that to take away the guilt of ſin, requireth an infinite power, an infinite righteouſneſs. Saith our Saviour Chriſt, Matt. 9. 6. Whether is it eaſier to ſay to the man, (and make it good when you have done,) thy ſins are forgiven, or to ſay ariſe and walk? It was a harder thing to forgive ſins; only ſaith he, that ye might know that the Son of Man hath power to forgive ſins; for they would deny that he had power to forgive ſins, he exemplifieth it by a Miracle, but to forgive ſins (ſaith he,) that is his meaning, is infinitely harder.

Now, as we ſay of the Attributes of God that they are alike, of equal extent, ſo are the Two Attributes of Sin, as I may call them, the guilt of ſin and the power of ſin are of a like extent; to deſtroy the power of ſin in a man's Soul is as great a work as to take away the guilt of ſin, all miracles are in it, ſaith he, the blind receive their ſight, the lame walk, and the poor receive the Goſpel; it is eaſier to ſay to a blind man ſee, and to a lame man walk, than to ſay to a man that lies under the power of ſin, live, be holy, for there is that that will not be ſubject.

You will ſay to me, that the expelling of ſin is but the putting in of grace, as of darkneſs by light.

But let me tell you this, that ſin is too hard for grace if grace had not a back. Adam had grace enough, but ſin ſeized on his heart, threw it out; The ſtrength of ſin is the Law ſaith he, and ſin would keep poſſeſſion, it hath the Law to plead for it; but ſaith he on the contrary, the ſtrength of grace is the Goſpel, and that is it that keepeth grace now that it is not thrown out, otherwiſe ſin would quickly throw your grace out, it is too hard for it. That is the firſt thing, it is not ſubject to the Law of God.

Not only ſo, but it is ſaid to be enmity. It is not only ſaid it cannot be ſubject and it muſt be deſtroyed or elſe it will never yield, but it is Enmity, in the abſtract, it is in the nature of it. In Coloſſ. 1, 21. we are not only ſaid to be enemies by evil works, it is not a grudge, but we are ſaid to be enemies in our mind too.

Now, my Brethren, if there be ſuch an Enmity, and if there be ſuch a power in ſin as there is, to detain a man, that will not yield, will hold a man to the utmoſt, there muſt be an Almighty power of God to ſubdue it. You ſhall find in Coloſſ. 1. the Apoſtle at the 11*th.* verſe, having mentioned the glorious power of God that enabled the Saints to do what they did; upon occaſion of it what followeth? Giving thanks (ſaith he verſe 13.) unto the Father who hath made us meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the Saints in light, who hath delivered us from the power of darkneſs, and tranſlated us into the kingdom of his dear Son. When he cometh to give thanks for the works of Grace upon them, what doth he mention? Not only making them holy, making them meet for the Inheritance of the Saints in light, but likewiſe for delivering them from the power of darkneſs. The word ἐῤῥύατο, implieth not meerly a delivering or freeing, but a freeing by violence, a ſnatching out of a power that elſe would never yield. I remember Zanchie ſaith upon it, they are freed ſaith he, not only that have a deſire to be free, but they are ſnatched out, Eripiuntur, that have no deſire to be free: And that is the condition of a man in the ſtate of Nature.

But you will ſay, all theſe are but Metaphors, all that is ſpoken of the ſtate of corruption and the power of God in delivering a man.

Shall I tell you in a word? When you come to Hell, you will not then ſay they are Metaphors, you will then find all theſe things true of your natural condition. And let me tell you this too. If ever you come to be humbled, you will not find them Metaphors but realities; for the ſoul of a man is humbled under the real ſenſe of all theſe things when he turneth unto God; and yet when it cometh to a diſpute upon the power of God in working upon a mans heart, Creation, and the like, theſe are you ſay but Metapors. My Brethren, they have the greateſt reallity in them in the world.

To give you but an inſtance, that now your own heart may be judges; go take all the powers of man, when a man cometh to turn unto God, and do but ſee what a mighty oppoſition there is; go take the underſtanding of a man: God beginbeginneth there; what doth he find there, He findeth not only ignorance of all Spiritual principles, and such an ignorance as a man is not capable of knowing, he cannot know, so saith the Apostle, 1 Cor. 2. 14, 15. he is blind; Now it was never heard (saith he) from the Creation of the World, that any man opened the eyes of one that was born blind; yet this is the powe that must convert a man. But I say that is not all, there is not only an incapacity, a blindness; but there is an opposition, and the strongest that may be, and this must be taken away. Serman XXIV.

I will quote but one place for it, it is in 2 Cor. 10. 4. He describeth there (as the Text doth here) the mighty power of God in converting of a man. The weapons of our warfare (saith he) are mighty through God: Mighty? wherein lieth their might? That he might shew the Might that is drawn forth, he describeth the opposition that the Understanding of a man makes against the ways of God; he telleth us that there are Strong-holds, Pulling down of Strong-holds (saith he) casting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth it self against the knowledg of God, and bringing into captivity every thought into the Obedience of Christ. Here lieth the Power, the Might that God sheweth; he speaks of that opposition that is in the Understanding of a man, as the Word νόημα, reasonings implieth, high thoughts, a Devil to a strong man. He compareth the opposition to what is in a besieged Town, there is Strong-holds, and there are such as plainly will take no quarter, they must dye for it or else they will never yield; therefore he calleth it pulling down the Holds, there is no way else to get them, the Holy Ghost must batter them about their ears, yield they will not. They consist in reasonings and in imaginations; a bottom light doth it. When a man cometh to turn to God, let him have never so much knowledge, when he shall come to turn to God in earnest, he hath a thousand dislikes and not fancyings of the ways of God, he hath a world of Arguments and Ojections, and an infinity of Reasonings against them. My Brethren, when a man's heart is put to it what is the right way of worshipping God and serving him, personally and otherwise, there is nothing but a world of Reasonings that come in against it; and there are High thoughts that exalt them selves likewise. These must all be brought into subjection.

My Brethren, when a man turns to God (I will express it to you in a Parliamentary Language) you must have this fundamental Law, this Bill pass, this must be the Predominate Rule, the Suprema Lex, the highest Law that must guide a man's whole life, namely, That it is best to obey Christ in all things, at all times, and in all conditions, whatsoever the state be: This Bill must pass with the consent of the whole heart. Now to advance Christ, to bring all, every high thought into captivity, into subjection to the Obedience of Christ; this will never be without an Army, without the mighty power of God, that must throw all these Strong-holds down, our weapons are mighty through God, saith he, they must be Mighty through him, they will never do else. Now do but think with your selves what an uproar there must needs be in the State of the Soul at the introducing such a Law as this is into a man's heart, if it be in earnest, if he sees he must live by it for ever. You shall have all the three States against it, both the Understanding, Will and Affections; you shall have big swelling Reasonings and thoughts of absurdities: What? if this Law take place we must all come down then, all projects, all corruptions must go down.

My Brethren, if all the Apostles were now alive, and should set themselves to perswade one man; and besides them if God should send all the Angels down from Heaven to the Earth to perswade one man, they could not make this Law pass in a man's heart, they could not perswade him to it; it must be the might of God to throw down all opposite Reasonings. And God doth this, he doth come with a little Light, a bottom Light into a man's heart, (for he createth there) and letteth him see that excellency that is in himself and in his ways; and he doth not stand reasoning much with him neither (though all Reasonings are for it) but God letteth in a Light, answereth all Objections, throweth down all Strong-holds, bringeth every thought into the obedience of Christ. Paul was in his hight, how opposite was he unto God? what a world of Reasonings had he against Christ in his heart? Jesus Christ did but tell him, I am Jesus whom thou persecutest, and there was a Light shone in his mind (as much as that which shone round round about him) and in an inſtant, ſaith he, Lord what wilt thou have me to do? All the diſputations in the World would never have wrought thus. So the poor Jaylor, he cometh in trembling at Midnight, Sirs, what ſhall I do to be ſaved? He was converted before Morning. All the Reaſonings in the World, and all the Moral perſwaſions that Men or Angels could have brought, would never have done this, it was the mighty power of God caſting down Strong-holds, putting in a Light that goeth beyond all a man's objections.

Come to a man's Will, and you will have as much to do there. A man's Will muſt have a new end put upon it. And come to the Will and Affections, you ſhall find as much difficulty there to oppoſe. For Example; There are two great Principles in the heart of a man, that if ever God's Spirit cometh to deal with in good earneſt, will hold tug with him as long as they can. What are they? you ſhall have them in 2 Tim. 3. 3, 4. Men ſhall be lovers of their own ſelves; there is the Firſt: and then followeth covetous, proud, boaſters, &c. And the laſt is at the 4*th.* verſ. Lovers of pleaſures more than lovers of God. Here are the two Principles that are in a man's Will and Affections, and they will try it too. This ſame ſelf-love, that is the General, that goeth before, the Captain; and love of Pleaſure, that is the Lieutenant that followeth after this Army: One is the firſt, the other is laſt, backs all theſe Luſts that are between.

Love a man's ſelf (firſt begin with that;) It is the great Devil, abſolutely it is Beelzebub, it is the Prince of Devils, it is the bottom of Original Sin; and to throw this Devil out of a mans heart, to depoſe him, to bring him down, it muſt be a mighty power indeed to do it. It was a great pawer to caſt the Devil out of a man; but to caſt out this great Devil out of a man's heart, to depoſe him, and bring another King in, this is a hard work. When God was thrown out of a man's heart when Adam did ſin; then Self-love was next Heir, and ſtepped up into the Throne. All that God had (ſaith Self-love) I will have, I will ſerve my ſelf as much as ever I did God: Now as all the heart was for God before, in the ſame manner it is for it ſelf now. All the ſtrength that a man hath doth back Self-love, ſtands for the King: It is a King of an abſolute Soveraignty; ane becauſe it is a King, therefore when God cometh and tells a man you muſt be ſubject to me; Self-love buſleth; What? I am abſolute, ſaith he; it is enmity againſt the Law and againſt all that ſhall proclaim War againſt Self-love in a man. I am for my ſelf (ſaith he) and all that is within me is for me; there is but poor Conſcience that ſtandeth conteſting a little; but the whol heart is for it, that is certain. Now when the Holy Ghoſt ſhall come to depoſe this great King, this abſolute Monarch, as it is in a man's heart, eſpecially it ſhall be a Forreigner that ſhall go about to do it, as God and the Spirit of God is. Love is ſtrong as death, (it is a Proverb, Cant. 8. 6.) Self-love much more; all the ſtrength that a man hath is for himſelf, he will give all for his life, for the life of this King, a man will never yeild, all in nature will riſe up againſt him that ſhall go about to depoſe it, all will be in Arms. Yet notwihſtanding, though the Heathen imagine a vain thing, though the People and Kings of the Earth rage againſt Chriſt, and though all in a man thus be up in Arms; yet God will ſet his Son upon this Holy Hill, upon a man's heart before he hath done.

My Brethren, this muſt be an Almighty power that muſt do it; it is not all the perſwaſions in the world will do it. You may perſwade Self-love to much, to ſerve God, and to do many things ſo far as will ſtand with its Prerogative, ſo that he may remain King ſtill; but to depoſe him, and that God ſhall be King, and he God's Favourite, this muſt be an Almighty power to do it.

So likewiſe for the love of Pleaſures; (that is the ſecond thing) When Self-love cometh to be depoſed thus (as in converſion it is) from being King, ſaith every Luſt, every poor inferiour Luſt, if this Government be altered, I ſhall loſe this pleaſure and that pleaſure, if you turn the World upſide down thus. There is nothing in the heart, my Brethren, but is for pleaſure in ſome kind or other. A man liveth in pleaſure, (that is the expreſſion) as a Fiſh doth in its Element. Take him out of carnal natural pleaſures in ſome Creature or other, his Soul dieth; it will fight for pleaſure as for his life. Saith the Apoſtle, 2 Pet. 2. 14. They have eyes full of Adultery, they cannot croſs from ſin, they cannot till a further power cometh. Luk. 14. 20. I have married a Wife (ſaith he) and in plain terms I cannot come, he makes that his excuſe; for ſuch luſts as theſe are, have a mighty power upon a Man's heart; how great? See what Chriſt's own expreſſion is, that was the Saviour of Souls, and knew what belonged to the converting of them, for he died for them. In Matt. 19.24. There was a rich man came to him and he was an ingenious man; Chriſt preached the Goſpel to him moved his heart a little, he uſed all Moral perſwaſions to him that could be, told him that he ſhould have Eternal Life; yet he goeth away: what doth Chriſt inferr upon this? You ſhall find the ſtory of that young man is the Introduction to the words I quote this place for, A rich man (ſaith he) ſhall hardly enter into the Kingdom of Heaven: Hardly? that is no great matter. What doth our Saviour Chriſt? He riſeth higher in his expreſſion, And again I ſay unto you, it is eaſier for a Camel to go through the eye of a Needle, than for a rich man to enter into the Kingdom of God; not for one that is rich ſimply, but Mark telleth us cap. 10. for one that truſteth in his riches, that is his expreſſion,

and

Sermon XXIV.

Firſt he ſaith it is hard.

Secondly, it is ſo hard, as it is eaſier for a Camel to go through the eye of a Needle. It was a Proverb among the Jews, and it is in many of the Rabbins extant to this day. You will ſay that is an abſurdity to uſe ſuch an expreſſion, a Camel to go through the eye of a Needle; the more abſurdity there is in it, the more it expreſſeth the impoſſibility.

In the Third place, ſaith Chriſt, With men this is impoſſible, but with God all things are poſſible; it is impoſſible for all the men in the world to do the work for another man; that is, ſimply impoſſible, but with God all things are poſſible; why doth he ſay all things? If it were a ſlight work he would not ſay ſo, but ſaith he, with God that works all things elſe, that hath an omnipotent power to ſubdue all things to himſelf, with him it is poſſible, he muſt do this.

I find this word, All things are poſſible, uſed but in one or two caſes. It is uſed upon the Incarnation of Chriſt, when the Angel had told Mary that Jeſus Chriſt ſhould be born of her, ſaith he, with God all things are poſſible, and that was the higheſt work that ever he did, he ſhewed ſtrength with his arm there. So it is ſaid of his working in us, Epheſ. 3. 20. and the like you have Phil. 3.21. According to the power whereby he ſubdueth all things unto himſelf, that is the power that works in us; that is the power that muſt work a man off whoſe heart is ſet upon his riches, and is ſet upon any pleaſure.

My Brethren, it is not the offers of Eternity, it is not all the perſwaſions of men and Angels, nor of the Holy Ghoſt himſelf, if they be but meer moral perſwaſions, will make a man part with a Bird in the hand for two in the buſh; my meaning is that will make a man part with his Luſts, or his pleaſures and ſin, and take and accept the offers of Eternity; but it muſt be the power of God with whom all things are poſſible, and he muſt put forth as much power to work this as he putteth forth to work all things elſe. And ſo now you have ſeen the power that is ſhewn in deſtroying this oppoſite, ſin.

I will but ſpeak a word of the power that is in Creating. There is yet ſomething to be done, there muſt be a new Creation beſides this deſtruction. There is a taking away the old heart, old things paſs away, you ſee what a power that requireth. The Second thing in Ezekiel that I mentioned (becauſe that place holdeth this out) is a New Heart and a New Spirit, and to work that, is a work of Creation, it is an Almighty power of God. Now Creation is a work that hath no matter to work upon, that is properly Creation, and therefore requireth an infinite power. Create in me (ſaith he) a clean Heart, Pſal. 51. Saith he in Job. 14. 4. Who can bring a clean thing out of an unclean? If a man's heart be unclean, if he come to have a clean heart, certainly it muſt be created. We are therefore ſaid to be the Workmanſhip of God, created to good works, in that Second to the Epheſ. Mark it, it is not only a working upon the heart, but a workmanſhip it is called. And if you will know the manner of ſetting up and producing it, it is by way of Creation.

I might be large in ſhewing you, that beſides this deſtroying old things, there is a Creating of new principles, and Gracious diſpoſitions in the heart before a man turenth to God, which are the foundations of his turning to God, Turn me an I ſhall be turned. I will name but a Scripture or two; and then I will ſhew you the mighty Power that goeth to create this diſpoſition.

Sermon XXIV.

First I will shew to you, because those that make the power of God to be only external, assisting, do detract from the power of God, it lieth in creating new dispositions in the heart, and then assisting, and then working upon them. I will name a Scripture or two. I have shewed you what goeth to destroy the old, I will shew you then what power also goeth to the creating and rearing up of the new.

First, I will shew you that there must be a new Principle created: Saith he, Joh. 3. 6. That which is born of the Flesh is Flesh, that which born of the Spirit is Spirit. See how I argue out of these words. Here you see there is Flesh and Corruption, which is by one birth; here is Spirit, a distinct thing from the Holy Ghost, that is a fruit of a Second birth. Now my Brethren, take a man in his first birth, all the world yieldeth that there are habitual Principles and dispositions unto evil, there is an habitual aversion from God, and conversion to the Creature; there are dispositions and inclinations only to what is evil. Now then in the second birth, answerably the Spirit that is made and born by the Holy Ghost must be oppositely Holy, and have dispositions to the contrary; for otherwise, Nature is not healed if the Holy Ghost only works Acts in a man, and did not work Habits; the second Adam did not answer the first: And therefore you shall find Gal. 5. 17. the Apostle saith, The Flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the Flesh; for these are contrary. I appeal; Dare any man say the Holy Ghost lusteth in us against the Flesh? No, it is the Spirit, an habitual frame of Heart that lusteth in us against corruption. So now there is a New Spirit wrought, that is, there are dispositions that are contrary unto sin, as sin is unto Grace: As there are habitual dispositions to sin, both through Nature and Custom; so there are habitual dispositions to good that do lust against the Flesh in a man. Therefore he compareth this Spirit in that 5*th.* to the Galatians, to a Root, The fruit of the Spirit is Love, Joy, Peace, Long-suffering, Gentleness, Goodness, Faith, &c. He compareth the Spirit or frame of Grace, begotten by the Holy Ghost, unto a Root; now mark you, (to follow this) in Matt. 13. 21. speaking of those that are temporizers, what doth he say of them? he saith they wanted a Root in themselves; that is, they had not habitual dispositions of Grace created in their hearts, that might be a Root to the fruit of the Spirit; for you know the Root and Fruits answer one another. Nay, if you ask me what that Root is? the Parable there explaineth it, a good and honest man, a heart made Holy; therefore our Saviour Christ saith, Matt. 7. 17. compared with Matt. 12. 24. make the Tree good and the Fruit will be good, but the Tree must be good first. Therfore you may read in Matt. 25. the Foolish Virgins they had Lamps, they had assistance from the Holy Ghost for present performances; but the Wise Virgins took Oyl in their vessels with their Lamps, when themseves were asleep, and their Lamps were out, yet they had a Holy disposition, a Spirit of Grace, they had Oyl remaining in their hearts. I will not stand to open this; It is the Law written in their hearts. I could shew you that the written Law in the heart is not the Holy Ghost, for he is the writer, as it is 2 Cor. 3. 3. It is called the Inner man renewed daily. It is the Holy Ghost that strengtheneth the inner man; it is not the Soul that is the inner man properly, but the inner man is that which is opposite to corruption, and he saith, Ephes. 3. They were strengthened with might by the Spirit in the inner man.

Well, here therefore is an inner man to be wrought, to be created: Now if there be an inner man to be created, and Holy and Gratious dispositions; here is an Almighty power to do it.

My Brethren, you know that John Baptist was sanctified in the Womb, he had not the Holy Ghost only working upon him in way of Acts; for he did not actually believe and actually repent; Children do not. If you take away habits of Grace, you must take away all Grace from Infants, from that pure part of the Church as one calleth them, Purissima Ecclesiæ, for so they are.

Now for the Creation of these habits of Grace, all Holy dispositions, there must be an Almighty power go to do it. I will give you a Scripture for it, it is 2 Pet. 1. 3. According as his Divine Power hath given unto us all things that pertain to Life and Godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to Glory and Vertue, whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious Promises, that by these you might be partakers of the Divine Nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the World through lust.

Here

Here you ſee wherein the mighty power of God is ſeen in working upon a man's heart, it is in giving him all things belonging to life and godlineſs. The meaning is this, He furniſheth him with Tooles, it is called a workmanſhip. If you would ſet up a man's Trade, you will furniſh him with all inſtruments, with all Utenſils neceſſary to a trade; ſo here, it is a workmanſhip created, he hath all habits in him neceſſary, all things pertaining to life and godlineſs, and this a mighty power muſt do anſwerable to the Creation, yea let me tell you this, that although the Creation of the World and of a man's Soul be a mighty work, yet to create Grace, eſpecially the ſecond time, to fit a man for Heaven is a greater work, it is more than all the firſt Creation, it is a tranſcendent thing. There is no work that God doth, ſo great as this, eſpecially this new Creation of Grace, for it fitteth a man for Heaven. Therefore ſaith the Apoſtle, 2 *Cor.*5.5. He that hath wrought us for the ſelf ſame thing; he hath wrought us for Heaven. Adam's grace did not fit him for Heaven. That which muſt carry a man into Heaven is a Grace, (as the grace of Faith is,) higher than what Adam had in this World, he was not fitted for Heaven by what he had; but we are made meet (ſaith he,) for the inheritance of the Saints in light. It muſt be a more tranſcendent grace than what Adam had, raiſed up to higher acts at leaſt.

Sermon XXIV.

Though grace be but an accident in the Soul of a man, yet it is more worth than all men's Souls. It is not ſo in Philoſophie, that will tell you otherwiſe, that will tell you that a ſubſtance is better than an accident: But it is ſo in Divinity. Saith he, James 1. 18. Of his own will hath he begotten us, that we ſhould be a kind of firſt fruit of his Creatures. The meaning is, Hath he put Grace into us? To what end hath he done it? He hath made us thereby ſaith he, the choiceſt of all his Creatures, as Chriſt is called the firſt fruits of them that ſleep, the choiceſt of them; ſo ſaith he, we are made the choiceſt of all the Creatures, having Grace wrought in us, he having begotten us. Iſrael is called, Jer. 1.3. the firſt fruits of God, becauſe he was the choiceſt of all the World; and though that word ſeemeth to be a diminiſhing, yet the truth is here it heigtneth it, it is ἀπαρχαὶ τινὰ and it is of the Creatures, κτισμάτων, in the plural number, it makes a man moſt excellent of all Creatures whatſoever. It is a good ſaying of Aquinas, The good of grace (ſaith he,) is a greater good than the good of the world, it excelleth all Creatures.

And therefore my Brethren, let me but ad this, of all Creations, the Creation of Grace is the greateſt next to that of Glory; and for my part I muſt profeſs unto you, I think as great, for it is that which fitteth a man for glory, it is the beginning of glory. Of all Creations it is the greateſt, there is but two to be compared with it. I ſhall give you Scripture for it. I remember the laſt day I quoted the ſecond to the Coloſſians, and the 10, 11, 12*th.* verſes, where it is ſaid that Faith is of the operation of God, and ſpeaking of Sanctification, he ſaith, it is a Circumciſion made without hands. There are but two things in the Scripture that are ſaid to be made without hands, and it is to ſhew the excellency of their Creation above all Creatures elſe, (as you ſhall ſee by and by.) It is a phraſe uſed of the glory of Heaven, We look for a Houſe not made with hands, ſaith he, 2. Cor. 5. 1. It is uſed likewiſe of the framing the body of Chriſt, and uniting it to the Godhead, *Heb.*9. 11. It is ſaid to be a Tabernacle made without hands. And what is the meaning of made without hands there? The Apoſtle himſelf explaineth it, That is (we tranſlate it,) not of this building, but in the Greek it is, not of this Creation. Adam's body was made and created, but ſaith he, his was made with hands in compariſon with the body of Chriſt, take it with all his Graces. It is not of this Creation, ſaith he, it is a higher creation, ſo the phraſe made without hands implieth, and it is uſed but of the body of Chriſt, and of the glory of Heaven, and to create grace is as much.

To confirm this to you, that it is ſo taken, made without hands, is not only in oppoſition to the work of man, but to the work of God too, and to the work of the firſt creation, I will give you a Scripture for this, (compare but two Scriptures together,) that the phraſe is ſo taken, Acts. 7. 49. There Stephen doth quote Iſai. 66. 7. to prove that God would not dwell in a Temple made with hands; ſaith he, verſe 47. Solomon built him a Houſe, Howbeit the moſt High dwelleth not in Temples made with hands. That is, you will ſay, in Temples made with man's hands; but you ſhall ſee it is not made with God's hands by the firſt creation, As ſaith the Prophet, (he quoteth the Prophet for it,) Heaven is my Throne, and Earth is my Footſtoole, what Houſe will ye build me ſaith the Lord? Hath not my hands made all theſe things? Not made with hands, hath an oppoſition not only to the Temple made with man's hands, but to the whole creation made with God's hands at firſt; for otherwiſe how cometh in this phraſe hath not my hands made theſe things? That is, theſe are but my own creatures, Heaven and Earth are not, an ordinary ſort of creatures, and all the things in the world you ſee are but an ordinary ſort of creatures, and theſe (ſaith he,) my hands have made, but I will have ſomething to dwell in made without hands; that is, it ſhall not be of this creation, it ſhall be of a higher creation, What is that? Look in Iſai. With him will I dwell that is of a poor and an humble ſpirit, that trembleth at my word. Doth God create anew? Doth he create grace in the heart? It is not of this creation Heaven and Earth was made of, it is of a higher creation, yet there was an Almighty power in creating them; and yet ſaith he it is not of that creation, the making of Heaven and Earth it is but an ordinary ſort of work; but the making grace in a man's heart is a creating without hands in compariſon of Heaven and Earth.

To uſe but a ſcripture more, and it is but a falſe teſtimony, when the falſe witneſſes brought an accuſation againſt Chriſt, they ſaid, We heard this man ſay, I will deſtroy this Temple made with hands, and within three days I will build another made without hands; which though it were a falſe teſtimony, yet it may ſerve for this.

But I ſay the phraſe is only uſed of us, and of the framing of the body of Chriſt, which are all tranſcendent and above the firſt creation. So that to work grace, to work the love of God in the Soul, to put the leaſt life of grace into the Soul, it is a new creation, it is a work made without hands.

My Brethren, I will end all this in one word. You ſee here is a work of a new creation, that doth put into a man's heart that which is above all creations; you will ask me what that is?

I will anſwer you in a word, It is putting in all things belonging to life and godlineſs, ſo the Apoſtle Peter expreſſeth it, 2 Pet. 1.8. The vaſt Ocean of the heart of man, let his heart be never ſo far wrought upon by ſelf love, never ſo much ſtirred, there is not the leaſt drop of godlineſs in it, the leaſt drop of the love of God in it, not the leaſt aiming at God more than at a man's ſelf, of having a man's affections ſtirred upon conſiderations drawn from God and not from a man's ſelf. All ſuch diſpoſitions of heart coſt more power to work them than the making of the frame of Heaven and Earth, All theſe things have my hands made; this is made without hands, it is not of that creation, it will never go to Hell with thee.

I ſhould make this more manifeſt to you, it is a practical point this which I have handled, and I have ſtood the longer upon it to this end, not only to ſtand diſputing with men of the greatneſs of the power of God in converſion, but to give you an account of it, and I have ſpoken the things we have known and felt and ſeen, and for to go and diſpute with reaſons it will never convince a man. I remember that Eccleſiaſtical ſtory; There was a man that was a Philoſopher, and he held out diſputing againſt fourſcore Biſhops that met together in a Counſel, held them all work, anſwered all their reaſons, there came but in a poor, a mean man that gave him but an account of his Faith, and of the work of God upon him. Saith he, while theſe Biſhops with all their words ſpake words I had words to anſwer them, but this man's words came with power that I cannot reſiſt. My Brethren, to diſpute what power goeth to the work of grace, men will put it off eaſily, but to give you an account of it, wherein it lies, and to do it out of the word, and out of a man's heart, and the experience of the people of God; this often times hath a power going along with it that no man can reſiſt.

Sermon XXV.

SERMON XXV.

EPHES. I. 19, 20.

And what is the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward, who believe, according to the working of the might of his power.

Which he wrought in Chriſt, when he raiſed him from the dead, and ſet him at his own right hand in the Heavenly places.

WE are handling of this, the Exceeding greatneſs of the power which God in this life putteth forth toward Believers. I have proved at large, that the Power here extended toward Believers, is not to be reſtrained only to the Reſurrection at the latter day, that he will raiſe up our mortal Bodies, as he raiſed up Chriſt's Body unto glory; but that he ſpeaks of the Power of God in this life, as the ſame Apoſtle expreſſeth it, Chap. 3. verſ. 20. According to the power which worketh in us, that worketh at preſent; that is the Power he here meaneth.

The Power of God is either ſeen in the firſt work of turning us to God, and that is mainly and eminently in the Apoſtle's eye; for ſaith he, (in a Coherence to theſe words in the ſecond Chapter, verſe 1.) And ye who were dead in ſins and treſpaſſes (it muſt have a Verb) hath he quickned, ſpeaking of their Converſion, and ſo at the 5*th* and 6*th* Verſes you find it plainly expreſt.

Or elſe this Power is ſhewed toward us in continuing the work of Faith; and it is hard to ſay, in which more power is ſhewn and ſpent.

I have made entrance upon the firſt, as an inſtance and a demonſtration enough of all the power that works afterward; For we are kept by the power of God unto ſalvation, ſo ſaith the Apoſtle.

The Power that God ſheweth, The exceeding greatneſs of his power. I propounded for the method of handling it theſe theſe Two things.

The former, That there is an exceeding greatneſs of Power ſhewn in it.

The Second, That it holdeth proportion with that Power which wrought in Jeſus Chriſt, when he was raiſed from the dead.

For the former, For the demonſtration that an exceeding greatneſs of power is ſhewn in working Faith, and in quickning us at our firſt Converſion unto God; that Power I ſaid was ſhewn in Two things.

Either Firſt, (I went by degrees in it) in what he doth for a Believer, though not upon a Believer; the word εἰς ἡμᾶς will not only bear what is done in him, but what is done for him, and done toward him. As the throwing out of Satan out of a man (as I ſhewed out of Luke 12.) it is a work that is done for a Chriſtian; but it is not a work ſo much upon him as upon Satan that is caſt out.

Now

Sermon XXV.

Now (saith he, *Joh.*12.31.) is the judgment of this world, now shall the Prince of this world be cast out; he speaks, when the World should be converted to Christ, that Conversion is called the Judgment of the World; as in *Joh.*16.11. He shall convince the world of Judgment, that is, of that Holiness and Righteousness which they ought to take up and walk in; and he addeth, for the Prince of this World is judged. That this is done by a strong hand, I shewed in the last discourse; If I by the finger of God cast out Devils. The Finger of God must go to it.

Then Secondly, If you come to the work that he doth in us, it ariseth not only to a greatness of power, but to an exceeding greatness of power. I paralleld it with the first Creation, in which there was a greatness of power shewn; there was a making of something, yea, of all things out of nothing, and between nothing and the least thing there is an infinite disproportion. But when he comes to work upon the heart of a man, that is dead by nature in sins and trespasses; he doth not only find nothing to work upon, but he findeth all things against him, so that his power is not simply drawn out in creating Grace out of nothing, but in subduing and destroying of corruption; and so I shewed you the Scripture expresseth it: There is not only nothing to help or further, but there is all things to oppose. I shewed this at large in the last discourse, and how to subdue that which opposeth, there is required a greatness of power.

But then in the Second place, There is an exceeding greatness of power, there is a doubling of power. There is not only a power to destroy what is opposite, (as I shewed both upon the Understanding, the Will and Affections,) but there is a putting in and a creating of a new principle, a contrary principle, maugre all the opposition that the heart of man makes against it. And so, because there is a doubling of power, there is an exceeding greatness of power cometh to be spent in this work.

In handling of this I shewed, that the very Creation it self of the new Creature, was of a higher kind (as the Scripture expresseth it) than the first Creation was, because that Grace is the most excellent of all God's Creatures. *Jam.*1.18. speaking of the work of Conversion, and of God's begetting us again, Of his own will (saith he) he hath begotten us; And what followeth? That we should be a kind of First-fruits; but (as I shewed you in the last discourse) the eminent First-fruits, of all his Creatures, the choicest of all; for so doth the Grace given by Regeneration, make a man.

And that it was a higher Creation than the first, the putting in of new principles thus into the heart, I shewed you by the phrase that is used *Coloss.*2.11. where he calleth the sanctification of a sinner, the circumcising the heart, which as in Deuteronomy is that we may love God. He calleth this new work in us Sinners, A circumcision made without hands. I observed this upon it, that that phrase, made without hands, it is used only of three things, whereof Grace or the new Creature is one. It is used of that Glory which God will put upon his Saints and Children hereafter in Heaven; which all the World must acknowledge, is a work transcending that first Creation; We have a house not made with hands, saith he, 2 *Cor.*5.1. It is used secondly of that framing the body of Christ, the Humane nature of Christ both Body and Soul, and uniting it to the Godhead; that Humane nature so united, is called a Tabernacle made without hands, *Heb.*9.11. And then Thirdly, here in this *Coloss.*2.11. he calleth the Sanctification of a Sinner, and working Holiness and Grace in him, circumcising the heart to love God, he calleth it a Circumcision made without hands.

You have the like (as you shall see by and by) in *Isai.*66.1,2. Only observe first what followeth there in *Heb.*9.11. when he said, that the Body of Christ is a Tabernacle made without hands. What doth he add by way of explication? He saith, That it is not of this Creation, so the word in the Original is, as if he should say, the Tabernacle and the Bodies of men, of ordinary men; though the one made by man and the other made by God, yet they are a more slight, a more ordinary kind of work: But, saith he, this Body of Christ is made without hands; that is, it is not of this Creation, it is not of the old Creation, it is of a more transcendent Creation: And so is Grace.

I backed this Interpretation with *Act.*7.48. compared with *Iſai.*6.1,2. In Acts 7.48. there Steven proveth, that God will not dwell in Temples made with hands; ſaith he, Howbeit the moſt high dwelleth not in Temples made with hands, as ſaith the Prophet. Now mark what the Prophet ſaith, Heaven is my Throne and Earth is my footſtool, what houſe will ye build me ſaith the Lord of Hoſts? or what is the place of my reſt? therefore man's hands cannot make him an Houſe good enough. Nay, Heaven and Earth, the old Creation is not good enough for him; For (ſaith he) hath not my hands made all theſe things? Well, what is it that he will have now to dwell in, that both exceedeth all the Houſes man can build, and exceedeth the Houſe that himſelf hath made, if you take the material Heavens; and the Earth, that is his Footſtool? Look in Iſai. 66. you ſhall find that it is a gracious Heart, that is a thing made without hands; that is not of this ordinary Creation of God, for it is ſpoken in oppoſition to things made with hands; All theſe things (ſaith he) hath my hand made; he ſlighteth them ſo, theſe are but an ordinary ſort of works, I will not dwell in them; but to him will I look that is poor and of a contrite ſpirit, and trembleth at my word, ſo it is verſe 2. Sermon. XXV.

So that now, to have the leaſt ſpark of Grace begun in a man's heart, it is a work made without hands, in compariſon. It is of a higher kind of work than all the works of Men and Angels, yea, than the works of the firſt Creation, Theſe things hath mine hand made; but I will dwell in a circumciſed heart made without hands; that is not of this Creation, that is of a higher Creation than all this. And ſo much for the General, That the putting in of Grace into the heart, it is a matter of a more tranſcendent power than the firſt Creation was.

Now, my Brethren, as I ſhewed you in particulars the power of God in deſtroying what oppoſeth; (I went over the Underſtanding, ſhewed what oppoſeth there, what a mighty power went to deſtroy the ſtrong holds there. I went over the Will and Affections, ſhewed you what oppoſeth there likewiſe; Self-love, and all inordinate Affections and love of Pleaſures, and the like:) As I did this in the Negative part, in the deſtructive part; ſo I will do the ſame alſo in this Poſitive part. And I will ſhew you (this is the ſcope,) that for God to work Grace in your underſtandings, to know things aright (which you think is moſt eaſie) there is an exceeding greatneſs of power going to it, no leſs than went to the firſt Creation; yea, much more, it is not of this Creation: ſo likewiſe to put you in holy principles into your Will and Affections. Therefore all that goeth to frame a Chriſtian from firſt to laſt, it muſt needs be an exceeding greatneſs of power. I am forced thus to repeat things, that I may clear my method as I go along.

And Firſt, What God doth upon your Underſtandings when he doth convert you. Why, it requireth an exceeding greatneſs of power (though you little think it) to believe; Who believe (ſaith the Apoſtle) according to the working of his mighty power. I will not run over all things that may be ſaid of believing, but I will ſpeak of Spiritual knowledge, to know things ſpiritually and aright as Chriſtians do, that it requireth an exceeding greatneſs of power to work it. I ſhall demonſtrate this unto you in the firſt place in a more general way; And ſecondly more particularly by two things.

In the firſt place in the General. For to make a Soul to take a thing upon God's bare Authority, and therefore to believe it is as great a work as any God doth; and it requireth as much power (mark what I ſhall ſay to you,) it requireth as much power to work Faith in the heart to believe God will do ſuch a thing, as it is for God to do it.

For Inſtace, to explain my ſelf, (though I ſhall not follow my Inſtance in the opening of it, but for illuſtrations ſake) this is my meaning. At latter day, God will raiſe up all our Bodies from the Duſt to glory. To believe this ſpiritually and aright, and to work your hearts to believe it, requireth as much power as for God to do it, when he cometh to do it. So you have my meaning.

I ſhall

Sermon XXV.

I shall give you a place of Scripture for it, and it is in *Mar.*9.21,22. There is a poor man cometh to Christ to have a Miracle done for him; what doth he say to Christ? If thou canst do any thing (saith he) wilt thou heal my Son, and throw the Devil out of him? If thou canst do any thing? so he saith to Christ. Then mark what Christ saith to him; Jesus said unto him, If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth. To open these words a little. You see when the man said, If thou canst do any thing, help my Child? Saith Christ again, If thou canst believe, all things are possible. He makes it of equal possibility for him to do the thing, and for the man to believe. It was as hard a matter for the man to believe this, and required as much power to work Faith in him, as it was for Christ to effect it: Therefore our Saviour addeth, To him that believeth all things are possible, (for Faith commandeth all the power in God,) as if he should say, There is as great an infinity of power required to work Faith in thee to believe it, it is all one and to do the thing. So far as any thing is possible, so far it is credible, it is believable.

Let me put you a Supposition. If God should reveal by me infallibly, as he did speak by the Prophets and Apostles, That he would make a new World to morrow. It were as hard a thing for God to work this Faith in you, as for him to make this World; he might make this World upon the same rate, as he would work this faith in your hearts. To believe a thing upon Divine Authority doth require an Omnipotent power: To believe things upon slight grounds, that is easie, The Fool believeth every thing, saith Solomon in the Proverbs; but to believe this in earnest, it is a work of an Almighty power.

And so much in General, That the power of God in doing any thing for us, it is but proportionable to the working of Faith in us, that he will do it, or that he is able to do it; yet you think this is easie, and yet you see what the Scripture saith.

To come now particularly to shew you, what a mighty power goeth to work Faith and Spiritual knowledge; and it is but to believe the thing, not to believe that it is yours; but to believe the thing in a Spiritual manner requireth an exceeding greatness of power. I shall shew you it by Two things.

The First is, to work a principle of Faith. You know I told you in the last discourse, that this new Creation, much of the power of it was spent in working Habits as we call them, that is, inward Abilities, to work a formal principle, such as is to work sight in a blind Eye. You know there is the act of Seeing, or Seeing it self, and there is a principle of seeing, a power to see; a framing of an Eye and of a Soul to see, (as I may so express it,) or of a faculty of seeing. Now in the Understanding, to understand things spiritually and aright, there must be an Almighty power go to it, to put a new principle in you, to make you capable to believe and know Spiritual things.

I remember in the last discourse, when I shewed what expressions the Holy Ghost useth to express the work of Conversion, I quoted *Rom.*12.1,2. where it is called a Transformation, an altering the form of the mind, the shape of the mind; it is a Metamorphosis, as I then expresst it, and indeed the word is so in the Greek. Now the transformation there, what is it applied unto? It is applied unto the Understanding of a man, it is but the changing of the Understanding that that word is used of. You think, that to believe and to know Spiritual things is no great matter, and that all the difficulty lies in doing of them, and in being affected with them. But the Apostle saith plainly, That you may know things aright, that you may approve of them in a Spiritual way, of their goodness and excellencies; you must be Metamorphosed, saith he, in your minds, you must have a new form come in to your understanding; so the word signifieth.

He useth two words there, Be not conformed to the World, saith he; and the word he useth for that is συχημαζιδθαι, it signifieth an outward form, an artificial form; for the World is but an empty shew, an empty shape (as the Apostle calleth it, The fashion of the World passeth away, it is the same word.) But when he speaks of the other, the transformation of the Understanding; the word is μεταμορφοῦσθαι, it signifieth an inward cause, such as the Soul is to the Body, a Natural form, not an Artificial; and Inward one, not an Outward one.

Sermon XXV.

So that now, for a man to approve of Spiritual things in a Spiritual manner, look as if he would make a Beaſt underſtand as a man, you muſt bring a new Soul, a new form: ſo if you will make an unregenerate man underſtand Spiritual things aright, you muſt bring a new form, a new Soul (as it were) into his underſtanding. The Apoſtle expreſſeth it 1 Joh. 5. 20. He hath given us an underſtanding that we may know him; not but the ſame for ſubſtance, the ſame natural power of underſtanding is in a wicked man and in a godly man: But there is a new ability, a new principle, a new quality put in that fits him to underſtand Spiritual things, which the other cannot do.

To illuſtrate this further unto you, and to ſhew you that to work this requireth no leſs power than in the Creation. Look firſt into 1 *Cor.*2.14. (I ſhall tell you to what purpoſe I quote that by and by) The Natural man (ſaith he) receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God, neither can he know them, becauſe they are ſpiritually diſcerned; but he that is ſpiritual judgeth all things, yet he himſelf is judged of no man. To open theſe words; By a Natural man he meaneth, a man that is not regenerate, that is not born again (for he doth oppoſe him to a Spiritual man) a man that hath no other principles in him in reſpect of Grace, than what he brought into the World; he hath the ſame natural underſtanding he had without any Spiritualneſs put upon it by the Holy Ghoſt. This is a Natural man. Now, ſaith he, this man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; Nay, ſaith he, he cannot know them. But he that is ſpiritual, he is both able to receive them, and he can know them; ſo the oppoſition runneth. And all cometh to this, that there muſt be a new principle put into the underſtanding of a man; not only a new light come in, but a new principle, if you would have this man underſtand Spiritual things aright. And that is the ſcope I quote this place for, that the underſtanding muſt be altered, a new principle muſt be put into it, a new habit as we call it. All the expreſſions do carry it to that ſenſe.

For, Firſt he ſaith, otherwiſe, if he be not made Spiritual he cannot receive Spiritual things, that is, he wants a capacity. It is ſuch a phraſe, as if you would ſpeak to a Deaf man, you will ſay, he cannot receive what you ſay, for he wanteth a faculty of hearing. If you bring a Blind man into the Sun, he cannot receive the light of it, for he wants a natural faculty ſo to do. He expreſſeth it in a way of Nature, he is not capable of it, which argueth, I ſay, a want of a principle whereby to do it.

And not only ſo, but he ſaith in the following words, He cannot know them; he wants a δύναμις, a power; ὐ δύναται γνῶναι, a Potentia, as the Philoſopher calleth it; for the Apoſtle ſpeaks ſuitably here to Philoſophical principles. That, as we ſay in Philoſophy, nothing can work but it muſt have a principle of working: A man cannot ſee without the faculty of ſeeing; ſo this man wants a faculty of knowing Spiritual things, therefore he cannot know them.

Thirdly, The Reaſon he giveth evidenceth this, for what is the Reaſon why a Natural man cannot know them? Becauſe, ſaith he, they are ſpiritually diſcerned. (He ſpeaks juſt like our Schoolmen, for we uſe to expreſs in a way of diſtinction, in a Spiritual manner, that is, ſpiritually.) The meaning is, To ſee it in its own Spiritual nature, abſtracted from all conſiderations beſides, ſo he cannot ſee it, that is the meaning of this, He cannot diſcern it ſpiritually. If he would know it aright, he muſt know it as it is in it ſelf, now ſo he hath not a principle ſuited and fitted to this object as it is Spiritual in it ſelf; he may know it otherwiſe in other conſiderations, but take it as it is Spiritual and he cannot know it.

Sermon XXV.

As for Example, It is as if he ſhould ſay, the Mind of a man, or the Eye of a man rather, it cannot ſee an Angel; Why? For an Angel is ſpiritually diſcerned. One Angel can ſee another; but take an Angel meerly as he is a Spirit, let him not take a ſhape, take him in his Spiritual nature, and the Eye of man cannot ſee him; Why? For he is a Spirit, and he muſt be diſcerned ſpiritually. Juſt ſo it is here, Take Spiritual things in their own nature, and he wants a faculty, a Spiritual principle to ſee them with, to know them with.

Therefore in the Fourth place, which is a fourth Reaſon why that the Apoſtle here would have a Spiritual, a new principle to go to help a man to ſee Spiritual things ſpiritually; This is a Fourth Reaſon, in that he calleth him that diſcerneth a Spiritual man: He that is ſpiritual, ſaith he, diſcerneth all things. What doth he mean by a Spiritual man? You have it interpreted John 3. 8. That which is born of the Spirit is Spirit. What is it that is born of the Spirit? It is not an act of knowing, but it is a principle of knowledge; for alwaies that which cometh by birth is Nature, it is Natural diſpoſitions that are derived to us by our birth, therefore we uſe to ſay of what is a man's diſpoſition, He hath it by nature. Therefore now his meaning is this, He is a Spiritual man, he is regenerate, he hath a new underſtanding, a new principle put into him, a quickneſs, a diſpoſition of underſtanding, which a Carnal man wants, and therefore he is not fitted to know Spiritual things as he is. You ſhall find in 1 *Cor.*15.44. that the Apoſtle ſaith, There is a natural body, and there is a ſpiritual body, they are the ſame terms in the Greek that is uſed here, A Natural man and a Spiritual man. Now by Spiritual body there, what is meant? Spiritual endowments; As to ſhine like the Sun, to have agility and nimbleneſs to move as an Angel, to have all ſuch Spiritual endowments put upon it; herein lieth the ſpiritualneſs of the Body, in oppoſition to this Natural body of ours. So a Spiritual underſtanding lieth in having new endowments, which enableth a man to know Spiritual things in ſuch a manner, as no Natural man in the world can know them.

Well then, this is the ſcope of this place, and ſo I will leave it. That if you deſire to know Spiritual things aright, you muſt have as great a change wrought in your Minds to make them ſpiritual, as your Bodies one day ſhall have to make them ſpiritual at the Reſurrection; new qualities and endowments put upon your underſtandings, new forms, ſo the Apoſtle expreſſeth it, to be tranſformed in the renewing of your minds to know him, in that 12*th* of the Romans.

Now then to gather up this firſt Head, This muſt neceſſarily be done by a Creation, no leſs power than went to create at firſt. Nay it is not of this Creation neither.

To make that plain to you, That a man cannot know Spiritual things, cannot have this principle of knowledge unleſs he be made a new Creature; it muſt be a Creation that muſt do it. For this I do quote 2 Cor. 5. 16, 17. Read what the Apoſtle ſaith there, he ſpeaks of the different knowledge he had when he was an unregenerate man, and a regenerate man. See how he expreſſeth it. Wherefore (ſaith he) henceforth ἀπὸ τοῦ νῦν, that is, hence from the time of my Converſion, (for indeed a Chriſtian reckoneth his life from his Converſion,) Wherefore henceforth, that is, from the time of my Converſion, know we no man after the fleſh; yea, though we have known Chriſt after the fleſh, from henceforth know we him no more. He ſpeaks of knowledge you ſee, and of ſuch a knowledge, as he had wrought in him from the time and inſtant of his Converſion, differing from that before.

Before, I knew men after the fleſh. That phraſe After the Fleſh referreth both to the things known, that is, I valued all men and things as they were in the fleſh; if I looked upon a man that was rich and honourable, I valued him by his Riches and Honours, and what he was in fleſhly things, by this I did ſet my eſteem upon men, and accordingly upon things alſo; and this was all the underſtanding I had both of Things and Perſons. Or the phraſe referreth unto his manner of knowing, or notes out the principle by which he knew them; Knew them after the fleſh, ſaith he, that is, from Carnal principles; my Underſtanding was nothing but fleſh, That which is born of the fleſh is fleſh:

And

And ſo was my Underſtanding, like the things I valued, ſuited to them; as the things were fleſhly, ſo I valued them as ſuch, by reaſon of my fleſhly underſtanding; and ſo the Apoſtle uſeth the phraſe *Rom.*8.5. They that are after the fleſh, mind the things of the fleſh; that is, the diſpoſition of the Mind, and the things, are ſuited each to other as a Natural object and the Faculty, as the Eye in the Body and Corporeal objects. A man that is nothing but of a fleſhly underſtanding, all his delight, and knowledge, and approbation of things, is according to the fleſh. As on the contrary, in the ſame place, he that is after the Spirit, he ſavoureth and knoweth the things that are after the Spirit, valueth them according to what they are in God's Book, at a Spiritual rate. Now, ſaith he, when I was thus Carnal, I knew all things thus after the fleſh; I counted my ſelf (ſaith he in *Phil.*3.2,3.) to have theſe and theſe priviledges, I was a Benjamite, an Hebrew, touching the Law a Phariſee, concerning the righteouſneſs which is in the Law, blameleſs. He was a Scholar, and profited more than his equals, and theſe things he valued himſelf and others by. And the truth is, a Carnal man, take him practically, and thus he knoweth and eſteemeth of things: Yea (ſaith he) I knew Chriſt after the fleſh. It is the higheſt Inſtance that can be: One would think, that if he ſhould know any thing ſpiritually, he ſhould know Chriſt ſpiritually, if he knew him at all; for there is no Carnal comelineſs in him to deſire him, that Object is ſo ſpiritual as is not capable of fleſhly knowledge. Yes, ſaith he, I knew Chriſt after the fleſh; for the truth is, when he was a Phariſee, he thought the Meſſiah would have been a great King, and ſhould have come in pomp and ſtate to deliver his Nation, as you know the opinion of the Jews was, Luke 17.20. The kingdom of God cometh not with obſervation, or with pomp, for ſo good Interpreters render it, and the oppoſition in the 22*th* verſe makes for it, The kingdom of God is within you, it is Spiritual. Now, as the reſt of the Jews, ſo I valued the Meſſiah thus, and I thought thus carnally of him; But, ſaith he, when I came to be converted, from henceforth, from the time I was converted, I knew him ſo no more. I ſaw then the Meſſiah to be ſuch a one as the 14 and 15*th* Verſes hath deſcribed him, not one that ſhould come with pomp, but one that ſhould be crucified, and die, and riſe again, and thereby take away our ſins, for ſo in the 14*th* Verſe he is deſcribed, which is the occaſion of this ſpeech. This was the Meſſiah I began to know when I was converted, and I valued him according to pardon of ſin and working Grace in me. He came to know this Meſſiah ſpiritually, and after another manner.

Well now, to draw up to that I aim at How came the Apoſtle, or what was the reaſon the Apoſtle, after his converſion, ſhould have this change in his knowledge, that before he ſhould know all things after the fleſh, and now he knoweth all things in another manner?

Read the next words, Therefore, or as the word ὥστε will bear, Therefore, Becauſe, (ſo Piſcator renders it, and ſays it is an Illative particle put for a Rational, or the reaſon of what went afore, Wherefore, or Becauſe,) he that is in Chriſt is a new Creature; Old things are paſt away, behold all things are become New. As if he ſhould have ſaid, Will you have the reaſon why that I know nothing, nor even any more after the fleſh, no not Chriſt himſelf? It is becauſe I am a new Creature, that is the reaſon of it. I have had a new principle wrought in my underſtanding, by which all my thoughts are turned, all my former thoughts periſh, as a man's doth when he dieth. I do not ſet a value upon men for Honour and Riches, and for their comforts in this life. I ſet that value once upon Chriſt himſelf, and judged of him; but now I judge of men and things in a ſpiritual way, according to what they are in Holineſs and the World to come, I judge by God's Books, and not what they are in Men's Books or in the World's Books. You ſee that which cauſed this was a new Creation. Old things are paſt away, behold all things are become New.

So that for a man to have true Spiritual knowledge, which yet men are apt in their thoughts to ſlight, and think to be the leaſt of all things to be wrought, it muſt have no leſs power than what went to the Creation, it muſt have the exceeding greatneſs of the power of God to go to it. So much for the Firſt particular, The work on the Underſtanding.

Sermon XXV.

Now then Secondly, When this new Creature is wrought, that is, when a man hath a new Eye given him, there muſt be another Creation before a man will know any thing actually, before he will ſee it. This new Creation, this new Underſtanding giveth him a new Eye, a capacity indeed which a Natural man hath not; the other is blind, he hath an Eye: But ſtill his Eye will not help him to ſee; this new Underſtanding will not ſee, except God doth ſomewhat more, it will not ſee aright and ſpiritually. You will ask, what is it that is further required?

As great a thing as the former. It is this, It is for the Holy Ghoſt to create in your underſtandings a new Image of things, a new ſpecies or repreſentation of things, ſuch as never any Carnal man in this world had; and this muſt go to Spiritual knowledge, or you will never know things aright; you all come eaſily by it, but this power goeth to work it. It is the Point in hand. You ſhall find too, that an act of Faith is expreſt by an act of Sight; He that ſeeth the Son, and believeth on him, that is the expreſſion of Chriſt, John 6. 24. There is ſuch a ſight of God and of Chriſt, by the Underſtanding of a man renewed, when he doth know them, when his mind works upon them ſpiritually, there is ſuch a ſight wrought in his mind of them, as all the men in the World have not, nor are any way capable of. If all the Angels in Heaven, (mark what I ſay) ſhould go and deſcribe God and Chriſt upon their own knowledge, and all their excellencies, (they ſaw Chriſt upon Earth, they ſee him now he is in Heaven;) if a man ſhould go and quicken up his Underſtanding and Natural parts, yea, and have the utmoſt aſſiſtance of the Holy Ghoſt, (ſo as not to renew his Underſtanding;) all theſe will but raiſe up a ſhadow of Chriſt, in compariſon of what a godly man hath of him in his heart. It will be but a φαινόμενον, it will be but as we call a falſe Sun, you know there is ſometimes more Suns than one appears in the Clouds; look what that is in compariſon of the true Sun; ſuch will all that knowledge be that a man hath, that is meerly a Natural man. Take a man in Nature, raiſed never ſo high, all his knowledge is but a falſe Sun of Righteouſneſs in compariſon of what a godly man ſeeth, becauſe the Holy Ghoſt createth in him, ſtampeth upon his mind another manner of image and repreſentation of him, than he doth in the heart of the moſt enlightned men in the World.

To open this unto you a little.

I told you even now of raiſing up a falſe Sun, and ſeeing the true Sun, they are like you know, but they are mighty vaſt, wide, different things. Saith the Apoſtle, Epheſ. 4. 21. when he exhorteth them to put off the Old man, and to put on the New; If ſo be (ſaith he, ver. 20.) that ye have heard him, and have been taught by him, as the truth is in Jeſus; that ye put off concerning the former Converſation, the Old man, &c. Theſe words, If ſo be ye have heard him, and have been taught by him as the truth is in Jeſus, they are a correction of himſelf in what he ſaid before. All Chriſtians, ſaith he, are taught not to walk as the Gentiles walk, Ye have not ſo learned Chriſt; but yet becauſe many Chriſtians do learn Chriſt, and know Chriſt, and yet do otherwiſe, he correcteth himſelf, If ſo be (ſaith he) ye have heard, and have been taught by him as the truth is in Jeſus; If you have ſeen him in truth, ſaith he, if you have ſeen the true Jeſus as he is in himſelf, if you have ſeen ſpiritual Jeſus ſpiritually; then ſaith he, it will have this fruit upon you, that ye will put off the old man, and put on the new; it is impoſſible it ſhould be otherwiſe.

The thing I gather from hence is this, The Apoſtle you ſee diſtinguiſheth the knowledge of Chriſtians, all have learned Chriſt in the outward learning of him; but there is, ſaith he, a learning of him in the mind, as the truth is in Jeſus. There is a falſe knowledge, a knowledge of a falſe Jeſus, but of an appearance of him, a ſhadow of him, which all Carnal men that live under the preaching of the Goſpel have; but if you have ſeen Jeſus in truth, this followeth upon it, you will put off the Old man, and put on the New. So that from hence it is evident that there is ſuch a knowledge of Chriſt, which a man is taught, and hath wrought in his heart by the Holy Ghoſt, ſuch an image and repreſentation of him which is in truth, and in compariſon of which other knowledge is a falſe knowledge.

My

My Brethren, ſhall I ſhew you the difference wherein this lieth ?

Sermon XXV.

All the World yieldeth, that the difference of mens knowledges ariſeth from the different image or picture of things, (if you will ſo call it) which the mind takes in. That you will eaſily grant. If you take two men, and the one ſees the Picture of a man, and the other ſees the Man himſelf, he that hath ſeen the Man himſelf hath ſuch a knowledge of him, as he that hath ſeen but the Picture hath not, nor cannot have, except he ſee the man himſelf. Why ? Becauſe there is a different Image begotten in the mind and fancy of him that hath ſeen the man, and him that hath only ſeen the Picture. Hence ariſeth different knowledges.

Here then is the thing I infer, That the Holy Ghoſt, when he reneweth the Underſtanding of a man, he doth beget in him by his Almighty power another repreſentation of Chriſt and of God, and of all Spiritual things in their ſpiritual nature; whereas other men have but the Pictures of them, they do not know them as the truth is in Jeſus, as I ſaid even now.

All knowledge is either Per ſpecies Acceptas à rebus, when we take the Images off from the things themſelves; as when we ſee a man himſelf, or when I take the Image of him at ſecond hand from ſomething that repreſenteth him. Now herein lieth the difference of the knowledge of a godly man and others, that the Holy Ghoſt createth Proprias ſpecies, a proper likeneſs and repreſentation of Spiritual things, of God and Chriſt; whereas all men elſe know him at ſecond hand, they hear of him, and have been taught by him; but not as the truth is in Jeſus.

Hence is that phraſe of the Apoſtle in 1 Cor. 2. 9. (I take it, that which I am now handling openeth that phraſe, and is pertinent to the meaning of it.) Saith he, Eye hath not ſeen, nor Ear heard, neither hath it entred into the heart of man (that is, a Natural man) to conceive the things which God hath prepared for them that love him; but God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit. I plainly take the meaning to be this : There are ſuch Revelations, (ſo the Apoſtle here calleth them) ſuch Images, ſuch repreſentations of Spiritual things begotten in a godly man's heart, as never entred into the heart of any Carnal man in the World, and that is the reaſon why he cannot know them. Now Jeſus Chriſt you know is abſent, In whom, though we have not ſeen (ſaith he) we believe; He is in Heaven. And God is abſent, he is a thing not ſeen, you hear his Word and ſee his Works; but beyond all theſe, the Holy Ghoſt begetteth in your minds an Image of God and Chriſt, makes him real to you, makes him ſubſiſt; makes God that is abſent, preſent, Chriſt that is abſent, preſent. Therefore it is called a ſight, ſo the Scripture expreſſeth it, He that ſeeth the Son, and believeth on him; therefore Heb. 11. 1. where there is a deſcription of Faith, he calleth it the ſubſtance of things hoped for; they have a ſubſtantial Image of the things begotten in them. It is not a meer Notion.

Now, my Brethren, this is the higheſt Art, the greateſt power (conſider what I ſay) to beget a real and ſubſtantial Notion and Image of God, and of Chriſt, and of any Spiritual thing in the mind and heart of a Believer, and is more than to create a World. Why ? The excellency of any Creature lies in this, in its ability to repreſent God to a man; therein lay the excellency of the Creation at firſt, that it declareth God and his Glory, and ſheweth forth his handy work, as the Pſalmiſt ſaith.

Now the Image that the Holy Ghoſt begetteth in a man's heart of himſelf, of God and Chriſt, and of all Spiritual things, doth more lively repreſent God to a man than all the Scripture, ſimply, or than all the works of God, yea, than it was done to Adam; For, ſaith he, Eye hath not ſeen, neither hath the Ear heard, nor hath it entred into the heart of man from the beginning of the world, (ſo it is in Iſai. 64 4.) no not into the heart of Adam himſelf.

This all Divines acknowledge, That Faith is a knowledge of God in ſe, not of God by his works at ſecond hand, but a knowledge of God in himſelf; As when you know the Sun by a beam of himſelf, and this is the knowledge that the Holy Ghoſt works, and therefore there is required as much to it and more, than to create a World.

To

Sermon XXV.

To give you a Scripture for this, and that pertinent and proper to the thing in hand. It is in 2 *Cor.*4.6. The Apostle there compareth the Spiritual knowledge which was in his own heart, and which by his Ministry the Holy Ghost had begotten in the heart of others, he compareth the very knowledge of it to no less than the creating Light out of Darkness at first. Read the Scripture, For God (saith he) who commanded the Light to shine out of Darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the Light of the knowledge of the Glory of God, in the face of Jesus Christ. He compareth, I say, the knowledge which God wrought in his own heart being converted, and which by his means (being an Apostle) was begotten in the heart of others, to that great work of creating Light out of Darkness. Saith he, The God, the same God that commanded Light to shine out of Darkness, the same God hath caused us to have the knowledge of God; and mark it, why doth he add, in the face of Jesus Christ? The Word in the Original is, in the Person of Jesus Christ ἐν τῷ προσώπῳ, It is a personal knowledge, it is a real knowledge of God; that knowledge I have described all this while, it is not a notional knowledge, it is the knowledge of his Person brought down into our hearts by the Holy Ghost, which is an Artifice that transcendeth the power of any Creature, it is peculiar to the Holy Ghost to give a Subsistence of Christ to a man's Soul.

And that the Apostle speaks here of a mighty power that works this knowledge, is evident in the next words; for going on in the next Verse, he saith, We have this treasure in earthen Vessels: That we should have such a knowledge in us, and be able to convey it to others, it is a Treasure indeed this gift, and it is in Earthen Vessels: To what end? That the excellency of power, Hyperbole, that the greatness of the power may be of God, may be ascribed to him, that thus createth by an Almighty power, the Light of the knowledge of the Person of Christ in the heart of a man.

So that now you see, that the working of knowledge (I do not tell you of all the great difficulties, for to draw a man to believe in Christ, and to lay hold on Christ, and to love Christ, all which require the same power; but I speak simply of Spiritual knowledge, to believe the things themselves in a true, real, substantial manner) this is from an Almighty power. That ye may know (saith he) what is the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward, who believe according to the working of his mighty power. To work Faith in the very Understanding of a man; all this is required. So much now for the first part; that to believe, to have Spiritual knowledge wrought in a man, requireth exceeding greatness of power. I could not have made this plain under less time than what I have now spent upon it, and Faith you see is in the Text, for it is to us-ward who believe; I have therefore a little larger insisted upon it.

I come now in the Second place to the Will of a man (I will be brief in it) and that which is put in there too it requireth an exceeding greatness of power to make that Holy, to make a man conformable to the things he knoweth. I will instance but in one thing.

That the Will of man should be raised up to aim at God's Glory in all that he doth, and to make God the Chiefest Good, it must be an Almighty power that must put this Principle into a man's heart, a higher power than simply was in the first Creation, to do it as Believers are inabled to do it. Go take all Creatures that were made by God's Almighty power, take Men, take Beasts, they have nothing of this in them at all, not of Holiness to aim at the Glory of God; take Nature simply considered in it self as man hath it now, there is no such thing in him, nor in all the Creatures besides man; but Angels that had it created in them at first after the Image of God that created them, indeed they had it, and Adam had it so too. To put therefore such a Principle as this is into a man, that his Spirit shall love God naturally as now he loveth himself, and subordinate himself unto God: (and herein lieth Holiness) My Brethren, this is the greatest work in the World.

You may easily know the greatness of the work from the excellency of the thing. This putteth down all Creatures, it makes a man differ from other men, as a man doth from a beast. A man hath three lives that he liveth; the life of a Plant, Plant, the life of a Beaſt, and the life of Reaſon; here is a fourth life, to aim at the Glory of God. It is called the Light of life, *Joh.*8.12.

Sermon. XXV.

My Brethren, this is bringing in a new Form indeed, a new Soul indeed, to put this principle into a man's heart; this is Trasformation indeed. Why? It bringeth a new end into a man's heart; and Idem eſt finis in moralibus, quod forma in naturalibus, and ſo quod anima nova: That is, what the form is to natural things; that is, what the Soul is unto a man's Body, that is a mans end to his Soul when he is converted. It is the beſt definition I ever heard of Converſion, that it is the change of a man's utmoſt end, and upon that a man's Soul is turned to God: A man was before for himſelf, and ſo long as himſelf is his end, let him have never ſo many changes, yet ſtill he turneth upon himſelf; now do but put Holyneſs into him, to aim at God in all things, it changeth the whole man preſently, it changeth all his Courſe, all his Affections, every thing in him. It is a new Loadſtone, it will make him ſail after another Compaſs. Now to work this, to make a man's heart to be for God as he is naturally for himſelf, it requireth a mighty power of God to do it. Saith the Apoſtle in 2 Pet. 1. 4. According as his Divine power hath given to us all things that pertain to Life and Godlineſs. Haſt thou any Godlineſs in thy heart? a Principle of Godlineſs to aim at God? (for that properly is Godlineſs) to ſet him up? it muſt be a mighty power that muſt do it; according (ſaith he) to his Divine power; it is a power that only belongeth to God to do this.

Aquinas ſaith well, Elevat hominem, ſaith he; when a man hath Grace to aim at God, it raiſeth a man up above all the Being and Power of Nature. Therefore it is more than all the Creation of Nature ſimply conſidered; it is called therefore a Divine Nature.

My Brethren, you may know the great power that goeth to work this from the Excellency of it; for the more excellent a thing is in Being, certainly the more power goeth to work it. This excelleth all Beings, raiſeth a man beyond all Beings; for it raiſeth a man up to live the life of God. A man liveth the life of a Beaſt, when he liveth in pleaſures; of a Man, when he liveth in honour and in things the Reaſon is capable of; but all this while he is a ſtranger to the Life of God. But to add to the life of a Beaſt the life of Reaſon, and to the life of Reaſon the Life of God, you will ſay that there muſt be an Exceeding greatneſs of power to do this. To make a man to aim at God and his Glory, is more than to make a Man, or Beaſt, or Stocks, or Stones, or Worlds. Saith the Apoſtle James Chap. 1. 17, 18. Every good gift, and every perfect gift is from above and cometh down from the Father of Lights. Ἄνωθέν ἐστι, it is from above, wholly from above, thoſe gifts that are good, καθ' ἐξοχὴν, by way of eminency, they are wholy from above, they are wholy by a Divine power. He ſpeaks of Grace, read the words after; he hath begotten us again according to his will, that we ſhould be the firſt Fruits. And he ſpeaks of Grace before as well as in the words after, it is a thing wholy from above, no power can do it. I told you before that the Phraſe, made without hands, noteth out a Tranſcendency of working, it is applyed to Chiſt's Body, and to the Glory of Heaven. Well this Phraſe, ἄνωθεν, from above, it is applied to none but Chriſt, and it is to argue the Excellency of Chriſt above all others. Read Joh. 3. 31. When John would prove Chriſt to be greater not only than himſelf, but greater than all, what ſaith he? He that cometh from above, ſaith he, (he uſeth the ſame Phraſe that the Apoſtle doth here of Grace) is greater than all; ſo here, Every good gift is from above, it is wholy Divine, and cometh from the Father of Lights. For a man to aim thus at God I ſay it cometh wholy from him.

I will ſhut up this point only with this. Do but now look into your hearts, have you any of this perfect gift that is thus wholy from above, and draweth you up to above, to aim at God more than your ſelves, and that that ſteereth your Courſe? My Brethren, to be thus turned to God is to have a new end, it throweth the Soul upon new hinges, it toucheth the Soul as a Loadſtone that toucheth the knife, draweth it toward God in every thing. There is nothing of it in Nature, no diſpoſition of it, there is nothing of it in all the Creature: Go take man as ſimply conſidered, as reaſonable; and take Beaſts and all this inferiour World, there is no ſuch thing. There is a World indeed, a Being, where there there are thoſe that aim at God. But take this World, all the Creatures, Sun, and Moon, and Stars, take all the Sons of men, they have not ſuch a Principle as this: It is a higher Principle than Reaſon it ſelf, it is the life of God; the other is but the life of Reaſon, or the life of Beaſts. Do but examine now whether you have any ſuch thing in you, if you would know whether the Exceeding greatneſs of his power hath wrought in your hearts or no.

I may compare a man that is turning to God to one that is going with full Sail to ſuch a Countrey or Port, and hath taken in Lading fitting and ſuitable to that Countrey, and he hath a Compaſs to guide him thither, he hath the Wind fair for him. By Nature a man loadeth himſelf with a world of Vanities, he is ſhipped for this World, and that is it which his eye aimeth at, to make himſelf happy in the World in ſome thing or other. Now my Brethren, God meets with him by the way, takes him off from all his Ends that were for himſelf, putteth in a new Pilot, ſetteth up a new Load-ſtar, giveth him a new Compaſs, ſendeth his bleſſed Spirit into his heart, that as a Wind bloweth him clean another way, all the Lading he hath by Nature he cannot vent any of thoſe commodities, he throweth them all overboad. Thus God dealeth with a man when he turneth him.

Paul was a Ship richly laden, I was a Schollar, ſaith he, and profited in the Jewiſh Language more than all my Teachers, I had much to boaſt of; God comes, and he throweth them all overboard, I count all things but as droſs and dung in compariſon of the knowledge of Chriſt, &c. What made Paul do this? God had touched his heart with this Loadſtone, to the direction of which all muſt be conformed. He turneth out all old commodities, putteth in a new Rudder, a new Pilot, a new Compaſs; and now ſaith he, I muſt needs aim at God's Glory in all things. My Brethren, herein lieth the work of Converſion, wherein lieth it elſe? then it lieth in this or it lieth in nothing. Now to work ſuch a work as this in a man, to touch a man's heart thus, is as much as to throw the Earth off its Center. Take the Earth, if it move as ſome ſuppoſe it doth, if it move ſtill upon its Center, this is no great matter; but if you ſhould ſee the Earth go off his Center, and fix it ſelf in the ſame Sphere with the Sun, and go along with the ſame pace and with the ſame motion, you would think an Almighty power muſt go to do all this: This God doth. A man moveth himſelf, move him which way you will, if you will move him to God, as Self-love Love will ſomtimes do, yet ſtill he is upon his own Center, all is for himſelf. God cometh and turns him off his own hinges, takes him from his own bottom, placeth him in the ſame Sphere with himſelf, makes him aim at him in all things. This is Holineſs; and to put this Principle into a man's heart, nothing but the Almighty power of God can do it. It is above all the Creation.

Sermon XXVI.

SERMON XXVI.

EPHES. I. 19, 20.

And what is the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward, who believe according to the working of his power, &c.

CConcerning the working of his power to us that believe, here mentioned, I have ſhewn already that firſt it is not only to be reſtrained to the raiſing up of believers at the latter day. Nor ſecondly only to the power of the Spirit of God keeping us unto that day, as it is in Peter, kept by the power of God to ſalvation. But that Thirdly, and more eminently the power he prayeth here they might know, was that power which wrought in them when firſt they were turned and converted unto God, for ſo he explaineth himſelf in the ſecond Chapter from the firſt verſe to the 11*th.* Here he ſpeaks of the power that raiſed up Jeſus Chriſt from death to glory; from the 20*th.* verſe of this Chapter to the end; he ſaith, the ſame power that wrought in Chriſt in raiſing him up, works in us. And then in the ſecond Chapter he makes up the compariſon, And ye (ſaith he,) who were dead in ſins and treſpaſſes; there he deſcribeth their death, and when he hath done, ſpeaks of their quickning and being raiſed up together with Chriſt. And indeed as in the ſecond Chapter from the firſt verſe to the 11*th* he ſheweth the greatneſs of the work of grace and deſcribeth it; ſo here he ſheweth the greatneſs of the power that goes to work it, which that they may be thankful for, as he provoked them thereunto by his own example, I ceaſe not to give thanks for you ſaith he, verſe 16. ſo he prayeth that they may know it.

In opening of this I have already done two things. I have firſt ſhewn that this is the intention of the Apoſtle in this place, (that I did at large,) namely to ſpeak of the power of God in quickning and converting men.

In the ſecond place, I came to ſhew you what work it is that doth draw forth ſo great a power as here is ſpoken.

I ſhewed this two waies.

Firſt, By ſubduing the old frame of heart which is enmity to God. In the underſtanding, caſting down ſtrong holds, as in 2 Cor. 10. 4. In the will, depoſing of ſelf-love from that predominacy and regency, killing the great King, indeed the great Devil, that is in all mens hearts. Not to root it out, but to depoſe it from being the predominant principle; which when God cometh to do, all in a man is up in arms againſt him.

Secondly, By mortifying all luſts, giving them a deaths wound, by deſtroying in part the body of ſin, the love of pleaſures, or whatſoever elſe is neareſt or deareſt to a man, as ſomething or other is. That there is an Almighty power in all this I have ſhewn at large.

I ſhewed in the ſecond place, (beſides the negative works, which God deſtroyeth,) what it is he putteth into the heart inſtead of this; new Principles and habitual diſpoſitions, which muſt be at leaſt created, Not only Old thing paſs away, but all things become New; as the Apoſtle ſaith.

Sermon XXVI.

Concerning this, I shewed in the last discourse, that in the Understanding there must be a new Spiritual disposition, to make that capable of Spiritual things in their Spiritual nature; else a man cannot know them spiritually, as the Apostle saith, 1 *Cor.*2.14,15. And this will require no less than a Creation, for which I quoted 2 *Cor.*5.16,17.

Secondly in the Will, to put in a new and great principle, to put a new Spring into the Watch, that shall turn all the Wheels another way naturally; to put in Love to God. And, my Brethren, God will be loved more than your selves, or he will not be loved at all. To touch the heart with this, is more than to create Heaven and Earth. This I shewed, and gave you proof for it.

So now you see what it is in the work of Conversion, that doth draw out this exceeding greatness of his power. Two things then are dispatched: First, to clear it, that it is the meaning of the place. And then Secondly, what it is that draweth forth the Almighty power.

There is a Third thing, and that is this, What it is that occasioned this great Controversie and mistake, That there is not so great a Power as this spoken of, that goes to the converting of men. That is the Third thing, I say, which yet remaineth to be spoken to, which some have denied, that there is so great a power as this needful to Conversion. I do not say, what occasioneth the mistake of their Interpretation of this place, that is not my meaning; but of the thing that doth misguide men in interpreting this place. There would never have been so great a stir concerning the manner of Conversion, and the work of it, and about the power of God put forth in it, had not there been such workings upon the hearts of men as have less power than this here spoken of.

I have, ever since I discerned into matters of this nature, judged the occasion of the mistake in this Controversie, as likewise in that other of falling away from Grace; that the ground of the mistake in both hath been this, to speak plainly, That there are certain inferiour and lower sorts of works of the Holy Ghost upon mens hearts, movings of the Spirit of God upon mens hearts, which do not hold proportion with this Exceeding greatness of power here spoken of, which yet are works above Nature, are works of Power indeed; but they do not come up to this Exceeding greatness of power here spoken of. There are workings of the Spirit of God upon men that hold proportion with the Doctrines of those men, that hold there is not such a power put forth.

In handling of this point, which will conduce much to the clearing of all, my scope is not to shew you exact differences between these inferiour and lower workings of the Spirit of God, which men take for Grace, and true Grace it self; but my main scope is to shew, that there is a different proportion of power requisite to the producing of inferiour works of the Spirit of God upon mens hearts, and that effectual saving work which puts men into the state of Grace. To those Embrio's that never have a reasonable Soul in them (as we express it) there is less power goes to those False-births that do miscarry, than to a perfect Conception, which putteth a man into the rank of Mankind. There goeth this Exceeding greatness of power here spoken of to the one, but to the other a lesser power serveth.

You may remember I observed out of the words [According to the working of his mighty power,] that God had several proportions of working; he putteth forth more power in some works than in others, Why doth he say else, this work holdeth proportion with the Exceeding greatness of power, which he shewed when he raised Christ from the dead? In some actions God putteth forth more power, and in some less. There is less needed power to the producing of some things, than of others. Now that this Exceeding greatness of power is not needful in working in these lower waies, inferiour works of the Spirit, is the main thing I am now to handle.

That I may proceed the more clearly in it, you must know this, That there are workings of the Spirit of God, by the Word, upon mens hearts under the Gospel, which are above nature, which are works of a great power, make a great deal of bustle in the hearts of men, and causeth men to make a great noise in their their profeſſions in the world, and yet there is not an exceeding greatneſs of power put forth in working ſuch works.

Sermon XXVI.

I ſhall need to inſtance but in that place, Heb. 6. 4, 5, 6. for that is the higheſt inſtance; which I ſhall open by and by. You may read here of men enlightned, that are made partakers of the Holy Ghoſt, and have taſted of the Heavenly gift, have taſted the good word of God and the powers of the world to come, if they ſhould fall away it is impoſſible to renew them again unto repentance. Here is you ſee a work of the Spirit, for they are partakers of the Holy Ghoſt, and how elſe do theſe men when they fall away, ſin againſt the Holy Ghoſt? It is a work above nature, for it is a taſting of the Heavenly gift. It is a work of power, for they taſt of the powers of the world to come, and the things of another world which they are enlightned to apprehend which have a powerfull impreſſion upon their hearts.

But though they be works of the Holy Ghoſt, yet you muſt know that the Holy Ghoſt hath works of ſeveral ſizes, as all Artiſts have, they have ſlighter works and they have more exact and curious works. The Holy Ghoſt is not as a natural Agent that works ad ultimum virium, to the uttermoſt he can work in all the works he putteth forth in a man's heart, or as fire that burneth as much as it can burn: But he is Agens Liber, he worketh freely, ſo ſaith the Apoſtle, 1 Cor. 12. 11. There are diverſity of opinions, and all theſe things (ſaith he,) worketh that one and the ſelf ſame Spirit, dividing to every man ſeverally as he will. He worketh according as he will, and hence therefore he putteth forth more power or leſs power as himſelf pleaſeth.

Now then the different proportion of power that the Holy Ghoſt putteth forth in theſe ſlighter works, (as I ſhall prove that in the Hebrews to be, but a ſlighter work in compariſon of true grace,) and that not ſo great a proportion of power is requiſite to work them as is to work true grace, converting ſaving grace, that is the thing which now I am to handle. And perhaps that may be one reaſon why it is called the power of Godlineſs, 2 Tim. 3. 5. He doth difference it from a Form, Why? Becauſe there is a greater power from God that goeth efficiently to work it. So that as the Apoſtle ſaith of Miniſters, 1 Cor. 4. 19. that ſeemed to be ſomething but were flat, and yet took upon themſelves to be Apoſtles, I will come (ſaith he,) and know not the ſpeech of them that are puffed up only but the power. So now let us conſider the power that goeth to the working upon the hearts of theſe men, and you ſhall find that it doth not hold a proportion with that Exceeding greatneſs of power here ſpoken of.

To explain this unto you yet a little more, that I may be underſtood before I come to the point. You muſt know this, that man's nature being now corrupted and faln into ſin and miſery, the Holy Ghoſt makes a trial of all ſorts of concluſions upon corrupt nature beſides that of converſion. God propoundeth this to himſelf, ſaith he, I will make trial how far corrupt nature, remaining ſuch, unchanged, without a principle of the Love of God put into it, how far it will go, how far it may be elevated and raiſed and yet not converted, how much ſupernatural good and working toward ſalvation it is capable of without making it a new Creature.

I will quote but a place for this, it is Gen. 6. 3. And the Lord ſaid, My Spirit ſhall not alwaies ſtrive with man, for that he alſo is fleſh, yet his days ſhall be an hundred and twenty years.

To open theſe words unto you.

He ſpeaks theſe words, not of all mankind in the generallity. Mark but the words before, he ſaith that the Sons of God ſaw the Daughters of Men that they were fair, and they took them Wives of all that they choſe; ſnatched them away by force and violence, mingled themſelves in unlawfull marriages. Who were they he ſpeaks of? Theſe that were the Sons of God. Whom meaneth he by thoſe? Not they that were his own Children by regeneration, for the Text expreſly ſaith in Peter, ſpeaking of thoſe that were drowned in the Flood, that he ſwept away the world of the ungodly. But you muſt know this; that there were Cains ſeed and Seths ſeed. There were Cains ſeed, ſpeaking of that generation, he calleth the Daughters of them the Daughters of men; Cain he was baniſhed from the

Sermon XXVI.

Ordinances, Gen. 4. 14. caſt out from the preſence of the Lord, and ſo was his poſterity, and therefore they are called Men, that is, Men left wholly to the ſwinge of their natural corruption, without Ordinances, without the enjoyment thereof to work upon them or reſtrain them and to convey the Spirit to that end. Then there were the Sons of Seth, thoſe that lived in the Church, enjoyed the means of grace, the preachings of Noah and other of the Patriarchs, and thoſe were the Sons of God, for ſo you know they that do ſo are called the Sons of God, I have brought up Sons and they have rebelled againſt me, and ye are all the Children of God, 14*th. of Deut.* 1. for God had taken them into the boſome of the viſible Church. Now then thoſe Sons of God, living under outward means and in a ſort the Goſpel, (I may call it ſo, for they lived under the preaching of Noah, a preacher of ſure righteouſneſs Chriſt namely, and under the preaching of other Patriarkes,) it is ſaid the Spirit of God did ſtrive with them, the Spirit of God going home to their hearts with the word.

Compare therefore with this the 1 Pet. 3. 18. it is a difficult place and it is opened by this. Speaking of Chriſt there, ſaith he, He was put to death in the fleſh and quickned by the Spirit, that is, quickned by the Holy Ghoſt and by the Godhead, by which alſo he went and preached to the Spirits in priſon, who ſometimes were diſobedient when once the long ſuffering of God waited in the days of Noah while the Arke was a preparing. I ſay theſe words in Geneſis open thoſe in Peter. Our Saviour Chriſt after his death was raiſed by the Spirit, by the Holy Ghoſt, (for that Spirit that raiſeth up our bodies dwelt in him and raiſed up his, as it is Rom. 8.) This Spirit of his ſaith he, went with the Miniſtry of Noah, (who preached the ſame Goſpel we do,) and preached in the days of the Old World. Moſes ſaith here, that his Spirit contended or ſtrove with them; and Peter alludeth to it that this Spirit by which Chriſt was raiſed had formerly preached to theſe men, who were now but Spirits, (for that was their eſtate,) they were now dead, they were in Hell, the Spirits that now are in priſon, that is his meaning. And as Moſes here ſaith, that God gave them 120 years warning to repent, The days of man (ſaith he,) ſhall yet be 120 years. So Peter ſaith, he was long ſuffering, and that he waited, when once the long ſuffering of God (ſaith he,) waited in the days of Noah, waited 120 years, while the Ark was a preparing.

Now then that which I quote this place for is this, (to come to it,) That this Spirit of God contended or ſtrove, with theſe Sons of God that lived in the Church. It did ſtrive, that is all his phraſe, he put forth ſo much ſtrength as to try whether he ſhould overcome corrupt nature or corrupt nature over come him, he put forth only a ſtriving ſtrength, as in wraſtling you know, if a man only ſtrive, he doth as it were feel the ſtrength of another. There is a ſtriving ſtrength that the Holy Ghoſt putteth forth upon the hearts of men, and there is an overcoming ſtrength. There is a ſtriving ſtrength as here; there is an overcoming ſtrength, as in 1 John 4. 3. He that believeth overcometh the World, for greater is he that is in you, than he thats in the World, But here he putteth forth ſo much power as ſhall be a ſtriving, and yet they remain fleſh ſtill, (Mark that,) that is, he doth not put forth ſo much ſtrength or power as doth alter corrupt nature, they ſhall remain fleſh ſtill; for ſo you know it followeth, He alſo is fleſh; and ſo the Septuagint puts an Emphaſis upon it, He alſo is but fleſh. Theſe Sons of God that had all this means ſaith he, I have tried how far it will go, and I ſee they are but fleſh ſtill, they are corrupt ſtill; and while I deal with them thus in a lower way, it will not overcome their corrupt nature, they remain fleſh for all that; therefore Peter ſaith, they were diſobedient and are now in Hell. And upon this, what concluſion doth God make? I have tryed (ſaith he,) all concluſions with corrupt Nature, all but one, fully to overcome it; I have given it all helps, I have ſtriven, I have contended, I have wrought thus far, I have given them 120 years, yet longer, and the concluſion of all is, in the 5*th.* verſe. God ſaw that the wickedneſs of man was great upon the Earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually; and that corrupt nature would be corrupt nature ſtill, would be fleſh ſtill, unleſs he put forth an Almighty power beyond ſtriving, to change it.

To

To clear this yet a little more unto you, becauſe it is the foundation of what I ſhall afterwards proceed in; you may obſerve that God hath tryed all ſorts of concluſions with the hearts of men, according to ſeveral ſizes. He afforded corrupt Nature a little light of Truth, which the Apoſtle ſpeaks of, Rom. 1. A Light that ſhined in a dark place, whereby they knew many things of the Law; as that there was a God, and that that God muſt be worſhipped; this the Heathens and all men more or leſs have it in their hearts. He tryed what corrupt Nature would do with this, and he finds that generally they did impriſon it in unrighteouſneſs, they put this Prophet of God into Priſon; that is, they went againſt their knowledg, they ſlighted it. The Light of Conſcience then will not do it. Yea he went ſo far with one man, he gave inſtance of one man in the World that went ſo far as to dye for this, that there was but one God, and yet knew nothing of the Scripture; So Socrates was the higheſt inſtance how far the Light of Nature would go. God tried this concluſion firſt with the Heathens. Sermon XXVI.

I will give you a Scripture for that: It is 1 Cor. 1. 21. After that in the wiſdom of God, the World (that is the World of the Gentiles, for he ſpeaks of them there) by wiſdom knew not God; then when he had tried this concluſion, that all the Light of Nature; which he calleth the wiſdom of God, yet becauſe of that corrupt Carnal wiſdom in mens hearts, would not turn them; then he ſendeth Preaching to convert them: After this ſaith he, it pleaſed God by the fooliſhneſs of Preaching to ſave them that believe. This was trying a concluſion you ſee, for after that he ſaw that this Light of Nature would do no good, then he ſendeth Chriſt into the World, and by the preaching of the Goſpel to convert them.

Well, having tried the Light of Nature, and ſees that will do no good, he cometh to the Light of the Law, and tries that with the Jews, he gave the Law to them; He dealt not ſo with any Nation, neither have the Heathen the knowledge of his Law. This was but trying a concluſion too as the other was. He would ſee how far the Light of Nature improved by the Light of the Law added to it, would go. Now what ſaith the Apoſtle in Rom. 8. 3. What the Law could not do in that it was weak through the Fleſh. He would try what the Law would do; he gave them a perfect Rule, they had the ſame help for the the external means that Adam himſelf had, (mark it) for they had the ſame Law. How cometh it to paſs that the Law could do no good, could not work upon men's hearts, though a Spirit went with it? (For ſo the Law had, Neh. 9. 13.) ſaith he, it was weakened through the Fleſh; corrupt Nature weakened all the power of it, it was too hard for that Light of the Law. He tried that concluſion too, and for that, as he gave Socrates the higheſt inſtance under the Light of Nature; ſo he gave Paul the higheſt inſtance under the Law, a man that never ſinned againſt his Conſcience in his life, but was concerning the Law blamleſs till his Converſion; I have kept a good Conſcience, ſaith he, to this day; he ſpeaks it to the Phariſees that knew him before.

Well, he hath given us the Goſpel, he will try how far corrupt Nature will go there too, will be wrought upon by the Goſpel, which hath a power of the Spirit accompanying it, as all theſe had; for certainly they were all Supernatural, that muſt be acknowledged, it was more than corrupt Nature of it ſelf would have done. He makes a trial I ſay with the Goſpel too; for that you have that eminent inſtance in the 6th. of the Hebrews, of men that are inlightned, and partake of the Heavenly gift, &c. and yet the Apoſtle tells us plainly at the 9th. Verſe, that there are better things than theſe which God works in mens hearts when he ſaveth them; We are perſwaded, ſaith he, better things of you, and ſuch as accompany Salvation. The Holy Ghoſt elevateth, and raiſeth, and works upon corrupt Nature to ſee how far it will go under the Goſpel.

And here he hath ſeveral ſizes of working too. That Parable in Luk. 18. and Matt. 13. ſheweth it. The ſtony ground receiveth the Word with joy, but falleth off in perſecution; The thorny ground holdeth out in perſecution, but cares, and riches, and pleaſures grew up with it and choaked the Word. God hath ſeveral works upon Nature, and trieth theſe concluſions with it.

And

Sermon XXVI.

And what is the reaſon he doth it ?

In one word the Reaſon is this ; Becauſe he would ſhew, by a compariſon of the work of Grace with other lower workings of his upon mens hearts, what an excellent thing Grace is, that it is precious Faith indeed, which is the Faith of God's Elect, as the Apoſtle Peter calleth it 2 *Pet.*1.1. There is nothing in nature but hath a counterfeit. Go up to the Heavens, there you ſee the beams of the Sun, and you have ſtreams in the Air ; you have Stars, you ſhall have falling Stars and Comets. Go down to the Earth, you have precious Stones, and you have the counterfeit of them, Briſtol Stones like to Diamonds ; and the excellency of the one is ſet off by the other : And God endeareth his Children ſo much the more to him by this. Saith he, I have wrought ſo far upon another man's heart, but it was not Grace ; I might have done ſo with you, but I overcame you, I ſtretched forth the exceeding greatneſs of my power to you.

And he doth do it too for this end, that all may ſee their own weakneſs, that as the Apoſtle ſaith, the Law was weak through the fleſh, ſo the Goſpel ſhall be weak through the fleſh, and all ſorts of Aſſiſtances (but what doth the deed) ſhall all be weak through the fleſh too. God may ſtrive with men, but if he doth not put forth a power to overcome them, they will overcome him. He doth it I ſay, to ſhew the corruption of man's nature, and to ſhew the weakneſs of it, the utmoſt pravity of it, how it weakneth all means of Grace ; therefore he complaineth, What could have been done more in my Vineyard, that I have not done in it? that is, by way of Means.

And (which moſt of all I would have you obſerve for the underſtanding of this,) whereas you will ſay, If God give not ſufficient Grace to convert, why doth he try theſe concluſions ?

I Anſwer you thus ; Though it is not ſufficient Grace to convert a man in the ſtate of corruption, yet take a man as he was in Adam, (and God conſidereth every man as he was in him,) the ſame helps he affordeth now to corrupt Nature, would be ſufficient to have kept Adam, and God is not bound to any more. It is ſufficient I ſay, not in regard of the ſtate of corruption to convert ; but in this ſenſe it is ſufficient, that the ſame abilities and aſſiſtance given to Adam in Innocency, (and it is the fault of all Mankind, their Sin, that they are fallen from it) would have enabled him to have ſtood, and God (as I ſaid) is not bound to any more.

And to clear God in this too, let me add this, That all theſe workings upon mens hearts, as they are trials of corrupt nature, ſo they mightily tend to leſſen mens puniſhments, for they keep them from many ſins. Yea, that which is wrought in the heart is in ſome way acceptable to God, this is more, God accepteth of it, though not for Grace it ſelf, yet he likes it well that corrupt Nature will be wrought upon ſo far, though it be not turned to him effectually. You know he loved the young man that ſaid, he had kept all thoſe things from his youth ; and ſo to ſee a man affected at a Sermon, God is pleaſed with it, he accepts it according to its kind. As bring me a braſs ſhilling, I ſay it is not a ſhilling, it will not paſs for Coin ; but if you ask me whether it be worth any thing ? I ſay it is worth ſomething in its kind, it is worth ſomething as braſs, though it is not worth ſomething as a ſhilling : ſo theſe workings are acceptable unto God in their kind, though he takes them not for Grace, they are not currant Money.

Having thus explained to you and laid this foundation, That the Holy Ghoſt hath lower kinds of workings upon the hearts of men, which yet notwithſtanding do not ariſe to true Grace. I will come now to ſhew you, That God doth not put forth the ſame power in theſe, as he doth put forth in a ſaving work. That is the point which I am next to handle.

To demonſtrate this unto you. The explication of it I refer to two Heads.

Firſt,

First, That all lower working of the Holy Ghoſt upon the hearts of men, are but a reſtraint of corruption in them, and an Elevation of corrupt nature. A reſtraint and an elevation, that is, it is not a deſtroying corruption, but a reſtraining corruption, Nature remaineth corrupt ſtill as it was. And it is not a changing of corrupt nature into its contrary, into Grace; but it is an aſſiſting of it, an elevating of it, a ſtrengthning of it to go ſo far as he is pleaſed to carry it, remaining corrupt, and the ſame it was before.

And then the Second thing that will demonſtrate, that not the ſame power is needful, is this, That there is not a putting in of new principles of Grace into the heart, ſuch as Love to God, that was not there before; a new ſpiritual diſpoſition in the underſtanding, to take in Spiritual things, as I ſhewed in the laſt diſcourſe; but it is only working upon the old principles, improving them. And to both theſe, there is not ſo great power required as is there mentioned to Converſion.

For the firſt Head, you ſee it conſiſteth of two parts: There is firſt, but a reſtraining of Corruption, not a killing of it. You know when I ſhewed you what power lay in working of Grace, I told you it was a putting off the Old man, it was a paſſing away of all things that were old, it was a Circumciſion made without hands; it was a deſtroying of the body of ſin, a depoſing of that corrupt principle of Self-love; and let me tell you this, till that be depoſed a man is an unregenerate man. Now you ſhall ſee, that in all theſe inferiour workings of the Spirit, theſe ſtrivings of the Spirit; there is not a taking away of Corruption, there is but a reſtraining of it, the heart remaineth the ſame that it was.

To make this plain unto you. I will but give you one Scripture, which ſpeaks of theſe kind of workings. It is 2 Pet. 2.20. He ſpeaks of men that have been enlightned and wrought upon by the knowledge of Chriſt. Saith he, If after they have eſcaped the pollutions of the world, through the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, they are again entangled therein and overcome, the latter end is worſe with them than the beginning. This is a place that is mightily alledged for falling away from Grace; whereas ſay we, the work here mentioned, namely the eſcaping of the pollutions of the world through the knowledge of Chriſt, did not riſe up to true Grace.

You will ſay to me, How do you prove out of this place, that here is only a reſtraining of Corruption, or a driving of it in? As I remember he ſaid of Abimelech, Gen. 20.6. I kept thee in, and ſuffered thee not to touch her, ſpeaking of Sarah, Abraham's wife; he reſtrained his luſt.

I prove it thus, By the ſimilitude that the Apoſtle uſeth in the following words, It is happened unto them according to the true Proverb, The Dog is turned to his own vomit again, and the Sow that was waſhed to her wallowing in the mire. Here is eſcaping of the pollutions of the World, here is a waſhing of the Sow, a waſhing off her dirt; here is a keeping of her from going into the Mire again, for a while after ſhe is waſhed; but here is not a changing of the Swine's nature, here is a Swiniſh diſpoſition ſtill; For, ſaith he, the Swine is returned again to wallow in the mire.

To confirm it yet more unto you, you ſhall find in 2 Pet. 1.4. that I may ſpeak pertinently to the point in hand, and compare that place with this in the ſecond Chapter, verſe 20. and ſo to the end; he ſpeaks there of the work of Grace indeed, and what ſaith he of it? According (ſaith he) as his divine power hath given us all things that pertain to life and godlineſs, whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious Promiſes, that by theſe you might be partakers of the Divine nature, having eſcaped the corruption that is in the world through luſt. I confeſs, I was much puzzled at this a long while (for he uſeth in appearance the ſame phraſe here, that he doth in 2 Pet. 2. 20. If after they have eſcaped the pollutions of the world through the knowledge of Chriſt, they return again; here is one work. Having eſcaped the corruption that is in the world through luſt; here is another.) till this reconciled it; and I pray conſider it. Here is a work upon mens hearts which makes them eſcape; But what? The pollutions of the world, the word in the Greek is μιάσματα, ſignifying the groſs defiledefilements, the outward defilements that in mens lives they run into, through the knowledge of Chriſt, without changing of their nature; for you ſee they are Swine ſtill, though they do not wallow in the mire. But compare this other Power, which giveth us all things pertaining to life and godlineſs, he telleth us, We are alſo made partakers of the Divine nature. And he doth not ſay only, They eſcape the groſs defilements of the World, as I ſaid the word there ſignifieth; but ἀποφυγόντες τῆς ἐν κόσμῳ, ἐν ἐπιθυμίᾳ φθορᾶς, They have eſcaped the Corruptions that are in the world through luſt. Therefore there is a change not only in reſpect of outward defilements, but a change in reſpect of inward diſpoſitions, the Corruptions that are in the world through luſt; theſe, a man having a new Nature put into him that luſteth contrary, he is free from the bondage of it in ſome meaſure. Here is now a world of difference between waſhing of a Swine from the outward defilement of the Mire ſhe hath wallowed in, and altering her Swiniſh nature, there is no ſuch work of power comparable in the one that is in the other. To waſh off the pollutions, the groſs defilements of the world that men lived in formerly, though it be through the knowledge of Chriſt; it is nothing to the ſtamping of a new Nature upon them, to the making them partakers of the Divine nature, that they ſhall eſcape the Corruption that is in the world through luſt; that is, to kill the inward diſpoſitions of ſin, to deſtroy them, to alter the root and frame of the heart; this ſaith he, is a Divine power.

In a word, The one is but like laying Sampſon aſleep, and then bind him, all his ſtrength remaining, and when he awakes he breaks aſunder all his bonds. But if you come to the work of the Holy Ghoſt, which is effectual upon corrupt Nature, it is killing of Sampſon, it is giving him a deadly blow, which all in corrupt nature doth oppoſe; it doth not oppoſe the other ſo much, therefore it is not a work of ſo great a power.

So much for that firſt Particular, It is but a reſtraint of corrupt Nature, whereas the other is a paſſing away of Old things, a deſtroying in part of the Body of ſin. Now to deſtroy, and ſubdue, and bring to nothing, therein lies the exceeding greatneſs of power, not in reſtraining, though it be a work of the Goſpel through the knowledge of Chriſt.

In the Second place, There is an elevation, or an aſſiſting of the Spirit of God, whereby the Holy Ghoſt doth joyn with a man's Spirit, and enableth him to perform actions above nature, which of himſelf he would not do. And, my Brethren, there are thoſe in the World that ſay, that Grace is nothing elſe but an aſſiſting, an acting of the powers of a man. They acknowledge an inward Calling, as well as an outward; but the inward Calling is nothing elſe but an elevation, the Holy Ghoſt elevateth a man's Spirit, and joyneth with it, and ſtrengthneth it with a ſupernatural ſtrength put into it, and ſo by his aſſiſtance and joyning with it, it is enabled to do that which of it ſelf it would not do.

To expreſs the difference concerning this, becauſe much dependeth upon it. You know in the Old Teſtament, that Angels did appear in the likeneſs of Men, and perhaps had the Bodies of men, for that time created for them by God, as ſome Divines think, make that ſuppoſition: They did all things as a man, the Angels acted that Body, uſed the Tongue to ſpeak with, and the Feet to move, and the Hands to do this, and that to pull in Lot (as you know they did) when they ſtruck the other with blindneſs. They were created Angels that did it, that the Text is clear in. Now there is a great deal of difference between their aſſiſting and joyning with theſe bodies, and that work of God when he did create a Soul, and breathed it into man's body at firſt; there is an infinite difference between them in the power put forth, for an Angel can do the one; but to breath the breath of life, the Soul, into a Body thus formed and faſhioned, God only could do it. The one is a work of exceeding greatneſs of power; but meerly to aſſiſt Tanquam forma, and not Informans, (as the Philoſopher ſpeaks) an aſſiſting form, and not an informing form (as the Soul is to the Body;) this is not a work of ſuch great power, for you ſee an Angel can do it.

I ſhall not need to ſtand explaining of it largely. You ſhall find, *Eph.*3.16. that there is not only a ſtrength put to the Inner-man, but there is an Inner-man too which God createth in a man, and then to ſtrengthen it indeed, is ſomething: But ſimply to joyn, and ſtrike in and mingle it ſelf with corrupt nature, as Fire doth with Water (according to the Opinion of ſome) when it makes it hot, though Water be cold in it ſelf, yet Fire can and doth mingle it ſelf into the pores of the Water and heat it, (for there are pores in the Water, as Philoſophers do acknowledge,) yet the principle of heat is in the Fire, not in the Water, which of its own nature is ſtill as cold as it was, for it returns to its coldneſs again. So here, For the Holy Ghoſt to inſinuate himſelf into the Spirits of men, and act them, and raiſe them up to do things above Nature, but yet puts not into them a formal principle of life; thus I ſay, to joyn with mens Spirits, is no ſuch great work of power, in compariſon of that which I have deſcribed formerly unto you, viz. to put in a new light, the light of life; to give you all things belonging to life and godlineſs, to put in that great principle of the Love of God into the heart (which is more than all the Creatures themſelves without it.) This is a new life, a new principle, my Brethren. Sermon XXVI.

Thoſe, who as you think in their Opinions do deprave the Grace of God, (and you ſpeak of them as ſuch, the Arminians,) They do not hold that a man can do any thing of himſelf; they acknowledge that which Chriſt ſaith, Without me you can do nothing: But, ſay they, it is but an aſſiſting, it is but the joyning with men a ſupernatural ſtrength; it is not putting in of a new principle, ſay they. Why, ſay I, this is not a work of ſuch mighty power. Why? Take Cordials, they will joyn with a man's Spirit, to ſtrengthen you: Take an Angel, he will joyn with a man's Spirit, and ſtrengthen you; as we ſee in wicked men, the Devil joyneth with their corruption, a man ſhall have his affections blown up with Satan, like the waves of the Sea by the wind, ſtronger than by nature they would be. You ſhall read of an Angel, *Dan.*11.1. a good Angel it was, (and whether it was Chriſt, or a created Angel I need not diſpute,) certainly a created Angel can do as much, he ſtrengthned or confirmed the Spirit of the King of the Medes; it was in a good buſineſs for the Church, and he joyned with the Spirit of the King in it: And Luke 8. you ſhall find a man ſo ſtrengthned by Satan, that no man could hold him, no though he were bound with chains. And as one ſaid of him that killed Henry the Fourth of France, that he had the ſtrength of Ten men in him, Satan filled his heart, as the expreſſion is *Act.*5. So on the other ſide, For the Holy Ghoſt to ſtrengthen a man's Spirit by an external aſſiſtance, enabling him to do theſe and theſe actions, by mingling himſelf with a man's Spirit; this is not ſo great a power, for an Angel can do it. But to make a workmanſhip created unto good works, to put a new Soul into a man, (as the Scripture compareth it, and therefore I may ſo expreſs it,) that is, to put a new principle of life and grace into a man, and then to enable him to act that Grace. Here lieth that work that beareth proportion with the exceeding greatneſs of his power; that other doth not.

Now, my Brethren, I will inſtance in particulars. I will ſhew you a work upon the Underſtanding of a man, that a man ſhall be enlightned, (as it is *Heb.*6.) with a new light about Spiritual things, and yet not have a work of Grace that anſwereth to the exceeding greatneſs of God's power to work it.

To make this plain unto you. You may read in *Numb.*24.2,3. that the Holy Ghoſt is ſaid to fall upon Balaam. Balaam (ſaith he) the Son of Peor hath ſaid, and the man whoſe eyes are open hath ſaid, (the Hebrew is, as it is in your Margins, The man who had his eyes ſhut, but now are opened,) He hath ſaid, which heard the words of God, which ſaw the viſion of the Almighty, falling into a Trance, but having his eyes open: And the thing he ſaw was the happy condition of the People of God, as you may read afterward. Here was a man that had his eyes opened by a new light, a new work of the Spirit upon him, yet remained fleſh for all this; there was no New creature wrought upon him at all, for you know he is brought in as an inſtance of one that went after the waies of unrighteouſneſs, yet you ſee what glorious things he ſaith of himſelf.

Sermon XXVI.

My Brethren, mark it, here is new light indeed cometh in, and the mind is raiſed up to new Objects it never knew afore; but here is no new Eye made, no Underſtanding given, (as the Apoſtle expreſſeth it;) here is not a being born again to ſee the Kingdom of God, here is not the Image of God created, here is not that New Creature, (as I deſcribed it in the laſt diſcourſe;) a new Spiritual underſtanding and diſpoſition in the Mind to receive Spiritual things, as they are in themſelves. And, my Brethren, thus meerly to put a new light in the Mind, to ſuggeſt things that never were before; this is not a thing that requires an Almighty power. Whereas he knew worldly things before, now to propound Spiritual things to him, and to open his eyes to ſee them; the old Eye is capable of this, for you ſee Balaam's was.

I ſaid before, an Angel can do as much: An Angel can fall upon the Underſtanding, irradiate an object and preſent it to the mind. There were no Fantaſticks, Enthuſiaſts, if the Devil could not do this; he turneth himſelf into an Angel of light, and he can do it. I will give you Scripture for it, 1 *Sam.*18. 10. It is ſaid, an Evil Spirit fell upon Saul, and he prophecied. Here was Saul's Eye opened, as Balaam's was; here was prophecying as he did. Herein lieth not then the greatneſs of God's power to enlighten them, and to reveal to them the things of the World to come; though they knew nothing afore but of the things of the preſent World. Here is a new light brought in, like the bringing of a Candle into a room; but here is not a new Eye, as there is in a godly man, and ſuch a repreſentation made as anſwereth to the Creation.

My Brethren, to work Faith in men to believe the things of the World; to work a Faith, that a man ſhall be fully convinced and believe this is the Word of God; ſimply to do this, is not a work of an Almighty power; Why? Becauſe the Devil can make a man believe a lie, he can work upon the Underſtanding ſo, who hath not an Almighty power in working. Look in 2 *Theſſ.*2. 9, 10. where ſpeaking of Antichriſt, Whoſe coming (ſaith he) is after the working of Satan, with all power, and ſigns, and lying wonders, and with all deceiveableneſs of unrighteouſneſs in them that periſh, becauſe they received not the love of the Truth that they may be ſaved; and for this cauſe God ſhall ſend them ſtrong deluſions that they ſhall believe a lie. He ſpeaks indeed of the Papiſts, the learned ſort of them, who are knowing men: But here you ſee Satan cometh with deceivableneſs of unrighteouſneſs, and maketh them believe a lie, through God's permiſſion. Who ſhall perſwade Ahab that he may go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead? And there came forth a Spirit and ſtood before the Lord, and he ſaid, I will go forth and be a lying Spirit in the mouth of all his Prophets. Go (ſaith God) and do ſo, and thou ſhalt prevail. He went and did ſo work upon the underſtandings of the falſe Prophets, as he made them believe it; he imitated God ſo. So on the other ſide, for God to come and fall upon a man's Spirit, and enlighten it ſo as he ſhall be fully convinced of the truth, that he is perſwaded that theſe things that are delivered in the Word are true, which he did not before; this is no more a work of an Almighty power, than that other by Satan is, he can do as much in another way, as the Holy Ghoſt in this way. So that to work upon the underſtanding is not a work of an Almighty power.

My Brethren, let me tell you this, If a man have never ſo much knowledge wrought in him by the Holy Ghoſt in a way of enlightning, when he cometh to turn to God, he findeth all that knowledge new, and it differeth as much from the other, as the Reaſon of a man from the Fancy of an Ape, (let me ſo expreſs it, there is a reality in the proportion that this expreſſion holds forth.) It is called the light of life. Take but the pooreſt Soul, that hath but the underſtanding of Jeſus Chriſt given unto him by the Spirit of God, he hath that knowledge which all the Learned men in the World have not: The one is a work of an Almighty power by Creation, the other is but an enlightning. So then, God may work upon the Underſtanding, and not by an Almighty power.

Come

Come to the Will and Affections. In a man you know there is Love, there is Joy, there is Fear, there is Desire. The Holy Ghost by way of an assistance may stirr all these affections in a man, and yet not in a way of an Almighty power. You shall find in 1 Sam. 11. 6. it is said there, that the Spirit of the Lord came upon Saul, and he was exceeding angry. It was upon a just occasion, upon an indignity offered his People by Nahash the Ammonite; he would make a Covenant with the People, but the terms were, that he might thrust out all their right Eyes. Hereupon now the Spirit of the Lord fell upon Saul, and raised up his anger. The Holy Ghost sometimes raiseth the affections of wicked men, (Saul was so,) without creating any thing, but meerly insinuating himself and joyning of himself with their Spirits; as the Wind jovning with the Waves of the Sea, you see it makes them rise: so doth the Holy Ghost blow upon mens affections sometimes at a Sermon, upon their Fear he terrifieth them, upon their Love, upon their Desires, as he did upon Balaam's, O that I might die the death of the righteous! This is not a work of an Almighty power; why? Still, because an Angel can do as much to the Spirit of a man, an Angel can stirr a man's affections. There are many instances in Histories, how the Devil hath raised Mens affections to love Women, and Womens to love Men, so long as the Inchantment hath lasted. Who hath bewitched you? It was a bewitching, that of the Galatians, Chap. 3. 1. In 1 Sam. 16. 15. you shall read there, that an Evil Spirit from God troubled Saul; it did terrifie his Spirit.

Sermon XXVI.

By this you see, my Brethren, that the Holy Ghost can, and doth work upon the affections of men; yet all this while there is not an Almighty power put forth. Here is an elevation of a man's Spirits, a stirring of his affections; but yet all this is without an Almighty power, why? Because there is no change wrought in him, there is nothing of a new Creation to make him suitable to Spiritual things as spiritual wrought in him.

And that is the first Head; He works either by way of restraint or outward assistance. Assistance I may call it, but I call it outward assistance, because it is not a vital disposition put into the Soul, but only a bringing in of a new light, and a stirring up of the affections. That is the first way, whereby I demonstrate, that these inferiour works of the Holy Ghost have not an Almighty power accompanying them.

The Second Head I propounded is this, and I would have you mark it most of all, if I shall be able to explain my self in it. The Holy Ghost, when he works these inferiour works, these strivings with the Spirits of men, he doth not put in new principles, only works upon the old, and improves them in a supernatural way. It is an Eduction (as I may call it,) it is not a Creation.

I will give you an instance to express it. The Sun works upon the principles that are in the Mudd by its heat, and there are living things begotten in it: The Sun (as some men think) doth not create a new life. The truth is, a Sensitive life is but the spirits of the Element, which the Sun concocts and boileth up to such a height. But when God made Creatures, then indeed there was Creation. The Sun doth but meerly work upon the principles in Nature, and boileth them up and concocts them, and there is a Creature produced that hath some life. But when God created at first, he made living Creatures immediately. This is the difference between Eduction (as Philosophers call it) out of principles in Nature; and putting in of new principles. The work of Grace is a work of Creation; and why a Creation? Because 'tis ex nihilo. It doth not depend upon any pre-existent matter; but it is a putting in of all new. When Adam's Body was made, God did not draw the Soul out of the Body, as the Sun doth these Creatures out of the Mudd, Ex putridâ materiâ, there being some seeds of them in it before: But it is Creation, and so the Schools say; it is a thing that doth not depend upon Matter, God putteth it in of nothing.

This helpeth to express clearly and fully, the difference between the work of the Holy Ghost upon corrupt Nature in a lower way, and in this higher way; and it differenceth the power, that there goeth not so much power only to work upon the old principles, as doth to put in new. There is an Almighty power goeth to the one, there doth not go an Almighty power to the other.

Sermon XXVI.

In James 1.17. he ſaith, that Every good and perfect gift cometh from above. He ſpeaks of the work of Grace, of Regeneration, that is plain, for it followeth, Of his own will begat he us. I quoted this place in the laſt diſcourſe, and it is now full for my purpoſe. I told you then, that the phraſe From above, is applied to none but to Chriſt, whoſe birth was altogether Heavenly, and unto Grace, in the whole Scripture. It is applied to Chriſt John 3. 31. He that cometh from above, is above all. And here he ſaith, Every perfect gift (ſpeaking of Grace) is from above. Every perfect gift, why doth he put in the word, Perfect? My Brethren, you muſt know there are gifts that do come partly from above, that are not perfect. Look into *Heb.*6.4. He ſpeaks of men that are enlightned, that have taſted of the heavenly gift. Here is a gift you ſee from Heaven, and yet he plainly ſaith, that a little Love of God is worth all theſe things he ſpeaks of; for ſo he ſaith Verſe 9. We are perſwaded better things of you, and things that accompany ſalvation. Better than what? Better than all theſe Enlightnings (that is his meaning plainly.) There are Graces, ſaith he, that the Holy Ghoſt works, that have ſalvation in them, (ſo the word ſignifieth.) And what are they? Read Verſe 10. God is not unrighteous to forget your work and labour of Love, which you have ſhewed toward his Name. Men deſpiſe Signs altogether; you ſee the Holy Ghoſt mentioneth Love to God and Obedience ſpringing from that Love, to be better than all thoſe enlightnings and taſtings of the powers of the World to come, which corrupt nature is capable of.

Now then, The one is an Heavenly gift as well as the other; why? Becauſe that corrupt nature could not have any ſuch thing in it, if the Holy Ghoſt from heaven did not work it; but yet it is not wholly from above, it is partly from Heaven and partly from Earth. I may ſay of it, as John ſaith of himſelf comparatively, to Chriſt, John 3.31. He that cometh from above (ſaith he, ſpeaking of Chriſt,) he is above all. His coming is wholly from above, He is the Lord from Heaven, he came not from the Earth, as other men; the Spirit of God made his Body in the Womb of the Virgin, and put in his Soul; but he that is of the Earth is earthy, and ſpeaks of the Earth. All other men, (and he includeth himſelf too) they are perfectly from Heaven; their Souls are from thence, but their Bodies are made after the ordinary ſort of mens Bodies. Theſe inferiour Gifts, they are partly from above and partly from below, that is, they partly ariſe from the principles of corrupt nature, improved by the Holy Ghoſt; hence now they are not perfect, but Every perfect gift cometh from above, wholly from above.

But compare with this Luke 8. where he ſpeaks of theſe inferiour workings, in the Parable of the Sower, and he ſaith of the ſtony ground, that they did not bring forth fruit to perfection. Theſe are perfect gifts, and wholly from above; thoſe other works are imperfect, becauſe not wholly from above, only the Holy Ghoſt takes the ſame old corrupt heart, and works upon principles already in it.

I could give you many Similitudes, which I omit, as that of the Chymiſt: The Chymiſt will fetch Salt out of any body, out of a man's Arm, give him but leave to uſe his Art, to put fire to it, he will extract and draw Spirits out of it. You would think here were a mighty alteration. Here is no great alteration, no alteration like the Creation; why? Becauſe he works but upon what is in it already, only he draws it out.

So it is here. The Holy Ghoſt falleth upon a Carnal heart, he would extract joy in the Word, make an affection taſte of the powers of the World to come; it is but an elevating, it is but a raiſing and boiling up principles that are there already.

Now to make this plain unto you. I ſhall do it by theſe Three things. The work of Grace, as I told you, is wholly new, all becometh new; it is not a working upon the old. Indeed, there is the old Nature, I mean there is the ſame ſubſtance of nature, the Underſtanding, and Will, and Affections, that were before. A man could not love God if they were not in him; but, I ſay, here here is but a working upon the principles that were in nature, without putting in new.

Sermon XXVI.

To make this plain, I will ſhew you,

Firſt, What principles are in corrupt nature capable to be wrought upon by the Holy Ghoſt.

Secondly, I will ſhew you, that there are things in the World ſuitable to work upon theſe principles of Nature, if the Holy Ghoſt ſetteth them home.

Thirdly, That the Holy Ghoſt doth but improve theſe principles, by ſetting home thoſe things in the Word ſuitable to them.

You will ſay, What are thoſe principles in a man's Nature, that are capable thus to be wrought upon and improved by the Holy Ghoſt without putting in of new, that a man ſhall ſeem to have abundance of Religion, and be exceedingly affected with Spiritual things?

I will go over ſome. Take a man's Underſtanding, there is a light of Conſcience in it, whereby a man knoweth there is a God; as you may read, *Rom.*1. There is the letter of the Law written in their hearts, *Rom.*2.14. Now the Holy Ghoſt (without putting in of a new Eye) can reveal more and farther things of the Law to their Conſcience, than Nature of it ſelf ever knew, and yet is capable to take in. Here is now but a work upon the old principle, a raiſing of it up higher, a revealing new objects to it.

There is naturally in a man's heart the knowledge that there is a God. There is naturally in all mens hearts devotion to a Deity. The Holy Ghoſt cometh and works upon this principle, and convinceth a man's heart, that the God that made Heaven and Earth is the true God, and that Jeſus Chriſt is the Saviour of the World. Now take a man that is brought up in Turky, the ſame principle of natural devotion to a Deity carrieth him to worſhip Mahomet, that carries another that is brought up in the Church to worſhip Chriſt. The principle is one and the ſame, only here is the difference, The one hath the happineſs to live in the Church, and to have the knowledge of the true Meſſiah; But, I ſay, the principle is the ſame in him, that is in the heart of a Mahumetan. Then the Holy Ghoſt cometh and works further upon this principle, and convinceth it with more ſupernatural knowledge concerning this Chriſt, that through it he eſcapes the pollutions of the World. This is for knowledge.

There is likewiſe in a man a natural deſire of happineſs. All men have a deſire of the chiefeſt good. What is the reaſon elſe you go and heap up ſo many things together, Riches, and Honours,&c? Now the Holy Ghoſt cometh and works upon this principle in nature, and convinceth a man, that Heaven and to be with God is the only happineſs: And a man out of love to himſelf liſtneth after this happineſs; and, O that I might die the death of the righteous! as Balaam did.

So likewiſe for the matter of believing that a man is the Child of God, there is ſuch a ſelf-flattery in the heart of a man, that if he hear any good news out of the Word that men ſhall be ſaved, I am the man (thinks he) that God will honour, as Haman thought himſelf the only man whom the King would honour, and ſo every man thinketh; this ſelf-flattery makes out the concluſion preſently. The Holy Ghoſt comes and terrifieth a man's Conſcience, letteth it ſee Sin as it is (for Conſcience is to be ſubject to God, for it is his Vicegerent) when the Conſcience is terrified; he heareth of the Goſpel and of Pardon of ſin, the Holy Ghoſt makes him believe it, and thereupon he is filled with joy. And that very natural principle, which in a man condemned to die, if he hear of a general Pardon, makes him believe himſelf to be in the number of thoſe that ſhall be pardoned, and ſo is joyful in believing it, the ſame will make a man joyful at the hearing of the Goſpel, as you have it in *Matt.*14.

And beſides, a man's Spirit is capable of a joy by the preſence of the Holy Ghoſt, they are ſaid to taſte of the powers of the World to come. You know, naturally a man's Conſcience, if he do well, hath peace in it; ſo in the Law. So in the work of the Goſpel too if a man hears of a pardon, and doth any way reform through the knowledge of Chriſt, to encourage him he hath a joy in his ſpirit, which the Holy Ghoſt works, and yet ſtill the principle is the ſame;

for

for God doth it to encourage men ; men ſhall not go a ſtep toward him, but he will come a ſtep toward them.

I ſhould ſhew you, that all this is far from the exceeding greatneſs of power that goeth to the putting of new principles in the heart, to give a new underſtanding to ſee ſpiritual things as ſpiritual, to put in that great principle of the Love of God, not only ſtir up old Self-love.

Believe it, my Brethren, that the ſame affection that makes men to love worldly things, when Conſcience is convinced, diverteth a man to Spiritual things though not as Spiritual. As for inſtance, Felix trembled when Paul preached to him of Judgment to come ; the ſame affection that made him tremble, when Paul arreſted his Conſcience, the ſame would have made him tremble, if Paul had arreſted him with Sentence of death from Cæſar. It is but the ſame affection diverted to a new Object.

Sermon. XXVII.

SERMON XXVII.

EPHES. I. 19, 20.

And what is the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward, who believe, &c.

FOr the opening of theſe words, I have diſpatched two things already. Whereof the firſt is, that they are meant and intended principally by the Apoſtle, of the power that God putteth forth in the work of converſion, or quickning us when we were dead in Sins and Treſpaſſes, as himſelf interpreteth it in the Chapter following from the firſt verſe to the 11*th.*

The Second thing that I have already diſpatched in opening of theſe words is this, What it is in the work of converſion that draweth forth and requireth the manifeſtation of ſo great a power, The exceeding greatneſs of his power. I ſhall repeat nothing of theſe.

In the Third place, I entred upon this, to ſhew you what was the occaſion of the miſtake, (as I apprehend it,) why that it is denied by ſome, that ſo great a power as there is mentioned is not needful to convert men unto God.

The ground of this miſtake I reſolved much into this. That there are indeed inferior workings of the Holy Ghoſt wherein ſo great a power is not manifeſted; not ſuch a power as raiſed up Chriſt from death to life. There are workings of the Holy Ghoſt upon corrupt nature, wherein he works but upon the common principles that are in corrupt nature already, and he doth proportion and apply thoſe workings to the liberty of man's will exceeding much, he doth but ſtrive with them, that often times they do reſiſt them, and yet they cloſe with them; yet becauſe he workes but upon fleſh it remaineth fleſh ſtill. Their turning to God, (if I may call it ſo,) is but a fruit of the fleſh, and therefore withereth and decayeth as all fruits of the fleſh do. There is indeed an underwork of the Holy Ghoſt which men fall from, wherein God doth not put forth, (in the manifeſtation of his power,) ſo great a power as this here mentioned. And (my Brethren,) although the preſervation of man's natural liberty of his Will, be the great Armory whence all the Arguments are fetched to ſhew that the power of God in converſion is not infallible, yet the groundwork which occaſioneth and ſtrengthneth men in this Diſpute (a real experience, which the moſt men's hearts that live under the Goſpel, more or leſs, can ſeal to,) is this, That there are workings upon their hearts which they often times do reſiſt, which have higher effects in ſome than in others. Some are ſo far overcome as to cloſe with them, and yet becauſe fleſh is only wrought upon, it remaineth fleſh ſtill, hence they fall away; and theſe workings men take for all the work of converſion, therefore they deny any further power in a further work.

Now, the ſcope of my undertaking is this, It is not to diſcourſe ſo much of the work it ſelf, and of the particular differences between a true work and a falſe, or rather an under inferior work of the Spirit and that which putteth a man into the ſtate of Grace; as it is to ſhew the different Make or Workmanſhip, the different Woof, or the different power rather that goeth to theſe two works. And to handle this, I judged it not impertinent to the Text, for when he ſaith, the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward, who believe according to the might of his power which he wrought in Chriſt when he raiſed him from the dead;

he

he ſeemeth to make a kind of difference from all other workings that are upon the hearts of other men.

Theſe inferiour workings of the Holy Ghoſt upon the hearts of men, the higheſt of them that are mentioned in the Scripture are in the 6*th*. Heb. from the 4*th*. verſe and ſo on. He ſpeaks of men enlightned, that taſt of the powers of the world to come, and are partakers of the Heavenly gift, and taſt of the good word of God, if they ſhall fall away; he makes a ſuppoſition of it. And you ſhall find it likewiſe in the parable of the Sower, Matt. 13. Mark 4. Luke 8. There is the ſtony ground that received the word with joy, and there is the thorny ground that held it out in perſecution.

For the underſtanding fully my ſcope, what I aimed at, to clear my meaning concerning theſe inferiour works of the Holy Ghoſt, upon mens hearts; I did the laſt give you two premiſes.

The Firſt was this, That the Holy Ghoſt in his working (being a free Agent, for he worketh according to his will; ſo ſaith the Apoſtle 1 Cor. 12. 11. There are diverſions of operations, but all theſe worke that one and the ſelf ſame Spirit according as he will;) though there be the ſame omnipotent power (that is, for the root of it,) in all the works the Holy Ghoſt doth, (for all are works of Omnipotency in that ſenſe,) yet compare work with work there is a greater manifeſtation of power in one than in another according as he willeth; as though his mercy be the ſame he ſheweth to all mankind, to all his Children, (it is the ſame mercy in God, and there is no difference, take mercy in the root of it, as it is an Attribute of God,) yet in the manifeſtation of it, he ſheweth more mercy to one man than another, to godly men than to wicked men, upon whom yet he ſheweth a great deal of mercy.

The Second premiſe I gave was this, That ſeeing he works according to his own Will, and proportioneth his work accordingly, he meaneth to try concluſions with corrupt nature in all things where he doth not mean to convert. He will try how far corrupt nature will be raiſed and elevated to good, and yet not changed, and will therefore proportion his working accordingly. He tryed (as I ſhewed before,) how far the corrupt nature of man would go under the meer light of nature, ſo he did in Socrates. He tried how far corrupt nature would go under the meer light of the Law, ſo he did in Paul; and he tryeth how far corrupt nature will go being aſſiſted, (yet remaining corrupt, take in that too,) under the Goſpel, as in theſe Heb. 6. and the Parable of the Sower. Which he doth to convince all mankind of that weakneſs and impotency that is in corrupt nature to attain to true good of it ſelf; that when he ſhall carry it on to all the good it is capable of, yet it falleth ſhort of that true good that is ſaving, all might ſee their own weakneſs and flie unto Chriſt. This is intimated as the reaſon in Rom. 8. 3. What the Law (ſaith he,) could not do through the weakneſs of the fleſh. Men are apt, corrupt nature is, to boaſt they can do ſomething: God trieth the weakneſs of it, and how is it tried? By nothing more than this; ſaith the holy Ghoſt, I will aſſiſt you, I will help you thus and thus far, and yet all that help, if I will not put forth more, it ſhall be but weak through the corruption of your fleſh, it ſhall not be able to ſave you. That was the ſecond premiſe.

Theſe two things being premiſed, I come to particulars of this great point in hand, which is this; That there is an under work of the Spirit of God, in which compare work with work there is not that exceeding greatneſs of power ſhewn as there is in true grace. What power is ſhewn in working true grace, I have ſhewn formerly, I muſt not now repeat it. Compare I ſay work with work, for that is the ſtate of the Queſtion, and there is not that proportionable meaſure of power put forth, (manifeſted I mean, take that too,) in the one as there is in the other.

There are two parts of corrupt nature, and ſo there are anſwerably two parts of the Image of God, or rather of the work of grace upon us. There is ſubduing corruption, and there is a quickning us to good, a raiſing of man's nature to what is good, to what is holy. Now there is an under work, an inferiour work of the Holy Ghoſt, of a lower alloy, wherein,

Firſt,

First, He ſubdueth corruption by reſtraint, keepeth it in, which yet ariſeth not to a killing of corruption; there is a driving in of the diſeaſe, but he doth not take it away. I expreſſed this in my laſt, I ſhall not need to repeat it. Then ſecondly, in raiſing up of corrupt Nature to good; there is a working upon it by way of aſſiſtancy, he joyneth with corrupt Nature, elevateth it, when yet he doth not work in it new vital principles of life. And meerly to elevate and aſſiſt it, requireth not ſo much power, or at leaſt ſo much power is not manifeſted, compare work with work, as there is in putting in of a new principle of life. For example, Suppoſe a dead Body lay here before us, you might chafe it and bring heat into it: Let an Angel come and take up that body, it ſhall ſpeak, it ſhall walk, it ſhall (by an aſſiſtance which he putteth into it,) perform all the actions of life; yet the Body is dead ſtill. So doth the holy Ghoſt joyn with corrupt Nature, he raiſeth it up to good, to much good, yet the heart remaineth dead, becauſe he doth not put in a new principle of life, which is the thing in the Text; for he ſaith, it is the ſame power that raiſed Chriſt from death to life, putteth a new vital principle in him. That was the firſt thing I ſhewed, and I was large upon it. Sermon XXVII.

The Second particular of the demonſtration concerning the Holy Ghoſt's working good in the hearts of wicked men, in men remaining ſtill in the ſtate of Nature. to ſhew that it is not the ſame power manifeſted that is manifeſted in converting truly and ſavingly, was this; That all the workings of the Holy Ghoſt in inferior works, are but by improving the principles that are in nature already, by adding to them, but raiſing and winding up to a higher key what is in the heart already without putting in a new creature; and ſo it is but by way of Eduction, (that I may ſpeak as Philoſophers do,) out of principles there already, Ex potentia materiæ, as they ſay, out of the power of the matter that is wrought upon, the ſeeds, the principles are there already, or if you will, winding up of thoſe principles, it is all one. But in a ſaving work there is a putting in a new principle, and ſo it ariſeth to a way of creation, and therefore it is that there is that exceeding greatneſs of power manifeſted in the one that is not in the other. And that is the thing that I ſhall clear to you at this time.

Conſult with Philoſophy, and Divinity, and what elſe you will, all will acknowledge, experience will do it too, that the extracting of any thing out of principles already, winding them up, ſtretching them, and not adding new, is not a work of that difficulty anſwerable to a new creation. As for example, To beget a Beaſt, and to beget a Man. To beget a Beaſt, there is as ſome ſay, but the raiſing up of thoſe principles that are in the ſeed of ſuch a creature to a ſenſitive Soul, through natural heat, a boyling them up to life; for what is the Soul of a beaſt? It is but the Spirits of the Elements, it is but a bodily thing, and therefore of Beaſts it is ſaid their Soul is in their blood, becauſe the Spirits run in the blood, and that is their life. But if a Man come to be begotten, there muſt be a new Soul from Heaven put in. There is not only an extraction, a winding up of the Spirits of the Elements to a Soul of ſenſe, which is common to us with Beaſts; but there is a putting in by God a new Soul, a reaſonable Soul, tranſcendent above all the workings of ſenſe. Therefore Heb. 12. 9. he calleth God, the Father of Spirits in oppoſition to other Fathers that are but Fathers of our bodies. The Soul of man is immediately created and infuſed by God.

Now then, all Creation we ſay it is Independenter a ſubjecto, it is a work that doth not depend at all upon a ſubject, it is not to work upon principles already, to wind up them; but Creation it is out of nothing. Therefore Creation it is incommunicable to any Creature; God never uſed any Creature to create, but he hath uſed the power of a Creature to work upon the power of the matter, to ſtir up principles already in Nature, and to beget ſomething beyond what was in it at firſt. As for example, to clear it yet further. The Sun in the Summer falleth down with the beams of it upon Mud, there is a natural power accompanieth the beams of the Sun ſo to heat with ſuch a kindly warmth thoſe principles that are in the Mud that a living Creature is begot, for you may ſee in Mud a great many ſuch things crawling that have life in them. This is but meerly winding up the Spirits of the Elements that are in the Mud already, and theſe Philoſophers call Animalia ex putridâ materiâ, things begotten out of putrified matter and ſo come to a life. But when God came to make Man, and the firſt Beaſt that was, he uſed then no Creature to do it, he did it himſelf immediately, he did not work upon the principles in Nature, in a natural way; but he wrought upon nothing, and ſo Created.

Now, my Brethren, this difference I have always thought to hold true in this very thing, that in thoſe inferior works of the Holy Ghoſt which you read of in Scripture, there is indeed an educing forth of the principles that are in the heart already, a winding them up, beyond what they would be, but there is not a new Creation.

I gave you before that Scripture in Jam. 1. 17. Every good and perfect gift ſaith he, (he ſpeaks of regeneration plainly, read the next verſe, Of his own will begat he us,) is from above. It is ἄνωθεν, wholly from above, and therefore it is a perfect work. But there are other works which are temporary works, in oppoſition to which James ſeemeth to ſpeak, for he ſpeaks of a temporary believer in the 8*th.* verſe, of a double minded man that is unſtable in all his ways, a man that hath a heart, and a heart that is ſometimes moved to good, but yet falleth back again. And it appeareth likewiſe by the 22. and 27*th.* verſes, that he ſpeaks this in oppoſition to temporaries, to inferior works of the Spirit; for verſe 22. he ſpeaks of men that are hearers of the word and not doers, that have not pure Religion, ſo is his expreſſion verſe 27. Now here lieth the difference; the one is wholly from above; as Chriſt is ſaid to be from above, ſo is grace. But theſe lower works they are indeed partly from above, (for if the Holy Ghoſt would not ſtir corrupt Nature thus, it would not have any good in it,) but they are partly from below, therefore they are not perfect gifts, for every good and perfect gift is wholly from above.

Now, my Brethren, I ſhall explain my ſelf, (to open this thing unto you more fully,) by theſe particulars.

The Firſt thing I ſhall ſay unto you by way of premiſe is this, That if the Holy Ghoſt will be pleaſed to work upon the heart of a corrupt man, and not change it, create nothing anew; then neceſſarily he muſt work upon ſome principle that is in corrupt Nature already. This all will yield. If corrupt Nature remain corrupt, and the Holy Ghoſt mean not to change it, and yet will work upon it, he muſt work upon ſome principles that are in it already. That is the Firſt thing.

The Second thing I premiſe to underſtand it is this, There is in all men natural faculties of Will, and Underſtanding, and Affections, which are both the ſubjects of grace, and of theſe inferior works too; therefore they are not the principles, I mean ſimply conſidered. A man could not love God but he muſt have in him the affection of love; a ſtone could not love God. A man could not underſtand ſpiritual things unleſs he had an underſtanding. Therefore when I ſay he works upon the principles of corrupt Nature already, there my meaning is not only to expreſs this, that he works upon the faculties of the Soul, and the ſubſtance is the Soul in which theſe faculties are ſeated, that is not all, for that is common both to an inferior work, and to this other ſaving work.

Therefore Thirdly, that I may ſpeak clearly, There is in the Will and Underſtanding beſides the natural power of it, principles (whether left in corrupt Nature as relicks of the Image of God, as men call them, or whether put in, I will not now diſpute,) but there are principles in them, which the Holy Ghoſt works upon and windeth up as far as they will go, yet there is no true grace, no through change, the heart remaineth fleſh notwithſtanding.

Now, that which I am to do is this. I am to ſhew you theſe two things.

Firſt, I am to ſhew you what theſe principles are that are left in corrupt Nature that may be wrought thus upon, And Secondly, How far they are wrought upon and the heart not changed. And when I have ſhewed theſe two things, this will plainly appear unto you, that in a lower work of the Holy Ghoſt he only works upon principles already, whereas in a true work he changeth the heart, putteth in new principles inſtead of them. The one is but improving what is there already; the other is a putting in of new.

Firſt,

Sermon XXVII.

First let us conſider what principles there are in the heart, (I mean beſides meer Nature, that is, Underſtanding, Will and Affections,) by which a man is capable to be wrought upon by the Holy Ghoſt, and raiſed up to ſome good. First I will ſhew you what the principles are. Secondly I will ſhew you plainly that the Holy Ghoſt may work upon theſe principles, and raiſe them up to much good without changing the heart or putting in a new.

First of all there is in every mans Underſtanding ſeeds of truth, not only of truth to underſtand things of this World; but there are ſeeds of truth to underſtand the God-head, to underſtand many pieces of the Law of God.

This you have plain by two Scriptures, which I will not ſtand long upon, for you all know them. The one is Rom, 2.15,14. The Gentiles (ſaith he,) which have not the Law, do by nature the things contained in the Law, theſe having not the Law are a Law unto themſelves, which ſhew the work of the Law written in their hearts, their Conſcience alſo bearing witneſs, and and their thoughts in the mean while accuſing or elſe excuſing one another. This is by nature you ſee, that he plainly expreſſeth, that is, it is from a man's birth, I will not ſay it is from nature, for it is ſaid to be a thing written, I believe it is by the finger of God put in, for man hath loſt all light. But this is in every man's nature more or leſs, here is one principle, whereby he knoweth many things of the Law. Then here is another principle, in Rom. 1. 17. 18,19. and ſo on, He ſaith, there is a truth which was withheld by all the Gentiles in unrighteouſneſs, ſo he ſaith at the 18*th.* verſe: What truth was that? It was a glimmering light that there was a God; Becauſe (ſaith he,) that which may be known of God is manifeſt in them, this was not from nature, though it was by nature, for he ſaith, God hath ſhewed it unto them. It was God put it in over and above what was the due of corrupt nature, yet there it is, and it is you ſee in all mens hearts

Now, as there are in every man's heart ſeeds and principles of Reaſon, which by education and living in the World may be improved, a man may be exceeding wiſe, and yet wiſe only ſo far as thoſe principles will go and be ſtretched, he ſhall be wiſe in his generation. So bring this light of Conſcience which a man hath by nature, bring it to the word of God to be improved, it will be mightily enlarged; and yet ſtill all the light that is added to it by the word it will be but of the ſame kind, it will not riſe to grace, to a new principle, it is but inlarging the old. As for example, take the Jews; the Apoſtle in Rom. 2. after he had ſhewed in verſe 14. what the light of nature is, in the 17*th.* verſe he ſaith, Behold thou art called a Jew, and reſteſt in the Law, and makeſt thy boaſt of God, and thou knoweſt his will, and approveſt the things that are more excellent, being inſtructed out of the Law, and art confident that thou thy ſelf art a guide of the blind, an inſtructer of the fooliſh, which haſt the form of knowledge, and of the truth in the Law. Here you ſee that if the light of nature be brought to the Law of God, it is mightily improved. A man by nature hath ſome light that there is a God, let that light be brought to the Law and he will be confident; he hath ſome light by nature about duties belonging to God, bring that light to the Law and he will have a form of knowledge and of the truth in the Law. So that thoſe ſeeds of knowledge that are in the mind of a a man by nature, of God and of the Law, being brought to the Law and lighted at that Torch, his light is greater, but yet ſtill it is of the ſame kind, there is but an improvement of the principles of nature. There is one.

In the Second place, there is in man a natural devotion to a Deity, that is more. The Heathens had it, they all would worſhip ſome God or other, though this was their fault, that when they knew God they glorified him not as God; ſo the Apoſtle ſaith, Rom. 1. 21. You ſhall find in Acts 13. 50. that there were devout Women which the Jews ſtirred up againſt Paul and Barnabas. They had a devotion in them. There is a natural devotion in men; now bring that to the Law, to the word of God, and it will come both to know the true God, and to have a reverence of the true God too. All this is by nature, nature improved.

Sermon XXVII.

Well in the Third place. There is a ſeed of light in the heart of every ſinner, that he deſerveth eternal death for his ſin, and that this God will puniſh him. There is this light too naturally in every man's heart, Rom. 1. 32. he ſpeaks of the Gentiles there plainly, Who knowing (ſaith he,) the judgment of God δικαίωμα, that they which commit ſuch things are worthy of death, worthy of eternal death, for it is the judgment of God; where by Judgment δικαίωμα, is evident he meaneth that part of the Law whereby God is revealed as a Judge inflicting puniſhment, the next words interpret it, they which do ſuch things are worthy of death. And ſo Chapter 2. 1. 2. it is evident that he goeth on to ſpeak of the κρίμα, the ſentence of God in puniſhing ſinners. And ſo Ariſtotle uſeth the word, in the 5*th.* Book of his Ethicks, and in Revel. 16. it is ſo uſed, ſpeaking of the Vials that were to be powered out, Thy Judgments (ſaith he, it is the ſame word,) are made manifeſt.

Now, a man having that natural light in him that there is ſuch a God as is angry when he ſinneth and will puniſh him, bring this man to the Law, to the word of God, then what followeth? Rom. 2. 1. We are ſure that the Judgment of God is according to truth againſt them which commit ſuch things; ſpeaking of the Jews. A man that cometh to be enlightned by the word, he hath this natural principle mightily ſtrengthned, confirmed and enlarged.

Then again in the fourth place. If a man come once to ſee his ſin, it is natural for him to think of a Mediator, to uſe ſome body to intercede for him to God. There is that principle in Nature. For that I will give you but a Scripture or two. I inſtance in all that the Heathens did, the Heathens, the wiſeſt of them, they acknowledged that there was but one God, but they ſaid there were many that were lower Gods, Mediators, they were their κύριοι, it is a notion that Mr. Meade did much inlarge. The Scripture I will give you is, 1 Cor. 8. 5. Though there be that are called Gods, as there be Gods many and Lords many, yet to us there is but one God, and one Lord Jeſus Chriſt. They had many Gods, or indeed rather one great God, and they called all other Gods but as Mediators to this great God. This was by Nature, they could not tell how to go to God without leſſer Gods, which were their Mediators, for ſo they called their Lords. Therefore Simon Magus you ſhall find deſired Peter to pray for him; and Pharo intreated Moſes to intercede for him. And it was uſual amongſt the Heathens to offer Sacrifices to theſe lower Gods to mediate for them with the great God.

Well, in the Fifth place, There is in every man's Will and Affections a natural deſire of happineſs, of a greater good than what this world hath; for it reſteth not in any thing in this World, it is like a Bee that goeth from one Flower to another, which ſheweth that it cannot be ſatisfied with any thing that is here.

There are all theſe principles in Nature that is corrupt, and ſo you ſee the principles, which was the firſt thing I undertooke to ſhew you.

Now, in the Second place, let me ſhew how the Holy Ghoſt may work upon theſe principles, mightily raiſe them, and yet not change a man's heart, raiſe them to a great deal of good, and yet all that he addeth to theſe is but of the ſame kind, it is not of this Creation, it is not grace. To make this manifeſt unto you.

There are two ſorts of Men that live in the Church under the Goſpel who pretend to any good, that have not grace.

Firſt, You have thoſe that are a civil kind of men, that is, all that they have to ſhew for their ſalvation is abſtinence from groſs ſins, and they have an ingenuity and honeſty of Nature, and they believe in Chriſt, and they profeſs the Religion of the State. To bring men to this, to improve the principles in Nature, ſo far, is a work of the Holy Ghoſt. But yet my Brethren, this falleth mightily ſhort of true grace. I will lay my foundation in theſe, you ſhall ſee how far they are carried on to God.

I told you before that there is a natural light in every man whereby he knoweth that there is a God, and being educated in the Church, he is directed to know the true God. But this man's principle of knowledge is the ſame that is in the heart of a Turk, who acknowledgeth the true God and doth ordinarily profeſs him, and his ſervice to God is no more but what an honeſt Turk doth; only here is his happineſs, he is directed by his education to the true God.

Well,

Sermon XXVII.

Well, a man living in the Church is enlightned by the Law how to worſhip this God, more than what Heathens are; he knoweth the Sabbath, and the duties of publick worſhip and private Prayer. Education likewiſe, and living under the preaching of the Word teacheth him this. Now the Heathens had waies of worſhipping their gods, they had Prayers, and Sacrifices, and Faſt-days: He by his Education is directed to the right worſhip, and there is all the difference.

Then Thirdly, Take Heathens, take a Turk, there is a natural devotion, you heard before, in every man's heart; that natural devotion that is in every man's heart to a Deity, he beſtoweth upon the true God, being directed to him by Education, and worſhippeth him with no more devotion than what a Turk doth his Mahomet. There is a devotion in every man's heart, which being improved may be raiſed up to the true God.

And then Fourthly, Look what is the Religion of the Nation, he is zealous for, as all Nations in the World are. Saith the Apoſtle, Rom. 10. 2. ſpeaking of the Jews, They have a zeal of God; they have for their Religion, for it is natural for every man to have ſo, to be zealous for that God he profeſſeth, and for that Religion he is educated in. The Gentiles had ſo.

Thus you ſee how far, in a Civil man, theſe Natural principles are improved.

Now, my Brethren, the Holy Ghoſt falleth upon the hearts of many men living in the Church with a further work than this; the ſame common principles he windeth up ſtill higher, and yet ſtill that work falleth ſhort of Grace. There are the ſame falſe ſtrings ſtill, only he windeth them up to a higher key; but the ſtrings are the ſame ſtill, but as falſe in the one as in the other, only mightily improved and wound up.

To manifeſt this unto you.

I told you firſt, That there is a light of Conſcience naturally in every man, whereby he hath a natural knowledge of the Judgment of God, which being improved by Education, a man cometh to know for certain, that thoſe that do ſuch things deſerve death. Now the Holy Ghoſt goeth with the Law of God that is preached, falleth upon a man's heart, and ſetteth this Law home upon the Conſcience, and becometh a Spirit of bondage to a man. But yet works but upon a principle of nature, improves it. So you have it Rom. 8. 15, and 20. We have not received the Spirit of bondage again to fear. The Holy Ghoſt becometh a Spirit of bondage to a man, bindeth his ſins upon his Conſcience. And whereas now he hath naturally a glimmering light, that there is a Judgment of God againſt ſuch Sinners as he is, and having heard it out of the Word, and learned it by Education, he is confirmed in it ſo much, that he knoweth for certain that the judgment of God is according to truth; yet he ſhifteth off this light. The Holy Ghoſt cometh upon him, and Conſcience is a tender thing, it is God's Throne, and it is as Tinder to Sparks; the Holy Ghoſt, I ſay, cometh and ſetteth this Conſcience on fire, all on a light flame. He works but upon the ſame matter that is in it already in all this, as he will do in Hell at the latter day; he will then ſet all the Conſciences of wicked men on fire, all their ſins ſhall be as ſo many barrels of Gunpowder in their Conſciences, all on a light flame preſently. And therefore, whereas he had before but a glimmering light of the puniſhment of ſin, now he feeleth it; God letteth into his Conſcience, which is a tender thing, ſcalding drops of his wrath. Here now a man beginneth to be mightily wrought upon, but yet it is but the ſame principle ſtill thus wrought upon; for afore Natural light did but whiſper, but now it crieth aloud.

Now to do this, the Holy Ghoſt ſhall not need to infuſe a new principle into you, or give you a Spiritual underſtanding; the old Underſtanding, and the old Conſcience will ſerve to apprehend all this. The Word of God (ſaith he) is quick and powerful, Heb. 4. 12. it will try and ſearch every vein in a man's heart. He ſpeaks it of temporary Believers plainly, it is a threatning againſt them, the types of whom were thoſe that fell away in the Wilderneſs, of whom he ſpeaks in the verſes juſt before. The compariſon the Scripture uſeth will help us in this.

Sermon XXVII.

this. It is in 2 *Pet.*2.22. (I opened it in part in the laſt diſcourſe; but that I ſhall quote it now for, I did not open:) He ſpeaks of men that leave their ſins through a great deal of light. He compareth them firſt to Swine, (I ſhewed that before,) they were outwardly waſhed, it was but reſtraining of corruption. He compareth them ſecondly to a Dog; The Dog (ſaith he) is returned to his own vomit again. He compareth the natural Conſcience of a man to the Stomach; do but make this Stomach ſick, give it but a Pill or two to quicken nature, and it will vomit up all: So will a man's Conſcience, if the Holy Ghoſt fall upon it; if he give it but two or three of thoſe Pills of Mercury: The Word of God is quick and powerful, no Quickſilver is like it, it will make a man ſick, and ſick to death. Here is no new principle put in, it is a working upon the old ſtomach and humors thus, for though he vomit as the Dog doth, yet he loveth it ſtill; Sin and his Soul are as nearly united as before, the Dog returneth to his vomit again.

I might enlarge it to you by that Example of Felix, that trembled when Paul diſcourſed of Judgment to come, which I leave, becauſe I will haſten.

Now when Conſcience is thus wrought upon, and a man feeleth by a light of the Holy Ghoſt put into his Conſcience (which his Conſcience is capable of,) what the wrath of God is; what ſaith the Soul next? Oh, for a Phyſician, and Nature it ſelf, if it be thus wrought upon, will do this, will drive a man to the Phyſician; The whole need not a Phyſician, but they that are ſick. You heard before, there is a natural principle in us to uſe a Mediatour unto God. Now a man living under the Goſpel, hath heard that Chriſt is the Mediatour; Education hath taught him that, even as it teacheth a Turk, that Mahomet is the Mediatour to God. And by the ſame principle that Agrippa believed Moſes and the Prophets, he believeth the Goſpel and Paul's Epiſtles, and there he readeth of a Mediatour, and that this Mediatour is Chriſt.

Now, my Brethren, in this caſe, a man's Soul having a further light, that natural principle being further enlightned, that light of Faith which he had by Education being now further improved by the Holy Ghoſt, a man cometh to remember his Redeemer; he forgat him all his days before.

There is an excellent expreſſion for this in Pſal. 78. 34, 35. When he ſlew them, then they ſought him, and they returned and enquired early after God: and they remembred that God was their Rock, and the High God their Redeemer. That Chriſt which a man before he was ſick had neglected, he would uſe him complimentally; but now he hath need of him, he remembreth him as never he remembred him before; he remembreth that he is his Redeemer, if ever he be ſaved. When men do come thus to ſtand in need of Chriſt, they conſider him after a new manner, they remember him anew.

Well then, in the Fourth place, The Goſpel that he knows, doth not only reveal Chriſt to be a Redeemer to him to pardon his ſin, but that there is a happineſs which he bringeth with him. This ſtandeth fully with a principle of nature too; for I told you there was this principle in nature to deſire happineſs beyond what is in this World, for no man is ſatisfied with what is here. All this ſuiteth with what is in Nature, and Nature improved by the light of the Holy Ghoſt will riſe hitherto; therefore they are ſaid to be partakers of the heavenly gift, the heavenly gift is Chriſt. If thou kneweſt the gift of God, ſaith he, Joh. 4. And they are ſaid to taſte of the powers of the world to come, Heb. 6. As they taſte of Hell, and know certainly there is a Hell; likewiſe there being a natural principle in them to deſire a happineſs beyond what is in this World, it is confirmed when they hear out of the Word, that there is a happineſs, and there are ſome taſtes of it too, of which this principle is capable.

Now lay this for a concluſion, That all theſe principles in nature are but improved, and ſee how eaſily a man will be wrought upon. For there is in every man, beſides all this, Self-love, which is the predominant principle in man by nature, he loveth himſelf more than he loveth God; herein lieth the bottom of man's corruption, (mark what I ſay unto you) that makes him fleſh for all this. Now if a man's Conſcience be thus awakened, he ſeeth need of a Phyſician, he ſeeth a happineſs which cometh with him, to which a man hath a Natural principle ſuited (the News of it is;) If this this conviction be wrought upon a man's Understanding, Self-love will strike in presently, and all the affections in a man, the whole heart will be exceedingly set on work, and carried on to Spiritual things revealed in the Word, though not as Spiritual, as I shall shew you anon. Do but once awaken Self-love, make it but apprehensive of the danger he is in of the wrath of God; make Self-love apprehensive of a Saviour and a Redeemer, (which now he remembreth, and seeth he stands in need of,) and a happiness that cometh with him, besides the avoiding of danger. This natural principle of Self-love will bustle and set all other principles afloat, and yet remaineth unregenerate.

Sermon XXVII.

For the Reason is this; Unregeneracy lieth in the predominancy of Self-love. Now, what will this man say out of Self-love? Is there a Physician to heal me, will he say; send for him, Oh, who will help me to him! It may be he loves not the Physician. It is one thing to send for him to marry him, another thing to send for him to heal one; in this extremity, Self-love will make a man do the one, but it must be Grace to make you do the other. It is Nature doth this, Skin for skin, and all that a man hath will he give for his life; all that he hath in hot blood, when he is put upon it. This is Nature, and this nature stirred to Spiritual things, to things out of this World, so I should rather express it.

To give you a plain Scripture for it. It is Psal. 78. 35, and 37. Verses compared: When he slew them, then they remembred that God was their Redeemer, (he remembreth that Christ is his Redeemer;) what followeth, Nevertheless they did flatter him with their mouth. What is the meaning of flattering? It is this, when one seeks one meerly out of Self-love. You know there is Amor amicitiæ, a seeking of one out of friendship; and when one hath an enemy, if he have need of him, he will seek him; but it is but flattery, it is out of Self-love: Thus they sought after God, and remembred that he was their Redeemer. This, my Brethren, Nature calleth for; if a man be in any extremity, if nature be stirred, if Conscience be made thus sick, Nature calleth for it.

I will give you a Scripture for it; Jonah 1. 5. when they were all in a Storm, (and men are often Sea-sick at a Sermon, and remain so a long while after) what do they do? The Text saith, They cried every man unto his god; and Verse 6. They awakened Jonah, and bad him arise and call upon his God, if so be that God would think upon them, that they perisht not. A man's Conscience being convinced that Christ is the Mediatour and Redeemer, remembring him. Self-love being this stirred, will put a man upon it to seek after Jesus Christ; and Oh, what shall I give for this Physician!

Especially in the Second place, when he heareth too that Jesus Christ bringeth happiness with him. Balaam you know was enlightned to see the happy estate of the People of God hereafter, Numb. 24. then nature works this, Oh that I might die the death of the righteous! There is a principle in nature, if once stirred, that will desire this happiness for Selfs-sake. And if but for Selfs-sake (mark it) still a man is an unregenerate man; for the predominancy of Self-love is the very bottom of Original sin, whether it be turned to worldly things, or to things out of this world, it is all one. Therefore you read in John 6. 33. when our Saviour Christ had told him that he was the Bread of life, and that he was able to make them happy; Oh, say they, Lord evermore give us this Bread. Yet he tells them, vers. 36. that they did not believe, and vers. 41. they murmured at him, and v. 66. Many of them went back, and walked no more with him.

Well, when Jesus Christ is sent for, the Physician cometh to treat with the Soul; he prescribeth to him (for so the Word of God doth;) first saith he, you must leave these and these sins. He is sick, he hath took a Vomit, as I told you before. Well, it shall all come up. Peter telleth of some that escaped the pollutions of the world through the knowledge of Christ; it is an expression of men that fall away, whom he calleth afterward Swine and Dogs, unchanged for all this, Nature remaineth corrupt; yet through the knowledge of Christ, through the dictates of the holy Commands of Christ they leave these sins, refrain from what they have a mind to.

Yea,

Sermon XXVII.

Yea, when they are thus ſick they have no mind to their ſins, that's more; yet it is but Nature improved ſtill. For if you ſhould be ſick in Body or in Old age, you will ſay of all your pleaſures, We have no pleaſure in them, Eccleſ. 12.1. So when a man is ſick in his Conſcience, he is dead to all the pleaſures in the World, and yet this is not Mortification, the luſts are not killed; for when he grows well again, his luſts grow well with him and gather up their crumbs.

Jeſus Chriſt likewiſe tells him, the Word tells him, and the Miniſters tell him, and good Books that he reads tell him when he is in this caſe, that he muſt fall to theſe and theſe Duties, that he never practiſed in his life. If Self-love be thus ſtirred by theſe principles of Nature thus enlightned, thus wrought upon, he will do any thing, take up all ſorts of purpoſes. I will give you Scripture for it. Deut. 5.27. whenas God there had appeared to the People, and had appeared dreadfully, and their Conſciences were ſtruck with the greatneſs of his Majeſty. If we hear the voice of God any more, (ſay they) then we ſhall die. Go thou near, and hear all that the Lord our God ſhall ſay; and ſpeak thou unto us all that the Lord our God ſhall ſpeak unto thee, and we will hear it and do it. They take up all good purpoſes of doing, and yet mark what God ſaith of them, Verſe 29. Oh that there were ſuch an heart in them, that they would fear me, and keep all my Commandements alway! They wanted ſtill a principle of Regeneration; it was but Self-love ſtirred, that made them do all this.

And then, Thirdly, (that I may end this thing) In doing a man ſhall have a great deal of Joy: For as the Heathens in doing according to the light of their Natural Conſcience, had peace, they had an Excuſing; ſo it is ſaid Rom. 2. 14. So if a man in this caſe ſhall fall to good Duties, and reform his life, the Holy Ghoſt will give him Joy. No man ſhall do any thing for God, but he ſhall have a reward, Joy to encourage him; you know the ſtony ground, they received the Word with joy.

Now then, all Nature being thus wrought upon, a man falling thus a doing and reforming, and finding himſelf thus kindly uſed to encourage him, Self-flattery in a man makes up a concluſion, that he is in a ſtate of Grace. And the principles of Nature being thus wrought upon by the Holy Ghoſt, thus doth a man come to be a profeſſour of Religion, lancheth forth, walketh on ſtrongly; and yet all is but the principles of Nature improved, and but an under-work of the Spirit.

I have made up the Demonſtrations of it unto you. I will but give you ſome Corollaries from it, and ſo conclude.

The Firſt is that, which indeed is the point in hand: If there be ſuch principles in Nature, which the Holy Ghoſt works with, raiſeth and elevateth, ſo as he need not put in new principles, but only ſtir nature; the Holy Ghoſt beginneth indeed, but fleſh endeth. Then, my Brethren, ſuch a work as this doth not hold proportion with what the Text here ſpeaks of, wherein a man is raiſed up from death to life, as Jeſus Chriſt was; or whereby he is made a workmanſhip, created to good works, as the 10th Verſe of the ſecond Chapter hath it. For in all this working (if you mark it) there is but an Artificial kind of working in compariſon. As for Example, to expreſs the difference to you between one and the other; Go take an old piece of Cloth, by dreſſing of it you may raiſe a new tuft upon it out of the old piece, and it will ſeem new; but yet it is but the ſame principle newly raiſed up. But come to the work of Regeneration, what is it? It is not a dreſſing of the old garment, but it is a putting off the old man, and putting on the new, that is the expreſſion the Apoſtle hath Eph. 4.22,23,24. That ye put off, concerning the former Converſation, the Old man which is corrupt, according to the deceitful luſts, and be renewed in the ſpirit of your mind; and that you put on the New man, which after God is created in righteouſneſs and true holineſs. To dreſs the Old garment, to dreſs Old nature and make it ſeem new; here is not a work now proportionable to the Creation, here is but a raiſing up the principles there already; but to put it off, and to put on the New man in all holy and gracious diſpoſitions ſuited to the ſpiritual part of the Word. This is by Creation, Put on the New man, which after God is created, &c.

Here

Here is indeed a new gilding over of the old heart, which a Goldſmith you know can do, he hath an Artifice in that, but to turn this heart into Gold, (as I may ſo expreſs it.) This is the difficulty, the baſe Metal remaineth under all that guilt ſtill, it is but fleſh ſtill, Self-love ſtill, and while that remaineth, the predominant principle in a man's hearts is not changed: But to put in that which is more precious than Gold and Silver, the Love of God, into a man's heart; this is that which turneth baſe Metal into Gold, it is not gilding of it over. The old principles do contribute to ſuch a work as I have deſcribed. Take the old frame of the heart, hang ſome new weight upon it, as I may expreſs it by a Clock, and you may move it the clean contrary to what it went formerly: ſo here is but an Artifice in this, hang but the conſideration of Hell and Heaven upon corrupt nature, and Self-love will move contrary to what it did. But (my Brethren) it is a different thing for a man to be a workmanſhip created unto good works, to take this old frame in pieces, and put in a new workmanſhip (created to good works) to move naturally another way, as the word, Created, implieth. The other is a work of skill rather than a work of power, (though it is a work of great power too,) for it doth but apply ſuch conſiderations as ſhall work upon the heart, but putteth in no new principles.

Sermon XXVII.

In a word, Such a work as this it is not wholly from above, as was the expreſſion Jam. 1.17. It is partly from beneath, and partly from above; the fleſhly will of a man, (take Self-love as the predominant principle in him) contributeth to this work, and the Holy Ghoſt only hangs a weight upon Self-love, and ſo ſtirreth it; but where there is a perfect work, it is wholly from above, the Holy Ghoſt cometh and putteth in a new principle. Compare for this but the 18*th* Verſe of that firſt of James with the 13*th* Verſe of the firſt of John, that I may expreſs to you from the phraſes uſed in both thoſe Scriptures the difference in theſe two works. Every perfect gift (ſaith James) is wholly from above. What is that gift that is thus wholly from above? It is Regeneration; Of his own will begat he us (and that by Creation) that we ſhould be a kind of Firſt-fruits of his Creatures, the choiceſt of the Creatures; ſo it is in the Original, ἀπαρχην. Now compare with it John 1.13. where he ſpeaks of true Regeneration, To become the Sons of God that believe in his name, which were born not of blood, nor of the will of the fleſh, nor of the will of man, but of God. What is that [but of God] oppoſed unto? It is oppoſed unto Three things.

Firſt, It is not by Blood, thoſe that are Noble or the Sons of Holy men, it goeth not by Blood. Say not we have Abraham to our Father; that is, it is not therefore that you are godly, though God may draw Election through the Loins of his Children.

Nor is it Secondly, of the will of man. Thou art a Holy man, and thou haſt many Children. Abraham, he would have Iſhmael ſaved; Oh, that Iſhmael might live in thy ſight! God would have Iſaack; he is not born of the will of man, Abraham could not have his will.

But here is a Third thing; It is not a work of the will of the fleſh. What is Fleſh? Profeſſedly it is this; It is Self-love in the height of it, when a man hath nothing in him but love of himſelf, it is the bottom of Original ſin, if you ſtudy it a thouſand years. Well, there cometh the Holy Ghoſt upon a man's heart, and there is indeed a work partly from above, yet it ſtirreth but the fleſh; it is partly from the Holy Ghoſt's ſtirring it, and partly from the will of the Fleſh ſtirred too. In oppoſition to which, ſaith James, Every perfect gift is from above, that is, wholly from above; but theſe imperfect works, they work upon the will of the fleſh, they work upon Self-love, and ſo far as that will carry a man to good, ſo far a man is carried. Whereas true Grace is not a work of the will of the fleſh, but of the will of God; it is wholly from above, for it depoſeth the will of the Fleſh, depoſeth Self-love, and ſetteth a man on work from a new principle.

So I have done with the firſt Corollary.

Sermon XXVII.

The second Corollary is this: Go, take any man that hath had never so high a work, where only the principles of Nature have been wrought upon and improved, wound up to the highest; if God turn this man truly to him, there needeth as much power yet to do it, after all this that I have mentioned, as to create a World, as to raise up Christ from the dead.

To make this plain unto you.

All other kinds of workings upon the principles of Corrupt nature, some say, are dispositions preparing for Grace. And I will yield it thus far they are, that whenever God works upon any man, he beginneth to stir Self-love first; for there is no other principle to begin withal. But let the Holy Ghost wind up all these principles in man never so far, never so high, yet if he will savingly convert that man, he must put a new principle into him; that requireth as much power as to make Heaven and Earth, and all the other will not contribute this to it. I will yield, that such workings as these make a man nearer to the Kingdom of heaven; but you shall see what Christ saith in Mark 12. 34. He speaks of an ingenious Scribe, he went beyond the Pharisees, they put their Religion in Duties. No, saith the Scribe, it lies in loving God above a man's self; Thou art near (saith Christ) unto the kingdom of God. But how near? Suppose there be two Kingdoms, and one man liveth in the borders of his Kingdom, next the other; he is indeed nigh to the other Kingdom, nigher than one that liveth in the head City, or in the heart of it: So here, this man is at the borders, at the utmost confines of the Kingdom of Death; but if he come to be translated into the Kingdom of Life, this an Almighty power must do it. Coloss. 1. 12. Giving thanks unto the Father, which hath delivered us out of the power of Darkness, and translated us into the Kingdom of his well-beloved Son. He is nearer indeed, but he is in the borders still.

I will make a Supposition or two unto you to explain my meaning.

Suppose that Opinion were true, (I do not say it is,) which some Philosophers say concerning the forming of a Man in the Womb. They hold there are three Souls in a man; The Soul of a Plant, whereby he groweth; the Soul of a Beast, whereby he hath sense; and the reasonable Soul, which is put in over and above all these. Now, saith Aristotle, the Child in the Womb liveth first the life of a Plant, and it groweth; then afterward it liveth the life of sense, the life of a Beast; there is a sensitive Soul added to that, as they interpret him: Yet when it is grown up thus far, to bring the reasonable Soul in it requireth the Almighty work of Creation, it is created, and with creation infused, and with the infusion created. Just so it is here. If the Holy Ghost have wrought upon Corrupt nature never so far, to bring in a true principle of Spiritual Faith, and to bring in a true principle of Love to God above a man's self, (wherein Holiness lies;) all this is no way conducing to it, it must be a creating anew, it can never be educed out of man's Nature; no principle in man will be wound up to this, it must be (as the reasonable Soul is) infused from heaven.

I will give you another Instance; And the Instance I shall now give, is more proper to the similitude in the Text, which is an allusion to the raising of Christ from death to life. Go, take two dead Bodies, (I will give you instances of two Dead bodies in the Scripture that were raised to life.) Take one just as the Prophet Elisha did, 2 King. 4. newly dead, within an hour after, when the Soul is newly out of the body; and take Lazarus, his Body, that had been dead four dayes, and did stink. Take this Child's Body, the Soul was newly out of it; there were a great many preparatory dispositions to a Resurrection, to bring life again one would think; What was there? There was natural warmth left still, there was the blood remaining fresh in the Veins uncorrupt, there was a body fitly limned in all the parts of it: yet for all this, if you will make this Child live you must put the Soul anew into it; that Power that raised up Christ from the dead, must raise up this Child newly dead. Come to Lazarus, he stinketh the Text saith, he had been buried four dayes: Then here is indeed a greater work in this respect, that the putrefaction is to be taken away more, but yet still there must be a putting in of a new life to both. And to put a new life into this dead Child, there was as much Power required, that is, as Almighty a Power, as into Lazarus his body, that had been longer dead, though there was ſome diſpoſitions in the one, that made a fitneſs, more than in the other.

Sermon XXVII.

So that ſtill, Let Corrupt nature be wrought upon, raiſed never ſo high; if God will ſave a man, there muſt be a new principle put in by an Almighty power, and all this will not help toward it, not to abate of the Power.

I come to a third Corollary, and that is this: That look over all the Scriptures, where you find inferiour workings, which men fall from, and ſeem to be converted and fall away; you ſhall find in all thoſe Scriptures, that thoſe men are ſtill unregenerate, they are but fleſh. Look over them all.

I ſhewed, how that Corrupt nature may be thus wrought upon, remaining ſuch; I ſhewed the Reaſons of it; you ſhall ſee the Scripture reckoneth thoſe to be fleſh and unregenerate. My meaning is not, that there is fleſh in them, for ſo it is in godly men; but that they remain ſtill corrupt, unregenerate, unrenewed. Take that for a Rule, While Self-love is the predominant principle, though a man go never ſo far in ſupernatural actions, he is but fleſh ſtill.

It is a Queſtion that Learned Camero ſtarteth upon Heb.6. Whether that a man enlightned, that falleth away, be a regenerate, or an unregenerate man, or a third thing between them? He dare not ſay, he is a third thing; Why? Becauſe then there muſt be a third place, there muſt be ſome third thing between the ſtate of Nature and the ſtate of Grace; but he would make him to be one that is in order to Converſion, and ſo he is in the way of it, and ſo he is neither. As the Embrio in the Womb, before the reaſonable Soul cometh into it, is neither a Man, nor a Beaſt, nor a third thing; but a thing in order to be a man. But I do not ſuppoſe alwaies, that God uſeth ſuch works to prepare men for Grace; many a man that hath never been a Temporary, is wrought upon at firſt: So Paul was, and ſo the Thief upon the Croſs, and the Jaylour, and many others.

Now this Third thing, which I have mentioned by way of conſequence from the former Doctrine, tendeth to two things.

Firſt, To anſwer all thoſe places that are alleadged for falling away from Grace. The Scripture ſpeaks of glorious works they fall from; but if it be manifeſted to you, that they are all this while but fleſh, then here is no falling from Grace. Here is falling from the work they had indeed; but they are where they were, they are in the ſtate of Nature ſtill.

The Second thing for which I alleadged the point is this. It is the greateſt comfort in the World. You are troubled at theſe Doctrines, many of them; comfort your ſelves with this, let them go whether they will go, let them be wound up never ſo far, they are but fleſh, they are but unregenerate men ſtill. I ſhall make application of it by and by. But,

Firſt, I ſay, I mention it to anſwer all thoſe places that are urged for falling away. There are three places in Scripture, which are more eminently alleadged for falling from Grace; that men have true Grace wrought in them, and yet fall away.

The Firſt is in the 2 *Pet.*2.20. I opened that before. I ſhewed they were unrenewed, they were Swine and Dogs, and eſcaped but the groſs defilements of the World, not the corruptions that are through luſts. I ſhall not need to ſtand upon that now.

The Second place is the Parable of the Sower; where there are four ſorts of grounds, three were wrought upon by the Holy Ghoſt in hearing of the Word. There is the ſtony ground, that received it with joy; and there is the thorny ground, that goes farther, and yet bringeth not forth fruits to perfection.

Then Thirdly, There is that place in Heb.6. that hath troubled all men almoſt that have had any work upon them, where he ſpeaks of men that were once enlightned, and have taſted of the heavenly gift, &c. Now this is it I will prove, that all thoſe that had theſe workings upon them were unregenerate men ſtill, and that will be home to the point.

Sermon XXVII.

To manifest this unto you, I will begin first with the Parable of the Sower. It is in *Matt.*13.*Mar.*4.Luke 8. There are three sorts of grounds wrought upon, whereof the last is said to receive the Word with a good and an honest heart: And the other, one of them received it into a stony ground, and received it with joy. They alledge this to prove falling-away, for in the end they fell away, yet believed for a time. Then there is the thorny ground, And the thorns grew up and choaked it.

The difference between these two grounds in a word is this; As I take it, the Stony ground was one that was not much humbled, but when he had first news of Heaven, and Happiness, and of the Promises of the Gospel, having a new light opened to him; the news being agreeable to his Natural principles, he runneth away with joy. The Thorny ground being more deeply humbled, and having a sense of the wrath of God upon their Consciences, they hold out in persecution; for all Persecutions are less than that wrath they feel upon their Consciences.

Now to prove, that both these Grounds remain still unregenerate men.

First, For the Stony ground, it is evident they were Unregenerate men, because that Corrupt nature is compared to the stony heart. The same comparison is used elsewhere, Ezek. 11.19. I will take the stony heart out of their flesh, and give them an heart of flesh; that is, I will convert them. There is still a stony heart remaining, for they fall away (saith Christ) because it was sown upon stony ground. It is said, They had not much earth, that is the expression Mark 4.5. But a stone lieth at the bottom of the earth. What is the meaning of that, There is a heart and a heart? That is, there are some principles in them that are affected with the things that are good, that lie in the uppermost part of their affections, the slabby part, and they receive the Word there with joy: But then they cannot deny themselves, there is a heart of stone lieth at the bottom, the stone is not taken away. Still therefore they are unregenerate, say I. I may compare them just to the Earth in Frosty weather; When the Sun in the day-time thaweth a little, you shall find the uppermost part of the Earth slabby, melting a little; but thrust but your finger in, it is hard underneath. Men are so far wrought upon, as to have good desires and affections; for carnal principles in nature will afford thus much, when yet the heart is unchanged, it is stony still.

Then for the Thorny ground, it is more evident that they are unregenerate; and if it be evident of them, it is much more of the other, for the Thorny ground went beyond the other. He saith plainly of the Thorny ground, that the thorns grew up together with the Word; therefore their root of lusts were not grubbed up, there was a cutting off of the tops indeed, but the roots were not digged up. Read but *Jer.*4.4. and compare it with that place in the Parable. Saith he, Break up your fallow-ground, and sow not among thorns. Here is the same expression the Holy Ghost useth, and what followeth? Circumcise your selves to the Lord, and take away the fore-skins of your hearts. If you mark it here, it is all one to sow among Thorns, and to have the fore-skin of the heart remain still; What is it to have the Fore-skin of the heart remaining? To be unregenerate. That man is not sanctified, is not circumcised; Corrupt nature, the power of it is not abated in him, for it is called a Circumcision made without hands. Now then, if an uncircumcised heart, and a heart that is full of thorns, (though there be a sowing upon it;) if that be all one, then the Thorny ground must needs be an unregenerate heart, an uncircumcised heart. Compare but the phrase of the Prophet with that in the Parable.

Come we next to the 6th of the Hebrews, and that will interpret the Parable, and interpret all this. There you have mighty, glorious things spoken of; They are enlightned, they taste of the powers of the World to come, &c. Here is the highest kind of Unregenerate men mentioned that are in the whole Book of God, yet they are no other than flesh; there is still a thorny heart remaineth, there is but a sowing among Thorns. They are still corrupt, and have not that true Grace which the power of God works in mens hearts.

How

How do you prove this?

Read the place. When the Apoſtle had ſpoke ſuch great things of men that fall away, What doth he ſay? That they might not be offended, he addeth two things. Firſt he doth give them a ſimilitude to diſtinguiſh them from godly men that are truly ſanctified, truly regenerate. And he giveth the very ſame ſimilitude that is in the Parable. of the thorny ground. Paul interpreteth Chriſt. For the Earth (ſaith he,) that drinketh up the rain that cometh oft upon it, and bringeth forth Herbs meet for them by whom it is dreſſed, receiveth bleſſing from God; but that which beareth Thorns and Briars, is rejected, and is nigh unto curſing, whoſe end is to be burned. Here is the Parable interpreted. Your good Earth what is that? The Earth that doth bring forth fruit meet for the Dreſſer, which God may reliſh, may delight in. Here is the honeſt and good heart in the Parable. What is the Earth that bringeth forth Thorns and Briars, that is nigh unto curſing, if they do not repent; but thoſe that have ſuch dews from Heaven, enlightnings, taſtings of the powers of the World to come, and yet bring forth Thorns, their hearts remaining ſtill unregenerate, they ſow among Thorns. Here you ſee the Apoſtle explaineth what Chriſt ſaith in the Parable, and both expreſs them to be unregenerate men.

Sermon XXVII.

In the Second place, that he may bring it more home to them, ſaith he at the 9*th.* verſe, We are perſwaded better things of you, and things that accompany ſalvation, though we thus ſpake. He had ſpoken great things about enlightnings of men that might fall away, diſcouraging things; Notwithſtanding all this ſaith he, we are perſwaded better things of you. What better things? He ſpeaks of graces, better then all theſe enlightnings in them, that accompany ſalvation, or as the words in the Original are ἐχόμενα σωτηρίας, that have ſalvation in them, He that truly believeth hath eternal life, He that truly repenteth hath eternal life; but all theſe enlightnings had not ſalvation annexed to them, (that is his ſcope,) they were not ſaving works, they did not put a man into a ſtate of grace, into the ſtate of ſalvation. So that they remain ſtill unregenerate, for why doth he ſay, we expect better things of you? Not better in the event only, for that is the only evaſion that is for this; better ſay they in event becauſe they fell away and the others held out. No, better things in themſelves, things that have ſalvation in them. And he inſtanceth in two graces, The love of God and of his Saints. You will ſay theſe were poor things to be put in compariſon with thoſe glorious things ſpoken of before? Yet he doth. Read the 10*th.* verſe, For God is not unrighteous to forget your work and labour of love, (this is a better thing than all thoſe enlightnings,) which you have ſhewed towards his name, in that you have miniſtred unto the Saints. To give a Cup of cold Water to a Diſciple in my name ſaith Chriſt; ſo to do the leaſt good to a Saint in Chriſt's name as he is his, is more than all theſe enlightnings, theſe are things that accompany ſalvation, theſe are better things.

I could much more enlarge upon this point, to ſhew you that they are unregenerate men out of theſe places. Only obſerve this, which is a Corolary drawn from this 6*th. Heb.* That ſaving workings and all theſe inferior workings wherein a man remaineth ſtill fleſh, (for they are nothing elſe but a principle of nature wrought upon, he remaineth corrupt ſtill,) they are different kind of things. Here he expreſſeth them to be better things, the things themſelves are better than all thoſe enlightnings, &c.

In Luke 8. 18. You ſhall find there, that when Chriſt had ended the Parrable of the Sower, how he concludeth, Take heed therefore how you hear. It is in the cloſure of that Parable, take in that firſt, and ſo I will open it. Take heed therefore (ſaith he,) how ye hear, for whoſoever hath to him ſhall be given, and whoſoever hath not from him ſhall be taken even that which he ſeemeth to have. Mark it, he ſpeaks it directly to interpret the Parable. Take heed how you hear, for there are Three ſorts of hearers that are not good, There is the high way ſide, but we will not mention that. There is the ſtony ground, they receive receive the word with joy; There is the thorny ground, and they indure persecution, they have a greater work upon them, that is spoken in Heb. 6. Yet our Saviour Christ saith plainly in the closure of the Parable, when they fall away, that is taken from them that they seem to have. He seemeth to have true grace but he hath it not, yea he himself thinketh he hath it; he is not a perfect Hipocrite in that sense, yet take him in comparison of what is true, it is but seeming to have, it is but a guilding over of corrupt Nature as I may speak. It doth differ from the other in kind.

I come now to the last thing with which I conclude. They are unregenerate Men. I speak this for the comfort of you that are Saints and have but the least labour of love in your hearts, the least love to the name of God. You read the 6th. Heb. and you are terrified at it. Read the 9th. verse, We are perswaded better things of you, What better things? you will expect some great thing? Your work and labour of love which you have shewed towards his name, saith he. Hast thou any love of God in thy heart, which is the root of thy actions? Hast thou love to the name of God in his Saints and Children? However men slight such signs as these are, the Apostle you see opposeth them to all enlightnings. I charge you therefore, and I charge you again, you that are poor good Souls, never read the one but read the other too, and there is not a place in all the whole book of God may comfort you more. That which always hath discomforted Christians so much, there is no place will comfort them more, if they have love of God in their hearts.

If you hear Ministers preach of this, if they still make these to be unregenerate men, let them speak their worst, let them speak the highest, they cannot discourage thee if thou have the love of God in thy heart. And if they wind it up further believe them not, for you see the Holy Ghost saith there are better things than these. My Bretheren, they remain unregenerate men still, it is but working upon the principles that are in corrupt nature, it is but raising them up.

You will expect I shall give you some differences. I shall not do it. I will give you some Rules.

They are unregenerate men, they were never emptied of themselves nor of their own righteousness. If not in righteousness past, yet they trust in what is to come or what is in them at present. Phil. 3. 3. We are of the Circumcision saith he, we have true grace and are truly circumcised, for we have no confidence in the flesh. All the Duties these men perform they do them after the flesh in this that they do them upon legal motives and they rest in them. It is made a difference between the state of Nature, and the state of grace, He that is under the Law, turneth the Gospel into Law; He is moved to all duties by the Law. The one is under the guidance of grace, the other is under the guidance and stirrings and workings of the Law upon the Conscience. So he remaineth still an unregenerate man, he is married to the Law still, he is not dead to the Law, and emptied there, and married to Christ.

Then again, He is an unregenerate man, for self-ends are the most predominant things in him. It is said likewise here in Phil. 3. 3. We worship God in the Spirit, and have no confidence in the flesh, What is it to Worship God in the Spirit? The Apostle expoundeth it, Rom. 7. 6. When we were in the flesh we did fulfil, &c. that is, when we were unregenerate, all was lust, all was self-love, nothing else was the ground of all our obedience to God; but now (saith he,) when we were delivered from the Law that being dead wherein we were held, that we should serve in newness of Spirit, and not in the oldness of the Letter. What is it to serve in newness of spirit, that is opposed you see to the oldness of the Letter? It is this in a word, To be made a spiritual man, and then to serve God spiritually. What is it to be made a spiritual man that is opposed to flesh, which all these men are, though they are wrought never so much upon? In a word, A Spiritual man is he that hath a heart suited with spiritual things as spiritual, (I can give you no other differences,) ſo the Apoſtle defineth it, 1 Cor. 2. 14. He that hath a ſpiritual Underſtanding to take in the ſpiritual excellencies of the things revealed in the word, it is to ſee the excellencies of the things themſelves. Sermon. XXVII.

You muſt know this my Brethren, there is a twofold goodneſs in the things revealed in the word; there is a proper goodneſs, and there is an accidental, a by-goodneſs. There is a proper goodneſs, as now take the inſtance in Chriſt, there are his proper excellencies, as he is holy, as he is righteous, as he is the Son of God for which God loveth him; and all theſe glories that are proper and reſpective to his perſon. Now, to have an eye to ſee all theſe and to have the heart taken with them, this is to be a ſpiritual man; here is a new principle. Then there is an accidental goodneſs cometh by Chriſt; you ſhall ſcape Hell, you ſhall be happy, theſe things the word revealeth too; there is the bread of life, and there is the ſawce. Now, the heart that is carnal, that loveth himſelf only may be taken with that by-goodneſs that is in Chriſt, but never with the goodneſs that is in Chriſt himſelf. If thou haſt a heart ſuited to the ſpiritual things revealed in the word, and thou findeſt thy heart taken with them; it is certain thou art not fleſh but ſpirit.

Would you try your hearts then? Obſerve what conſiderations they are that ſet your affections toward ſpiritual things, that ſets them afloate, that ſets a work your Will a work. If they be ſpiritual conſiderations of the excellencies of the things themſelves revealed in the word, which you ſee and find a ſuitableneſs in your ſouls to them. It is certain thou art a ſpiritual man, thou art more than fleſh, this is not working upon the principles in nature, for the natural man cannot receive the things of the ſpirit, for they are ſpiritually diſcerned. If thou ſeeſt them ſpiritually and art affected with them as ſuch; certainly thou art ſpiritual.

I will end with a word or two. If any of you be yet troubled. You will ſay, I find nothing in me but meerly theſe natural principles, (for ought I can perceive,) ſtirring in me.

If thou doſt not, let me but gain this of thee firſt. Though thou findeſt no more, yet thou mayeſt have more. For when God beginneth to work firſt upon any man, there is nothing but ſelf-love in him, and all the motives uſed in Scripture to ſeiſe upon a man's ſelf they are ſuited unto him. But when he ſtirreth ſelf-love thus in thee, he putteth love in thee to himſelf ſecretly, which will ſtir thee though thou perceive it not. For you muſt know that a great deal in a man's heart at firſt is but a temporary work, and as at the firſt raiſing the Bells there is ſuch a jangling that the great Bell cannot be heard. So the love of God that is the foundation of all, at the firſt it may not be diſcerned. But however let me obtain thus much, that becauſe thou findeſt no more, do not conclude there is no more.

Secondly, Let me give this Counſel to thee more, Thou ſeeſt the defects of thine own heart fall ſhort of any true work. Make this uſe of it, ſtand not examining thy heart, and poring upon it endleſly; but let all theſe drive thee to Chriſt, and thou ſhalt find that faith in him will cut the knot. Go to Chriſt for ſupply of all the things thou wanteſt, and trade with him ſtill, and while thou doſt thus live by faith; thou wilt find in the end the comfort of all thy graces come in before thou art aware of it.

Thirdly, In that God hath begun thus to work upon thee, it may help thy faith thus to go to Chriſt, (not as a thing to reſt upon, but thus far,) that it is more probable he will own thee and receive thee to mercy than another, why? Becauſe he hath begun to work upon thee, whether it be a true work or no, I dare not ſay it is, neither oughteſt thou, till the Holy Ghoſt reveal the contrary. Go therefore to Chriſt and labour to make up the match with him, and to get all things agreed on, for this is the miſery

Sermon XXVII.

miſery of it, when men hear of theſe things they are toſt up and down like a wild Bull in a Net, and know not how to diſentangle themſelves. Go to Jeſus Chriſt, to help thee to do it; Conſider this, that it is more probable God may be merciful to thee than to others, not for any good in thee, that is not my meaning, but becauſe he hath begun to work in thee, which he hath not done in another, and work it out by Faith, for you muſt live by that and die by that, and your comfort muſt come in too by that; and when you have renewed Acts of Faith, the Holy Ghoſt will come and renew the evidences of your graces to you before you are aware.

Sermon XXVIII.

SERMON XXVIII.

EPHES. I. 19, 20.

And what is the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward, who believe, according to the working of the might of his power.

The ſame which he wrought in Chriſt, (or, put forth in Chriſt,) when he raiſed him from the dead, and ſet him at his own right hand in the Heavenly places, &c.

I Shall repeat nothing unto you of what I delivered in the laſt diſcourſe. I will only give you the General Heads.

Theſe words [And what is the exceeding greatneſs of his power, &c.) they refer (as you have formerly heard) to the words in the 18*th* Verſe, where Paul prayeth, That the eyes of their underſtandings might be enlightned, that ye may know what is the hope of his calling, and what is the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward, &c. So that indeed theſe words are the laſt part of Paul's Prayer; which conſiſteth of Three things, which he prayeth for.

1. That they may know what was the hope of their calling, the ground of their hope.
2. What was the Riches of that Inheritance they were called unto, and had ground to hope for; What is the riches of the glory of his Inheritance in the Saints.
3. What Power it was had both begun to work in them, and was engaged to bring them to this Inheritance; And that in the words I have read.

There are Five general Heads; (I propounded but four at firſt) unto which I reduce all the opening of theſe words; whereof I have diſpatched Three already.

The Firſt general Head is the reference of theſe words, their various Aſpect, they look ſeveral waies, both to what is before and what is after. That I have handled formerly.

Secondly, There are the parts of the words.

Firſt, Here is a more general deſcription or amplification of the Power of God manifeſted to Believers, and that in two things.

1. There is the Exceeding greatneſs of it: The exceeding greatneſs of his power. That I have handled.
2. There is the efficacy of it in thoſe words, According to the effectual working of the might of his power.

So much in General, concerning the Power of God here ſet forth.

Secondly, Here are the Perſons to whom it is drawn forth, To us-ward, Believers. I have opened that likewiſe, and given thoſe Obſervations that ariſe from thence.

Sermon XXVIII.

Here is Thirdly, The work wherein this great Power is manifeſted in Believers. It is not to be reſtrained only to the Reſurrection at the laſt day, but enlarged alſo to their converſion, and all God's gracious dealings with them from firſt to laſt. And becauſe there was a Controverſie upon that, whether Converſion ſhould be took in Yea or No; I have therefore done Three things to clear that.

The Firſt was to prove, That Converſion is meant and intended here by the Apoſtle, as that wherein God ſheweth forth the exceeding greatneſs of his power.

Secondly, For the opening of this, I ſhewed you wherein the Exceeding greatneſs of Power is drawn forth; or what it is in Converſion draweth forth ſo exceeding a great power.

Thirdly, (which was the thing I handled in the laſt diſcourſe,) I ſhewed, how that by way of difference there are inferiour works of the Holy Ghoſt upon mens hearts, which have not in proportion (compare the works) ſo Exceeding greatneſs of power manifeſted in them. I ſhewed this to clear the Text, for he ſaith, it is The exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward, to none elſe in all works that are wrought upon them, let them go never ſo far. And likewiſe I did it to ſhew the occaſion of that controverſie. And all theſe things I have diſpatched.

There are yet theſe things remaining to be handled.

The Firſt is, I muſt ſpeak ſomething concerning their knowledge of this power; for if you mark it, he prayeth in the 18*th* Verſe, that God would give them enlightned eyes, to know what is the exceeding greatneſs of his power in them that believe. I ſpake ſomething concerning the knowledge of every particular elſe he prayeth for, and therefore I muſt do ſomething about the knowledge of the power of God in them.

The Second thing which remaineth is this, The parallel or the pattern that the Apoſtle prayeth they might have in their eye, when they conſider how great a power works in them, even the ſame power (ſaith he) that wrought in Chriſt, in raiſing him from death to glory.

Then the Third thing to be handled (which belongeth to the 20*th* Verſe) is this, The Reſurrection and Exaltation of Jeſus Chriſt from death to glory; which he continueth to the end of the Chapter.

I muſt begin then with that, which is the knowledge that Believers have, or which he prayeth for they ſhould have of the Power of God working in them. And concerning that I ſhall give you (for the explication of it) theſe Three particulars; whereof ſome will be Conſiderations about it, ſome will be Obſervations.

I will give you firſt this diſtinction, that you may underſtand it the better, becauſe the Apoſtle's ſcope here in his Prayer is, That they may know the Power that works in them that believe. You ſhall find in Phil. 3.10. that the Apoſtle himſelf expreſſeth his own deſires, That I may know (ſaith he) the power of his Reſurrection, and the fellowſhip of his ſufferings, if by any means I might attain unto the Reſurrection from the dead. The Apoſtle here prayeth, They might know the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward that believe, the ſame that wrought in Chriſt when he raiſed him from the dead. You would think now, that the knowledge the Apoſtle ſpeaks there and ſpeaks here are all one, but they are not. Therefore in the firſt place I will give you a diſtinction of the knowledge, both from what is there meant, and what is here meant.

There is a twofold knowledge of the power of Chriſt's Reſurrection. The one is a knowledge of Faith, the other is a knowledge of Experience.

In that place Phil. 3.10. the knowledge he prays for there is a knowledge of Experience, that he might know the power and virtue of Chriſt's Reſurrection in the effects of it; that he might find thoſe effects upon his heart which Chriſt's Reſurrection is ordained to work in him; and therefore (ſaith he, verſ. 11.) If by any means I might attain unto the Reſurrection from the dead; that is, to be as

as perfectly holy as thoſe that are riſen from the dead. I would find, ſaith he, this effect of the Reſurrection of Chriſt. That is meant by the power of his Reſurrection there.

Sermon. XXVIII.

There is likewiſe a knowledge of Faith, and that is this, For a man by Faith to take in and underſtand, that he may glorifie God, and believe what a great Power it was that raiſed up Chriſt from death to life, and that no leſs power works in Believers when it works Faith; and that is the knowledge the Apoſtle meaneth here. His meaning is not, that you may know more and more (if you will you may take it in, it is not the chief ſcope) the effects of the Reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt, but from the effects that were in their hearts by Faith, they might ſee the power that wrought it. This is the Apoſtle's ſcope here. As there is a double knowledge of a Phyſician, who hath already oftentimes cured you of a diſeaſe. You know what skill is in him, that you may thank him; but then you ſend for him anew, and you deſire to know the power of his Medicines, and to know his skill rather by giving you new Phyſick, and reſtoring you to health anew. That is the Knowledge the Apoſtle meaneth in the Philippians; the other is the Knowledge he meaneth here. And therefore, if you obſerve it, the words [What is the exceeding greatneſs of his power,] are referred to what went before, That you may have your eyes enlightned to ſee, or to know, what is the power, &c. Not only to have hearty experience of the effects of that power in them, but Eyes to know the power that hath wrought in you already the Faith you have, and will further work in you. It is a knowledge of Faith, to believe it is ſo great a power, the ſame that wrought in Chriſt that works in you.

And ſo much now for that firſt particular, which is the firſt thing to clear this concerning the knowledge of the Power that works in us.

The Second thing I propound to clear is this; How uſeful this knowledge is to Chriſtians, to know the Power that works in them to be the ſame that wrought in Jeſus Chriſt, when he was raiſed from the dead.

For that, I muſt refer you to what I delivered concerning the Apoſtle's ſcope and reference of theſe words, as it here cometh in. I ſhall repeat it to you with enlargement.

It is uſeful firſt to the end you may be thankful: ſo at the 15*th* Verſe Paul giveth thanks becauſe God had converted them, that they might give thanks too, and ſee the more cauſe to do it, he prayeth here, they may know the power that wrought in them, the ſame power that wrought in Chriſt. You uſe to value a kindneſs, by the love that is ſhewn in it; and you are to value a work of God upon you, by the Power that is put forth in it, and accordingly to be thankful. And therefore you ſhall find that the Scripture doth ſpeak of the Power of God in converting a man at firſt. The Apoſtle here in this ſecond Chapter, when he applieth all this to the Epheſians, he goeth over the greatneſs of the work, that they might ſee the Power; You were dead in ſins and treſpaſſes, and you hath he quickned; and Faith is the gift of God, it is not in your ſelves, You are his workmanſhip, created to good works. It is all to this end, that they might ſee the greatneſs of this power. And therefore 1 Cor. 1. from the 18*th* to the 26*th* Verſe, the Apoſtle ſaith, That God hath choſen out the moſt fooliſh means in the World, and the moſt weakeſt means; to what end? To ſhew his wiſdom and power in ſaving men. The preaching of Chriſt, ſaith he, is of all means the moſt fooliſh, for it preacheth and teacheth you to believe in a crucified God; it is ſo for the matter of it, moſt fooliſh: And of all means elſe it is the moſt weak, for it is ſaving men by the breath of a weak man. And why hath God choſen out theſe two? To ſhew (ſaith he) that the fooliſhneſs of God is wiſer than men, and the weakneſs of God ſtronger than men. It was to magnifie his Power ſo much the more in the work of Converſion. The Jews (ſaith he) require a ſign, that is his expreſſion there, Verſe 22. A Sign, what is that? It is ſome extraordinary Miracle to make them believe. What doth he oppoſe to a Sign? It hath pleaſed God (ſaith he) through the fooliſhneſs of preaching to ſave them that believe.

Sermon XXVIII.

Now then his meaning in a word is this, Let there be never ſo many ſigns and miracles wrought before you, they will never work Faith; they may work an Hiſtorical faith indeed. Look how far Education prepareth you to believe, that you are brought up in the knowledge of the true God and the true Chriſt by Education, ſo far Miracles did bring the Heathens and the Jews. They did ſerve inſtead of Education to work in men an Hiſtorical faith; but yet ſaith he, when it cometh to the point, it is not a Sign that will do it, but it muſt be the Power of God to work Faith.

Then again, another end which this knowledge of God ſerveth for, as to magnifie the Power of God, ſo it ſerveth to ſtrengthen your Faith for the future; that from the experience of that power you have found already in your hearts, you might gather and collect what a mighty power was engaged, and would continue ſtill to work in you. And therefore you ſhall find in Scripture, that the Apoſtle doth often come in with this, To him that is able to keep you; ſo you have it in *Phil.*4. My Brethren, you are not to look what your own weakneſſes are, but what the power of God is in bringing you to ſalvation; As in the point of Mercy, you are not to look what your ſins are, but what the Grace of God in Chriſt is, you are to eye that. So now the Apoſtle, when he would draw up theſe Believers hearts, and wind them up to the height; Conſider (ſaith he) as Abraham did, not his own weakneſs of body, but the power of God. So do you (ſaith he) conſider not your own ſins, not your own diſtreſſes, theſe will all argue to you, that you will fall ſhort at laſt; but conſider the Power that works in you, to ſtrenghthen your hearts for the future.

I mentioned other things in the Coherence, all which come under this Head, how uſeful this knowledge is to a Believer. I will only add one thing more, and that is this: You ſhould to that end endeavour and pray, to know what is the power that works in you, that you might have dependance continually on that Power. That is the ſcope of the Apoſtle, why he would have them know it; it is uſeful to this end, that they might ſee what continual dependance they had upon the Power of God; not only to ſee, that without him you could do nothing, but that it is he that works all you do. Your Will beareth not one part and his Power another, but it is he that works in you both the will and the deed, as it is Phil. 2. 13. God doth not only work with the Will, but he works rather by the Will. And therefore you ſhould labour to know the power that works in you to this end, that you might ſee your dependance upon God for every good thing he works in you.

There is a notable place to this purpoſe, which I confeſs I ſhould have more enlarged upon. Here you ſee the ſame power works that wrought in Chriſt, when he was raiſed from the dead. Now you ſhall find in *Heb.*13.21. that it is the ſame Power goeth to work every good thing in you, not only the principle of Grace, but every act of Grace. Therefore the Apoſtle prayeth, they might know the power that wrought in them to this end, that they might have a dependance upon that power for the working of all good in them, not only at the firſt, but to the end of their days. Read the words there in the Hebrews, The God of Peace, that brought again from the dead our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the great Shepheard of the ſheep. Why is this preface uſed of Chriſt's Reſurrection? Mark what ſolloweth, Make you perfect in every good work to do his will, working in you that which is well pleaſing in his ſight. Why doth he mention the title of Chriſt's Reſurrection, when he ſpeaks of working in them not only Grace at firſt, but every good thing that is pleaſing in his ſight? Becauſe the ſame power that goeth to convert your Souls at firſt, goeth to increaſe every degree of Grace in you, and to work every good work; As ſuppoſe I am to pray, I am to have that power put forth in my Soul, (if I make a prayer pleaſing in his ſight) that was put forth in raiſing Chriſt from death to life. Therefore (ſaith the Apoſtle) the God of Peace, that brought again from the dead the great Shepheard of the ſheep, make you perfect in every good work. So now, to the end you might ſee your dependance upon God for every thing you do; not only for the beginning of your Faith to praiſe him, but for the finiſhing of your Faith, to depend upon him, he prayeth that they might ſee and know what this power was.

In

Sermon XXVIII.

In 2 Theſ. 1. 11. The Apoſtle prayeth that God would fulfil all the good pleaſure of his goodneſs, and the work of Faith with Power. So that the fulfilling of the work of Faith it is with power as well as the beginning of it. They had found the power of God in working Faith in them at firſt, read 1 Theſ. 1. 5. Our Goſpel came unto you not in word only but alſo in Power; Here he ſpeaks of their firſt converſion; Now in the 2 Theſ. 1. 11. He prayeth that God would perfect this Faith with the ſame power he had begun it. Therefore he prayeth here that they might know what this power is that wrought grace at firſt, to the end they might depend upon the ſame power to perfect it, for no leſs would do it.

I might be large upon this point, for indeed I had intended to be ſo. I could ſhew you that every act of grace muſt have an Almighty power go with it to draw it forth. I will only give you in another Scripture, that as here you ſee the work of Faith is with power, ſo you ſhall ſee the work of patience and long ſuffering, to bear afflictions, to do it ſo as to pleaſe God, is a work of an Almighty power too. The place is Coloſ. 1. 11. It is one of Paul's prayers too. He prayeth that they might be ſtrengthned with all might according to his glorious power, to all patience and long ſuffering with joyfulneſs. To make a man patient and long ſuffering, patient under afflictions, long ſuffering to bear with the faults of others, and to expect the promiſe though much time be ſpent afore we obtain it, he ſaith it is a work of power and a work of glorious power, wherein God ſheweth the glory of his power, the exceeding greatneſs of his power, for then it cometh to glory when an exceeding greatneſs of power is manifeſted, an overcoming power; for that is properly glory when victory attendeth power when power overcometh. I am able to do all things (ſaith Paul,) it is a proud word, a very proud word, but what followeth? Through Chriſt that ſtrengtheneth me, So in 2 Tim. 2. 1. Be ſtrong, he ſpeaks to Timothy, and he ſpeaks to him as if he ſpake to a Giant that had all ſtrength in himſelf, be ſtrong, be valiant; but what followeth? Be ſtrong in the grace that is in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

Now, Then that you might know your dependance you have upon the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, he prayeth that ye may know the power that works in Chriſt in raiſing him from the dead works in you.

My Brethren, you muſt know this, that you are not only dead in ſins and treſpaſſes in reſpect of Juſtification, but you are ſo in reſpect of Sanctification alſo. If a man have never ſo much grace and holineſs, he is to look upon himſelf as ungodly in reſpect of being Juſtified; ſo ſaith the Apoſtle, Rom. 4, 5. To him that worketh not but believeth on him that Juſtifieth the ungodly; He ſpeaks of Abraham's Faith, Abraham looked upon himſelf as ungodly, when he went out of himſelf to be juſtified; and this after he had grace, for in himſelf he was ſo. You are to do the like in reſpect of your dependance upon God for Sanctification, you are to look upon your ſelves as dead Creatures, dead in ſins and treſpaſſes you were once, and of your ſelves you are ſo ſtill; and all grace that is wrought in you, though it be a principle of life, it is dead when it cometh to work, if the Almighty power of God aſſiſt it not.

Not but that a regenerate man hath a capacity in him which a wicked man hath not, for he is a Charcoal that hath been in the Fire already, therefore he is capable to take fire ſooner, he hath habitual grace more fitted to be ſtirred up, but yet the Coal is a dead Coal of it ſelf; ſo that a new life to every action muſt be put into you, if you have any life and ſtirring in you. And ſo much now concerning the ſecond head, the uſe that this knowledge is unto men, to know the power that works in them.

Thirdly, I ſhall give you two Obſervations about that knowledge which will further clear it.

The Firſt Obſervation is this, That Believers that have true grace wrought in them, may yet be much ignorant of the power that works it. You ſee the Apoſtle here prayeth for them that were Believers already, that they might have enlightned

enlightned eyes to know what was the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward who believe. If it be true what Jobe saith of the works of Nature, Job 26. 14. is much more true of the work of grace. He speaks in the former part of the Chapter, of the works of Nature, and how doth he conclude it? Lo, these (saith he,) are parts of his wayes, but how little a portion, (or how little a drop as some read it,) is heard of him? But the Thunder of his power who can understand? In working all these works of Nature saith he, God makes as still a noise as when a drop falleth which we can scarce hear; but the thunder of his power, that is the force of his power, (it is not the noise of his power, Thunder is put for force, so it is in that book of Job often, as Chapter 39. 19. and elsewhere,) who can understand? So I may say to you, when you hear great things spoken of conversion, yet still how little a drop of his power is that; how little a noise doth it make in mens spirits? There is a Thunder of power goes to work it, a mighty force goeth to work it, but yet it makes but the noise of a drop, it is but a little drop which we hear; there is a still voice in which God is, and in which his mighty power is, and he passeth by and we know it not.

My Brethren, when we tell you there is such a mighty power in conversion, your thoughts run to nothing but thundering works, you think presently this power must ly in thundring men down to Hell with terrors. No, it lies in changing mens hearts by an omnipotent power, but that power it is but a still work, it is but a drop and it falleth as a drop; for so conversion is compared, My Doctrine shall distill as the Dew, it soaks into mens hearts, and there is a thunder of power goeth with it though it is not heard.

The conversion of a Sinner, the power of it and his not feeling it, I may compare to that change which shall be at the latter day. We shall not all die (saith he,) but we shall all be changed. Suppose you lived at the latter day, and were Saints and Believers when Christ came to Judgment; you should see some mens bodies raised out of the Grave, but your own Bodies and Spirits will be changed, changed in an instant; you will not find a mighty power upon you sensibly, but you will find a mighty work, whereby you shall find your selves not to be the men you were; your Bodies will shine as the Sun in an instant. So is it here my Brethren, there is a change wrought in a mans heart in a still way, this is a mighty thing, if a man will judge it by what he feeleth, if he will judge it by any violent power put forth in it; there is exceeding little, a man feeleth nothing, he feeleth stirrings and workings in his Spirit indeed, as there will be when a man is thus changed, there will be an elevation of the Spirit and of the Body at the latter day, but for any violent work there will be none; so often times is it here, yet it is the same power that changeth men, that doth raise them out of the grave, from the dust, and as much is the one as the other.

And as I may very well compare it thus, Men that have dispositions never so near Grace, yet as I said before, and I will give you this comparison now: to put Grace into their hearts and to change them truly, is like the change that will be wrought at the latter day in mens Bodies and Minds that are Believers, they have life already, but to change them there must go an Almighty power, and the same power that goes to raise others out of their Graves.

Now, My Brethren, what is the scope of all this? It is not only to comfort poor Believers, though they have not found a work of so much noise in their hearts, of so much violence and disturbance, that is not it, wherein God cometh forth in the exceeding greatness of his power, he came in the still small voice, when he was not in the Earthquake and in the rending of the Rocks; thou mayest have a mighty work upon thee, and yet not know the exceeding greatness of power that goes to work it. This I say is not the scope so much, but it is that you should not censure such whose judgments are, that there is not so great a power put forth in conversion, they may have grace for all that; for the Apostle prayeth here that they may know, they that had Grace, that they may know what is the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward that believe. You are not to censure them therefore, not simply for that. That is the first Observation that belongeth to the Third head.

The

Sermon. XXVIII.

The Second is this, That in the matter of Salvation men do as much ſtick in an ignorance and unbelief of the power of God towards them as his Will and Mercy. Here you ſee the Apoſtle prayeth as heartily they might know the power that works in them, both that they may be thankful, and likewiſe that they may depend upon it for the future; as you would do to know the riches of the mercy that is in God, and his good-will towards you.

There are two things mainly which are the Object of mens Faith, both put together draw men in to believe. The one is to believe that the power of God is able to do it; and the other to believe his good-will. Now, Men do ſtick as much at the belief of the power of God in working, that he is able to work, as at his good-will, that he will work. Therefore the Apoſtle prayeth here you ſee that they may have eyes enlightned to know the exceeding greatneſs of his power. Abraham's Faith is deſcribed to us, Rom. 4. 21. by his truſting in the power of God. He was ſtrong in Faith (ſaith he,) being fully perſwaded that what he had promiſed he was able alſo to perform. This was the great Faith of our Father Abraham, it was placed upon the power of God, as well as upon his good-will. Now, take a poor ſinner that hath lived long in doubt whether God would own him or no; he ſticks only at this, I know God is able to ſave me ſaith he; but I do not know whether he will or no. But I tell you my Brethren, you ſtick as much at the power of God to ſave you, as you do at the mercy of God, and it is of an equal difficulty to believe the one as the other; and therefore when ſuch a ſoul findeth himſelf pardoned, what doth he uſe to ſay? Is it poſſible that ſuch a one as I ſhould have mercy? Let the power of my Lord be great (ſaith Moſes, Numb. 14. 17.) to forgive the iniquity and tranſgreſſion of this People.

I might illuſtrate this point unto you, but I ſhall be prevented in what followeth. Only this, therefore you have it in Scripture ſo often the Apoſtle mentioning it. As 2 Tim. 1. 12. I know whom I have believed, and I am perſwaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him. His Faith you ſee is founded upon the power of God. To him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think; Epheſ. 3. 20. To him that is able to keep you from falling, and to preſent you faultleſs before the preſence of his glory. Jude, verſ. 24. And ſpeaking of the converſion of the Jews, Rom. 11. 23. God is able (ſaith he,) to graff them in again; he doth not only ſay God is willing to do it, but he is able; that is his expreſſion there. This alludeth to what was ſaid to Ezekiel, when the dry bones were preſented to him, Ezek. 37. 3. (thoſe drie bones are the Jews,) Son of Man can theſe bones live? Yet, ſaith Paul, he is able to ingraff them, able to raiſe them.

I ſpeak this to this purpoſe, To ſhew that the Scripture holdeth forth as much the power of God for the Object of our Faith as the mercy and good-will of God. Doeſt thou believe that I am able to help thee? It was the queſtion that Chriſt asked the poor man that brought his poſſeſſed Child to be cured, Mark. 9. 23. And the thing he propounded to Chriſt was his ability to help him, his power, if thou canſt do any thing (ſaith he,) have compaſſion on us. Therefore the Apoſtle prayeth here that they may know what is the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward that believe. So much now concerning that 4*th.* general head, which is the knowledge of this power which the Apoſtle here prayeth for.

I come now in the next place, to the Parallel between theſe two. He compareth you ſee here the Reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt, and his exaltation to glory, the power of it, to that that works converſion in us and all other good works.

The Parallel then between what power wrought in Chriſt and works in us, or rather, that Chriſt is the pattern of what God wrought in him, he will work in us, which he would have Chriſtians have in their eye, that is the next thing to be ſpoken to; That you may know (ſaith he,) what is the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward, who believe according to the working of the might of his power that he wrought in Chriſt. That Jeſus Chriſt is the pattern, the common inſtance or evidence, that look what he had wrought in him, the ſame power ſhould work in us, that is the Apoſtle's meaning. Now, this parallel it is but hinted hinted to us only in a touch here in the 19*th.* verſe, According (ſaith he,) to the working, &c.

For the opening of this I ſhall give you likewiſe theſe few conſiderations, whereof the Firſt ſhall be more general, and yet raiſed out of the Text.

The general conſideration is this, which hath two things in it. That Chriſt is ſet forth to us, as a pattern, as a ſtandard ſet up by God, both of what he will be to us, and what he will work in us. I ſay, he ſet up Jeſus Chriſt as a common ſtandard, a common pattern to himſelf, that look what he putteth forth toward Chriſt out of himſelf, the ſame he will put forth to us; look what works he wrought in Jeſus Chriſt, the ſame he will work in us. He is a pattern both of the affections of God, the ſame affections, the ſame diſpoſition he beareth to Chriſt he beareth to us; and likewiſe the ſame works he wrought upon Chriſt he will work upon us.

This is an infinite comfort to Believers, that God hath not only ſet up Jeſus Chriſt as a pattern that we ſhould love him as Chriſt hath loved us, that we ſhould follow Chriſt's example and imitate him in all things, our works ſhould be like Chriſt's: I ſay, this is not all, but for our comfort, (the other is for matter of Duty, but for our comfort,) God hath ſet up Jeſus Chriſt as a pattern to himſelf, that look what he hath been to Chriſt that he will be to us, look what he wrought in Chriſt, he will work in us.

He is a pattern, Firſt of the Attributes that God manifeſted in Chriſt, the ſame ſhall be manifeſted in us; that the Text is clear for. Hath he ſhewn exceeding greatneſs of power in Chriſt? I pray that you may know (ſaith he,) what is the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward; the ſame he wrought in Chriſt. Here is the ſame Attribute put forth, the ſame power that wrought in Chriſt works in us.

Then Secondly, He is ſet up by God as a pattern of the ſame works, that is implied in theſe words; Which he wrought in Chriſt when he raiſed him from the dead.

Firſt of all Jeſus Chriſt is the Pattern ſet up by God to himſelf, that of the ſame Attributes he ſheweth forth and manifeſteth in Chriſt, the ſame he will ſhew forth in us. Here is an inſtance of power, I will give you but one inſtance more of love and ſo I will paſs from that. Here he ſaith the exceeding greatneſs of that power that wrought in Chriſt, works in us. Look Joh. 17. 23. and there you ſhall find the ſame love wherewith he loveth Chriſt he loveth us. I in them (ſaith he,) and thou in me, that the World may know that thou haſt ſent me, and haſt loved them as thou haſt loved me. So that Chriſt is ſet up by God as a pattern to himſelf, to ſhew forth the ſame Attributes in us that he did in him; here is you ſee the ſame power put forth to Chriſt and to us in the words of the Text; here is the ſame love put forth towards us as was towards him, that thou haſt loved them, (ſaith he,) as thou haſt loved me. He ſheweth how they are one, as he is one with the Father they are one with him, in their proportion, now always love followeth union, and therefore accordingly as he hath loved him he loveth them. We uſe to love the Members and the Head with the ſame love, becauſe we love the Members in relation to the Head. A Father in Law loveth the Husband and the Wife the Daughter in Law with the ſame love, becauſe he loveth her in relation to his Son her Husband. So doth God love his Children, Members of Chriſt with the ſame love he loveth Chriſt the Head; and he loveth the Church the Spouſe of Chriſt, his Daughter as he calleth her, Pſal. 45. with the ſame love as he loveth Chriſt her Husband that is his Son. As in Epheſ. 5. 25 &c. Speaking of the peculiar love men ſhould have to their Wives. Husbands, love your Wives, even as Chriſt alſo loved the Church, and gave himſelf for it, that he might ſanctifie and cleanſe it with the waſhing of water by the word, that he might preſent it to himſelf a glorius Church, not having ſpot or wrinckle, or any ſuch thing, but that it ſhould be holy and without blemiſh; So ought men to love their Wives, as their own bodies; he that loveth his Wife, loveth himſelf. So doth God love us, as he loveth Chriſt, That thou haſt loved them as thou lovedſt me.

So

So that, my Brethren, you ſee in general, that God hath ſet up our Lord Jeſus Chriſt as a Pattern to himſelf of the ſame Affections and Attributes, as he manifeſted in him to manifeſt in us.

He is a pattern likewiſe of the ſame works; the ſame Power that wrought in Chriſt, works alſo in us. Here you ſee he raiſed up Chriſt from death to life, he ſet him at his own right hand in Heavenly places. Read Chap. 2. 5. ſaith he, Ye that were dead in ſins and treſpaſſes, hath he quickned together with Chriſt, and hath raiſed us up together, and made us ſit together in heavenly places in Chriſt Jeſus. The ſame power that wrought in Chriſt, the very ſame work he wrought in Chriſt he works in us alſo. This is the Apoſtle's ſcope.

But now here lies the great thing, more particularly, It is not ſo much to compare the work wrought in Chriſt and in us together, to ſhew that God works the ſame works in us which he wrought in Chriſt; but that which the Text holdeth forth is, That the ſame proportion of power that was put forth in raiſing up Chriſt from death to life, is put forth in converting us and bringing us to Heaven. Therein lieth the parallel eſpecially. So that now, this is the thing I am to ſpeak to: It is not to ſhew the likeneſs of Chriſt's Reſurrection and Exaltation, to the work of Converſion, that is not the ſcope in hand; but to ſhew that the ſame power that God putteth forth in the one, he putteth forth in the other. That is it which makes the parallel, as it is intended here.

To ſhew you this I muſt do Two things.

Firſt, I muſt ſhew you the greatneſs of Power that was required to raiſe up Jeſus Chriſt from death to glory.

Secondly, That there is a like proportion of Power put forth in working upon our hearts, to the Power that was put forth in Chriſt's Reſurrection. I have ſpoken much of the power of God in Converſion, in general, The exceeding greatneſs of his power. That which now remaineth is to ſhew, that it holdeth proportion with that power which raiſed up Chriſt from death to glory; According to the working of his mighty power, which he wrought in Chriſt, ſaith he.

For the Firſt of theſe two, That there was an exceeding greatneſs of power put forth by God in raiſing up Chriſt from death to glory; there is a great difficulty in opening this point unto you clearly, to ſhew you wherein this power lay. I will give you a parallel place of Scripture, wherein you ſhall ſee, that of all works that God did do for Chriſt, the raiſing of him up from death to glory, was a work of the moſt power (ſet aſide that of the Incarnation) did manifeſt and declare the greateſt power of all other. The Scripture is Rom. 1. 3,4. Jeſus Chriſt our Lord, who was made of the ſeed of David according to the fleſh, and declared to be the Son of God with power, according to the Spirit of holineſs, by the Reſurrection from the dead. I quote this place for this, (as you ſhall ſee in the opening of it) that of all works elſe, Jeſus Chriſt was declared with the greateſt power, to be the Son of God, by the Reſurrection from the dead.

I will open theſe words unto you a little, for the ſcope of the place here is the ſame with what is in my Text.

He ſpeaks of two Natures that are in Chriſt, his Humane Nature and his Divine Nature; that is the firſt thing tendeth to open theſe words. His Humane Nature, that is expreſſed in theſe words, He was made of the ſeed of David, according to the fleſh; that is, take him according to his Humane Nature, he was the Son of David, and (ſaith he) declared to be the Son of God by the Spirit of Holineſs; by Spirit of Holineſs he meaneth his Divine Nature, that is, as concerning his Divine Nature he was declared to be the Son of God. Every parcel (if I may ſo ſpeak) in the Trinity is called Spirit; you ſee his Divine Nature is called here the Spirit of Holineſs, for God is a Spirit, and ſo is the Second Perſon as well as the Third, he is a Spirit too; he is God and therefore called the Spirit of Holineſs. God is a Spirit, ſaith he, John 3. 24.

Sermon XXVIII.

Now obſerve the difference, He was made of the ſeed of David according to the fleſh. Take his Humane Nature, he was made; but take his Divine Nature, the Spirit of Holineſs in him, he was only declared to be the Son of God; he was not made the Son of God, he was begotten, not made. Now he was declared with power to be ſo.

I will not ſtand to open thoſe words, Declared, &c. and the various acceptation of them. Only obſerve, That he was declared with power to be the Son of God, with an Omnipotent power, as in Luke 4.36. it is ſaid, With power he commanded the unclean Spirits, and they came out; ſuch a power as is only proper to God. But the main thing I quote the place for is this, what it was that declared Chriſt with ſo much power to be the Son of God? It followeth, By the Reſurrection from the dead, ſaith he. Why doth he inſtance in this; he had wrought Miracles you know, he had raiſed Lazarus, and he had raiſed another from the dead; doth not that argue him to be the Son of God with as much power as his own Reſurrection? No, If you will have ſaith he an inſtance of an Almighty power, and that he was the Son of God; take his Reſurrection from the dead, he was declared mightily to be the Son of God by his Reſurrection. Therefore the Apoſtles (if you obſerve it) when they would prove him to be the Son of God, the Meſſiah, ſtill you ſhall find they open his Reſurrection. Look *Act.*2. from the 22. verſe, and ſo on, when they would convince the Jews that he was the Meſſiah, they do it by his Reſurrection: And look *Act.*4. 2. you have the like, where it is ſaid, They taught the People, and preached through Jeſus the Reſurrection from the dead. You ſhall find the like *Act.*13. 33. where Paul proveth him to be the Meſſiah by the Reſurrection from the dead. And therefore in 1 *Tim.*3.16. Chriſt is ſaid to be juſtified in the Spirit, that is, having been put to death in the fleſh, and quickned by the Spirit, his Godhead; that is, he was juſtified, he was declared that Righteous one that had died for ſin, and to be the Son of God to all the World.

Now then, how doth the Reſurrection of Chriſt argue him to be the Son of God with power, that the exceeding greatneſs of his power ſhould be put forth in his being raiſing from the dead? That is the thing I muſt ſpeak to.

Interpreters upon that place *Rom.*1.4. put it upon this; ſay they, He raiſed up himſelf by his own power; that is the gloſs they put upon it, therefore he was declared to be the Son of God, becauſe he raiſed up himſelf. And indeed it is a ſtrong Argument, that he was the Son of God with power, if he raiſed up himſelf.

But you will ſay, How doth that prove it?

It proveth it thus, Suppoſe there had been no more in his own Reſurrection than in any mans elſe; yet becauſe he raiſed up himſelf, it was declared with power that he was the Son of God.

But how might that appear to the Jews that he was the Son of God? Why might not the Jews think, that Chriſt had been raiſed up by the power of God, as Lazarus had been raiſed up, or thoſe in the Old Teſtament had been raiſed up? How doth it prove, that he is the Son of God in his Reſurrection, more than in any thing elſe? And how doth it appear, that he raiſed up himſelf as the Son of God?

I will ſhew you how it appeareth. He had ſaid before, he had given it out it was that he died for, he had told them that he was the Son of God; and the Witneſſes brought in this witneſs, that they heard him ſay, Deſtroy this Temple, and in three daies I will build it again. Now if he had lied, if he had not been the Son of God, God would never have raiſed him up; therefore it was a manifeſt Argument that he was the Son of God, by his being raiſed up again; and being the Son of God, raiſed up himſelf by that power that is in God himſelf. Therefore in John 1.19. ſaith he, Deſtroy this Temple, and in three days I will raiſe it up; and Joh. 10. 18. I have power to lay down my life, and I have power to take it again. Had he lied, had he not been the Son of God, certainly certainly God would never have raiſed him up; therefore ſeeing he was raiſed up by God, certainly he was the Son of God.

Sermon XXVIII.

But yet ſtill the Objection remaineth; for you will ſay, though he was declared to be the Son of God by being raiſed up again, he having given it out, (which is all that Interpreters put upon that place;) but yet what ſpecial Power was there put forth in his Reſurrection, more than in any man's elſe, that he ſhould be ſaid to be declared to be the Son of God with power by his Reſurrection, and that God ſhould ſhew forth the exceeding greatneſs of his power in raiſing of him up? That is the thing I am to ſpeak to.

To that I will but ſuggeſt Two things unto you, wherein the Power lay of raiſing up Chriſt from death to life; and a Special Power, more than in raiſing up all men elſe beſides, that were before him, or ſhall come after him.

My Brethren, Our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, he undertook never to riſe or enter into his Glory, till ſuch time as he had ſatisfied for the ſins of all his Elect; they lay all upon him, therefore to raiſe him up from death to glory, muſt needs be a work of a greater power than ever yet was to raiſe up any man, whatſoever he were; for he had all the ſins of all the Elect, that he was to ſatisfie for, meeting in him.

My Brethren, let me ſpeak unto you, We are dead in ſins and treſpaſſes; but let me tell you this, he was to die for Sins and Treſpaſſes, that is the phraſe the Apoſtle uſeth *Rom.*6.10. We read it, He died unto ſin, or, He died for ſin, the word will bear it. He was by his death to ſatisfie for ſin, or he muſt never riſe again.

Now then, take Jeſus Chriſt not only as an ordinary man, but take him as he is made Sin, as he is made a Curſe, there muſt a mighty Power go to bring him to glory; for he muſt ſuffer for that firſt, he muſt have a power to endure that firſt before he be capable of being raiſed up again; which all Angels and Men could never have born; therefore there is ſo great a Power declared in his riſing again.

In Rom. 4.24,25. We believe on him that raiſed up Jeſus our Lord from the dead, who was delivered for our Offences, and was raiſed again for our Juſtification. Mark that; The Reſurrection of Chriſt was not an ordinary Reſurrection, for it was not an ordinary Death; for (ſaith he) when he died he was delivered for our Offences, and he muſt ſatisfie for them by his death, and when he was raiſed again, he was not raiſed as a particular perſon, it is not like the raiſing up of an ordinary man; but, ſaith he, he was raiſed for our Juſtification, for the Juſtification of all that he died for: and therefore he muſt ſatisfie for Sin, and pay the uttermoſt farthing before he riſe again. Hence now cometh there to be ſo great a difficulty in raiſing up our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, to that Glory he was raiſed up unto.

I will omit ſome Confirmations of this Truth, and give you but one Scripture, which will preſent it unto you. It is *Act.*2.24. Whom God hath raiſed up, having looſed the pains of death, becauſe it was not poſſible he ſhould be holden of it. It is Peter's Speech concerning Chriſt and his Reſurrection. And verſe 27. Becauſe thou wilt not leave my Soul in Hell, neither wilt thou ſuffer thy Holy One to ſee corruption.

To open theſe words, and to prove the thing out of them which I intend, viz. That in raiſing up Jeſus Chriſt from the dead there was an infinite Power put forth, more than in raiſing up any one that ever yet was raiſed up. The Apoſtle's ſcope here is to prove, that Jeſus Chriſt is the Son of God, and he proveth it by his Reſurrection, and by the difficulty that was in it, which is implied in theſe words, Becauſe it was not poſſible he ſhould be holden of death, or of the ſorrows of death. If it had been poſſible they would have held him, but it was not poſſible; there was ſo mighty a power came for to have his Mittimus, that though they put forth all the power they could, yet it was not poſſible they ſhould hold him.

Now to open the words a little unto you, I will give you what I think to be the ſenſe of the place. The difficulty of raiſing up of Chriſt lieth in theſe words, that firſt, the pains of Death were to be looſed. They are ὠδῖνας, as Beza and Others, and I find that Zanchy ran the ſame way; the meaning of them is this, God raiſed him up (ſay they) being looſed; it is not the pains of Death being looſed, but him being looſed; Solutus doloribus mortis, for Solutis doloribus mortis; he aſcribeth that to the pains of death which properly belongeth to Chriſt; he was freed from the pains of death, and then God raiſed him up. As in the Goſpel it is ſaid, His Leproſie was cleanſed, that is not a proper ſpeech, but he was cleanſed of his Leproſie: ſo here, having looſed the pains of death, that is, he was looſed from the pains of death, he had ſcattered, he had diſſipated all the pains of death, and then he was looſed, and he was raiſed.

Now what is meant by the pains of Death here? Let us examine that a little, for if you mark it, the difficulty of his Reſurrection lies in the pains of Death. After Chriſt was in the Grave (conſider what I ſay) there were no pains of death that held him, he had no pains in the Grave after he was dead. What Pains are they then that are here called the Pains of Death, which he was freed from, and then God raiſed him up, upon which he putteth the difficulty of his Reſurrection?

The word in the Greek, ὠδῖνας, it is the Birth-throws of Death. The 53 of Iſaiah 11. interpreth it well, He ſhall ſee (ſaith he) of the travel of his Soul. They were the Birth-throws which his Soul had, which he muſt be looſed from and overcome before he is capable to be raiſed up by God. It is not an ordinary death he is to undergo, or ordinary Sorrows of death that hinder his Reſurrection, but there are the Birth-throws of death to be overcome. What are thoſe Birth-throws of Death? The Travel of his Soul. All our ſins met in him, and the chaſtiſement of our Peace was upon him, as you have it in the fifth and ſixth Verſes of the ſame 53 of Iſaiah. All thoſe pangs that were in his Soul, they tended to death, they would have carried his Soul to Hell, kept him for ever riſing again, he had never come to Glory; therefore they are called the Pains of Death, held him: yea, they would have held his Soul, had he not been God; had not God upheld him, they would have carried his Soul inſtantly away, and held him from ever being capable of riſing up again. Therefore before he be capable of being raiſed, he muſt be freed from theſe Pains of Death; therein lieth the difficulty of his Reſurrection.

They are called the Sorrows of Death too, not only of the firſt death, but of the ſecond. I do not ſay, he died the Second death, the Scripture doth not ſay ſo: But that the Sorrows of the Second death took hold upon him, and upon his Soul, to me it is a certain truth. My Soul, ſaith he, (he points to what was it) is heavy unto death; he doth not ſay, My Soul dieth, but it is heavy unto be death; it was at the point of death, when our ſins and the wrath of God came in upon him.

In *Iſai.*53. you have his Deaths mentioned (look into your Margents,) not Death only, but Deaths; and in *Heb.*2.4. it is ſaid, He taſted of death; what Death? It appeareth by the following Verſes, that Death which the Devil hath power of; he taſted of it, but he was not overcome by it, that is the Second death. It is that Death which men are afraid of all their life long, which the Jews were afraid of; Read the 9, 13, and 15*th* Verſes of that ſecond to the Hebrews, and that was the Second death.

Now

Now, my Brethren, in this Death, and the Pains of it, lieth the danger that Chriſt ſhould never be raiſed up again, ſhould never come to Heaven; for thoſe Pains of Death would have fetched his Soul away, and made all Angels and Men to have died the Second death, never to have been raiſed, never to ſatisfie the wrath of God; they were Sorrows of Death, Deadly Sorrows, as ſome interpret it, as He himſelf is called a Man of Sorrows, which is attributed to none but to him, becauſe none endured the Sorrows he did, deadly Sorrows; as it is called the Abomination of deſolation, that is, Abominable deſolation: ſo the Sorrows of Death, that is, Deadly ſorrows, Helliſh ſorrows, Infernal ſorrows, (if you will ſo expreſs it) for there was the cauſe of it, the Wrath of God; there was the ſubſtance of it. Sermon XXVIII.

Now, in a word, to gather up this. Saith he, God hath raiſed him up, he being free, or having freed himſelf by the power of the Godhead from theſe Pains of Death, which (if it had been poſſible) he ſhould have been held by them, but hold him they could not: Therefore the words in the 27*th* Verſe interprets it without all ſtraining, there is a great deal of do what ſhould be meant by leaving his Soul in Hell, and his Holy One not to ſee corruption, that is, his Body: Say I, the 24*th* Verſe interpreteth it, Him hath God raiſed up, being freed from the Sorrows of death, of the Second death, the Birth-throws of it; God delivered his Soul of it, left not his Soul in Hell, then he raiſed up his Body that it ſhould not ſee Corruption. Herein now lieth the difficulty of raiſing up our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, more than all the Men in the World; for if all the Angels in Heaven, and all the Men in the World, had encountred with thoſe Sorrows of Death he encountred with, they had never been raiſed up, for they could never have overcome them; therefore ſaith the Text here, the Exceeding greatneſs of his power was ſhewn in raiſing up Chriſt from death to glory.

And this is one ſenſe, in reſpect of which there is an Exceeding greatneſs of power attributed to the Reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt.

But Secondly, If you will know wherein the Exceeding greatneſs of power lieth; if you obſerve the Coherence, it is not only in raiſing him up ſimply from death, there is but a little ſaid of that here, but it is attributed to the Glory he was raiſed up to. Therein lay the Power; it lies not ſimply in the Terminus à quo, the term, the ſtate from which he was raiſed; but if you take in withal this, That God hath ſet him at his own right hand in the heavenly places, far above all principalities and powers. Take but the compaſs of the diſtance between the ſtate he was raiſed from, and the ſtate he is raiſed unto, and then you will all acknowledge what the Text ſaith here, there is an Exceeding greatneſs of power indeed.

So that if you ask me now, What this Power was that was ſhewn upon Chriſt?

I Anſwer Firſt, Meerly in his raiſing him up, for he was to overcome that which no Creature could overcome, before he was capable of being raiſed; he was to pay the laſt Farthing, whereof the Sorrows of Death were part, and the greateſt ſum.

And then, Secondly, If to raiſe him up meerly had been no more than to raiſe another man, yet to raiſe him up to Glory, there lieth the Exceeding greatneſs of his power. Take the Terminus ad quem, the ſtate wherein he is now; Eph. 4. 9. He that aſcended, he deſcended firſt into the lower parts of the Earth.

Now then, go and make a pair of Compaſſes, make a proportion between theſe two; put one foot of the Compaſs in Heaven, whether he is aſcended, far above all principalities and powers, and put the other foot of the Compaſs in the lower parts of the Earth, in the Grave in which he lay, and to raiſe him up from the one to the other, is the Exceeding greatneſs of power the Apoſtle here ſpeaks of. Meaſure from the loweſt part of the Earth, to far above all principalities and powers, and therein lieth the Power put forth in raiſing Chriſt here ſpoken of.

Now

Sermon XXVIII.

Now I have ſhewn you wherein the Power of raiſing up Chriſt lieth; that is the firſt thing. The ſecond thing I ſhould ſhew you, is this, That to bring a Sinner from the death of ſin to live again, (Chriſt lay under the guilt of Sin imputed to him, we lie under the power and guilt too) to raiſe up a Sinner from this, We who were dead in ſins and treſpaſſes, and place us in Heaven with Chriſt, holdeth a proportion with the Reſurrection, and with the Power put forth in raiſing up Chriſt from death to glory.

This is the Second thing I ſhould ſhew to make up the Parallel.

SER-

Sermon XXIX.

SERMON XXIX.

EPHES. I. 19, 20.

And what is the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward, who believe, according to the working of the might of his power.

The ſame which he wrought in Chriſt, (or, put forth in Chriſt,) when he raiſed him from the dead, and ſet him at his own right hand in the Heavenly places, &c.

THat which is ſaid here of the Reſurrection and Exaltation of our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, is to be underſtood two ways. Either,

Firſt comparatively, as he compareth the work in our hearts, or upon us, with the power that wrought in Chriſt when he raiſed him from the dead. Or,

Secondly, the words in the 20*th.* verſe and ſo on, are to be conſidered ſimply, as ſetting before us the Reſurrection and Exaltation of Jeſus Chriſt.

I muſt firſt handle theſe words in their compariſon. The meaning whereof is this; That the ſame power that wrought in Jeſus Chriſt, in raiſing him from the dead, and ſetting him at God's right hand, works in our Faith, in our believing, Who believe (ſaith he,) according to the working of his mighty power, the ſame which wrought in Chriſt, &c.

You ſhall find that the Apoſtle handles both parts of this compariſon. He ſpeaks of the Reſurrection and Exaltation of Chriſt, what a great work that was, from the 20*th.* verſe to the end of this Chapter. And then he ſpeaks what a great work it is to raiſe up our hearts, and to work upon them, that Us, who were dead in ſins and treſpaſſes, God ſhould quicken and raiſe up together with Chriſt, and make us ſit in heavenly places; this he ſpeaks of in the Second Chapter from the Firſt verſe to the 11*th.*

That which is proper to the opening of this 19*th.* verſe is, to ſpeak only of the power, both which raiſed up Chriſt from death to life, and which works in us that believe. And to that I am to keep at this time.

There are therefore two things to be ſpoken to.

Firſt, That there was an exceeding greatneſs of power ſhewn forth in Chriſt's Reſurrection, and ſetting him at God's right hand.

Secondly, that in a proportion, there is as exceeding greatneſs of power ſhewn to us-ward, when God bringeth us to believe.

I muſt begin with the Firſt, to ſhew you the exceeding greatneſs of power in raiſing up Chriſt. I quoted for that, Rom. 1. 4. where it is ſaid he was declared to be the Son of God with power by the Reſurrection from the dead: And a Parallel place to this, (which I then omitted,) is that in 2 Cor. 13. 4. where it is ſaid that though Chriſt was crucified through weakneſs; he was left to all the weakneſs weakneſs of man's Nature, ſo as to take in ſufferings, though the power of God was ſeen in upholding him under it; Yet (ſaith he,) he liveth by the power of God. Though he was crucified in weakneſs, yet his life, his raiſing up again was by the power of God. So you ſee expreſs Scripture, that in the Reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt there was ſhewn forth a great power; and ſuch a power as he was declared by nothing more to be the Son of God.

Now, You will ask me wherein was the power ſhewn, both in raiſing up of Chriſt from the dead, and in exalting him, for you muſt take both in, it is not only the power that was ſhewn in raiſing him from the dead; but alſo the power that exalted him? Take both in I ſay, and ſo there was an infinite power in it; to raiſe him up, him that was laid ſo low in the Grave, and to exalt him to ſit at God's right hand, to weild all the affairs of Heaven and Earth, and who ſhall be the Judge of the World, that is far above all Principalities and Powers: Take the d ſtance between theſe two terms; the Grave, and what he is in Heaven, and there is an exceeding greatneſs of power indeed, the higheſt inſtance of power that can be imagined.

Firſt, Then to ſhew you the power that was put forth in his Reſurrection, in his raiſing up from death to life. Of all works ſtill the raiſing one up from death to life, hath been counted an evidence of an Omnipotent power. Our Saviour Chriſt had done many Miracles, yet ſaith he, John. 5. 20. My Father will ſhew me greater works than theſe, that you may marvaile; And what are thoſe greater works? Look verſe 21. As the Father raiſeth up the dead, and quickneth them, even ſo the Son quickneth whom he will. To raiſe one from the dead therefore is a greater work than all thoſe Miracles Chriſt wrought, and therefore though he was declared to be the Son of God by all his Miracles, yet that which ſtruck the ſtroke and put it out of queſtion that he muſt needs be the Son of God was that he was raiſed from death to life.

But you will ſay, wherein lieth ſo extraordinary a power in raiſing of Chriſt as was never ſhewn in raiſing of any man, for that is the thing the Text holdeth forth, for otherwiſe the raiſing up of Lazarus, the raiſing up the Prophets, ſhew an Omnipotent power? but here is a peculiar exceeding greatneſs of power attributed to the raiſing of Chriſt from death; wherein (you will ask,) was that ſhewn?

It was ſhewn in this, That Jeſus Chriſt roſe not as a ſingle perſon, but he roſe as a common perſon for all his Elect; and therefore in 1 Cor. 15. 20, 21, 22. He is called the firſt fruits of them that ſleep; and it is ſaid that in Chriſt all ſhall riſe, and all did riſe when he roſe. Now, if when Jeſus Chriſt roſe he broke open all Graves, ſet them all open, dead men (ſaith he,) your bonds are looſened, you ſhall come forth one day by virtue of my Reſurrection; then the raiſing up of Chriſt was as much as the raiſing up of all mankind at the latter day; for he took the Gates of Hell and Death, and carried them up to the Hill, as Samſon did; therefore ſaith the Apoſtle; 1 Cor. 15. 55. O Death, where is thy ſting? O Grave, where is thy victory? Thanks be to God which giveth us the victory, through our Lord Jeſus Chriſt; He ſpoke of Chriſts Reſurrection: When he roſe all roſe, and his Reſurrection had all the power of all Reſurrections contracted in it. That is the Firſt.

But then Secondly, You muſt know, that when Jeſus Chriſt roſe, he roſe not like an ordinary man, he roſe for our Juſtification, he roſe in the ſtead of ſinners, to juſtifie ſinners, as having born their ſins and ſatisfied for them. He was not to riſe, (Mark what I ſay,) unleſs he had fully ſatisfied God for all the ſins of his Elect, and to ſatisfie for thoſe ſins, (which muſt be done before he riſeth,) required an infinite power. I take it that Peter holdeth forth this in Act. 2. 24. (I opened the words in the laſt diſcourſe, I ſhall but in a word or two repeat the ſum of what was then ſaid,) ſpeaking of the Reſurrection of Chriſt, ſaith he, Whom God hath raiſed up, having looſed the pains of Death, becauſe it was not poſſible he ſhould be holden of it. He telleth us firſt, that there were certain ſorrows of death, that is, deadly ſorrows, or as the word in the Greek ſignifieth, there there were birth-throws of death, that were deadly. They were not pains he indured after he was dead, for then you know the Body indures nothing, and his Soul was in Paradiſe, therefore theſe pains of death, theſe deadly pains muſt be indured before, yet there were thoſe that hindred his Reſurrection; that had he not overcome thoſe pains firſt, God had never raiſed him up. Now, our Saviour Chriſt did ſcatter, did diſſipate all theſe pains of death, he paid them to God, he bore all our ſins, and God's wrath, and when he had done this, now ſaith God, I can raiſe him up when I will, now let him die, when that was finiſhed he gave up the ghoſt; for when he hung upon the Croſs, you know he ſaid it is finiſhed, I take it he had relation to that great brunt which the Apoſtle to the Hebrews, ſaith he feared, which was theſe pains, theſe deadly pains of induring the wrath of God for mans ſins; Now ſaith he, the great brunt is over, it is finiſhed, and when theſe were ſcattered then did God come and raiſe him up, and herein lay the greatneſs of the power ſhewn in the Reſurrection of Chriſt, that God raiſed him up, he having looſned the pains of death firſt, or Chriſt being looſned, or having overcome, the words will bear all this, then God raiſed him up. Therein I ſay lay the power, and therein lay more in his Reſurrection then in all mens elſe beſides.

Sermon XXIX.

Or elſe Secondly, the power that wrought toward Chriſt mentioned here, referreth to his exaltation; for you ſee he doth not only ſay the power that wrought in Chriſt in raiſing him from death, but in ſetting him at his own right hand, you muſt take both in. Now, what is wanting in the one is ſupplied in the other. Suppoſe there was but a ſmall power in raiſing him up from death to life; yet to take a poor Carpenters Son, (whom all would have deſpiſed,) and to carry him up to Heaven, where he flingeth off Fleſh, the frailty of the Humane Nature, and appeareth more glorious, infinitely more glorious than all the Angels, and is filled with more knowledge, and that all that God meaneth to do, ſhall run through the hand of that humane Nature; here was a power to raiſe him up thus high, beyond what the thoughts of man can reach: And ſo much now for the power that was ſhewn in raiſing up Chriſt from death to glory, that part of the parallel is diſpatch'd.

Now, to come to the ſecond part, and that is this, That in God's working upon us there is a proportion of power to us-ward who believe, anſwerable to the power that raiſed up Chriſt from death to glory.

For my clear proceeding in this, I will ſet limits to my ſelf, which ſhall help you to underſtand my ſcope.

Firſt, I will not ſpeak of the likeneſs that is between Chriſts Reſurrection and the working of grace in our hearts, although the Scripture telleth us in Rom. 6. 4. that like as he was raiſed up from the dead, ſo we are raiſed up to walk in newneſs of life, he makes a likeneſs between the one and the other. The words According to his working in Chriſt, note not ſo much, a likeneſs, as a proportion, and therefore it is κατὰ τὴν ἐνέργειαν τῦ κράτους τῆς ἰσχύος αὐτῦ, According to his effectual working, the proportion of working that efficacy of power put forth, which he wrought (ſaith he,) in Jeſus Chriſt. So that now it is not my deſign to handle a likeneſs between Chriſt's Reſurrection and our Converſion, that is not the ſcope (though that other Scriptures hold forth, for I muſt ſpeak pertinently to what this place holds forth,) but that it is the ſame power (in a proportion,) that works in the one and in the other.

And then in the Second place, let me add that too, It is not a proportion of Equality, that is, that an equal proportion of power is put forth in us and in Chriſt. No, let Chriſt have the preheminence above all his Brethren, he is the wiſdom of God and the power of God as he is called, 1 Cor. 1.24. But yet there is ſo great a neerneſs as that when God would ſpeak of the power that goeth to quicken our hearts, to work Faith in us, of all the works that ever he did he chooſeth rather to inſtance in his power in raiſing up Chriſt from death to life, than in any work elſe whatſoever.

Sermon XXIX.

Then Thirdly, I ſhall not mention the power of God in general, in Converting, I have handled that already, and handled it largely, but only ſo far as the ſimilitude will hold forth a like power in the point of believingin the point of Faith, That is the thing I am now to ſpeak to.

If you ask me now wherein there is the like proportion of power put forth toward us that was toward Chriſt? I Anſwer you, Firſt that you muſt take in all the works of God upon us firſt and laſt; you muſt take in the firſt Reſurrection and the ſecond Reſurrection, both which the Scripture ſeems to hold forth. You muſt take in all the works of God upon a believing Soul from his firſt Converſion till God hath ſet him in Heaven, take them all together, and the power that raiſed up Chriſt from death, to life and glory, holdeth ſome proportion with that power that ſhall work in us firſt and laſt, before God hath done with us.

Now, To ſhew you that all the works of God upon us they are a Reſurrection. You all take for granted (therefore I ſhall not need to ſpeak much of that,) that the raiſing up of our Bodies at the latter day, will hold proportion with the raiſing up of Chriſt. But my Brethren, the work of Converſion holdeth proportion with it, and our growth in grace, and carrying us on in holineſs holdeth proportion with it.

I ſhall give you Scripture, that both theſe are called Reſurrections. Joh. 5. 20. 21. You ſhall read there of the Fathers raiſing up of the dead at the 21. verſe, and the Sons likewiſe quickning whom he will. Now read on the Chapter to the 29*th.* verſe, and you ſhall find a double Reſurrection there mentioned. You have firſt the Reſurrection of Converſion whereby he works Faith in mens hearts, that you have at the 24*th.* and 25. verſes, He that heareth my words, and believeth on him that ſent me, hath everlaſting life, and ſhall not come into condemnation, but is paſt from death to life; ſo ſaith the 24*th.* verſe, then he addeth at the 25*th.* verſe, Verily verily I ſay unto you, the hour is coming and now is, when the dead ſhall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they that hear it ſhall live. Here is the firſt Reſurrection, He telleth us at the 20*th.* verſe, that the Father would ſhew him greater works than any he had yet done: Now, in the 11*th.* Chapter you ſhall find he raiſeth up Lazarus, when Lazarus ſtank and had lain four days in the grave; Then read the 14*th.* Chapter the 12*th.* verſe you ſhall find he tells his Apoſtles, you have ſeen ſaith he, Lazarus his raiſing, (for he was raiſed at the 11*th.* Chapter,) when I am gon you ſhall do greater works than that, what were thoſe greater works they ſhould do? They ſhould convert Souls, men that were dead in ſins and treſpaſſes, they ſhould be turned unto God. Our Saviour Chriſt converted few, but the Apoſtles they had three thouſand converted at one time, as you know there were at the firſt Sermon that ever Peter preached. It is hard to inſtance what was a greater work than what Chriſt did, but only that which here our Saviour calleth, that the dead ſhall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they that hear it ſhall live. He ſpeaks my Brethren of Converſion, for if you mark it he had ſaid in the verſe juſt before, that he that heareth my words and believeth on him that ſent me, is paſt from death to life; He uſeth the ſame phraſe, I ſay unto you, the hour is coming, and now is, when the dead ſhall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they that hear it ſhall live. And then comparing it with the 28*th.* verſe it appeareth more manifeſtly he ſpeaks there of a ſecond Reſurrection, of a general Reſurrection. Marvaile not (ſaith he,) for the hour is coming, in the which, all that are in their Graves ſhall hear his voice and ſhall come forth, they that have done good, to the Reſurrection of life, and they that have done evil, to the Reſurrection of damnation. There is this difference between theſe two Reſurrections mentioned, the one in the 25*th.* the other in the 28*th.* verſe; That that in the 25*th.* verſe is ſpoken but of ſome, for all men are not converted, they do not riſe in that ſenſe; they that hear his voice they ſhall live; but the truth is all do not hear his voice: But when he comes to ſpeak of the Reſurrection at the latter day, ſaith he, The hour is comming, in which, all that are in their Graves ſhall hear his voice, and ſhall come forth, &c. And then he putteth a difference between their deaths, the one he ſaith is a bodily death, therefore by way of difference he expreſſeth it thus, All that are in the Graves ſhall hear his voice, ſo it is verſe 28. But when he ſpeaks of the other in the 25 th. verſe, he ſaith they are ſimply dead, The dead (ſaith he,) ſhall hear his voice, and they that hear it ſhall live. Yea in this 25*th.* verſe, he corrects himſelf, The hour is coming, yea and now is ſaith he, it is coming and coming preſently, wherein thoſe that are dead ſhall hear his voice and live, therefore he doth not ſpeak of the general Reſurrection. Sermon XXIX.

Here you ſee is a double Reſurrection; Now take both theſe together, the firſt Reſurrection wherein men are quickned that were dead in ſins and treſpaſſes, and the laſt Reſurrection when all that are in the Graves ſhall riſe; take I ſay both theſe works together and you have a mighty power put forth, for you have the work double.

Our Saviour Chriſt had a double Reſurrection, he had one of his Soul, (as I may ſo call it,) when he overcame the pains of death, that I ſpake of in Acts 2. 24. Thou wilt not leave my Soul in Hell. And there was a Reſurrection of his Body, Thou wilt not ſuffer thy holy one (namely his Body,) to ſee Corruption.

Now, My Brethren, we likewiſe have a double Reſurrection too; We have a Reſurrection of our Soul which is done in this life, whereby grace is wrought in our hearts, being dead in ſins and treſpaſſes; and at latter day we have a Reſurrection of our Bodies. Now as the greatneſs of his power in Chriſt's raiſing lay not in taking him out of the Grave ſo much, as in reſcuing his Soul from what he feared, from thoſe pains, thoſe birth-throws of death, the wrath of God which he was to undergo, that Reſurrection of his Soul was the great Reſurrection, ſo Peter quoteth it. So it is here, the great Reſurrection is the firſt Reſurrection.

That you may yet ſee this clearer you ſhall find in Scripture, that our new birth and the Reſurrection are parallel expreſſions, they are put one for another; and Jeſus Chriſt's Reſurrection is called a begetting, and our being begotten again is called a Reſurrection, becauſe that the ſame power that is put forth in the one is put forth in the other.

It is evident that Chriſt his Reſurrection is called a begetting of him, in Acts 13. 33. God (ſaith he,) hath raiſed up Jeſus again, as it is written in the ſecond Pſalm, Thou art my Son this day have I begotten thee. Here you ſee Jeſus Chriſt's Reſurrection is called a begetting: And you ſhall find in Coloſ. 1. 18. he is called the firſt begotten from the dead. Mark it, his Reſurrection is called a begetting.

Now, As his Reſurrection is called a begetting of him again, or a begetting him rather, ſo our being born again, our converſion is called a Reſurrection, as you have it, 2 Cor. 12. I ſhall come to it by and by. Yea Matt. 19. 28. he calleth the Reſurrection of the juſt, when they ſhall riſe again at the latter day, their Regeneration, their being begotten again; ſaith he, ye which have followed me in the Regeneration, when the Son of man ſhall ſit in the Throne of his glory, ye alſo ſhall ſit upon Twelve Thrones, &c. Thoſe words, in the Regeneration, refer to the time when Jeſus Chriſt will come to Judgment. There the general Reſurrection is called the Regeneration, the new begetting of the Sons of God, and therefore one of the Evangeliſts calleth them Sons of the Reſurrection, becauſe it is a begetting them again.

You ſee my Brethren how the Scripture ſpeaks of Converſion, it calleth it a Regeneration, it calleth it a Reſurrection, and it calleth the Reſurrection at the latter day a Regeneration, it calleth Chriſt's Reſurrection likewiſe a begetting of him again.

Sermon XXIX.

You ſee therefore now that both the converſion is called a Reſurrection, as well as that at the latter day. Now, I am to prove this likewiſe, that all our growth in holineſs is called a Reſurrection too. And for that I ſhall quote you Phil. 3. 11, 12. If by any means (ſaith he,) I might attain to the Reſurrection of the dead. Interpreters do moſt of them carry it to this ſenſe, namely that Paul had in his eye the reward at the latter day, and that is his meaning when he ſaith, that he might attain to the Reſurrection of the dead. But it is evident by his ſcope, that he meaneth perfect holineſs, growing in grace, his aim was to grow as holy as men ſhall be when they are riſen from the dead. It appeareth ſo plainly, for ſaith he, Not as though I had already attained, either were already perfect, but I follow after if that I may apprehend that for which alſo I am apprehended of Chriſt Jeſus, forgetting thoſe things which are behind, I reach forth to thoſe things which are before. His meaning is this. Saith he, Our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt hath taken me to work ſo much grace in me, ſuch a portion and meaſure of grace is to be wrought in mee by Jeſus Chriſt; and ſaith he, I deſire to know the power of his Reſurrection to that end, (as the 10*th.* verſe hath it,) I would fain (ſaith he,) have that holineſs preſently and ſtay no longer for it, for which I am apprehended of Chriſt; I would be as holy as I ſhall be when I ſhall riſe again at the latter day. So that every degree of holineſs, he doth account a part of the Reſurrection from the dead, and that this is his meaning appears by thoſe words. Not as though I had already attained. All the World knew that he had not attained the Reſurrection from the dead, that is, the glory of the World to come, what need he have corrected himſelf if that this were the meaning? Therefore he ſpeaks of holineſs in this life, which is a continual Reſurrection till he cometh to be perfectly holy. Not as though I had already attained, either were already perfect in holineſs namely; there was a perfect holineſs in his eye, (which he calleth the Reſurrection from the dead,) to be as holy as they ſhall be that ſhall riſe again, Which he followed after, forgetting what is behind, and preſt at what is before, at what is to come.

And in this ſenſe, as you read in Ezek. 37. the dried Bones were not raiſed at once but by degrees, the Bones firſt came together, and then the Sinnews and the Fleſh came upon them, and then the Skin covered them above. So the truth is, this power raiſeth us up by degrees; every new degree of grace is as after the Bones came together in converſion, then Fleſh cometh, and then Sinnews, and ſo by degrees we attain the Reſurrection from the dead.

You ſee now that all the works of God upon us, both of Converſion at firſt, degrees of grace and growth in grace afterward, are both called a Reſurrection; And laſtly, the great work at the latter day, when he will raiſe up our Bodies, and bring our Souls to them, and raiſe both up to glory. Now, then take all the work of God upon a Chriſtian firſt and laſt, and before God hath done with him, there will be ſo great a power found working in him, as no pattern can hold forth the like, but the raiſing of Chriſt from death to glory.

And my Brethren, if you doubt of the proportion of power between the working on us and on Chriſt, do but conſider the ſtate that God raiſeth us from. He ſaith we are dead in ſins and treſpaſſes before; the Apoſtle inſiſteth much upon that, he runneth out at large upon it in the ſecond Chapter, where he makes out the compariſon; and you ſhall Obſerve that he makes the difference between God's raiſing up of Chriſt and of us to lye in this; when he ſpeaks of the power that was ſhewn in raiſing Chriſt, he runneth out here in this firſt Chapter much upon his glorification, as if the greatneſs of his power was chiefly ſpent there. When he ſpeaks of his power in raiſing us up in the ſecond Chapter he ſpendeth a great part of his diſcourſe in ſhewing that we were dead in treſpaſſes and ſins; the Terminus a quo, the term from which we were raiſed, that is it which ſetteth forth the exceeding greatneſs of his power to us-ward. Conſider I ſay what we were, dead in ſins and treſpaſſes, that theſe men ſhould be converted to God, ſhould be carried on in holineſs till they be perfectly holy, till they attain to that eſtate which men riſen from the dead ſhall have in holineſs, and withall have their Bodies raiſed out of the Grave, Bodies that have ſeen Corruption; Jeſus Chriſt's Body never ſaw Corruption, he was never dead in ſins and treſpaſſes, he died for ſins and treſpaſſes indeed, but we were dead in ſins and treſpaſſes.

Now

Now then compare the ſtate out of which we are raiſed, and all the works of God upon us, and all the degrees of it (which are all little Reſurrections,) and put them all together firſt and laſt, they will hold a great proportion with the Power that raiſed up Chriſt from death to life and glory, ſo as there is no work that ever God did, holdeth the like proportion in power with this as the Reſurrection of Chriſt doth.

Now I ſhould indeed lay open to you the greatneſs of the death in which we were in Sins and Treſpaſſes, it would ſet forth this Power, how low we were in this reſpect; but becauſe that belongeth to the ſecond Chapter, I will therefore paſs it over.

I come now more particularly to ſhew you (for the point is worth the inſiſting upon, for theſe are but generals,) that in a more eſpecial manner in the work of Faith (for if you obſerve it, the Text here inſtanceth only in believing) there is a like power put forth, as was in the raiſing of Chriſt from death to life. Who believe (ſaith he) according to the working of his mighty power, which God put forth in Chriſt when he raiſed him from the dead. [Who believe,] So that to handle the Power of God in working of Faith, is that which is proper to the Text, and is certainly the ſcope of the Apoſtle; for read the ſecond Chapter, where he makes up the compariſon, at the 5, 6, and 7*th* Verſes, Ye who were dead in ſins hath he quickned; by Grace ye are ſaved, through Faith, and that not of your ſelves, it is the gift of God. That was the life which had quickned you, in working which lay the greatneſs of his power to us-ward. And, my Brethren, I ſhall ſhew you that the work of Faith, if any other work of God upon us ſhould then be a Reſurrection, there is a Reſurrection in that. The work of Sanctification is a Reſurrection, and a great deal of power is put forth in it, but the work of Faith is in a ſpecial manner a Reſurrection from the dead, and the like power put forth in the working of it that was put forth in raiſing Chriſt from the dead. This you ſee is proper to the Text.

I ſhall Firſt prove it from *Coloſſ.*2.12. It is a place I quoted before. Saith he, Buried with him in Baptiſm, wherein alſo ye are riſen with him. Riſen, how? Through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raiſed him from the dead. Here you ſee he makes Believing to be a Reſurrection; Riſen (ſaith he) through Faith, and this Faith, he ſaith, is of the operation of God. He ſaith, they were dead in ſins and treſpaſſes; they were dead in the guilt of ſin, and they roſe by Faith from under that guilt: That is his ſcope as I ſhall ſhew you by and by.

To open theſe words unto you a little, and to ſhew you the parallel between the work of Faith and the Reſurrection of Chriſt, and that in point of power. It is called Faith of the operation of God, becauſe it is eſpecially wrought by God: As when you commend a Receipt, you will ſay it is a Receipt of ſuch a man's making, it is a precious thing, there is none makes it but ſuch a one that is an eminent Phyſician. So he ſaith here of Faith; Faith, ſaith he, (which is a precious grace, for it is called precious Faith, 2 *Pet.*1.1.) of the operation of God, and of ſuch a power as raiſed up Chriſt from death to life; Faith of the operation of God, who hath raiſed him from the dead. You ſee he ſpeaks only to the point of Believing.

Now, my Brethren, to ſhew you how Faith is a Reſurrection, and from ſuch a power put forth in the working of it as was in the Reſurrection; you muſt know this, that a man is ſaid to be dead, as well in reſpect of the guilt of ſin, as of the power of ſin. As thus, Take a man condemned to die, the man is alive ſtill, there is not the power of death upon him, but there is the guilt of death upon him, and you will ſay he is a dead man; his Pardon now would be a Reſurrection from death to life. You find it in John 5. 24. that he that believeth is paſt from death to life; and in John 3.18. you find, that he that believeth not is condemned already; that is, really he is condemned, he is under a ſtate of death whether he believeth it or no. Now on the other ſide, look in *Rom.*5.18. and you ſhall find our being juſtified is called Juſtification of life. Here you ſee, he that believeth not, take him in his former eſtate, he is a dead man, he is condemned demned already: He that is justified, he is a living man; it is Justification of life, it is thus really. Now then, what is it whereby a man is raised up from this state of Condemnation, and brought into this state of Life? It is Faith; He that believeth, saith he, is past from death to life; and, He that believeth hath eternal life.

Now, my Brethren, as really and indeed a man in the state of Nature is a dead man, and a man in the state of Grace is a living man, is in the state of life: So now, that God may make the Soul to apprehend his love, what he doth for him; he doth not only change a man from a state of death to life by a real Pardon, (as a King useth to do, he only pardoneth a man outwardly,) he was a dead man before, he is a living man now, he is past from death to life. But God doth so deal with his Soul in working Faith in him, that what he doth really the Soul may apprehend it, and in making him apprehend it (which is the work of Faith) there is truly a Resurrection from death to life. And therefore in that second to the Colossians, vers. 12, and 13. Faith is called a quickning of a man; Ye being dead (saith he) in your sins, and uncircumcision of your flesh, hath he quickned together with him, (he speaks of Faith, which he mentioned in the verse before, where he saith, Ye are risen with him through Faith,) having forgiven you all trespasses. Mark those words. So that now, that Faith whereby a man looks out for forgiveness of all his Trespasses, apprehendeth pardon of sin, that Faith is said to be a Resurrection, for it makes a man to apprehend the Justification of life; it makes a man that apprehends himself to be a dead man, to be a living man, and putteth a new life into his Soul.

You shall find often in the Scripture that it is said, The Just shall live by Faith.

Now, when he saith in this place of the Colossians, We are risen by Faith, and that we are quickned by Faith, verse 12.; it is plain he meaneth Faith as it hath Justification for its object, as we believe to be justified; because, Having forgiven you all your trespasses cometh-in in the 13*th* verse.

Now then, having given you this General proof, that Faith is a Resurrection from the dead; I will particularize you the work of Faith, and shew you that it is truly a work of a Resurrection. I must open it by these Two things.

I must shew you first, That when God bringeth a man to believe, he strikes him stark dead to get life in him again, and he putteth such a new life into him, as all Creatures, Men and Angels, can never put into his Soul: So that you do rise through Faith, Faith of the meer operation of God, which none else could work, when you do lay hold upon Christ for forgiveness of sins. First, I say, he strikes the man dead. I will explain that unto you by these Particulars.

You must know first, That every man, though he be dead in sins and trespasses, (as you all are,) yet he is alive in himself. Through that great Self-flattery that is in all mens hearts, you think well of your selves, and that you are living men. I will give you an Instance for it. You would think, that a man that is used to nothing but the preaching of the Law, and knoweth nothing but the Law, that that man must needs be a dead man in his own thoughts, and that he must apprehend nothing but the Sentence of death, and that he is a Child of wrath, for the Law is a killing letter. Yet take the Instance of Paul, he was a man that had as exact a knowledge of the Law as any Unregenerate man in the World hath; Now (saith he, Rom. 7. 9.) I was alive without the Law. He saith two things of himself; First, that he was without the Law, that is, I was without the Spiritual knowledge of the Law, without the knowledge of the Law in the Spiritual strictness of it: And then saith he, I was a living man, I thought I should have gone to Heaven as certainly as any man in the World. It is strange, that a man that should be able to bear the Law, and should yet think himself a living man; yet you see Paul did. He could not deny but that his sins had deserved death; but yet he framed to himself such an Interpretation of the Law, as to think himself to be a living man.

Well,

Well, you live under both Law and Goſpel; I aſſure you this, that all of you by nature, though you have never ſo much outward light by the preaching of the Word; though you think your ſelves living men, and you frame to your ſelves what is Faith, and what is Repentance, and what will ſave you; that you will live, and think your ſelves to be living men, yet if you have not an inward Spiritual light ſtruck upon your hearts, you are but dead ſtill.

Sermon XXIX.

Now, my Brethren, in the Second place, Whenſoever God cometh to work Faith in any man's heart, what doth he? He killeth him, ſtrikes him dead; whereas naturally, through Self-flattery, a man apprehendeth (whatſoever the Word ſaith) that he is a living man. I was alive (ſaith he) without the Law, that is, without the true Spiritual knowledge of the Law, God cometh and killeth him, ſlayeth him. In Gal. 2. 19, 20. ſaith he, I through the Law, am dead to the Law. This was when Paul came to underſtand it aright, he was ſtruck ſtark dead with it; he that thought that if any man living ſhould have gone to Heaven, he ſhould, he received the Sentence of death in himſelf, and now you may know where to have him; Behold he prayeth, ſaith he. He was ſtruck off his Horſe, and there he lay ſtark dead; that is, all the ſinews and principles of life, the heart root of it was ſtruck; he ſaw that interpretation of the Law of God, that made him to ſee that he was a dead man, and that if any man in the world went to Hell, he ſhould. This was Paul's caſe, my Brethren; you may find this in Rom. 7. (it followeth there in the ſame place) how he was ſtruck dead; I was alive (ſaith he) without the Law once, but when the Commandement came and arreſted me, ſin (ſaith he) revived, and I died: And the Commandement that was ordained to life, I found to be unto death. I went upon a miſtake (ſaith he,) I thought I ſhould have been ſaved by my works, by doing, Do this and live. I was miſtaken, I ſaw the Law did nothing but condemn me, and that all my works were all dead-works; the Commandement came, came in the Spiritual knowledge of it; he ſaw the Spiritual holineſs the Law required, when this Commandement came into his heart, (as you ſee the Sun cometh and ſhines into a houſe) then it ſtruck him ſtark dead. Now, my Brethren, to work this, to kill a Natural man thus, that is alive through Self-flattery, and to lay him for dead, it is a mighty work; Why? Becauſe every man having Self-love in him. Self-flattery will never give up the Ghoſt of it ſelf, all the Reaſon a man hath will fight for Arguments to prove himſelf a living man; this ſame Self-flattery (which you are all born with) will ſtruggle for life, it muſt be killed, it will never yield of it ſelf, and to kill it is a mighty power. What, to kill the Benjamin of Original ſin; what is a man's Benjamin? To think well of himſelf, that he ſhall be happy. Now to make him think, that the ſtate he is in is a ſtate of Damnation, if he go on in it, and to ſtrike all Self-flattery at the root, to lay the Ax at the Root of the Tree, and kill it. My Bethren, what ſaith the Soul? Nay then, ſaith he, if this Benjamin be once killed, I ſhall go with ſorrow to my Grave; I ſhall never recover that, I ſhall never have good day more, if I entertain ſuch a conceit, that I am in a ſtate of death. To keep up this opinion in a man's heart, that he is a living man, all in a man will fight for it: So that firſt, to kill the man is a mighty work.

And the truth is, my Brethren, it is never throughly done, till there cometh in a Spiritual light created in a man's heart. For my part, I think that which ſtrikes a man dead, and dead to purpoſe, and prepareth ultimately for Grace, it is a Spiritual light, the ſame light wherewith I ſee Chriſt afterward; there is nothing elſe will kill a man. God indeed may come with terrour upon a man's Conſcience, knock him into a ſwoon; but Self-flattery will revive again when the terrours are off, and he will have a good opinion of himſelf again. But to kill a man wholly from ever riſing again, that a man ſhall ſay as Paul, I am dead to the Law for ever, I can never recover this wound, I can never have a good opinion of my former eſtate more, or of my ſelf more. Nothing can do this but a Spiritual life; the Commandement muſt come, there muſt be a Spiritual light to diſcover a man's ſin, and his ſtate of death, or he will never die.

Well,

Sermon XXIX.

Well, when a man is thus laid dead, what followeth? Saith the Apoſtle, Sin revived. Why, I was guilty of ſin afore, it never troubled me, I had thoughts of God's being merciful, I could ſet my good works amongſt them, and one ſhould anſwer the other; but when God had laid me for dead thus, all my ſins revived. I looked upon my ſins afore as dead Serpents that had no ſtings; but now they are all living Serpents, and they begin to revive, and to kill me and ſting me worſe: For when a man ſeeth himſelf in a ſtate of death, all his ſins come in upon him, I died (ſaith he) and ſin revived. And as when Self-flattery is once killed, a man is dead for ever from having any opinion of himſelf: ſo when a man is once dead thus, he is apt to be ſwallowed up with Deſpair, as the Apoſtle's expreſſion is of the Inceſtuous perſon, ſwallowed up with Sorrow, not only dead but buried; if God be not merciful to the poor Soul, he is not only killed (you ſee,) but he is likely to be buried.

Now then, when the Soul lieth thus, (to come to the Second Head,) when a man is thus dead, thus killed, to work Faith in this Soul is a Reſurrection; Ye are riſen (ſaith he) through the faith of the operation of God, that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead. It muſt be a Reſurrection, my Brethren: For firſt you can never fetch life into this Soul again, if he be rightly wounded. A man terrified may, for he is but in a Swoon; but he that hath a Spiritual inſight into his condition, all the world will never fetch life in him again, that is, he will never have a good opinion of his former eſtate, nothing but the reſurrection of Faith will do it, a new light put in; a new light through the Righteouſneſs of Chriſt for the forgiveneſs of ſins, that will revive his heart.

Nay, He will not only never have a good opinion of his former eſtate; but ſet him a work to do new things, that which he never did before, from all his doing of them he will never come to have life again; nothing but Faith will do it. Tell him thus, You were a dead man before, becauſe you did not theſe and theſe things, you had not theſe and theſe workings which now you have; but all theſe new workings of themſelves conſidered meerly as workings in him, they will never fetch life in him; it muſt be Faith, and Faith on him that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead that muſt do it. In this caſe Nature is apt to fall a doing, and to fall upon new Duties, Evangelical duties, never practiſed afore, to waſh the heart, to reform the life, and twenty ſuch things; when it hath tried all theſe, all is in vain when the Soul is rightly wounded, it will never live by all theſe. If he could weep his eyes out for ſin, if a man could be all holy, as I may ſo expreſs it; if his heart could ſet it ſelf to all ſorts of Duties, all theſe would never fetch life in him again; nay, Holineſs it ſelf would never fetch life into this heart. It muſt be Faith only, that muſt recover this man out of the deadneſs that God hath ſtruck him with. So that there is a riſing again by Faith. Saith the Apoſtle, *Gal.*2.19. I am dead to the Law, through the Law, I am dead to it for ever, I can never live to it again. What doth he mean by Law there? He doth not only mean meerly the Law of Moſes, but he diſputeth there againſt the opinion of the Galatians, who did not only take in the Law of Moſes to be juſtified by, but they took in works after Converſion to be juſtified by them. That is clear out of *Gal.*1.9. He telleth us, in the Preface of the Epiſtle, what his ſcope was; it was not to confute another Law, but another Goſpel. If any man, ſaith he, preach any other Goſpel unto you; yet not another, ſaith he, they would have made another Goſpel, they would have joyned works with Chriſt. Saith he, I can never live by this other Goſpel, I muſt have pure Goſpel ſaith he, it muſt be Chriſt alone that muſt revive me; meer Faith in the Son of God, (as he ſaith Chap. 2. 20.) I am dead to all new Laws whatſoever. Take the Goſpel it ſelf, the Law written in the heart, Sanctification will never revive me again, I am dead to all thoſe courſes, it muſt be nothing but ſheer Faith. If ever you will fetch life into that Soul again, you muſt have a Cordial of Chriſt purely, and no mixture of Law, or works, or qualifications, or any thing elſe in it.

Now,

Now, my Brethren, a man goeth and trieth all ſorts of Duties (ſometime men do ſo) for to get life in themſelves; but they do but ſet up new Wares in old Shops, while they turn theſe Duties into a legal way. A man is not only dead to the condemning power of the Law, but he is dead to the Law, as it is a Covenant. A man is not dead to it in reſpect of the Precepts of it, the matter of it, but in reſpect of the form, to the Covenant of it he is dead. And if you will turn all the duties of the Goſpel, Repentance, and all ſorts of qualifications, into works of the Law, a man is dead to them for ever; all theſe will never fetch life into that man again. Now mark what the Apoſtle ſaith in that ſame ſecond to the Galatians, verſe 19. To what end was he dead to the Law thus? That I might live unto God, ſaith he. This death was to this end, that there might come a new life to him from God, and to God; which life he deſcribeth afterward in verſ. 20. It is the life of Faith in the Son of God; The life that I now live (ſaith he) I live by the Faith of the Son of God. Here you ſee now cometh in a Reſurrection, which all the world could not work in him. Dead you ſee he was; I am dead to the Law for ever, nothing will recover me, all the Legal waies in the world will never do it, The life I now live, it is by the Faith of the Son of God. Here is Death and Life, and here is Faith, a Reſurrection from death to life. He ſaith, A man cannot live to God till he is thus dead to the Law; and by death to the Law I do not underſtand Terrours, my Brethren, No, they do but ſtound a man; but it is a Spiritual inſight into a man's Natural condition, taking him off from whatſoever he is, or can be ſuppoſed in himſelf to be at preſent, or hereafter, that he can never have life in any of theſe, this is a being dead to the Law. And being ſo, he is now fit for a Reſurrection, to live by the Faith of the Son of God alone.

Sermon XXIX.

Now, my Brethren, there was a mighty Power to kill a man thus; but now there is as great a Power to raiſe up this man's Soul, to believe only, and purely, and nakedly on Jeſus Chriſt, and to come alone to him, and to ſet him only in his eye; there is as great a power as anſwereth his Reſurrection. I will but give you a Scripture or two for it in general, and then make it good by Particulars.

This man being thus dead, twice dead, as I may ſay; for he is dead in his own Righteouſneſs, paſt, preſent, and to come; he is dead in the guilt of ſin, all ſin cometh in upon him (as the deadly Sorrows came in upon Chriſt) to hinder him from riſing again by Faith: For when a man attempteth to believe, all his ſins, like thoſe deadly Sorrows you heard ſpoken of in Chriſt's Soul to hinder his Reſurrection, revive and come about him. Now, I ſay, to raiſe this man up requires a mighty power. Take one Inſtance, it is in Pſal. 88. It is a place to the purpoſe, for I ſhall quote thoſe Scriptures that ſpeak in the language of the Reſurrection, of raiſing from death to life, and that in the buſineſs of Faith, in the point of Juſtification, for that is the point in hand. In that Pſalm you ſhall find a Poor man lying in deſertion, a man that was dead in his own apprehenſion, killed as Paul was. It is Heman; he was a godly man, but he lay under deſertion; he had Faith already, he had ſome revivings, but yet ſo as he was given up to deſertion. Now ſee what he ſaith of himſelf, verſ. 4, 5. I am counted with them that go down into the pit, free among the dead, like the ſlain that lie in the Grave, whom thou remembreſt no more. His meaning is this: I am a man that do apprehend my ſelf to be one of thoſe that are free of Hell, free among the dead; a man that am ſlain, ſtabbed with the guilt of ſins reviving, like to the ſlain, that lie in the Grave, that lie in Hell. And what ſaith he at the 10*th* verſe, Wilt thou ſhew wonders to the dead? Shall the dead ariſe and praiſe thee? Shall thy loving kindneſs be declared in the Grave? Can my Soul ever come to think I ſhall live in thy favour, in thy free grace and loving kindneſs, to be juſtified by it, to apprehend my ſelf a living man, and all my ſins forgiven? To do this, ſaith he, is as great a wonder as to raiſe a man up from death to life; therefore he uſeth that expreſſion, Wilt thou ſhew wonders to the dead? He calleth it a Wonder; for of all works elſe, ſtill in Scripture you ſhall find the Reſurrection from the dead hath been counted the greateſt wonder,

Sermon XXIX.

Now, my Brethren, if this poor Soul under deſertion was left thus dead, then much more at firſt. I do not mean, that there is the ſame ſenſibleneſs of it; but a man is much more unable to lay hold on Chriſt when he beginneth to believe at firſt, than this man was in temptation. The phraſe in the 10*th* Verſe, as the Septuagint tranſlates it, is exceeding emphatical. Saith he, Wilt thou ſhew wonders to the dead? Shall the Phyſicians ariſe and praiſe thee? So they read it, and ſo ſome good Hebrecians read it alſo; that is, Go ſend for all the Colledge of Phyſicians, all the Angels out of Heaven, all the skilful Miniſters and Prophets that were then upon the Earth, Gad and David, (for he lived in David's time;) ſend for them all: All theſe Phyſicians may come with their Cordials and Balms, they will never cure me, never heal my Soul, never raiſe me up to life again, except thou raiſe me; for I am free amongſt the dead, ſaith he. Now then, my Brethren, to work Faith in ſuch a one, for this poor Soul being thus dead to go out of himſelf, and by naked and ſheer Faith to go to Jeſus Chriſt alone, whom God raiſed from the dead, and to believe on him alone; this is now as great a Power as indeed to raiſe a man up from death to life.

I ſhould have enlarged my ſelf much here, by giving you ſome general Scriptures, that prove it a work parallel with raiſing up Chriſt from the dead; and ſhewed it likewiſe by the Faith of Abraham, *Rom.*4.24. and *Rom.*10. 9. But at preſent I ſhall only demonſtrate it unto you in Particulars.

To raiſe up this Soul now, what will do it? My Brethren, Nothing in a man's Self will do it, therefore God's Power alone muſt do it. Saith he in Gal. 2. 20. The life which I now live, I live by the Faith of the Son of God. It is not I that live, ſaith he. Mark thoſe words, It is not I: All in my Self, ſaith he, could never have wrought this Faith, could never have begotten this life; but it is Faith in the Son of God only, and Faith alone that muſt put this life into me.

My Brethren, All in a man's Self is againſt Believing, therefore it muſt be put in immediately by God. All in a man is againſt it. To demonſtrate this unto you.

Firſt, The way of living by Faith, meerly upon Chriſt, which only ſhall raiſe this man, is clean contrary to the way of Nature, to what Self was brought up in. What, to go out of my ſelf, to live in another, that all the comfort I have, all the power I have muſt ariſe out of my ſelf, in another, and not in my ſelf? Nature was never thus brought up at its beſt; take pure Nature, ſaith Nature, I was never brought up to that, for Adam did not live ſo, he lived in himſelf; he might ſay, It is I that lived. But to make this [I] a Cipher to all eternity, all in a man's ſelf a Cipher, and a man to be nothing in himſelf till this Figure Chriſt be joyned to him. He that knows this, knoweth it is the hardeſt thing in the world; for to live in himſelf, is the way that pure Nature it ſelf took, therefore Corrupt nature much more.

You ſhall find this, my Brethren, try it when you will, When you go to believe nakedly upon Jeſus Chriſt, you had rather do any thing elſe; you will go I know not how far about, you will take all the pains in the world that you might find comfort from Doing. Why? Becauſe by believing you muſt go out of your ſelves, and look for all your comfort in another: And a man will never go out of himſelf, to caſt himſelf wholly and meerly upon Jeſus Chriſt, that all the comfort he hath ſhall come from thence. Saith Chriſt, John 5.40. You will not come unto me that you might have life. They would take all pains, Pray and Faſt twice a week, (for ſo you know the Phariſees did,) they would fetch all the circuits they could, by way of Doing; but to come to Chriſt nakedly and ſheerly, to truſt their Souls with him, and not to look to themſelves, this they would not do. Let another man come in his own name (ſaith he) him you will believe; but ye will not come unto me that ye might have life.

My

My Brethren, The Galatians (to ſee the vanity of corrupt nature in this way) are an Inſtance. They had believed in Jeſus Chriſt, yet they found a more eaſie way by way of doing, and looking into themſelves; and they had rather ſubject themſelves to the whole Ceremonial Law again, and joyn that to Chriſt, than take Chriſt alone. What a miſerable thing is this! This is the way of Nature. Therefore now there is nothing in a man's ſelf to help him to believe, all is againſt it.

Nay, my Brethren, Secondly, If a man come to believe and live, he muſt have no ground in himſelf, upon which he buildeth, laying hold upon Jeſus Chriſt. When you come to believe, you will find that Self will be interpoſing a great many grounds. This ſame I will trouble you. Look, as when you come to a ſick Friend, you will be bringing this and that with you, and ſay, Take this, and take that, it will do you good: So this Self, this ſame I, it will be interpoſing, it will be putting you upon this duty and that duty, and upon doing ſuch and ſuch things, that ſo you may come to live. Now for a man to come to ſay, Not I, but Chriſt, I will live no life elſe, here lieth the work of Faith. In Rom. 4. 5. To him that works not, ſaith he, but believeth on him that juſtifieth the ungodly, to him Faith is imputed for Righteouſneſs. That works not; What is the meaning of that? The meaning is not, That a man that hath no Grace in him, or no good Works, for then Abraham ſhould not have been ſaved, he inſtanceth in him, Faith wrought with his Works, you know James telleth us ſo. What is meant then by it, Not to him that works? That is, when a man cometh to believe, he looks not to any works in himſelf. My Brethren, I will tell you this, when you come to believe you will find this, that if Self have nothing elſe to help you to believe, it will tell you, It hath nothing, it is humbled, &c. If you now take that as a ground why you believe, (indeed it is that which driveth you to believe,) then your Faith is founded upon that which works. Now, ſaith the Apoſtle, To him that works not, that is, when he cometh to believe, he looks to no works, he looks upon himſelf as if he had nothing at all, no works, no qualifications whatſoever, to eaſe his heart in point of believing; No, he looks upon himſelf as ungodly, That works not, ſaith he, but believeth on him that juſtifieth the ungodly. Thoſe are the terms he believeth upon at firſt, nay, and the terms upon which he muſt exerciſe Faith all his days; if he come to exerciſe naked Faith, he muſt look upon him that juſtifieth the ungodly. Now, my Brethren, this is a miſerable caſe, whenas a man muſt have life put into the Soul again out of another, from nothing in himſelf; there is no ground at all in himſelf that muſt help him to believe.

Nay, I will go further with you, to ſhew you that this Faith is a pure Reſurrection, meerly put in by God. When a man cometh to the point of believing; he hath not only no grounds in himſelf to help him, to eaſe him in it, but he hath no power at all to put forth a hand to lay hold upon Chriſt. A man is as a dead Branch cut off, there he lieth; if God will take that dead Branch and graff it in, ſo he is able to do it, as the Apoſtle's expreſſion is Rom. 11. 23. But, my Brethren, when he cometh to believe, as he is a dead man in his own apprehenſion condemned, ſo he hath no ſtrength to lay hold upon life in Chriſt. What ſaith Heman in that 88 Pſalm verſe 4? I am (ſaith he) as a man that hath no ſtrength. I remember once a man in great diſtreſs of Conſcience, a Friend of mine ſaid unto him, Believe you in Chriſt: Saith he, Yonder is a Star bid me lay hold upon it; for indeed to lay hold upon the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, to cloſe with him nakedly and ſheerly by a hand of Faith, a man hath no power of himſelf to do it; but as God findeth you Chriſt, ſo he muſt find you a hand too. The Apoſtle telleth us, Rom. 5. 6. When we were without ſtrength, ſaith he. My Brethren, There is not only a deadneſs in reſpect of the Sentence of death, but in reſpect of the power of another life; when we were without ſtrength, ſaith he.

I have often compared the ſtate of ſuch a man to one that is falling off from a Pinacle; there is a Rope, if he can catch hold on it, but he wants hands, his hands are cut off, and ſo he falleth down and cruſheth himſelf to pieces. Now, for God to create Hands, to create Faith in a man's Soul, whereby he may lay hold upon Chriſt; my Brethren, here is an Almighty power, there is nothing in a man's ſelf for to be a ground for it, there is nothing in a man's ſelf to give him ability.

And that I may conclude, It is the concluſion of the Apoſtle in the ſecond Chapter of this Epiſtle, where he makes up the compariſon of the power of God in working Faith, The ſame that wrought in Chriſt when he was raiſed from the dead. What doth he ſay? Compare the 1,5,6,and 8*th* verſes together. When we were dead (ſaith he) in ſins and treſpaſſes, he hath quickned us together with Chriſt, and raiſed us up together; by Grace ye are ſaved, through Faith. And what ſaith he of that Faith? And that not of your ſelves, it is the gift of God. Here is all I have been ſpeaking of all this while. No man, ſaith he, is able to raiſe himſelf, he is dead in ſin, in the guilt of it. Is he raiſed up with Chriſt? It is by Faith, ſo he ſaith in *Coloſſ.*2.12,13. How cometh he by this Faith? Not of your ſelves, it is the gift of God. It is not I, ſaith he, but Chriſt liveth in me: and the life which I now live, I live by the Faith of the Son of God. Here is now a Reſurrection you ſee clearly and plainly, for a poor Soul that is thus killed and dead to be raiſed up, to come nakedly to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

Now, my Brethren, let me ſpeak a little, for it may be in deſcribing the work thus in a high way, though the truth is, you may have and may ſpy ſomething in you that is agreeing to it, yet to take off all doubts in your hearts, let me but add a Caution or two, and ſo conclude.

My Brethren, It is not as if God did alwaies at once work this Reſurrection in the Soul of a man that is ſo, and ſo; No, In many God goeth by degrees to kill him, to empty him, to ſlay him. It may be he had a great death's-wound at firſt, when he was humbled; he had a good knock, and was terrified, and his Soul began to think of Chriſt, and he reformed his life. Now God leadeth him on by degrees, and never leaves him, till he cauſeth him to ſee nothing in himſelf to help him to believe, and enableth him to lay hold upon Jeſus Chriſt nakedly. Here is a work of Reſurrection. It may be wrought in thee by degrees, thou art emptied, ſtruck dead day after day, week after week, year after year; but ſo, as God goeth on to perfect the work of Faith with power: and if thou belongeſt to him, he will never leave thee till he hath fully emptied thee of thy ſelf, and till thou canſt ſay, It is not I, nor any power in me, but the Faith of the gift of God; and the life I now live is the life of the Son of God, which is by Faith.

My Brethren, Abraham, when he was grown a ſtrong Chriſtian, he lived by this Faith, for that place, To him that works not, but believeth on him that juſtifieth the ungodly, is ſpoken upon occaſion of Abraham. God is teaching us this leſſon all our life time: It is the great leſſon of the Goſpel. And, my Brethren, leave not till you have gotten this Reſurrection; it is the great Reſurrection of all the reſt, wherein the Power of God is moſt ſeen.

If I were asked, How I would define Faith? Truly I would tell you, That it is the Power of God drawing a man's heart to reſt upon the Lord Jeſus Chriſt nakedly and alone for life and ſalvation. I ſay, it is the Power of God drawing a man's heart. A man can tell no reaſon, he hangeth upon Chriſt and knoweth not why; As many as are taught of God (ſaith he) come unto me, and they come whom the Father draweth. There is a drawing of the heart. A man cannot reſt in himſelf till he cometh unto Chriſt, and there he lieth, and the power of God holdeth him faſt to Chriſt, he cannot get off.

Look upon Temptations, (a little to help you) when you come to be tempted. It is ſaid, 1 *Pet.*1.5. that we are kept by the power of God, through Faith. Here you ſee it is the Power of God that holdeth a man to Chriſt; and wherever Faith is, either firſt or laſt God tempteth, as it is verſe 7. Now in Temptation you ſhall find, (if you were not thus laid dead at firſt, at firſt humbling, yet one time or other in Temptation you ſhall be) that all the Grace in you will ſtand you in no ſtead. There are times wherein, as Jeſus Chriſt was in the Garden alone with his Father, and the Diſciples and all Comforters were aſleep: ſo your Graces will lie aſleep, you can have no comfort from them, you are to deal with God alone. Now in ſuch times as theſe are, to find your hearts drawn to Jeſus Chriſt nakedly and alone; to have quicknings from the conſideration of what is in Chriſt, and in him only, looking upon nothing in your ſelves. Here are ſome ſparks of the Reſurrection; here is a dew from Heaven upon your Souls, to make Faith ſpring, which nothing elſe could do.

Sermon XXIX.

Of all Works elſe, to Believe is the eaſieſt and the hardeſt. If a man find it out, it is the eaſieſt; that is, it is the ſhorteſt cut. Go which way you will elſe, go by your Graces,, you will have a great deal of pudder in your ſelves without comfort. Go to Duties, I do not ſay but you ſhould uſe them as means; but to find a life in them you cannot, you will find a reſtleſſneſs indeed: But now to go to Jeſus Chriſt for life is the eaſieſt way, it is the ſhorteſt cut; there is a Reſurrection from the dead. And yet of all elſe it is the hardeſt, for you muſt come off from this [I,] this I would live, this Self would live, it would give you grounds of life; but to throw away a man's Self, and that nothing ſhall live in a man but the Son of God, and I live in him by Faith; this is the hardeſt thing in the world, yet the eaſieſt when a man hath found the way, and none findeth it but thoſe whom God teacheth; They ſhall all be taught of God.

Thus I have opened unto you, as plainly as I could, That in the very work of Believing (and that is proper to the Text,) there is a proportion with that Power that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead; there is a Reſurrection, Ye are riſen (ſaith he) by Faith, of the operation of God.

Sermon XXX.

SERMON XXX.

EPHES. I. 20.

Which he wrought in Chriſt, when he raiſed him from the dead, and ſet him at his own right hand in the Heavenly places, &c.

THeſe words in the 20*th.* verſe are in their Coherence to be conſidered by us two ways, according to their Coherence with the words before, and the words that follow after.

In reſpect of their Coherence with the words before, they come in by way of Compariſon or Analogy or Similitude to ſhew that the ſame power that wrought in Chriſt in raiſing him up and ſetting him at God's right hand, works in us Believers, and is ingaged to do ſo.

Or elſe Secondly, they are to be taken in and conſidered ſimply, and as ſpoken abſolutely of Chriſt, as ſetting out his Death or Reſurrection and Exaltation and ſitting at God's right hand.

Now, That this latter the ſimple or abſolute conſideration of Chriſt, as laying forth to us theſe great Articles of our Faith, concerning his Reſurrection and Glorification, is the main ſcope that the Apoſtle here intendeth, and to repreſent theſe things to the Epheſians eyes, and to pray they may know them, is evident by this, that when he had ſpoken in a few words of the parallel power in both, he hinteth that but in a word or two; but he runneth out upon the other, and ſpendeth you ſee Four whole verſes of the Chapter in the inlarging himſelf upon the Reſurrection and Exaltation of our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt.

The comparative Conſideration of the ſame Power, that that which wrought in Chriſt, works in Believers, I have diſpatched; but that which I am now entring upon is the ſimple Conſideration of the main grounds of Faith which are to be known about Chriſt. Theſe now come to be conſidered.

Now, I have given you the Coherence and ſcope of the words, I will give you the parts of them in general, (as much as now needeth,) to the end of the Chapter.

Firſt, He doth run over (I ſay) the great Articles of your Faith concerning Jeſus Chriſt. He ſheweth how he was dead, (he intimateth that,) and remained in a ſtate of death, for he was raiſed from the dead, ſaith the Text.

Secondly, He ſetteth before us his Reſurrection, whom God raiſed up, ſaith he.

Thirdly, His exaltation, the exalting of Chriſt, the glorifying of Chriſt, ſet forth in theſe words, And ſet him at his own right hand in the heavenly places. So he expreſſeth it, firſt under a Metaphor, he calleth it ſetting at God's right hand; But then he explaineth himſelf in the 21. and 22. verſes, and he ſheweth how high that exaltation is, he ſaith it is far above all Principalities and Powers. He ſheweth both the Extenſion of it, it is over all things, all things in this World, and in the world to come; and he inſtanceth in the greateſt things both Principalities and Powers, might and dominion. He ſheweth Secondly, the height of it, as the other was the breadth of it, he ſaith he is ſo far advanced, that all theſe things are under his feet, ſo ſaith the 22. verſe.

In

In the Fourth place, As he ſhewed his Death and Reſurrection and Exaltation, ſo he ſheweth the relation that Jeſus Chriſt beareth to his Church, in the midſt of all this exaltation, ſaith he, he hath all things under his feet indeed, but he is a head to his Church, that is for their comfort; and this doth Jeſus Chriſt account as great a part of his exaltation as any other, that he is a Head to his Church, for ſo it followeth in the laſt verſe, which is his fulneſs, though he be full of all this glory he is pleaſed to account his relation to his Church to be his fulneſs, without which he is not perfect. Sermon XXX.

Laſtly, He telleth us the influence that Jeſus Chriſt hath now he is in Heaven, he ſitteth not there as poſſeſſing glory and happineſs in himſelf, but he hath an influence into all things, he filleth ſaith he, all in all.

So now you have the parts of the words to the end of the Chapter. Before I come to handle theſe particulars, as I have often done, ſo I ſhall now give you one Obſervation in general, and the Obſervation riſeth from this; both that the Apoſtle here runneth out ſo much when he had mentioned the power that wrought in Chriſt, he runneth out upon his Reſurrection and Exaltation, and ſitting at God's right hand, &c. and prayeth that they might know theſe things, for that is part of his ſcope alſo. Hence Obſerve this my Brethren.

That the knowledge of theſe common Articles of our Faith of Chriſt's being raiſed again, his ſitting at God's right hand, and having all things under his feet, and the like, that the true knowledge, the conſtant apprehenſion of theſe, take them in the relation that Chriſt hath to us as a Head, (take that in,) it is of all knowledges the moſt neceſſary, the moſt uſeful, the moſt comfortable; and therefore the knowledge of this is the laſt of the Apoſtles prayer, for all this cometh in his prayer to God for them; neceſſary for ſealed Chriſtians as theſe Epheſians were, Chriſtians grown up, for them to ſpend the deepeſt and the deareſt of their thoughts upon.

My Brethren, they are common points, and you have them in your Creed, and every Child knoweth them, and you take them for granted, whereas if they were but diſgeſted by Faith conſtantly and daily, if you would make conſtant Meals of them, there are no points in Religion more ſtrong, more powerful to quicken mens hearts than theſe. It would never elſe have been, that by univerſal conſent of the Church in all Ages, theſe ſhould be put as the common Articles of our Faith, as you know they are.

What ever account you make of them, let me tell you this, they were the great points which took up the thoughts of the Faith of the primitive Chriſtians, that their Chriſt was riſen, newly aſcended up to Heaven, and ſitting there at God's right hand. They were freſh news then, and did mightily quicken their hearts; and it was that which took up their Sermons, read their Sermons in the Acts Chap. 5. and you ſhall find they inſiſt upon theſe things.

When Paul came to Corinth, you ſhall ſee in 1 Cor. 15. what an Emphaſis he putteth upon theſe common points, Chriſt's being dead and riſen again, ſaith he there, I declared unto you the Goſpel which I preached, (ſo it is at the firſt verſe,) which alſo ye have received, and wherein ye ſtand, by which alſo ye are ſaved; and he addeth, If ye keep in memory, that is, if you exerciſe your thoughts daily upon what I have delivered, for it is a great point, it is not only neceſſary to ſalvation for their firſt believing but for their keeping in memory, and whetting their Souls upon them; If ye keep in memory (ſaith he,) what I preached unto you, unleſs ye have believed in vain; for ſaith he, (if ye would know what this Goſpel is which he putteth this weight upon,) I delivered unto you firſt of all that which I have received, how that Chriſt died for our ſins, according to the Scriptures, and that he was buried, and that he roſe again according to the Scriptures; and ſaith he verſe 11. So we preach, and ſo ye believed. It was the great thing in their preaching, and it was the great thing in the eye of their Faith.

Read all Paul's Epiſtles, you ſhall likewiſe find he runneth out upon theſe points. Here is but a ſmall occaſion given, you ſee how he inlargeth himſelf upon it; When he cometh to ſpeak of theſe points his heart ſwelleth and mightily riſeth up, for indeed his heart was full of them.

Theſe

Sermon XXIX.

These were the Cream of Notions in the Primitive times, both in the Sermons of the Apostles,and in the daily talk and thoughts of the Christians. They were the great Notions in that Golden Age. These made them comfortable, heavenly, Spiritual Christians, to have their conversation in Heaven, ready to sacrifice their lives at an hours warning, because so the Apostles preached, and so they believed, as he telleth them in that place of the Corinths.

Other Doctrines my Brethren, that are the great Doctrines of this Age, (that you may see what Children we are,) the Apostle professeth that they are but the beginnings, the principles of the knowledge of Christ. Do but look into Heb. 6. 1, 2, 3, 4. Leaving (saith he,) the principles of the Doctrine of Christ, let us go on unto perfection. What are the principles of the Doctrines of Christ? Saith he, Not laying again the foundation of Repentance from dead works, and Faith towards God, and of the Doctrine of Baptismes, and of laying on of hands, and of Resurrection of the dead, and of eternal Judgment. These,the laying open of Faith, the works thereof, and of Repentance and Sanctification, the laying open of the Doctrine of Church Government, (which imposition of hands as some think is put for,) although they are all necessary and useful, and so likewise to terrifie mens Consciences, and preach Hell to them, and Judgment, and Wrath, and the like, these saith he, are but the principles of the Doctrine of Christ, and he chideth them that they should stick at these. In the 5th. Chap. verse 10, 11. he speaks of Christ,that he was called of God, a High Priest,after the Order of Melchisedeck, of whom (saith he,) we have many things to say, and hard to be uttered, seeing ye are dull of hearing; (he chideth them presently,) while ye are preaching and talking of Faith and Repentance from dead works, and imposition of hands, and the like. But to lay open the great things of Christ, his Resurrection from the dead,and sitting at Gods right hand, (which the Apostle makes the sum of this Epistle to the Hebrews, read Chap. 8. ver. 1. is the sum of those things that he had spoken, and to be spoken, the word in the Original beareth both, that Christ is set down at the right hand of the Majesty in the Heavens.) To lay open, I say the Death and Resurrection of Christ, and his sitting at God's right hand, and all the mysteries thereof; these are the great points that the Apostle would have them go on to the knowledge of, this is a going on to perfection.

Now, How contrary is the strain of Christians in this Age? They on the other side account these Doctrines, (because you have them in your Creed,) the principles of Christ, and of the Doctrine of Christ, and therefore they leave them and go to insist altogether in their thoughts, and every way upon the other. My Brethren, though those other are not to be neglected, yet these are the great things of the Gospel,as our Saviour speaks in another case. And know these will be the current truths of that Age that is to come, and men will rejoyce in them, and the true knowledge and constant apprehension of these points will make men to live in Heaven.

So much now for the general Observation. Only I will add this. The reason why mens thoughts are no more taken up with these common points about Christ, is because they do not mingle them with Faith: For you must all acknowledge this for a most certain truth, that they are all the greatest things the Gospel revealeth, now if they be the greatest things of the Gospel, if you had Faith answerable, they would make your minds great, they would have a proportionable influence upon your Souls, both to comfort them, and to quicken them. But the error lieth in this, not that these are not the great points of Religion,but because you have not Faith to rise up to them, to make use of them, thats the truth of it.

My Brethren,are you troubled with the guilt of sin?If you could but see by Faith, Jesus Christ rising from the dead, and sitting at God's right hand, and crowned with glory and honour, the guilt of sin would vanish with the real and serious thoughts of these, more than by all the assurance of your own graces. Doth the power of sin trouble you? That Jesus Christ died for sin, for this very sin that I am now committing; you are now a sinning; why, did not Jesus Christ rise again from the dead, in whom I believe to be saved: Have but Faith in it, and it would presently quash the rising of a lust, and instantly fire your Souls. Is Jesus Christ sitting in Heaven, in Glory, and am I a member of his, and hope to be with him, (or else why do I believe in him,) what do I then sinning upon Earth? Sermon XXX.

You know how the Apostle urgeth it, Colos. 3.2. If ye be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth at the right hand of God: Set your affection ons things above, and not on things on the Earth. This our hearts will do if we believe these great things. My Brethren, you make conscience of sin, and you do well, but had you but Faith in those great things about Christ, that Faith would make more quick riddance of your sins, than your Consciences can do; the one would direct you what is sin and what not, but the other would strengthen you against it. If these common principles were held forth and professed, if they were lived upon by believers, you would find that the holiness of your lives would have as in your own hearts, so in the hearts of others more power to convince you. The Believers in the primitive times as they were holy in their lives so they profest this still to be the foundation of their holiness, Christ is dead, Christ is risen, Christ is in Heaven, therefore we must live so and so; and this was their great profession, read but the writings of those first times and you shall find it. It dasheth all the carnal Gospellers in the world, it would shame men out of their sins or out of their professing of Christ. If Paul were alive he would spit in any man's face that will say that he believeth in Christ that died and rose again, and yet lived in sin. I cannot demonstrate this unto you as I would. I must leave the point: so much in general.

Now, I come to the particular Articles concerning Christ laid open in the Text. I shall not be able to insist on the several uses the knowledge of them will be unto you, but I will open them and handle them by way of Exposition, and that is all I shall do, because I must keep to the point in hand.

You have these Articles of your Faith concerning Christ, explained from the 20*th.* verse to the end of the Chapter.

First, you have him here dead, truly dead, perfectly dead, not a spark of life left before he was to be raised, or else what need there be so great a power to work in him? The greatness of the power (saith he,) which wrought in Christ when he raised him from the dead. Here is his death.

Secondly, Here is his remaining in a state of death after his dying, he doth not say simply who raised him from death, but raised him from the dead, from amongst the dead amongst whom he lay. That is the Second.

Thirdly, You have his Resurrection, and you have two things concerning it. First, the Resurrection it self. Secondly, the raiser of him, God the Father, who raised him from the dead, saith he.

Lastly, You have his Exaltation, his setting him at God's right hand, &c.

This is the more general division of the 20*th.* verse.

First, To begin with his death which is hinted here. He was dead, and truly dead. I will not speak of the kind of his death, crucifying, it is not in the Text, but of that act of dying, that he died. To confirme which Article, that the eye of our Faith might be upon it, and in a special manner take notice that he was not only crucified but dead. I will give you but a Scripture or two about it that shall shew you the necessity and the reason of it, why he died. I do not now speak of all his sufferings, why he was crucified, or why he was a man of sorrows, the manner of his death, or the kind of his death, but simply the act of dying, his giving up the Ghost.

It was a Prophecy in the Old Testament that the Messiah should be slain, cut off out of the Land of the living, as the expression is, Isai. 53. 8. which is an apparent prophesie of his death. He died, (saith he in that 1 Cor. 15.) according to the Scriptures. The Old Testament prophecied of it. It was necessary he should die; What saith Christ himself, Joh. 12. 24? Verily verily I say unto you, (saith he,) except a corn of Wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone, but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit. Our Saviour Christ speaketh it of himself. He compareth himself to a grain of Corn that falleth from Heaven, it dropped from thence, for he is called the Lord from Heaven, 1 Cor. 15. And as the Corn that falleth into the ground if it doth not die, it remaineth alone, that is, it remaineth fruitleſs, it bringeth forth nothing; ſo if I would have been alone in Heaven I needed never to have died, yea I needed never to have come from thence, but (ſaith he,) if I will have others come up thither, look as the Corn muſt die before ſuch time as grain grow up out of it, ſo muſt I. And though Corn indeed in dying ſeeth corruption, for you cannot ſuppoſe a death of a grain of Corn but by corrupting; which in a way of Analogy to what he meant to expreſs about himſelf he calleth it a dying of the grain, ſo as though he ſaw no corruption in the Grave yet die he did, and in thoſe terms expreſſeth the ſimilitude. He expreſſeth it therefore by way of ſuch a ſimilitude as of his death, not that he ſuffered corruption, but that he as a man had a death anſwerable to it; he died by breathing out his Soul, and if he had not done that, he muſt have been in Heaven alone, but having died, not an Hundred fold or a Thouſand fold only commeth up, but an innumerable company of Believers in all Ages throughout all the world both Jews and Gentiles.

To give you a reaſon or two to ſhew you the neceſſity of it.

The firſt was to confirme the Covenant of Grace and to make it of a Covenant a Teſtament, which was much for our advantage. There are two reaſons (I will only mention them,) in Heb. 9.15,16,17. And for this cauſe (ſaith he,) he is the Mediator of the New Teſtament, that by means of death, they that are called might receive the promiſe of eternal inheritance, &c. He compareth here you ſee the Covenant of Grace not to a Covenant ſimply, but to a Teſtament, to a man's Will; that word Berith, which the Hebrew uſeth for Covenant, the Greek Expoſitors and the Septuagint they ſtill tranſlate it Teſtament, and the Apoſtle therefore keepeth to their tranſlation, and he keepeth indeed to the intent and ſcope of the Holy Ghoſt, for it was not ſimply a Covenant God made but a Teſtament. And therefore if you mark it, at the 18*th.* verſe he putteth Exod. 24. where Moſes took the Blood and ſprinkled it on the People and ſaid; Behold the blood of the Covenant which the Lord hath made with you; now ſaith the Apoſtle there in the 18*th.* verſe, Neither was the firſt Teſtament dedicated without blood; by blood he meaneth death, for they did not only take the blood of the Beaſts from them by letting of them blood, but they killed them, and then took the blood and ſprinkled the Covenant. Now, all this was done in a Type, that although it was a Covenant, yet it was ſuch a Covenant as muſt have the death of him with whom and for whoſe ſake the Covenant was made, and ſo it was both a Covenant and a Teſtament. Now, it being a Teſtament, mark what the Apoſtle ſaith in the following verſes, to ſhew you the neceſſity of Chriſt's death. Where a Teſtament is, (ſaith he,) there muſt alſo of neceſſity be the death of the Teſtator; of neceſſity, why? Becauſe if it be a Teſtament it is never made immutable till the Teſtator dieth, as the civill Lawyers ſay, it is but a changeable thing till the Teſtator is dead, but after he is dead it ſtandeth immutable. If it had been barely a Covenant it would not have comforted us ſo much, but it is proved a Teſtament now becauſe Chriſt died.

You ſee then one reaſon why it was neceſſary Chriſt ſhould die, that he might make the Covenant of God a Teſtament. And why was the Covenant of God to be made a Teſtament.

I will tell you. In God's Covenant with us and for our ſalvation and with Chriſt likewiſe for us, there was both free grace, in reſpect of free grace it is called a Covenant; and there was Juſtice to be ſatisfied and that requireth death, and in that reſpect it is called a Teſtament. I make my Covenant with you ſaith God to Chriſt, but the Condition is your death, but it ſhall not only be a Covenant but a Teſtament, you ſhall die, and you ſhall make your will when you die, and the Covenant I make with you ſhall be a Teſtament to them that belong to you: Now this Teſtament, this Will of his would not have been in force if he had not died. The Typical Covenant was not ratified but by death, it was blood, not ſimply drawn from the Beaſts by blood-letting but killing of the Beaſts and then taking their blood and confirming the Covenant. So the blood of Chriſt ſtill noteth out his death in the Scripture, as the blood in the Old Teſtament noted out the Beaſts ſlain. He was to die to make the Covenant a Teſtament.

Sermon XXX.

I ſhould have mentioned another reaſon which is in the latter end of that 9th. Chap. verſe 27,28. for he goeth on to ſpeak of the death of Chriſt. As it is appointed unto all men once to die, but after this the Judgment, ſo Chriſt was once offered, (that is, he died once, he was offered up by dying, ſo is the oppoſition, and ſo much the ſimilitude implieth,) to bear the ſins of many; and therefore in Rom. 6. 10. we ſhall find that phraſe is uſed, He died unto ſin once. You know the curſe was, that man ſhould die the death, In the day thou eateſt thereof thou ſhalt die the death. Our Saviour Chriſt was made the whole Curſe becauſe he would redeem us from the whole Curſe; There was a Curſe went out againſt his Soul, he paid deadly pains, (as I told you out of Act. 2.) and then he cried out it was finiſhed, when he bore the wrath of God in his Soul after that. Here now was that whereby our Souls were redeemed; but our Bodies muſt be redeemed too from death, therefore after all this he muſt die, as it is appointed for all men once to die; Is that a Law ſaith he, and will Chriſt be a mediator? He muſt die too. This is the Apoſtles reaſoning in Hebrews 9. 27, 28.

Hence it was (and it is an Obſervation worth your marking,) that God (becauſe his death, the expiring of Soul from Body, was the compleating of that Sacrifice,) ordered it to be at the hour of the evening Sacrifice, which was his Type, the evening Sacrifice was offered up at the Third hour, that is at Three of the Clock, then did Chriſt breath his Soul out and offered up himſelf to be a Sacrifice, for dying was eſſential to a Sacrifice.

So much for the Firſt, that he is ſaid to be dead. I ſhall give you but ſmall touches and hints.

The Seeond thing concerning Chriſt, which is a great Article of our Faith too, is, that Jeſus Chriſt remained in a ſtate of death. If you mark it he doth not ſay ſimply that he raiſed him up from death, but from the dead, that is, he was a companion with the dead, that is, look what eſtate there Bodies were in, his Body was in, he was free among the dead though in another ſenſe than Heman ſpeaks of himſelf, he was in the company of the dead, he was raiſed from the dead.

This (my Brethren,) was likewiſe to fulfil the Curſe, the Curſe was not only that Adam ſhould die, but he was to return to his duſt, ſo Gen. 3. 19. And therefore you ſhall find they are made two things by the Pſalmiſt. Pſal. 146. 4. ſpeaking of Man, ſaith he, his breath goeth forth, there is the act of dying, and he turneth to his Earth. Every man is not buried, but the common Sepulchre of all mankind is the Earth, though a man lieth on the top of it, that is Commune Sepulchrum, the common Sepulchre of all mankind. Now, our Saviour Chriſt he was in a ſtate of death, not ony dying, but he remained in a ſtate of death. It is a ſtrange ſpeech, in Act. 13. 34. where ſpeaking of our Saviour Chriſt, ſaith he, He raiſed him from the dead, now no more to ſee Corruption. Here he expreſſeth what it is to be raiſed from the dead, no more to return to corruption. Why, did our Saviour Chriſt ever ſee corruption? No, the Text expreſſeth the contrary, in the 35*th.* verſe, Thou wilt not ſuffer thy holy one to ſee corruption. Why doth the Apoſtle then ſay, He raiſed him from the dead, no more to ſee corruption?

His meaning is plainly this, though indeed his Body was not corrupted, for as his Body was free from ſickneſs while he lived, ſo it was free from corruption when he died, it became not his honour, it was exempted from ſickneſs and infirmities; yet ſaith he, take that ſtate of the dead which tendeth to corruption and he was under it, He was raiſed from the dead, no more to return to corruption; not that he corrupted before, but that he remained in a ſtate in which ſtate mens Bodies uſed to be corrupted. Our Saviour Chriſt was not only to get a victory over death, but over the Grave, over a ſtate of death; now corruption is the ſtate of death, and that the Apoſtle meaneth by corruption, when he ſaith to return no more to corruption; yet actual putriſaction, that he meaneth afterward, when he ſaith, He will not ſuffer his holy one to ſee corruption.

Sermon XXX.

To exemplifie this unto you thus. If Jeſus Chriſt preſently after he had died, if his Soul had come into his Body again, he had died indeed, but he had not riſen from the dead, he had been quickned indeed as the Scripture ſometimes ſpeaks, but he had not been raiſed from the dead, therefore that he might be raiſed from the dead, he muſt continue in a ſtate of death. As if he had come off the Croſs before he had died, it might be ſaid he had been crucified, but it could not be ſaid that he died; ſo if his Soul had come to him again when it went firſt out of his Body, it might have been ſaid he had been quickned indeed, but it could not have been ſaid he was raiſed from the dead, for that implieth a lying under a ſtate of death.

You ſhall find therefore that Death is ſaid to have dominion over him, as over his priſoner, It is the phraſe Rom. 6. 9. Chriſt being raiſed from the dead, dieth no more, Death hath no more dominion over him; which implieth that Death not only killed him, but it had dominion over him, had him in his power, he was in the ſtate of death, he was deaths priſoner. You muſt know that death had him in his power, dominion it had a while over him, but ſaith he, it was impoſſible that he could be holden by it, therefore in 1 Cor. 15. 20. He is ſaid to be the firſt fruits of them that ſleep; Why of them that ſleep? Becauſe he did not only die, but he ſlept, he took a nap, he was a while under the ſtate of death, therefore it is ſaid, he was raiſed from the dead.

And herein my Brethren, lay the laſt of the humiliation of Chriſt. It lay not ſimply in his being buried, there was an honourableneſs in that, for he had an honourable Funeral, he was imbalmed with ſweet Odours and Spices, which the Jews uſed to call a burial; not only ſo, but he was and continued in the ſtate of death. Therein lieth the bottom and the laſt of his humiliation. It is ſaid in Epheſ. 4. 9. that he deſcended into the lower parts of the Earth, before he aſcended; the lower parts of the Earth is not meant his Grave, for the truth is, his Grave was not in the lower parts or in the bottom of the Earth, for it was above the Earth, it being their manner then to make their Tombs in Rocks, but it implieth a ſtate of death that our Saviour Chriſt was in. He did return to duſt, to a ſtate of death, to his Earth, which was the curſe; he was a while dead, deaths priſoner, death had dominion over him, therefore he is here ſaid to be raiſed from the dead.

My Brethren, Chriſt did run through all eſtates with us, he was not only born into the World, but he lived in it as we do, he might have been born into it and gone out again, but he lived in it Three and Thirty years. When he came to die, he might have died and took his Soul up again preſently; No, but he would remain in death, look what befalleth us did befal him, ſetting aſide what was diſhonourable to his perſon, as corruption would have been. The ſame ſtate our Soul ſhall be after death, his Soul was in, it went to Paradiſe, ſo likewiſe do our Souls; therefore you read of Paradiſe as well as the Third Heavens, 2 Cor. 12. Look what ſtate our Bodies were in, that ſtate was his Body in too, and God did it that as we might ſee he ſhould be conformed to us and we to him, ſo that we might be ſatisfied he was dead indeed.

So much for the Second thing, He was raiſed from the dead, therefore as he died, ſo he was reſerved in a ſtate of death.

I come in the Third place to his Reſurrection, (for I ſhall run over theſe things more briefly,) There are two things concerning it, that I ſhall ſpeak unto you of, for the opening of theſe words.

The Firſt is the neceſſity of his Reſurrection.

The Second is the Author of his Reſurrection. The Author of his Reſurrect- is ſaid to be God, Which he wrought in Chriſt, (ſaith he,) when he raiſed him from the dead. He ſpeaks of God the Father.

Firſt, For the neceſſity of Chriſt's Reſurrection, I ſhewed you why it was neceſſary for him to die, I ſhall ſhew you in a word or two, why it was neceſſary for him to riſe,

Firſt,

Sermon XXX.

First, It was needful for him to riſe again in reſpect of God. It was the title that God had in the Old Teſtament, that he was the God of Abraham, of Iſaak, and of Jacob. Now from thence doth our Saviour Chriſt, *Matt.*22.32. prove the Reſurrection, and that Abraham, and Iſaak, and Jacob, muſt riſe again; not Abraham's Soul only, but Abraham, Body and Soul muſt live, (for that makes Abraham, the Body and Soul together makes the man,) For God (ſaith he) is not the God of the dead, but of the living; therefore certainly Abraham muſt riſe again.

Now look into the New Teſtament, and you have the ſtyle altered. Now it is, The God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt: So then, as from that ſtyle in the Old Teſtament Chriſt proveth that Abraham muſt riſe; ſo from this ſtyle in the New Teſtament it was neceſſary that Chriſt ſhould riſe, for God is not a God of a dead Chriſt, but of a living Chriſt. Therefore riſe he muſt in reſpect of God. Saith he, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee; as if he ſhould ſay, I was loath to loſe my Son, therefore God raiſed him up again, he begat him again; This day have I begotten thee: It is ſpoken of his Reſurrection expreſly in that 13 of the Acts. God had as much work for him to do after as before, he had the World to be governed by him, the Church to be ſaved, and the Kingdom to be ruled, and then to be delivered up to God the Father. Therefore there was a neceſſity that Chriſt ſhould riſe in reſpect of God.

Then Secondly, In reſpect of Chriſt himſelf, it was neceſſary he ſhould riſe, it was meet he ſhould; there was a great deal of reaſon, that he that ſuffered ſo much for God in obeying of him, ſhould riſe again to enjoy the fruit of it. It is the reaſon given *Iſai.*53.11,12. Becauſe he made his Soul an offering for ſin, and died ſo willingly, he ſhall ſee of the travel of his Soul, and be ſatisfied; he ſhall live to ſee it. Therefore he was to riſe again, that he might enjoy and poſſeſs what by his death he had purchaſed.

There are ſome of the Schoolmen that have argued it, (though it is a falſhood,) That a meer Creature might have ſatisfied the Wrath of God. Take an Angel filled with Grace, if that Angel would have loſt himſelf, given up himſelf to ruine and deſtruction; this might have been taken as ſufficient to procure the Salvation of another, of a Sinner. But there is this great reaſon why God (if it could have been done) would never have accepted it, becauſe that pure Creature could never have riſen again. Why? Becauſe though it might have ſatisfied, yet it muſt have taken an Eternity of time to have done it, it muſt alwaies have been a ſatisfying, it could never have riſen to ſee of the travel of his Soul: But Jeſus Chriſt could diſpatch the work of Satisfaction in a few hours, and die, and riſe again, and live to ſee of the travel of his Soul.

And, my Brethren, there was no reaſon (I will not ſay no reaſon in reſpect of him, for he may do what he pleaſeth, but there was no reaſon) he ſhould be beholding to any Creature ſo much, as to put him to the higheſt, the greateſt Self-denial, of dying and being accurſed, and not rewarded; therefore that he might be rewarded he roſe again. And therefore you read in Acts 2.24. (which indeed is another reaſon,) It was impoſſible for him to be holden of death. Impoſſible, not only in reſpect of his power, that he was able to raiſe himſelf; but impoſſible according to Juſtice: For when he had paid the Sorrows of Death, (as there he ſpeaks of it) Death could not hold him; the Law of God, the Juſtice of God ſaid, Deliver the Priſoner, for he had ſatisfied; there was an impoſſiblity, but that he muſt riſe agin in that reſpect.

Next, He did riſe that he might be Lord of all, and it was fit it ſhould be ſo. You ſhall find in Rom. 14. 9. To this end (ſaith he) Chriſt both died, and roſe again and revived, (that is, had a new life, for his life in Heaven is another kind of life than whan he had here below,) that he might be Lord both of the dead and living. He died to purchaſe a Lordſhip, he roſe again to poſſeſs it, and it was fit that he that purchaſed it ſhould poſſeſs it.

Laſt of all, It was exceeding neceſſary for us poor Souls and Creatures. I will give you but one Scripture for it, for I muſt not ſtand upon theſe things. In Acts 13. where the Apoſtle preacheth the Reſurrection to the Jews, do but mark how he terms it; We declare unto you (ſo it is verſe 32.) glad tidings,

That

Sermon XXX.

That which we are preaching, saith he, it is good news for you, it is glad tidings; what is that? How that the Promise, which was made unto the Fathers, God hath fulfilled the same unto us their Children, in that he hath raised up Jesus again. Here is the glad tidings, it was good for us that Christ rose again. And then he quoteth a proof for it out of the second Psalm, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee. And in verse 34. mark that likewise, As concerning that he raised him from the dead, now no more to return to corruption, he said on this wise, I will give you the sure Mercies of David. He proveth the Resurrection out of these words, I will give you the sure Mercies of David. One would wonder how that this should prove the Resurrection; but he doth not only go about to prove the Resurrection, but to shew them that it was glad tidings to them, he saith, that if Christ had not risen again you had never had the sure Mercies of David. So that now, by the Resurrection of Christ, all the sure Mercies of David are confirmed unto us. In Psal. 89. 1, 2, 3. (to open this place a little, and so pass from the point,) saith he. I will sing of the Mercies of the Lord for ever, (so beginneth the first Verse;) For I have said, Mercy shall be built up for ever, thy Faithfulness shalt thou establish in the very Heavens. How is this proved? Wherein lieth this Mercy? I have made a Covenant with my chosen, I have sworn unto David my Servant, Thy Seed will I establish for ever, and build up thy Throne to all generations. Here now is the sure Mercies of David, that God meant to raise up Jesus Christ, and to set him at his own right hand in the Heavenly places, and so convey all Mercies to us his Seed and Children. Read now but Acts 2. 30. saith he, David being a Prophet, and knowing God had sworn with an Oath, that of the fruit of his loins according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his Throne; he seeing this before, spake of the Resurrection of Christ. Compare these three places one with another, and you see how they prove the Resurrection. That which I observe out of them is this, That he rose to convey to us the sure Mercies of David, to execute and apply all Mercies to us, which had been nothing worth if Christ had not risen. I will give you but one place more for that, that you may see it was good news for us that Christ rose; it is a parallel place to the other three. It is Acts 3.25. saith he, Ye (meaning the Jews) are the Children of the Prophets, and of the Covenant which God made with our Fathers; unto you first God having raised up his Son Jesus, sent him to bless you. Mark, his Resurrection was to bless you. Hence now we tell you good tidings, saith he, Jesus Christ is risen from the dead, for saith he, I will give you the sure Mercies of David. You could never have had your sins pardoned, if Christ had not risen; If Christ be not risen, you are yet in your sins, it is his expression 1 Cor. 15.

My Brethren, If Christ had not risen, we had not risen. In the same 1 Cor. 15. In Christ all rise. Now Jesus Christ is risen, how doth the Apostle teach you to argue? I will only quote that place in Rom. 6. 9,10,11. Verses, and will end with it, Knowing (saith he) that Christ being raised from the dead, dieth no more. Likewise reckon ye also your selves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord. Is Christ (saith he) risen, then consider with your selves, Have you Faith in you? Hath that power begun to work in you? Then (saith he) look as Death had no more dominion over Christ, you may as soon have Christ pulled out of Heaven and nailed again to the Cross, as that Death shall ever have dominion over you. And is not this good news, my Brethren? We bring you glad tidings, saith he, that God hath fulfilled the Promise made unto the Fathers, he hath raised up Christ from the dead; and (saith he) by this he bestoweth upon us the sure Mercies of David, for he riseth for our Sanctification, he riseth for our Justification, he riseth for our Resurrection, and as he rose we shall rise again. Reckon not your selves dead, but alive unto God; as Death had no more dominion over him, so shall it not have dominion over you. So that, my Brethren, there is no point of greater use than this, That Jesus Christ is risen from the dead. You shall find in Scripture, that it is made the great Object of our Faith, as Rom. 10. 9. If thou shalt confess with thy mouth, and believe in thine heart, that God hath raised up Christ from the dead, thou shalt be saved. I shall have occasion to shew you the reason of it by and by.

And

Sermon XXIX.

And ſo much now for the Reſurrection it ſelf, the neceſſity of it, and the end of it, which I have done moſt briefly.

Secondly, Conſider the raiſer of him, (that is the next thing) the raiſer of him is ſaid to be God the Father. You ſhall find that this work of raiſing up Chriſt from the dead, is accounted ſo great a work that you have it ſtill attributed to God. It is his name that he is the Father of Chriſt, (as you heard before,)and it is a Name that by way of pariphraſis is uſed for God; when he ſpeaks of God, he putteth this in ſtill, that he raiſed up Chriſt from the dead. You have it in four places of Scripture; Rom. 4. 24. Rom. 8. 11. Coloſ. 2. 12, 13.

There is only this one difficulty to be explained here; How the Father is ſaid to be the raiſer up of Chriſt, when yet the Scripture telleth us that Chriſt raiſed up himſelf, that is, the Second Perſon united to that Soul and Body, brought them both together again and quickned it. That Chriſt raiſed up himſelf, you have expreſs Scripture for it. John 2. 19. Deſtroy this Temple, and in three daies I will raiſe it up. He ſpake of the Temple of his Body. John 10. 17, 18. I have power to lay down my life, and I have power to take it again.

And the truth is, (my Brethren) it was neceſſary that he that was your Mediatour ſhould be able to raiſe up himſelf. Why? Becauſe in the works of Mediation, whereof this was one, he was to borrow nothing, it muſt all be his own. If he had borrowed any thing (mark what I ſay) it had not been a Mediator's work, for he had been beholding to God. If there had not been ſome ſenſe wherein what he did, and what he was, had been his own ſo as not his Father's, all his works had not been works of Mediation; his ſatisfaction had not. If in dying he had not offered up himſelf, if by his own power he had not overcome thoſe Sorrows of Death, he had not ſatisfied. Why? For if it had been a borrowed Power, then all the ſatisfaction he offered had been God's already, he could not have paid, for no man could pay one with what is not his own: ſo when he came to riſe again, if he had not raiſed himſelf by his own power, it had not been a Mediator's action.

Now Brethren, How then is it that here it is ſaid, God raiſed him up from the dead, whenas he raiſed up himſelf; and it was neceſſary that he ſhould do ſo, if he be Mediator?

That wicked Heretick, Socinus, he denieth that Chriſt did raiſe himſelf from the dead, becauſe he knew that this would pinch him, that therefore he muſt be God; for to raiſe one from the dead, is made a work of Omnipotency, as Rom. 4. 17. He believed on him, even on God, who quickned the dead, and calleth thoſe things which be not, as though they were. It is the property of God to quicken the dead, even as much as to create; therefore to avoid this (he denieth that he is God) he goeth againſt expreſs Scripture, and denieth that Chriſt raiſed himſelf, and he hath cunning evaſions for it; but I will not ſtand upon it.

But to Anſwer this, and to reconcile it, How both the Father is ſaid to raiſe Chriſt, and Chriſt is ſaid to raiſe himſelf. I will give you to this Three ſeveral Anſwers to reconcile it.

Firſt, You muſt know, that all the works of the Three Perſons, what one doth the other two are ſaid to do. It is a certain Rule, that Opera Trinitatis ad extra ſunt indiviſa, all their works to us-ward of Creation and Redemption, and whatſoever elſe, they are all works of each Perſon concurring to them. As they have but one Being, one Eſſence, ſo they have but one work; yet as they have three ſeveral Subſiſtances, ſo they have three ſeveral manners of working. Hence now the Father is ſaid to raiſe Chriſt, ſo it is here: ſo likewiſe Chriſt is ſaid to raiſe himſelf, as you have it in the place I quoted even now. And Thirdly, you have as expreſs a place of Scripture that the Holy Ghoſt raiſed him too. Rom. 8. 11. If the Spirit of him that raiſed up Jeſus from the dead dwell in you. He ſpeaks of the Holy Ghoſt, and he ſaith, this Spirit raiſed up Chriſt from the dead.

Now

Sermon XXX.

Now therefore theſe two may very well ſtand together, that both God the Father raiſed him up, and he raiſed up himſelf; for all Three Perſons concur in every work. The Father is ſaid to create, the Son is ſaid to create, and the Holy Ghoſt is ſaid to create: And ſo likewiſe, the Father is ſaid to raiſe him, the Son is ſaid to raiſe himſelf, and the Holy Ghoſt to raiſe him too. To give you a Scripture punctual to the point in hand, the matter of the Reſurrection, that both Father and Son do joyntly concur in it. John 5. 19, 20. The Son can do nothing of himſelf, but what he ſeeth the Father do; for what things ſoever he doth, theſe alſo doth the Son likewiſe. The Son doth the ſame things the Father doth, if the Father raiſeth him, the Son raiſeth himſelf. And mark what followeth at the 21*th* verſe, For as the Father raiſeth up the dead (there is an inſtance), and quickneth them, even ſo the Son quickneth whom he will. If the Father and the Son both concur to the quickning of them, then certainly Father and Son concur to the quickning and raiſing up of the Humane Nature; therefore 1 Cor. 15. 45. he is called a quickning Spirit, The firſt Adam (ſaith he) was made a living Soul, the ſecond a quickning Spirit. The Godhead that is meant by Spirit did quicken him, quicken him when he was dead, and raiſed him up.

And, my Brethren, let me only give you this Conſideration about it; it is not in this raiſing of Chriſt as it is in our Converſion, therein there is a difference. You ſee in raiſing up of Chriſt, that Chriſt himſelf, namely the Son of God, and the Father did in a joynt manner concur to it; indeed the Body concurred nothing to it, for that was dead, but the Son of God, the Second Perſon, concurred and raiſed up that Body and Soul. But ſo it is not in our Converſion; our Wills and God's Power, they are not joynt workers together, though he paralleth them in reſpect of power, yet in this point they are not alike.

In the Second place, Although God the Father did raiſe up Jeſus Chriſt, yet Jeſus Chriſt as God-man did that, by virtue of which he was raiſed up, and therefore may be ſaid to raiſe up himſelf; though the power was the Fathers, yet he did that which merited, (as I may ſo ſay) which purchaſed that power to raiſe him up again. Look Heb. 13. 20. Now the God of Peace, that brought again from the dead our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Here you ſee that God is ſaid to do it; and he uſeth a fit phraſe, (he calleth it, bringing him again from the dead,) for he calleth him, That great Shepherd of the Sheep. The phraſe whereby his death is expreſt in Iſai. 53. is that he was led as a ſheep to the ſlaughter; he was led to death, therefore how fitly doth he uſe a phraſe when he ſpeaks of him as the Shepherd of the ſheep when he was brought again from the dead; brought again, is an alluſion to the phraſe uſed in the Prophet, Led away. Here is God the Father's work. What followeth? Through the blood of the everlaſting Covenant. Here is Jeſus Chriſt's work for his own Reſurrection; he had his hand in it, that it was by Blood, his own Blood, by virtue of which it was done. God had made a Covenant with him, If he would ſhed his Blood he would raiſe him; therefore now as he is raiſed by God, ſo he is ſaid to be raiſed by his own Blood, he was raiſed by the Blood of the Covenant: So that Jeſus Chriſt himſelf had a hand in it in this reſpect alſo, as well as the Father. And though I know Divines ſay, he merited nothing for himſelf, becauſe all was his due as he was the Son of God, and it is a truth; but I cannot ſee but he might have a double title to Glory, and Reſurrection, and all, and might purchaſe it and merit it; it was by the Blood of the everlaſting Covenant. So in Zach. 9. 11. it is ſaid, he will deliver the Priſoners out of the pit by the Blood of the Covenant. Look by what power he doth deliver poor Souls out of diſtreſs, deliver Captives out of the Pit; by the ſame Blood of the Covenant doth he deliver Chriſt himſelf, brought again from the Grave, from the Pit, from the duſt, that great Shepherd of the Sheep.

Then again, for a third Anſwer; Go, take ſeveral Conſiderations about Chriſt, and in one Conſideration God the Father is ſaid to raiſe him, but in others he raiſeth himſelf. Conſider him (I remember it is Camero's Anſwer,) as a Common Perſon, as the Firſt-fruits of a company of Members that are raiſed with him, as a Common Head; and ſo God the Father is ſaid to raiſe him, ſaith he, and we are raiſed in him by God the Father. But then conſider him as a Mediator, diator, in reſpect of ſatisfaction to be performed, and to do the work of a Mediator himſelf, (whereof Reſurrection is one,) ſo ſaith he, he overcometh death by his own power, he broke open the Gates of Death and Hell, he hath the Keys at his Girdle, and he ſhewed that he had the power of death. Here are now two conſiderations wherein Jeſus Chriſt is ſaid to be raiſed up by God the Father, and by himſelf. And then Thirdly, here is another, take Jeſus Chriſt as he is to be a ſatisfier for ſin, to perform the work of Mediation, ſo he raiſeth himſelf; but take him as he is to be rewarded for all the ſervice he had done, (as it is fit he ſhould be,) and the rewarder is God, for to him he did the ſervice: Now ſaith God you have done your work I will raiſe you up, ſo he concurreth in his Reſurrection, as a rewarder of him; And him (ſaith he,) hath God raiſed up. Sermon XXX.

I will add but theſe conſiderations about it to quicken your Faith, and ſo make an end inſtantly.

It is a matter of great comfort to us firſt, that Chriſt raiſed himſelf, for it is a ſign that he hath ſatisfied God, for otherwiſe death would have held him; if he had not looſed the pains of death, thoſe deadly pains, if he had not fully paid a price, it had been poſſible for death to have held him, but having paid them it was not poſſible that he ſhould be held by them; He roſe again (ſaith he,) for our juſtification; it is good for us that Chriſt raiſed himſelf. Herein doth our Prophet excel that curſed Prophet of the Turkes, Mahomet, whom they would have to be their great Prophet, he promiſed them to riſe again a Thouſand Years after his death, and in our Age, in theſe times wherein we have lived, have thoſe Thouſand Years been expired, and now they have no way to ſalve the matter, but that when he was dying his voice being weak and faint they miſtook him, and that he ſaid Two Thouſand Years, which they thought he had ſaid One Thouſand. But we have no ſuch Prophet as this; Our Saviour Chriſt becauſe he would ſhew himſelf to be the Son of God, he appointed to riſe again Three Days after, and he kept his word, This Jeſus (ſaith he, Act. 2. 32.) hath God raiſed up whereof we all are witneſſes, He roſe again for our juſtification. Here is the great Prophet that was to come into the World.

In the Second place, it is great comfort to us that God raiſed him up from the dead. You ſhall find it to be one of the names of God, that he is ſaid to be God that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead. And you ſhall find it to be the great object of our Faith, 1 Pet. 1. 21. Who (ſaith he ſpeaking of Believers,) do believe in God that raiſed him up from the dead, and gave him glory that your Faith and Hope might be in God. Obſerve theſe words. The object of your Faith is, that God hath raiſed up Chriſt from the dead and gave him glory, and he addeth that this was done for that end, that you might have Faith and Hope in God. You could never have looked up to God with comfort, if you had not looked upon him as God that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead, for thereby we know now that God is well pleaſed with Chriſt, is ſatisfied, for he hath raiſed him up again; therefore your Faith may be in God that he accepteth Chriſt's ſatisfaction for ſinners, ſo to believe on him to be juſtified by it; and in that he raiſed him from the dead and gave him glory, your hope may be in God for the time to come that he will give you glory too. Hath he raiſed up Jeſus Chriſt? He will raiſe up you alſo. He makes Jeſus Chriſt a pattern, (as here indeed in this very verſe the Apoſtle doth,) of what God will do to us, which he wrought in Chriſt when he raiſed him from the dead. Did he raiſe up Chriſt? He will juſtifie thee, which is a Reſurrection as you heard. Did he raiſe up Chriſt? He will ſatisfie thee, which is an attaining unto the Reſurrection from the dead. Did he raiſe up Chriſt? He will raiſe up thy dead Body out of the Grave, he will glorifie it: We believe on that God with a great deal of comfort that raiſed up Jeſus Chriſt and gave him glory, now we come to have hope that we ſhall have the like.

I have often wondred what ſhould be the meaning of that place, Rom. 4. (Let me open it unto you a little,) where he ſpeaks of juſtifying Faith, Faith that laieth hold on Chriſt for Juſtification; and he inſtanceth in Abraham's Faith, Abraham believed (ſaith he,) and it was counted unto him for righteouſneſs; and he was your Father: Now what was it that Abraham believed? Saith he, Not being weak in Faith, he conſidered not his own Body now dead when he was about an Hundred years old, nor the deadneſs of Sarahs Womb, he ſtaggered not at the promiſe of God through unbelief, but was ſtrong in Faith giving glory to God, and being fully perſwaded that what he had promiſed he was able alſo to perform. The Apoſtle here ſpeaks only of Faith in the power of God to give him a Son, to give him Iſaac, what was this to juſtifying Faith, for I count that to be Faith juſtifying that hath juſtification for its object, and the Faith whereby Abraham was juſtified we are juſtified, and certainly it muſt be ſo or elſe the Apoſtle proveth nothing in bringing the inſtance of Abrahams' Faith that we muſt have the like? But if you obſerve the coherence of one thing with another you ſhall ſee this doubt is taken off, and that the Faith here ſpoken of is plainly Faith laying hold upon juſtification, and doth according to the pattern of Abrahams's Faith require the like of us.

Read firſt the 17*th*. verſe. The Text ſaith that Abraham was the Father of us all, (as it is written, (ſaith he, ſpeaking of the promiſe of Iſaac,) I have made thee a Father of many Nations,) before him whom he believed, even God who quickneth the dead, and calleth thoſe things which be not as though they were. Abraham ſaw the Reſurrection of Chriſt in two things. He ſaw it firſt in the birth of Iſaac, for though Sarahs Womb was dead, and his own body was dead, yet he believed that God would raiſe up Iſaac, (a Type of Chriſt,) out of this dead body, out of Sarahs Womb. Here was one quickning of the dead; Abraham had a promiſe that of this very Iſaac the Meſſiah ſhould come. What ſaith God to him? Go take thy Son (ſaith he,) and offer him for a burnt Offering. Abraham made full account to do it, he had no refuge in the World but this, that God was able to raiſe up Iſaac again, for it was as much as if God had ſaid to him, go kill the Meſſiah, for if Iſaac had been killed, if Iſaac ſhould not live and get a Child, and ſo Child after Child, the Meſſiah ſhould not come out of the Loins of Abraham, and ſo his Faith had been void, all the promiſes muſt be let go. Now, look in Heb. 11. 17, 18, 19. By Faith (ſaith he,) Abraham when he was tryed offered up Iſaac, (he is ſaid to offer him up, becauſe it was as good as done, Abraham thought it was ſo,) and he that had received the promiſes, offered up his only begotten Son. Here was his Faith now, If Iſaac die he muſt looſe all the promiſes, yet he that received the promiſes ſaith he offered him up; therefore he is ſaid to believe againſt hope, againſt hope becauſe the Meſſiah was to come out of Iſaac's Loins, and if Iſaac did not live he was to looſe his Meſſiah, his intereſt in Heaven, his juſtification and ſalvation and all. Here is his trial now.

Read on, verſe 18. For in Iſaac ſhall thy ſeed be called. It is not only Abraham's ſeed, but it is the ſeed of Iſaac, therefore Iſaac muſt live, I am gon elſe, I muſt never look for ſalvation elſe. In this ſtreight what doth Abraham do? Verſe 19. Accounting that God was able to raiſe him up from the dead; here was all his refuge. And when God did bid him ſpare Iſaac, he looked upon this as a Type of the Reſurrection of the Meſſiah, ſo ſaith the next words, from whence alſo he received him in a figure, in a Type, a Type of what? Of the Meſſiah to come out of his Loins.

So then when Abraham firſt believed the promiſe, the begetting of Iſaac was a Reſurrection from the dead; when he offered him up it was the death of the Meſſiah to him, for Iſaac was the figure of the Meſſiah, he was a figure of him in his Reſurrection therefore in his death. Now, then when God did give him Iſaac again, ſaith he, even thus ſhall that ſeed promiſed be put to death and riſe again; and this Faith was counted to Abraham for righteouſneſs; this was Faith, believing in a figure upon God that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead, for Iſaac was in this a Type of Chriſt, and Abraham ſaw Chriſt's day in this.

That this is the ſcope of the Apoſtle in that 4*th*. to the Romans, being thus compared with Heb. 11. appeareth by this, ſaith he verſe 22. Therefore this Faith was imputed to him for righteouſneſs; here is juſtifying Faith. Now (ſaith he,) it was not written for his ſake alone, that it was imputed unto him, but for us alſo to whom it ſhall be imputed, (like as it was to Abraham,) if we believe on him that raiſed up Jeſus our Lord from the dead. Here is your object of Faith that juſtifieth, this was Abraham's Faith in a Figure, and this is a Believers Faith, to believe on him that raiſed up Chriſt from the dead, why? To be juſtified by him, Who was delivered (ſaith he,) for our offences, and was raiſed again for our juſtification.

Sermon XXXI.

SERMON XXXI.

EPHES. I. 20, 21.

The same which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead, and set him at his own right hand in the Heavenly places.
Far above all Principality and Power, &c.

THE Power that wrought in Christ in his Resurrection, I have spoke to that. As also of the several Articles which are laid down here in these words, as namely, That Jesus Christ was dead, that he was not only dead, but remained in the state of death, for he was raised from the dead; and lastly, that he was raised up, and that by God. I have dispatched and explained these things out of these words. I come now to that state of Exaltation, which is here set forth to us; And set him at his own right hand in the Heavenly places, far above all principality and power, &c.

There are Five things in these first words, And set him at his own right hand in the Heavenly places.

The First is, What is meant by setting him at his own right hand. Wherein we must consider both something about the Phrase, and something about the thing it self imported thereby.

The Second thing to be considered, is the Author of it, GOD; it is He that set him.

The Third, is the Subject of it, Him; When he raised him from the dead, and set him at his own right hand.

Fourthly, The place where, In the Heavenly places.

Lastly, When it was he was set by God, at his right hand: It is plain, after his Resurrection; Which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead, and set him, &c.

These are the parts which remain of the 20*th* Verse, concerning the Exaltation, which I hope to dispatch, and so likewise to proceed to the 21*th* Verse, which is an explanation of the great dignity, that our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ enjoyeth in Heaven. What he saith but metaphorically in the 20*th* Verse, [He set him at his own right hand in the Heavenly places,] he expresseth more really in the 21*th* Verse, [Far above all principality and power, &c.]

First, to begin with the phrase, [And set, ἐγειρας] The word is sometimes used (as we say in Grammar) either intransitively, for the setting of him that sits; or else transitively, to make to sit, to cause to sit, so it is here taken; for it is spoken of God the Father's setting of Christ, or making Christ to sit at his own right hand. It is used on the other side, of Christ's own sitting; the same word ἀναστησω, Acts 2. 30. as the Septuagint well readeth it, He raised him up to sit, so they read the words. Yet so as that here are two things implied, One, that Jesus Christ doth sit at God's right hand; and the Other, that God the Father hath set him there. Psal. 110. 1. He said unto him, Sit thou. Now always God's Word hath a causation with it, He said to him, Sit, that is, he made him sit, or as it is here expresst, He made him sit with a mighty power; for where the word word of a King is there is power, and where the Word of God is there is power; it had the greatneſs of Power going with it, the exceeding greatneſs of power, even the ſame that raiſed him up from the dead.

Sermon XXXI.

Further for the phraſe too, As it noteth out Chriſt's ſitting at God's Right hand, it is not a proper phraſe of ſpeech, it is but a Metaphor, but a Similitude to expreſs that height of Glory to us that Jeſus Chriſt hath in Heaven with God, by what is done by Kings here on Earth to thoſe whom they will honour. It is but a Metaphorical ſpeech, that is clear by this, becauſe you know God properly hath no hand, nor Right hand; and if God have no Right hand, then Chriſt's ſitting at God's Right hand muſt needs be a Similitude likewiſe, for they are Relatives, if the one be not real, the other cannot be. That Chriſt hath All things under his feet, (which is another phraſe uſed in the 22*th* verſe,) it is but a Metaphorical ſpeech; thoſe who are below one, infinitely below one, are ſaid to be under their feet: ſo is it ſaid here, that both Chriſt ſitteth at God's Right hand, and that he hath All things under his feet.

So that now, to gather what poſture of his body Jeſus Chriſt hath in Heaven, or what poſture he ſhall have when he cometh to Judgment; though it is expreſt by ſitting, and ſitting at God's right hand, and at the Right hand of Power, yet this phraſe will not infallibly determine what ſhall be the poſture of his Body. Rather, if I would deliver what out of other Scriptures ſeem to be more clearly held forth about it, it would ſeem to be ſtanding rather than ſitting; if you take it in its proper ſenſe, as he is a Man, ſtanding is the propereſt poſture of a man.

I know not well what to ſay to that in Acts 7.55. where it is ſaid, that Stephen looked up into Heaven and ſaw the Glory of God, and Jeſus ſtanding at the right hand of God. It ſeemeth to be a Viſion of his Eye elevated ſupernaturally, ſuch as Paul had when he was converted, when Chriſt from Heaven ſpake to him; Laſt of all (ſaith he) he was ſeen of me. Therefore his bodily Face did ſhine, becauſe he ſaw him with his bodily Eyes. And they ſaw a repreſentative Glory of God; for you ſhall find that likewiſe in the Old Teſtament and in the New, there was a place to repreſent the preſence of God, as 1 King. 8. 10. and Luk. 2. 9. it is ſaid, the Glory of God ſhone round about the Shepherds.

Now the like repreſentation Stephen had, when he ſaw Heaven opened. I ſee the Heavens opened (ſaith he,) and the Son of man ſtanding on the right hand of God; he ſeemeth to ſpeak clearly of what he ſaw, and the manner of it. I do not know what to ſay to this place; Sure it was not a ſeeing of him by Faith only, ſuch as is ſpoken of Heb. 2. 9. We ſee Jeſus crowned with glory and honour; this is more. There is only this that may be ſaid of it, that it was ſuch a kind of Viſion as was preſented to John in the Revelation; He ſaw a Throne, and he ſaw a Lamb ſlain, ſo Rev. 5. 6. and Chap. 1. 12. 13. He ſaw a man that had a Sword come out of his mouth, his feet like unto fine Braſs, and his Countenance was as the Sun that ſhineth in his ſtrength, &c. He ſpeaks of Chriſt; for ſaith he, verſe 17. He ſaid unto me, I am the firſt and the laſt, I am he that liveth and was dead. This was but a Viſion; now the like it may be was this of Stephens only: And as thoſe Viſions in the Revelation were but ſuited to the preſent occaſion, ſo this Viſion was but ſuited to the preſent condition Steven was in, he was to ſuffer for Chriſt, and he ſeeth Chriſt ſtand, as being ready to help him.

But however we may learn this from it, which is to the point in hand, that theſe words ſitting and ſtanding being uſed thus promiſcuoſly, the Holy Ghoſt varying the phraſe; that therefore the word Sitting is not to be underſtood of the natural poſture of his body, he would not vary the phraſe ſo of ſtanding and ſitting, and being at the Right hand of God, if it were taken properly and ſtrictly.

If therefore (to come to the thing it ſelf, for I have done with the phraſe) it be meant by way of Similitude, I ſhall open this Similitude, what it is, thus:

You

Sermon XXXI.

You must consider that it is spoken to us after the manner of men, and when he is said to sit at God's right hand, God is represented to us as a King, as the Lord Sovereign of Heaven and Earth; as 1 Tim. 1. 17. he is called, The King eternal, immortal, invisible, and only wise God. A King that is full of Glory, which Glory is always represented to us under the same words and expressions that are familiar among men to represent Glory by; and therefore when we speak of a King, we say His Majesty: so when the Scripture speaks of God, this King, it calleth him the Majesty on high; so Heb. 1. 3. And as Kings have their Thrones, as Solomon had, to set forth his glory; and Throne in the Scripture is still put for Kingly power: so likewise is God said to have a Throne. The Scripture representeth the Sovereignty of God, by having a Throne that he sitteth on; therefore you shall still read, both in the Old Testament and in the New, that he appeareth upon a Throne. Now this Glory of God, and this Throne of his, is said to be in the Heavens, because it is certain that the Glory of God and his Sovereignty is there represented more, infinitely more than in this World it is. This is but his Footstool, Heaven is his Throne; so you have it in that 7*th* of the Acts, it is but some five Verses before this Vision of Stephen's, Heaven is my Throne, and Earth is my Footstool; and then he looks up and seeth the Glory of God, and Christ standing at his right hand.

You see now how the Glory of God is set forth in the way of Kingly power, having a Court where he manifests it; in which Court standeth his Throne, for Heaven is so.

Now then, after the same manner of men, is the Glory of the Man Christ Jesus set forth unto us, by setting at God's right hand. So Heb. 1. 3. it is said, that he is sat down on the right hand of the Majesty on high; as I said, Majesty is put for the Kingly power of God, and Christ is sat down on the right hand of that Majesty, that is, of God himself; as you call the King, His Majesty. And as in Heb. 1. 3. he is said, to sit down on the right hand of Majesty, so in Heb. 8. 1. he is said, to sit on the right hand of the Throne of the Majesty in the Heavens, that is, of God, who displayeth his Glory in the Heavens. Therefore Stephen saw the Glory of God first, and Jesus standing on the right hand of God; and in Matt. 26. 64. it is called, Sitting on the right hand of power; and in Luk. 22. 69. it is explained, The right hand of the power of God, that is, of the powerful God.

It was the custom of the Eastern Nations for Kings to express their respect to those whom they favoured by setting them at their right hand, as you know Solomon set his Mother, 1 King. 2. 19. and therefore it was the request of the Mother of the Sons of Zebedee for her Children, that Christ would let them sit, the one at his right hand, the other at his left. And that in 1 Esdras 4. 29. though it be Apocrypha, it representeth what the manner of those Nations was, it is said, that Apame, the King's Concubine, did sit on the right hand of the King: So among the Romans, we read in Suetonius, in the Life of Nero, when the King of Parthia came, he set him at his right hand. But Christ's sitting at God's right hand, is not only a token of familiarity, but it is more; for these, though they were set at the right hand, yet they were not invested with power by it, only a respect was shewn to them; therefore we further read, that the manner of those Eastern Nations was, for the King's Son always to sit upon the Throne of his Father, and that upon his Right hand, for that was his hand of respect.

So we read in Exod. 11. 5. when he would express the eldest Son of Pharaoh, he saith thus; From the First-born of Pharaoh, that sitteth upon his Throne, unto the First-born of the Maid-servant that is behind the Mill. And the like we have Exod. 12. 29. It came to pass, that the Lord smote all the First-born in the Land of Egypt, from the First-born of Pharaoh that sat on his Throne, unto the First-born of the Captive that was in the Dungeon. Here you see how the Eldest Son is expressed; it is all one to say, The eldest Son of a King, and to say, One that sat upon his Throne: And accordingly you have it of Christ, being the Eldest Son of God, Rev. 3. 21. To him that overcometh, I will grant to sit with me in my Throne, as I also overcame and am set down with my Father in his Throne. And therefore as Solomon (1 King. 3. 6.) was crowned King, and was set upon his Father's Throne while his Father was alive, and remained King: so is Jesus Christ, and in that Solomon was a type of Christ, and David of God the Father; and though God be King still, yet he (as it were) hath given over the Government (as David did) to his Son. Read Acts 2. 30, 31, &c. David being a Prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an Oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his Throne; he seeing this before spake of the Resurrection of Christ. And (saith he) this Jesus hath God raised up, therefore being by the right hand of God exalted, &c. Here you see he doth apply this Type of Solomon unto our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Sermon XXXI.

Therefore you shall find in *Dan.*7.9,13. where the Kingdom of Jesus Christ, and his Inauguration into it, it is set forth, There the Ancient of dayes did sit, and the Son of Man brought to him: And what saith he, verse 9? I beheld till the Thrones were cast down. There are those that find fault much with this Translation, and say it is clean contrary; it is, Till the Thrones were set, and so the Septuagint reads it, Till the Thrones were set; as the Rabbins say, one Throne for God the Father, and one for God the Son; The Ancient of dayes did sit, and then the Son was brought to him, and another Throne was set for him, and he did give him Dominion, and Glory, and a Kingdom, &c. so verse 13. So that to sit at God's right hand, is not only a matter of favour, such as Kings sometimes shew to those whom they would honour; but it is a matter of prerogative belonging to the Eldest Son, the same that was performed to Solomon, that was crowned King, and sat upon his Father's Throne in his Father's life time; his Father withdrew as it were, and so doth God the Father, and let Christ execute the Government. It was a prerogative that was never given to any Creature: See for this *Heb.*1.13. To which of the Angels said he at any time, Sit on my right hand? Not an Angel had this priviledge, it is therefore a priviledge peculiar to the Eldest Son of the King of Heaven, to sit at the Right hand of God, as you heard before out of the place in Exodus, That to be the Eldest Son of a King, and to sit upon his Throne, is all one. So that whereas God hath translated some into Heaven, as Enoch and Elijah, and those that rose with Christ; they are indeed translated to Heaven, but none sat at God's Right hand, that is peculiar unto Christ himself, that is, God's own Son. And indeed and in truth, when the Thrones were set in that 7*th* of Daniel, you shall find that the Angels stood, so the expression is there, verse 10. There were Thousand thousands ministred unto him, and Ten thousand times ten thousand stood before him: And now in comparison of this (for they are all Metaphorical expressions) the Saints are said to stand; but it is the prerogative of Christ alone to sit; Sit thou at my right hand, till I make thine Enemies thy Foot-stool.

In General therefore you see, there are two things imported by Jesus Christ's sitting down at God's right hand. The First is, The exaltation of Christ, as God's Eldest Son. Not only to be next him, to be Second in Heaven to him, not only so, but as God's Eldest Son to be invested with all God-like power and authority; to sit upon his Throne alone, and to do there as Solomon did upon David's Throne, even in David's life time; to be taken up to the participation of all that Happiness, Blessedness, Glory, Majesty, and Power, which the Great God himself enjoyeth, and that in such a manner as no Creature is capable of; To none of all the Angels did he say, Sit, as he saith to Christ. That is, I say, the sum of the meaning of these words, He set him at his own right hand.

Now to come to the Particulars of this advancement of Christ, that this, His being set at God's right hand, holdeth forth.

First, It noteth out the enjoyment of all Blessedness in an infinite manner, that God is immediately his happiness: And this the words, Being at his right hand, implieth. And then he is said to sit, because he doth quietly possess and enjoy all this happiness. That this is part of the meaning of the phrase, is evident by that in *Psal.*16.11. a Psalm made of Christ, and quoted by Peter in that second of the Acts, to which I have often had recourse. Now what saith Christ there? Thou wilt shew me the path of life; in thy presence is fulness of joy. But this doth not speak home to that I would have, but that which followeth doth; At thy thy right hand there are Pleaſures for evermore. It is ſpoken aſſuredly of ſuch Pleaſures as Jeſus Chriſt by way of prerogative enjoyeth beyond all the Saints and Angels, he being at God's right hand, ſo as none of them are. It was that peculiar encouragement that Jeſus Chriſt had, not to be in Heaven only as a common Saint, but to be in Heaven at God's right hand, and to have Pleaſures anſwerable, far above all the pleaſures of Men and Angels, as I ſhall ſhew you when I come to handle that point.

There are ſaid to be Pleaſures at God's right hand. The Right hand you know is that wherewith a man is bountiful; if he will lay out himſelf and diſtribute of his Riches, he doth it with his Right hand; Let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doth. When Jeſus Chriſt ſpeaks of God's diſtributing and communicating to him fulneſs of pleaſures, he ſaith, At thy right hand are Pleaſures, &c. Jeſus Chriſt is at God's right hand, and therefore God doth communicate and impart to him, to the utmoſt, all his happineſs, ſo far forth as that humane Nature is capable of. Length of daies are at her right hand, that is, Eternal life, and at her left, Riches and Honour: So Wiſdom ſpeaks in the Proverbs, for we are ſaid to be at God's right hand. The happineſs of the Saints at the latter day, how is it expreſt in Scripture? He will ſet them on his right hand. I ſpeak it for this, That happineſs, and being in Heaven, is expreſt by being at God's right hand; and Chriſt is ſaid to be at God's right hand, what happineſs and pleaſures then hath he? On the other ſide, The higheſt miſery of wicked men, is ſaid to be in their being at God's left hand.

As it implieth the fulneſs of Pleaſure, ſo it importeth Honour and Glory, and a fulneſs of the participation of that. For that you may take thoſe expreſſions I gave you before, of Queen Bathſheba, being ſet at Solomon's right hand; it was in a way of glory and reſpect unto her; 1 *King.*2.19. When Bathſheba came to the King, the King roſe up to meet her, and ſat down upon his Throne, and cauſed a ſeat to be ſet for the King's Mother, and ſhe ſat on his right hand. Therefore our Saviour Chriſt, when they (*Matt.*20.) deſired one to be on his right hand and the other on his left, he interpreteth it in verſe 27. to be a deſire of being Chief, that is the interpretation he himſelf putteth upon it. He is therefore in that firſt of the Hebrews, verſe 11. ſaid to be ſet down on the right hand of Majeſty, having imparted to him a God-like and a Royal Majeſty, ſuch as appeareth in no Creature. So now to be ſet down at God's right hand, (which is a ſecond meaning of it) is this, for Jeſus to be crowned with Glory and Honour; We ſee Jeſus (ſaith he, *Heb.*2.9.) to be crowned with Glory and Honour; that is, he is ſet down at the right hand of Majeſty.

In the Third place, To be ſet down at God's right hand, is not only to have a fulneſs of happineſs, to enjoy the Godhead; to have Rivers of Pleaſures from his right hand, and to have Glory and Majeſty to be ſet above all; but it is to have a real Rule, and Power, and Dominion put into his hands too. Kings oftentimes make no other uſe of their Kingdoms, but to enjoy Pleaſures, and Glory, and State; but for their Rule they leave it unto others, as Pharaoh did to Joſeph; In the Throne (ſaith he) I will be above thee. But now it is otherwiſe, when Jeſus Chriſt is ſet down at God's Right hand, he hath the Rule, the Dominion over all things imparted to him, he is inveſted with it. And this a different thing from Majeſty; therefore they are both mentioned in Matt. 24 30. Ye ſhall ſee (ſaith he) the Son of Man coming in the Clouds with power and great glory. Power is one thing, and Glory is another, although it is power that doth make glorious: And hence therefore one Evangeliſt calleth it, Sitting on the right hand of power, *Mark.*14.62. becauſe that Chriſt is inveſted with the Power of God; and the Right hand is in a more eſpecial manner put for Power in Scripture. As (to give you but one place for it, though there be multitudes of them,) *Exod.*15.6. Thy right hand, O Lord, is become glorious in power. The Right hand is ſtill put for Power. So that for Chriſt to ſit at God's right hand, is for him to have all Power and Dominion put into his hands. Therefore both in *Pſal.*110. where God's placing Chriſt at his Right hand is mentioned; there he is called, Lord: The Lord ſaid unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand. David was a King, he was one of thoſe Principalities and Powers that the 21*th* verſe mentioneth, but he acknowledgeth Chriſt to be over him: nay, David was his Father, that is more. Parents that are Kings, do not call their Children Lords; but Chriſt had ſuch a Prerogative by ſitting at God's right hand, that he was the Lord of David. And the Apoſtle Peter interpreteth it, *Act.*2. ſpeaking of the exaltation of Chriſt; Being (ſaith he, *ver.*33.) by the right hand of God exalted; and he quoteth David for it too, The Lord ſaid unto my Lord (ſaith he) ſit thou on my right hand. Now what ſaith he, *v.*36? Therefore let all the houſe of Iſrael know aſſuredly, that God hath made that ſame Jeſus whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Chriſt. So that ſitting at God's right hand, is interpreted to be making of him Lord, and that is evidently held forth here in the Text; for he ſaith, that he is over Principalities and Powers, and Might and Dominion, and whatſoever elſe is named in Heaven or in Earth, and he hath them all under his feet. And to ſhew forth the excellency of Chriſt, he ſaith, he is over all theſe, that is, as a Ruler, as a Lord over all theſe.

Sermon XXXI.

My Brethren, What is the reaſon the Pope is called Antichriſt? You cannot call Epiſcopal Government Antichriſtian, in that ſenſe the Pope is called Antichriſt. But the Pope is plainly called that great Antichriſt; and what is the reaſon? Becauſe he doth uſurp the very ſame Authority, the very imitation of it, which our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt hath in Heaven. For what is that which Chriſt is inveſted with? It is to be over all Powers, and Principalities, and Dominions in this World, and the World to come; and to ſit in Heaven, advanced to God's right hand, and to have all theſe under his feet. Now if you read 2 *Theſſ.*2.3,4. you ſhall find the deſcription of that Man of Sin to be this; That man of Sin (ſaith he,) the Son of Perdition, ſhall be revealed, who oppoſeth and exalteth himſelf above all that is called God, (that is, above Principalities and Powers, above Angels themſelves, for they have undertaken to command Angels,) ſo that he as God, ſitteth in the Temple of God, ſhewing himſelf that he is God; taking upon him the ſame power, which our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt challengeth to himſelf. Others do take that which God hath given his Church to themſelves, and ſo indeed Biſhops do, and place Church where you will in a Subject it ought not to be in; and it may be ſaid they are Anti-Churchian, but not Antichriſtian. But this is that which makes the Pope Antichriſt, that he aſſumeth to himſelf (as far as poſſibly he can,) directly, that power that Jeſus Chriſt himſelf is inveſted withal.

Then again in the Fourth place, God's calling Chriſt to ſit at his right hand, importeth all thoſe Abilites, all thoſe royal, glorious Endowments, which God filled the humane Nature with when he came firſt to Heaven, to make him fit to be the Governour of all the World. That infinite Wiſdom and Power that is in the humane Nature, and all other Prerogatives whereby he is able to manage the government of this World and the World that is to come, and to have all thoſe things run through his hands, which all Creatures could not do, if the wit and power of them all were put together, that he is able to weild this Scepter. This is a Fourth thing, which ſitting at God's right hand importeth.

This the Text holdeth forth unto us; for, if you mark it, he doth not only ſay, That God did ſet him at his right hand as a King doth advance his Favourite, or as he doth ſet his Son in his Throne with him, give him the ſame Authority himſelf hath, whereas he doth not give ability; but the Text ſpeaks of a Power that wrought in Chriſt when he ſet him at his own right hand, a Phyſical Power as I may ſo call it, which can be exerciſed and put forth in nothing but in this. As when God ſet up Saul to be King, he gave him not only power, but a heart to be a King: ſo God, as he gave Jeſus Chriſt power over all Might and Dominion, ſo he hath given him a heart alſo. And, my Brethren, to take that man Chriſt Jeſus, that Carpenter's Son, (as I may ſo expreſs him, ſpeaking of him in his meanneſs and lowneſs,) that ſorry man, as the Prophet ſpeaks of him, and to fill him with ſuch Wiſdom and Power as that he is fit to govern all the World, to have the power of all the Doings in the World in his own hands, this is that which God wrought in Chriſt, when he raiſed him from the dead, and ſet him at his own right hand.

Sermon XXXI.

Now this is a mighty alteration, to fling off all the flesh, and to endow him with all these Abilities; as it is said 1 *Cor.*15.43. Our bodies are sown in weakness, but they shall be raised again in power; they are sown a natural, but they shall rise a spiritual body; that is, furnished with all new abilities to make them to be Spiritual bodies: so is Jesus Christ furnished with all abilities, fit for the managing of all the affairs of the world; that look whatever God meaneth to do, that the Man, Jesus Christ, joyned to the Godhead is able to do; and look whatever God knoweth concerning the Government of the World, that the Man Jesus Christ knoweth. Brethren, nor Saint nor Angel had this.

You shall find this set forth to you in *Rev.*5. do but duly weigh that Chapter, the scope of it is clearly this. You must know that the Revelation, (the general story of which beginneth at the 4*th Chapter*, and so to the end,) is the acting over of the story of the World that was to come, and things are set forth to us Comedy wise. There is first a Stage set up, a Throne, and there are the Elders about God, that is Chap. 4. Then there is a Prologue to it, and that beginneth in this 5*th Chapter*; and what is the Prologue? It is clearly nothing else, but the Installment and Coronation of Jesus Christ, as he that should govern the World, and so should be able to give the Revelation to John. And although his Coronation was a thing past, for it was done when he ascended; yet it is here represented to John, because it was the foundation of all the story that followeth. How is it represented? There is a Book held forth with Seals upon it; that Book containeth God's Decrees to be executed, and he that takes the Book, must undertake to fulfil what is written in the Book, and to make it good. There is a Proclamation made to all in Heaven and in Earth, whether any were worthy to open the Book, and to loos the Seals thereof. It seemeth to be an allusion to the admission of a Judge to his place, They give him a Roll, or a Book; or to the Ceremony that is used in the University, when they admit the Proctors to their places, They give him a Statute: So here, speaking of the Instalment of Christ into the government of the World, he alludeth to some such kind of Ceremony; Here is a Book held forth, and proclamation made, That whosoever takes this Book, must fulfil and make good whatsoever is contained in it. Now, saith he, there was none found either in Heaven or in Earth that was able to know God's Decrees, much less to execute them; None was found worthy to do it, but the Lamb. And how cometh the Lamb to be able to do it? He hath seven Horns and seven Eyes.

There are Two things goeth to Kingly Power; first, Knowledge; secondly, Power. He hath Knowledge answerable to his Power, for he hath seven Eyes; that is, as it is there interpreted, They are the seven Spirits of God, sent forth into all the Earth. His eyes run to and fro in the Earth, he knoweth all that is done, so no Angel in Heaven can do, he seeth every man's heart. And he hath seven Horns, he is as able to perform (for the Horn in Scripture phrase still signifieth Power) whatsoever he knoweth, whatsoever he meaneth to do. And he takes the Book out of the right hand of him that sate upon the Throne, for he standeth at God's right hand. And upon his taking it, what a Song was Sung? (you may read it at verse 12.) They all fell down before the Lamb, being glad there was found one that was able to administer the Affairs of the World; and they said with a loud voice, Worthy is the Lamb that was slain, to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and blessing.

To open these a little, they are all Ensigns of Kingly power.

First, He is only worthy to receive Authority to do it, that is meant by Power. All Power (saith he, when he ascended, when he was taking his flight to Heaven) is given unto me in Heaven and in Earth.

Secondly, He is only worthy of Riches, which Kings have; he only was worthy to possess all Creatures. He hath obtained an Inheritance, a better name than the Angels, for he is the Heir of all things. And as he hath Authority, so he is able now, he hath a natural right unto it, to dispose of all Creatures as his own proper goods and riches.

Thirdly,

Thirdly, He is worthy to receive Strength; he hath not only Authority and Power to diſpoſe of all, but he hath Strength too. Kings have not ſtrength anſwerable to their power, that is, to theit authority; but what they do, they muſt do by others. But Jeſus Chriſt, he hath ſtrength, perſonal ſtrength, he is able to do it alone. Sermon XXXI.

Fourthly, Wiſdom, that is as large as all theſe.

Fifthly, Honour. Honour is due to him from all the Creatures, they fall all down before him.

Sixthly, Glory, from his Father, that hath thus joyned him in Commiſſion, and ſet him up to be ſharer with him in the Kingdom. And, Laſtly, Bleſſing, from all his Saints, for they only bleſs him. And this he hath given to him by ſitting on God's right hand.

I will give you but one Inſtance. He was able, when he was ſet down on God's right hand, to ſend the Holy Ghoſt into mens hearts. What a mighty ability was this! Could any Creature do it? That the Holy Ghoſt ſhould be his Ambaſſador, to diſpatch his buſineſs here. Yet this is made the fruit of being ſet at God's right hand. *Act.*2.33. Being by the right hand of God exalted, and having received of the Father the Promiſe of the Holy Ghoſt, he hath ſhed forth this which ye now both ſee and hear. Could any Creature have done this? No meer Creature could have done it, nor he as meer Man could have done it; but he being Man joyned to God, ſo he hath right to do it.

You ſee now what is imported by ſitting at God's right hand. This is the ſubſtance of it. It importeth, Firſt, Fulneſs of all Pleaſure.

Secondly, A Communication of God-like Majeſty.

Thirdly, Power and Dominion over all things.

Fourthly, Ability to execute that Power.

So much for the ſubſtance of it. There are two Circumſtances, that ſitting on God's right hand doth yet imply, to make up this fully.

Firſt, That he doth quietly poſſeſs all this. The word Sitting ſtill implieth quiet poſſeſſing. As 1 *King.*2.28. when Shimei was in Jeruſalem quiet and undiſturbed, we tranſlate it, He dwelt at Jeruſalem, the Hebrew word is, He ſate at Jeruſalem, he quietly enjoyed his houſe; as David is ſaid to ſit in his houſe. That ſame phraſe there in *Act.*3.21. which we tranſlate, Whom the Heavens muſt receive, or contain, until the times of reſtitution of all things. It is ſtrange to ſee how ambiguous the Holy Ghoſt ſpeaks; the words may be as well read thus and as clearly, and no man can deny it, Who muſt poſſeſs the Heavens till the times of the reſtitution of all things. It is as true and as full a ſenſe, and the Lutherans anſwer us home in that place, for we would bring it againſt their Ubiquity; and they ſay, and ſay truly, Whom moſt poſſeſs the Heavens, till, &c. It is a phraſe uſed in Greek and Latin, to Receive the City, or Receive the Kingdom, ſpeaking of Kings or Conquerors, when they come to poſſeſs a Kingdom or a City. David uſeth the phraſe *Pſal.*75.2. When I ſhall receive the Congregation, I will judge uprightly, that is, when I ſhall come to poſſeſs the Kingdom. So Jeſus Chriſt poſſeſſeth Heaven, he ſitteth and quietly enjoyeth his Kingdom. This is implied by ſitting on the right hand of God.

Secondly, He doth not only ſit quietly, but he ſitteth ſurely. When his Kingdom is mentioned, ſtill you ſhall find this added, Thy Throne is for everlaſting, it endureth for ever, it is from generation to generation, &c. And this the word Sitting implieth. As *Iſai.*16.5. ſpeaking of the Kingdom of Chriſt, In mercy (ſaith he) ſhall the Throne be eſtabliſhed, and he ſhall ſit upon it in truth. To have him ſit upon it, and to have the Throne eſtabliſhed, it is all one. It implieth the firmneſs of his Kingdom; it is ſuch a Kingdom as ſhall break all Kingdoms.

So you have what is to have Chriſt ſit at God's Right hand (as briefly as I could) explained. The Uſes that this afford are infinite, which the Scripture giveth; but I muſt not run out into this thing, for I muſt meerly expound.

Sermon XXXI.

The Second thing in the Text is, Who it is that ſet him at this Right hand. I have done with the Firſt; opened the phraſe of Sitting at God's Right hand, I come now to the Second, his Exalter and Advancer. It is God, namely the Father that ſet him at his own Right hand, and that by his exceeding greatneſs of power.

You know our Saviour Chriſt acknowledgeth, that all his power is from the Father; All power (ſaith he) is given unto me, that is his expreſſion Matt. 28. As he is the Natural Son of God ſimply conſidered, ſo he doth not ſit at God's Right hand, and ſo indeed power is not given to him, for ſo he hath it by Nature. But take him as he is Mediator, and that as he is God and Man too, for he is Mediator in both Natures, and ſo all the power that he hath is given unto him, and ſo he is only ſaid to begin to ſit at God's Right hand after his Reſurrection; whereas, as he is the Natural Son of God, he had power equally with the Father from before the World was. Therefore you know God boaſteth of it; I have ſet my King upon mine holy Hill. Other Kings are by humane Inſtitution and Creation; but this ſame Jeſus Chriſt, He is my King, ſaith he.

Now, my Brethren, though the Father did but give it him, let me ſay this for Chriſt on the other ſide, He hath a right to it: So indeed it is carried between the Father and the Son; it is the Father's gift, and ſo the Father is honoured; but yet it is the Son's due. All power is given unto him; yet he ſaith plainly, in Luk. 22. 29. that he hath power to give a Kingdom, he uſeth the ſame expreſſion of himſelf that he doth of his Father; I appoint unto you a Kingdom (ſaith he) as my Father hath appointed unto me. And as the Father quickneth whom he will, ſo the Son quickneth whom he will too, Joh. 5. 21. Only there is a reconciliation of Free-will; God's Will and Chriſt's never differ, for Jeſus Chriſt exerciſeth the higheſt liberty of Will, and not only ſo, but he exerciſeth a Sovereignty of Will, and it is his right and due ſo to do; yet he doth nothing but what the Father willeth.

It is his Father that ſet him at his own right hand. I deſire you to obſerve the difference of theſe two phraſes the Scripture holdeth forth: The exaltation of Chriſt is not only ſaid to be at God's right hand, but it is ſaid to be with God's right hand. As in Acts 2. 33. he ſaith, He was by the right hand of God; and Acts 5. 31. Him hath God exalted with his right hand to be a Prince and a Ruler, &c. So that being at his Right hand implieth, that he hath all power committed to him; and being exalted with the Right hand, or by the Right hand of God, implieth, it was an anſwerable Almighty power that raiſed him up to this.

My Brethren, Our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt did not only live by the power of God while he was here; Man liveth not by Bread only, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. I do ſo, ſaith he, that is his meaning. But you ſhall read, that ſince he is gone to Heaven, he liveth by the power of God. It is in 2 Cor. 13. 4. He was crucified through infirmity, but he liveth by the power of God. And becauſe that God the Father is he that exalted him, therefore Paul calleth him, The Father of Glory, in the beginning of this Prayer in this Chapter.

I might enlarge this. You ſee how the Perſons honour one another; The Father's honour, that he doth give him this Power; the Son's honour, that he is worthy: and it was fit and comly, and neceſſary for his Father for to do it. Conſider of it thus, That the Son of God ſhould be choſen (take it ſo) to be the Mediator of the World; that the Son, that that perſon ſhould be ſingled out, it was but an act of Choice; though it was comly, it ſhould be the Son rather than the Holy Ghoſt. That the Man, Chriſt Jeſus, that he was choſen to it, that was meerly of God, as much as the choice of us was to eternal life; yet now, when this Man Chriſt Jeſus was united to the Son of God, he had right to all this, it was his due. Heb. 1. verſ. 2, and verſ. 6. compared together; as he is called in the ſecond verſe, the Appointed Heir of all things, ſo he is called in the ſixth verſe, the Natural Heir of all things.

Now

Now, It being his due the firſt day, what doth Chriſt? He layeth aſide all his glory, takes the form of a Servant, voluntarily doth it to honour his Father. What honour doth his Father do to him for it when he cometh to Heaven? Have you obſcured your glory ſaith he, withdrawn it for my ſake? I will do as much for you, I will commit all judgment to you, I will not be ſeen, the eyes and thoughts of all Creatures ſhall be next upon you; The Father judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment unto the Son, Joh. 5. 22. that is, viſibly to execute it. So that God did as it were give up the Kingdom, as David did to Solomon while he was alive. Becauſe that he glorified God in ſuffering himſelf to be made obedient to the death, therefore it was juſtice for God to gloriſie him likewiſe, by withdrawing himſelf from the affairs of the World, that is, in reſpect of viſible execution of it. Sermon XXXI.

And Jeſus Chriſt had this in his eye when he was to die upon the Croſs, he ſuffered for it, (as I ſaid in the laſt diſcourſe,) You ſhall ſee (ſaith he,) the Son of Man ſitting on the right hand of power, And for the joy that was ſet before him, he endured the Croſs, deſpiſing the ſhame, and is ſet down at the right hand of the Throne of God. Heb. 12. 2. He had this honour of his in his eye, and therefore as his reward the Father gave it him, and it was comly the Father ſhould give it him; and becauſe that he, while he was here below, was made lower than the Angels, much lower, a little lower for the time, but much lower otherwiſe, therefore God hath ſet him above the Angels: And becauſe while he was here he ſuffered himſelf to be inſulted on by Satan, to have power on his Body to hurry it up and down, and when he came to die, ſaith he, The Prince of this World cometh, but he ſhall find nothing in me; yet come he did, therefore now he is exalted far above all Principalities and Powers, &c. And it was his due to have it, it was his reward, it is but his condign reward, and it is yet a reward, therefore given by the Father.

Thirdly, The next thing in the Text that is mentioned is, who it is that is here exalted. It is him, whom? Chriſt. Some would reſtrain this exaltation of Chriſt's ſitting at Gods right hand, only to the Humane Nature. For ſay they, as he was the Son of God ſimply conſidered, he did always ſit at God's right hand. But the miſtake lieth in this. It is true, take him as he is Son of God, he hath an equal power with the Father from everlaſting, but that power is never expreſt by ſitting at God's right-hand, for then the Holy Ghoſt ſhould be ſaid to ſit at God's right hand as well as God the Son, which is never ſaid. But the ſitting at God's right hand doth imply that power that is committed to him as Mediator, both God and Man, that is, as he is the Son of God, clothed with man's Nature, exalted now in Heaven; ſo that what is attributed to the one is attributed to the other by communication of properties, as we ſay that God and Man died, though the Manhood only did die, yet it is attributed to the whole, it is called the blood of God, and we ſay God-Man roſe, though his Body only roſe, yet it is attributed to the whole, Totus Chriſtus, though not Totum Chriſti. Whole Chriſt roſe and whole Chriſt ſitteth at God's right hand, he exalted him, though not the whole of Chriſt.

I will not inſiſt longer on this. There is only a Scripture or two I will give why not only the Manhood is ſaid thus to be exalted, but the Godhead too as conſidered joyned with the Manhood. The Firſt, that his Godhead is thus exalted, I mean that the Son of God is exalted, is that Pſal. 110. 1. The Lord ſaid unto my Lord, ſit thou, &c. Now he was David's Lord only as he was Son of God, I mean that the foundation of his being Lord is laid in that; therefore Heb. 1. 13. The Apoſtle proveth him to be God from this, becauſe he was bidden to ſit down on God's right hand, To which of all the Angels ſaid he at any time ſit on my right hand, until I make, &c. But unto the Son he ſaith, Thy Throne, O God, is for ever and ever, &c. And then it belongeth to him likewiſe as Man, that you have a clear place for, Joh. 5. And our Saviour putteth it in on purpoſe. Saith he, at verſe 22. All judgment is committed unto the Son; and leſt that we that know him to be both God and Man ſhould take this to be ſpoken of him in regard of his Godhead, as he was ſecond perſon only, he telleth us plainly verſe 27. He hath given him authority to execute judgment alſo, becauſe he is the Son of Man. So that that take him as he is Son of Man, ſo he hath authority given him to execute judgment; and he putteth in this to open the prophecy, Dan. 7. for ſaith he there at verſe 14. To the Son of Man was given Dominion, and Glory, and a Kingdom which ſhall not be deſtroyed, and to this Son of Man (ſaith he,) is all judgment given.

Now, You will ask how it is ſaid (take him as he is the Son of God,) that he ſhould be exalted, for he is but as he was?

Yes my Brethren, he is exalted in this ſenſe, becauſe his Godhead was obſcured and hidden while he was here below: It was his due to have ſhined in his Manhood inſtantly as he doth now in Heaven, that all men ſhould behold his glory as the glory of the only begotten Son of God, as the Apoſtles Peter and James and John did when he was transfigured. Now, he vaileth all this glory; when he cometh to ſit at the right hand of God there he ſheweth it; ſo that in reſpect of manifeſtation he is ſaid to be exalted, for then he was manifeſted to be the Son of God.

So much for the Perſon that is exalted, how it is true of him both as God and Man.

The Fourth thing to be explained is, when it was that he began to be exalted? The Text plainly ſaith after his Reſurrection, The ſame power (ſaith he,) which he wrought in Chriſt when he raiſed him from the dead; and ſet him at his own right hand.

There are ſome Divines that are mightily miſtaken in this, for they would make the ſitting at God's right hand, to be the prerogative of the Hypoſtatical Union, and ſo would make himto ſit on God's right hand when he was in the Womb. But Brethren, the Scripture runneth clean otherwiſe. It was his due indeed then, and his right; but in reſpect of his execution, he was but as a King under Age, till he roſe again and Aſcended up to Heaven. Therefore you ſhall find Heb. 1. 3. it is expreſly ſaid, After he had purged our ſins, he ſate down on the right hand of the Majeſty on high; After, mark that phraſe, it was not till then; ſo Heb. 10. 12. After he offered one perfect Sacrifice for ſin, he ſat down on the right hand of God; it was after that. He was like one that is born a King that cometh to act the part of a Servant upon a Stage, but when he cometh to ſuch a period he throweth off the form of a Servant and ſheweth himſelf to be a King, and ſo doth Jeſus Chriſt; therefore you have it Phil. 2. 9. He took on him the form of a Servant, and was obedient unto the death; and then it was that God exalted him, he did not enter upon this glory till he had ſuffered death, ſo Heb. 2. 9. and in Revel. 5. 12. it is ſaid there expreſly, He was worthy to receive honour, and glory, and riches, &c. becauſe he was ſlain. He was firſt to be ſlain. It became him firſt to ſuffer and ſo to enter into his glory. Therefore his ſitting at God's right hand was not before God had raiſed him. That is the 4*th.* thing.

The Fifth is, the place where he ſitteth? It is expreſly ſaid in Heaven. The word in the Original is not Heavenly places, the word places is put in, but he ſet him at his own right hand in the Heavenlies.

The Lutherans therefore interpret it, he ſitteth in Heavenly things, that is they ſay, all his power is exerciſed in things Heavenly. But my Brethren, that which followeth confuteth it in part, for he ſaith, he is over every name that is named, not only in this World, but alſo in that which is to come; not only Heavenly things, but Earthly things; ſo that not only Heavenly things are meant, though they are not to be excluded, but anſwerable to the phraſe of ſitting is properly intended Heavenly places, and ſo notes out the very place where he thus ſits, even in Heaven. Heaven is the Court of the great God, where his Throne is, (as you ſaw out of Act. 7. 49.) and it is the place where God hath appointed Jeſus Chriſt to be honoured. Only let me ſay this, when he cometh to judge wicked men, becauſe he will not bring them up to Heaven, (for none of them ſhall ever enter into the third Heavens,) then he cometh down, and bringeth Heaven down with him, for all the Angels come with him, and he ſhall come in the Clouds with all the glory of his Father, in the greateſt Glory and Majeſty that can be.

But

But the proper ſeat and place of Chriſt is at God's right hand, I ſee the Heavens opened (ſaith he,) and the Son of Man ſtanding on the right hand of God. Sermon XXXI.

Therefore ſtill the Scripture calleth us to look up to Chriſt as ſitting at God's right hand in the Heavens. The Lutherans would have him every where even as Man, which is to mantain that opinion of his bodily preſence in the bread you eat in the Sacrament, which is a mighty groſs abſurdity, for ſo he ſhould be as much in the Bread you eat every day, as in that of the Sacrament; and accordingly they further make his Aſcenſion into Heaven a mere Metaphor, they ſay he did not remove his place locally, whereas the Text ſaith expreſly they ſaw him Aſcend up into Heaven.

That the ſitting of Chriſt at God's right hand is in Heaven, and that that is the place appointed for him. I will give you but one Scripture for it, I therefore quote it becauſe I will open it a little unto you, it is Acts 2. 34. When he would prove that thoſe words in Pſal. 16. At thy right hand are pleaſures for ever more, &c. were not meant of David, what expreſſion doth he uſe? For David (ſaith he,) is not aſcended into the Heavens, but he ſaith himſelf, the Lord ſaid unto my Lord ſit thou, &c. My Brethren, David was aſcended into Heaven, for his Soul was there. How then doth this argument hold? The truth is, he putteth aſcenſion into Heaven to be all one with ſitting at God's right hand, becauſe that Heaven is the place where God hath appointed to manifeſt his glory and the glory of Chriſt, and therefore Mark 16. 19. it is expreſly ſaid he was received up into Heaven and ſat on the right hand of God; ſo in 1 Pet. 3. 22. He is gon into Heaven, and is on the right hand of God. I could give you multitudes of places for it.

It is a wild Opinion of the Lutherans, that would have Heaven alſo every where as Chriſt is every where. But the Apoſtle telleth us plainly, 1 Theſ. 1. 10. that we expect and wait for Chriſt from Heaven. If Chriſt were every where, and Heaven every where, how could we expect to meet him in the Air, when he ſhall deſcend from Heaven, as the Apoſtle ſaith, 1 Theſ. 3. 15. 17. ſpeaking of the Air as a diſtinct place from Heaven.

So you have all theſe Five things opened that belong to this part of the 20*th.* verſe. Firſt, what is meant by ſitting on God's right hand. Secondly, who it was that raiſed him, God the Father. Thirdly, the ſubject that was thus exalted, both conſidered as God and Man. Fourthly, the time when it was begun, it was when he aſcended into Heaven, after his Reſurrection. Fifthly, the place where, it is in Heaven, In Heavenly places.

I will now make a little entrance into the 21. verſe, ſo much indeed as ſhall give a light into it.

> Far above all Principalities, and Power, and Might, and Dominion, and every name, &c.

Here he expreſſeth more really what he had ſaid in the other ſpeech more figuratively, there he expreſſeth the dignity of Chriſt by ſitting on God's right hand, here he ſpeaks more plainly, far above all Principalities, &c.

There are two general heads of this verſe.

Here is Firſt, the eminence of Chriſt's Exaltation, and Secondly the univerſality of it.

The eminency of it is ſet forth two ways.

Firſt, For the intention, the hight of it as it is perſonal in him, it is not only above, but far above all Principality, and Power, and Might, and Dominion, &c.

Secondly, It is expreſt by the lowneſs of the ſubjection of all things to him, he is far above, for all things are under his feet.

Then there is the univerſality of it, he inſtanceth in the chiefeſt things that are in this World and in the World to come, in Might and Dominion, in Principalities and Powers, and in every name that is named, not only in this World, but alſo in that which is to come.

Sermon XXXI.

First, To open unto you the eminency of this exaltation of Chriſt. He is ſaid to be far above, not only above but far above, not ὑπερ only but ὑπεράνω, far above, ſo far that the Apoſtle knew not how to expreſs it, but as we uſe to ſay infinitely above. So now that which in Acts 2.33. is called ſimply the exaltation of Chriſt; in Phil. 2. 9. it is called ſuper-exaltation, ſo the word is in the Original, not only an exalting but an exalting to the higheſt, an infinite exalting; and therefore Heb. 7. 26. we are ſaid to have ſuch an High-Prieſt as is made higher than the Heavens.

I told you before, that ſitting at God's right hand noted out First, fulneſs of pleaſure. Secondly, Glory, Thirdly, Power and Dominion. Now, You ſhall ſee that in all theſe Jeſus Chriſt is advanced farr above all Creatures, and enjoyeth them all in that tranſcendent manner as no Creature doth, either Angels or men.

First, Jeſus Chriſt hath ſuch pleaſure as no Creature hath. For that, take Pſal. 45. whe he ſpeaks of Chriſt as exalted at God's right hand, and ſpeaking of his Throne, ſaith he, verſe 6. Thy Throne O God is for ever and ever, the Scepter of the Kingdom is a right Scepter. He ſpeaks of him as inſtalled into his Kingdom. What followeth? Becauſe thou loveſt Righteouſneſs and hateſt Wickedneſs, therefore God hath anointed thee with the Oyl of gladneſs above thy fellows. Here is you ſee an anointing with joy and gladneſs above his fellows, in this regard therefore he is above all Principality and Power and all things elſe; Why? Becauſe he is nearer the Fountain than all Creatures are, for he is one Perſon with the Son of God, and the communication of God, and all the fulneſs of the Godhead to him muſt needs be ſo much the more greater by how much the union is nearer. As he had the neareſt union that any Creature could have to be one Perſon with the Godhead, ſo he hath the joys of God, which none elſe can have. While he was upon the Earth he was a man of ſorrows, ſuch as no man had; ſo now when he cometh to Heaven, as his ſorrows abounded ſo his joys alſo abound. As he was the firſt of many Brethren in reſpect of affliction, ſo he is anointed with Oyl of gladneſs above his fellows; for he hath not only the joys of God to be his, but the joys of all his Children, they are alſo his, therefore he bids them be holy, that my joy may be full ſaith he, I rejoyce in it ſaith he, I rejoyce in it ſaith he more than you; for as the Apoſtle ſaith, you are my Crown and my joy; ſo Chriſt hath joy in all.

Secondly, Take Rule and Dominion, that is moſt proper to the Text indeed, he hath a Rule and Dominion far above all things. Rev. 3. 21. Te ſhall ſit with me in my Throne, even as I alſo am ſet down with my Father in his Throne. What is the meaning of that Scripture? This in a word, As I am glorified, ſo ſhall ye be glorified, and I have communicated to you a kind of Rule, a kind of ſufferage at the day of Judgment, but this is peculiar to the Son, to the Lord Jeſus Chriſt to ſit in the Fathers Throne.

So likewiſe for Glory, which is the Third thing meant by ſitting at God's right hand. He hath ſuch glory in Heaven, that could a man ſee him ſitting in Heaven, and all the Angels about him, he would ſay that is the Son of God preſently. Set a King among his Nobles, and you could not know one from another, if he would conceal his outward ſtate; but ſet the Perſon of Chriſt amongſt Angels, you would preſently ſay that is the Son of God, We ſaw his glory ſay they, as the glory of the only begotten Son of God; when they had but a glimpſe of it in his transfiguration. There is ſuch a glory ſhineth in the perſon of Jeſus Chriſt as he is far above all Angels and Men, he is the Son of righteouſneſs, therefore he is ſaid to be the Image of the inviſible God, ſo as no Men or Angels are, and the brightneſs of his Fathers glory, which they are not, it is ſpoken of him as he is Man; for otherwiſe as he is God he is as inviſible as God himſelf. Therefore as the actions of the Son of God are higher than the actions of men, for you ſee they are of infinite worth, which Mens good works and Angels are not, ſo the glory of God-man, the Son of God is more than all the glory of Angels or the glory of all the Sons of men whatſoever, it is of another kind.

Hence

Hence it cometh to paſs that our Saviour Chriſt is to be worſhipped, for you ſee he hath that glory that no Creature hath, take him as he is Man ſitting at God's right hand, he is to be worſhipped, which no Creature is. Saith he, Heb. 1. 6. When he bringeth his Son into the World he ſaith, Let all the Angels of God worſhip him. It is ſpoken of his ſecond coming, as I could open at large. And Pſal. 45, 10. there the Church is ſaid to ſtand at Chriſt's right hand, and one would think ſhe were mightily exalted; what followeth? Verſe 12. Daughter (ſaith God,) he is thy Lord and worſhip thou him. You ſhall find that this is part of Chriſt's exaltation in Phil. 2. 10. that all worſhip that is to be performed unto God ſhould be done in his name, Wherefore (ſaith he,) hath God highly exalted him and given him a name above every name, that in (it is not at the name, but in,) the name of Jeſus every knee ſhould bow; that is, that all worſhip ſhould be put up to him in the name of Chriſt. This is that prerogative which no Creature hath or was fit to have, this glory God would give to none but to the Man Chriſt exalted in Heaven, yea, let me add this, that this began to be done when he did aſcend up into Heaven. Sermon XXX.

I have wondred ſome times at that ſpeech, Joh. 16. 24. Hitherto ye have asked nothing in my name. When he taught them the Lords Prayer, one would have thought they ſhould have been taught to make their prayers in the name of Jeſus Chriſt, as we are taught to do by the Apoſtle; but he was not then Aſcended, this at his name every knee ſhall bow, he muſt ſuffer for it firſt and then enter into this glory. Therefore Rom. 8. 34. you have his ſitting at God's right hand and his interceding for us joyned together.

This is the reaſon why Jeſus Chriſt is ſo jealous that he will not uſe the mediation of Saints in Heaven as the Papiſts do, which is flat Idolatry. Why? Becauſe he is in Heaven the only Mediator. Here on Earth you muſt indeed ſpeak to Men to pray for you, but if you ſpeak to any in Heaven to pray for you Chriſt is jealous of it, for it is part of his glory to ſit on God's right hand and to be the only Mediator, and that not only in his name ſhould Prayers be put up, but that none elſe ſhould be imployed to put up prayers beſides. Therefore the worſhipping of Saints is flat Idolatry becauſe Jeſus Chriſt is in Heaven, and it is his only prerogative to intercede for us, it is a part of his right and glory.

Theſe Prerogatives are far above what ever any Creature hath, and ſo now I have done with the intention of his exaltation, He is exalted far above all Principality, &c.

Sermon XXXII.

SERMON XXXII.

EPHES. I. 21, 22.

Far above all Principality and Power, and Might and Dominion, and every Name that is named, not only in this world, but alſo in that which is to come.

And hath put all things under his feet, &c.

THe ſcope of the Apoſtle in theſe words is by way of amplification to ſet forth unto us the glorious exaltation of our Lord and Head Jeſus Chriſt. He had deſcribed his exaltation in the words before under this Metaphor, He ſet him at his own right hand in the Heavenly places. Here he goeth on to amplifie and ſet him forth, as before under a ſimilitude of ſitting at God's right hand, comparing God to a great King, and Chriſt to his eldeſt Son that ſitteth in his Throne inveſted with that power which God himſelf ſhould execute. But here now in theſe words he ſetteth him forth to us by theſe Three things.

In the Firſt place, by inſtancing in the greateſt powers, in the moſt excellent things that are; he inſtanceth in the beſt, to ſhew that he is ſet over all, He is exalted (ſaith he,) far above all Principality and Power, Might and Dominion.

In the Second place, leſt he ſhould not have mentioned all, he addeth, And every Name that is named.

Thirdly, To ſhew that it is as over all, ſo every where, he mentioneth both worlds, Not only in this world, (ſaith he,) but alſo in that which is to come.

Fourthly, He addeth the lowneſs of the ſubjection that all Principality and Power, &c, hath to him, in the the 22. verſe, And hath put (ſaith he,) all things under his feet.

Now then to begin Firſt with this, to ſhew you the exaltation of Chriſt in reſpect of all perſons, degrees of perſons whatſoever, He is exalted far above. I opened that far above in my laſt diſcourſe, and I will not now repeat any thing. The perſons here they are Principalities and Powerr, Might and Dominion.

He goeth on here indeed to follow the ſimilitude he had begun. He had compared God to a great King, Heaven to his Court where he hath his Throne; Jeſus Chriſt to his eldeſt Son that did uſe to ſit in the Throne and no ſubject elſe; And yet theſe Kings had Nobles, they had Rulers of great place and authority under them in all their Dominions. He preſenteth here Chriſt ſitting upon the Throne of God the Father as his eldeſt Son, ſo he mentioneth all ſorts of underrulers, of Nobles that belong to any of his Dominions, Principalites and Powers, Might and Dominion. He inſtanceth in theſe as being the moſt excellent, and if he be over theſe, and far above theſe, and hath theſe under his feet, then how high muſt this exaltation of Chriſt be?

The

Sermon XXXII.

The glory of a King, you know, lieth not only in having Subjects, but in having Subjects of ſubordinate ranks. There are the Common People, and there are the Nobleſſe, (as they call them,) the Gentry, and then there are the Nobles over them; and ſo by this ſubordination of powers doth the glory of a King appear. As you ſee it is in this Kingdom, and ſo eſpecially in thoſe Eaſtern Monarchies, (the language of which the Scripture ſpeaks in,) which remain to this day more abſolute than our European Princes are; as in Perſia, you read in Eſth. 1. 14. of ſeven that were Counſellors of Media and Perſia, and then you read of Nobles and Rulers over all the 127. Provinces, that were under them. And to this day, the Great Turk hath his Baſhaws, whereof every one is as great as European Kings are, and under them they have their Governours likewiſe, and it is a tyranny, a ſuperiority downward; and by all theſe, (when they appear before the Great Turk, they fall down upon their faces and ly at his feet,) doth appear the greatneſs of that Monarch. So it it is here, here is God's eldeſt Son having all Principalities and Powers in any World you can imagine ly at his feet.

Now then to open unto you Firſt, what is meant by theſe expreſſions, Principalities, Powers, Might and Dominion. It is as if you ſhould ſpeak according to the Language of England, there are Deputies, (as you know there is the Deputy of Ireland,) and Dukes, and Marqueſſes, and Earls, &c. Or in Turky there are Viſiers, Baſhawes and Beglerbegs, theſe are the Titles of their Nobles; So is it here, here is Principality and Power, and Might and Dominion.

A parallel place with this is that in Coloſ. 1. 16. (the order indeed is inverted, for that the Apoſtle ſtands not upon,) By him (ſaith he,) all things were Created that are in Heaven and that are in Earth, viſible and inviſible, whether they be Thrones, or Dominions, or Principalities, or Powers. Here in the Text, he leaveth out Thrones, but inſtead of it putteth in Might, there's all the difference, and he meaneth authorities of governments both viſible and inviſible, in this World and the World to come.

It is hard to diſtinguiſh the ſubordination of theſe, only we are certain of this, that by ἀρχῆς, which we tranſlate here Principality, ſupream Magiſtrates are meant; that by ἐξουσίας, Powers, ordinary Powers, inferior Magiſtrates are meant. By Might, may be meant any Power that hath force in it, as your tyranical Power hath. And by Dominion, thoſe lower kinds of Lordſhip that Maſters have over Families, Parents have over Children. So as he doth inſtance both in the higheſt and in the loweſt. His ſcope is to take all governments in, that is certain. Therefore in 1 Cor. 15. 24. he ſpeaks there how that Jeſus Chriſt will put all governments down, and he mentioneth Three of thoſe that are here in the Text, He ſhall deliver up the Kingdom to his Father when he ſhall have put down all Rule, the word is ἀρχῆς, that which we tranſlate Principality, and all Authority, the word is the ſame which we tranſlate Power, here in the Text, and Power, the word is the ſame that is tranſlated Might, in the Text.

Now, it is enough to us that the Apoſtle doth here intend theſe two things.

Firſt, A ſubordination of Powers, of higher Powers and lower Powers.

Secondly, That he doth intend all ſorts of Power, all Rule, Power and Authority whatſoever, and that in either Worlds.

Now, To open what ſhould be meant by theſe Powers here that are thus ſubordinate one to another which the Apoſtle here intendeth.

We find theſe names, Principalities and Powers, Might and Dominion, given to Three ſorts of Rulers.

To good Angels.
To bad Angels.
To Men that are Magiſtrates in this World.

Sermon XXXII.

Then the Question will be, Which of all these should be meant here?

I will shew you First, that these Titles and Terms here used are given to all these Three sorts.

They are First applied to Men, to Magistrates, Tit. 3. 1. he biddeth them be subject to Principalities and Powers, to obey Magistrates. And in the 8*th.* verse of the Epistle of Jude, you have κυριότητα, which is another word here used, you have that mentioned there too, Dominion. So that these are applied to Magistrates upon Earth. That is the First.

Then we have them applied to good Angels, they are called Principalities and Powers too. Besides that place in the 1 of Colos. verse 16. which I mentioned even now, all things visible and invisible, whether they be Thrones or Dominions or Principalities or Powers; there are invisible Thrones and Dominions, and Principalities and Powers; besides that place take that in Ephes. 3. 10. To the intent, that now unto the Principalities and Powers in Heavenly places, might be made known by the Church, the manifold wisdom of God. He sheweth the scope of the preaching of the Gospel, it was that the Angels who are imploied about the affairs of this World, (which he calleth therefore Principalities and Powers,) they coming to the Sermons preached in the Church, (as they do having occasion to come down into the World,) that to them might be made known by the Church, the manifold wisdom of God.

Then Thirdly you find these are put for bad Angels, for Devils; for that take Ephes. 6. 12. We wrestle not against Flesh and Blood; that is with Mankind only, we do not only wrestle with Kings and Emperors, and the great men of the World, but against Principalities and Powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this World. And if you will have a clear place for it, it is Colos. 2. 15. where it is said, that Christ spoiled Principalities and Powers, and made a shew of them openly, triumphing over them in it.

Here now is the Question, Which of all these Three should be here meant, whether the Rulers of this World, or whether bad Angels, or good Angels, or all of them?

In a word, my Brethren, that which I shall tell you is this, that the Apostle meaneth here all these. I will give you my Reasons why, for he speaks of the advancement of Christ, not only above one sort of Principality and Power, but above all Principality and Power, Might and Dominion; not only in one World, but he hath set him (saith he) in Heavenly places, far above all Principalities and powers; therefore above good Angels, that are Principalities and Powers in Heavenly places: And because he would be sure to include all, saith he, Every name that is named; because he would take in all Worlds, saith he, in this World and in that which is to come; and as in his Epistle to the Colos. he expresseth it, visible and invisible, in Heaven and in Earth.

I will give you but one parallel place for it, where you shall find that Christ is said to sit at God's right hand, above Angels and all Principalities and Powers whatsoever. It is 1 Pet. 3. 22. He is gon into Heaven, (saith he,) and is on the right hand of God, (it is the same that the Text saith,) Angels, and Authorities, and Powers, being made subject unto him. Here you see all sorts are taken in, Angels and Men on Earth. That which the Text saith, All Principalities and Powers, and every name that is named in this World, and in the World to come; Peter saith, Angels and Authorities and Powers, be they what they will be. So that now all is meant.

Only my Brethren, for explication sake I will say but these Two things, whereof the First is this, That the Apostle's scope is not to reckon up all the orders and ranks of Powers on Earth, or Powers in Heaven, or amongst the Devils, for what they are we know not; he doth not instance in all the particulars, therefore he bringeth in this general, Every name that is named. It doth not follow that there are no more; and but so many; neither indeed is it much how we distinguish them; it is enough that there are subordination of Powers in all these Worlds, and that all these subordinations are subject unto him.

The

The Second thing that I would add is this, That the governments of this World, which are called you know Principalities and Powers; they are used as expreſſions to ſignifie out unto us the governments in the other Worlds, or if you will, Inviſible governments, that is the better expreſſion of the two. That though there be a ſubordination of Angels amongſt themſelves, yet he doth expreſs it by the ſame Names that the Governments here below are expreſt, of Principalities and Powers, and Might and Dominion; for this World is a Scheme of the other World, and the government of this viſible World, is a ſhadow of the government of the inviſible World. Sermon XXXII.

I will add a Third thing, and that is this; That if the Apoſtle ſpeaks here of Angels, as certainly he doth, both good and bad, his ſcope is not to ſhew by theſe ſeveral titles, ſeveral actions of Angels, but ſeveral ranks of Angels diſtinct, though expreſt to us under what is here in this World. That is clear from Coloſſ. 1. 16. Things viſible, or inviſible; whether (ſaith he) they be Thrones or Dominions, or Principalities or Powers. That ſame word, ἄτε, Whether, implieth that they are diſtinct. It is not, that the ſame Angel is ſometimes a Throne, and ſometimes a Dominion, uſed in ſeveral works; but as amongſt men there are ſeveral Offices, ſo likewiſe amongſt them.

So much now in the general, for the explication of this, Principality and Power, Might and Dominion.

Now then, of the Governours of this World there is no queſtion. But all the queſtion is of the Inviſible governments the Angels, good and bad, which here Jeſus Chriſt is ſaid to have under his feet, that are called Principalities and Powers. I will handle them both together, and manifeſt unto you, That there is a ſubordination (what we know not) of Angels, of Inviſible governments, both good and bad, in reſpect of which they are (as the Scripture calleth them) Principalities and Powers, both the one and the other. I ſhall ſhew you the Subordination or the Superiority that there is both amongſt themſelves, and alſo over this World, in ordering the affairs thereof. There is a ſubordination both of good and bad Angels amongſt themſelves, and there is likewiſe a ſubordination in reſpect of ordering the affairs of this World; and over all theſe is Jeſus Chriſt ſo far above, as that they are all under his feet.

Firſt, for the Angels among themſelves. It is a clear caſe of the bad Angels; for of the Devils it is ſaid, Matt. 12. 24. that there is Beelzebub, the Prince of the Devils. And in the ſame place, (for it was an Objection made againſt Chriſt, That he caſt out Devils by the power of the Prince of the Devils.) Our Saviour Chriſt anſwereth at the 25*th* verſe, Every Kingdom divided againſt it ſelf cannot ſtand; if Satan caſt out Satan, he is divided againſt himſelf, how ſhall then his Kingdom ſtand? He compareth them to a Kingdom, and he compareth them to a Kingdom for this, that as in a Kingdom there is a power Superiour and Subordinate, ſo there is amongſt them.

In Epheſ. 2. 2. the Apoſtle ſpeaks of the Prince of the power of the Air. By Power there he certainly meaneth the Devils, who are called Principality and Power, the ſame name ἐξουσίας; and by ἄρχοντα, their Prince, he certainly meaneth the great Devil, that great Serpent that tempted Adam; he calleth all the reſt in the Singular Number, becauſe they all agree together in one for miſchief, they are as one Army, and as one Kingdom, whereof he is the General; he is ἄρχων. Therefore our Saviour Chriſt calleth him, the Prince of this World. And, if you mark it, our Saviour Chriſt doth not deny (in that place I quoted before,) but that the great Devil, he could have commanded the leſſer Devils out; only he ſaith this, he confuteth them another way, ſaith he, It is impoſſible he ſhould be ſo fooliſh to do ſo, for then he muſt divide his Kingdo againſt himſelf. There lieth our Saviour's reaſon; he denieth not but that great Devil could have commanded the leſſer, for he is the Prince of D he is the Prince of the power of the Air, that is, of all the whole Devils that are in the Air, who are but one power, one force, a it.

Sermon XXXII.

I might urge this likewise from that in Ephes. 6.12. where they are called, as Principalities and Powers, so they are called the Rulers of this World. As Rulers of the World (they are Rulers in that respect,) so Principalities and Powers amongst themselves; ἀρχὰς and ἐξουσίας, they are both Principalities and Powers, some are Chief, and some are Inferiour; for by ἐξουσία, or Potestas, is meant Inferiour Magistrates, unless the word Higher be added for distinctions sake, as *Rom.*13.1. Let every Soul be subject to the Higher Powers.

So much now for the Devils, that there is a subordination amongst them; there are Principalities and Powers among them, and there is one chief ἄρχων, that is, the Prince of Devils; the Prince of this World, as our Saviour calleth him, and the Prince of the power of the Air.

Then come to the good Angels, and you shall find the like. In *Dan.*10.13. there cometh an Angel to Daniel, and (as I shall shew you anon) he was a created Angel; but however that is not to the purpose whether he was or no. He cometh to Daniel, and speaks of another Angel besides himself. He saith, There was an Angel that touched him, and bad him not fear, and excuseth why he had not come to him sooner, though his Prayers were heard many daies before; so you read verse 12. Saith he, verse 13. The Prince of the Kingdom of Persia withstood me one and twenty daies; But lo, (saith he) Michael, one of the chief Princes came to help me, and I remained there with the Kings of Persia.

To open these words unto you.

Here are two Angels spoken of, whereof one mentioneth the other. There is one appeareth to Daniel, and telleth him a story of Michael, another Angel; and if you mark it, he saith this Michael is the first of the Chief Princes. Certainly he is compared with those of his own rank, he is not compared with the Chief Princes of this World, with Men; it is certainly in respect of Angels; if so, then there are Chief Princes amongst them; and in Dan. 12. 1. Then shall Michael stand up, the great Prince, &c. who is the first of the chief Princes. And they are called Chief Princes too, in respect of others of their own rank, namely Angels, who are not of the Chief Magistracy as those Princes are said to be of, for you must make all Comparisons in respect of the same kind. This word here, the First, or One, it doth not alwaies imply one that is above the rest in Authority, but it is used of the first in Number; as in all Bodies where there is an Aristocracy, where you have many that are Chief Magistrates, there is one that is first in rank, first in number, as Peter was amongst the Apostles; and as it is in *Gen.*1.5. that which we translate the first day, it is One day, so the word signifieth, that is, the first in number; for we say, One in reckoning two, three, &c. So this great Angel here, he was the first of the rank of the chief Magistracy of Heaven.

I will not determine, as some have undertaken to do, not Papists only, but Protestants, and that of late, that there are Seven of these Chief Princes, Angels. There is an Old Tradition amongst the Rabbins, it is older than Christ, and it is in the Book of Tobit, where the Angel is brought in speaking to Tobias, I am Raphael (saith he) one of the Seven Angels that stand ministring before the Holy One. I will not, I say, insist upon that, for I know indeed no full ground for it in the Book of God, though there are many pretty allusions to make it good, as the Seven Spirits that stand before the Throne of God, mentioned both in Zachariah and in the Revelation, which say they, are these Seven Chief Angels.

I will not stand confuting of this, only there is one Argument against it, which I never yet saw answered; That in the Revelation cannot be meant of the Seven Angels, for in the first Chapter, he wisheth Grace and Peace from God, and from the Seven Spirits that are before his Throne, and from Jesus Christ, &c. He would never have wished Grace and Peace from Archangels and left the Holy Ghost out, and so rank them with the Father and the Son. We find evidently, that this Michael that is here in Daniel, called the first of the Princes, in the 9*th* verse of the Epistle of Jude he is called an Archangel, as Christ you know is called, the Great Shepherd and Bishop of our Souls, or as you say here, an Archbishop, so he is called here an Archangel.

And

And it its certain, the Angel there mentioned in Jude was not Chriſt; Why? Becauſe it is ſaid, that When he diſputed with the Devil about the body of Moſes, he durſt not bring; Mark that word, He durſt not. Our Saviour Chriſt was not incarnate when Moſes died, how can it be ſaid of the Son of God, that he durſt not? It muſt be ſpoken of the Second Perſon, if that Interpretation hold, for he was not then Incarnate; therefore it is certain he was a created Angel that is called there an Archangel. And in 1 *Theſſ.*4.16. you ſhall find mention made of the voice of The Archangel, not the voice of An Archangel; but the Lord ſhall deſcend with the voice of the Archangel; ſo that he is diſtinguiſhed from Chriſt, ſo as it is not Chriſt.

Sermon XXXII.

Now the Notion I drive it to is this: Here is a ſubordination you ſee, here are your chief Princes, which for my part I think are Archangels, whereof this Michael is one, the firſt in order, as Peter was the firſt of the Apoſtles, though they were equal. For I find this in Coloſſ. 1.16. where he reckoneth your inviſible Magiſtracy, he doth not reckon any one in Heaven as Supream and alone above all the reſt; but he reckoneth Thrones and Dominions. What is meant by Thrones? Thoſe that have Kingly power, Superiour power; for by Thrones is alwaies meant the power of Kings. Now he doth not ſay, there is one Throne, one Angel in Heaven above all the reſt in authority, as a King is over his Subjects; but he makes an Ariſtocracy of it, he ſaith they are Thrones, like ſo many Kings; for the ſeven Counſellors of the Kings of Perſia, are called Kings in *Dan.*10.13. I remained there, ſaith he, with the Kings of Perſia; which were the ſeven Counſellors mentioned in *Eſth.*1.14. Therefore the King of Perſia is called a King of Kings.

So now, there are Thrones indeed in Heaven amongſt the Angels, there are thoſe that are the chief Princes, that are as Kings in compariſon of the reſt, whereof this Michael is the firſt; but there is not in Heaven one Angel above all the reſt, I know no ground for that.

And I have this further Reaſon to ſecond it, The difference between Heaven and Hell: For in Hell there is a Kingdom ſet up againſt Chriſt, and that is reſolved into a Monarchy; but in Heaven, though ſome (I know not how many) are Thrones, yet they are all under one King, who is the King of Kings, the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, he is the King of Angels, the Head of all Principalities and Powers, and there is not one created Angel over all the reſt. They are called Thrones, I ſay, not a Throne, when he ſpeaks of Inviſible Governments, *Coloſſ.*1.17.

Only there is that objected in *Revel.*12.7. where it is ſaid, that Michael and his Angels, fought againſt the Dragon and his Angels. And it is certain, though Angels are not intended there, yet it is an alluſion unto them. It is plain, Angels are not intended there, for it is ſaid verſe 11. that thoſe Angels overcame by the Blood of the Lamb, and that they loved not their lives unto the death. Yet however, the alluſion is to this great Angel, that is, the firſt of the Chief Princes; and becauſe he is the firſt, the firſt in order, the firſt in number, (that preheminence indeed Daniel giveth him,) therefore the reſt are called his Angels; but yet he is not their Prince by way of authority, as the great Beelzebub is amongſt the Devils.

You ſhall find this, (to confirm this Notion) that the Angels are in their ſeveral Charges (a multitude of them) ſubordinate to ſome one, and that thoſe have the government of the reſt it ſhould ſeem by that in Daniel, where there is mention made of many that are Chief Princes.

I will give you a Scripture or two. You ſhall find in the ſecond of Luke, that to the Shepherds in the Field an Angel is ſaid to appear, one Angel is ſtill mentioned for a long while; And lo, the Angel of the Lord came upon them, ſo verſe 9. And the Angel ſaid, Fear not, ſo verſe 10. But at verſe 13. And ſuddenly there was with the Angel a multitude of the Heavenly hoſt. He doth not ſay All the Heavenly hoſt; this was not the chief Angel of all the reſt of the Angels, that brought them all down; it was but a Multitude of them. The truth is, here is the Hoſt and their General, their Colonel, as you may call him, thoſe Angels that were of his Company, it goes under his name, he ſaith it;

And

And suddenly there was with him, that is, there appeared together with him; he appeared first and spake, but they all came down from Heaven together. And in *Psal.*34.7. (to speak still in the language of Souldiers, for they are called the heavenly Host, amongst which there is the greatest order,) it is said, The Angel of the Lord encampeth about them that fear him. Yet you shall find in *Psal.*91.11 He shall give his Angels charge over thee: Nay, one Man hath more than one Angel; these Litt le ones (saith Christ) they have their Angels. And *Luk.*16.22. The Angels, (not Angel only,) but The Angels did fetch the Soul out of Lazarus's body, and carry it to Heaven. But why is it said in that 34*th Psalm*, One Angel encampeth? His meaning is, the Angel and his Host; as you say, Such a Colonel besieged such a City, or quartered in such a Town, meaning him and his Host: so one Angel and his Company, for one Angel you know cannot properly be said to encamp, there must be to encamp or besiege a place, a Multitude; yet it goeth under his name, because he is the Chief.

So that now, both among good and bad Angels you see there are some that are Chief; there is the Angel and his Host, his Company, that are Centurions (as it were,) or if you will, that are Governours of more. So much now for their Subordination one to another, for that was the first thing, they are Principalites and Powers, by Principalities is meant your Chief Magistrates, and by Powers is meant your Lower Magistrates. You see there are Chief of the Princes amongst Angels, that have others under them; therefore in *Zach.*2.3,4. you find that one Angel appeared and another met him, and the first Angel speaks to the other as one speaks to one that is under him; Go, saith he, run and tell the Prophet, that Jerusalem shall be inhabited. He speaks as the Centurion did to his Servants, He saith unto one go, and he goeth. So much I say for this first thing, That both good and bad Angels have subordination amongst themselves. There is Principalities and Powers.

But in the Second place, They are said to be Principalities and Powers, as amongst themselves so in respect of their government of the affairs of this World. My Brethren, You do not know all the Governours you have; you have not only Kings and Parliaments, and men to rule over you, or that do dispatch and manage the affairs of this World; but you have good Angels and bad Angels, you have Principalities and Powers of both sorts, that do manage the affairs of the World invisibly; Visible and invisible, saith he, *Colos.*1.17.

First, for the bad Angels, There is a most expres place for it; it is that in *Ephes.*6.12. he calleth them, as Principalities and Powers, so Rulers of the darkness of this World; we translate it so, but those that know the Original, know it is this κοσμοκράτορας, they make but one word of it, Rulers of this World, and the darkness of it. And if the bad Angels be thus, the good Angels are much more, my Brethren.

I will give you but a Scripture for it, and it may be it will include both; it is *Heb.*2.5. Unto the Angels, hath he not put in subjection the World to come, whereof we speak? Mark his expression, he distinguisheth; There is a World indeed, saith he, that is not subject to the Angels, the World to come; implying that this World is subject to the Angels, to bad Angels, as to Plunderers, and Robbers, and Murtherers from the beginning, and sowers of all dissention in Kingdoms and Nations, (as you shall see by and by,) that set King, and People, and all together by the ears.

And there are likewise good Angels, that this World is subject to, the World to come is not (as I shall shew you anon likewise,) and it is subject unto them as the preservers of it, and as the opposers and fighters against these Evil Angels that would bring all to confusion.

You therefore find that the Angels, both good and bad, are called gods; it is a title you know given to Magistrates, I have said ye are gods. And it is only due to the Civil Magistrate, it is not due to Spiritual Rulers, they are no where called gods; Why? Because their power is not in a way of command, but their power is in a way of revealing the truth, and so working upon mens Consciences, they are therefore no where called gods, no not the Apostles themselves, for they they have not dominion over the Faith. But ye have good Angels and bad Angels called gods as well as Magiſtrates here below, and they are therefore called ſo becauſe they are Rulers. Of the Devil there is an expreſs place, 2 Cor. 4. 4. where the Apoſtle calleth him the God of this World, it is all one with that in Joh. 12. 31. where he is called the Prince of this World. He is by the Apoſtle in one place called the God of this World, and by Chriſt in another the Prince of this World; and you have as clear a place that the good Angels are called gods too, and that in this reſpect, it is in Pſal. 97. 2. worſhip him all ye gods; now look in Heb. 1. 6. where the Apoſtle quoteth it, and interpreteth it to be meant of the Good Angels, Let all the Angels of God worſhip him; they are gods, and gods becauſe they are chief Princes as you heard before. Sermon XXXII.

The Scripture is exceeding expreſs for this. It is true that God ruleth the hearts of his Children by his Spirit only in matters ſpiritual, for he will have none have the credit of being the Author ſo much as of a good thought, (take it ſpiritually,) but only his own Spirit; But yet he ruleth the World and the ſpirits of men ſo far forth as concerneth civil things, yea, and their actions ſo far forth as they are in Ordine ad ſpiritualia, in order to ſpiritual things, the hearts of Kings and Princes and People for the good of his Church, he ruleth them much by Angels.

I will open to you but that place of Daniel I quoted even now, Dan. 10. both the 13. and the 20. and the 21. verſes, and Chap. 11. verſe 1. compared all together. In Chap. 10. verſe 13. there is (as I ſaid before,) an Angel, (and to me it is plain he was a created Angel,) that cometh and telleth Daniel that the Prince of the Kingdom of Perſia had withſtood him Twenty One Days; and verſe 20. I will return (ſaith he,) to fight with the Prince of Perſia; and Chap. 11. ver. 1. I am that Angel (ſaith he,) that in the firſt year of Darius the Mede, did ſtir him up, and I did confirm and ſtrengthen him when he gave out the Edict to let the People of God out of Captivity; for it was Darius did it, you read indeed of Cyrus, but Darius was the King, and Cyrus was his General. Now, this Angel here was certainly a created Angel. I will give you theſe Reaſons for it.

Firſt, he doth excuſe himſelf to Daniel why he did not come ſooner to bring him the meſſage from God which he brought. I was diſturbed ſaith he, I had other buſines, the Prince of the Kingdom of Perſia withſtood me Twenty one days, ſo that I could not come ſooner though thou prayedſt and thy words were heard ſooner. He was therefore a created Angel, for had he been the Son of God he could both have revealed it to Daniel and withſtood the Prince of Perſia too.

And then he was a created Angel, becauſe he ſaith verſe 13. that Michael came to help him. If he had been the Son of God he might have done it alone.

And then, (which is as much as any of the reſt,) when he left me (ſaith he,) I remained with the Kings of Perſia. If he had been the Son of God he had been every where, he could not have been ſaid to remain there alone ſtill to tranſact that buſines he was imploied in. So that to me it is clear he was a created Angel.

Now the Queſtion is, What is meant by the Prince of Perſia, for if you mark it there is both the Prince of the Kingdom of Perſia and the Kings of Perſia mentioned diſtinctly in verſe 13.

There are ſome, (and if it be true 'tis all one to my purpoſe,) that ſay, that this Prince of the Kingdom of Perſia that withſtood this Angel, was Cyrus himſelf, or Cambyſes his Son whom he left in his room to govern the Kingdom while he was in Scythia; for though that Cyrus in the firſt yeer after he had taken Babylon being General of the Army, had given liberty to the People of the Jews to come out of Captivity, yet you ſhall find elſe where that this Cyrus recalled his grant, for we read in Nehemiah that they were forced to ceaſe the work from the days of Cyrus. Now ſaith the Angel when the Enemies came and ſuggeſted to Cyrus to recal his grant, and there was a great conſultation about it, a conſultation of 21. days, I remained ſaith he at the Court of Perſia and did all I could to perſwade and ſtrengthen the heart of Cyrus, but I was withſtood in what I would have accompliſhed by the hard and obſtinate ſpirit of the Prince of the Kingdom of Perſia, but there came one to help me and then I prevailed; and ſaith he becauſe the ſpirit of the Prince is ſlippery and apt to return to it ſelf again, I am left with him and his Counſellors.

Sermon XXXII.

Here you see now that this was a created Angel that dealt with the hearts of Princes, he dealt with the heart of Cyrus in the great affairs of the Kingdom of Persia, to move him to deliver the People out of captivity.

You have likewise this same Michael whom I have mentioned so often, that Archangel, that he came to help him, and to shew you that this Michael was a created Angel, (I shewed you it before out of the Epistle of Jude,) you shall find in verse 21. that he is called their Prince, and Chap. 12.1. At that time shall Michael stand up, the great Prince which standeth for the Children of thy People; he was the great Angel that did transact the affairs for the Jews: For my part I know not otherwise how it should be, it is plain he was a created Angel; and it is as plain that he is called their Prince in a special manner, the Prince of this people of the Jews, therefore this other Angel that was left with the Kings of Persia to transact the affairs there, when he could not prevail with Cyrus, he called in this Michael one of the chief of the Princes to help and assist him. And read Chap. 11. verse 1. there you shall see this Angel saith that he did deal with Darius the Mede, and caused him to grant out that Decree for the building of the Temple, I stood (saith he,) to confirm and strengthen him.

So you see that these good Angels, (for these were all good businesses,) they have a great stroke in Kingdoms for the good of the Church; yea they are called their Princes, Michael your Prince, as having a special care over that People of the Jews, and by God, (for that time at least,) designed unto it.

Now my Brethren, for my part I must confess that I rather think this Prince of the Kingdom of Persia to be an evil Angel than to be the King of Persia himself, and my reason is this, because the King of Persia both Cyrus and Cambyses, (for there were two of them,) are afterward mentioned by a distinct word from what is used of the Prince of the Kingdom of Persia. I was left (saith he,) with the Kings of Persia, there he speaks of men, now when he saith the Prince of the Kingdom of Persia, as distinct from them, I think he meaneth plainly the Devil.

And I have this further reason for it, because he saith, I will return to fight with the Prince of Persia; not that Angels in matters of the Church do oppose by way of fighting, for he saith Chap. 10. verse 13. that the Prince of the Kingdom of Persia withstood him, he could not suggest that which he would to Cyrus but the Devil did oppose him; as now in Revel. 12. it is said there was Michael and his Angels fought with the Dragon and his Angels; though it be an allusion yet it argueth thus much, that there is opposition between Angel and Angel. And so when it is said verse 20. When I am gon forth the Prince of Grecia shall come, there will another wicked Angel come, (for they call one another,) as Michael helped the other good Angel, so the Prince of Grecia would help the bad one, for the Devil knew well enough that the Empire would come to Greece, and that the Jews if they were kept in Captivity would fall into the hands of the Grecian Monarch, and so their Captivity should have been continued I know not how long, and so the Prince of Grecia that wicked Angel that was deputed at that time for the affairs of Greece cometh and joyneth with the Prince of the Kingdom of Persia both against this Angel, for the Prince of Persia withstood the delivery of the People out of Captivity.

Now my Brethren, if this interpretation will not hold, (the other place in Ephes. 6. shewed that the bad Angels do deal and are rulers in this World,) I have at least made this good out of this place, that the good Angels deal in the government of the things of this world, and they have a peculiar allotment, Michael is called their Prince. The like you have in Revel. 12. where Michael and his Angels fought against the Dragon and his Angels.

Now, I yield you that this is but an allusion, and that the scope is to set out the opposition that is made by wicked men on Earth against the godly here; but yet the allusion is to the fight that is between good and bad Angels. And I will tell you what the occasion was in Daniel. The occasion was, whether the People of Israel should be delivered out of Captivity or no, whether the Temple should go on on to be built; the Devil oppoſed it, and that Angel that appeared to Daniel, and Michael they furthered this, and dealt with the Kings of Perſia to that purpoſe. Sermon XXXII.

So in that Revel. 12. there is the like fight, (there beginneth the Book propheecy, and it beginneth as almoſt all Interpreters agree with the primitive times,) there is the Dragon and his Angels; it is plainly meant of the Devil, for he calleth him the old Serpent, the accuſer of the Brethren. If you read the 3. verſe of that Chapter, you ſhall ſee that this Dragon had ſeven Heads and ten Horns, by which is alwaies meant the Roman Empire. So that it is evident that it was the Devil in the Roman Empire ſtirring up that ſtate againſt the Church. The Devil and his Angels is ſaid to have ten Horns and ſeven Heads and ſeven Crowns upon his Heads, it is the Hierarchy of the Roman Empire, for while it was Heathenish the Devil always wrought in it, therefore that Empire is called the Dragon and his Angels.

On the other ſide you have the Apoſtles and the faithful men that did endeavour to ſet up Chriſt, and you have Michael and his Angels aſſiſt theſe men againſt the Devil in the Roman Empire; even juſt as you ſaw before in that place of Daniel, there was Angel againſt Angel, ſo there is here in this of the Revelation.

Read the whole Book of the Revelation, this which I now ſay will be one Key to it. You ſhall find that all that is ſaid to be done, is done by Angels; Such an Angel ſounded his Trumpet, ſuch an Angel powred out his Vial, &c. He ſpeaks of things done here below, Judgments upon wicked men, and good things for the Church. Why are they ſaid to be done by Angels? Becauſe theſe Angels do guide men, act Kings and Princes for to do that they do againſt Antichriſt; And the government of this World of the New Teſtament is repreſented to us rather under the notion of Angels then of Men, becauſe that Angels do ſtir up men to do what they do.

I will give you one inſtance more. You ſee now how Angels both good and bad deal in the Perſian and the Roman Monarchie. I will give you one inſtance how they did deal in the Babylonian Monarchie, and it is about cutting down Nebuchadnezzar, Angels were to execute that. Read Dan. 4. 17. he ſaith it was by the decree of the Watchers; Who were the Watchers? It was not the perſons in the Trinity; they were Angels, for it is ſaid verſe 13. The Watchman came down from Heaven? though one Angel was the executioner more eſpecially, yet he ſaith it was by the decree of the Watchers, they decreed in Heaven, the Counſel of Angels did, as being of Counſel to the great King, and one Watcher came down to execute it. Thus you ſee Angels have their hands in the great things of the World, in ruling of Kingdoms and the affairs here below.

Let me add but one inſtance about evil Angels, it is in Judg. 9. 23, 24. You read in the former Chapter how Gideon had delivered Iſrael, and he had Seventy Sons, but the men of Sechem ſet up Abimelech, a Baſtard Son of Gideons, begotten of a Strumpet out of their own Town, and put to death Seventy of the Sons of Gideon, who were lawfully begotten. Now, to avenge this what doth God do? There was a mighty diviſion followed, a great War; who was the cauſe of it? There were other viſible pretences, but the truth is the ſtirrer up of all this was an evil Spirit, for ſo it is ſaid, God ſent an evil Spirit between Abimelech and the men of Sechem, and the men of Sechem dealt treacherouſly with Abimelech, that the cruelty done to the ſeventy Sons of Gideon might come, and their blood be laid upon Abimelech their Brother which ſlew them, and upon the men of Sechem which had alſo a hand in the killing of his Brethren. Here you ſee that good Angels and bad Angels do ſtir up Kings and ſtates, one one way and the other another way. And they have thus dealt in the great Monarchies of the World, and they deal ſo in Popery too.

Sermon XXXII.

I will give you a clear instance for it. It is said, Revel. 13. 1, 2, 3. that the Dragon did give his seat to the Beast, the same Dragon and his Angels that is called the Old Serpent, Chap. 12. he saith plainly that he did give the Pope his power and his seat and great authority, and he ruleth and acts that State to this day; and therefore in 2 Thes. 2. 10. it is said that that man of sin works with all deceiveableness of Satan, and that God giveth him up to the deceivableness of error by the Devil.

Thus you see the Devil hath wrought in all the Monarchies, and doth to this day, and that Kingdom or state or any part of it that opposeth the Lord Christ, it is the Devil that works in it, and good Angels and bad Angels where there are Wars have as much to do as men have, and do oppose by suggestions to the Spirits of men, and have as great a hand in the affairs of the World as men have, they are the Rulers, the invisible Rulers of this World, they are the Principalities and Powers here in the Text, which our Lord and Saviour Christ is set over.

So then I have made this plain unto you that there are not only Principalities in this world, visible ones, but invisible ones over this World. Now in a word, to manifest this too, that our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ he is above all these, he is above Kings and Angels and Devils, they all but serve his turn, he is exalted, saith he, far above all Principalities and Powers and every name be it what it will be visible or invisible, they were all made by him, and all made for him, and they all serve him. You think Kings rule the World, it is certain that good and bad Angels rule the World more, and it is certain that Jesus Christ ruleth the World more than all these.

First, That he is above, far above good Angels, I shall not need to insist much upon it, you have a clear place for it Heb. 1. 6. Let all the Angels of God worship him. Now, to give you a Scripture out of the Old Testament, that all the Angels of God worshipped Christ, in Isa 6. 1. he saith, I saw God sitting upon his Throne, and about it stood the Cherubims, and they covered their faces with their wings; covered their faces in token of subjection, as Women cover their faces in the Church, in token of subjection, so did the Angels; now who was this that appeared then upon the Throne that the Prophet here speaks of? Read John 12. 41. Christ plainly saith it was himself, These things (saith he,) said Esaias when he saw his glory, having reference to that 6th. of Isai. So then my Brethren, they worship him, which argueth an infinite distance, for though the Worship be but a created thing, yet my desire is infinite, because I cannot reach to glorifie God as I would, and therefore it is proper only to God.

Secondly, You shall find that he useth them as Agents, at his pleasure. Look in Heb. 1. 7. It is said there, he made his Angels Spirits, and his Ministers a flame of fire. This place is quoted out of Psal. 104. 4. He makes his Angels, he made them on purpose to be his Spirits, or as the word is in the Hebrew, his Winds, that look as the Winds execute the Will of God, so do these Angels at any time, they are his Winds to fly up and down the World; You see Christ here upon Earth he commanded the Winds and they obeyed him, so he commandeth Angels and they obey him, they are his Winds, and his Ministers a flame of fire; look as Thunder and lightning obey God, they all do his Will, so do these obey Christ, and they have Power like to Winds and to Thunder and Lightning; Lightning you know is a subtle thing, it killeth, and a man knoweth not how, so do Angels, they have the same force and much more, therefore he compareth them to it. And in the last verse of that first to the Hebrews they are said to be sent out, by whom? By Christ, of whom he had spoken in all that first Chapter.

Then come to bad Angels, and he is far exalted above these. When he first ascended, he left them in the Air, they are under his feet indeed. I will give you but a place or two. Colos. 2. 14. It is said he spoiled Principalities and Powers, he made a shew of them openly, and triumphed over them; He spoiled them ἀπεκδυσάμενος, he took away their Weapons, the word alludeth to that, for that was the manner of those that conquered, they took away the Weapons of those that they conquered.

He

He did this when he aſcended; for I take it theſe words have reference to his Aſcenſion, and my ground is, becauſe then he led Captivity captive, as he ſaith Eph 4.8. He ſpoiled Devils then, and he made an open ſhew of them. As we are made Spectacles unto Angels and Men, and unto God, as the Apoſtle ſaith, ſo before Angels and Men, and before God, Jeſus Chriſt made an open ſhew of them; as they uſed to do that triumphed over the conquered, they tied them at their Charriot-wheels, and ſo led them openly after them in way of triumph: ſo did Jeſus Chriſt triumph over Devils when he aſcended. Yea, my Brethren, before-hand Saith Chriſt, I ſaw Satan fall down from Heaven like Lightning, when the Goſpel was preached. And this great Biſhop of our Souls ſilenced Satan preſently; for before the Devil ſpake in the Oracles, in Trees, and he ſpake in Temples; as God did in the Holy of Holieſt, ſo he had done all the World over: But when Chriſt came, all the Oracles were mute, the Heathens wondred at it. Plutarch writeth a Book of it.

Sermon XXXII.

And let me tell you this, That all the great deſign of God, ſince Chriſt hath been in Heaven, hath been to ruine Satan, to throw him down out of his Heaven. You heard before, that he was in the Roman Empire, and he was worſhipped there as God; Jeſus Chriſt in Three hundred years flung him out thence; The Accuſer of our Brethren is come down to Earth. All his Idols were flung from thence, he was thrown down from Heaven, that is, from being worſhipped as God.

Well, then, the Devil turned Chriſtian, and gives the Pope his Power in the Weſt; ſetteth up the Turk in the Eaſt. My Brethren, Our Lord and Saviour Chriſt will never leave till he hath thrown him out of theſe Seats too. Therefore you read Rev. 19. 19,20. at the end of the great War againſt both, I ſaw, ſaith he, the Beaſt, and the falſe Prophet that wrought Miracles before him, with which he deceived men that dwelt upon the Earth; and the Kings of the Earth were taken that ſtood for them, theſe were caſt into the Lake that burned with fire and brimſtone. And then what followeth, Chap. 20. 2. There was an Angel came from Chriſt, with Authority from him, (for Chriſt needeth not do it himſelf, it is but giving an Angel commiſſion to do it,) and he laid hold on the Dragon, that Old Serpent, which is the Devil and Satan, and bound him (ſaith he) and flung him into Hell. This power hath our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt.

And, my Brethren, to ſhew you in a word that Jeſus is above all power, you ſhall find in 1 Cor. 15.24. that he will reign till he hath put down all Rule, and all Principalities and Powers, and eſpecially the Devil, for he ſpeaks of a Power that is an Enemy unto him; for it followeth in the next words, He muſt reign till he hath put all Enemies under his feet. All the power and principality the Devil hath in the World, and not only he, but what Angels have, will be put down, but eſpecially he. Why? Becauſe he is an Enemy; for he muſt reign (ſaith he) till he have put all Enemies under his feet. And at the day of Judgment the Devils tremble, and that great Devil ſhall be brought forth that ſet himſelf up againſt the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and ſhall be judged, and every poor Saint ſhall tread him under his feet, as it is Rom. 16.20. and every thing in Earth and under the Earth; Men, and Angels, and Devils, ſhall bow their knees before the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that is, they ſhall acknowledge him to be the great Saviour, the great King of the World, as it is Phil. 2. 10. and repeated Rom. 4.11. and interpreted of the day of Judgment, when the Angels ſhall be judged. Therefore fear not, my Brethren, our Lord Jeſus Chriſt is above Devils, and Men, and Angels, and all.

So much for opening of theſe words, Far above all Principality and Power, and Might and Dominion.

In a word to this, And every Name that is named.
What is the reaſon the Apoſtle addeth this?
He addeth it for two Reaſons.

The

Sermon XXXII.

The First is this. If I have not reckoned all sorts of Power, saith he, think of any thing else that I have not mentioned; if there be any that I have not named (as assuredly they are,) I will comprehend it under the General; Every Name that is named, not only in this World, but also in that which is to come, whatsoever it be. And by Name is meant often in Scripture, Authority; as in the Name of Christ, that is, in the Authority of Christ: and as we say, in the King's Name, that is, in the King's Authority. I will not stand upon it. In Earth there were some he had not reckoned; in Heaven though Angels there were some he could not reckon; therefore if there be any Name, saith he, it is all subject to Christ. That is the meaning of these words.

And then again, There is another Reason why he added this [Every Name that is named] to Principalities and Powers, because Name is a larger word than Powers. There may be Names in this World, Persons there may be and Excellencies that have not power; and so there may be Excellencies in the other World, that have not power and authority. Therefore saith he, be it what it will, be it what Excellency it will, be it what Power it will, Jesus Christ is exalted far above it, so far that all is under his feet.

Now by Names, as I take it, is meant both Persons, and Excellencies or Dignities.

First, All Persons are meant by this Every Name. I will give you a Scripture or two for it. Act. 1.15. The number of the Persons (we translate it so, in the Greek the word is, The number of the Names) were one hundred and twenty. So that when he saith Every Name, he meaneth every Person. That is the first.

Secondly, It is put for Excellency, Dignity, Glory, be it what it will. *Gen.*6. 4. The men of the Old World are called Men of Name, so the word is in the Hebrew, and therefore the Greeks call men famous and of renown, Men of Name; and Job 30.8. Job calleth Base men, Men without Name.

Now then the meaning is this, That not only Jesus Christ is advanced above all Power and Authority, but above all Persons, and all Excellencies and Dignities, or whatsoever thing doth excel; suppose not Power only, but Wisdom, Learning, or whatsoever it be. Let one be famous, have a name for what he will have; any Angel in Heaven, or any Man in this world, or the world to come; all Creatures whatsoever, and all excellencies of Creatures, Jesus Christ hath a better name than they; so saith the Apostle *Heb.*1.4. He hath obtained a more excellent Name than the Angels, and he hath this by Inheritance, which now he is exalted unto; and therefore in the same Chapter, he speaks of his sitting at the right hand of God. The scope of the Chapter is to shew, both the excellency of his Person, that he hath a better Name than all things, and the Superiority of his place, He sitteth at the right hand of God; And to which, saith he, of all the Angels said he at any time, Sit on my right hand until I make thine Enemies thy footstool.

So now (my Brethren) I have opened that. I should come to have shewn likewise what is the meaning of these words, In this World, and the World that is to come; but I will omit that now, and make some Observations upon what hath been delivered, and so conclude.

The First Observation that I should have made is this, That there are two Worlds. But I must reserve that.

But the Second is this; That there are differing Names and Excellencies in this World, and that which is to come. Men that have great Names in this World, will be (many of them) without Names in the World to come; they will be vile persons without Names, as you heard out of Job. Men that shall be saved, and have great names for Saints here, yet they may be the least in the Kingdom of God, in the World to come; the first are oftentimes last, and the last are first. What Names you shall have in the world to come, let that be the main care of your Souls.

Now,

Now what have men Names for? For famous Acts done. Do famous Acts, which ſhall have renown, if you will have a name in the World to come. After the day of Judgment, though there be no power and principality, yet there are Names for ever; therefore I ſay, the word Nime is larger than that of Principality and Power; Chriſt will put down all principality and power, both of Angels, and Men, and of Devils, but there will be Names remaining ſtill. Paul will have a greater name in Heaven for ever, than other Saints have. Sermon XXXII.

My Brethren, Seek not after Names here, to be great and famous in the Church of God; but deſire that (and it is ſincerity only doth it) which ſhall get you a better Name in the World to come. What do I care to be judged by man's day, ſaith the Apoſtle, he ſpeaks ſo ſlightly of it, there is God's day; It is not (ſaith he) how things appear now, and what name I have now; but what it will be in God's day and in Chriſt's day, in the World to come. Who ſhall ſit at Chriſt's right hand, and who at his left, as it was not Chriſt's to give, ſo it is not ours to know. Poor Saints that ſtand in the Alley may ſit at Chriſt's right hand, when another, one that yet goeth to Heaven, and hath a great repute in this World, not only Civil, but in repute otherwiſe too, may ſtand at his left in compariſon. There will be Names, my Brethren, different from what is in this World. That is the ſecond Obſervation.

Thirdly, You ſee that all Principalities and Powers, they are ſubjected to Jeſus Chriſt. Then fear not Devils, fear nothing. It is the uſe the Apoſtle makes *Rom.*8.ult. I am perſwaded (ſaith he) that neither Angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things preſent, nor things to come, ſhall be able to ſeparate us from the Love of God, which is in Chriſt Jeſus our Lord. It is not as if the good Angels would hinder you; but the Apoſtle, though he knew they would not, yet he makes that ſuppoſition, as he doth *Gal.*1.6. If an Angel from Heaven (ſaith he) preach any other Goſpel; he might well think a good Angel from Heaven would never preach any other Goſpel, but he makes a Suppoſition of it, meerly to ſhew the truth of this Goſpel: ſo here, to ſhew the certainty of the eſtate of the Elect, he makes a Suppoſition. Suppoſe (ſaith he) they ſhould, yet fear not; why? becauſe Jeſus Chriſt ſitteth at the right hand of God, and hath Angels, and Principalities and Powers under him, ſo you have it 1 Pet. 3. ult.

And as good Angels ſhall not, ſo it is certain likewiſe that evil Angels ſhall not; good Angels will not, and bad Angels ſhall not. *Matt.*16.18. Saith he, I will build my Church upon this Rock, that is, this Faith and Confeſſion, that Chriſt is the Son of God, and a heart and life anſwerable, and the Gates of Hell ſhall not prevail againſt it; they may aſſault it, but they ſhall not prevail. My Brethren, This Devil whom you fear, and who tempteth you, as Jeſus Chriſt hath him under his feet, ſo he will have him under your feet too one day; do but ſtay a while, he ſhall tread down Satan under your feet ſhortly, Rom. 16.20. You need fear nothing therefore, either in Heaven or in Earth.

The Fourth Obſervation is this: I have told you there are two ſorts of Rulers in this World; there are viſible ones, whom you all reverence and adore, as indeed you ought to do, Principalities and Powers here in this World, the Higher Powers, Superiour Dignities; but there are greater than theſe, there are Higher than they, as Solomon ſaith in Eccleſiaſtes; there are Angels both good and bad, that are greater Princes than theſe. Do but think with your ſelves now, how little you know of the ſtory of this World; you know much it may be of the plots and policies of the Princes of this World, but do you know thoſe conflicts of Satan, thoſe underminings the good Angels have againſt him? Do you know the tranſactions whereby this World is governed? you do not know them; but the day of Judgment will be a gallant day for that, for then you will have the ſtory of all the World broke open; you will not only have the ſtory of all the Actions of Princes, what they have done in their Bed-chambers; not only the reaſon of this petty thing, and that petty thing, but all the agitations between Angels good and bad ſhall be all made known to you.

The

Sermon XXXII.

The bad Angels, theſe wicked Spirits that do us all the miſchief; they have plots beyond the plots of Princes, they have methods (as the Apoſtle calleth them,) Art beyond the Art of Princes, and there are tranſactions between good Angels beyond all what the men of the World have. The ſtory of this World, how pleaſant would it be to a man; but the ſtory of the World to come, my Brethren, will be far more pleaſant; you ſhall not only be Ear-witneſſes of all, but Judges of it. The Apoſtle ſaith expreſly, 1 Cor. 6. that the meaneſt Saint ſhall judge the Angels, that is, the bad Angels ſhall all be brought before the Judgment Seat of Chriſt; nay, for ought I know, the good Angels ſhall be brought too, to give an account of what they have done; for it is ſpoken of all in general at the day of Judgment, that to him every knee ſhall bow, both things in Heaven, and things in Earth, and things under the Earth. Now then, what a ſtory will the World produce at the latter day, that hath had two ſuch Governments run all along in it!

Laſtly, You ſee here, when the Apoſtle reckoneth up the beſt things that are: what are they he reckoneth up? Powers and Names, when he would reckon up the greateſt Excellencies; for indeed theſe are the greateſt Excellencies, therefore the Men of the World contend ſo much after them, after Name, and Glory, and Honour, and Principality, to ſubdue men; theſe are the great purſuits of the wiſeſt of the Sons of Men. It is not ſo much pleaſure of the Body, that Fools purſue after moſt; but men of wiſdom and parts purſue after Power, and Name, and Principality, theſe are the beſt things, according to the account the Holy Ghoſt himſelf maketh when he inſtanceth in things that are great; A good Name is better than great Riches.

The Devils, they do not live upon pleaſures of the Body, and Riches, and ſuch things as theſe are; but what they live upon, what they pleaſe themſelves with is in having power, in ſubduing Nations, ruling Kings, as you ſaw in Daniel, and to have his Name ſet up; as the Devil was worſhipped 4000 years in the World before our Saviour Chriſt came, what a Name had he! Power and Name you ſee are the greateſt things that are, which therefore the beſt of Creatures, good Angels and bad Angels purſue after, therefore here they are inſtanced in; he doth not mention Riches, but Principality and Power, and every Name that is named, &c.

EPHES. I. 21, 22.

Far above all Principality and Power, and Might and Dominion, and every Name that is named, not only in this world, but alſo in that which is to come.

THeſe words do ſet forth unto us, and proclaim the Supremacy of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the King of Kings, over all Perſons, by what names or titles ſoever diſtinguiſhed and dignified, in all God's Dominions, belonging either to this world, or the world to come.

His Kingly dignity is ſet forth unto us firſt for the ſubſtance of it, by that uſual Metaphor of ſitting at God's right hand. This in the 20*th* verſe.

In this 21*th* verſe, as likewiſe in the beginning of the 22*th* you have the Amplification, or an enlarged Explication of it.

And becauſe all particulars of Power in this world and the world to come, could not be mentioned nor rehearſed; therefore to be ſure to take in all, he addeth this general, Every Name that is named.

Thirdly, It is ſet forth unto us by the extent of this his advancement, of his Dominion and Sovereignty both of place and time, this world and the world to come, in all Ages and in all God's Dominions.

Fourthly, By the lowneſs of the ſubjection of all theſe Principalities, and whatſoever elſe, unto him; They are under his feet.

Laſtly, By the univerſality of all this; It is far above all, and hath put all things under his feet.

So you have the diviſion of theſe words, in the 21*th*, and in the firſt part of the 22*th* verſe.

I have diſpatched Firſt, What is meant by ſitting at God's right hand. And,

Secondly, I have gone over two Heads of the amplification of this Exaltation of Chriſt.

Secondly, I have opened to you the quality of theſe Perſons whom he is ſet over; Angels, good and bad, and Magiſtrates in this world, whatſoever they be. I ſhewed you, that by Principalities and Power, Might and Dominion, he would include all ſorts whatſoever. Sermon XXXIII.

SERMON XXXIII.

EPHES. I, 21, 22.

Far above all Principality and Power, and Might and Dominion, and every Name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come.

And hath put all things under his feet, &c.

THese words do set forth unto us, and proclaim the Supremacy of our Lord Jesus Christ, the King of Kings, over all Persons, by what names or titles soever distinguished and dignified, in all God's Dominions, belonging either to this world, or the world to come.

His Kingly dignity is set forth unto us first for the substance of it, by that usual Metaphor of sitting at God's right hand. This in the 20*th* verse.

In this 21*th* verse, as likewise in the beginning of the 22*th* you have the Amplification, or an enlarged Explication of it.

First, By the sublimity of the condition he is exalted unto; he saith, it is not only above, but far above. And that,

Secondly, Amplified by the quality and dignity of the Persons above whom he is thus far advanced, Principalities and Powers, &c. And because all particulars of Power in this world and the world to come, could not be mentioned nor rehearsed; therefore to be sure to take in all, he addeth this general, Every Name that is named.

Thirdly, It is set forth unto us by the extent of this his advancement, of his Dominion and Sovereignty both of place and time, this world and the world to come, in all Ages and in all God's Dominions.

Fourthly, By the lowness of the subjection of all these Principalities, and whatsoever else, unto him; They are under his feet.

Lastly, By the universality of all this; It is far above all, and hath put all things under his feet.

So you have the division of these words, in the 21*th*, and in the first part of the 22*th* verse.

I have dispatched First, What is meant by sitting at God's right hand. And,

Secondly, I have gone over two Heads of the amplification of this Exaltation of Christ.

First, The sublimity of his condition personally, Far above.

Secondly, I have opened to you the quality of these Persons whom he is set over; Angels, good and bad, and Magistrates in this world, whatsoever they be. I shewed you, that by Principalities and Power, Might and Dominion, he would include all sorts whatsoever. That all these three were called by these Names, I opened; likewise, what was meant by every Name in this world, and the world to come.

Sermon XXXIII.

So now the Third thing, (and that which remaineth) cometh to be opened, the Extent of his Dominion; In this world, and the world to come.

Upon the first consideration of these words, [In this world, and the world to come] I thought to have found no difficulty, but to have slipped them over lightly and generally.

Concerning their Coherence there is only this to be said. Some refer it only to the words immediately fore-going [Every Name that is named in this world, and the world to come.] But certainly that is too narrow. I rather therefore with Beza and Others, refer it to the whole that he had said of Christ's exaltation; He sitteth at God's right hand, over all Principalities and Powers, and over every Name that is named in this world, and the world to come.

Now then, the great thing to be opened is this; What is meant by the World to come; and the difference of these two, This world, and the world to come.

There are these Three Senses and Interpretations of it; and I love to take (especially where there is a comprehensiveness, as here there is of all) all in.

This world, and the world to come, may be taken first for Heaven and Earth; this state of the world on Earth, and that state of the world in Heaven, which are two worlds. So that as the Apostle, in Coloss. 1.16. when he would divide all things that are created in Heaven and in Earth, visible and invisible, mentioneth Thrones and Dominions, Principalities and Powers: so answerably here, when he speaks of Christ's exaltation, he saith, he is exalted far above all these in this world, and in the world to come, that is, in Heaven and in Earth. And so it cometh all to one with what Christ himself saith, Mat. 28. 18. All power is given me in Heaven and in Earth, that is, in this world, and the world to come, in all God's Dominions.

Only then here is the Question, Why Heaven should be called the world to come, whereas it is extant now as well as Earth is, which is called (in this Interpretation) the present world? And Christ hath now actual power in Heaven as well as in Earth. Why is it therefore called the world to come?

To this the Answer is: Though it be a world now extant, yet to us poor Creatures here below it is a world to come. It was a world created at the same time that this lower world was. Gen. 1. 1. In the beginning God created the Heavens and the Earth; by Heavens he meaneth the Angels and the higher world; as by Earth all that Chaos, out of which all this world was made that is under it, Sun, Moon, Stars, and the lower Elements.

This is the comfort of the Saints, (to scatter some Observations by the way,) that this great world is to come. The Psalmist, Psal. 17.14. calleth wicked men, Men of this world, whose portion is in this life; this world is theirs, and let them take it; this is your hour, saith Christ, and the power of darkness. If we had hope only in this life, saith the Apostle, 1 Cor. 15.19. we were of all men the most miserable; but we have a world to come.

It is a world to come in respect of us; As likewise you have it Luk. 18. 30. speaking of him that shall deny himself, saith he, He shall receive manifold more in this present time, and in the world to come life everlasting. And so 1 Tim. 4.8. He hath the Promises of this life, and that which is to come, that is, Heaven. Now this is one part of the meaning.

Yet let me say this of it. The Apostle's scope being to speak of Christ's actual Reign, and having mentioned that it is in Heaven, (for so he saith verse 20. He is set at God's right hand in heavenly places,) as the special place of it, and that at present. To call Heaven the world to come, because to us it is to come, Beza himself saith, it is somewhat too harsh, therefore he seeks out another Interpretation.

Then

Then the Second Interpretation is this, That this phraſe ſhould note out the duration of Chriſt's Kingdom, that it is for ever in all Ages to come whatſoever. It is a phraſe the Scripture often uſeth to expreſs Eternity, as Matt. 12. 32. Their ſins ſhall not be forgiven neither in this world, nor in the world to come, that is, Never. As in Rev. 20. 10. there are two Evers put, one Ever for this world, and the other Ever for the world to come; They ſhall be puniſhed for ever and ever, for ever in this world, and for ever in the world to come. And that it noteth out Eternity there is that likewiſe I quoted even now, Luk. 18. 30. In the world to come eternal life. Therefore that place Iſai. 9. 6. which we tranſlate (and rightly) Eternal Father, or Father of Eternity, the Septuagint reads, the Father of the World to come. Sermon XXXIII.

Chriſt's Kingdom (to back this Interpretation alſo) is ſaid to be for ever, Luk. 1. 33. ſaith the Angel to Mary, ſpeaking of Chriſt's Kingdom; The Lord ſhall give him the Throne of his Father David, and he ſhall reign for ever, not for one Ever, but for all Evers. And that he meaneth Eternity, he addeth, And of his Kingdom there ſhall be no end; having indeed relation to that in Iſai. 9. 7. where he ſaith, Of his Peace and Government there ſhall be no end.

And ſo I find ſome that bring that place Heb. 10. 12. After he had purged away our ſins, for ever he ſate down on the right hand of the Majeſty on high. They alledge that place for his ſitting at God's right hand for ever, not only in this world, but in the world to come. Although I think there is never a place of Scripture where I find that he ſitteth for ever at God's right hand, in the ſenſe the Article of the Creed hath it. And [for ever] there ſeemeth to refer to [After he had offered up one offering for ſin for ever;] for he ſaith in the Verſe before, that their Sacrifices could not take away ſin, never made an end of them, but they returned again; But he (ſaith he) by one Sacrifice took away ſins for ever. So that [for ever] referreth rather to that, than to ſitting on God's right hand; and verſe 14. confirmeth it likewiſe, where he ſaith, He hath perfected for ever them that are ſanctified.

Now, againſt this Interpretation I will give you the Objections, and the Reſolutions, for I cannot paſs over them.

The Objections are theſe.

If his meaning were this, that he ſitteth on God's right hand, above all Principalities and Powers for ever: Then there is this Objection, That there are no Principalities and Powers for ever that Chriſt ſhould ſit over; for the truth is, when this World endeth, there will be an end of all Principalities and Powers. You have an expreſs place for it, 1 Cor. 15. 24. Then cometh the end, when he ſhall have delivered up the Kingdom to God the Father, when he ſhall have put down all Rule, and all Authority and Power. How then can it be ſaid, He ſitteth on God's right hand over all Principalities and Powers in this world, and the world to come? (taking it in this ſenſe, [for ever.])

There are but two things to help this Objection.

The Firſt is this, That though there be no Principalities and Powers for ever, but Rule ceaſeth (as it is certain they do) both of good Angels and bad, and Magiſtrates and Men; yet there are ſeveral Names, ſeveral Dignities and Excellencies (as I ſhewed you the word [Names] implieth,) that are in this world, and the world to come. And ſo in that ſenſe it is true, that he is for ever on God's right hand, above all names that are named in this world, and the world to come.

Then the Second thing that ſtrenghneth this Objection is this, The Apoſtle ſpeaks by way of ſuppoſition (as it were); as in that other ſpeech of our Saviours, Their ſins ſhall not be forgiven in this world, nor in the world to come; It is not as if there were forgiveneſs of ſins in the world to come; but his meaning is, ſuppoſe there would be forgiveneſs then, they ſhould never be forgiven: So ſuppoſe never ſo many Names, or Principalites or Powers in this world, or the world to come, he is over them all.

Sermon XXXIII.

But then there is a Second Objection, and that is this; That in the ſame 1 Cor. 15.24. it is ſaid thus, Then cometh the end, when he ſhall have delivered up the Kingdom to God the Father; and verſe 25. He muſt reign till he hath put all his Enemies under his feet: And when all things are ſubdued unto him, then ſhall the Son alſo be ſubject unto him that put all things under him, that God may be all in all; ſo ſaith verſe 28.

Here is now a worſe Objection againſt this Interpretation of the phraſe, In this World, and the World to come. And indeed and in truth I find great Interpreters, both upon this place and the other, to confine and determine the phraſe of ſitting on God's right hand, to end after the day of Judgment, when he giveth up his Kingdom to his Father. And the reaſon is this, becauſe it is evident that the Apoſtle quoteth that which he ſaith 1 Cor. 15. 25. He muſt reign till he hath put all his Enemies under his feet, out of Pſal. 110. 1. Sit thou on my right hand till I make thine Enemies thy footſtool. They interpret that reigning (which he muſt then give up to his Father) by that ſitting mentioned there.

There is this will help that likewiſe.

That the word [Until] doth not note out that then he ſhall not reign; for the word is not alwaies interpreted excluſively, to exclude the time after; but incluſively to include all the time before, whereof there might be a doubt, whether he reigned or no, becauſe he had ſo many Enemies. After the day of Judgment he ſhall have none; but there might be this doubt, whether he reigned yea or no till then, becauſe his Enemies were ſo many, and ſo ſtrong. So we find the word uſed 2 *Sam.*6. 23. where it is ſaid, Michal had no Child until the day of her death; it is not, as if ſhe had any afterward. It is taken therefore for an undetermined time.

But yet there is this ſtill will take away that; That it is plainly ſaid, he doth give up the Kingdom to God, and likewiſe that then Chriſt ſhall be ſubject unto him.

Thus perplexed you ſee is the opening of theſe words, and there muſt be ſome pains to reſolve this doubt.

The beſt reconciliation which I ſhall give you, ſhall be in theſe few diſtinctions, which (I ſuppoſe) will clear to you in what ſenſe Chriſt hath a Kingdom, and indeed ſitteth on God's right hand for ever, and in what ſenſe he giveth up the Kingdom to the Father.

The firſt diſtinction I give you is this; There is a Natural Kingdom due to Jeſus Chriſt as he is God, yea, and by Natural Inheritance is due to him being Man, as joyned to the Godhead, for he inheriteth the priviledges of the Second Perſon.

Of this Natural Kingdom, founded upon his being the Son of God, which the Apoſtle to the Hebrews, Chap. 1. verſe 4. ſaith he, he hath obtained by Inheritance; he ſaith verſe 8. But unto the Son he ſaith, Thy Throne O God is for ever and ever. And though the right of it is devolved meerly becauſe he is God, yet it is by Inheritance; being the Natural Son of God it is his Natural Inheritance, therefore he is (as it were) in joynt Commiſſion for ever with God, as he is God and Man. This natural Dominion therefore over all things, (for all things were made by him and for him, be they what they will, whether Principalities or Powers, or whatſoever elſe,) this right remaineth for ever, that's certain. And accordingly many of thoſe priviledges, which I interpreted to be underſtood by his ſitting on God's right hand, muſt likewiſe remain: As firſt, Fulneſs of Joy; (At thy right hand is fulneſs of joy for ever) ſo he is at God's right hand for ever, for he doth enjoy (the Manhood doth) a fulneſs of Joy immediately in God himſelf, and this for ever. And Secondly, All that Perſonal Honour and Glory, and glorious Authority which he was filled with, which he was crowned with indeed when he came firſt to Heaven. All theſe remain to eternity likewiſe, and they are a natural due to him, though beſtowed actually, then, when he came up to Heaven. And he is thus in Commiſſion with his Father likewiſe (ſo far as Natural Rule goeth) as a Natural Inheritance to him, though leſs than his Father, as he is God-Man.

But

Sermon XXXIII.

But now Secondly, there is a Diſpenſatory Kingdom, (as Divines uſe to callit,) as he is conſidered as Mediator between God and his Church; which Kingdom is not his natural due, but it was given him, and given him by choice; yea as he was ſecond Perſon and Son of God, that that perſon was choſen out to execute the office of Mediator. And this Kingdom is more properly and ſtrictly noted out by ſitting at God's right hand in the Scripture; and God gave it him as a reward of his obedience, he hath it by commiſſion, Joh. 5. 22. 23. The Father himſelf judgeth no man, but he hath committed all judgment unto the Son; he is God's Dominus fac. totum, (as I may ſo expreſs it,) he is that Lord whom God hath ſet up to do all his buſines for him viſibly and apparently to the day of Judgment. And this Kingdom is in a more eſpecial manner appropriated to Jeſus Chriſt; It is ſo his as it is not the Fathers in a more eminent manner.

In this will that common Axiome of Divines help us, that what works all three Perſons do towards us Ad extra, though they have all a joynt hand in them, yet they are attributed more eſpecially to one Perſon than to another; as Sanctification you know is attributed more ſpecially to the Holy Ghoſt, Redemption to the Son, Creation to God the Father, though all Three Perſons have a hand in it. So likewiſe is it here, though the Father ruleth till the day of Judgment, and the Holy Ghoſt with him, yet it is in a more eſpecial manner appropriated unto the Son.

Yea, let me add this, that ſeeing to appropriate thus a work more eſpecially to one Perſon than to another, is an act of God's Will, hence it is that one Perſon may have it for a time appropriated unto him, and afterward given up unto another Perſon more properly. So now untill the day of Judgment Chriſt hath the Kingdom committed to him, after the day of Judgment it is appropriated more eminently unto God the Father, yet ſo as that God the Father ruleth now; ſo on the other ſide though the Father is all in all after the day of Judgment, yet the Son is ſaid ſtill to judge.

Now, the reaſon (to touch it in a word,) why God the Father did thus appropriate a time for the reign of Jeſus Chriſt more eſpecially, and that all mens thoughts ſhould be drawn unto him, and the Father ſhould as it were withdraw himſelf, was this, that all men ſhould honour the Son as they honour the Father, ſo you have it John 5. 22. that as for every work there is a ſeaſon; ſo there ſhould be for every Perſon a ſeaſon wherein they ſhall be in a more eſpecial manner more glorious.

And there is this ſecond reaſon for it likewiſe, (it was a reward indeed that was exceeding due unto Jeſus Chriſt,) that he ſhould have the Kingdom appropriated unto him for a ſeaſon, that he ſhould draw all mens eyes to him, and have all the glory and honour as it were in a more immediate manner, becauſe he vailed his Godhead in obedience to his Father, therefore his Father now when he cometh to Heaven doth anſwerably, (to recompence him,) withdraw himſelf and appeareth not ſo much in government, but hath committed all Judgment unto the Son, let my Son have it ſaith he. And then (that you may ſee the equity of this founded upon that place of Scripture, 1 Cor. 15. 28.) becauſe the Father hath committed all Judgment unto the Son for ſo long a ſeaſon, untill he hath made all his enemies his footſtool, therefore again doth Jeſus Chriſt to honour his Father give up the Kingdom to him, and he himſelf becometh ſubject to him that hath put all things under him.

My Brethren, though Jeſus Chriſt hath this Kingdom committed to him for this ſeaſon, (he went into a far Countrey to receive a Kingdom,) yet when he is in the height of his Kingdom, and hath all his enemies down under him, yet he will not carry it like a Conqueror home as if he had gotten it by his own Sword and by his own Bow only, but even then when he is in the height of all, he giveth it up unto his Father before Men and Angels; it will be the laſt thing he will do at the latter day before he goeth to Heaven, when he hath cleared all the Worlds accounts, (for they ſhall all be Judged by the Man Chriſt, and it is a greater ſervice than all his Sermons he made on Earth,) then when he hath done and is in his full triumph, (which ſhould teach us when we are higheſt and moſt raiſed then to fall down,) when he hath all his Enemies under him, to death, to the meaneſt and loweſt ſubjection, every one ſubdued, when he hath Judged all the World, and pronounced the ſentence both upon juſt and unjuſt, and every knee hath bowed to him; then he ſubjecteth himſelf unto his Father and delivereth up the Kingdom to him and God becometh all in all, and this is the laſt and great ſolemnity of all.

This is the firſt diſtinction. His natural Kingdom remaineth for ever, which is a due to him even as he is Man joyned to the Godhead; but you ſee there is ſomething of a Mediator-like Kingdom which he doth give over.

The Second diſtinction is this, (to clear it yet further,) this Mediators Kingdom (as I may ſo call it,) Regnum œconomicum, it receiveth a double conſideration. Firſt, conſider him as he is Mediator of his Church conſidered under imperfection, either of ſin or miſery or any other want, till his Church ſhall be compleat. Or Secondly, conſider him as he is a Head of his Church made compleat and fully perfected in all parts and in all degrees.

Or, (that I may explain my meaning to you,) I remember when I opened the Third and Fourth verſes compared with the Seventh of this Chapter, I told you that I thought in Election there were two great deſignes involved. The one, that which was more principally and Primitive, which was the chuſing of us in Chriſt as a Head, to that abſolute glory which with and in Chriſt we ſhall have in the higheſt Heavens for ever after the day of Judgment. But then Secondly, to illuſtrate and ſet off this glory the more, God letteth us fall into ſin, into miſery, Body and Soul are parted, the one liveth in Heaven in a bleſſed condition, the other lies in the Grave; Jeſus Chriſt hath not all his Saints, he hath them but by degrees. Now then anſwerably hath Jeſus Chriſt a double relation to his Church, the one as a Head ſimply conſidered, for we are choſen in him, (as a Head and common perſon,) to that condition which for ever we ſhall have in Heaven; and he hath the relation of a Redeemer and a Mediator for us as we are Sinners, and under miſery and under diſtreſs and under imperfection. Now, my Brethren, while the Church remaineth thus imperfect, (Chriſt hath not all his Members up to him, nor are they out of all danger, (as I may ſo expreſs it,) for though at the day of Judgment to the Saints there is no real danger, yet they are to give account of their actions, and there remaineth a final ſentence to be pronounced upon them by the great Judge, and in that ſence there is a forgiveneſs of ſins then, therefore Paul prayeth that he may find mercy at that day.) Now I ſay while there is any ſuch thing as guilt or the appearance of it, or any imperfection, (as till that final ſentence there is,) ſo long is Jeſus Chriſt a Mediator for us to God, as under ſome miſery, ſome want, ſome danger, he ſtandeth between God and us, and God hath given him all power in Heaven and in Earth, that he may give eternal life to them that believe, (we could not be truſted more ſafely then with him that is our Saviour,) that he ſhall be able to free us. And ſo long Jeſus Chriſt ruleth in a way of conqueſt, deſtroying of Sin and Death and all Enemies and redeeming the Body and bringing Body and Soul together, and laſtly pronouncing a final ſentence; and in this ſenſe it is that the Scripture uſually ſpeaks of his ſitting at God's right hand to intercede for us, (as it is Rom. 8. 34. and by ſitting there he meaneth reigning,) to deſtroy Enemies, to put us out of danger of death and condemnation. But when once this final ſentence is paſt, then this work of a Mediator, his reigning thus as a Redeemer of us conſidered under ſin and miſery ceaſeth, for when once that final ſentence is paſt then all ſins are for ever and ever forgiven, never to be remembred more, God then looks upon us as in his firſt project without ſpot or wrinckle for ever, then Chriſt preſenteth us to his Father, Lo here I am, and the Children thou haſt given me, here they are juſt as thou didſt look upon them in thy primitive choice. And ſo now conſidered, I ſay his Kingdom ceaſeth, for there will be no need of it; and this indeed is an anſwer which learned Cameron delivereth upon that place, 1 Cor. 15.

But yet then take Jeſus Chriſt as our Head, as he is ſpoken of in the next words, (and indeed as a diſtinct thing from his ſitting at God's right hand,) ſo he is for ever a Head. We were choſen in him at firſt, (I ſhewed in what ſenſe when I opened thoſe words, [Choſen in Chriſt, and Elected in Chriſt,] in the Third and Fourth verſes,) and as we were choſen in him at firſt, ſo we are conſidered in him for ever, and exalted in him, our Perſons in his Perſon, and God then (having forgiven all Sin and Miſery, and the Mediator's office for Interceſſion, &c. being laid aſide,) he is all in all both to Chriſt and us, and ſo now he delivereth up the Kingdom unto God the Father.

Sermon XXXIII.

I will add but this one Third thing to it to make this point (How he is a King, and ſitteth at God's right hand for ever, and how not,) clear. When he hath delivered up this Kingdom of his Redeemerſhip unto God the Father, yet he ſitteth down with this honour for ever, That it was he that did execute this office of a Mediatour, ſo as not a Soul is loſt, not a Sin left unſatisfied for, not an Enemy unſubdued, he ſitteth down like a mighty and glorious Conquerour. He is not a General in war longer, that kind of Kingdom and Rule ceaſeth, yet he hath this honour for ever, that he it is that did theſe and theſe exploits, brought in all thoſe Rebels, ſubdued all Enemies, and remaineth a glorious Dictator. So that indeed and in truth Jeſus Chriſt ſhall then reign more glorioufly with his Father (though it is more eſpecially appropriated to him till the day of Judgment,) than ever he did before; for then he reigneth triumphantly, whereas before he reigned as one that was conquering to conquer. And as David ſaid, when all his Enemies were ſubdued, Am I a King this day? So will Jeſus Chriſt ſay, He was never Kinged ſo much as now. Therefore ſome interpret thoſe words, 1 *Cor.*15 24. [Then ſhall the end be.] that is, ſay they, the perfection and accompliſhment of his Kingdom then cometh. Yea, in ſome ſenſe, my Brethren, he then ſetteth the Crown upon his Father's Head again, for his Father was put out of Rule (as it were) by the Devil, who got all this world, and by wicked men, that did what they liſt; but his poor Saints, whom he choſe to eternal life, lay under ſin and miſery. Jeſus Chriſt now ſubdueth all theſe Enemies, reſcueth theſe poor Souls whom he loved, from all evil, and preſenteth to him a peaceable Kingdom and Goverment, and ſo he with his Father enjoyeth it to all Eternity.

So much now for the opening of theſe words [This world, and the world to come] in that ſecond ſenſe given, and the explaining how Jeſus Chriſt is a King in both.

I will only add this, Whereas it is ſaid, [Of his Kingdom there ſhall be no end,] his meaning is, (as it is interpreted *Dan.*7.14.) It ſhall not be deſtroyed for ever. It is a Kingdom to give way to no Kingdom elſe, it is continued, he reigneth for ever, though he himſelf giveth up the Kingdom to his Father, and becometh viſibly and apparently more ſubject than he was unto him. In this ſenſe (that I may explain that too,) it is not meant in reſpect of his Godhead, for ſo he was never ſubject; it is not meant in reſpect of his Manhood, for ſo he is alwaies ſubject: but whereas he ſo reigneth now, as if God the Father reigned not viſibly and apparently, that is, he doth all viſibly; although it is the Father's glory he cometh with, yet he hath the glory of it, he runneth away with it (as it were:) but when he ſhall have given it up, with this acknowledgment, That his Father is the Author of this Kingdom, and that he gave it him, and ſo ſetteth his Crown upon his Father's head; then it ſhall appear to Men and Angels, to be his Father's Kingdom in a more eminent manner. And ſo much for that ſecond Interpretation.

I will add a Third, and ſo leave it; namely, What ſhould be meant by the World to come, here, ſpeaking of Chriſt's ſitting at God's right hand, over all Principalites and Powers in this world, and the world to come.

My Brethren, There is a ſpecial world, called the World to come, appointed for Jeſus Chriſt eminently to reign in; and therefore though all theſe ſenſes are true and good, and muſt be taken in, yet let me add this to it, That God did not content himſelf to beſtow this world upon Chriſt, for him to rule and reign in, and to order and diſpoſe the Affairs of it as he doth, and after the day of Judgment, to reign in that ſenſe you heard ſpoken of afore for ever, more glorioufly than he did before; but he hath appointed a ſpecial world on purpoſe for him, between this world and the end of the day of Judgment, (and the day of Judgment it ſelf is part of it, if not the whole of it,) wherein our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt ſhall reign, which the Scripture eminently calleth the World to come;

Chriſt's

Sermon XXXIII.

Chriſt's World, as I may ſo call it, that as this preſent World was ordained for the firſt Adam, and God hath given it unto the Sons of Men; ſo there is a World to come appointed for the ſecond Adam, as the time after the day of Judgment is God the Fathers in a more eminet manner who then ſhall be all in all.

I mention this Third interpretation both becauſe the height of Chriſt's Kingdom is in the World to come when that cometh once, and becauſe that is more properly his, and alſo is to me by comparing other Scriptures evidently intended in this place. It is the height of his Kingdom; for in this World he hath Principalities and Powers of Angels under him by whom he ruleth, after the day of Judgment God is all in all, but there is a World to come which the Angels have nothing to do with all, which is not ſubjected as this World is unto the Angels, but is made on purpoſe for Jeſus Chriſt.

I will give you for this two parallel places of Scripture, Heb. 2. 5. compared likewiſe with 2 Pet. 3. 7.

In Heb. 2. 5. To the Angels (ſaith he,) hath he not put in ſubjection the World to come; Whom hath he ſubjected it to then? But (ſaith he,) one in a certain place teſtified ſaying, what is Man that thou art mindful of him, or the Son of Man that thou viſiteſt him? Thou madeſt him a little while lower (ſo it is in the Margents,) than the Angels, and haſt Crowned him with glory and honour, and didſt ſet him over the works of thy hands, thou haſt put all things in ſubjection under his feet; Now we ſee not yet all things put under him, but we ſee Jeſus who was made a little lower than the Angels by the ſuffering of death Crowned with glory and honour.

Compare now this place in the Hebrews with this in the Text. Firſt you ſee he ſpeaks of Jeſus Chriſt as made Lord of all; what here in the Text he calleth ſitting at God's right hand, there he expreſſeth by being Crowned with glory; Here he ſaith he was raiſed from the death, there he ſaith he was made a little while lower (indeed for the meaſure far lower,) than the Angels by the ſuffering of death, a Worm and no man.

In the Second place, he quoteth out of the 8th. Pſalm that paſſage which likewiſe is here in the Text, [He hath put all things under his feet,] ſo ſaith verſe 22. and that ſentence is no where elſe found in the Old Teſtament, and it is quoted thrice by the Apoſtle, here in the Text, in Heb. 2. and in 1 Cor. 15.

Thirdly, He ſaith that there is this World to come ordained for this Man; What is Man that thou art mindfull of him, or the Son of Man that thou viſiteſt him? that thou haſt ſubjected this World to come unto him, and put all things under his feet? He ſaith the like here in the Text, he ſitteth at God's right hand, over all Principalities and Powers in this World and the World to come, and he hath put all things under his feet. So that you ſee that place in the Hebrews and the words in the Text agree, quoting both the ſame place.

Theſe words [having all things under his feet,] are as I ſaid no where in the Old Teſtament but in Pſal. 8. You ſhall obſerve therefore that in the 1 Cor. 15. 25. where the Apoſtle beginneth to quote the 110. Pſal. to prove that Chriſt muſt reign till all his Enemies be put under his feet, that the word [all] is not in the 110. Pſal. nor is it ſaid there [under his feet,] but it is [make thine Enemies thy footſtool.] The Apoſtle therefore being to prove that all Enemies are to be deſtroyed, which the 110. Pſal. doth not fully ſerve for; What doth he do? He helps it out with Pſal. 8. where the phraſe is uſed, [He hath put all things under his feet.] So that now Pſal. 8. and Heb. 2. and 1 Cor. 15. and theſe words of my Text are all parallel places, and therefore I could not paſs over this interpreation.

I will give you another place for it: 2 Pet. 3. 7. compared with verſe 13. The Heavens and the Earth which are now, (here that which in the Text the Apoſtle calleth this World, is expreſt by the Heavens and the Earth which are now,) by the ſame word are kept in ſtore, reſerved unto fire, &c. And verſe 13. namely in oppoſition to the Heavens and the Earth which now are, mentioned verſe 7. he ſaith, Nevertheleſs, we according to his promiſe look for New Heavens and a New Earth, wherein dwelleth Righteouſneſs, The Jews they ſtill expreſs World, by ſaying Heaven and Earth; therefore when the Apoſtle would expreſs this World, he calleth it Heaven and Earth, meaning the World that now is, but

ſaith he we look for a New Heaven and a New Earth, that is, a World to come. Now the words which is in *Heb.*2.5. the Apoſtle uſeth of World to come is οἰκουμένην τὴν μέλλουσαν, wherein dwelleth Righteouſneſs. Sermon XXXIII.

And that this place in Peter and that of *Heb.*2. fall all to one, appeareth by this, that when the Apoſtle Peter had gone and alledged this that there is to be a new Heaven and a new Earth, (that is a World to come,) wherein dwelleth righteouſneſs, ſo it is verſe 13*th.* at the 14*th.* verſe he makes uſe of it, at the 15*th.* verſe he quoteth Paul for it in his Epiſtle to the Hebrews, (for Peter writeth to the Jews,) Even alſo (ſaith he,) as our beloved Brother Paul according to the wiſdom given unto him hath written unto you, that is, of this New Heavens and New Earth, of this World to come.

Now, read that Epiſtle to the Hebrews, (for our Divines uſually quote this place to prove (and it is the beſt that can be,) that Paul was the Author of that Epiſtle, for Peter writ to the Jews, that is plain, for he writ to the ſtrangers diſperſed, (which were the Ten Tribes,) throughout the lower Aſia and thoſe Countreys, as you may read 1 Pet. 1. 1, 3. He hath written to you (ſaith he,) of this New Heaven and New Earth wherein dwelleth righteouſneſs; Now in the ſecond of the Hebrews he writeth of it, proving it out of the 8*th. Pſalm.*

Thus you ſee, going from one place to another, that Scripture and that in Heb. 2. are parallel, and that in Heb. 2. and this in 2 Pet. 3. are parallel likewiſe.

My Brethren, I will not ſtand diſcourſing to you about this New World, I ſhall only ſpeak what is pertinent to the thing in hand. Unto this did all the Prophets give witneſs, and therefore I am not aſhamed to give witneſs to it too.

In Revel. 5. 10. (I opened that Chapter to you when I explained Chriſt's ſitting at God's right hand,) as ſoon as ever they ſaw Chriſt take the Book, and was inſtalled King, What do their thoughts preſently run to? The World to come; He hath made us Kings, (ſay they,) and Prieſts, and we ſhall reign on the Earth; To be ſure at the day of Judgment they ſhall, which will be a long day certainly, when all the Accounts of the World ſhall be ripped up, and the World new hung againſt the approach of the King to it, there will be New Heavens and New Earth indeed, and the glory of the Creatures then will put down the glory of this Old World of Adams, it was not good enough for this great Lord, our Lord and Saviour Chriſt. But I ſay I will not much inſiſt upon it, I will only open ſo much as is pertinent to the thing in hand.

You ſee this place and that in Heb. 2. how parallel they are, and that the ſecond of the Hebrews quoteth the 8*th Pſalm.*

Now, conſider but the ſcope of the Pſalm as the Apoſtle quoteth it to prove the World to come. Any one that reads that Pſalm would think that the Pſalmiſt doth but ſet forth Old Adam in his Kingdom, in his Paradiſe, made a little lower than the Angels, (for we have Spirits wrapped up in fleſh and blood, whereas they are Spirits ſimply,) a degree lower, as if they were Dukes and we Marqueſſes, one would think I ſay that this were all his meaning, and that it is applied to Chriſt but by way of alluſion. But the truth is the Apoſtle bringeth it in to prove and to convince theſe Hebrews to whome he wrote that that Pſalm was meant of Chriſt, of that Man whom they expected to be the Meſſiah, the Man Chriſt Jeſus.

And that he doth it I prove by the 6*th.* verſe, (it is the Obſervation that Beza hath,) one in a certain place (quoting David,) διεμαρτύρατο, hath teſtified, ſo we tranſlate it, hath teſtified Etiam atque Etiam, teſtified moſt expreſly, he bringeth an expreſs proof for it that it was meant of the man Chriſt Jeſus, therefore it is not an alluſion. And indeed it was Beza that did firſt begin that interpretation that I read of, and himſelf therefore doth excuſe it and make an Apology for it that he diverteth out of the common road, though ſince many others have followed him.

Sermon XXXIII.

Now the ſcope of the Pſalm is plainly this; In Rom. 5. 14. you read there, that Adam was a type of him that was to come. Now in Pſalm 8. you find there Adam's World, the type of a World to come, (he was the firſt Adam, and had a world, ſo the ſecond Adam hath a world alſo appointed for him;) there is his Oxen and his Sheep, and the Fowls of the Air, whereby are meant other things, Devils perhaps and Wicked men, the Prince of the Air; as by the Heavens there, the Angels, or the Apoſtles rather; The Heavens declare the glory of God, that is applied to the Apoſtles, that were Preachers of the Goſpel.

To make this plain to you that that Pſalm, where the phraſe is uſed [All things under his feet,] and quoted by the Apoſtle here in the Text, therefore it is proper, it was not meant of Man in Innocency, but of the Meſſiah, the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; and therefore anſwerably, that the World there is not this world, but a World on purpoſe made for this Meſſiah, as the other was for Adam.

Firſt, It was not meant of Man in Innocency properly and principally; why? Becauſe in the firſt verſe he ſaith, Out of the mouths of Babes and Sucklings haſt thou ordained ſtrength. There were no Babes in the time of Adam's Innocency, he fell afore there was any.

Secondly, he addeth, That thou mighteſt ſtill the Enemy and Avenger, the Devil that is, for he ſhewed himſelf the Enemy there to be a Manſlayer from the beginning. God would uſe man to ſtill him; Alas, he overcame Adam preſently: It muſt be meant of another therefore, one that is able to ſtill this Enemy and Avenger.

Then he ſaith, How excellent is thy Name in all the Earth, who haſt ſet thy glory above the Heavens. Adam had but Paradiſe, he never propagated God's name over all the Earth; he did not continue ſo long before he fell, as to beget Sons, much leſs did he found it in the Heavens.

Again, Verſe 4. What is man, and the Son of man. Adam, though he was Man, yet he was not the Son of Man; he is called indeed the Son of God, Luke 3. ult. but he was not Filius hominis. I remember Ribera urgeth that.

But take an Argument the Apoſtle himſelf uſeth to prove it. This Man ſaith he, muſt have all ſubject to him, all but God, ſaith he; he muſt have the Angels ſubject to him, for he hath put all Principalities and Powers under his feet, ſaith he. This could not be Adam, it could not be the Man that had this world in the ſtate of Innocency, much leſs had Adam all under his feet. No, my Brethren, it was too great a Vaſſalage for Adam to have the Creatures thus low to him. But they are thus to Jeſus Chriſt, Angels, and all, they are all under his feet, he is far above them.

Secondly, It is not meant of Man fallen, that is as plain, the Apoſtle himſelf ſaith ſo, We ſee not (ſaith he) all things ſubject unto him. Some think that it is meant as an Objection that the Apoſtle anſwereth; but it is indeed to prove, that Man fallen cannot be meant in that 8*th Pſalm*; Why? Becauſe ſaith he, we do not ſee any thing, all things at leſt ſubject unto him; you have not any one Man, or the whole Race of Man, to whom all things have been ſubject, the Creatures are ſometimes injurious to him. We do not ſee him ſaith he, that is, the Nature of man in general conſidered. Take all the Monarchs in the world, they never conquered the whole world; there was never any one man that was a ſinner, that had all ſubject to him. But we ſee, ſaith he, mark the oppoſition, But we ſee Jeſus, that Man, crowned with Glory and Honour; therefore it is this Man, and no man elſe, the oppoſition implieth it.

The Philoſophers themſelves complain, that Nature was a Step-mother to man; they did not ſee that ſubjection of the Creatures unto him, but many Miſeries, and incurſions of Miſeries upon him; But, ſaith the Apoſtle, we ſee this Man, Jeſus, crowned with Glory and Honour.

And

Sermon XXXIII.

And then it is not an Angel to whom all this is ſubject, it is a Man plainly; a Man made a little while lower than the Angels, and then crowned with Glory and Honour far above all, for ſo the oppoſition runneth.

And it is not this World only that ſhall be ſubject to this Man, but it is a World to come: ſo the Apoſtle ſaith plainly, verſe 8. We ſee not yet all things put under him, therefore it is not this World ſaith he, but Jeſus Chriſt is in Heaven, crowned with Glory and Honour already; and there will be a world, and a world there is beginning that ſhall be ſubject to him, as well as this preſent world.

So now it remaineth then, that it is only Chriſt, God-Man, that is meant in that 8*th Pſalm.* And indeed and in truth Chriſt himſelf interpreteth that Pſalm of himſelf, (you have two witneſſes to confirm it, Chriſt himſelf and the Apoſtle.) *Matt.*21.16. whenas they cried Hoſanna to Chriſt, or Save now, and made him the Saviour of the world, the Phariſees they were angry; our Saviour confuteth them by this very Pſalm, Have ye not read, ſaith he, Out of the mouths of Babes and Sucklings, thou haſt perfected ſtrong praiſe? He quoteth this very Pſalm which ſpeaks of himſelf, and Paul by his warrant, and perhaps from that hint doth thus argue out of it, and convince the Jews by it.

What the meaning of that is [Out of the mouths of Babes and Sucklings,] I refer to what Mr. Meade in his Diatribæ hath written upon that 8*th Pſalm.* he interpreteth it of men, of the Man Chriſt Jeſus principally, who was but a Babe, by whom God would ſtill the Enemy and Avenger, under whoſe feet he hath put all things; therefore he is the man who is prophecied of.

You know how the Prophecy of the Meſſiah runneth, Gen. 3. 15. He ſhall bruiſe thy head, and thou ſhalt nibble at his heel; which implieth plainly, that he that was to be the Meſſiah, ſhould have Satan under his feet, he was to tread upon Satan's head; the nibbling at the Heel ſheweth, that he ſhould wind up his Head and bite him by the Heel, being thus under his Feet.

Now, my Brethren, he is the ſole Man, that as the Pſalmiſt and Apoſtle ſaith, hath a World to come ordained for him. To ſpeak a little of that now, that I have ſhewed it to be the meaning of both.

As Adam had a World made for him, ſo ſhall Jeſus Chriſt, this ſecond Adam, (Adam being a type of Him that was to come) have a World made for him. This World was not good enough for him, he hath a better appointed than that which Old Adam had, A new Heaven and a new Earth, (according to the Promiſe *Iſai.*66.) where the Saints ſhall reign; Thou haſt made us Kings and Prieſts, and we ſhall reign on Earth. And this World he hath not ſubjected unto Angels; no, there is none of thoſe Principalities and Powers in it, or ſhall be in it, when it cometh to its perfection.

Do but mark the harmony of one thing with another. There are two Adams: An Earthly Adam, he hath an Earthly World; an Heavenly Adam, and he hath a Heavenly World. There are two Covenants, the Law and the Goſpel: The Angels, they delivered the firſt Covenant, The Law was given by the miniſtration of Angels: But the ſecond Covenant, the Goſpel, that declareth and ſpeaks of this ſecond World, made for the Man Chriſt Jeſus. God hath not uſed the Angels to preach the Goſpel, they do not meddle with it; but he hath appointed Men to do it. He is ſo far from ſubjecting this World that is to come to Angels, that they are not the declarers of it; Unto the Angels (ſaith he, Heb. 2.5,6.) hath he not put in ſubjection the World to come, whereof we ſpeak, though they gave the Law. Men that were Babes and Sucklings, out of their mouths he hath ordained ſtrength, to begin to create this New world.

Sermon XXXIII.

Why is it called the World to come, and yet we speak of it, saith he, and the Gospel beginneth it?

Because as the other World was six days a making, there was a Chaos first, and so it went on by degrees, so it will be in this world likewise; we are now but in the first days work as it were, the perfection of it is to come; The Kingdom of Heaven is like unto a grain of Mustard-seed, which is the least of all seeds, and yet the greatest in the end. The Apostle speaking of Conversion, Gal. 4. calleth it a delivering us from this present evil world; Old things are past away, (saith he) and all things are become new. Here is a Creation, a beginning, here is the first days work, and God will never leave till he hath perfected this world; and because the perfection of it is not yet, therefore it is said to be a world to come.

And because it is a new World begun thus, and thus begun when Christ began to preach, which first began (saith the Apostle to the Hebrews) to be preached by the Lord himself here upon Earth; therefore it is, that as the first world had a Seventh day for the celebrating of the Creation of it, so hath this New world now a Lord's day; and of that Lord's day doth the Apostle speak, *Heb.*4. as here he doth of this New world, in Heb. 2. And the Holy Ghost, when Christ was set in Heaven, fell down then upon the Feast of Pentecost, which was upon the First day of the Week, our Lord's day, as Levit. 23. 15,16.

Now, my Brethren, this World, when it is finished, shall not be subject to the Angels; but to Christ and his Babes and Sucklings, to that Man Christ Jesus, Lord Paramount of it, for whom it was made; and those Citizens of this World, as Pareus expresseth it. Therefore Christ is called τὸν ἀρχηγὸν, the Captain of our Salvation, for he in this is a Common Person; and as he by Suffering was made a little while lower than the Angels, so are we to suffer with him, and having suffered with him, to reign with him.

My Brethren, You do not read of the Angels judging the world, and sitting upon the Throne; do but take that part of this world, however we are sure of that, that the Saints then shall reign, and reign on Earth. They are said to sit, and to sit on Twelve Thrones, Matt. 19. And in Revel. 20. it is said, The Thrones were set, and those that were beheaded for the Testimony of Jesus sate upon them; therefore Christ promiseth to give the Government of Ten Cities to him that had made his five Talents ten. The Devils will be shut out; he hath taken and locked out that great Devil, those Principalities are gone during that time; and being they are gone there needeth no Principalities of good Angels to oppose them.

Will you have me speak what I think? I think this, that that Office which the Angels do in this world here below, Men risen from the dead shall do to men that are Saints. For the first part of this reign, of this Kingdom of Christ, of this World to come; that world shall be subject not to Angels, but to men, after that first Resurrection, which the 20*th* Chapter of the Revelations speaks of.

And it is no absurdity at all; for if the Angels, that behold God's face, are busied about things here below, I see not but that the Saints may be so too, it is an honour rather than otherwise. The Angels begin it indeed, they gather the Elect from all the four Corners of the Earth, and they end it, they are the Executioners to sling Wicked men and Devils into Hell. But they to whom this World is subject, that are the Judges, that are the Principalities and Powers in this World to come, they are Men, They shall judge the Angels, so saith the Apostle.

And, my Brethren, in this World will be the height of the Kingdom of Jesus Christ, and when that is ended, he delivereth up the Kingdom unto God the Father.

Now

Now I will make but a ſhort uſe or two, an Obſervation, and ſo I will end. Sermon XXXIII.

Here Firſt, you ſee two Worlds for you. You that look for happineſs methinks you ſhould be ſatisfied with the expectation of this. Alexander wept becauſe he had half conquered one World, (this World,) that there were no more for him to conquer, out of a ſuppoſition when he had conquered all what he ſhould do, one World would not ſatisfie him. If thou hadſt the ſame deſire, thou needeſt not care for this World, there is another World, there is more Worlds than one, By whom he made the Worlds, ſaith he, Heb. 1. There are things preſent, and the comfort is there are things to come; there is a preſent World, and there is a World to come. Care not for this World, it is Old Adam's World, it is loſs to the Saints, it is well if thou canſt get hanſomely rid of it with little ſinning, if thou canſt be but delivered out of this preſent evil World as the Apoſtle ſpeaks Gal. 1.4.

It was all that Chriſt deſired, all that he prayed for, ſaith he, John. 17. 15: I pray not that thou ſhouldeſt take them out of the World, but that thou ſhouldeſt keep them from the evil. But my Brethren there is a World to come. Abraham and all his Seed, not only the Jew, but the Gentile, are not only Heirs of Canaan, but of the World, it is expreſly ſaid ſo. Rom. 4. 13, 14. That is the firſt Obſervation.

In the ſecond place, Admire we this Man Chriſt Jeſus whom God hath thus advanced, yea, and to ſet him up, hath made a World on purpoſe for him, peculiar for him and for his to enjoy, and for him to uſe them as under him to rule and govern.

It is the Obſervation of Chriſoſtome upon the place, admiring that that man that was the ſcorn of death, ſo he was here below, and when he hung upon the Croſs, that was the deriſion of men; You ſhall ſee no beauty in him, that we ſhould deſire him as it is, Iſai. 53. Yet that God ſhould take up this Man, raiſe him up from the dead, and ſet him at his own right hand, and ſubject all Principalities and Powers under him, give him this World, a World to come in a ſpecial manner and to reign likewiſe for ever and ever after the day of Judgment, to uſe him in all his great buſineſſes, to judge the World by this Man.

If this ſaith he had been ſpoken of God, there had been no wonder, for all the Nations of the World are but as a drop of a Bucket to him, but to hear it ſpoken of a Man, of a drop of that drop, one man out of all Nations who himſelf was but a drop, a tear when he was in the Womb firſt, to raiſe up this Babe, this Suckling, thus to ſtill the enemy and avenger, to conquer death, to ſubdue Angels, to have all Principalities and Powers under him, and not to ſtill them with Armes but with his mouth, out of the mouths of Babes and Sucklings, and to make a World thus on purpoſe for him; O, how excellent is thy Name in all the Earth, and thy glory above the Heavens.

This was it that made the Pſalmiſt himſelf admire at the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, that God ſhould thus viſit him, carry him to thoſe depths, make him a little while, (as the word βραχύ τι, ſignifieth, as the Orator ſaith, hear me a little while,) lower than the Angels, though a great deal for meaſure lower than they, to let him down to the loweſt parts of the Earth, to the neathermoſt hell, and lay all our ſins upon him and all his wrath, Lord (ſaith he,) what is man that thou viſiteſt him. Viſiting is ſometimes put for viſiting in anger, as Pſal. 59. 5. So God viſited Chriſt firſt, made him thus lower than the Angels in this ſenſe for a little while; and when he had done he viſited him in favour as much, takes that broken Man, ſhattered Man, for his Soul was broken, my heart is broken, (it is the expreſſion that Chriſt himſelf uſeth in one of the Pſalmes,) takes him and raiſeth him up to Heaven, crowneth him with glory and honour, ſetteth him in all that glory you have heard, O, what is Man and the Son of Man (he ſpeaks of the Nature of Man as it is united to the Godhead in Chriſt, foreſeeing it by a Spirit of Prophecy,) that thou ſhouldeſt viſit him thus, firſt in Anger, then in Favour! What is this Babe, this ſuckling that thou ſhouldeſt raiſe him up to this glory and honour!

My

Sermon XXXIII.

My Brethren, all this concerneth us, for what ſaith the Pſalmiſt here in the firſt verſe? He calleth him the Lord our God, this Man Chriſt Jeſus. How excellent is the name of God for doing this, how excellent will it be in all the Earth one day, and founded in the Heavens now, and will be for evermore after the day of Judgment. It will be that which will take up, ſwallow up the thoughts of Men and Angels to all eternity.

That I may ſet it out a little. (I thought to have done it when I handled thoſe words, [under his feet,] but I will touch it now a little and be the more briefer then. Take all this that hath been ſaid of Chriſt as the Text ſetteth it forth here, take it all together, and here is the moſt glorious proſpect of a Kingdom that ever was, it putteth down all the Kingdoms of the World that were ſhewn to Chriſt by Satan. Do but take the proſpect of it.

Firſt, Here is a Father of glory, (to whom he prayeth, verſe 17.) a God that is the Fountain of all glory, and himſelf the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, whom he makes a Man, viſiteth him, (you heard how low,) laieth him in the Earth, raiſeth him up, ſetteth him in his Throne at his own right hand: There is your King, the Eldeſt Son of God. Here is God the Father, the Father of glory, and here is his Son at his right hand; Here are Worlds for his Dominions, this World and the World to come. To ſet forth the glory of this Kingdom here are Nobles, (who you know ſet out the glory of a Kingdom by their being under the King and under his Son,) here are Principalities and Powers, Might and Dominion, and here is the higheſt exaltation that ever was, all theſe Nobles under his feet, under his Sons feet; All things ſaith he, are under his feet, thoſe that are his friends are under his feet too, under him as Subjects, they fall down and kiſs the duſt of his feet, to him be glory and honour, and they throw down their Crowns, as you read, Revel. 5. Thoſe that are his Enemies, he hath the moſt glorious conqueſt over them that ever was, he treadeth upon them, he ſitteth and makes them his footſtool, that he may ſit the eaſier; and Satan that great Devil triumpheth over him, ſo that he makes his Children to ſet their feet upon his neck.

What is there now my Brethren that you will ſay or that you will think can be added to make this man Chriſt Jeſus more glorious? One would think now that he hath enough, he is advanced you ſee to the higheſt Throne of Majeſty, he is eſtabliſhed a King for ever, he hath Worlds for his Dominions, this World and the World to come, he hath the higheſt power, he hath all things under his feet. What is it I ſay that ſhould make this man yet more glorious?

Take Adam that was his Type. Adam he had a World about him, he had a Paradiſe, a Court which was his peculiar, if he had had Sons, Paradiſe had been his Court properly, for he was the Father of the World. What wanted this man? Plainly he wanted a Wife, he wanted a helper, God himſelf ſaith ſo. My Brethren, all this was in a Type. This Man Chriſt Jeſus thus advanced far above all Principality and Power, here is the Father of glory, here is his Son ſet in glory, here are Nobles all under him, here are Dominions enow, where is the Queen? What ſaith the words following, He hath given him to be the Head of the Church, which is his Body, the fulneſs of him that filleth all in all; over all to be the Head of his Church; ſo ſome tranſlate it, and I think it to be a part of the meaning, that above all priviledges elſe he accounteth this, (as it were,) the higheſt flower in his Crown, that he is a Head to his Church his Body. It is as if our Lord and Saviour Chriſt ſhould have ſaid I have all this honour, I am thus full, I am at my Fathers right hand, If I have not my Church I want a Body, I am not yet full. Therefore now above all this glory and exaltation hath God given him to be Head of his Church. I ſit at God's right hand, come up ſaith he to his Church, that by nature and by deſert is under his feet, come up ſaith he and ſit on my right hand as I ſit on my Fathers right hand.

Read,

Read the 45*th. Pſal.* there when he is annointed with the Oyl of gladneſs above his fellows, the Queen ſtandeth at his right hand, and ſaith he, as I ſit in my Fathers Throne ſo my Church ſits upon my Throne, and though I have all things under my feet, I will have my Church my Queen, which is fleſh of my fleſh, (therefore ſhe is called his Body,) ſhe ſhall have her ſeat at my right hand, for ſhe is my fulneſs, I am not full without her. My Brethren, Jeſus Chriſt delighteth more in love than he doth in Power, though he be King of Kings. Let me yet once more break forth into what the Pſalmiſt doth; O, what is Man that thou art mindful of him, and the Son of man, the Lord Chriſt and his Church made up of men, that thou art thus mindful of him.

Sermon XXXIII.

SER-

Sermon XXXIV.

SERMON XXXIV.

EPHES. I. 21, 22, 23.

Far above all Principality and Power, and Might and Dominion, and every Name that is named, not only in this world, but alſo in that which is to come.

And hath put all things under his feet, and given him to be the Head [or, a Head] over all things to the Church.

Which is his Body, the fulneſs of him that filleth all in all.

OUR Lord and Saviour's Exaltation, is ſet forth unto us in theſe Three laſt Verſes, and the Verſe before, in a double relation.

The Firſt is, His Exaltation above all Creatures, and the diſtance he ſtandeth in to them. He is far above all Principality and Power, and Might and Dominion, and hath all things under his feet.

Secondly, His Exaltation is ſet forth to us by his relation and preheminence, which he hath to his Church. He hath given him to be a Head over all to his Church, which is his body, the fulneſs of him that filleth all in all.

If you will have it, Jeſus Chriſt the Great King, his Supremacy in all Matters and over all Perſons, Civil and Eccleſiaſtical. Far above all Principalities, &c. there is his Supremacy over all Creatures, and all Civil Government, and a Head to his Church alſo. Theſe are the two general parts of theſe words.

Concerning his Exaltation, as it is laid down in the 21*th* Verſe, I have already ſhewn theſe two things:

Firſt, How he is advanced far above all things; for his own Perſonal Dignity is far above all Principality and Power. And this is amplified by the Perſons over which he is exalted, it is over all Principality and Power, both good Angels and bad, and the moſt excellent of Creatures here on Earth, Kings and Magiſtrates, whatſoever they be, by what names or titles ſoever diſtinguiſhed; Every Name that is named.

Then the Third thing, (which I conſidered in the laſt diſcourſe) was, the extent of it; Not only in this World, but in the World to come.

Of thoſe words [In this world, and the world to come,] I told you Interpreters gave two Interpretations. Whereof the Firſt was, That by this world and the world to come, ſhould be meant Heaven and Earth, as he himſelf ſaith at laſt, All power is given unto me in Heaven and in Earth. And what might be Objected againſt this Interpretation, I anſwered in my laſt diſcourſe; and how it would not wholly and fully ſuit the ſcope of the Apoſtle here.

Then

Then in the Second place, [In this world, and the world to come,] I told you was a phraſe that imported for ever, and ſo ſhould imply all time after the day of Judgment, not only in this world, but in all the Worlds to come, be they what they will be. Now becauſe there was that great Objection againſt it in 1 *Cor.*15. that he is to reign, to ſit, until his Enemies be made his footſtool, and then to give up the Kingdom unto God the Father, ſo it is expreſly ſaid *ver.*24,25. I therefore explained how far his Kingdom was eternal, and how far not, and how to be given up at the latter day. Sermon XXXIV.

To theſe two Interpretations I added a Third, which is not to exclude the other, but is indeed a kind of middle between both, taking in both the one and the other. Or, if you will, thus; That between the ſtate of this World, as now it is, and the ſtate of things after the day of Judgment, when God ſhall be all in all; there is a World to come, which is on purpoſe, and in a more eſpecial manner appointed for Jeſus Chriſt to be King in. And ſeeing there is ſuch a World to come, certainly this is to be taken in here, if there were no other reaſon.

But I told you, That there was a more eſpecial reaſon, why that this Interpretation muſt be here taken in with the reſt. For I find all Interpreters almoſt with one conſent to refer me for the words that follow [Hath put all things under his feet] to the 8*th Pſalm*, as the only place in the Old Teſtament, where thoſe words are ſpoken concerning Chriſt, verſe 6. Thou haſt made him to have dominion over the work of thy hand, thou haſt put all things under his feet. So as (ſay they) theſe words [he hath put all things under his feet,] are a teſtimony borrowed from the 8*th Pſalm*, which the ſame Apoſtle Paul quoteth and citeth in two other Epiſtles to the very ſame purpoſe. He quoteth them *Heb.*2.8. where he ſpeaks of his Kingdom, and in 1 *Cor.*15.27.

Now therefore I was lead to look into *Heb.*2. where indeed I find the ſame words quoted out of the 8*th Pſalm*; and I found this likewiſe, that the Apoſtles ſcope was to prove, that the Pſalmiſt prophecied of a World to come, ordained for Chriſt; and proveth it by this, that he was to have a World, wherein all things were to be ſubject to him, (the very ſame thing that followeth here in the 22*th* verſe.) And (ſaith he) though we now ſee Chriſt crowned with Glory and Honour, (ſo it is at the 8*th* verſe of that ſecond to the Hebrews, which is all one and to ſit at God's right hand,) yet, ſaith he, all is not ſubject unto him. Though God hath put all under his feet, yet all is not yet ſubject; therefore there is a World to come, ſaith he, wherein all things ſhall be ſubject to Jeſus Chriſt.

Now then, I finding here a World to come, wherein Chriſt is King over all, and All things put under his feet, (which is the next words,) and that in the Judgment of all Interpreters it is taken out of the 8*th Pſalm*, which the ſecond to the Hebrews quoteth; there is no Rational man could imagine, but that in the ſame ſenſe that World to come is taken in the ſecond of the Hebrews, in the ſame ſenſe it muſt be taken here.

I did in my laſt diſcourſe indeed, with more modeſty paſs over what I thought was meant by that World to come, than perhaps is here meant. Perhaps likewiſe, I might not be ſo well underſtood. I will therefore explain my ſelf unto you, profeſſing not to be long upon it; for I will not diſcourſe of it, but meerly take what is pertinent and appoſite to the expreſſion in hand [the World to come] as it is held forth unto us in *Heb.*2.

I alſo proved, That that Man prophecied of in the 8*th Pſalm*, that was to have all things under his feet, was only Jeſus Chriſt. I ſhall ſpeak now more to this, that he hath a World to come ordained for him, in which [all things] are to be underſtood. And I ſhall expreſs my ſelf, all that I mean to ſay about it, in theſe two Heads.

The Firſt is, That that World to come, mentioned *Heb.*2. 5. wherein Chriſt is to have all things under his feet, is not this World that now is, or meerly the Government that Chriſt now hath. Neither is it the World after the day of Judgment, and yet is ſaid to be a World to come.

Sermon XXXIV.

And then Secondly, I shall shew you what I think is meant by that World to come, and the several steps and degrees of its perfection, its growing up, in respect of which it is said to be a World to come.

And First of all, That the World to come, mentioned in Heb. 2. and prophecied of *Psal.*8. which this Text referreth us to, is not the World that now is, that is plain; for the Apostle distinguisheth this World that now is, from that World that is to come, by this; saith he, Now we do not see all things subject unto him, (and it is his Argument by which he proveth, that there must needs be such a World to come subject unto Christ,) We see not (saith he) all things put under him yet, *Heb.*2.8. therefore it is a World to come. Here lies the Apostle's reason. That same word Not now, or Not yet, implieth evidently that there is a World to come, in which this is to be fulfilled, wherein all things shall be subject unto Christ. It is true, this World to come is begun, (as I shew you by and by,) but it is not grown up to its perfection; We see Jesus crowned indeed, but we do not see all things subject unto him yet. This is the Apostle's scope in *Heb.*2.

So that first, It is not this World that now is.

Then the Second thing is this, to prove this, That it is not the estate of the World after the day of Judgment. I shall only prove it out of *Heb.*2. and this place; I will go no further, for I will still speak pertinently to the Text.

First then, The World to come, that is ordained for Christ to have all things subject to him, is not the World after the day of Judgment, I mean the state after the day of Judgment; my Reason is this, Because that of this World that is to come for Christ, Adam's World was the type. Now mark it, my Brethren, Look into *Rom.*8. 19,20,21, 22. the Apostle sheweth you plainly there, that Adam's World, this very World wherein now we are, (which is the type of Christ's World to come;) this Earth and this Heaven, these Creatures do groan for the manifestation of the Sons of God; For the Creature (saith he) was made subject unto vanity, not willingly, but by reason of him (namely, Adam,) who hath subjected the same in hope; because the Creature it self also shall be delivered from the bondage of Corruption, into the glorious liberty of the Children of God: For we know that the whole Creation groaneth and travelleth in pains together until now. So that you see there is a World to come, which is not that after the day of Judgment (for what will become of these Creatures then, no man can tell me;) but it is this very individual Creation, where we live and are, that doth groan for a Restitution, and the restitution of it is the World to come, as the present corruption and bondage of it is this World.

And then, if you look into the 8*th Psalm*, you shall find there, that in the type of Christ's World to come; it is said, that Heavens, and Stars and Moon, and Sheep and Oxen, and Fowls of the Air and Fishes, these are all subject unto him. This cannot be meant after the day of Judgment, no not in the Type. There is nothing after the day of Judgment, which Heavens, and Stars and Moon, and Sheep and Oxen, and Fowls of the Air and Fishes, should signifie, or typifie out to us.

So that it is a World to come, between the state of this World, which is yet in its ruff and in its height to this present, and the day of Judgment.

I will give you a second Reason for it, and it is this. For when this World to come shall come, and Christ shall have all subject unto him in it, (for he only, saith he, shall have all subject,) then he shall deliver up the Kingdom unto his Father, namely, at the end of the day of Judgment. This is plain 1 Cor. 15. 24,25,&c. He saith plainly there, that when he hath put all things under his feet, when he hath done it, when he hath brought him fully into possession of this World to come, wherein all things are to be subject unto him; then verse 28. When all things shall be subdued unto him, shall the Son also be subject unto him, that hath put all things under him. So that now, this World of his doth cease, whenas the day of Judgment ceaseth, For then cometh the end, saith he, verse 24.

And

Sermon XXXIV.

And then Thirdly, Anſwerably out of the very words of the Text you have this World, and the World to come, wherein there are Principalities and Powers, and Might and Dominion; not only in this world (ſaith he,) but in the world to come. Why now, after the day of Judgment there will be no Principalities and Powers, or Might and Dominion; therefore not this World to come, if you take it in a proper and ſtrict ſenſe.

That there will be no Principalities and Powers after the day of Judgment is ended, is plain thus; for in 1 Cor. 15. 24. He ſhall deliver up the Kingdom to the Father, when he ſhall have put down all Rule, and Authority, and Power. Here three words (according to the Greek) of thoſe four which are in the Text.

So that now, I ſay, that World to come, which the Apoſtle ſpeaks of Heb. 2. and quoteth the 8*th Pſalm* for it, wherein Chriſt is actually to have all things under his feet, is not that time after the day of Judgment. It is not this World neither, or the ſtate of things now; for we do not ſee yet all things put under him, therefore there is a World to come between theſe two.

And ſo much now for that firſt general Head, namely, That by World to come, both here and in Heb. 2. is not meant the ſtate of things after the day of Judgment, ſimply or only; but another World beſides.

Now in the Second place, I come to explain what it is that is meant by this World to come. I ſhall do it as briefly as poſſibly the thing will bear, and indeed but to explain the Text.

I will ſhew you firſt in general, why it is called a World; And ſecondly, why a World to come.

Then more particularly I ſhall ſhew you, the ſeveral degrees of the coming on of this World; And when it is at its perfection, that Chriſt ſhall have all in ſubjection to him, and then that World to come ſhall ceaſe; of that the ſecond of the Hebrews ſpeaks.

Firſt, Why it is called a World?

My Brethren, you muſt know this, That as God made this World for Adam, and put all things under him, (though not under his feet;) ſo God appointed a World for the Second Adam, his Son Chriſt Jeſus; and Adam's World was but the type of this World to come. Rom. 5. 13. it is ſaid, that Adam was the type of him that was to come. Anſwerably this old Adam's World, which now good Angels and bad Angels, and ſinful Men, theſe Principalities and Powers rule; it is but the ſhadow of that world which is to come, prophecied of in that 8*th Pſalm*, and mentioned in that ſecond of the Hebrews.

Yea (my Brethren) let me add this to it alſo, That God doth take the ſame World that was Adam's, and makes it new and glorious, the ſame Creation groaneth for this new World, this new Clothing; as we groan to be clothed upon, ſo doth this whole Creation. And as God takes the ſame ſubſtance of man's Nature, and ingrafteth the New Creature upon it, the ſame man ſtill: ſo he takes the ſame World, and makes it a New World, a World to come for the Second Adam. For the ſubſtance of the ſame World ſhall be reſtored to a glory, which Adam could never have raiſed it unto, the ſame World that was loſt in Adam. And this God will do before he hath done with it, and this reſtitution is the World to come.

Now then, why is it called a World to come?

It is called a World to come, becauſe though the foundation of it is now laid (it was laid then, when our Lord and Saviour was upon the Earth,) the foundation of it is laid in the New Creature. Why is it called the New Creature, but becauſe as the firſt Creation began the Old World, ſo this New Creature begin-neth the New World. And as the Old World was not perfected in a day, but in ſix daies: ſo this New World to come, it is not perfected at once, the New Creature is but the beginning of it; the New Creature here below is in your hearts.

Sermon XXXIV.

Saith the Apostle there in that second of the Hebrews, (do but mark the Coherence, and you shall see that this New world is begun, and it is but begun, and you shall see when it began,) verse 2. If the word spoken by Angels were stedfast, meaning the Law, How shall we escape (saith he, verse 3.) if we neglect so great salvation, which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard it, &c. For (saith he) to the Angels hath he not put in subjection the world to come, whereof we speak. He had spoken of the preaching of the Gospel in the words just before; he saith it was begun to be preached by Christ, and accompanied with the Miracles and Signs of the Holy Ghost; and this Gospel, saith he, the Angels did not deliver. They delivered the Law indeed; The word spoken by Angels, saith he, was stedfast, that is, the Law; but, saith he, this Gospel, which is the Kingdom of Heaven, is the beginning of the world to come, whereof we now speak. This world, saith he, was not subjected to Angels, they preached it not, neither shall they have any thing to do in that world which the Gospel beginneth. This world that now is, is subjected to them indeed, (as I shewed you formerly;) but the world to come is not.

It began therefore you see then, when Jesus Christ began to preach; and therefore you may observe the language of the Gospel, Repent (saith John Baptist, Matt. 3. 2.) for the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand. The world to come is coming upon you, when Christ shall come to preach the Gospel, to make men new Creatures: Here was the foundation of it. And saith Christ himself, Mark 1.14. Repent, for the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand; and Matt. 16.28. There are some that stand here, saith he, that shall not die (and all were dead that stood there long ago) till they see the Son of Man come in his Kingdom.

The foundation of this world to come was thus laid by our Saviour Christ in bringing in the Gospel, and it was prophecied of in Dan. 2.44. He saith expresly there, That in the daies of these Kings (while Principalities and Powers stand of those Monarchies; for he came stealing into the world when the Roman Monarchy first began, in Augustus Cæsar's time; Christ, that meant to ruine it, came stealing in upon it) shall the God of Heaven set up a Kingdom which shall never be destroyed; but it shall break in pieces and consume all these Kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever. This same New world, you see, it began in the flourishing and height of the Roman Monarchy. Now, what did Jesus Christ do when he came into the world and went up into Heaven, when he began his New world? Consider what the world was before.

The Devil was worshipped in all parts of the world, as the god of the world. Our Lord and Saviour Christ flingeth him down; I saw Satan (saith he) fall down like Lightning. Where Heathenism did not prevail, there did Judaism, all the Ceremonial Law; how zealous were the Jews of all their Ceremonies, and of the Temple. He throweth all them down; the Apostle Paul calleth it, Heb. 12,26. Shaking of the Earth. Here is a great deal of this world gone presently, and falling down like Dagon before the New world. He converteth by his Apostles, Millions of Souls over all the world; and how is Conversion expresst in 1 Cor. 5. 17? Old things are past away, all things are become New.

And this is but the first daies work of this World to come; the World is yet to come, for the Apostle for all this saith, We do not yet see all things subject unto him. This is but a delivering us out of the present evil world; it is not a subjecting the present world unto Christ, it is a delivering them out of it that are converted, as it is Gal. 1.14.

And, my Brethren, what is the reason that we Christians begin to reckon our time from Christ, we do not reckon from the Creation; we do not say Five thousand and five hundred and so many years, as it is since the Creation; but we say One thousand six hundred, &c. as reckoning from Christ, for then our New world began.

This

This New world that is but in the firſt daies work, when it had thrown down Heatheniſm, the Devil, flung out all thoſe Jewiſh Ceremonies, ſhook that Earth, it is like a new Nail that ſhaveth off by degrees the old one. Chriſt will not ceaſe, till he hath made all new. It is ſaid there in that ſecond of Daniel, verſe 44. That it ſhall break in pieces and conſume all thoſe Kingdoms, eat out the World and all the Monarchies and glory of it, before it hath done.

Well, You ſhall ſee when he had thrown down Heatheniſm and Judaiſm, (which was his firſt daies work, as I may ſo ſay) then cometh a Night of Popery, and that ſteppeth up in the room of it. What will Chriſt do before he hath done? He will have a ſecond daies work, and he will not ceaſe till he hath thrown out every rag, the leaſt droſs and defilement, that Antichriſt or Popery brought in or continued in the world. And we are under the ſecond daies work (if I may ſo expreſs it,) we are but working up ſtill to a purer world; it is this New world, this world to come, working up to its perfection. And, my Brethren, Jeſus Chriſt will never reſt till he hath not only thrown out all the droſs of this world, both in Doctrine and Worſhip, (which conforming to the world bringeth in, and hath brought into the world,) but for a ſecond degree of this world, he will never reſt till he hath brought all the world (that is, the generality of men) to be ſubject to him; which is another degree of this world to come.

The World you know conſiſteth of Jews and Gentiles. In the Apoſtle's time he had not conquered all the Corruptions of the world, much leſs had he conquered the generality of Mankind in the world. How bitterly doth the Apoſtle complain of the cutting off of the Jews, but a few of them at beſt came in, the generality of that Nation was caſt off: And for the Gentiles, Who hath believed our report, ſay the Apoſtle's? But a very few in compariſon. Therefore there will come a time when this New world ſhall have yet a further perfection; it ſhall grow up to a world, that the generality of Mankind, both Jew and Gentile, ſhall come into Jeſus Chriſt. He hath had but little takings of the world yet, but he will have before he hath done; the world was made for him, and he will have it afore he hath done.

In Rom. 11.26. ſaith the Apoſtle, All Iſrael ſhall be ſaved, (ſpeaking of their Second Call,) for the generality of it. There is the New world of the Jews, a New world in that ſenſe: And for the Gentiles, he telleth you that is but caſt in; If the caſting off of the Jews (ſaith he) was the reconciling of the world, (that is, of the Gentiles,) what ſhall their fulneſs be, (their taking in be?) but life from the dead? The Veil ſhall be taken off from all Nations, ſo is the expreſſion Iſai. 25.7. And that which is ſo much alleadged for Unity, ſhall one day be fulfilled; but it will be when Chriſt is Lord of all the Earth, never afore. Chriſtians will never agree till then, and then indeed there ſhall be One Lord, and his Name one, as it is Zach. 14.9.

Here will be a brave World indeed, my Brethren, and this is another degree of this world to come, One Shepherd and One Sheepfold of Jew and Gentile, and that Sheepfold as large as all the World; ſo John 10. 16. I ſpeak of the generality, and the moſt. This was never yet fulfilled, for the Apoſtle expreſly ſaith, that the caſting off of the Jew, was the receiving in of the Gentiles; therefore they were never yet one Sheepfold together, but they ſhall be one.

My Brethren, Read the Prophets, you ſhall find Promiſes of ſtrange and wonderful things, of glorious Times, and that here upon Earth, of all Nations coming in to Jeſus Chriſt; of all proſperity, of the Mountain of the Lord, ſet above all Mountains, &c.

Diſputing once with a Papiſt, he urged this upon me; ſaith he, If the Church of Rome be not the true Church, and the Church to which all Churches ſhall ſubmit, which hath had conſtant peace and proſperity, all riches, and glory, and honour, for this many hundred years. How hath this ever been fulfilled to your Church, that all Nations ſhall flow into it; that it is a Mountain ſet above all Mountains, that abundance of Peace and Proſperity is in it, which ſhall run down like a River, whereas you (ſaith he) have been in Perſecution?

Sermon XXXIV.

cution? The truth is, my Brethren, there is no Answer for it but one, That the time is yet to come. And this one of their own, even Horrerius a Jesuite, (though himself was for the Church of Rome, and made the Prosperity of it one Note of the truth of that Church, yet) he acknowledgeth, seeing such glorious things spoken of the Church of Christ in this world, that it is yet to be fulfilled, and was never yet fulfilled, no not in the Roman Church.

So now you see, there is so much toward this World to come; yea, and the truth is, thus far we find many Divines fall in, yea, and find those that do acknowledge, that this state of Glory, of a glorious Church on Earth, shall continue for a Thousand years, during which time the Jews shall have it, and the Gentiles together with them.

There is a Third thing, which is more controverted; and there is a Fourth to be added to that, which I think that few will deny.

The Third degree of this New world is this, That when this glorious Time cometh, that Jesus Christ will thus call home both Jew and Gentile, and have a New world in respect of multitudes of Men of all Nations coming in unto him, to make this New world the more compleat, he will bring part of Heaven down to it. This I say is more controverted. I shall but express to you briefly some grounds for it, which I confess for these Twenty years I have not known well how to answer, and that is all that I can say.

It is not that Christ himself shall come down (that is the old Errour of some) to reign at Jerusalem; which Error indeed the Fathers spake against, and which hath brought a blemish and absurdity upon that Opinion. But that under Christ, reigning in Heaven, (for certainly his Court is there, and that is his Temple, and he sitteth there both over this world and that to come;) yet that under him part of Heaven shall come down and rule this world, to make the glory of it so much the more compleat, to put down Adam's world, I shall give you rather those Reasons.

I know not how to understand that place first (which shall be the foundation of all the rest) it is a known place alleadged to this purpose; Revel. 20. indeed the whole Chapter, but especially the 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5*th* Verses. You shall find, my Brethren, (and those that know that Book aknowledge this) that in the 19*th* Chapter, both Pope and Turk is destroyed, so verse 20. of that Chapter. The Beast was taken, and with him the false Prophets, that wrought Miracles, and had deceived them that had the Mark of the Beast, &c. And they were cast alive into a Lake of fire burning with Brimstone. Here now the Beast is gone, but the Devil is left; therefore Chap. 20. vers. 1, 2. I saw an Angel come down from Heaven, having the Key of the bottomless Pit, and a great Chain in his hand, and he laid hold on the Dragon (that is, the Devil, it is no other, and his Angels, he is put for all the rest,) that Old Serpent, (that now doth traverse the world going up and down, and is the Ruler and the god of this World,) which is the Devil and Satan, and bound him a Thousand years, and cast him into the bottomless Pit, and shut him up, and set a Seal upon him, that he should deceive the Nations no more till the Thousand years should be fulfilled, and after that he must be loosed for a little season.

Here you see the Devil couped up, and why? Not to deceive the Nations any more: It was never fulfilled yet; When was it fulfilled? Not during the Times of Antichrist, he never more deceived than he did then; and the order you see is after the Beast is taken, the Beast is not yet destroyed: so that this thing is to come. It is not after the day of Judgment, for he is to be loosed for a little season, so saith the Text. And the truth is, you shall find that which we call properly and strictly the Day of Judgment, when all shall arise and be judged, followeth, as vers. 12, 13. and that after the Devil hath been loosed a little season again.

Now, when the Devil is gone, and is thus shut up for a Thousand years; what is done for this Thousand years?

Read

Read the 4, 5, 6, and 7*th* Verſes. I ſaw Thrones (ſaith he,) and they ſate upon them, and Judgment was given unto them. What is Judgment, but Reigning? And, what were they to whom Judgment was given? I ſaw (ſaith he) the Souls of them that were beheaded for the witneſs of Jeſus, and for the Word of God, (namely, in the Primitive Times, under the Roman Empire) and which had not received the mark of the Beaſt upon their Foreheads, and in their hands, thoſe which ſtood out unto the days of Antichriſt, (which argueth that this is to fall out after the Times of Antichriſt too,) and they lived and reigned with Chriſt a Thouſand years; but the reſt of the dead, lived not again until the Thouſand years were finiſhed: This is the firſt Reſurrection. Now it is ſaid, that the firſt Reſurrection is a Spiritual Reſurrection of mens Souls from the death of Sin, (ſuch Interpretations are put upon it,) But conſider with your ſelves a little. Firſt, It is the Souls of men dead, that is plain, for he ſaith, they were ſlain with the Sword, they were beheaded for the witneſs of Jeſus, and as their death is, ſo muſt their Reſurrection be; their death was certainly a bodily death, for they were beheaded, therefore their Reſurrection muſt be anſwerable to it. And (to mention no other Arguments) they reigned with Chriſt a Thouſand years; this is not the glory of Heaven, for that is for ever, and ſo they had reigned from the firſt time they were ſlain, if that glory were meant; but the reign upon their riſing, for he ſaith, the reſt of the dead lived not again till the thouſand years were expired. Therefore the oppoſition implieth, that it is a living again, and a proper Reſurrection. Sermon XXXIV.

Now, where do theſe reign? It ſhould ſeem, on Earth, by this Argument; becauſe, why elſe is the Devil bound up. He need not be bound up for their reigning in Heaven; but as a preparation to this, the Devil is bound up, ſo the Text ſaith. This is one place; out of which I could urge multitude of things, but I forbear.

Well, I know not how to Anſwer another, and that is that I quoted in my laſt diſcourſe, *Revel.*5. 10. where the Saints expreſly ſay in John's time, Thou haſt made us unto our God Kings and Prieſts, and we ſhall reign (not, we do, but we ſhall reign) on Earth. And then go joyn with this 2 Pet. 3. 23. We, according to his Promiſe look for new Heavens and a new Earth, wherein dwelleth Righteouſneſs. We, we Apoſtles, we Saints that live now, we look for it. How do I prove that? Becauſe the uſe he makes of it is this, Wherefore, Beloved, ſeeing you look for ſuch things, be diligent to be found of him in peace, without ſpot and blameleſs. It could not be an argument then, in thoſe times, to be holy and blameleſs, if they themſelves perſonally were not to look for it; and he ſaith expreſly, ſeeing you look for it.

And what is that, according to his Promiſe they look for? a new Heaven, and a new Earth. Not Heaven it ſelf properly taken; there is not a New Heaven to be made, it is the Old Heaven, that was made from the foundation of the World, in which we ſhall for ever be with Chriſt after the day of Judgment. However, how is there a New Earth there? We look for a new Heaven and a new Earth, wherein dwelleth Righteouſneſs, wherein Righteouſneſs reigneth and ruleth; becauſe (as I ſaid before) it will be a New world ſubjected unto Jeſus Chriſt, when the New Jeruſalem cometh down from Heaven.

You will ask me now, What ſhall they do here in this New World?

I ſhall give you ſuch Conſiderations as ſhall take off the abſurdity. Firſt, I will tell you what they ſhall not do. They ſhall not eat and drink, nor marry, nor give in marriage; Our Saviour ſaith expreſly, that the Children of the Reſurrection do none of theſe things. Therefore to imagine a Turkiſh Heaven here below, a Turkiſh Paradiſe, is that which hath been the abſurdity put upon that Opinion; and which indeed made many of the Fathers, after the firſt Three hundred years, to flie out againſt it. There was an Opinion then, That Chriſt himſelf ſhould again reign Perſonally at Jeruſalem a Thouſand years, that they ſhould abound in all Senſual pleaſures, in marrying wives, eating and drinking, &c. and that the Jewiſh Ceremonies ſhould be then reſtored. And it was this Opinion that the Fathers confuted, and did ſo much flie out againſt; for otherwiſe the truth is that Auſtin himſelf ſaith, That if you will grant only

only Spiritual delights to come from Heaven for them, it is an Opinion (saith he) that may be tollerated. And Tertullian saith the like in his Third Book against Marcian, which he wrote in his best time before he turned Montanist; and he calleth it, An Heavenly Kingdom upon Earth, in abundance of Spiritual good things.

I have told you what they do not; I will tell you what they do, and take off the absurdity of that likewise. He saith, They shall be Kings and Priests, so *Revel.*5.10. And Chap. 10.6. Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first Resurrection, on such the Second Death hath no power, (they are out of the danger of it, both Body and Soul being raised and in a Celestial estate,) but they shall be Priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a Thousand years. To open this a little to you.

First, To be Kings. You heard this in Heb. 2. 5. that he hath not put this World to come in subjection to the Angels. The Angels now, they are the Thrones and Principalities, and the Kings and the Great ones that rule this World that is now. But the truth is, he saith, they shall be Kings then; he hath not put this New world in subjection unto the Angels, but unto them. And for them to take the Angels office, to be as Angels after this Resurrection, is no absurdity.

They shall be Priests. I shall take off that absurdity by this: Our Saviour Christ, when he took up his Body here out of the Grave, he continued forty daies upon Earth; what did Christ Jesus all that while? He did perform the part of a Priest and of a Prophet, he did instruct them in the worship of God, so you read expresly Acts 1. The Apostles (my Brethren) had a brave Teacher, Christ risen from the dead; he began this New world, and he remained Forty daies on Earth, afore he ascended on purpose. Now think with your selves, for the Saints to be conformed unto Jesus Christ their Lord and King, to run through but the same state he doth. He ran through this World, he was poor and miserable, so are you. When he died, Into thy hands Father I commend my Spirit; whither his Soul went, ours go. When he rose again, and took up his Body, and remained Forty daies upon the Earth, he instructed his Disciples in the great things of the Kingdom of God. If the Saints do so, when they first take their Bodies, here is but a conformity unto Christ. He then ascended, so shall they, and for ever be with the Lord.

My Brethren, Consider this further (for I shall mention all that doth alleviate it,) the great Objection lies in this', That the Souls of men that now are in Heaven, and see the Face of God, should come down and do such a service as this, to Reign on Earth here below, in such a glorious Church as I have told you; here lieth the absurdity. To take this off consider this, That even this estate will be a better estate than what their Souls now have. I will give you reason for it; for otherwise our Lord and Saviour Christ, when his Body and Soul was here also below, after his Resurrection, was not in a better estate than his Soul was before his Resurrection, which certainly it was. You will say, They are now in Heaven. Yes, As the Angels are; but as the Angels come down here below, and yet alwaies see the Face of their Father, (so saith the Gospel, *Mat.*18.20. Their Angels do alwaies behold the face of my Father, which is in Heaven,) so may these still be in Heaven and behold the Face of God. Stephen you know beheld the Face of God, and the glory of God, and Christ standing on his right hand, though he was a Mortal man, and here below.

In one word let me say this: God hath eternity of time to reveal himself in, he doth advance his Favourites by degrees; first glorifieth their Souls apart, takes Soul and Body, when they are united they have a better condition than the glorifying of their Souls simply. How many of these waies God hath to manifest himself by degrees; how many Worlds to come he hath to do all, the more the better; for you will say, You are so happy in every one, that you know not how to be happier; if he leadeth us by a kind of wonderment from one glory to another: as in Masques you draw away one board, and a glorious sight appeareth; you draw away another, and another is presented to you: so doth God with his Children, because he hath an eternity of Time to make all these Shews and Representations to them, and in doing this, he doth not lessen, but increase their happiness.

This

This is the greateſt ſervice that can be done, for it is the Angels work, they do it now. And let me add this; Then will come to be fulfilled that which you pray for in the Lord's Prayer, Thy will be done on Earth as it is in Heaven. At the day of Judgment, during that time we are not ſo much doing God's will, as giving account of our waies, and of having performed it. If therefore this Prayer be fully and exactly fulfilled, that the Will of God ſhall be done on Earth as compleatly as in Heaven; it muſt be the time of the firſt Reſurrection, which Paul therefore, when he would expreſs his deſire of being perfect, he ſaith, he would attain to the Reſurrection of the dead, that is, to be as holy as men ſhall be then. Sermon XXXIV.

My Brethren, I have ſpoken theſe things unto you rather, as that which hath a great ſhew of truth in it, than as if I could anſwer all Objections that might be made againſt it. But (as I ſaid in the laſt diſcourſe) if this hold not, as it is exceeding probable it will, yet there is a fourth degree of this World to come, which I am ſure will hold, and that is this, during the day of Judgment ſtrictly taken, after the general Reſurrection both of Juſt and Unjuſt. Then, my Brethren, to honour this New world, God will not only come down, but Jeſus Chriſt himſelf will come down, and he will abide a long day here to; (therefore it is no abſurdity for Saints to live on Earth, even when Chriſt himſelf ſhall do ſo,) neither will it diminiſh from his happineſs at all, for he will come and bring all his glory with him.

The Day of Judgment, it will be a long day, my Brethren; and let your ſelves judge whether it will not or no. For do you think, that the accounts of the World can be caſt up in the twinckling of an eye? Doth not Solomon ſay expreſly, That every work, whether it be good or evil, ſhall be brought to Judgment, Eccleſ. 12. 14? And doth not the Apoſtle as expreſly ſay, 1 Cor. 4. 5. that things ſhall be ſo brought to Judgment, as every one ſhall be able to judge the ſecrets of all mens hearts? And do you think this will not take up time? Shall we our ſelves take in the accounts of all mens hearts in an inſtant? No, my Brethren, this will be a long day; wherein Jeſus Chriſt will do that great ſervice, (a greater ſervice than all his preaching,) the examining of the Accounts of all the World, and convincing of all Mankind and ſending them ſpeechleſs to Hell, ſo as they ſhall have nothing to ſay, and ſo as we too ſhall be able to judge the world, ſo the Apoſtle ſaith, 2 Cor. 6.

Now here is this New world in its height and perfection. Here is Chriſt, and all his Angels round about him; yet this World is not ſubject unto them. They begin it, they gather together thoſe that have died, during the Thouſand years, from all quarters, and they execute the Sentence that Chriſt hath pronounced, and the Saints have aſſented unto, and they fling them all into Hell: But the truth is, they do not ſit as Judges, they ſtand, ſo the expreſſion is uſed Dan. 7. whereas the Saints are ſaid to ſit upon twelve Thrones; and in 1 Cor. 6. they are ſaid to judge the Angels.

And here now is Adam's World in the perfection, that Creature that hath groaned under all mens luſts, ſhall be then fully reſtored to the glorious liberty of the Sons of God. During that time the World ſhall be new hung, when Chriſt her Lord ſhall come into it. And if the other will not hold; and thus far I am perſwaded it will hold, that there is the World to come into Chriſt, wherein all Heatheniſm, Superſtition, Errour, and whatſoever elſe, ſhall be rooted out of the World, and the generality both of Jew and Gentile ſhall come in to Jeſus Chriſt; and that is a glorious World, my Brethren, without that of the day of Judgment.

Here then is Chriſt's World to come; I have given you an account of it as briefly as I can, wherein he ſhall have all things ſubject unto him, for the Apoſtle expreſly ſaith, that then, at the day of Judgment, all things ſhall be under his feet, and never fully till then, for the laſt enemy that is to be deſtroyed is Death, and then he ſhall give up the Kingdom to God the Father. And what the World to come ſhall be after then, no man knoweth, only the Scripture ſaith, God ſhall be all in all, and Chriſt himſelf ſhall be ſubject unto him. So I have done with theſe words, This world, and the world to come.

Sermon XXXIV.

I come now to the 22*th* Verſe, which is the latter part of Chriſt's exaltation over all Creatures; for that which followeth afterward is his Exaltation in relation to his Church. The laſt part of it is this, He hath put all things under his feet.

Here are two things contained in this,

1. The lowneſs of the ſubjection of all things, they are under his feet.
2. The univerſality, All.

I ſhall not handle theſe two diſtinctly, for they will fall in promiſcuouſly and miſcellaneouſly one with another, therefore I ſhall handle them one with another.

Firſt, For the coherence of theſe words with the former.

The Apoſtle, as he had ſet forth the Exaltation of Jeſus Chriſt, in reſpect of Perſonal excellency, more eminently in the former Verſes, Far above all Principality and Power, &c. So here he ſetteth forth his Dominion more eminently, that all is under his feet. If you ask, what the Perſonal excellencies of Chriſt are? They are ſuch as are far above all Principality, Power, Might and Domion; he excelleth in Glory, in Majeſty, in Wiſdom, in Power, in Holineſs, all Principalities and Powers; I confeſs Dominion is included too under it, but more eminently Perſonal excellencies. If you ask what Dominion he hath over all theſe? He telleth us plainly, all is under his feet.

There are theſe two parts of his Exaltation, mentioned in that ſecond of the Hebrews, which Chapter is parallel with this. He ſaith there verſe 8. He was Crowned with glory and honour; that which the Apoſtle here expreſſeth by ſetting him at God's Right hand, that is there expreſt by being Crowned. For there are theſe two Ceremonies in the Inſtallation of Kings; there is a Crowning of them, and a ſetting them upon the Throne. Now Jeſus Chriſt had a Crown, firſt of Glory, ſet upon his head; he had all Perſonal excellencies poured out upon him: And then ſecondly, he had a Crown of Honour ſet upon his head; He was crowned with glory and honour, ſaith the Text; that is, he had Dominion given him, For (as it followeth there) thou haſt put all things under his feet.

I do but obſerve this from it, and I will do it briefly; That the Perſonal worth that is in Jeſus Chriſt, is the ground and foundation of his Dominion over all. Why are all things ſo low as under his feet? But becauſe his Perſonal worth excelleth all Principalities and Powers, and every Name whatſoever. You ſhall find in Heb. 1. where he ſpeaks of ſitting down at God's Right hand, he firſt premiſeth his Perſonal worth, He is the Image of the inviſible God (ſaith he,) the expreſs Character of his Perſon, he by whom he made the Worlds, &c.

Is Chriſt's Perſonal worth the foundation of his Dominion over all things, becauſe he is far above all things in his Perſon, therefore are all things under his feet? My Brethren, obſerve this from it, That though Jeſus Chriſt was worthy of the Kingdom of all the World, yet as the Apoſtle telleth us, Heb. 5. He took not this honour upon himſelf, but he was called to it. Which ſhould teach us the greateſt modeſty in aſſuming any honour or dignity upon our ſelves, above others. No ſuch Example as Chriſt's to teach it. He did not aſſume a jot of Power beyond his Commiſſion. He would not have had power over all, if All had not been in his Commiſſion. Kings ſhould not go a jot beyond their Commiſſion; Chriſt himſelf did not, though his own worth is the foundation of his being King over the World.

And let me add this too, That God himſelf was not partial. He had a Son, whom he preferreth; yet if he had not Perſonal worth in him, as the foundation of it, he had never raiſed him up unto this. My Brethren, Chriſt is a better King than you could have choſen for your ſelves; He is my King, ſaith God, Pſal. 2. a King of my appointing. Ariſtotle ſaith, That nature makes Kings, as nature makes Servants; meaning thoſe that are the moſt wiſe and the moſt excellent; they are Kings by nature, ſo is Chriſt. In Hell, the greateſt Devil, the ſtrongeſt Devil, the wiſeſt Devil, he is the Prince of Devils: So in Heaven, Chriſt, that is far in his Perſon above all Principalities and Powers, and deſerveth it, his worth carrieth it, he hath all under his feet.

It ſhould therefore grieve none to be ſubject unto Jeſus Chriſt. You are to be ſubject unto men that have power, to Kings and thoſe that are in Authority; Wives are to be ſubject to their Husbands, though they be froward, Servants to their Maſters, &c. But our Lord and Saviour, Jeſus Chriſt, he is the holieſt, the wiſeſt, he is far above all Principalities and Powers; in all theſe therefore he deſerveth to have all things under his feet. None will grudge to be ſubject to ſuch a King as he is, if they knew what a King he were. Therefore, thoſe that will not be ſubject unto him, how do they deſerve to be deſtroyed? Thoſe that will not have me to reign over them (ſaith he,) bring them hither, and ſlay them before my face. So much for the Coherence. Sermon XXXIV.

I ſhall now open the phraſe to you [All things are under his feet.]

You may underſtand it either locally, in reſpect of place, under his feet, or Imperially in reſpect of power, they lie at his feet to diſpoſe of as he pleaſeth.

Now it is not true, that all things ſhall be under the feet of Chriſt locally; for when Chriſt ſhall come to Judgment into this World, the higheſt Heavens will be above him, they will not be under his feet locally; therefore that cannot be ſo properly the meaning of it.

Yet let me add this to that, That even in reſpect of place he is advanced far above all Angels and Men. I know not how otherwiſe to underſtand that place Epheſ. 4. 10. It is ſaid there, that He aſcended far above all Heavens, it is ſpoken in reſpect of place. Therefore we argue againſt the Lutherans, who would have Chriſt to be in every place; We ſay he did aſcend (unleſs we make his Aſcenſion imaginary,) he muſt be in the Heavens, as his proper place, where he is circumſcribed. Now he ſaith here, He aſcended far above all Heavens, not Heaven only, but all Heavens; He aſcended up on high to the top of the Heavens, to his Throne, ſo eminent that all may ſee him, all Angels and Saints, (they are all under his feet even in that reſpect,) for in John 17. he prayeth, that they may ſee his glory, which, if he were not thus eminently ſet up above them all, how could they ſee him? Yet ſo, as it ſhould ſeem he is in the midſt of them, for he is ſaid to be the Tree in the midſt of the Paradiſe of God, and the expreſſion ſtill runs thus, I will be in the midſt of you; yet ſo too, as he is in Heaven. It is not ſo above all Heavens, as he is out of Heaven, as ſome fondly and fooliſhly dream, for it is in the Heavenly places, ſo the Text ſaith. The Mercy-Seat, that typified out Chriſt's Seat, was the higheſt thing in the Holy of Holieſt, ſo certain is the Throne of Chriſt; therefore there may be ſomething in it, that even in that reſpect locally all is under his feet.

But, my Brethren, the main thing is, that it is Metaphorically taken to expreſs his Power. Chriſt's ſitting at God's right hand is a Metaphor, for God hath no Right hand: ſo anſwerably, his having all things under his feet is a Metaphor too, and both taken from the manner of the Eaſtern Monarchs. To be under his feet ſignifieth in general, ſubjection to him; ſo Pſal. 8. where the phraſe is firſt uſed of Chriſt, verſe 6. Thou madeſt him to have dominion over the works of thy hands, thou haſt put all things under his feet. To have all things under his feet, is to have dominion over the the works of his hands. And if that will not carry it, yet the Apoſtle's own Interpretation in Heb. 2. will, he to explain it putteth in the word [Subjection,] Thou haſt put all in ſubjection under his feet. So that to be under his feet importeth in the general a ſubjection.

As it noteth out a Subjection in the general, ſo to be under ones feet noteth out utmoſt ſubjection. You know that in nature it is ſo; to bow the Head is a token of Reverence, but to fall down upon the Earth at ones feet, is the loweſt you can go, and it is to expreſs the utmoſt ſubjection. And indeed, this was the Cuſtome of thoſe great Monarchs of the Eaſt, and it was peculiar to Imperial and Monarchial Power, to abſolute Monarchies, which they then had; which the Weſtern Kings not profeſſing to have, therefore they have not Men fall down at their feet, though they have men kneel to them. But the manner of thoſe Eaſtern Kings, was to have their Subjects fall down at their feet; and it is the manner of the Turks at this day.

Sermon XXXIV.

It is an expression that setteth forth two things (to come to shew it more particularly;) It expresseth,

1. The subjection of Subjects.
2. A triumph over Enemies.

First, It expresseth the subjection of Subjects to their Princes, according to the custome of the East. Take the Kings of Egypt; Exod. 11. 8. saith Moses there to Pharaoh, All the People that are at thy feet; read your Margents and you have it so; it is all one as to say, All the People that are thy Subjects. So it is said of Benhadad the King of Syria, look in your Margents there too, 1 Kings 20.10.

The manner was, and we have it upon good Record, both out of Zenophon of Cyrus, Lib. 18. and of Herodotus, when they came to their Kings, To throw themselves down, and to kiss the Pavement where there feet stood. The phrase you have likewise in Isai. 49.23. And therefore now, that worship that is due to God alone, is exprest by Falling at his feet, Revel. 19.10. So that it noteth out first, a subjection of Subjects.

Secondly, It noteth out a Triumph over Enemies. For this I shall give you two Instances in Scripture; the one is Joshua 10. 23, 24. there you shall read, that when Joshua had overcome those five Kings, saith he, Open the mouth of the Cave, and bring out those five Kings unto me out of the Cave; And they did so, and brought forth those five Kings unto him out of the Cave. And it came to pass, when they brought out those Kings unto Joshua, that Joshua called for all the Men of Israel, and said unto the Captains of the Men of War, which went with him; Come near, put your feet upon the necks of these Kings: and they came near and put their feet upon the necks of them; and Joshua said unto them, Fear not, nor be dismayed, be strong and of a good courage, for thus shall the Lord do to all your Enemies against whom you fight. He did not use it as a right of barbarism and cruelty, but as that which was to hearten out those People and encourage them, to assure them that God would do so with the rest. And Joshua you know was Jesus his Type, who was to tread upon all his Enemies, and to make them his footstool.

And in the Eastern Empire of Greece, which lasted till within these two hundred years and upward, this custome was continued. Therefore we read of Michael Balbus, that he called for a Rebel that had usurped the Crown, and having him in his power, he bade him lie down upon the Pavement, and (as the Historian saith) according to the custome of those Kings, he set his feet upon his Neck. It is true, it is used in Europe only by the Pope; it is therefore one of his Characters to prove him to be the Antichrist. You have the like expression to this of Balbus, in Isai. 51.23. I will put it into the hand of them that afflict thee, (the Cup he meaneth,) which have said to thy Soul, Bow down, that we may go over, (as he said, Lie down upon the pavement, and so he set his feet upon him;) and saith he, Thou hast laid thy body as the ground, and as the street to them that went over. It was the utmost subjection and triumph that could possibly be.

So much for the opening the phrase, All things under his feet. It noteth out, you see, the lowest subjection of Subjects, and the greatest triumph over Enemies.

Here now are two Questions for the opening of this.

The first is, Because when he saith here, He hath put all under his feet, whether Enemies only, or Angels and Saints in Heaven, his Church, be comprehended under this word [All.] And it is a great Question, and 'tis hard to be resolved. I do find Interpreters more generally to restrain this here to Enemies: Say they, When he saith he putteth all under his feet, he meaneth Enemies only. I will give you their Reasons: For say they, Do but observe the coherence of one thing with another, and the scope of the Apostle will be plainly this, to note out the differing Government Christ hath over his Church; She is his body, she is not under his feet; he is a Head to her, and his Enemies are under his feet; the one he calleth his Body, he hath a relation to her as a Head, the other are his Enemies. Therefore Zanchy saith plainly, All things are under his feet, except the Church; for in the next words he saith of her, She is his Body: and Chap. 2. we are

are ſaid to ſit with him. And his Saints are ſaid rather to be in his hand; My ſheep (ſaith he) ſhall no man take out of my hand; in his hand to be ſaved, only his Enemies are under his feet to be deſtroyed. That's one Reaſon.

Sermon XXXIV.

And then another Reaſon why it is to be reſtrained to Enemies is this, becauſe in Pſal. 110. it is limited to his Enemies, Sit thou on my right hand till I make thine Enemies thy footſtool.

Then Thirdly, the very next words, He hath given him to be a Head over all to his Church; [Over all] there muſt be meant, excepting his Church, for he is a Head to his Church and over all beſides; therefore ſay they, he is a Head to his Church, but thoſe that are under his feet are his Enemies. And in reaſon (Muſculus addeth this) they that are under his feet are to be deſtroyed by him, to be trodden upon; why are they under his feet elſe?

Theſe are the Reaſons, why by this [And all] ſhould be meant his Enemies, and not his Church and Angels.

But yet for all this, I think it is to be extended to both. I ſhall give you my Reaſons for it, and how to reconcile it laſt. The Reaſon which ſwayeth with me, and I cannot go over it is this. You know I told you theſe words are found in the 8*th Pſalm*, they are ſpoken there of Chriſt, and we have them quoted in two ſeveral places beſides, Heb. 2. and 1 Cor. 15. Now do but look into both thoſe places, and you ſhall find, that by [All things under his feet] alledging the 8*th Pſalm* in both, is not meant only Enemies, but all whatſoever. The places are ſo expreſs, as I wonder that men ſhould run upon another Interpretation. Look firſt upon Heb. 2. ver. 8. Thou haſt put all things in ſubjection under his feet; what is here meant by All things? For in that (ſaith he) he put all in ſubjection under him, he left nothing that is not put under him. Mark, he ſaith plainly, he left nothing, no not the Angels themſelves, for the ſcope of the Apoſtle is to prove, that he is above the Angels, as he had ſhewed in the firſt Chapter. So you ſee it is interpreted plainly in Heb. 2. 8. Well then, the other place in which it is quoted is 1 Cor. 15. and there it is expreſs, that not only his Enemies are ſaid to be under his feet, but all things elſe whatſoever; for the Apoſtle plainly ſaith, ver. 27. When he ſaith, All things are put under him, it is manifeſt, that he is accepted that did put all things under him; and only he, only the Father. So that in one word, his Church and Angels, as well as Enemies, are all under his feet. He hath put all things under his feet. And, my Brethren, the 8*th Pſalm* is expreſs for it, The Apoſtle doth not go beyond his Commiſſion in interpreting it thus; for what ſaith the 8*th Pſalm*? Thou haſt given him to have Dominion over the works of thy hands, thou haſt put all things under his feet, that is, all the works of that kind; whatſoever the works are, they are all under his feet. So that by [All] muſt neceſſarily be meant, both his Church, Saints, and Angels, as well as Enemies.

And in that 8*th Pſalm* there are two things that are the ſcope of it. The firſt is this, To ſhew how that God uſed the Man Chriſt Jeſus to deſtroy Enemies, that you find verſe 2. Out of the mouths of Babes and Sucklings haſt thou ordained ſtrength, becauſe of thine Enemies, that thou mighteſt ſtill the Enemy and the Avenger. He took up that Babe and Suckling Chriſt, and the Apoſtles after him, (who were once all but Babes and Sucklings,) and by them did ſtill the Enemy and Avenger. There are Enemies under his feet. The ſecond thing the Pſalmiſt aimeth at, is to ſet forth his Dominion over all things elſe; Thou haſt made him (ſaith he) to have dominion over the works of thy hands; and then cometh in that general, Thou haſt put all things under his feet. So that All under his feet includeth, both a ſubjection of Saints and Angels, Friends and Subjects, and deſtroying of Enemies too.

But, how will you anſwer the former Reaſons, and reconcile the difference?

I ſhall firſt reconcile it, and then in a word or two anſwer the Reaſons that were given. Firſt to reconcile it.

It is manifeſt that there is a twofold Subjection noted out by being under Chriſt's feet. The phraſe implieth a double kind of Subjection, whereof both are, being under his feet. The firſt is, Being under him in a way of diſtance, as Creatures, he being the Son of God and the Creator, a being under his feet to give give honour unto him. Secondly, There is a being under his feet to be destroyed, to be ruined, to be trodden upon, to be trampled on. You know the very phrase (as I opened it before) noted out all Subjection whatsoever, and it noted out also triumph over our Enemies. Now then the phrase here is largely taken, for it is taken both to express the Sovereignty of Christ, his Church is wholly under his feet; there is a kind of subjection they have, and they are subject according to their kind, if they be Friends and good Subjects, (as his Church is,) then they are under his feet, as Creatures, to worship him. If they be Devils and Enemies, they are under his feet according to their kind, to be destroyed, and to be ruined.

To confirm this, you shall observe, That it is a different phrase to say, they are made his Footstool, and to be under his feet. In Psal. 110. when he speaks of Enemies, then he saith, Sit thou on my right hand till I make thine Enemies thy footstool; that is, to tread upon, as a man doth upon his Footstool; but it is one thing to be made a Footstool to Christ, that is proper to Enemies, and to be under his feet. They that are a Footstool to him, and they that are under his feet, they are all under him, but his Enemies are so under him, as they are his Footstool; but the rest are under his feet too, but it is in respect of subjection.

Now then the reconciliation being made, for an Answer to the former Reason. The Reason lieth in this: Say they, The Apostle's scope is to shew the dignity of the Church, that the Church is his Body, therefore not under his feet. Here lies one of the Reasons. But, my Brethren, although the Church may be under his feet in way of subjection to her Sovereign Lord, yet she may be his Body likewise: For, as a Queen hath a double relation to her husband; one as he is a King, and so she is subject; if she ask any thing at his hands she kneeleth down as well as the meanest subject, she is at his feet presently; yet for all that she is flesh of his flesh, she is his Queen, she is his Wife notwithstanding, and her being his Wife hindreth not her being a Subject. You have it in Psal. 45. applied to the Church, At his right hand (saith he) is the Queen; yet saith God to her, He is thy God, worship thou him. She is at his Right hand, she is advanced as a Queen; yet she is to know her distance, she is to be subject, for all that she sitteth together with him in the Heavenly places; yet she must worship him, she must be at his feet.

If it be urged, That to shew the Churches dignity, she is said to be Christ's Body, and therefore not at his feet. I say, it followeth not, for as the one is put to shew forth her dignity, so the other is put to shew forth Christ's dignity. Her dignity is set forth by what she is advanced to, that she is his Body; but her dignity must not impair his, she must know her distance, for all this she is under his feet. Even as Christ's satisfaction swalloweth not up Free grace: so the dignity of the Church, sitting together with Christ, swalloweth not up that exaltation of Christ over her, she is under his feet notwithstanding.

Yea, My Brethren, I may say even as Abigail said unto David, 1 Sam. 25. 41. when he sent to take her to him to wife, Tell him (saith she) I am his Servant to wash his feet. So may the Church say, She is a Queen indeed, and she is his body, but she is a Servant, she is his Subject, she is under his feet for all that.

Yea, It was necessary to express her subjection as well as her dignity; for whence is her dignity, but from his Free grace; therefore to exalt that Free grace, was her subjection to be intimated. She is laid thus low, she is under his feet; but then Christ takes her off the dust, setteth her at his own right hand, makes her his Queen, this sets off the other, makes the Grace of Christ the more glorious; therefore the Apostle, Eph. 2. when he saith, We are set together with Christ, he addeth, by Grace ye are saved; for your place is under his feet, saith he, however you are called up to sit at his right hand.

So much for the Answering that Question. I had another, which I cannot now handle.

I will but make an Observation or two, and so I will end.

The First is this; Are you all under his feet, my Brethren? then learn to worship him; He is the Lord thy God, worship thou him. How is worship exprest?

Fall

Fall down at his feet. In Revel. 5. the Elders are there ſaid to caſt down their Crowns, and to fall at his feet; And Pſalm 99. 5. (which is a Pſalm of the Kingdom of Chriſt,) Exalt him (ſaith he,) worſhip at his foot-ſtool. Sermon XXXIV.

Not only the excellency of his Perſon calleth for this, Let all the Angels of God worſhip him; but conſider with thy ſelf, it is neceſſary for thee. Thou muſt either be under his feet, as an Enemy to be trodden upon, to be deſtroyed; or under his feet in way of ſubjection, to worſhip him, and to worſhip him purely too, according to his Law, (therefore look to it, that you do what you do according to Law.) Chooſe now, either to be ſubject to him as a Friend, to worſhip him according to his Law, or to be deſtroyed, to be trodden under his feet as Enemies.

A Second Obſervation is this; All things are under his feet. He is your Sovereign, you are in the loweſt ſubjection that may be. Is there ever a poor Soul a Suitor to him for Grace? Wilt thou know how to obtain it? Acknowledge his Sovereignty, lay thy ſelf at his feet, acknowledge as a Creature thou art ſubject to him, he may do with thee what he will. And as thou art a Sinner, ſay, Thou maiſt tread upon my neck, thou maiſt cruſh me to pieces as an enemy; acknowledge, that he hath not power only to cruſh thee, but provocation to do it. If you will but lay your ſelves thus at his feet, give up your Souls to him, he will pardon you. You muſt do it, he hath all your lives in his hand, he hath the Keys of Hell and of Death; there is no way but to ſubmit. It is the expreſſion uſed Lam. 3. 29. Put thy mouth in the duſt; what is the meaning of that? It is plainly this, (as the Scripture uſeth to expreſs it,) Lick the duſt of his feet; for it is a Metaphor taken from what they uſed to do when they came before their great Kings, They licked the duſt of their feet, and ſpake ſubmiſly as out of the Earth; ſo they do to the great Turk at this day. Do ſo to God, Put thy mouth in the duſt, thou art at his feet.

Thirdly, Conſider here, and admire the Grace of Jeſus Chriſt to his Church, Sinners and Enemies unto him; they are not only at his feet as Creatures, but they are at his feet as Enemies too, he could cruſh them and tread upon them, if he would. Chriſt himſelf ſaid, he was a Worm and no Man, God might have trod upon him and quaſhed him preſently. To be ſure We are ſo; Jeſus Chriſt with his Brazen feet, might tread thee in the Wine-preſs of the Wrath of God, and thou art a poor Worm and canſt make no reſiſtance. Hath the Lord Jeſus Chriſt took thee up to be a Member of him, to be part of his Body? Conſider what a Grace this is, that that Church in the next words ſhould be called his Body, which in the former is reckoned up among thoſe that are under his feet; herein is the Grace of Jeſus Chriſt.

In that ſecond of the Hebrews, where it is ſaid, All things are under his feet, and he himſelf is crowned with glory and honour; it followeth preſently, He is not aſhamed to call them Brethren. O, let us remember our Original; Are we married to Jeſus Chriſt? Remember whence thou art taken; As Hannah ſaith 1 Sam. 2. 8. He raiſeth up the Poor out of the duſt, he lifteth up the Beggar from the dunghil, to ſet them among Princes, and to make them inherit the Throne of glory. This Chriſt hath done for thee; thou wert in the Dunghill, in Hell, he hath raiſed thee up to be his Body, to ſit with him in the Heavenly places.

I will give you the Reaſon, why Jeſus Chriſt makes his Wife and his Spouſe of thoſe that are under his feet. It is the greateſt reaſon in the World. What is the Reaſon that Kings will not marry ſo low, they affect to marry Kings Daughters; but yet great, abſolute Monarch will not do ſo. Go among the Turks and Perſians, read the Book of Eſther, they never affected to marry Kings Daughters; Why? Becauſe they would acknowledge none greater than themſelves, therefore they would marry Slaves, ſuch as were under their feet: ſo Turks do at this day, it is to ſhew their greatneſs. It is all one to them to chooſe a King's Daughter, or a Slave; for they acknowledge themſelves ſo high, that no King elſe could come up to them.

So

Sermon XXXIV.

So it is with Jesus Christ; he is so high in Dignity, that no worth can commend any Creature to him, therefore he takes those that are under his feet, poor Sinners, (upon whom he can tread as upon those in Hell, it is all one to do it,) and he can love them as heartily and as familiarly, make them his Queen, set them at his own right hand. Therefore be not discouraged, though you be laid never so low at his feet in the sense of your own vileness, for it is all one to Jesus Christ. The truth is, He hath none else to marry, but those that are under his feet; he must have no wife, if he have not those that are perfect Slaves: yea, if he will have the Sons of Men, he must have Enemies upon whom he might tread, and trample under his feet.

So much for that Third Observation.

SER-

Sermon XXXV.

SERMON XXXV.

EPHES. I. 22, 23.

——and gave him to be the Head [or, a Head] over all things to the Church.
Which is his Body, the fulneſs of him that filleth all in all.

FOR the Coherence, ſum, and ſcope of theſe words (which is the only part that remaineth now to be handled,) it is this: It containeth the moſt excellent part of Chriſt's Supremacy, who is the King of Kings, it treateth of the Supremacy which he hath over the Church, and over all Churches whatſoever, that are his Body. And yet (do but obſerve the condeſcending of Chriſt ſpeaking by his Spirit, when he ſpeaks of the height of his own dignity,) he expreſſeth his own dignity with thoſe terms of reſpect to his Church, as it is apparent he would ſhew forth with all her dignity alſo. As he would ſet out his own greatneſs, that he is a Head, ſo he would ſet forth her nearneſs to him, and her advancement with him. It is worth your obſerving, that he calleth him a Head over all, here is his dignity; but withal he addeth, to Her, which is his Body. He is not a meer external Head to rule her, as a King is a Head of his Kingdom; but he is a Head to her as to a Body, a Natural body, a Conjugal body, as a Husband is to his Wife, or as the Head is to the Natural body.

He had before expreſt his Dignity in other words, he ſaith, he hath All things under his feet, he had laid the Church it ſelf as low as at his feet, as low as could be. Now, whereas he might have ſaid, He is a Head over all the Church, he doth not ſay ſo; but he ſaith he is a Head over all to the Church; Over all, but to her. Still to expreſs her dignity; if he be over all it is for her, for her good, for her comfort.

He expreſſeth again his excellency in another phraſe, he ſaith, He filleth all in all; but withal ſtill he expreſſeth it with terms of reſpect to her, he giveth her her due, and her utmoſt due; for all this, ſaith he, ſhe is his fulneſs. He involveth the Churches dignity together with his own. All which, my Brethren, put together and opened, there is nothing can afford greater comfort unto us.

I divide the words into theſe Three general parts.

Here is Firſt, The dignity of Chriſt, and his relation to his Church; He is a Head over all to his Church, and he filleth all in all.

Here is in the Second place likewiſe, The Churches relation to Chriſt, and her dignity; Her relation, which is his Body; Her dignity, ſhe is his Spouſe.

And then Thirdly, Here is the founder of both, both of the Church and of Chriſt too, as a Head, it is the gift of the Father; And hath given him, ſaith he, or, gave him to be a Head to the Church, which is his fulneſs, even of him that filleth all in all. Even both theſe are founded upon the Father's gift. And do but obſerve that too, when he ſaith, he gave him to be a Head to the Church, he doth expreſs it ſo ambiguouſly, as the queſtion is, whether he meaneth more favour to Chriſt in giving him to be her Head, or more favour to the Church, in giving him to be a Head to her. The words will bear both in the Greek, καὶ αὐτὸν ἔδωκε κεφαλὴν ὑπὲρ πάντα τῇ Ἐκκλησίᾳ. It may be tranſlated as well, Given him to the Church to be her Head, making the greatneſs of the gift lie there, that it ſhould be to Her. Or it may lie, Given him to be a Head to the Church, making the greatneſs of the gift to be in giving him this priviledge, this dignity. So that ſtill he involveth Jeſus Chriſt's dignity with his Churches, and let them for ever go together.

Sermon XXXV.

So you have the ſcope, and coherence and ſum of theſe words, I told you there were Three parts of the Text; and leſt I ſhould forget the Founder, which is the laſt of the three, I will begin firſt with that, for indeed it will not come in ſo properly afterward, and it is the firſt thing in the Text, And gave, ſpeaking of the Father.

Herein there are Two things to be conſidered.

The Firſt is, that it was a gift to either. For God to give the Head, to give Chriſt to be the Head to the Church, was a giſt to Her; for God to give to Jeſus Chriſt to be the Head of the Church, it was a gift to Him. The words do ambiguouſly refer to both. The greatneſs of the Gift I ſhall ſhew, when I come to open thoſe words [Over all,] above all Gifts, that's one part of the meaning.

But take it firſt thus: It was a giſt to the Church, that God gave Jeſus Chriſt to be her Head, and Her to be his Body. You will eaſily ſee that, for you heard in my laſt diſcourſe ſhe was under his feet; therefore to advance her ſo far as to be his Body, to be his Queen, you muſt needs acknowledge this to be a great advancement, and a meer gift on her part. Do but think of Eſthers advancement, read her ſtory, from a Slave to be a Queen, and think what the advancement of the Church is, to be a Body unto Chriſt her Head.

Then Secondly, It is a giſt to Chriſt to be a Head, and to have a Church to be his Body. I will inſtance in both ſeverally.

It was a Gift firſt, That God would give Jeſus Chriſt a Body, whereof he might be the Head. You read in Adam's ſtory, (who was Chriſt's type) that God brought the Woman to him; (you know Adam was the type of him that was to come, Rom.5.13. and that in marriage, as *Epheſ.*5. 32.) As ſoon as he ſaw her, he knew her, knew God's meaning; ſaith he, This is bone of my bone, and fleſh of my fleſh. He took her thankfully, as a gift from God; though afterward, when he was fallen, he moſt impiouſly upbraided God with this gift; The Woman (ſaith he) whom thou gaveſt me, *Gen.*3.12. I quote it only for this, that ſhe was a gift, for even in thoſe words Adam, when he was fallen, acknowledgeth her to be ſo. Now this is as true of the Second Adam too; *Eph.*5.23,30, and 32. verſes compared. The Apoſtle ſpeaks there of Adam and Eve, and he compareth Chriſt and his Church, and ſaith, that was the myſtery infolded in Adam's marriage. Now you ſhall find this Second Adam acknowledging this gift more thankfully than the Firſt doth; What ſaith he, John 17.6? Speaking of his Church, ſaith he, Thine they were, and thou gaveſt them me; and *Heb.*2.13. Lo, here am I, and the Children that God hath given me! He doth it more thankfully; but ſtill it argueth that the Church was a gift to him.

As a gift to him, ſo for Him to be a Head to the Church was a giſt too. Ἔδωκε κεφαλὴν, He gave him to be the Head, ſo Beza reads it, and ſo you ſee our Tranſlation renders it, that is, Appointed him to be the Head, he ſet him in the place of a Head, Conſtituit, as *Gen.*4.1. the word Give, for ſo it is in the Original, נָתַן: It is ſaid, that Pharaoh, he ſet Joſeph over all the Land of Egypt; and the Septuagint ſaith, He appointed him, made him a Head over all the Land of Egypt. Now this Tranſlation our Tranſlators have followed, He made him to be the Head; it might be read as well, Made him to be a Head; but they put the gift upon Chriſt, it was a gift to him to be made the Head, which certainly is the more direct ſcope of the place.

Now let me only add this concerning it. It was as a great gift to Jeſus Chriſt to give him a Body, ſo to advance him to that great dignity to be their Head. Although for his own excellency none elſe was fit for it, it was his due; yet ſtill (as I have often ſaid) ſo it is carried, becauſe he is leſs than the Father, as he is God-Man. That which is his due is yet a gift; therefore the Schoolmen do exceeding well in this. They ſay there was a Threefold Grace beſtowed upon Chriſt.

First,

First, There was the Grace of Union, that the Manhood ſhould be united to the Godhead; it was a great Grace that, and the foundation of all the reſt.

Secondly, That this Manhood ſhould be filled with all Perſonal graces, which they call Habitual grace, as they call the other Gratia Unionis; that that ſhould be full of Grace and Truth, as it is John 1.14. It is a great Grace too.

But then ſay they, Thirdly, There is Gratia Capitis, there is this Grace beſtowed over and above all theſe that he ſhould be a Head, that he ſhould have a Church, to whom he might communicate all his Grace unto; that as the Apoſtle ſpeaks of himſelf, Rom. 1.5. By whom we have received grace and Apoſtleſhip, that is, the Grace of Apoſtleſhip: ſo Jeſus Chriſt; he received the Grace of Headſhip: It is therefore a gift.

I will not ſtand to open this further, I will come to ſome Obſervations.

The firſt Obſervation is this, That Chriſt (you ſee) reckoneth it a new gift and grace, beſides his having Perſonal communion with God to be united to him, to have a body, whom he might fill, whom he might communicate unto. It is a new Grace to be a Head, and to have a Body; He gave him to be the Head to his Church, which is his body.

My Brethren, Do but think this good thought from hence. Is it a gift? Is it a grace, that God ſhould make Chriſt a Head? (as you ſee it is,) Then never doubt of his willingneſs to communicate any thing to you; for it is a Grace to be put into the office, to be a Head to fill you. It is given him you ſee, given him as a matter of Grace, that he ſhould be a Head to his Church, and fill all in all. As it is the office of the Liver to communicate Blood to the whole Body; it were unnatural for it to keep it within it ſelf: ſo for the Head alſo not to diffuſe ſpirits into the whole. There is no Conſideration can more comfort you than this. How willing then muſt our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt needs be to communicate to his Church; it is a grace that he ſhould do it, it is an honour that he ſhould do it; it is the greateſt advancement, the higheſt of all the reſt that his Father hath beſtowed upon him. My goodneſs (ſaith he) extendeth not to thee, but my comfort is it extendeth to my Saints; it is Chriſt's ſpeech, Pſal. 16.1.

Do but conſider (to make a little uſe of it to your ſelves further) wherein lieth the excellency of Grace? It lieth in communicating to others; ſo Chriſt reckoneth it, and ſo ſhould we. Haſt thou Grace in thy own heart, as Chriſt hath habitual Grace in his? There is one mercy. Doth God make thee an Inſtrument to do good to others? There is another mercy. It is the gift given to Chriſt, to be a Head to communicate to Members. See what the Apoſtle ſaith, 1 Cor. 12.7. The manifeſtation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal. All the manifeſtations of the Spirit, whereby a man profiteth another, it is a gift, it is given to him; the Text plainly holdeth forth that. That is the firſt Obſervation.

In the Second place, It is a gift that Jeſus Chriſt himſelf ſhould be the Head of the Church? Is it given to him, although none elſe is fit for it but he, and though it be his due, yet it muſt be given. Then do but make this conſequence from it, It is certain an office or dignity, in the Church, or over the Church of God, it muſt hold of the Head, Chriſt, it muſt be given too, it muſt be appointed too; that is all one, Conſtituit, he did make him, conſtitute him, or give him. If the great office of all the reſt is by way of gift appointed, then certainly all the reſt, they muſt all hold in Capite, hold of the Head Chriſt. The Phariſees; they knew this well enough; you ſhall ſee how they put Jeſus Chriſt to it (for when any come to uſurp Authority over you, as you are a Church, ask the ſame Queſtion that the Phariſees did Chriſt.) They put him to it, that was the Head of the Church. Matt. 21.23. When he was come into the Temple, the chief Prieſts and the Elders of the People came unto him as he was teaching, and ſaid, By what Authority doſt thou theſe things; and who gave thee that authority? The principle they knew well enough; No man was to exerciſe any authority over the Church, but it was to be given him; Who hath given thee this authority, ſay they to the Head.

Sermon XXXV.

What Answer doth Christ give them? He knew it was a folly to tell them, for it would not satisfie them. But I will ask you another Question, saith he, (and that also makes for what I say,) The Baptism of John, whence was it, from Heaven (that is by divine institution,) or of Men? Here was a shrewd Question; And they said, We cannot tell, for they were in a doubt; you may read what their Reasonings were. I only quote it for this, That Jesus Christ himself, that was made the Head of the Church, was asked, by what Authority he did it? Therefore you may very well ask any other men, if they take any Authority over the Church, will you shew your office, that it is warranted in the Word? John could not baptize, you see, but he must have it from Heaven. This is our Saviour Christ's scope and meaning.

Now, my Brethren, (that you may see the ground of the equity of this,) you must know, that all Officers of a Church are in a further distance from the Church, to have any Authority over it, then Jesus Christ is over the whole Church. Now, if that Jesus Christ doth not take upon him to be a Head, who deserveth it, but it is given him, certainly no man is to take any office over the Church of God, but he must have a warrant for it; the thing will necessarily follow. All the Kings and Princes in Christendom, and all the Parliaments in the World, cannot set up an office over the Church, which Christ hath not set up. It is God, saith he, that hath set in the Church some Apostles, and some Prophets, and some Teachers, 1 *Cor.*12.28. Or, if you will speak in the language of the Text, Given them, that is, Appointed them, so the phrase in *Eph.*4.

You that cannot add an Hair to your Head, can you think you can add a Member to the Church of Christ, which shall have an Office, that he never appointed? Take the Natural body; Can any man invent, all men, take all their wits together, a Member that is not natural to the Body, that God hath not already made? For in his Book all our Members are written. Can you make a different Member from the Hand or the Eye, that the Body hath not, that you can say will be useful to the Body? Go to the Church, all the Men in the World cannot find out by their wisdom and appointment an Officer that shall rule in the Church, that doth not depend meerly upon God's command, you must have all these Members written in his Book. The Head is written you see, it is given to him; certainly then all the Members must.

This Kingdom is pulling down, it is setting up a power over Churches, what else makes all the Commotions and Stirs that are among us? All that I will say is this; Have a warrant for what you do, that it may be said, By what Authority do ye these things? My meaning is this; By what Authority do these Appointments exercise Jurisdiction over the Church of God? If Christ himself have it by gift, certainly they must. All our Tenour holdeth in Capite, (that I may speak in Law) holdeth of him that is Head of the Church. I do not say, that if there be Officers in the Church, which God hath not appointed, that presently they deny Christ to be the Head, and that they do not hold the Head it self. Far be it from us to say so, that is the expression in Col. 2. 19. speaking of Idolaters, he saith, they do not hold the Head, Christ; but we may say, that those Officers do not hold of the Head, as it is exprest *Eph.*4. 15, 16. In which two places you may see the different phrases.

So much now for that First thing, He had it given to him to be the Head. He had his Body given to him, and he had his Headship given to him too.

Now I come to the dignity it self, it is Headship; He gave him to be a Head over all to the Church. There are Three things to be explained in this.

First, What is intended by Church.

Secondly, What being a Head to the Church importeth.

Thirdly, To what purpose [Over all] cometh in. It is put you see between his being a Head, and to the Church. He is a Head (saith he) over all to the Church.

I will begin with the First, what is intended by the Church. Therein I shall only open this distinction to you of the differing acceptation of the word Church. In general you must know this, That the word Church hath a relation to an Assembly of Men uniting in one; that is properly a Church, apply it to what you will, whether to a Church of Saints, or a Church of Men, a civil Assembly of Men; it is applied to both in Scripture. Sermon XXXV.

Now it being taken here of Saints, that are Members of Christ, it hath this double acceptation in Scripture: I shall mention no other, if any man can find any other, I would see it.

It is taken First, for the general Company and Assembly of all Saints, united together by several bonds to Christ their Head, or united by one band. If you speak of the Church of Men, united they are by a common band unto Jesus Christ their Head. This we call the Catholick Church, which you have in the Creed. It is called in this Epistle, Chap. 3.15. the whole Family of all that are named in Heaven and Earth, which are united by one common bond. In Chap. 4. he saith, There is one Body, and one Spirit, and one Lord, it is all one with what is here in the Text, He is a Head to his Church, which is his Body.

And, my Brethren, that this general Assembly of all Saints is the Church Universal; to give you a place for that, it is Heb. 12.23. Ye are come to the general Assembly, and Church of the First-born, which are written in Heaven. The general Assembly of Saints, this is here in Heaven; take it in Earth, take it whereever Saints are, (they are either in Heaven or in Earth,) this General Assembly is the Church Universal. That is the first acceptation of the word.

But Secondly, we find in the New Testament particular Assemblies and Companies of Saints, and that on Earth to be dignified with the name of Churches, and to be dignified with the name of Bodies to Christ; not one Body, but if they be several Churches they are distinct Bodies to Christ. We read therefore of the Churches of Galatia, Chap. 1. 2. of the Churches of Judea elsewhere, of the Churches of Asia, Rev. Chap. 1, 2. and 3. of all the Churches of the Gentiles, Rom. 1. 5. Now these I call as Divines do, particular Churches in a distinction from the general Church of all Saints. I will give you my warrant for it, for that very phrase of a particular Church. It is 1 Cor. 12.27. Ye are saith he speaking to the Church of Corinth, the Body of Christ, and every one of you Members of Christ in particular. That same phrase, κὰ μέλη ἐκ μέρους, it is, you are a part you are in particular, our Translation rendreth it well, it is the most genuine reading of the words; The meaning is this, As every one of you are Members of Christ in particular, so go take you all together, as you are the Church of Corinth, you are a Body of Christ in particular too. Here you see is a particular Church mentioned in distinction from the general assembly whereof you heard out of Heb. 12.

You must know this, (for the scope of this place in 1 Cor. 12.) the Apostle had shewn that the Church of Christ is a Body unto Christ, he had discourst under that similitude throughout the whole Chapter in all the verses before. Read the whole Chapter from the very first verse to the 27*th.* and you shall find that he compareth the Church of Christ to a Body, and Christ to the Head; but he had so discourst as he had meant the Universal Church all the way in all the former or the chief part of the Chapter. Now because they might say, How doth all this discourse of Christ and his Body, (when you mean the Church Universal,) concerne us? And how doth your similitude hold of us? It holdeth indeed of the Church in general, but doth it hold of us? Yes saith he; You are the Body of Christ, and Members in particular, and therefore all that I have said of the Church Universal under the similitude of a Body holdeth good of you, of your Church in particular, every particular Church being the Model and bearing in its proportion the resemblance of the Universal.

And he doth it to prevent all disorder and schism and rent which was among that Church, and he useth and inforceth that similitude of a Body. There is the same reason of a particular Body that Christ is their Head, and of the whole Body, as there is the same reason of a drop of Water and the whole Ocean, are totum homogeneum, a Church, a particular Church, the Church of Corinth is the

Sermon XXXV.

Body of Christ in particular as well as the whole Church is a Body to him in the general. This is the scope of that place. Therefore saith he, you may apply all that I have said of the Body of Christ in general to your own, you are the Body of Christ and Members in particular though you are not the whole Body of Christ, that is, the Church Universal.

Now, You see that in respect of the Universal Church a particular Church of Corinth is said to be a Body to Christ. I will give you a place that saith it is his whole Body, as it is a part in respect of the Church Universal, so it is within it self an intire whole Body. The place is 1 Cor. 14. 23. If therefore the whole Church be come together into some place; mark it, the place is express. As this Church of Corinth was but a part of the Universal Church yet within it self, (as he saith 1 Cor. 5. Do not judge them within your selves,) it was a whole Church; If the whole Church be come together in one place; The Church of Corinth was not the whole Church of Jesus Christ in Heaven and in Earth, neither can the whole Church of God (take it so,) meet together in one place, yet he calleth it you see a whole Church, If the whole Church come together into some place, to that end to edifie one another, as the scope of the place is. This Church of Corinth therefore was as truly a Body to Jesus Christ and a whole body to him as the Church Universal was the whole Body, and had all the priviledges of the Body.

As for Example, to exemplifie it unto you. In your City you have many several Companies, as Mercers, &c. All these Companies they are several bodies, yet they are all parts of the City, they are Companies in particular if you compare them to the whole, yet they are intire and distinct companies amongst themselves, so is it here of particular Churches.

And my Brethren, that you may see what the limits of this whole Church of Corinth was, what the bounds, the Terriers of this whole Church was; It is of no more then could meet together in some place. If the whole Church (saith he,) be come together into some place. Some say that the meaning of this ἐπὶ τὸ αὐτὸ that it is only this that they came together to one purpose in unity. But it is clear by comparing other Scriptures that it is a distinct thing from meeting in unity, it is meeting in one place, as Acts 2. 1. They were all with one accord (there is their unity,) in one place. Here are the Terriers of this Church.
